The first place in Sheffield visited by the Archæologists on Monday was the parish church of St. Peter. It is a rather stately building, with a lofty tower and crocketed spire above the intersecting of its crossing parts; the chancel is of Late Decorated, the nave of Perpendicular style; but restorations have done much, and all the windows are modern. The Shrewsbury Chapel, which was shown to the visitors by the Rev. Canon Sale, was built in the reign of Henry VIII. by the fourth Earl of Shrewsbury, who also built the Sheffield Manor House. His monument here is an altar-tomb, with effigies in alabaster of himself and his two Countesses, though, we understand, the last of those ladies, surviving her husband, was buried at Erith, in Kent. The Earl is in armour, with his grand mantle and George, as a Knight of the Garter. Against the south wall is placed a monument of the sixth Earl, who was the stern prison-keeper of Queen Mary of Scotland by our Queen Elizabeth's command. He, too, lies in armour, upon a rolled mattress; but his feet rest upon a dog of the "talbot" kind, in punning allusion to his family name. Others of these animals, at the sides of the tomb, support banners inscribed with heraldic designs.

The ruins of the ancient Manor House, which were next visited, are not far outside the town. Of Sheffield Castle, which stood a siege in the reign of Henry III., and which was two miles distant, no remnant can now be seen. Concerning the descent of this manor of Hallam or Sheffield, which was once the Saxon lordship of Earl Waltheof, beheaded in 1075 for a rising against William the Conqueror, much was said at the Archæological Congress. It came by marriage to the Talbots in 1406, and from the Talbots, after two centuries, passed in like manner to the Howards, whence it belongs to the Duke of Norfolk. Cardinal Wolsey, after his fall in the King's favour, was the guest of the Earl of Shrewsbury in the Sheffield Manor House till a week before his death in the Abbey at Leicester. Mary Queen of Scots was confined two years at Sheffield, but mostly in the castle, though a letter from Gilbert Talbot, the Earl's son, proves that she was at least a few days in the Manor House. The castle, in the civil wars between Charles I. and the Parliament, was captured, and then ordered to be dismantled; it was in fact destroyed.

Broom Hall, the residence of Mr. R. N. Philipps, has preserved in its ancient gable a fine example of the old English timbered method of domestic architecture. It was inhabited, two hundred years ago, by Francis Jessop, one of the founders of the Royal Society, who here entertained the naturalist Ray, and other learned men of that age. The president and some other members of the British Archæological Association were received by Mr. Philipps at Broom Hall, and inspected the old gable of the house, while its owner read them an interesting account of that fashion of building, which is more frequently to be seen in Cheshire.

The proceedings of Monday, which had begun with the presentation, in the Cutlers' Hall, of an address of welcome to the Association, by the Mayor and Corporation of Sheffield, ended with a banquet given to them in the same hall by the Duke of Norfolk. Speeches were made by his Grace, by Lord Houghton, and by the Mayor, Mr. Alderman Fairburn. In the course of the week, excursions have been made to Worksop Priory and Beauchief Priory, to Laughton-le-Morthen and Roche Abbey, to Rotherham, to some places beyond Huddersfield, to Conisborough and Doncaster, to Bradford and Wharfedale Chase. Several of these are included among our Illustrations.

Conisborough, or Coningsborough, Castle is known to the readers of Sir Walter Scott's "Ivanhoe," as the abode of the rather stupid Saxon thane, Athelstane, who, indeed, appears there as a ghost when supposed to be dead, and disturbs the funeral rites in a very extraordinary manner. It is a massive round tower, occupying the whole summit of a wooded knoll, above the valley of the Don, but surrounded by a wall and fosse. The walls at the basement are 15 ft. thick; the entrance door, 14 ft. above ground, was formerly reached by a ladder, but there are now stone steps. A staircase in the wall leads up to each of the three stories, into which, and the dungeon below, the internal space is divided, being 22 ft. in diameter. Six projecting buttresses, which rise like turrets above the roof of the tower, complete this singular fortress of a mediæval Baron. Its general character resembles that of the towers and "peels" in the Border country of Scotland, but that these are square instead of round, and without the flanking buttresses.

The Abbey de Bello Capite, or Beauchief, is situated in Derbyshire, up the valley of the Sheaf, four miles south of Sheffield. What remains of it is a magnificent old tower, and part of the church nave, which is still used for public worship. The west window is modern, but there are three beautiful archways of Norman date.

The town of Rotherham, seven miles east of Sheffield, is at the confluence of the Rother with the Don, which is navigable from this point to the Humber. Its church of All Saints was partly built by Thomas Scott, of Rotherham, Archbishop of York in the time of Henry VII., who founded a college here. It is one of the finest Perpendicular church buildings in the north of England; and the interior presents some very peculiar features, such as the shape of the pillars, a section of which has the form of an elongated lozenge instead of a cylinder. On the bridge over the Don at Rotherham is a little wayside chapel, 32 ft. by 14 ft., lately used as a lock-up cell for police purposes.

Eight miles beyond Rotherham, in the Earl of Scarborough's park of Sandbeck, are the ruins of a Cistercian abbey, the offshoot of Fountains Abbey at Ripon. Roche Abbey took its name from the rock, a limestone cliff, on which a hermit found the miraculous figure of a crucifix engraved by no human hand or tool. The quarries of this place are much used by Yorkshire churchbuilders. Of the old abbey yet remains the main gateway, with part of the chancel and transepts.

Tickhill, on the border of Nottinghamshire, is a small town with a fine old church and with a fragment of the castle, built, soon after the Conquest, by Roger de Busli, who got the lordship of Hallam after the defeat of Waltheof. The structure was probably like that of Conisborough, but the gateway tower alone remains. Tickhill, with Nottingham, held out for King John after the return of Richard Cœur de Lion from his Austrian captivity. It was taken and demolished in the civil wars of the Commonwealth.

THE LABOUR QUESTION.

Lord Ebury, presiding, yesterday week, at a meeting of the Cottage Garden Horticultural Society at Rickmansworth, discussed the question of wages with reference to the allegation that high wages lead to drunkenness and crime. He said, considering the high price of provisions and fuel, he thought it was high time wages should be increased; but he wished that the increase could have been got without such violent agitation and invective, which had caused so much ill-will between class and class. He wished also that he could say that it was unaccompanied with intemperance; but so long as humanity remained what it was we should never get any considerable amount of good without a considerable admixture of evil. He was inclined to think, as time went on and labourers became accustomed to the higher wages, that they would learn to appreciate these advantages and use them to a better purpose than intemperance. The navy was the highest paid of unskilled labourers, and when railways first began to be made there were considerable complaints of their conduct; but since then he could not only give his own, but the testimony of every police director in the kingdom, that there was not a better behaved class to be found than the English navy.

So seriously have the intermittent disputes between the Welsh colliers and their employers as to the application of the Mines Regulation Act affected the local coal trade that the output is said to have declined to about a third of its normal quantity. The masters have conceded point after point—among others the Imperial ton as the standard of measure—yet the men still discover new grievances. It is hoped, however, that the last of them will soon be disposed of.

A conference of miners' delegates, representing 30,000 South Lancashire colliers, concluded its sitting at Wigan on Saturday last. The subject under discussion was the weighing clause of the Mines Regulation Act; and resolutions were passed insisting that the Act should be carried out, protesting against exemptions and extensions of time, and pledging the meeting to use every legitimate means to establish the system of payment legalised by the Act.

A great trades demonstration was held at Blackburn last Saturday afternoon. Upwards of a thousand journeymen and apprentices formed in procession, accompanied by ten bands of music, and walked through the principal streets of the town to the Corporation Park. Councillor Crossley presided. A resolution moved by Mr. W. Billington condemned the Criminal Law Amendment Act, the Master and Servants Act, and the laws of conspiracy as assigning other than civil remedies. The resolution was seconded by Mr. Banks and carried unanimously. A second one pledged trades unionists to support the Parliamentary candidates who favoured the first resolution.

An extensive strike has occurred in the lace trade at Nottingham. The lacemakers have hitherto been paid during "alterations"—that is, while preparing the machinery for new patterns of lace—at the rate of 3s. 4d. per day. They now demand 5s. per day, and to this the masters will not accede.

The reports furnished to the union committees of the building trades indicate that the advance to ninepence an hour has been very generally conceded. Both the carpenters and the masons passed resolutions for placing on strike pay all who had been refused the advance. The sequel of the movement is likely to be a demand from the labourers for an additional halfpenny an hour—viz., 6d., instead of 5½d.

The rules of the "National Federation of Employers"—which, it is said, has been called into existence by the operations of workmen's trade unions, to which it is intended to be a corresponding organisation—have been published.

An Irish agricultural labourers' union was formed, yesterday week, at Kanturk, in the county of Cork.

In a trade circular issued by a firm of colliers at Cardiff, it is stated, as a reason for a diminished output at the collieries, that quite one half of the colliers are enjoying themselves at the seaside, or assisting in harvesting operations.

Mr. Lowe, as Home Secretary, has declined to rescind a sentence of six months' imprisonment upon two trade-union carpenters who were convicted of intimidation. He declares that he cannot re-hear a case which has been pronounced upon by a Judge and jury.

Northamptonshire is being rewarded for its efforts to find a home supply of coal. It is announced that a seam two feet thick has been discovered at Wellingborough.

The exhibition of leather-work held in Northampton has proved a complete success. The 2000 exhibits are classed into five divisions, and not only illustrate the uses to which leather can be put, but the machines employed. Besides shoes, boots, gloves, saddlery, portmanteaus, and bookbinding, there are specimens of leather frames, card-cases, and brackets. Some old English leather bottles, a South American lasso, a Kaffir shield, and one of rhinoceros hide taken from Magdala, and two Ashantee bridles excite general interest.

FINE ARTS.

The triennial exhibition of the Antwerp Salon (in rotation with the exhibitions at Brussels and Ghent) is now open. The collection contains 1256 items, but is reported to be far inferior to that at Brussels last year—which we reviewed. A large proportion of the leading Belgian painters either abstain from contributing or send comparatively unimportant examples. The two most remarkable works in the exhibition are said to be Mr. Alma Tadema's "Claudius Saluted Emperor," which was exhibited at our Royal Academy last year, and "La Mère du Messie," by M. C. Verlat, now Director of the Weimar Academy. The latter is a large triptych, containing the Virgin and Child in the central compartment and the figures of the four Evangelists in the two leaves. The work is intended, we believe, to be a votive offering to the cathedral of Antwerp, in memory of the artist's mother. M. Verlat is one of the most versatile painters of Europe, but is best known, probably, by his animal pictures, often of humorous character. The religious subjects, which he occasionally treats, are, however, always distinguished by reverential sentiment and fine technical qualities. Our readers may remember a Madonna by this artist which we engraved from the International Exhibition of 1871.

One of the most remarkable instances of rapid rise in the price of a work by a contemporary, or nearly contemporary, artist is that recorded of the "Marino Faliero" of Eugene Delacroix. This picture the artist in vain sought to sell for 1000*fr.* Ten years after its completion, however, it was sold for 12,000*fr.*, and, after passing through two or three hands, was ultimately bought by Sir Richard Wallace for 80,000*fr.*—i.e., eighty times the price at first asked.

Mr. John M. Wilson is exhibiting his collection of pictures, which, like that of Sir Richard Wallace, equals in importance some public galleries, at the Cercle Artistique et Littéraire of Brussels, for the benefit of the poor of the town. Mr. Wilson bears the entire expense of the exhibition, and has published a catalogue of the collection containing fifty-five admirable engravings of the principal pictures. Of the 500 copies of the catalogue 400 will be sold at 20*fr.* each for the benefit of the Brussels poor. The collection is composed mainly of works of the Flemish, Dutch, and English schools. Among the last are examples of Bonington, Constable, Morland, Mulready, Opie, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Turner, Wilson, and Crome. Mr. Wilson is the son of the late Mr. Thomas Wilson, who may be said to have introduced cotton manufactures into the Low Countries. After the Revolution of 1830 he followed his Royal patron into Holland, where he established probably the most important commercial house in that country, its relations with Java in particular being extraordinarily extensive.

The third Autumn Exhibition of Pictures held under the auspices of the Liverpool Corporation will be opened to the public on Monday, Sept. 1.

Some important frescoes, attributed to Agnolo Gaddi, the Florentine painter of the fourteenth century, have been discovered in an ancient apartment adjoining the Villa Demidoff at San Donato. They formed part, with others which have long since disappeared, of a series of decorations of the monastery of San Donato, in Polverosa, one of the most ancient and most celebrated monasteries of Italy.

A bust of the late F. D. Maurice by Mr. Woolner has been placed in Westminster Abbey, in the chapel of St. John the Baptist; and a marble statue of the late Dr. Whewell, Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, by Woolner, has been placed in the ante-chapel of the college, close to that of the late Lord Macaulay.

The receipts from the late Exhibition of the Royal Academy amounted to between fifteen and sixteen thousand pounds. The Archbishop of York has been elected honorary chaplain to the Royal Academy, in place of the late Bishop of Winchester.

The painter Anastasi, for whom a subscription producing 120,000*fr.* had been made among artists, owing to his having become blind, has made over to the Academy of the Beaux Arts the reversion of 100,000*fr.*, the interest of which he reserves to himself during his life, for "the foundation of a pension or annual assistance in favour of French painters or sculptors, or those who may be assimilated to Frenchmen in misfortune."

A reduced study or replica of the "Marriage of Henri IV.," one of the subjects of the Marie de Medicis series of pictures in the Louvre, has been sold to a Dutch amateur for £5086.

Mr. Thomas Heaphy, of late years a member of the Society of British Artists, died lately, aged sixty. For many years he exhibited at the Royal Academy and elsewhere, his subjects being principally of the class of historical genre. Mr. Heaphy also employed his pen with considerable ability as an art-critic. His most successful literary work, published a few years back, was a story of modern spiritualism, entitled "Mr. H.'s Own Narrative."—We have also to announce the death, after a long and painful illness, at the age of forty-three, of Mr. E. Crawford, a genre painter, some of whose pleasantly-conceived and conscientiously-elaborated works have become popular through the medium of photography. The painter's widow is an artist who largely and deservedly shared her husband's reputation.—We have further to announce the death, at the age of thirty-seven, of Mr. Joseph Shepherd Wyon, of the family of medallists of that name, who have taken the place of the Pistrucchi in this country. The deceased artist held the appointment of chief engraver of her Majesty's seals.

A new Townhall built at Bradford at an expenditure of £100,000 is to be opened on Sept. 9, with the revival of what many remember as the "Bishop Blaize Festival," an imposing procession of local trades, last celebrated in the town some forty years ago. A public meeting, convened by the Mayor, was held on Monday, and it was resolved to observe the day as a general holiday.

Mr. Gladstone, the Observer understands, has been advised on high legal authority that his assumption of the Chancellorship of the Exchequer does not vacate his seat at Greenwich. Under these circumstances, no notification of his acceptance of the office will be made to the Speaker, and therefore, even supposing, which there is absolutely no reason to believe, that the Speaker should hold a contrary opinion to that of the authorities consulted, no action can be taken or writ issued till after the meeting of Parliament.

An Admiralty circular gives the details of Mr. Goschen's latest reform in the Navy. As a beginning towards the establishment of a special staff for navigating and piloting duties, it is proposed to appoint five lieutenants under four years' standing, and twenty sub-lieutenants. Candidates are to be selected by examination, in preparing for which facilities will be provided at Portsmouth and elsewhere. Lieutenants thus appointed will have to go through a short course of gunnery. All officers holding navigating appointments will receive an addition to the pay of their rank, and will be retained on the executive list.

MUSIC.

M. RIVIERE'S PROMENADE CONCERTS.

These concerts commenced brilliantly, at Covent Garden Theatre, on Saturday last, when the programme comprised the overtures to "Masaniello" and "La Gazza Ladra," various pieces of dance music; a selection from "Babil and Bijou," including the celebrated "Spring Chorus," by the original choir of boys; and vocal solos by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Miss Blanche Cole, Madame Demerit-Lablache, Mr. George Perren, and Signor Foli. A full and efficient orchestra has been engaged, consisting of one hundred skilled instrumentalists, and these are reinforced, in some of the pieces, by the band of the Royal Artillery. A chorus of fifty voices is also an important feature in the arrangements. The solo instrumentalists on the opening night were the well-known pianist, Madame Carreno-Sauret, who gave an effective performance of Liszt's "Rigoletto" fantasia; M. Sauret, who executed with much brilliancy a violin fantasia by Wieniawski; and Mr. Levy, the eminent performer on the cornet, who was cordially received on his first appearance since his recent return to England. M. Riviere conducted.

The decorations of the theatre, specially prepared for these concerts, are very elaborate and tasteful, giving an appearance of an Oriental interior, and including fountains and fountains. The decorative artists are Messrs. Dayes and Caney.

The crowded attendance and the successful performances of Saturday give promise of a highly favourable season for M. Riviere's new series of concerts.

The specialties of this week were a Mendelssohn selection, on Wednesday evening, conducted by Mr. Barnby; and "The Messiah," on Friday, conducted by Mr. William Carter. To-night (Saturday) Miss Rose Hersee is to make her first appearance since her return from a successful tour in America.

THEATRES.

PRINCESS'S.

The autumn season of the Oxford-street theatre began on Saturday, under the conduct of Mr. James Guiver, whose long experience of theatrical management well qualifies him for the task he has undertaken. The class of entertainment intended is indicated by the selection of Lord Byron's mysterious tragedy of "Manfred" for the leading performance. That drama the illustrious author never purposed for the stage, and thought that he had so constructed it that its representation would be impossible. One might have concluded, indeed, that its theme, as well as its mode of treatment, would have excluded it from the boards. The beauty, however, of the poetry and the dramatic power of two or three scenes have secured the attention of a select public, for which it would seem that Mr. Guiver is willing to cater. "Manfred," as of course our readers are aware, has been previously performed. It was first introduced to the stage by Mr. Alfred Bunn in 1834, and the embodiment of its singular hero was entrusted to Mr. Denvil, an actor of some talent, but not generally appreciated. He so far succeeded that the drama was travestied for the Strand, and the scenery was so good that it added much to the reputation of the Messrs. Grieve. Ten years ago, Mr. Chatterton reproduced the play at Drury Lane, with all the appliances of the national theatre, and supported by the acting of Mr. Phelps. On the present occasion, the scenery, which is excellent, has been supplied by Messrs. W. Telbin and W. L. Telbin, and also by Mr. F. Fenton, assisted by Mr. Emden. The title rôle has been undertaken by Mr. Charles Dillon, under whose direction the general action of the drama has been arranged. We had expected much from this gentleman's performance, nor have we been disappointed; it is, in fact, the best rendering of the character we have yet been favoured with. Mr. Charles Dillon enters into the character with spirit, and throws into it an amount of passion, feeling, and emotion, which his predecessors appear not to have considered indispensable. They seem to have thought the work was a poem to be declaimed, not a drama to be acted. Mr. Dillon has thought otherwise, and is careful to bring out the dramatic qualities of the scenes, in which he has succeeded beyond our expectation. Not that he is altogether perfect either; for, in describing to the Witch of the Alps the misfortunes of his love, he gave without any emphasis, "Not with my hand, but heart," a confession which should have been wrung from him with a cry of agony, and not merely catalogued as a common matter. One of the most difficult parts in the play is also the most brief, that of the phantom of Astarte. Miss Cowper deserves praise for her pose and her pathos—the evident feeling and the rhythmical expression of a few words, which contain a world of import. The situation itself is one of the most sublime, and may take rank with anything in Dante. The important part of the Chamois Hunter was admirably well supported by Mr. William Rignold, and Mr. Palmer made an excellent Abbot of St. Maurice. Mr. Alfred Honey was suitably comic in Herman, and Mr. Brunton, in the aged retainer Manuel, was appropriately characteristic. Mr. Egan looked grand as Arimanes; and among the young ladies who represented the various influences Miss Russell and Miss Alice Phillips distinguished themselves as Hesperand Ariel, Spirits of the Stars and of Ether; as also did Miss Baldwin as the Witch of the Alps. Among the scenery we may name as most worthy of attention the studio and Gothic gallery in Manfred's castle, painted by Mr. F. Fenton; the precipice and glaciers near the summit of the Jungfrau, painted by Mr. Telbin; as also the Steinbach Waterfall by the same artist. To Mr. Fenton we are likewise indebted for the chalet of the chamois-hunter and Alpine pass and the snow-capped summit of the Jungfrau. The last scene is by Mr. Emden—namely, the turret studio, where the conflict between the Evil and Good supernaturals, which takes place at Manfred's death, is very suggestively managed. Mr. Dillon was called more than once before the curtain.

GAIETY.

The fun so prominent in the French comedy "Tricote et Cacolet" appears to have recommended that piece to Mr. Hollingshead as a medium for the profitable employment of the talents of Mr. Toole and Mr. Brough. Accordingly, it has been produced under the title of "Bibb and Tucker," in a well-intended version, which presents the original in so emasculated a state that it must needs disappoint the expectant playgoer. Miss E. Farren and the two distinguished comedians above named worked hard to restore to the English text the life of the French, and even resorted to artificial expedients for the extorting of effects; but, though they succeeded in ensuring a certain amount of sympathy and merriment, the result was not eminently satisfactory. Bibb and Tucker are to be accepted as two inquiry agents, one of whom, Bibb (Mr. Toole), has disguised himself as a street-arab, and interviewed a Mr. Tobin (Mr. Soutar), whose wife has an intrigue with Sir Rupert Tasker (Mr. Maclean). Tucker, on the other hand (Mr. Brough), disguised as an organ-grinder, makes the acquaintance of Mrs. Tobin (Miss E. Farren), offering her assistance. Mrs. Tobin, by means of Sir Rupert, secures a safe journey to her aunt at Berlin. Bibb pursues the fugitives, with the view of restoring his wife to Tobin; and Tucker provides the runaways with the livery of a footman and lady's maid, and also with service in the house of Signora Vibrato (Miss E. Duncan). Both Bibb and Tucker assume a variety of disguises to counteract each other's designs; ultimately, too, the Signora is arrested for Mrs. Tobin, and the confusion arrives at a climax. Nothing remains but that the agents should effect a compromise and promote a reconciliation. Showering their handbills among the audience, they bring the sport to an abrupt end, and the curtain down upon a piece of effective action. Thus concludes a piece which aims at more than it attains, yet is not without attractive points.

At the Haymarket Mr. J. S. Clarke will make his first appearance next Saturday, under the management of Messrs. Walter Joyce and W. R. Field, who have taken the theatre for an autumn season, with every prospect of achieving a great success. The experiment has our good wishes.

HOLYHEAD NEW HARBOUR OF REFUGE.

The completion of the breakwater, and formal opening of the new harbour of refuge, formed by twenty-five years' labour at Holyhead, the well-known port for Dublin steam-packets on the coast of Anglesey, was celebrated last Tuesday with a ceremonial performance and festivity, in which the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh bore the most conspicuous parts. We have, on former occasions, given illustrations and some account of the progress of this great and useful work in our Journal; and now present a general view of the harbour and breakwater, looking over it towards the shore of Anglesey, the foreground, part of the Holyhead island or peninsula, being separated from Anglesey by a wide inlet of the sea. There is a connecting piece of sandbank, three quarters of a mile long, some portions of which are overflowed at high tide, but this lies out of sight, far to the right hand of our view. The steam-packet harbour and pier, familiar to the traveller between England and Ireland, are seen in that direction. In the middle of the view is the capacious new harbour, with the breakwater extending part of the width across the bay, and having a length of a mile and a half, but with two considerable bends. A number of colliers and other small vessels lie under its shelter, while two or three ships of war are anchored in deeper water near the end of the wall. The Devastation and other large ironclads are lying outside, in the open roadstead. The original plan comprised a north breakwater of 5360 ft. in length from the coast line, and an east breakwater 2000 ft. in length, the two inclosing between them an area of 267 acres of available water space, with a packet pier 1500 ft. long. As the works proceeded it was found that the harbour would be too small even for purposes of refuge, and it was therefore determined to extend the northern breakwater to 7860 ft., and thus shelter an additional roadstead of 400 acres of deep water. The breakwater is terminated by a head on which is erected a lighthouse. The foundation of the work is a great rubble mound of stone, 400 ft. wide at the base, and nowhere less than 250 ft. in width at low-water level. It contains altogether about 7,000,000 tons of stone. The rubble mound having been consolidated by the action of the sea, the superstructure is a solid central wall of massive masonry, built of stone from the Holyhead mountain quarries. Many of the stones are of great size, some weighing upwards of fifteen tons, and the work is set in lias lime mortar. The wall was built as near as possible to the inner edge of the stone deposit, the foundations being at the level of low water. It is carried to a height of 38 ft. 9 in., and upon it is a handsome promenade, surmounted on the sea side by a massive parapet. At a lower level, 27 ft. above low water, there is on the harbour side of the central wall a terrace or quay 40 ft. wide, formed by an inner wall. The head at the end of the breakwater is a massive structure of ashlar masonry, 150 ft. long and 50 ft. wide; and the foundations rest upon the rubble mound, at a level varying from 20 ft. to 28 ft. below low water.

The late Mr. J. M. Rendel superintended the work personally as engineer-in-chief, from the commencement, in December, 1847, until his death, in 1856, when Mr. John Hawkshaw succeeded him. Mr. G. C. Dobson has been the resident engineer, and the contractors Messrs. J. and C. Rigby. The harbour master is Vice-Admiral Schomberg.

The squadron of ironclads, which arrived on Saturday, consisted of the Agincourt, bearing the flag of Rear-Admiral Hornby, the Hercules, the Sultan, the Northumberland, and the Devastation. These were preceded by the despatch-boats Lively and Vivid and six training-brigs. Public maritime authorities were represented by Sir Frederick Arrow, Deputy Master, and some of the Elder Brethren of the Trinity House, in their steam-yacht Galatea; the Commissioners of Northern Lights, in the steam-yacht Argus; and the Commissioners of Irish Lights, in the steam-yacht Princess Alexandra. The Victoria and Albert, Captain Prince Leiningen, arrived from Osborne very early on Tuesday morning. Their Royal Highnesses, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh, landed from the Victoria and Albert at noon. They were received by Mr. W. O. Stanley, M.P., High Sheriff of the county, the Lord Lieutenant, and the Chairman of the Holyhead Local Board, with Mr. Chichester Fortescue, President of the Board of Trade. After the presentation of loyal addresses from the local authorities, the Princes were conveyed, in a train of small waggons, prettily decorated, and drawn by a locomotive, along the railroad to the head of the breakwater. Here they ascended a dais, under a canopy of flags, where Mr. Chichester Fortescue read a statement of the design and completion of the work, and the Prince of Wales declared the harbour of refuge to be opened. A royal salute was fired by the ships. The visitors afterwards inspected the lighthouse, and were entertained at Penrhos by Mr. Stanley. We shall give further illustrations next week.

From the official railway returns for 1872, it appears that the capital sunk in railways increased 16 millions since 1871.

Saturday being the first anniversary of the existence of the Brighton Aquarium, about sixty gentlemen dined together in celebration of the event—Mr. G. Soames in the chair.

Dr. Austin, surgeon, of Reigate, and secretary of the Surrey Archaeological Society, was found dead in the South Park at Reigate yesterday week, death having arisen from a fit.

The 15th of August, on which day last year the alarming riots in Belfast broke out, has this year passed over quietly in that town and in the north of Ireland generally, the Catholics refraining from making any demonstration.

Mr. Arthur Loxley, of Norcott Court, Herts, writes to say that Mrs. Elizabeth Leatherlund, of the age of 110 years, reaped two sheaves of wheat on Thursday week, in a field belonging to Mr. John Mead, of Tring, Herts.—On the 19th inst. Mrs. Hannah Penney died at King's Lynn, at the age of 102 years. Up to the time of her last illness, only some days since, she showed much vivacity, but she was very deaf and nearly blind.

THE NEW HARBOUR OF REFUGE AT HOLYHEAD.

"He shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in."

BY J. W. BOTTOMLEY.—FROM THE

is bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young."

THE ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

Leaves from a Sketch-Book.

THE ISLE OF THANET.

That corner of Kent which terminates with the North Foreland, the most easterly point of England in these southern counties, was once as truly an island as Anglesey or the Isle of Wight. It was completely divided from the English mainland by a navigable arm of the sea, from Richborough, near Sandwich, to Reculvers, near Herne Bay. Richborough is a corruption of the Latin name Rutupia, and Reculvers of Regulbium, which were the two Roman forts built to guard the shortest and safest passage for Roman galleys sailing from the coast of Gaul to Roman London. This inner course would evade the dangers of the Goodwin Sands; but a fabulous tradition declares that the sands, which are ten miles long and two broad, and dry at low tide, were formed long afterwards in the Norman reign of William Rufus. As well say, with the old familiar joke, that they were caused by Tenterden steeple! The great barrier-bank, situated from seven to three miles off shore, which protects shipping anchored in the Downs, except when there is a southerly gale, is a cruel enemy to catch vessels rounding either the North or the South Foreland with a gale from the west; and whole fleets have been swallowed by its vast capacity of mischief. Opposite the Goodwin Sands, between Deal and Ramsgate, the coast recedes to form Pegwell Bay, with a wide tract of low and flat land, unlike the lofty cliffs of the two Forelands at each side of this broad level. The sea in Pegwell Bay spread formerly more inland, so that Sandwich, now two miles from the waves, in Saxon times was the most renowned of English seaports. It was at Ebbe's Fleet, the present name of a farm in Minster Marsh, that the Saxons themselves, led by Hengist and Horsa, are said to have landed and engaged in the service of the British King

DAUNDELION.

CLIFFS NEAR MARGATE

SALMESTON GRANGE, MARGATE.

MINSTER CHURCH.

FARMHOUSE.

MICHAEL YOAKLEY'S HOSPITAL, MARGATE.

Vortigern, whose passion for the fair Rowena cost Britons their national independence. But that is a mythical romance which was sufficiently dealt with in one of our Christmas Numbers, by a "mongrel ballad-monger," who versified the quaint old story. It was certainly at Ebbe's Fleet that St. Augustine landed, in 597, to convert the heathen Saxons. The small river Stour, now quietly winding its way to the sea, has replaced a channel three furlongs broad, and having depth for the largest vessels of ancient voyagers. The distance overland from Pegwell Bay to the north coast of Kent at Reculvers is about nine miles, which was the length of the navigable strait, now reduced to several petty watercourses, streams, or ditches, but represented by a river called the Wansum at an early historical period. Hence it will appear that Thanet was indeed an island; and its ancient name of Tanet was derived from the word tene, a beacon-fire, because it was the custom of the Britons to light such a beacon-fire, in case of warlike peril, on the cliff of the North Foreland. It is eleven miles in length, from east to west, and from seven to nine miles broad, from north to south. It contains the two flourishing towns of Margate and Ramsgate, with Broadstairs and several growing and improving villages, likely to become towns. The staple industry of the entire district, in these towns and villages, is to provide accommodation and amusement for Londoners who come to enjoy the sea-bathing and to breathe the sea-air. These luxuries of nature, and remedies for town-bred disease or debility, can nowhere be found of better quality, and no marine watering-place that deserves the title is more accessible from London.

We are not about to describe a perambulation of all the Isle of Thanet. Visitors to Margate, Ramsgate, and Broadstairs, with the adjacent new collections of villas, hotels, and lodging-houses, are so numerous at this season, as in many seasons of past years, that it cannot be requisite to tell the world fresh news of those ordinary places of popular resort. The particular subjects of these few leaves from our Artist's sketch-book, which have been engraved to fill a page of our Journal this week, are rather chosen for the sake of their picturesque singularity, or their antiquarian interest. There is Daundelyon, the ancient mansion of a knightly family, French or Flemish, called Dent de Lion from some feat of warlike prowess, who lived here in the reign of Henry IV. It passed from the Daundelyons to the Petits de Shalmesford, whose descendants, in the last century, sold it to Henry Fox, Lord Holland; and his son, Charles James Fox, conveyed it to the Powells. All now remaining of the old building is an embattled gateway, with loopholes for shooting, constructed of brick and flint in alternate rows; above this are the Daundelyon arms, three lions rampant between two bars, and on the left is a demi-lion with a label in his mouth bearing the family name. This relic of antiquity is a mile and a half from Margate. Another curiosity, within half a mile, is the Drapers' Hospital, or Almshouse, founded by Michael Yoakley in 1709, with a small adjacent meeting-house of the Society of Friends. Good Michael Yoakley, it is said, was once a poor boy, tending swine on this very spot, but, having prospered in trade, and dying childless, he left a portion of his store, as we read in the inscription on a white marble tablet, "to relieve such industrious poor as truly fear the Lord, and are of meek, humble, and quiet spirit, according to his word." The present inmates are all women, and the place is commonly known as "Drapers." Salmeestone Grange, of which the remaining old parts, once the chapel and infirmary of monks, are now used as a barn and granary, was a rural appendage of the great monastery of St. Augustine at Canterbury. Several old farm-houses in the hamlets near Margate have a quaintness of aspect likely to attract the stranger's notice. The very names, too, such as Quex, Muthrix, Acol, Shallows, and Twenties, seem to remind him of Tudor or even Plantagenet times and characters, long before the pier was built or the Assembly Rooms and Tivoli Gardens were opened for the entertainment of London visitors.

The village of Minster, which has a station on the railway between Ramsgate and Canterbury, was formerly a seaport, but its creek or river has long since dwindled to an insignificant ditch. It is surrounded by green meadows, corn-fields, and copses, affording the most agreeable rural scenery. There was a famous monastic foundation, of Saxon date, at Minster, being the nunnery established in 670 by the Princess Dompevea, whose two brothers were killed by Egbert, King of Kent, because their birthright to the crown was better than his. A vision of supernatural terror having roused the conscience of the King, he begged the pious Dompevea to intercede for him. She promised him forgiveness, upon condition of his granting her, for this St. Mary's Convent, as much ground as a hind could run over. When the fleet animal was started, a base attempt was made to stop her course by one Thunor, but the earth opened and swallowed him up, so that the nunnery got an estate of 10,000 acres; and Dompevea was its first abbess, succeeded by her daughter, St. Mildred, who was followed by Eadburga, the builder of a more stately pile. All the seventy nuns, with their abbess, were slain, in 1011, by the ferocious Danes, when the convent was utterly destroyed; but its site and endowments were afterwards possessed by the monks of St. Augustine. These monks erected the church dedicated to St. Mary, which is a handsome building—the nave Norman, the chancel and transept Early English, with eighteen collegiate stalls in the chancel. It contains two large altar-tombs of black marble, richly decorated with fantastic sculpture; also the tomb of Edlla de Thorne, stripped of its brass, and the bible-pew, where a copy of the sacred book was chained to the desk. Minster Court, a squire's mansion adjoining the churchyard, was once the residence of those who held the manor under the monks of Canterbury, the corporate landowners of this fertile district.

We shall, perhaps, return to the Isle of Thanet, and we may then give sketches of Reculvers and of Richborough Castle.

The Wesleyan Conference at Newcastle concluded its sittings on Thursday week, after resolving to send a courteous reply to Lord Shaftesbury's appeal for aid in suppressing Ritualism in the Church of England.

At the half-yearly meeting of the South-Western Railway Company a resolution was adopted, with one dissentient, "that 2000 gs. be presented to Captain Mangles, in testimony of the proprietors' appreciation of his services during the eighteen years he presided over the affairs of the company."

It has been decided to hold the autumnal congress of the Associated Chambers of Commerce at Cardiff on Sept. 23 and three following days. During the visit excursions will be made to the Dowlais Ironworks, Raglan and Caerphilly Castle, and other places of interest in South Wales and Monmouthshire. The Marquis of Bute has signified his intention to be present.

Mr. E. W. Hamilton and the Hon. Spencer Lyttelton have been appointed assistant private secretaries to Mr. Gladstone at the Treasury. Sir Bruce Seton will be private secretary to Lord Aberdare as President of the Council. Mr. Frederick Clay will retain his post as private secretary of the patronage secretary of the Treasury. Sir Robert Sidney Mitford has been appointed private secretary to Mr. Lowe.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Aug. 18.

On Saturday last the Municipality of Vienna gave, in connection with the Exhibition, a fête in the Town Park, to which Archdukes Louis, Charles, and Rainer were invited, and also the Austrian and foreign Commissioners and jurymen, the members of the Diplomatic Corps, and the chief State officials. Bürgermeister Felder received the guests at the Curhaus from eight to nine o'clock, and at the latter hour the arrival of the Archdukes completed the company. The park was brilliantly illuminated, and music was played alternately by two military bands and the orchestra of Herr Strauss.

To-day being the Emperor's birthday, the prizes in connection with the "World's Exhibition" have been distributed. The ceremony, which was a brief one, took place in the Winter Riding School of the Imperial Palace. Archduke Rainer, as President of the Exhibition Committee, read an address, and presented to Archduke Charles Louis, the Emperor's brother, who had been deputed to act for his Majesty on the occasion, a list of the awards made by the juries. Archduke Charles replied with a few words authorising the publication of the lists. Baron Schwartz then read out the names of those who had received the diploma of honour, the highest distinction. One of the exhibitors returned thanks in the name of all, giving three cheers for the Emperor. The band played the Austrian National Anthem, and the ceremony was over.

The following British exhibitors have received diplomas of honour:—

In the Mining Department: The Geological Survey Office, Calcutta; Mr. Alderman Cotton, of London, for his Scandinavian iron ores. In the Agricultural Department: Messrs. Fowler and Co., London; J. and F. Howard, Bedford; Ransomes, Sims, and Head, Ipswich. In the Food Products Department: The Acclimatisation Society of Victoria; Anglo-Swiss Condensed Milk Company; and Liebig's Extract of Meat Company. In Textile Fabrics: Messrs. Brock Brothers, Huddersfield; Christy and Co., London; Horrocks, Miller, and Co., London. In the Metal Trade: Messrs. Henry Bessemer and Co.; the Broughton Copper Company, Manchester; Messrs. Brown and Co., and Cammel and Co., of Sheffield; Elkington, of Birmingham; and the Landore Siemens Steel Company. In Furniture: Messrs. Jackson and Graham, London. In Glass, China, and Stone Ware: Messrs. Minton and Co., Stoke-on-Trent; the Worcester Porcelain Company. In the Paper Trade: Messrs. Cowan and Sons, of Penicuik, Scotland. In Decorative Art: Mr. Owen Jones, of London. In Machinery: Messrs. Galloway and Sons, Belfast; Galloway and Sons, Manchester; Lawson and Sons, Leeds; Platt Brothers, Oldham; Sharp, Stewart, and Co., Manchester. Scientific Instruments: V. Kullberg, London. War Material: Messrs. Armstrong, Newcastle-on-Tyne. Educational Matters: The South Kensington Museum; Dr. Leitner, Lahore, India.

Out of the entire number of exhibitors only sixteen have obtained double diplomas of honour, and of these three fall to English firms—namely, Messrs. Fowler and Co., Leeds; Messrs. Clayton and Shuttleworth, Lincoln; and Messrs. Ransome, Sims, and Head, Ipswich. In education Germany takes the highest prize, America the second.

Of our various Australasian colonies none appears to such advantage at the Vienna Exhibition as Victoria, which offers alike the most important, interesting, and varied display. The New Zealand exhibit, which was recently described, is highly creditable to the colonists. Queensland, however, sends next to nothing, and New South Wales contents itself with exhibiting merely some tins of preserved provisions. Victoria sends, for the most part, raw materials and products; and, indeed, it could scarcely be otherwise—the youth, scanty population, and comparative isolation of the different settlements not allowing it as yet to make any great show in the way of manufactures. The staple products of Victoria are wheat and wool, but intelligent colonists maintain that its minerals will prove far greater sources of wealth in times to come than any kind of agricultural produce—iron ores, coal, lead, slate, and auriferous quartz being found in abundance in different parts of the colony. Up to the present time, however, the reefs of auriferous quartz alone have been worked to any extent; and an idea of their importance may be gained from the fact that, according to the latest returns, they are 2881 in number, and, with the auriferous alluvial grounds, extend over 900 square miles, the estimated value of the two being upwards of eight millions and a half sterling. The Melbourne Mining Department, which exhibits models of some of the most famous nuggets found in the Victoria mines, such as the "Welcome" and "Lady Barkly," has a case of mineralogical and geological specimens, including lead, antimony, and coal; while the Ilfracombe Iron Company sends samples of iron ores and manufactured iron; the Hope Mining Company, pyrites and granite; and the Rose of Denmark Gold Mining Company contributes slabs of slate and auriferous quartz, such as is displayed by half a dozen other associations.

Exhibitors of wool from different parts of the colony show fleeces which are exceptionally fine, both as regards weight and quality. It is estimated that there are nearly ten million sheep in Victoria, the amount of wool exported annually to Europe being nearly 76,500,000 lb. Both Victoria and South Australia send specimens of wheat and flour, those exhibited by the latter being unquestionably the finer of the two; but in either case the grain is remarkable for its size, and the flour for its excessive whiteness. Following in the wake of the other colonies, Victoria also exhibits specimens of its woods, sections of its trees, and collections of ferns; while on the walls of the gallery hang the skins of native animals, with portraits of aborigines and ethnological and geographical charts.

Among, however, its most important exhibits are its collections of wines and preserved meats. Although wine was made in Victoria in 1851, and even earlier, the history of Australian wines may be said to date only from 1860, for until then no wine the produce of the colony was regarded as a beverage which could be safely placed upon the table, save with proper caution and no end of apologies. To-day, however, thanks to the efforts of the more enterprising colonists, Victoria, New South Wales, and South Australia can boast of wines as fine as many produced in the principal wine-growing European States, and the samples sent to Vienna have received the highest possible commendation from the international wine jury, which has distributed medals of merit and progress with a liberal hand among the different exhibitors, and awarded a diploma of honour to the wine-growers of Victoria. The same may be said with regard to preserved meats, against which so much prejudice formerly existed among the English working classes, although, if one may judge from the amount imported into Great Britain last year—17,500 tons against four tons in 1866—that prejudice seems now to be wellnigh dissipated. Several samples of these meats—comprising beef, mutton, lamb, hares, rabbits, tongues, &c.—were tasted by the food jury at a luncheon given for the purpose, and were, without exception, pronounced to be excellent.

The Victorian display is completed by a series of photographs of the colony, consisting principally of views of public buildings and stylish private residences. The charming coloured photographs from Queensland, contributed by Mr. Daintree, the Crown agent, are far more interesting, and bring vividly before one's eyes the picturesque scenery of the colony. With their undoubted fidelity to nature, they give one a marvellous insight into the character of the country and of the life which is led there. Here are the solitary stockman's hut bordering the great bush, with its tracts of dense and almost impenetrable scrub, and the long silent plains and sedgey marshes near the margins of the Murray and the Murrumbidgee rivers, where the cattle over which he has guard graze in vast flocks. Then there are the straggling stations of the wealthy squatters, with their wool sheds, huts, and paddocks, behind which spread immense plains, deep forests, and boundless swamps, which become converted into lakes when the creeks are swollen by the winter rains. The gold-fields, too, and their rough-looking inhabitants, find a place in the series, together with many of the smaller towns, none of which look particularly inviting. Queensland has little of interest to show beyond these photographs, if I except some very fine Cotswold and merino fleeces and a collection of specimens of her timber. The exhibits of South Australia comprise some excellent wines from the Auldana and other vineyards; various specimens of wheat and flour, to which I have already referred; and several stuffed kangaroos, which create considerable interest among the juvenile visitors to our colonial display.

In the courtyard to the left of the colonial gallery stands the pavilion where the principal British exhibits in connection with the art of war are displayed. Sir William Armstrong makes, perhaps, the most important show, this comprising several breech and muzzle loading guns, such as the Gatling and the Palliser, Moncrieff gun-carriages, and electrical torpedoes. The Henry Rifled Barrel Company sends steel barrels for the Gatling gun, such as have been adopted by the British War Department; and Major Leveson exhibits several military appliances and equipments. Dr. Mayo contributes a sling apparatus, in form of a cart for transporting severely wounded men, intended chiefly for use between field hospitals and railways, and the chief advantage of which is that it reduces the number of men and amount of material required for field hospital service. Another pavilion of far less pretentious appearance, which may be entered from the British section of the nave, rises in the courtyard between the British and Brazilian transverse galleries. Here objects of a very varied character are to be found, ranging from sewing-machines and nuts and bolts to surgical instruments, photographs, and examples of chromolithography.

SCHOOL BOARDS.

Mr. Gladstone, speaking at an education meeting at Hawarden, said that he preferred voluntary to compulsory education. School boards were doing a vast deal of good, but where four fifths of the education was provided he did not see why they should go to the expense of a board to supply the remaining fifth.

By a return which has been published of the parishes and places where the question of establishing a school board or not has been contested, it appears that in 465 places resolutions for the establishment of a school board were passed, and in 113 places they were negatived. A poll was demanded in 117 cases. In forty-two of those cases where the resolutions in favour of a school board were adopted the vote was confirmed by a poll; in twenty-four cases it was reversed. In forty-four cases where the proposal to establish a school board was negatived the vote was confirmed by the poll, and in seven cases it was reversed.

The Liverpool School Board held an adjourned meeting, on Tuesday, to decide upon the manner in which they should meet a deficiency of school accommodation for 10,496 children. On the previous day the sub-committee on school accommodation presented a report showing that the number of children in Liverpool between the ages of three and thirteen was 94,868, and that, after deducting from this number 2070 for boys and girls and 2570 for infants, as authorised by the Education Department, the board had to provide for the education of 74,597 children. There is at present, or there is being provided, accommodation for 72,518 children; but, after deducting the school space which cannot be utilised on account of the population having migrated from the districts in which certain schools are situated, the sub-committee reported a net deficiency for 876 boys, 1020 girls, and 8600 infants: total, 10,496. They therefore proposed the immediate erection of schools for 1470 boys, 1470 girls, and 2460 infants: total, 5400; and recommended that present schools should be rearranged, so that they would be able to accommodate a larger number of infants. No estimate of cost was embodied in the report, but it was stated by the chairman of the board that the proposed outlay, added to the cost of schools now being built by the board, would bring up the expenditure to about £200,000. An amendment was submitted proposing to postpone the further consideration of the matter for six months, on the ground that there were 21,522 vacant places in existing schools, irrespective of accommodation of 8000 or 10,000 children in schools not recognised by the board; and the debate was adjourned in order that public opinion on the matter might be ascertained. The discussion terminated on Tuesday in the adoption of the report of the sub-committee by a majority of 10 to 5.

It is not expected that there will be any contest for the City division of the London School Board, as we understand the four present members will offer themselves for re-election.

Orders of her Majesty in Council have been published in the Gazette sanctioning by-laws for the compulsory attendance of children at school, made with the approval of the Education Department under the seventy-fourth section of the Elementary Education Act, 1870, by the school boards of Chigwell (Essex) and Thornton (near Bradford).

In accordance with the resolution passed at the meeting for the promotion of technical education, at which the Prince of Wales presided, the Goldsmiths' Company has forwarded a donation of £20, and the Skinners' Company one of £10 10s., to the London School Board, to enable the board to send school children to inspect manufactures and their processes at the London International Exhibition of this year.

The Lords of the Admiralty made their annual inspection of Sheerness on Tuesday.

A Board of Trade inquiry into the loss of the barque Princess of Wales in Dundalk Bay, on July 2, has been held, and the Court is of opinion that the vessel was lost by the default of the master, Mr. John Finlayson, who they considered had been guilty of the grossest incompetency and negligence, not only in navigating the vessel, but after she got ashore. They therefore cancelled his certificate. The inquiry into the loss of the barque Anna Francis, of Carnarvon, was concluded at Cardiff on Monday, the Court coming to the conclusion that the master (Griffith Jones) had not made sufficient exertions to save the ship, and they suspended his certificate for two years. The Mersey Dock Board, having inquired into the circumstances connected with the wreck of the Dunmail, a new iron clipper, was resolved to cancel the license of the pilot, who was, they considered, entirely to blame.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR RALPH HOWARD, BART.

Sir Ralph Howard, Bart., J.P. and D.L., of Bushy Park, in the county of Wicklow, late Colonel of the Wicklow Militia, died on the 15th inst. He was born in 1801, the elder son of the Hon. Hugh Howard, by Catherine, his wife, daughter of the Very Rev. Robert Bligh, Dean of Elphin, and was grandson of Ralph, first Viscount Wicklow, and Alice, Countess of Wicklow, his wife, daughter and heiress of William Forward, Esq., M.P., of Castle Forward, in the county of Donegal. Having succeeded to a considerable estate in the county of Wicklow, he represented that county in Parliament for twenty-three years, from 1829 to 1852, and was at one time its High Sheriff. In 1833 he was created a Baronet. Sir Ralph married, July, 1837, Charlotte Anne, widow of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir James John Fraser, Bart., daughter of Daniel Craufurd, Esq., and niece of the gallant Peninsular General, Robert Craufurd, who fell at Ciudad Rodrigo. Sir Ralph had no issue, and the baronetcy consequently becomes extinct.

SIR J. D. H. HAY, BART.

Sir James Douglas Hamilton Hay, sixth Baronet, of Alderston, in Berwickshire, died, on the 30th ult., at Ottawa, Dominion of Canada. He was born Dec. 28, 1800, the elder son of Sir Thomas Hay, fifth Baronet, who inherited the baronetcy as heir male at the decease, in 1825, of his kinsman, Sir Henry Hay Macdowall, fourth Baronet. Sir James's mother, Anna, daughter of Sheffield Howard, Esq., of New York, claimed to be of a younger branch of the house of Norfolk. Early in life Sir James held a commission in the 36th Regiment. He married, in 1819, Jane, second daughter of William Sanderson, Esq., of Springbank, and in 1833 succeeded his father in the old family title, which now devolves on his eldest son, Sir Hector Maclean Hay, seventh Baronet, born in 1821, and married, in 1852, to Anne Charlotte, widow of Lieutenant-Colonel Bird, H.E.C.S., and daughter of Dr. White.

LADY TALBOT DE MALAHIDE.

The Right Hon. Maria Margareta, Baroness Talbot de Malahide, died, on the 9th inst., after a long illness, at Malahide Castle, near Dublin. Her Ladyship was youngest daughter and coheir of the late Patrick Murray, Esq., of Simprim, in the county of Forfar, and was married, Aug. 9, 1842, to James, Lord Talbot de Malahide, late president of the Royal Irish Academy, one of the most esteemed and distinguished of the resident nobility of Ireland. The old castle of Malahide, at which Lady Talbot died, is full of historic associations, and has been in the possession of this line of the Talbots since the time of King John. Lady Talbot leaves surviving issue, three sons and two daughters.

THE GERMAN NAVY.

The German Navy List for 1873 has been published. It shows the composition of the force as it existed on July 1.

The corps of navy officers consists of one vice-admiral, three rear-admirals, two officers having the position of rear-admirals, fourteen captains, thirty captains of corvettes, fifty-seven captain-lieutenants, one hundred lieutenants, eighty sub-lieutenants (among them Prince Heinrich, second son of the Crown Prince), one hundred sea-cadets, fifty-six cadets.

The sea battalion (composed of six companies) numbers one major, six captains, six lieutenants, nineteen sub-lieutenants, and attached to it one colonel and one lieutenant-colonel.

The sea artillery division (composed of three companies) numbers one major, three captains, three lieutenants, seven sub-lieutenants, and attached to it one colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, one major, and one captain.

The naval medical service is performed by one general surgeon, four superior staff surgeons, fifteen staff surgeons, twenty-six assistant surgeons, two sub-surgeons, and nine surgeons attached to the navy.

Among the eight ironclad frigates are counted the two (Kaiser and Deutschland) which are being constructed in England. Then come the corvette Hansa, two ironclad transports, one ship of the line, thirteen corvettes, four avisos, one yacht, two gun-boats of the Albatross class, seven gun-boats of the first and ten of the second class, and two transport-steamers. Two frigates and three brigs are enumerated as sailing-vessels, and ten steamers and eight sailing-vessels as doing harbour service.

There are now in the home waters, four corvettes and one cannon-boat, commanded, as evolution squadron, by Rear-Admiral Henk, one ship of the line, four cannon-boats, two avisos, two brigs, and two transport-steamers.

The Mediterranean squadron, under Captain Werner, comprises the frigate Friedrich Karl, the corvette Elizabeth, and the gun-boat Delphin.

The corvette Nymphe, commanded by Captain von Blanc, is stationed in Eastern Asia, and the gun-boat Albatross, commanded by Captain-Lieutenant Stenzel, in South America. The frigate Niobe, under Capt. MacClean, has gone to Madeira.

Two iron gun-boats which Messrs. Laird Brothers have built for the Government were launched last week. The boats are of the Scourge type, and carry each one 18-ton gun.

The park at the west end of Newcastle was opened to the public on Monday. It has been purchased, at a cost of £25,000, by Joseph Cowen, jun., and four other members of the Town Council; but it is expected that the place will ultimately be taken off their hands by the Corporation. It was originally known as the Elswick Hall estate, and had to be purchased to save it from being turned into building ground.

A painful case of adverse fortune has come to light in the police court at Birkenhead. A person found sleeping in a field and charged with vagrancy was discovered, on inquiry, to be an ex-Rector. His own account of himself was that he had held various appointments in the Church, and at one time possessed a considerable sum of money. Having lost this in mining speculations, he went abroad for a time. On his return to England he had not the credentials requisite to obtain a license to preach, and, not finding other means of livelihood, he gradually sunk into utter destitution. The charge of vagrancy was dismissed.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the Illustrated London News," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

W. B.—If you will be so obliging as to send the magazine it shall be returned in the course of the next week.

LEAMING, Melang.—The corrected diagrams shall be submitted to the examiners.

H. W. N.—We are not aware that the Vienna Chess Magazine has ceased to exist. Like you, however, we have received no copy for many weeks.

P. C. Q. Scarborough.—You should have added the summation of the columns vertically and horizontally. By whom are the verses?

CIVIS.—The position you have sent is not that of the original "Indian Problem," but of one of its many modifications. The first move is B to Q 5th.

G. RICHMOND.—The second of Mr. H. M. N.'s problems you will find, on further examination, admits of a common place solution beginning with 1. R to K 8th instead of 1. R to Q 5th. No. 3, too, can as easily be solved, if we mistake not, by 1. R takes Kt (ch), as by 1. Q to K 8th.

CHARLES E.—The book called American Chess Notes contains a good many of Mr. G. Carpenter's compositions. One of his productions is the following, which appears in the Illustrated Chess Magazine of the present month:—

White: K at Q 5th, Q at Q 4th, B at K 8th and Q 8th; Kt at Q Kt 3rd, P at K R 3rd, K Kt 5th, Q 5th, 3rd, and 4th, and Q R 4th.

Black: K at Q Kt 3rd, B at Q 2nd and Q 3rd; Kt at Q 5th, Q B 4th, and Q R 2nd, 3rd, and 4th. White to play and mate in four moves.

THE SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1537 has been received from Inez—W. B. Q—T. M—F. R. S.—Burdell—S. R. E.—Fergus—W. Airey—L. Calvi—M. W. D.—J. Bowden—Mayberry—Dolly—T. G. E.—C. F. N.—George—W. S. K.—O. P. Q.—Violet—Max—Box and Cox—J. A. Manning—T. Twicken—Henry—Big Ben—J. Allard—Schweffelhau—W. B.—N. F.—G. of Newbury—Perry—Edmond—F. R. S.—A. A.—Tyrol—Feldstein—S. P. Q. B. of Bruges—F. and E. Frau of Lyons—Bactria—Charley—Nemo—Egbert and Albert—F. G. S.—N. D.—E. T.

THE KNIGHT'S TOUR No. XVI.—Third list of those who have solved this Problem.—Henry Allsopp—E. W. E.—H. M. P.—Fanny and Guss—On the Heather—Bolar—Maximilian—W. C. S.—J. Newton—Elmby—S. S.—W. E. G.—J. W. J.—Oliver—T. Nugent—Perceval—W. R. G. D. B.—W. B. Allen—E. of Stirling—Glen Roy—Fidello—W. Furnival—Oberon and Titania—G. of Melrose—R. Malta—H. B. Chamouni—Philip.

* For the most part our answers to these correspondents are unavoidably postponed.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1538.

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.
1. B to K Kt 8th P takes Kt (*) 2. Q takes R (ch) K takes Q
3. B takes P. Mate.

(*) 1. 2. Kt to Q Kt 3rd, Either R takes Q (h) 2. P takes B
(dis. ch) K to Q 3rd Becoming a Queen. Mate.

(h) 1. If R takes R, Kt to Q Kt 3rd, dis. ch, 2. Kt takes Kt (dis. ch) K to Q 3rd or 4th
if R takes R, Kt to Q Kt 3rd, dis. ch, 3. P takes R Becoming a Queen or Kt to Q B 7th. Mate.

PROBLEM No. 1539.

By Mr. G. REICHEL, of Philadelphia.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in two moves.

SYLLABIC SOLUTION OF THE KNIGHT'S TOUR No. 16.

The syllables of this Tour, correctly combined, form the first and last stanza of the following clever Macaronic verses written by Professor Porson at the time when England was in alarm at the threatened French invasion by Napoleon Bonaparte.

LINGO DRAWN FOR THE MILITIA.

Ego nunquam audirei such terrible news,
As this present tempus, my senses confuse:
I'm drawn for a mile—1 must go cum Marte,
And, continus ense, engage Bonaparte.

Such tempora, nunquam ridebant majores,
For then their opponents had different mores:
But we will soon prove to the Corsican vaunter
Though times may be changed Britons never mutantur.

Mehercle! This Consul non p'test be quiet,
His word must be lex, and when he says fat
Quasi Deus, he thinks we must run at his nod;
But Britons were ne'er good at running, by G—.

Per mare, I rather am led to opine,
To meet British nares he would not incline:
Lest he should in mare profundum be drown'd,
Et cum alga non laurid his caput be crown'd.

But, allow that this boaster in Britain could land,
Multis cum aliis at his command:
Here are lads who will meet, aye, and properly work 'em,
And speedily send them, ni fallor, in Orcum.

Nunc let us, amici, join corda et manus,
And use well the cives Di Boni afford us;
Then let nations combine, Britain never can fall,
She's—multum in parco—a match for them all!

VIENNA CHESS TOURNAMENT.

The following Game in this Tourney was played by Messrs. Blackburne and Steinitz.—(Ruy Lopez Knight's Opening.)

BLACK (Mr. B.) WHITE (Mr. S.) BLACK (Mr. B.) WHITE (Mr. S.)

1. P to K 4th P to K 4th Mr Blackburne plays this attack with uncommon spirit and ability.

2. Kt to K B 3rd Kt to Q B 3rd

3. B to K 5th Kt to K 2nd

4. P to Q 4th P takes P

5. Kt takes P Kt takes Kt

6. Q takes Kt Kt to Q B 3rd

7. Q to Q 5th B to K 2nd

8. Kt to Q B 3rd B to K B 3rd

9. B to Q 2nd Castles

10. Castles (Q side) P to Q R 3rd

11. B to K 2nd P to Q 3rd

12. P to K B 4th P to K Kt 3rd

13. Q to Q 3rd B to K Kt 2nd

14. P to K R 4th P to K R 4th

15. P to K Kt 4th P to K Kt 4th and Mr. Steinitz resigns.

THE CHESS TOURNAMENT AT VIENNA.—The termination of the seventh round left the general score of the chief players as follows:—

Blackburne .. 7 Bird .. 4 Gelbfuhs .. 2
Anderssen .. 6 Rosenthal .. 4 Schwartz .. 2
Steinitz .. 6 Paulsen .. 3 Meitner .. 2

In the eighth round, now playing, Anderssen is paired with Blackburne, Steinitz with Schwartz, Bird with Rosenthal, Paulsen with Gelbfuhs, and Meitner with Heral. The result of the contest between Anderssen and Blackburne is looked forward to with great interest, as likely to determine who will win the first prize.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will, as contained in paper writings marked A and B, with three codicils, of the Right Hon. Thomas, Earl of Zetland, late of Aske, Richmond, of Marske Hall, Guisborough, Yorkshire, and of No. 19, Arlington-street, was proved, on the 16th inst., by the Hon. Charles William Wentworth Fitzwilliam, Augustus Frederick William Keppel Stephenson, and the Hon. John Charles Dundas, the nephew, the executors, the personal estate, including leaseholds, being sworn under £250,000. The testator gives to his sister, Lady Charlotte Jane Dundas, the mansion-house on his estate of St. Nicholas as a residence for life, and the said estate, subject to such gift, to Miss Maria Dorothea Barclay (the niece of his late wife) for life, or so long as she shall remain unmarried; he also gives her an annuity of £1000 on the same condition, and the sum of £25,000 absolutely. To his nephews, John Charles Dundas, William Dundas, and Cospatrick Dundas, and to Victor Alexander Williamson (the youngest son of the late Sir Hedworth Williamson), £10,000 each; to the daughters of his late brother, John Charles Dundas, £30,000, to be equally divided between them; to each of his sisters £2000; and to Mr. C. W. W. Fitzwilliam and Mr. A. F. W. K. Stephenson, £2000 each, as executors. There are also other legacies and annuities. The residue of his personalty testator gives to his nephew, Lawrence Dundas, and he also gives him all his Scotch property. All his real estate testator devises to the use of the said Lawrence Dundas for life, with remainder to his first and other sons successively, according to majority in tail male.

The will, with three codicils, of George Carr, Baron Wolverton, late of Lombard-street, City, of Stanmore Park, and of No. 1, Upper Eccleston-street, was proved, on the 14th inst., by the Right Hon. George Grenfell, Lord Wolverton, the Hon. Henry Carr Glyn, and the Hon. Pascoe Charles Glyn, three of the sons of the deceased, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £1,000,000, and the stamp duty paid on the probate amounting to £13,500. The testator bequeaths £5000 for building and £1000 for endowing a church at Bournemouth or elsewhere as a memorial of his deceased son Riversdale Richard Glyn. For the purpose of supporting the family interest in the banking firm of Glyn, Mills, Currie, and Co., he leaves £60,000 Government stock to such of his sons as shall be members of the said firm, following, in so doing, the precedent of his father and brother; and he expresses a wish that his sons will continue the practice. To his widow he leaves £1000, the household furniture and effects at Stanmore House, which residence she is to have the use of for life, and such annual sum as, with the income derived by her under her marriage settlement, will make up £4000 per annum; and he makes provision for all his younger children, and for the widow and daughters of his deceased son St. Leger Glyn. To his nephew, Major-General Sir Edward Greathed, he leaves £500, and to Elizabeth Allwright an annuity of £100. His real estate and the residue of his personalty testator gives to his eldest son, now Lord Wolverton.

The will and codicil of the Rev. Samuel Ramden Roe, late of Kendall Hall, Herts, were proved on the 5th inst., by Mrs. Caroline Mary Roe, the relict, the sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £50,000. The testator leaves to his widow an immediate legacy of £600 and all his furniture and other household effects: subject to a few other legacies, the widow takes the residue for life. At her decease, after payment of an annuity to her sister, testator gives the residue to his cousin, Mrs. Eliza Dixon, and her children.

The will of Frances, Viscountess de Valmer (née Wyndham), was proved on the 24th ult., by Miss Frances Margaret Julia Scott, the great-niece of deceased, the personalty in England being sworn under £6000.

The will of Mr. James Heygate, late of Porters, Southend, Essex, was proved on the 12th inst., by Miss Elizabeth Alice Heygate, the daughter, and the Rev. Thomas Edmund Heygate, the son, the executors, under £12,000.

SOCIAL SCIENCE.

The following are the special questions appointed for discussion at the Social Science Congress, to be held at Norwich in October next, at which Lord Houghton will preside:—

International and Municipal Law Section.—1. Is it desirable and practicable to effect an assimilation of English and foreign commercial law; and, if so, to what extent, and what steps should be taken to effect such assimilation? 2. In what manner may the framing and passing of Acts of Parliament be improved? 3. What change, if any, is it desirable to make in the law relating to agricultural tenancies?

Repression of Crime Section.—1. Are any and what improvements necessary for the administration of justice in quarter and petty sessions? 2. In what way should the punishment of young persons under eighteen, especially boys or girls of nine or ten years of age, be regulated? 3. What improvements are required in the system of discipline in county and borough gaols?

Education Department.—1. Can the Universities help in the examination of secondary teachers and secondary schools; and can they in any way afford the special training required for secondary teachers? 2. What are the effects of the pressure of competitive examination upon education? 3. How can education be brought to bear on the hitherto untouched portions of the population?

Health Department.—1. What are the most convenient administrative areas for sanitary purposes, and what are the best means of administering the sanitary laws? Should there be a special diploma for medical officers of health, and, if so, how should it be granted? 3. What provisions are required in a general Building Act, so as to secure efficient sanitary arrangements?

Economy and Trade Department.—1. On what principle should local taxation be levied, and what should be the principles of local administration and government? 2. What should be the general relations of employers and employed, both trade and agricultural; and are industrial partnerships desirable? 3. On what principles should friendly and other kindred societies be based, and is Government control of them desirable?

Voluntary papers on other subjects will be read and discussed.

The following order has been issued from the Horse Guards, addressed to officers of the Army:—"The officers of the Army having been permitted to state fully, for submission to the Queen, the disadvantages which they consider to have resulted to their position and interests from the measures adopted in pursuance of the Army Regulation Act, and her Majesty having been graciously pleased to signify her intention to give directions for the careful examination of their memorials, it now becomes the duty of officers to await the result of the inquiry. His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief desires that any further discussion of the memorials may now cease, and that officers of all ranks will themselves abstain from, and will discourage in others, any expressions on the subject."

CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN: ATTACK OF THE CIVIL GUARD ON PUERTA DE CARMONA, SEVILLE.

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN.

The unhappy condition of Spain, with two different civil wars going on at once—that of the Carlists in the northern provinces, that of the Intransigentes, or Communist Red Republicans, in the south and east—has continued to excite general commiseration. We are furnished by correspondents with a couple of sketches, from which our illustrations are derived, of the scenes lately enacted at Seville and Cadiz. In the first-mentioned city, which is a town of 120,000 inhabitants, the capital of Andalusia, a junta of nine obscure persons, three of them barbers and their chief an apothecary, held possession during several days, appropriating the taxes and all public property, and levying supplies from the private citizens. Thousands of quiet people fled from Seville in great fear, seeking refuge at Gibraltar or Lisbon, but no personal outrages were committed. The main streets and gates of the city were barricaded, and some resistance was made to the attack, which was at length successfully put in execution by a military force acting for the Moderate Republican Government at Madrid. There were about 200 British subjects residing at Seville, who felt in need of a gun-boat in the Guadalquivir for their protection. Our Mediterranean squadron—the iron-clads Lord Warden, Invincible, and Pallas, under Vice-Admiral Sir Hastings Yelverton—was at Cadiz on the 3rd inst., and the Triumph and Pigeon, as well as French, Austrian, and American ships of war, also lay there, for the safety of foreigners and their property. Boats fully manned and armed were kept ready at the landing-places to convey people to the ships. Cadiz had been in the hands of the rebel faction since the 20th ult., when their red flag was suddenly hoisted in the forts and public buildings which they had seized. The Spanish ships in the harbour, remaining loyal to the Madrid Government, were on two or three days engaged with the Carraca, Puntales, and San Fernando forts.

We are indebted to Lieutenant John Ferris, an officer of H.M.S. Triumph, for the sketch engraved of the conflict on the 26th ult. This view shows but a part of the small islets and narrow channels or straits in the approach to Cadiz from its outer bay by the Trocadero, famous for a French victory in 1830, and the San Pedro Canal. The wall rising high above the water, on the left-hand side, is that of the Carraca naval arsenal, so called because in old times it was the place where carracks, or heavy ships of burden for the Spanish trade with the Indies, were commonly built and equipped. The Carraca remained with a loyal garrison. At the opposite extremity of this view, on the right, is the fort of San Fernando, with an explosion there, caused by a shell hitting the magazine. The gun-boats Navas de Tolosa and Cadiz are lying close to the Carraca arsenal; while two other Spanish vessels, the Diana and the Liniers, are bombarding Fort San Fernando, which was soon completely silenced. On the 4th inst. the Intransigentes pulled down their red flag and surrendered to the Spanish naval commander. The leaders are to be transported, probably to Madeira, with those of the insurgents at Seville and Carthagena.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

The destruction by fire, on the night of Friday, the 1st inst., of the Elsass-Lothringen or Alsace-Lorraine farm-house, called the Bûre-Hisel in provincial patois, which stood among the small detached buildings in the rear of the Exhibition Palace, is a loss to be severely felt by German visitors. The Bûre-Hisel was partly occupied by a collection of agricultural products, and by a very interesting series of little toy-models, which showed the ways of life, the costumes, dwellings, furniture, and employments of different classes of people, in the two recently annexed provinces of Germany, while other parts of the building were used for eating and drinking, for cooking and storing provisions, or as wine and beer cellars. The cotton goods and other manufactures of Alsace were displayed elsewhere in the Exhibition Palace. Our illustration, showing the ruins or burnt-out shell of the building after the fire, may remind the English observer of the timber frame houses which are still common in Cheshire and Shropshire. This Bûre-Hisel was erected in a large square around a courtyard, with barns, stables, cow-sheds, and cart-sheds; and there was an open gallery, as in the old English inns, all round the yard, on a level with the rooms on the upper floor. The fire was extinguished in about an hour by the skilful activity of the Austrian military engineers.

Another subject of our illustration is the Imperial Pavilion, constructed in the precincts of the Exhibition for his Majesty the Shah of Persia, who was there in the first week of August.

CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN: CONFLICT OF SHIPS WITH FORTS AT CADIZ.

VIENNA EXHIBITION: ALSACE-LORRAINE BUILDINGS AFTER THE FIRE.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1774.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1873.

WITH EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6½d.

TRIAL OF THE BANK FORGERS AT THE OLD BAILEY.

BIRTHS.

On the 20th inst., at 14, Grosvenor-square, the Hon. Mrs. E. Stanley, of a son.

On the 27th inst., at the Baths of Luc, Italy, the wife of Charles Francis Fuller, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 12th inst., at Withcombe, Raleigh, Devon, by the Rev. H. L. Hussey, Vicar of the parish, assisted by the Rev. W. Webb, of Exmouth, Friedrich Wilhelm James Albert Agassiz, son of the late Louis Agassiz, R.N., of Stour Lodge, Essex, to Jessie, youngest child of the late General Garnault (Her Majesty's Indian Army), of Withcombe.

On the 5th inst., at Trinity Reformed Church, Boonsborough, Maryland, by the Rev. Jacob Hassler, Kenneth Chisholm, of New York, formerly of London, England, to Jennie E., daughter of David Hammond, Esq., of Boonsborough, Maryland.

On the 26th inst., at Farnie, by the Rev. W. F. Stevenson, J. R. Gray Buchanan, Lieutenant 26th (Canterburians), eldest son of T. Gray Buchanan, Esq., of Scotstown, Lanarkshire, to Katherine, daughter of James Faile, Esq., of Farnie, Lanarkshire.

On the 26th inst., after banns, in the parish church of Coaley, Gloucestershire, by the Rev. Dr. Horace Roberts, assisted by the Vicar of Coaley, the Rev. J. R. Turner, Augustin, youngest son of the late Augustin Fielding, Esq., of Faversham, Kent, to Mary, second daughter of Edward Leonard, Esq., of Water-End, Gloucestershire. No cards. At home at 12, Ladbroke-gardens, Kensington Park, London, on Sept. 22 and 23.

At the parish church of old St. Pancras, by the Rev. R. W. Arrow-smith, M.A., Vicar, Thomas Sharpe, Esq., of Waltonvale House, Torrington-avenue, Tufnell-park, to Miss Sophia Lucy Walton, of Fernwood Villa, Burghley-road, Kentish Town.

DEATHS.

On the 23rd inst., at Stand Lodge, near Manchester, the residence of his mother, the Rev. Charles John Astbury, M.A., Incumbent of Longton, near Preston, and third son of the late John Meir Astbury, aged 35. No cards.

On the 25th inst., at New Forest Lodge, Blackheath, Mary Ann, wife of Charles Mumford, in her 34th year.

On the 12th inst., at Long Branch, New Jersey, U.S.A., Caroline Elise, the beloved wife of F. W. J. Hurst, Esq., aged 24.

On the 25th inst., at St. Mary's, Bedford, Emily, widow of the late Thomas Gwyn Elger, Esq., in her 70th year.

On the 24th inst., at Ingwill, near Whitehaven, Cumberland, Ruth, eldest daughter of the late Jonas Lindow, Esq., aged 73 years.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPT. 6.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 31.		WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3.		THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4.		FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 5.		SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6.
Twelfth Sunday after Trinity. Moon's first quarter, 3.48 a.m.		Royal Horticultural Society, 11 a.m. (Show of dahlias, &c.). Lancaster Agricultural Show: horses, dogs, &c.		Fall of the Second French Empire, 1870. Canterbury Races. Hove Toxophilite Society, Ladies' Challenge Badge. Bath Archers, Target. Crystal Palace, grand display of fireworks.		Old Bartholomew's Day. Market Drayton Poultry and Dog Show. Royal Cornwall Yacht Club Regatta.		Full moon, 9.9 p.m. Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 3.30 p.m. Tadmorden Agricultural Show. Lurgan Athletic Club, annual meeting. Hyde Dog Show (two days). Crystal Palace, comedy, "The Rivals." Autumn Fruit Show.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Rev. George Curry, Master of the Charterhouse; 3.15 p.m., the Rev. Canon Liddon; 7 p.m., uncertain.		Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., the Rev. J. W. Burgon, Vicar of St. Mary's the Virgin, Oxford; 3 p.m., the F. K. Harford, Minor Canon, St. James's, noon, uncertain.		Whitehall, 11 a.m., the Rev. W. F. Erskine Knollys; 3 p.m., the Rev. Francis Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapels Royal.		Savoy, 11.30 a.m. French Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., by the Rev. F. W. B. Kewell, Incumbent.		St. James's Chapel Royal, closed.
St. Giles. Partridge shooting and salmon close time begins. British Museum closed for a week. Crystal Palace, "Snake Fell," with Mr. George Conquest (till Friday); great fountains.		TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 2.		Warwick Races, September meeting. Alford show of poultry, birds, cats, &c. (two days).

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.
Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 15' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.	Direction.
Aug. 20	29.734	58.1	50.8	78	9	51.1	64.8	WSW. S. SW.	322	013
21	29.723	60.1	51.1	74	5	53.6	71.3	SW.	243	028
22	29.847	60.0	53.1	79	6	53.4	70.5	SW.	102	000
23	29.843	61.8	53.9	77	8	52.3	74.6	SSW. SE.	212	000
24	29.796	64.1	56.1	72	5	55.1	73.0	ENE.	248	005
25	29.860	65.7	56.9	75	6	59.2	76.8	NE. SW. SE.	179	000
26	29.852	62.7	52.8	72	6	60.1	73.1	SE. S. SSW.	302	017

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29.776	29.811	29.872	29.883	29.829	29.888	29.887
Temperature of Air	58.1	60.1	60.0	61.8	64.1	65.7	62.7
Temperature of Evaporation	54.7	56.7	59.9	58.7	63.7	62.7	59.8
Direction of Wind	WSW.	SW.	SW.	S.	ENE.	SW.	N.W.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 6.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
6 41	7 1	7 32	8 1	8 47	9 32	10 15
11 0	11 43	12 11	12 43	1 18	1 48	2 17

DORE'S GREAT PICTURE OF "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christian Martyr," "Francesca di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

ELIJAH WALTON.—EXHIBITION, including "A Storm at Sea" and "A Sand Storm in the Desert," and many New and Important Drawings, Alpine and Eastern, NOW OPEN at BURLINGTON GALLERY, 1, Piccadilly. Ten to Six. Admission, with Catalogue, 1s.

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.

The world-famed MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS, every Night at Eight.

Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Eight.

The Entertainment given by the Moore and Burgess Minstrels now enjoys the proud distinction of being classified as the OLDEST ESTABLISHED AND THE MOST SUCCESSFUL IN THE WORLD.

having been presented at this Hall for EIGHT YEARS IN ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON, an instance of popularity altogether without a precedent in the annals of amusements.

LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL.

New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London. 211a, 6d. to 42 12s. 6d.; Parterre, 3s.; Side Stalls, 2s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places at Mitchell's, 35, Old Bond-street; Oliver's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St. James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

ST. JAMES'S (LARGE) HALL.—HARDY GILLARD, the great American Traveller, will unveil his celebrated Panorama, FROM NEW YORK OVER THE PACIFIC RAILWAY TO CALIFORNIA, EVERY NIGHT at Eight, on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, at Three and Eight. Sofa Seats 5s.; Reserved Seats, 2s.; Unreserved, 2s.; Balcony, 1s. Children under Twelve, Half Price. Tickets at Mitchell's, 35, Old Bond-street; Oliver's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St. James's Hall. Take your children to see it; it is a geographical treat for old and young.

THEATRE ROYAL DRURY-LANE.—Sole Lessee and

Manager, F. B. Chatterton.—This theatre, redecorated under the direction of Mr. March Nelson, WILL OPEN for the Dramatic Season on SATURDAY, SEPT. 21, when will be produced (Shakespeare's) Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes by Mr. Andrew Halliday, illustrated with New and Characteristic Scenery by Mr. William Beverly. The cast will include Mr. James Anderson, Mr. Ryder, Mr. James Johnston, Mr. A. Glover, Mr. Richard, Mr. Doherty, Mr. J. Morris, Mr. A. M. Davidson, Mr. H. Clifford, and Mr. H. Sinclair; Miss Wallis, Miss Linka, Miss E. Stuart, Miss Adeline Geddis, &c. The incidental music selected and composed by Mr. W. C. Levey. The Ballet and grouping of crowds arranged by Mr. John Cornack. And the whole to be produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Andrew Halliday and F. B. Chatterton. At the conclusion of the Tragedy the National Anthem will be sung by the entire strength of the Company. Full particulars will be duly announced. Prices, from Sixpence to Five Guineas. Box-office opened on Saturday, Sept. 6.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate.

Mr. Creswick, the Enfant Terrible, with Mr. Charles E. Creswick and Mrs. Charles Viner (of the Olympic Theatre), in the Tragedy of THE BRIDALS, Every Evening. Concluding with the New Farce, WHAT WILL THE NEIGHBOURS SAY?

ROYAL POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTION at AIX-LA-CHAPELLE.—Beginning of Lectures, OCT. 1. Prospectuses, plan of lectures, and conditions of admission may be had on application to the Director.

NOW READY,

VOL. LXII., ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

Elegantly bound, cloth, gilt	20s. 0d.
In Paper Covers	15s. 0d.
Cases for binding above	2s. 6d.
Portfolios for holding six Numbers	4s. 0d.
Reading Cases	2s. 0d.

Office, 198, Strand.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON, SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1873.

It is now about a fortnight since the public of these islands was startled by a telegram from the other side of the Atlantic announcing that the Parliament of the Dominion, which, after prorogation two months ago, had been summoned to reassemble, was abruptly prorogued again on the day on which it met. As this political occurrence was at first sight quite extraordinary, it can scarcely be matter of surprise that it provoked not a little comment. Since then information from various sources has reached this country tending to modify, to a large extent, the judgment of the British people concerning what appeared to be the arbitrary proceeding of the Governor-General and his Government. We may say at once that the solid and well-earned reputation which could imply unworthy motives. At worst it was surmised that he had felt himself compelled by the duties of his high office to act upon the advice of his responsible Ministers, although it was suggested that he might have done so rather more precipitately than the occasion demanded. There is now ample evidence from his own frank and outspoken declaration that it was no design of his, no momentary impulse even, to over-ride the will of Parliament by an exercise of the supreme prerogative, which induced him to resort to the extreme measure to which we have above adverted. His policy in having done so may be variously criticised; his entire loyalty to the spirit of the Constitution over which he has been appointed to preside will not, we apprehend, be questioned by either of the political parties into which her Majesty's Canadian subjects are now divided.

To put ourselves into a position fairly to appreciate the most recent facts of the case, it will be necessary to go back some two or three years. The provisions of the Alabama Treaty, so far as they affected Canadian interests, naturally excited wide discontent in the Dominion. By that treaty concessions had been made to the demands of the United States Government which seemed very unfair in their bearing upon the colony. It was necessary, however, to obtain the assent of the Canadian Parliament to such portions of the treaty as were applicable to its own affairs. As may be imagined, the task was a difficult one, and was only at length achieved by a promise on the part of the British Government to recommend to the Imperial Parliament a guarantee of a large pecuniary loan for the purpose of constructing a railway to run from the Atlantic to the Pacific entirely and exclusively through British territory. The Legislature of the Dominion was even then hardly prevailed upon to accept the Alabama Treaty; but it did so, and shortly afterwards a general election took place. It was well known, however, that the constituencies of Canada took an unfavourable view of that transaction. The Government which carried the measure was at a discount. The seats of most of its members, even of the most popular and trusted of them, were seriously threatened, and a considerable number of its staunchest supporters were actually rejected. Eventually, when Parliament assembled, a small majority of the members of the House of Commons were partisans of the then existing Government, but they were confronted by a strong and very determined Opposition.

This triumph of the Administration, it was bruited at the time, had not been obtained without recourse having been had to unfair, and even to corrupt, electoral practices. No doubt evidence in support of this suspicion was anxiously sought by members of the Opposition. At length vague rumours took a definite form. A member of the House stood up in his place and said he believed that he was able to prove against the Government a charge which, if it could be substantiated, would reflect upon them the deepest disgrace. The charge amounted to this—that, in view of the pending general election, a grant had been made by the Government to Sir Hugh Allan and certain associates of his, by which the construction of the projected Pacific Railway was placed in their hands on conditions extravagantly favourable to them, in return for which concession an understanding had been agreed to that the railway managers and contractors should supply the Government with funds to a large amount, to be used for electoral purposes in promoting the return of Government candidates.

Such a grave impeachment of the honour of the Ministry could not, in the nature of things, be allowed to pass unheeded. There was, it is true, some appearance of vacillation in the bearing of the Prime Minister; but ultimately he himself proposed a committee of five to investigate the matter, and passed a short Act enabling a Committee to sit during a prorogation, and also giving it authority to take evidence on oath. That Act, however, when brought under the notice of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, was disallowed, as exceeding the powers granted to the Dominion Parliament by the Imperial Act which governed its Constitution. As it would have been obviously inconvenient to postpone the inquiry for the purpose of obtaining legal authorisation from the British Legislature for a Committee of the House of Commons to examine witnesses on oath, the Governor-General offered to appoint a Royal Commission, consisting of the five members of the Committee—the Crown having the requisite authority, through its representative, to invest such Commission with the necessary legal powers. The offer excited the ill-will of the Opposition, who desired to keep the process of investigation under their own control, and subject to Parliamentary responsibility. Lord Dufferin appears to have been advised by his Cabinet that a Royal Commission would be preferable to a House of Commons Committee; and, unquestionably, if faithful to its trust, it could do its work far more quickly. Parliament met for the purpose of receiving the report of its own Committee; but, as it turned out, only to hear from the Governor-General a declaration of his intention forthwith to nominate a Royal Commission, and to suspend by prorogation the sitting of Parliament for two months, by which time the Commission would probably be ready to present its Budget.

The affair is a painful one, in whatever result it may terminate. It indicates a state of political laxity which one does not like to meet with in connection with colonial self-government. There can be no shadow of doubt that jobbery of a gross kind has been resorted to by some party in connection with the projected construction of the Pacific Railway, and that pecuniary corruption largely operated at the last general election. How far the members of the Government may be implicated in what has taken place—if, indeed, they are implicated at all—it would be premature even to conjecture. They have given the story a direct denial; and until their repudiation of it has been set aside by the clearest testimony we cannot refuse to give credence to their solemn declarations. But the scandal is undoubtedly a serious one. True or untrue, it will materially weaken, for the time, the moral influence of the Administration, as well as excite uneasiness and distrust among the loyal population of Canada. All who take an interest in the material and moral development of the Dominion—and what patriotic Englishman does not?—will grieve at this early episode of political immorality in the history of that nascent empire, and will anxiously desire that it may constitute a warning which future generations may study with a view to prevent its being drawn into a fatal precedent.

The Hon. Henry Wodehouse, the Chargé d'Affaires of the British Legation at Athens, died on Wednesday week.

The Gazette contains the official announcement that Mr. Bruce has been created a peer of the United Kingdom, under the title of Baron Aberdare, of Duffryn, in the county of Glamorgan. It also contains a notification of the appointment of Mr. A. S. Ayrton to the office of Advocate-General or Judge Martial of her Majesty's Forces. The Times suggests some further changes in the Ministry. Mr. Monsell is to retire from the Post Office, and to be succeeded, it is said, by Mr. Ayrton. The Duke of Argyll, who has been recently suffering from impaired health, will quit the India Office, and his place is to be filled by Mr. Lowe, while the Home Office thus left vacant is to be offered to Mr. Bouverie. The office of Judge Advocate-General, which would be rendered vacant by Mr. Ayrton's appointment as Postmaster-General, has "a flavour of jurisprudence" about it which the Times thinks might make it an acceptable and appropriate introduction to official life for Mr. Vernon Harcourt, but it is considered doubtful whether Mr. Harcourt would accept the office if it were offered to him.

Mr. Hodgson, one of the Commissioners for Queensland at the Vienna Exhibition, has sent us the following letter, which we most willingly insert:—In your Number for Aug. 23 a letter appears from your Special Correspondent in Vienna, who writes slightly, not to say disparagingly, of the Queensland Court in the Vienna Universal Exhibition—to quote his own words, "Queensland, however, sends next to nothing." This curt sentence is rather galling to those who have taken a warm interest in the Queensland Court, and it will be particularly so to the numerous readers of the Illustrated London News in that distant colony. Your Correspondent must have unintentionally overlooked many of the exhibits; and in proof of this I may state that the awards of the jury to Queensland are as under:—Progress medals (next in importance to the double diplomas), 3; merit medals, 13; honourable mention, 15; making a total of 31. This list would have been considerably increased had not one of the ships from Queensland to England made a protracted voyage and landed her exhibits too late to come under the notice of the jury. I respectfully submit that the Queensland exhibits in the Vienna Exhibition are of a numerous and varied character, and are very suggestive of the rapid progress and development of the youngest of our Australian colonies; and no later than the 23rd inst. Baron Schwartz, the Director-General of the Exhibition in Vienna, complimented me upon the successful arrangement of the court and the great interest of the exhibits.—ARTHUR HODGSON, a Commissioner for Queensland at the Vienna Exhibition.—Clifton, Strathmore-on-Avon, Aug. 28, 1873.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle. Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, accompanied by their sons, Prince Christian Victor and Prince Albert, are on a visit to her Majesty. The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone is the Minister in attendance upon the Queen. Yesterday (Friday) week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove along the Glassalt drive and visited Mrs. Morgan at Genechale Cottage. The Queen and Princess afterwards drove, via Kintore and Belnacroft, to Tornanran and paid a visit to Mrs. Michie, returning via Lochnagar Distillery and Crathie to the castle. On the following day Princess Beatrice rode by Abergeldie, Belnacroft, and Crathie. The Rev. Dr. Watson, of Dundee, arrived at the castle. On Sunday the Queen, Princess Beatrice, Prince Leopold, and Prince Christian attended Divine service at Crathie church. The Rev. Dr. Watson officiated. In the afternoon her Majesty drove to The Bush and visited Mr. and Mrs. William Brown. The Queen, with the members of the Royal family, has walked out daily and driven also through Deeside along the Glen Clunie road and the Lion's Face drive to Braemar and other places in the district. The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone and Dr. Watson have dined with her Majesty. The Queen has granted the dignity of Baron of the United Kingdom to the Right Hon. H. A. Bruce, under the title of Baron Aberdare, of Duffryn, in the county of Glamorgan.

The following were the orders for the Court's going into mourning on Thursday, the 28th inst., for his late Royal Highness Duke Charles of Brunswick, second cousin of the Queen, viz.:—The ladies to wear black dresses, white gloves, black and white shoes, feathers and fans, pearls, diamonds, or plain gold or silver ornaments. The gentlemen to wear black Court dress, with black swords and buckles. The Court to change the mourning on Thursday, Sept. 4 next, viz.:—The ladies to wear black dresses, with coloured ribbons, flowers, feathers, and ornaments, or grey or white dresses, with black ribbons, flowers, feathers, and ornaments. The gentlemen to continue the same mourning. And on Thursday, Sept. 11 next, the Court to go out of mourning.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, landed at Devonport yesterday (Friday) week from the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert. Their Royal Highnesses inspected the boys of the Impregnable and the Implacable in the dockyard. Their Royal Highnesses slept on board the yacht. On Saturday last the Prince visited Mount-Edgumbe, where a garden party was given by the Earl of Mount-Edgumbe in honour of his Royal Highness; the Prince afterwards returned to the Royal yacht and entertained at dinner on board the Earl of Mount-Edgumbe and a select party. His Royal Highness left Plymouth the following day for Portsmouth upon his return to Osborne. The Princess of Wales, with her children, remained at Osborne during the Prince's cruise.

The Duke of Edinburgh has been the guest of the Earl of Shrewsbury at Ingestre during the autumn manoeuvres on Cannock Chase. His Royal Highness inspected the First Division on Thursday.

Prince Arthur left Trouville on Saturday last in his yacht en route for Cherbourg and Jersey.

The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Baden arrived in London, on Thursday week, from Eastbourne, and visited the National Gallery, the Albert Hall, and the International Exhibition. Their Royal Highnesses returned to Eastbourne in the evening.

His Excellency Count Münster and Countess Mary Münster have returned to Ryde from Cowes.

His Excellency the Danish Minister has left town for the Continent. During his Excellency's absence M. P. de Lövenörn will act as Chargé-d'Affaires.

His Excellency the Japanese Minister has left London for Japan. Mr. Motono Morimichi, First Secretary of Legation, will act as Chargé-d'Affaires during his absence.

The Duke of Leinster has arrived at Carton House, Maynooth.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Westminster have left Eaton Hall for Hey Forest, his Lordship's shooting quarters in the north of Scotland.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde have arrived at Ilfracombe.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Ripon and Earl de Grey have arrived at the Marquis's shooting-box, Isle of Harris.

A demonstration of Odd-Fellows, in which about 3000 brethren took part, came off in Edinburgh last Saturday. After holding a meeting in the Corn Exchange, where several speeches were made, the lodges marched in procession to the Gymnasium, where the afternoon was devoted to athletic sports.

The appeal from farmers in the neighbourhood of Chatham for the assistance of soldiers in securing the harvest has this year been refused, in deference, it is said, to the protests of those persons who consider that their class interests in keeping up the price of labour should be protected.

A gallant rescue of a shipwrecked crew has been effected by the Civil Service life-boat of the National Institution. The schooner Rambler, of Wexford, had struck on a shoal in entering that harbour, and the boat had to ride through a tremendous sea in reaching her. Ultimately she picked off the crew.

The Ryde branch of the Young Men's Christian Association has hit upon the happy thought of establishing a sanitarium for the use of young shopmen in bad health or on holiday. Very comfortable quarters, with good board, are provided, at Hazlewood House, for the moderate sum of a guinea a week. The house has been opened by the Marquis of Cholmondeley.

The annual meeting of the friends and supporters of the training-school ship Wellesley, was held, on Wednesday, on board that vessel, in the Tyne. The Duke of Northumberland occupied the chair, and amongst the speakers was Mr. Richard Lewis, secretary of the National Life-Boat Institution. The Wellesley finds training for 240 destitute boys.

A meeting of the Freemasons of the Provincial Grand Lodge of South Wales was held, on Thursday week, at Cardiff. In his opening address the Provincial Grand Master congratulated the members upon the fact that the lodges of the province were working steadily, and much to their satisfaction. The report was very favourable as regards the position and prospects of Freemasonry generally throughout the province.

The National Horse and Sheep Show of the Royal Dublin Society opened on Tuesday. It comprised 539 horses and 73 sheep, besides agricultural implements. The Lord-Lieutenant, with Countess Spencer, Lord and Lady Cavendish, the Marquis of Headfort, and the Earls of Milltown and Wicklow, attended on Wednesday afternoon, and witnessed the jumping contests. The Citizens' Challenge Cup, value £100, was awarded to Mr. Charles William Wise, of Rochestown, Cahir.

TRIAL OF THE BANK FORGERS.

The Illustration on our front page shows the scene in the Central Criminal Courthouse at the Old Bailey during the trial of the four Americans, Austin Biron Bidwell, alias Frederick Albert Warren, alias Charles Johnson Horton; George Macdonnell, George Bidwell, and Edwin Noyes, or Edwin Noyes Hills. These four young men, the eldest, George Bidwell, thirty-four years of age, the other three from twenty-seven to twenty-nine, have been convicted of forging and fraudulently uttering foreign bills of exchange at the West-end branch of the Bank of England to an enormous amount. Their trial began on Monday week, before Mr. Justice Archibald, and was concluded last Tuesday evening. The prisoners were assisted by counsel, but two of the accused, Macdonnell and George Bidwell, also made speeches to the jury on their own behalf. An attempt was made in particular to separate the case of Noyes from that of the other three, by representing him as the mere servant of Austin Bidwell, and as ignorant of the fraudulent practices in which they were engaged. But the jury, after a few minutes' deliberation, found them all guilty, and Mr. Justice Archibald sentenced each of them to penal servitude for life. In the sketch engraved, showing the four men as they appeared sitting in the front of the dock, Macdonnell is the one with a pen in his hand, leaning forward to talk with his counsel; the two brothers Bidwell sit one on each side of Macdonnell; and Edwin Noyes is next to the elder Bidwell. Two prison warders are seated behind.

THE CIVIL WARS IN SPAIN.

The Carlist invasion of the Basque provinces and Catalonia, in the north of Spain, being unfortunately simultaneous with the revolt of the Intransigents, or Communist Red Republicans, in the towns of Valencia and Andalusia, the Government at Madrid has its hands quite full of work in repelling these attacks on each side. Although it is prudent not to believe all that is stated in the daily telegrams of the rapid advances made by the Carlists to seize Barcelona, there is enough anxiety concerning the fate of that city to give more than usual interest to one of our Illustrations, which is a view of the fortress of Montjuich. The hill bearing this odd name, which is a corruption of Mons Judaicus, from its having in the Middle Ages been the abode of a Jewish colony, commands Barcelona and the shipping in its port. The fortifications of Montjuich are shaped as an irregular pentagon; its garrison is well provided with casemates and cisterns, and its batteries have all in the town at their mercy, as they proved by a bombardment in 1842. The people of Barcelona have always been regarded as turbulent and prone to insurrection. In the seventeenth century they rebelled against the Government of Castile, and gave themselves up to France, but their city was recaptured by the Spaniards in 1652, after a siege of fourteen months. In 1705, during the war of the Spanish Succession, in which the English army, under Lord Peterborough, played a brilliant part, the citadel of Montjuich was surprised by the English on Oct. 9, and Barcelona was forced to surrender. The town was bombarded by the French in 1714, and was afterwards taken by assault; a third part of it was destroyed. Napoleon, in 1808, gained possession of Barcelona by a fraudulent trick, and kept it till the Duke of Wellington drove the French again out of Spain. There were repeated insurrections at Barcelona in favour of Don Carlos, in 1827, in 1834, and several times between 1841 and 1843. In addition to Montjuich, there are two other fortresses, San Carlos and the Ciudadela, to guard the entrance to the port, and perhaps, at the same time, to overawe the town.

The small river Bidassoa, which constitutes for twelve miles of its length the frontier between France and Spain towards the shores of the Bay of Biscay, is the subject of an Illustration. This place, the mouth of the Bidassoa, will ever be memorable to Englishmen for the final victory of the Duke of Wellington, Oct. 7, 1813, over the retreating French army of Marshal Soult. The Montagne d'Arrhune, shown in our own view rising to the left hand, above the Spanish town and church of Irun, which are seen up the valley beyond the bridge, was fortified by Soult's engineers with great care during three months previous to the arrival of his defeated army from Salamanca and Vittoria. Its batteries commanded the bridge over the estuary of the Bidassoa. But the Duke was told by some Pasque fishermen that there was a fordable passage at low tide over the sands between the bridge and the sea. By this passage, marching across well out of range of the French guns, our troops made their way "at the close of a thunderstorm" from Spanish ground to French, then rushed up the mountain side, and carried that fortified position by their unexpected assault. The hill of St. Marcial, adjacent to Irun, is famous, too, for a brave action of 12,000 Spaniards, on Aug. 30 in the same year; they repulsed an attack by 18,000 French. It is true they were supported, though not actively assisted, by the English divisions of Aylmer, Cole, and Inglis; but the Duke himself bore witness that "their conduct was equal to that of any troops he had ever seen engaged." This neighbourhood was also the scene of much stiff fighting between Sir De Lacy Evans's British Legion and the Carlists thirty or forty years ago. The Carlists are now busy here again; and the capture of the English yacht Deerhound, while attempting to land arms and ammunition for their use, on this part of the coast, is one of the late incidents of the civil war. Our view of the mouth of the Bidassoa is from a sketch by Captain Harold Sitwell, of the 91st Highlanders.

The Red Republican fanatical insurgents of Valencia and Carthage, on the east or south-east coast of Spain, gave much trouble by seizing two or three large ships of the Spanish navy; but, as none of the naval officers would join them, they did not know how to use their means of warfare. The town of Valencia was reconquered for the Madrid Government on the 7th inst., after the failure of the Junta at Carthage to send its revolutionary leaders the aid they wanted. Contreras, who was in command of the forces at Carthage, and who styled himself both General and Rear-Admiral, had got possession of the squadron there, consisting of the Vittoria, Almanza, Numancia, Mendez Nunez, Tetuan, and Fernando Catolico, with a despatch-boat. To meet these the Madrid Government had only two or three ships of importance—the Carmen, the Villa de Madrid, and the Narvaez Tolosa, which were imperfectly armed and manned; two other vessels were absent on foreign service. But the Prussian ironclad, Friedrich Karl, under command of Captain Werner, which had already captured the Vigilante, one of the first vessels applied to the service of the insurgents, was still at Carthage. There were two or three British ships of war in that port at the end of last month; the gun-boat Pigeon, Captain A. Phillimore, having been relieved by the ironclad Swiftsure, of 14 guns, commanded by Captain the Hon. William Ward, and by the Torch, gun-vessel, Commander Hugh N. Dyer. The commander of the Torch, which arrived on the 30th ult., having been informed of the bombardment of Almeria by one of the ships in the hands of the insurgents, gave them warning not again to attempt any such proceeding, which would be treated as piracy. In consequence of this notice the Mendez Nunez, which was then held by a party of Carlists, with one of the port pilots to play the part of captain, did not venture to put to sea. Next day, the Swiftsure and the Friedrich Karl, having overtaken the Almanza and Vittoria in their cruise along the coast, brought them captive into Escombrera Bay, outside the harbour of Gata. A negotiation from the revolutionary government of the city and canton, with General Contreras, went on board the Friedrich Karl to meet Captains Werner, Ward, and Dyer, by whom they were informed that the allied British and German commanders would put the crews of the revolted Spanish ships on shore, all unarmed except the officers. The Spaniards demanded, and said they would die sooner than leave their ships. But they were told that if they did not go ashore quietly next day force would be used to put them out. If they would be reasonable they should make a signal of submission by hoisting a blue flag in the morning. After much bluster and altercation, the Spaniards yielded. The blue flag was hoisted at eight next morning in the Almanza and Vittoria, and by eleven o'clock 600 or 800 men had been embarked in the boats of the Spanish ships, under the superintendence of English and German officers, a guard of marines of both nations being on board both ships. The steam-boat Delphin took these boats in tow, and the Torch was ordered to clear for action, load her guns with case-shot, and cover the landing. This was done at Fort Navidad, close under the guns of a heavy battery and of the Mendez Nunez, and the Torch was obliged to pass the ship to go into the inner harbour to turn. As she did so the crew of the Mendez Nunez kept their heavy guns pointed at the English vessel, and threatened, with very abusive language, to fire and sink her. The Torch was quite ready for a fight; she would have been laid close alongside the enemy, to get a chance of boarding, as she could not stand the great guns of the Spaniard. An attempt was presently made by the Mendez Nunez and Numancia to weigh anchor and run out to sea; but this was instantly stopped, with a message that any Spanish ships of war attempting to leave the port would be fired into by the British ships. Commander Dyer, with Mr. Yockney, assistant paymaster, acting as interpreter, and with Dr. Austin, the Times correspondent, went on board the Mendez Nunez and saw the insurgent leaders, with whom they remonstrated. They afterwards landed and had an interview with the British Consul. In the mean time the Swiftsure and Friedrich Karl approached the port, and the populace, expecting a bombardment of the town, gathered around the British officers ashore in a very excited mood, but without any personal outrage. The Torch returned safely to Escombrera Bay, and found that, in consequence of the demonstrations made by the Mendez Nunez, the rest of the crews of the Vittoria and Almanza had been landed at Escombrera, as well as all the officers, and that the ships were empty. The Torch was kept under way off the harbour all night to see that the Mendez Nunez and Fernando el Catolico did not put to sea. These ships, with the Numancia, were observed to be at quarters all night, and in the morning it was found that the Numancia and Mendez Nunez were aground. This must have happened whilst trying to bring their broadsides to seaward. Next morning, the 5th inst., Captain Ward heard from the Consul that it would be unsafe for any one to land at Carthage, and the British subjects residing there were soon afterwards taken on board her Majesty's ships. We give an Illustration of the scene at Carthage when the crews of the Almanza and Vittoria were put ashore. Fort Navidad, presenting a semicircular front to the sea, pierced for eight guns, but apparently mounted with no more than three, is conspicuous in the middle of this view. Fort Galeras is on the summit of the lofty hill above. To the left is the steam-boat Delphin, which has towed the Spanish war-ships' boats into the port, and is casting them off to row ashore. On the right hand, at the entrance to the inner harbour, docks, and arsenal, lies the Mendez Nunez, with the little gun-boat Torch close to her outer side. The Mendez Nunez is a powerful ironclad frigate, of 3500 tons burden and 500-horse power engines, with a central battery of six 9-in. guns; while the Torch has but a single gun to keep her in due respect. Much credit is due, in our judgment, to Commander Dyer for the manner in which he acted upon this critical occasion.

Our Illustration, a week ago, of the conflict in the streets of Seville, was from a sketch by Mr. P. Villamil.

ON BOARD THE DUNDEE STEAMER.

There are many different ways of taking the August holiday which Londoners in easy circumstances think due to themselves; and one way is that of a sea-passage to Scotland by the steamers departing on Wednesday and Saturday mornings from their appointed stations off Wapping. There are, of course, those which make the trip to Leith or Granton Pier for Edinburgh, and which may afford, to passengers who are proof against sea-sickness, an agreeable change from the twelve-hour railway journey, either by the York and Berwick or by the Preston and Carlisle route to the Scottish capital. But there is, furthermore, presented to the amateurs of a coasting navigation in pleasant summer weather the somewhat longer voyage from London to Dundee, which should be accomplished in thirty-six hours. This is not too long a time to be at sea if one has the comfort of a quiet stomach, and if the wind be not too cold and the deck be nicely dry. With such agreeable company as some of those who figure in our Artist's sketch the passage to Dundee might be found so delightful that a man would be content to go on to Aberdeen, or even to go round the Orkneys and return by the Hebrides and the Irish Sea to the British Channel, with a complete circumnavigation of our native island. That is what a young gentleman might be tempted at least to fancy he would like to do in the society of one of these young ladies sitting on the deck of the steamer; but he would soon find himself mistaken, and would want to be set ashore, though but for a solitary tour in the Highlands.

In the official list of successful candidates for the Indian Medical Service, given at page 202 in the Supplement, the name of Mr. R. C. Lucas should have been Mr. R. C. Ross.

A letter, dated July 4, Trenburg Bay, Spitzbergen, has been received by Mr. T. B. Potter, M.P., from his son (who is a comrade of Mr. Leigh Smith in his Arctic Expedition). The expedition had been up to the Seven Islands, lat. 80° 50', but had been stopped by the ice. Trenburg Bay is where Parry left the Hecla when he went north on sledges. Mr. Leigh Smith's yacht, the Samoan, joined the Diana July 2, and Mr. Leigh Smith was getting the provisions and coals out of her, as well as taking in water at Trenburg Bay, before proceeding northward in the Diana, which is a screw-steamer. Mr. Richard Potter's letter came by the Polhem, the Swedish vessel which has wintered in Spitzbergen. All Mr. Leigh Smith's party are very well, and the temperature was mild—49 deg. The sport, consisting of walrus or seal-horses, bears, and seals, had been very fair.

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN.

LANDING CREWS OF REVOLTED SPANISH SHIPS AT PORT NAVIDAD, CARTHAGENA.

FORTRESS OF MONTJUICH, BARCELONA.

ON BOARD THE DUNDEE STEAMER.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent in Paris.)

Thursday, Aug. 28.

The principal event of the week has been the speech delivered by the Duc de Broglie, at the dinner given by the Préfet of the Eure to the Council-General of that department. The oration is what everyone might have anticipated. "The Government," the Duke said, "is engaged in a perilous struggle, not against any particular institution or public opinion, but against principles which tend to destroy all social order. The evil (he remarked) takes all sorts of shapes, and to combat it the Cabinet requires the assistance and union of all well-meaning citizens. That union the Government endeavours to strengthen, convinced that it constitutes the force of the National Assembly, which, he was convinced, will discuss all grave political questions in a spirit of concord." The Duke stated that he regarded the gratitude shown by the Assembly and the country to M. Thiers as a public duty; and, alluding to the present President of the Republic, he highly praised his loyalty, so high above all party calculations, and congratulated France on having one who is such a model of honour, in public as well as in private life, to preside over her destinies. This speech has naturally caused considerable sensation in Paris. Although very ambiguously worded, the Republican newspapers regard it as a pledge that the Government will attempt no coup-d'état during the recess, and congratulate themselves thereat. The appropriate complimentary allusion to M. Thiers is highly praised in all circles; but it is worthy of note that while the Duc de Broglie was delivering this address the Courrier de Paris—a lithographed correspondence published under the auspices of the most intimate friends of the Vice-President of the Council—was announcing to the astonished Parisians that a plot against the Government had just been discovered. The public rejoicings in the recently-evacuated departments were to have been the pretext for disorders in which the International was to have taken a leading part. M. Thiers's arrival at Belfort was to have been the signal for the lovers of disorder and anarchy to rise against the constituted authorities. Fortunately, however, adds the mendacious print, the Government received news of the affair, and, after a great show of energy, succeeded in defeating this "abominable scheme."

A week or so ago M. Lemoine, the talented editor of the Journal des Débats, attacked the "Gambettist party," as the members of the Left Centre are termed, in the most violent manner, much to the surprise of the Radical papers and the jubilation of their Monarchical confrères. The hopes entertained by the latter that the old Orleanist print was about to return to its ancient line of politics have, however, proved premature, for one hears to-day that M. Lemoine's article in no wise represents the political opinions of MM. Léon Say and Papst, the co-directors, or of the leading rédacteurs. M. Gambetta, who has taken the trouble to reply personally, in the Republique Française, to M. Lemoine's effusion maintains that the Radical Left is in no wise undisciplined, fanatical, and exclusive, for during the late Session its members frequently sacrificed their preferences, and, in many instances, rather than cause a split in the party which M. Thiers relied on, went to the utmost limits of their mandates. The only thing, says the ex-Dictator, on which they were determined there should be no wavering, was the denial of the constituent powers of the present Assembly.

There is no fresh news apropos of the fusion this week; and the only mention in the papers concerning the Count de Chambord is to the effect that the grandson of Charles X. has sent word to the Paray-le-Monial pilgrimage committee that he thinks it better not to return to France until the termination of the political crisis, as he fears that if he were to show himself here his dignity might be compromised by the manifestations which would be certain to take place. The Paris pilgrims to the miraculous grotto of La Salette on their return home attended a special mass at the Church of Notre Dame des Victoires to offer up thanks for their safe arrival.

Prince Napoleon, who has been elected President of the Corsican Council-General by a large majority of votes, delivered a short speech on taking the chair the other day, recommending the council to occupy itself exclusively with the interests of the department. He has since returned to Paris. The announcement of the Royalist papers to the effect that on leaving Switzerland M. Thiers will proceed to Turin, Florence, and Venice, and subsequently to Vienna on a visit to the International Exhibition, is contradicted by the different organs of the late President of the Republic.

Considerable sensation was caused among English residents in Paris on the arrival of the news of the narrow escape from drowning which his Royal Highness Prince Arthur had recently had at Trouville.

Dr. Nèlaton, whose death has been continually reported by the Parisian journals of late, is now out of danger, and the physicians attending the eminent surgeon speak confidently of a speedy recovery.

The ringleaders of the band of young malefactors styling themselves the "Casquettes Noires," who were arrested in Paris some five months since, have been condemned by the Assize Court of the Seine to various terms of imprisonment, ranging from ten to twenty years. Four of the accused were acquitted.

SPAIN.

Senor Castelar has been elected President of the Cortes. Seventy-three deputies deposited blank voting papers. On assuming the presidential chair he delivered a speech in support of Conservative principles. After having thanked the House for the honour conferred upon him, he went on to say:—

"The troubles and difficulties of the country are increasing, and the public peril is greater than ever; these are the reasons which induce me to accept the post to which I have undeservedly been elected. In doing so, however, I am encouraged by the belief that I shall have the support of all parties. Senor Castelar then reminded the Deputies that in the days when they struggled for the Republic all Republicans were united. They only became divided after victory had been achieved. He continued:—The explanation of this is that there is always an ideal. The Government and the majority represent the reality in all its sadness; the ideal is represented by the Opposition. I advise the Opposition to carry on a propaganda keeping in view the force of right, not the right of force. In my position as President of the Assembly I shall not interfere in any way with the liberty of discussion, but I shall not tolerate personalities. My policy is contained in the programme of Senor Salmeron. We have to continue the work of the Revolution of September, and do not represent any single party, but the whole Democracy. Senor Castelar then drew a brilliant sketch of the history of Democracy, which was received with loud cheers, and he continued as follows:—Since Feb. 11 Liberty has been the motto of the Republic; the overthrow of the Republic would sign the death warrant of Liberty. Nothing could be more infamous than a generation which, having succeeded in achieving Liberty, should not know how to preserve it. I am an advocate of federalism, because federalism will prevent a dictatorship. But I am desirous above all of upholding the national unity, and of maintaining the integrity of our country. When great nationalities like Italy and Germany are being constituted, it would be an act of madness to undo our own. We must enter upon the path of practical self-government; we must respect all aspirations, but we require a great deal of authority, of order, and government. The Republic might disappear if order were not consolidated, for between anarchy and a dictatorship society will always choose the latter. But if you are desirous of seeing the Republic firmly established we must take measures to have order respected and discipline restored. In a word, it is necessary that all Liberal parties should share not in the bitterness of power, but in the duties of public life, which is to-day a life of warfare. I pray the Almighty that he may protect us in our endeavours to save Liberty and the integrity of Spain. Senor Castelar resumed his seat amid prolonged cheering.

The Government has resolved to replace the governors of the provinces in which the Socialist outbreaks have occurred by special commissions.

The latest news of the Carlist and Red Republican civil wars in different parts of Spain may need confirmation, but it is stated that the Carlists have at length succeeded in gaining possession of the fortified town of Estelle, between Pampeluna and Burgos, where they took 600 prisoners, 1500 rifles, and some ammunition. They are said to have 23,000 men in the field, with 500 cavalry; but the Madrid Government claims to have 90,000 men out against them. The warfare on both sides is pursued, however, in a scattered and desultory manner; as soon as the Republican volunteers evacuate a town, detachments of Carlists enter it with bands playing at their head. The principal Carlist chiefs, Elio, Dorregaray, and Lizarraga, are now within easy concentrating distance in the triangle formed by Bilbao, San Sebastian, and Pampeluna. The forces they dispose of, combined with those under Don Carlos and Ollo, make twenty-five strong battalions, of which seven each come from Navarre and Biscay, six from Guipuzcoa, two each from Alava and Castille, and one from Santander. There is an apprehension that Bilbao will be attacked.

Barcelona has suffered another alarm of military insurrection. This time it was an artillery detachment which attempted a pronunciamiento. The cavalry, who remained loyal, promptly put them down, and the ringleaders have been sent for trial.

The siege of Carthagena is the principal event in progress in the southern parts of Spain, and on the result a great deal will depend. Here the Red Republican insurgents are making a determined stand. The place is strongly fortified; the insurgents possess powerful guns and ironclads, they have secured large stores of provisions and ammunition, and they do not exhibit any deficiency of courage. Carthagena is besieged by a military force under General Martinez Campos. Admiral Lobos has been reconnoitring the port with the view of blockading it; but, failing to persuade Admiral Yelverton to hand over to him the Almansa and the Vittoria, and finding that his artillery was too weak for an effective assault on the fortifications, he has withdrawn with his wooden frigates.

ITALY.

King Victor Emmanuel, who will probably leave Rome for Vienna towards the middle of next month, has received an invitation to visit the German Emperor at Berlin.

The official history of the Vatican Council, which has advanced as far as the definition of the dogma of Infallibility, will be revised by a special commission of Cardinals and Bishops.

The Pope has had a slight indisposition, but is better again. The rumour of a large appointment of Cardinals is denied, though it is partially justified by the admission that pressure has been exercised by foreign Governments upon his Holiness to induce him to fill the vacancies in the Sacred College.

The Pope has issued a brief, bearing date the 19th inst., in which he says:—"As pilgrimages in Italy have been prohibited by the Government prefects, several Catholics at Bologna have decided to invite their fellow-Catholics to undertake in September three spiritual pilgrimages—one to the Holy Land, the second to the sacred shrines of Italy, and the third to the various foreign sanctuaries." The brief highly commends the project, and grants indulgences to the pilgrims. His Holiness, moreover, grants indulgences to those who attend the sacraments, visit the churches, and pray to God for concord among Christian princes, the extirpation of heresies, the conversion of sinners, and the triumph of the Church.

The journals report that the neighbourhood of Catanzaro, Calabria, is infested by a band of brigands whose leader is Maria Monico, a young woman whose remarkable beauty is only equalled by her ferocity. She is the widow of a brigand named Pietro Monico, who was killed by the troops, and whose death she has vowed to avenge.

The villainous brigand chief Manzi has been killed, and his band captured. The Prefect of Salerno personally directed the operations against them. The band consisted of nine brigands, six of whom were killed in resisting capture, while one gendarme was killed and three wounded, including the captain.

SWITZERLAND.

After two long sittings the Grand Council has passed the third and last reading of the bill for the organisation of Catholic worship. There were 63 contents and 7 non-contents. The chief provisions of the bill are that the curés shall be appointed by the parishes (there will be three curés for the city of Geneva); the parish is to be represented by five members in a superior council of thirty-one. The curés will have to take an oath to the Constitution; they may be suspended for four years for violating their oath or committing breaches of discipline.

Geneva has had another windfall. M. Paul Ragier, who died at Belley on Jan. 24 last, has left to the cantonal hospital of Geneva the whole of his fortune, with the exception of 171,000f. bequeathed to other charitable institutions.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Emperor of Austria paid a visit on Thursday week to Cardinal Rauscher, to congratulate him on his jubilee, the fiftieth anniversary of his entering the priesthood. His Majesty presented the Cardinal with his portrait, set in brilliants, accompanied by an autograph letter.

M. de la Bouillerie, the French Minister of Commerce, is on a special mission at Vienna, and has had an audience of the Emperor.

The people's fête at the Exhibition, last Saturday night, went off splendidly, 106,000 persons having entered the building. The Emperor, Grand Dukes, and Crown Prince of Saxony viewed the illuminations from the Imperial pavilion.

GERMANY.

The German Emperor left Gastein on Wednesday on his return to Berlin, where he was to arrive on Friday evening. After being present at the unveiling of the monument to Victory on Sept. 2, his Majesty will go to Weimar to congratulate the newly-married son of the Grand Duke. During the course of the month he will be present at the military manoeuvres which are to be held near Berlin and in the provinces.

The Prussian Minister of Public Worship has closed the clerical seminary at Posen. Bishop Krementz, of Ermeland, has been summoned to appear before the criminal law court at Braunsberg, on Sept. 15, to take his trial on several charges brought forward against him.

The Supreme Consistory of Bavaria has ordered Sept. 2 to be kept as a national holiday throughout the kingdom, and Divine service is to be held in all the churches, in grateful commemoration of the national victories of 1870 and 1871.

RUSSIA.

The Czarewitch and the Czarevna have left Copenhagen for St. Petersburg. Queen Olga of Greece, a niece of the Czar, left Athens on Monday night for Livadia, in order to be present at the assembly of the Imperial family, which has been called together for the purpose of meeting the Duke of Edinburgh previous to his marriage with the Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrovna.

The Invalide Russe gives an account of the new château of Eriklik erected for a summer residence for the Empress on the south coast of the Crimea. The name is Tartar, and signifies "garden of plum-trees," owing to the number of these trees growing wild on Mount Negabi, the name of the height on which the new château has been built. It is at the distance of a league and a half from the town of Yalta, and on the level near the sea is a fine dairy farm, from which the road winds up the hill, the top of which is clothed with oak and willow. The château is comfortable, but not highly ornate in character, and is surrounded by a small but admirably-arranged garden, at one end of which is a pavilion, whence a magnificent view of the sea, the rocks, and forests, as well as of the town of Yalta, may be enjoyed. The château of Orlanda, the property of the Grand Duke Constantine Nikolaievitch, is not far off.

Colonel Markosoff, commander of one of the Russian columns in the expedition against Khiva, has been complimented by the Grand Duke Michael in the order of the day.

TURKEY.

The European tour of the Shah of Persia is now over, his Majesty having, on Tuesday, left Constantinople, via the Black Sea, for Poti, a fortified town in Asiatic Russia. The telegram which announces this fact states also that the Persian Grand Vizier has established with the Ottoman Government the basis of an understanding upon all pending questions between Turkey and Persia. It is stated that before leaving Constantinople the Shah presented his portrait, set in diamonds, to the Grand Vizier and to the Russian Ambassador, General Ignatieff. A like gift was proposed to the British Ambassador; but Sir Henry Elliott, acting in accordance with the rules of the English diplomatic service, declined it.

A despatch from Constantinople states that the Hellenic brigand Carayanny, implicated in the Marathon affair, and four other brigands, have been killed by the Ottoman authorities.

AMERICA.

President Grant having approved of the capital sentence passed on Captain Jack and five of his Modoc braves, Oct. 3 has been appointed for their execution.

We have two lamentable items of news from the States. At Belfast, in the State of Maine, a fire has destroyed 125 buildings, and rendered 130 families homeless for a time; and on the Mississippi there has been a steam-boat explosion by which twelve persons have been killed.

INDIA.

A Times telegram from Calcutta says:—"The Viceroy will try Surendranath Bannerjee by a Civil Service Commission, under the Act of 1850, for falsifying records and using falsehoods to conceal his offence. The political service is graded as residents, political agents, and political assistants, three classes in each grade."

Another telegram, dated Aug. 27, from the Times' correspondent at Calcutta, says:—"A passive resistance is offered to the payment of rent in the Vogra district. The Viceroy approves the orders on illegal cesses in Bengal, to instruct peasants in their rights, and to put a stop to oppression in extreme cases. The Sonthals are restless in Maunbhoom. Colonel Dalton is there. The Viceroy recommends that the magistrates should stop Juggernath cars which may be dangerous. The Bengal Government has ordered the extension of the medical vernacular colleges in Calcutta, Dacca, and Patna. Six hundred Panthay refugees are seeking land in Burnah. The Political Agent proposes to give them British territory. Badakshan is pacified."

JAPAN.

In a letter from Yokohama, published in the Allgemeine Zeitung, it is stated that the Japanese officials of the Ministry of Finance had resigned because they find it impossible to restore the ways and means to a satisfactory position. The State debt amounted to 104,000,000 dollars, and the Government had entered upon a number of new undertakings.

News has been received from Japan, by way of New York, to the effect that the port of Simonasaki will shortly be opened to the commerce of all nations.

The monument erected on the tomb of Ludwig Feuerbach at Nuremberg was unveiled a few days ago.

The death of Carl Wilhelm, the composer of the "Wacht am Rhein," is announced.

The labouring classes in Peru are manifesting a strong antipathy towards the Chinamen imported into that country.

General Garibaldi has accepted the invitation of the French refugees at Geneva to preside at a banquet there on Sept. 4.

The Postmaster General having decided upon closing the British post-office agency at Buenos Ayres, money-orders can no longer be issued in this country on that office.

The German Telegraphic Administration and the postal authorities at Gibraltar have given in their adhesion to the International Telegraph Convention.

In consequence of the inability of Russia to send a representative, it is proposed to postpone the International Postal Congress that was to be held at Berne.

It is stated that since the great fire in Chicago between 200 and 300 persons have been adjudged insane in the courts of Cook county, Illinois.

From Cairo is telegraphed the satisfactory news of Sir Samuel Baker's safe arrival there, along with Lady Baker and the members of his expedition, on Sunday last.

During a thunderstorm with which Antwerp was visited on Monday night one of the largest warehouses was struck by lightning. The building, which was filled with goods, caught fire and burnt furiously.

Notice has been given by the Great Northern Telegraph Company that the company's Nagasaki-Shanghai cable has been repaired, and that messages can therefore be forwarded as usual to all stations in China and Japan by way of Russia.

At a meeting of the Australian Meat Agency Company, on Tuesday, it was stated that the value of the importation of Australian meat, which in 1866 was only £300, amounted last year to £390,000.

The new Governor-General of Yemen has, it is stated, prohibited the export or import of slaves along the Arabian coast of the Red Sea, and issued a notice that any person buying or selling slaves will be liable to imprisonment for five years.

It appears from a telegram referred to in the Bombay Gazette of Aug. 1 that the Sultan of Zanzibar, who had contemplated a visit to this country, has been informed by the home authorities that it is not convenient to receive him at present.

Another fatal accident has occurred to an Alpine climber. A gentleman of Lausanne was ascending the Dent du Midi, when, in reaching over a precipice to gather some flowers, he slipped and fell into the abyss, and was instantly killed.

The appointments of Sir Andrew Clarke as Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Straits Settlements and their dependencies, and Mr. Cornelius Bendenchsen Kortright as Administrator of the Government of her Majesty's settlement on the Gambia, appear in Tuesday's Gazette.

A notorious man-eating tiger, at Sattiamungalum, Malacca, which, for the last three years, is said to have destroyed human beings at the rate of one per week, has happily been destroyed by Captain Caulfield and the Rev. Mr. Jackson, Chaplain of the Madras Railway, by strychnine.

The annual congress of German journalists met on the 17th inst. at Hamburg. The congress decided to establish a fund for the telegraphic service of the German press. It was unanimously resolved that all advertisements inconsistent with public morality, which are said to be more and more invading the German press, should be refused insertion on any terms.

Mölle. Anna Walter, a dancer at the Vienna Theatre, was burnt to death, on Thursday week, when preparing to enter on the stage. Going too close to a light, her dress caught fire, and, in her fright, she rushed along the corridor, enveloped in flames, so that when assistance was rendered she was found to be dreadfully injured. She expired the next day.

Apprehension is felt by the committee of the South American Missionary Society for the safety of Dr. Stirling, the Bishop of the Falklands. He and the society's farm steward sailed from their station, Keppel, in the West Falklands, about the middle of April, but up to July 16 they had not been heard of at Monte Video. They were in the society's schooner the Allen Gardiner.

The French police appear to have caught the lady of whom they were in search when they blunderingly arrested a lady at Boulogne. She is also English, and of "surpassing beauty." She has been convicted at the Correctional Court of complicity in a series of daring jewellery robberies committed in Paris. Sentence of five years' imprisonment was passed upon her. At the same time an English pickpocket got off with six months.

The screw steam-ship Gertrude, of Exeter, is being loaded at the Royal Arsenal at Woolwich with arms, ammunition, and stores for the Gold Coast, for the purpose of assisting in the operations against the Ashantes. Advice brought by the troop-ship Himalaya from Cape Coast Castle indicate that that settlement, as well as Elmina, was considered out of danger from the Ashantes. The troops, however, were greatly shaken by fever and dysentery.

The Norwegian papers publish a narrative by Captain Mack, who was sent in search of some sailors surprised by the ice to the north of Spitzbergen, in September last, and forced to winter in magazines at Mitterbuk. The entire party, eighteen in number, were found dead. The chief cause of this mortality is attributed to the inaction of the victims and to their persisting in the use of salt meat and other provocatives of scurvy. Their journals have been preserved.

Intelligence has reached Liverpool of two large steamers having been wrecked in the Indian Ocean. The Singapore, of 2223 tons, from Shanghai for London, ran ashore on Cape Gardafui, near Adan. Her captain and all the officers except the third engineer were drowned. The crew fell into the hands of the Somali Arabs, who are reported to be pillaging the wreck. The Arracan, of 1841 tons, from Rangoon, went ashore on one of the Maldiv Islands. Happily, all her passengers and crew were saved.

The President of the Civil Tribunal at Geneva has issued an order granting the town of Geneva complete possession of the property left by the Duke of Brunswick. The post-mortem examination of the body of the Duke showed that death was caused by cerebral congestion. A correspondent of the Times at Geneva, who sends the text of the Duke of Brunswick's will, confirms the statement that the deceased Prince had made a will, which was revoked, in favour of the Prince Imperial of France, and adds some other particulars. He writes:—"On the authorities searching the effects of the Duke to see if there were any other documents of importance, another will was found, made in 1869, and subsequently cancelled, which bequeathed all his fortune to Louis Napoleon, the Prince Imperial of France." The Telegraph says:—"A statement has been published by a contemporary to the effect that the ex-Empress of the French has paid three several visits to Geneva, in order to persuade the Duke of Brunswick to change his will in favour of the Prince Imperial. We are enabled to give a direct contradiction to this story. Her Majesty has never visited Geneva, and has not seen the Duke of Brunswick since Sept. 4, 1870."

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

Railway disasters are crowding upon us. An accident occurred at Retford, on Saturday last, almost rivalling in horror the Wigan catastrophe of a few weeks ago. Only three persons, it is true, were killed on the spot in the more recent accident, but nearly forty others have been seriously injured. The unfortunate occupants of the smashed train consisted of 200 workmen going for their annual "outing" with their wives and sweethearts to the seaside. Into this "pleasure party," while in the act of passing over a level crossing by which the Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Railway traverses the Great Northern, a "fish-train" belonging to the latter company dashed at full or nearly full speed, completely cutting the passenger-train in two, and shattering into splinters the carriages it came in contact with. Having passed clean through the train, the Great Northern engine dashed into a signal-box, which it completely demolished, the bricks and other materials being hurled down upon the wounded passengers. Colonel Rich has been appointed by the Board of Trade to conduct the official inquiry into this disastrous accident.

A young lady was killed and seven or eight other persons were injured through a collision at Eastbourne station yesterday week. A train arriving from Hastings and another starting for Brighton had to pass the same metals within a minute of each other. At the points they struck.

Near midnight on Monday an excursion-train from Cleethorpes was run into about two miles from Barnsley by a goods-train, and several carriages were broken to pieces and a dozen passengers and two guards seriously injured.

Twenty-five empty trucks, while being shunted at Whytemire station, Dunfermline, on Thursday week, became loosened from their couplings, and, rushing down a siding, came in contact with a bridge. Four waggons were destroyed, the bridge was damaged, and a girl who was crossing it was hurt.

An engine went off the line at Barrhead station, on Thursday week, ran over an embankment and fell through the roof of a stable, killing a horse.

A flock of sheep which was being driven across the North-Eastern Railway at Corston station, a few miles from Northallerton, on Monday, was run into by a Scotch express-train, which killed twenty-six of them and injured others.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERENCES AND APPOINTMENTS.

Adams, W. P. C., to be Rector of Hawkechurch, Dorset.
Barclay, Joseph: Rector of Stapleford, Herts.
Barlow, W. H.: Rector of St. Elbe's, Oxford.
Billing, J. P.: Domestic Chaplain to Earl Poulett.
Boden, C. J.: Vicar of Maer, Staffordshire.
Bramley, A.: Rector of Courteenhall, Northampton.
Gibson, C. H.: Rector of Gilling and Shelland, Suffolk.
Hart, W. P. L.: Vicar of Great Barton and Taynton, Gloucestershire.
Puxley, H. R.: Rector of Great Catworth, Huntingdon.
Samson, Edward: Vicar of Pipe Ridware, Staffordshire.
Tate, Prebendary: Vicar of Lowestoft, Suffolk.
Wilson, W. W.: Rector of Colford St. Mary, Wilts.
Wyndham, E.: Rector of West Chelborough, Dorset; Vicar of Yeovil.

Leave to amend the pleadings of a parishioner of St. Parnabas, who opposes, in the Consistory Court, the Rector's project of a "baldacchino," was granted by Dr. Tristram.

The National Committee for the Reparation of St. Alban's Abbey has recently received £210 from the Worshipful Company of Drapers, and £105 from the Worshipful Company of Merchant Taylors.

New national schools for the district of St. Paul's, Old Brentford, were opened on Tuesday. At four o'clock a short choral service was held in St. Paul's Church, after which the committee, choir, and clergy walked in procession to the new building, where a dedication service was held, the chair being taken by the Right Hon. S. H. Walpole, M.P. The boys' and girls' school-rooms are 57 ft. by 18 ft. each, and have spacious class-rooms; while the infants' school-room is 50 ft. by 20 ft. Ventilation has been carefully studied, and excellent lavatories are provided. The schools will afford accommodation for 550 children, and the total cost of the building is about £3000.

The foundation-stone of a new church was laid at Wyesham, in the parish of Dixton, near Monmouth, on the 19th inst., by the Duchess of Beaufort. A form of service, compiled by the late Bishop Wilberforce, was used at the site of the new church, conducted by the Vicar of the parish, assisted by the Archdeacon of Monmouth and clergy resident in the parish, the Revs. W. M. Warlow and R. W. Everett. The church, which is to contain 200 kneelings, is designed by Mr. J. P. Seddon, and will consist of nave, chancel, vestry, and porch, the tower remaining for the present incomplete. The site has been given by the Duke of Beaufort.

The Rev. Dr. Wilson, Vicar of Holyrood, Southampton, and Canon of Winchester, died suddenly, at Winchester, on the 22nd inst. He attained his ninetieth year in June last, and had occupied the living of Holyrood between forty-nine and fifty years. He was the author of several works, including the "Bible Student's Guide" and an exposition of the Psalms. The living is worth nearly £300, and the canonry between £600 and £700. Both are in the gift of the new Bishop of Winchester—The Rev. William Mercer, M.A., Vicar of St. George's, Sheffield, died suddenly on the 22nd inst., aged sixty-two years. Mr. Mercer was well known as the author of Mercer's "Church Psalter and Hymn Book." He was Vicar of St. George's for thirty-three years.

A few years ago a movement was set on foot to promote the restoration and enlargement of the parish church of Felixstowe, Suffolk. The alterations hitherto completed have provided a hundred additional sittings. They consist of a beautiful chancel and transept on the north side, on the east side of which are a vestry and organ-chamber, the arches opening from the organ-chamber into the chancel on one side and into the transept on the other being fitted with handsome oak screens. The cost of the works executed is about £1100, to which Lord Kinnaird, of Rossie Priory, formerly a visitor at Felixstowe, has been a generous contributor, in conjunction with kind friends in the neighbourhood. It is now proposed to continue the enlargement of the church by providing a south transept and raising the nave.

The Church of St. Cutbert, Shustoke, Warwickshire, was reopened on the 22nd inst., after a thorough restoration. The chancel has been rebuilt, except a small portion of the east wall. An organ-chamber has been added on the north side, and a handsome arched recess over the monument of Sir Win. Dugdale, the antiquarian. The south porch is new, and the tracery of the windows and the exterior walls of the nave have been much repaired. Both in the chancel and nave there are new roofs of very high pitch and admirable design, the great width and height of the latter rendering it extremely imposing. A new pulpit of Caen stone and marble has been erected, with figures of the Saviour in the central panel, and of SS. Peter and Paul on either side. The sittings in the nave are of deal and in the chancel of oak, constructed out of timber from the old roof. Encaustic tiles of various patterns have been used throughout for the floor. The restoration is due entirely to the munificence of Mr. R. J. T. Croxall, whose family have resided for many generations in the parish, and who designed it, according to an inscription on a brass tablet near the pulpit, for "the glory of God and in honour of his wife, and as a tribute of affection to her memory." In the new east window very beautiful stained glass, by Ward and Hughes, has been placed by the parishioners to her memory also; and several offerings of furniture, including altar-cloth and books, alms-dish, chancel chairs, &c., were made by other friends. Between the services about a hundred persons sat down to luncheon in a marquee, at which the Bishop presided, and Sir C. Adderley very feelingly proposed Mr. Croxall's health. The works have been carried out by Mr. Freedy, architect.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

OXFORD.

The Lord Chancellor will preside at a banquet to be held at Oxford on Oct. 22, in commemoration of the anniversary of the Oxford Union Society, of which his Lordship was a distinguished member while at college.

The division lists and supplementary tables for the Oxford local examinations, held in June, were issued on Saturday last, and forwarded to the several centres at which the examinations were held. The number of junior candidates who actually presented themselves for examination was 1116, of whom 709 obtained certificates. This is a considerable increase in the number of those who passed over that of last year, when the numbers were 1082 and 546 respectively. The number of senior candidates who actually presented themselves for examination was 473, of whom 243 obtained certificates. This is somewhat less than last year, when the numbers were 473 and 267 respectively. Of the senior candidates Oxford produces the best candidate for the year in Miss A. M. H. Rogers (the eldest daughter of Professor Thorold Rogers, of Oxford), whose name stands first on the general list in order of merit. Of the 243 senior candidates who obtain certificates 41 are girls, of whom one is placed in the first division and three in the second division of the general list; two are placed in the first division and twelve in the second division of section A (English); two in the first division and five in the second division of section B (languages); one in the second division of section E (drawing); four in the first division and seven in the second division of section F (music). The general list is framed upon the aggregate work of the candidates, and contains the names of all who satisfied the examiners and obtained the title of Associate in Arts of the University of Oxford. Of the junior candidates the number who have obtained certificates is 703, which includes 64 girls, one of whom is placed in the first division, five in the second, and the remainder in the third division. The two candidates whose names stand at the top of the first division in order of merit are bracketed as equal, and this division contains 58 names, while there are 116 placed in the second division and 535 in the third division.

CAMBRIDGE.

Architectural improvements and enlargements are being made in connection with the University. The new wing of Trinity Hall, the new building at King's, and the Ladies' College at Girton are all expected to be ready for next term. The Fitzwilliam Museum is undergoing extension, and the Duke of Devonshire's building for experimental physics is approaching completion. Trinity chapel is also receiving important renovation and redecoration.

The Cambridge local examinations will begin at the various centres on Dec. 15. The last day for making applications for examination is Sept. 1. In addition to the centres at which examinations took place last December there are several new centres arranged for this year, viz.:—Darlington, Dorchester, Dover, Hastings, Islington, Ramsgate, South Shields, and Wolverhampton. At four of these centres there will be an examination of both boys and girls. Of a total of 2956 examined last December there were 811 girls and 2145 boys. In the work of examination about a hundred members of the senate will be engaged, including some of the most prominent of the teaching and professional staff of the University. The examination of schools by the University succeeds admirably; and the recent arrangements made by the joint education board of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge who have undertaken the examinations of the public schools of the country are at work, and it is to be hoped will be attended with satisfactory results. The latest scheme to which the senate of the University of Cambridge has committed itself for the purpose of promoting higher education in the provinces is that for the inauguration of lectures and classes in certain provincial centres. The scheme for the first of these centres has received the approval of the Cambridge Syndicate, and is as follows:—
1. The three towns of Leicester, Nottingham, and Derby to be united in one midland circuit; the lecturers from Cambridge to teach in each of these towns. 2. That there be one session in the year, to extend from the beginning of October to the middle or end of April. 3. That this session be divided into two terms, each term to consist of about twelve weeks. 4. That in each term there be one lecture and one class every week to (a) young ladies, (b) young men in offices, &c., and (c) working men. 5. That the lectures for young ladies be in the morning or afternoon, the other lectures and classes in the evening; that two lecturers be sent from Cambridge for each term to the circuit comprising these three towns; the salary of each to be £400 for the session, £200 for each term; that, if practicable, a separate subject be taught by each lecturer during each term. 6. Subjects proposed:—For working men, a subject connected with some branch of political economy, e.g.—First term: The different modes of alliance between capital and labour historically treated; Second term: The history of Parliamentary government. For young ladies and young men—First term: Some epochs of English history or English literature; Second term: Astronomy, or physical geography, or general laws of physics.

The third report upon scientific instruction and advancement of science, in connection with the two Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, has been issued by the Royal Commissioners appointed to inquire into the subject. The report takes a hopeful view of the future. In dealing with the relations of the Universities with science the commissioners say that their use of the word was limited to the "sciences of organic and inorganic nature, including under that general designation the sciences of number and magnitude, together with those which depend on observation and experiment; but excluding the mental and moral sciences, as well as all those parts of human knowledge and culture which are not usually regarded as having any scientific character." They state their opinion that neither the literary nor the scientific branch of education and research can be neglected without detriment to the other. The following are the subjects referred to in the evidence:—1, The courses of study and the examinations; 2, the professoriate; 3, the scientific institutions within the Universities; 4, the colleges; 5, the relation of the Universities to technical education, and to education for scientific professions; 6, the duty of Universities and the colleges with regard to the advancement of science.

Mr. Disraeli, it is stated, will deliver his inaugural address as Lord Rector of the Glasgow University next November.

The Rev. James Rumsey, M.A., of Pembroke College, Oxford, one of the Pro-Rectors of the University, has been elected an honorary Fellow of King's College, London.

A new vessel of the unarmoured screw-sloop class was launched on Wednesday at Chatham. The Albatross is of 726 tons burden, and will be armed with the heaviest guns she can carry. As soon as she is fitted she will proceed to sea.

At the Hudson Docks, Sunderland, the foundation-stone was laid, on Wednesday, of an extensive granary and warehouse, which was at the same time named after the chairman of the commission, Mr. James Laing. The ceremony wound up with a banquet.

It is announced that from Sept. 1 a sleeping-carriage will be attached to the down Scotch express train of the Great Northern Railway, which leaves King's-cross at 8.30 p.m., and to the up express train, which leaves Glasgow at 9 p.m. and Edinburgh at 10.30 p.m.

Lady Williams Wynn laid, on Tuesday, the foundation-stone of a new orphan home which is to be erected at Wrexham, mainly by Mrs. White, of Bodhyfryd, who is aided by several friends and the inhabitants. Mrs. White has carried on her orphan home for some years in a smaller building.

The Bath Liberals, taking a leaf from the Conservative book, held a political fête on Wednesday. It took place in the grounds of Mr. Murch, an ex-candidate, and was attended by 6000 or 7000 people. A presentation of jewellery was made, on behalf of the working men of Bath, to Mrs. Hayter, for her services to the Liberal cause at the July election.

Herne Bay, on Wednesday, rejoiced in the presence of the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, the chief City magistrate having kindly consented to open the new promenade pier, which is henceforth to aid in raising the popularity of the seaside town. After the ceremony there was a luncheon at the Townhall, under the presidency of Mr. G. Leigh Pemberton, one of the members for East Kent.

THE AUTUMN MILITARY MANŒUVRES

VIEW ON DARTMOOR, LOOKING EAST.

CANNOCK CHASE MANŒUVRES: GENERAL LYSONS' HEAD-QUARTERS, ETCHING HILL, RUGELEY.

ON DARTMOOR AND CANNOCK CHASE.

STWARD FROM BELLIVER DOWN.

CAMP OF THE ROYAL ENGINEERS, OAK EDGE PARK, CANNOCK CHASE

BY THE WAY.

It is "a far cry" to Rangoon, and a farther one to the district of which the Times Rangoon correspondent sends us news. Yet the news is such that, but for distance, which has proverbially a singularly disenchanting effect, we should be all talking, through a couple of dinners at least, about the strange tale of treachery, suicide, and massacre given us in the able letter that appeared on Wednesday. Nobody in Europe cares very much about the Chinese, and the name of the Panthays does not create any distinct impression. It may be enough to know that the former have been carrying on hostilities against the latter, and that in February last a very decisive blow was struck. The Panthay Sultan Suleiman was besieged in the city of Talafo, by a Chinese army, and would probably have been able to hold out, but for the treachery of one of his generals, who was bribed to admit the enemy inside the assailed city. The fortress, thus closely invested, still resisted; but famine came, and surrender was necessary. The Chinese leader caused the Panthay Sultan to understand that, if he gave himself up, the city and its defenders would be spared. Suleiman thereupon poisoned his three wives and all his children, and entered his palanquin, ordering himself to be carried to the Chinese commander's tent. But the Sultan knew the nature of his foes, and having placed these for whom he cared out of the way of earthly harm he himself took poison, and a dead body was found in the palanquin when it was delivered to the victor. Then the Chinese, first slaughtering two embassies sent to beg for mercy, began a general massacre, and it is estimated that 40,000 or 50,000 Panthays were killed—men, women, and children of the Mussulman faith being indiscriminately murdered by the idolaters. Such were the scenes that were enacting about the time of our Ash Wednesday. If such a deed as that of Sultan Suleiman were recorded in a page of Greek or Roman history it would have afforded themes for pictures and poems, and we cannot see that Suleiman is less worthy of being remembered than Regulus. But the story will be forgotten in a few days from its reaching England.

In pronouncing the heavy but every way merited sentence upon the American forgers, Mr. Justice Archibald used an expression which is well worthy of note. He reminded the culprits that they were not poor, ignorant men, but that they had had plenty of money and also education, if he might so call that which dealt alone with the intellectual faculty, and had no bearing upon morals. It will be seen, without reference to the crime for which the four men are doomed to penal servitude for life, that they were profligate persons, whose "pleasant vices were the whips to scourge them." But with regard to the education which they had received, published letters show the point up to which they had been cultured. The style is close and condensed, very practical and to the purpose, yet not so coarse and bald as might be expected. We believe that letters which it was not necessary to produce would have still further illustrated the result of such teaching as that to which Mr. Justice Archibald referred. One of the writers knew how to wax exceedingly sentimental at need, and in addressing persons of the other sex to decorate his appealing letters with all those graces of pathos from silly love-songs, and those gushes of sham pathos which adorn our cheap literature, and are supposed to be exceedingly effective with foolish women. A reader with taste would call such compositions maudlin rubbish, but what proportion do readers of taste bear to the mass of readers whose literary lives are fed by the inferior circulating library? The same scire, in writing to those whom he had reason to fear, proved himself an able master of the art of mingling cajolment with menace, and of using with excellent skill such scraps of law learning as he had picked up. In fact, the correspondence, though the reverse of edifying, would serve as an excellent sermon on Mr. Justice Archibald's wholesome text.

Newspapers are carelessly read at this time of the year. Journals ought to be a daily necessity, of course, but it is curious how we learn upon occasion to do without many things which we supposed to be indispensable. In the country, with a change of occupation and a general disposition to active or passive idleness, we take our reading very easily, and when assured that nothing particular has happened, and that no name we know is in the first column of the supplement, we reconcile ourselves to the conviction that the world may be able to go on for a short time without our personally taking cognisance of everything it does. The Tichborne case, which may now be said to be "the only thing going on," has not been much studied, we opine, since Dr. Kencaley's peroration about maternal instinct. Nor has there been a great deal to attract attention. One of the defendant's witnesses had made a previous appearance before the Lord Chief Justice, who advised him to "be careful," as his Lordship had sent for his notes, and again advised him not to repeat a statement which witnesses had disproved and a jury had disbelieved. Another witness, a medical person of a very inferior sort, with antecedents to match, was sent down in a contemptuous fashion. More respectable witnesses have, however, been called, and it is fair to remark that, though they come from a class from which precision of statement is not to be expected, some of them seem to have tried to say all they knew. One witness appealed against inquiries which affected private matters of his own, and the Lord Chief Justice hoped that unless the questions were essential they would not be pressed, and Mr. Hawkins instantly ceased, declaring that he would never be a party to pressing points merely for the sake of giving pain, an expression which, of course, had no "second intention," and which was approved by the Court. Matters have been, up to the time of our writing, dull; and, if there are a couple of hundred of witnesses of a similar kind to be examined, we can only say with Sir Walter Scott's old suitor in "Red Gauntlet," "O, it's a beautiful thing to think how long and how carefully justice is considered over in this country."

But, if we have no inclination for severe studies at the end of August, we can take up books sometimes, and look at familiar old lines, and quote them wrongly. The writer of this paragraph desires to confess that a lapse of memory recently led to the appearance, in this column, of a mistake which is made by nineteen people out of twenty, but which is none the less to be derided. The Miltonic line,

To-morrow to fresh woods and pastures new.

was erroneously given—"fields" having been used for "woods." The alliteration, we take it, leads memory astray. However, let us make the correction an excuse for quoting the exquisite passage of which the above line is the conclusion—the end of "Lycidas"—

Thus sung the uncouth swain to the oaks and hills,
While the still morn went out with sandals grey;
He touched the tender stops of various quills,
With eager thought warbling his Doric lay:
And now the sun had stretched out all the hills,
And now was dropped into the western bay:
At last he rose, and twitched his mantle blue,
To-morrow to fresh woods and pastures new.

And, to come from a great bard to a small one, if the latter ever existed at all, who is the author of the sentiment, "Though lost to sight, to memory dear"? Does it belong to a poem? A very confident affirmative answer has lately been given, but it comes from America, and there is a suggestive word in the statement which assigns the authorship of verses with the above burden to one Ruthven Jenkins. He is said to have published them in 1702, in a miscellany called the "Greenwich Magazine for Marines." The lines are stupid enough to be either of the period mentioned or to be a hoax. We are able to say that there is no such book in the British Museum, and that there is no reference to such a book in any catalogue. We are inclined to think that the "sentiment" is a fragment of a sentimental age, when people could not drink a glass of wine after dinner without emitting some idiotic commonplace, "to sweeten our wine." We do not utter ridiculous phrases now over our liquor, nor do we ourselves become ridiculous from drinking too much of it.

The so-called "working" man is not to be addressed carelessly, it seems, or without a delicacy which, perhaps, he does not always employ in reply. We had fancied that excessive euphemism might be misplaced in writing for the hardy son of toil, but for all his hardness he is afraid of hard words. A fortnight or so ago some intimidators who had driven away non-unionists from their field-work by threats that if they were found at it in an hour their heads should be split open with spades, were sent to prison. In recording and remarking on this the organ of the unions certainly takes pains not to call a spade a spade. It says that the workers were warned off with threats, in case of persistence, "of certain consequences." This is really very touching. It can hardly be said to be true, though it is not actually false. It assuredly does not convey an idea of the real facts. We imagine that if the gallant intimidators had used the language of the organ of their class, the persons who were to be driven away would have completed their job, with a remark that "consequences" might betake themselves to the proverbial place of good intentions. But when they were told that their heads should be split open, they had no right to complain of the union trumpet giving an uncertain sound. Still, true modesty does not care to hear of its great and good deeds; and the working men of England are delicately apprised that some transgressors of union law received a hint against "certain consequences."

THE AUTUMN CAMPAIGNS.

The series of military manoeuvres performed by the troops assembled on Dartmoor, under Major-General Sir Charles Staveley, was practically brought to an end by the grand review and "march past" on Thursday week, in the presence of their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Edinburgh. This performance took place on Roborough Down, between Plymouth and Tavistock, and attracted great numbers of people from those towns and other places in the neighbourhood. The troops in the field numbered about 10,000, the First Division under Major-General Sir E. Greathed, and the Second Division under Major-General Smith. The Prince of Wales, who arrived at noon from Plymouth, having come round from Holyhead in the Victoria and Albert yacht the day before, wore his uniform as a general officer; while his brother, the Duke of Edinburgh, wore that of Colonel of a volunteer artillery corps. Mr. Cardwell, the Secretary of State for War, joined company with their Royal Highnesses. They rode along the line of troops, which extended half a mile, and the troops then marched past, first from right to left, afterwards the reverse way; but there was no sham fight that day. Several corps left the camp on the same evening; it was quite broken up at the end of the week. The wild scenery of Dartmoor has been described in our recent notices. We present a view taken by one of our correspondents, Lieutenant S. P. Oliver, R.E., from the hill called Belliver Tor, looking towards the camp of the Second Division on Merrit Hill. A party of Royal Engineers in the foreground, among the huge blocks of granite that encumber the summit, are employed in making signals to direct the movements of the artillery on the hillside, and of several bodies of infantry advancing or retreating across the plain below, which is intersected by the course of the East Dart river, with Post Bridge and the high road from Exeter to Tavistock and Plymouth. The tents of the assembled force, under Major-General Smith, occupy an elevated position on the opposite hill.

The other great military gathering for practice and exercise this autumn is on Cannock Chase, Staffordshire, under the command of Major-General D. Lysons, whose headquarters are fixed at Etching Hill, a mile from the little town of Rugeley. This place is the subject of one of our Artist's sketches. The tents are so pitched as to face the racecourse, the nearest edge of which is only a hundred yards from the General's tent; and on each side of this are those of his staff. It had been intended to have a regiment encamped on Rawsley Hill, close to Buxton; but changes have had to be made in consequence of the objection of a local proprietor to any manœuvring on his ground. The extreme left of the encampment is at Lower Cliff, sweeping outwards to the south-east; the line of tents furthest in a straight line from head-quarters are those at Brindley Heath, and the extreme right is at Oak Edge Hill, which is near Sillbull Hill. The whole camp, as completed, is fan-shaped; but the hills a little beyond the racecourse cut off from the handle of the fan the view of the tents on the extremities. From the abrupt rock on which floats the General's flag, and also from those hills, an almost complete sight of the entire encampment may be obtained. Within the head-quarters' ground are a telegraph station and a post office; but the former is only available for military purposes. The 1st brigade of the first division is encamped at Oak Edge Hill. This division consists of the 2nd Life Guards, 7th Dragoon Guards, B and E batteries of Horse Artillery, 14th brigade A and B field-batteries of Royal Artillery, 18th company of Royal Engineers, and one section of Royal Engineer Train; Grenadier Guards and Coldstream Guards, 2nd battalion 4th Lancashire militia, and Leicester Volunteers, forming the first brigade of infantry; 33rd, 35th, and 47th Regiments, and 6th West York militia, forming the second infantry brigade; the whole commanded by Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar. The second division is under the command of General Sir John Douglas. Our third sketch is a scene in the camp of the Royal Engineers on Oak Edge Hill. The men appear to be cleaning the horse harness of the Engineer Train, which has had much laborious work to do in the late wet weather.

A lamentable accident happened on the last day of the Dartmoor campaign. The Assistant Quartermaster-General, Colonel Kenneth Mackenzie, while driving in a light carriage with his brother-in-law, Captain Colomb, was drowned by the overturning of the carriage in fording the river Meavy. Captain Colomb had a narrow escape.

The two regiments that engaged in a disgraceful riot at the Curragh, not long ago—namely, the North Cork and Queen's County Militia—are to be sent home disarmed, and both corps will then be disbanded.

MUSIC.

THE BIRMINGHAM MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Contrary to previous usage, this year's festival preceded that of Hereford, where the hundred and fiftieth meeting of the associated choirs of that city, Gloucester, and Worcester is to take place the week after next.

The Birmingham music meetings have long taken precedence of all other provincial festivals in the extent of the arrangements and the importance of the results. The history of its antecedents has so often been given in detail that it may now suffice briefly to recapitulate the leading features thereof. These festivals originated in 1768, and from that period have continued to serve their benevolent purpose—that of aiding and extending the resources of that noble local institution, the Birmingham General Hospital. In the year just referred to the amount realised was barely £300. After results, with some fluctuations, were more and more important, the festival of 1864 having brought to the hospital funds £5250, that of 1867 £5341, and that of 1870 £6195, clear of all expenses. Large as these amounts are, they are needful as helps to the maintenance of an institution that has every year to meet increasing claims.

The Birmingham Festival has not been regularly triennial. This order of recurrence was broken after the meeting of 1790; the next having taken place in 1796, after which they continued to be held every three years, up to 1829, when they were suspended until 1834, the performances having then been first given in the then new Townhall, in which magnificent building they have ever since been held with triennial regularity.

In 1848 Sir Michael (then Mr.) Costa was appointed conductor, which office he has continued to fill to the advantage both of the artistic and pecuniary results of the festivals.

These performances have brought forward many important works, and will ever be especially associated with the name of Mendelssohn, whose "Elijah" was composed for and produced at the meeting of 1846, conducted by himself; and, had he lived, the festival of 1849 would have included, under the same advantage, his oratorio of "Christus," of which only a few detached portions were left, in manuscript, at his death in 1847. Besides the production of "Elijah," the first efficient performance of the same composer's "St. Paul" (in 1837) and the earliest hearing in England of his "Lobgesang," or "Hymn of Praise" (in 1840), took place at Birmingham. It was at the festival of 1855 that Sir M. Costa produced his first oratorio, "Eli"—his "Naaman" having been brought out at that of 1864.

English musicians have not been neglected by the Birmingham authorities—the cantata, "The Bride of Dunkerron," by Mr. H. Smart, and that of "Kenilworth," by Mr. Arthur Sullivan, having both been commissioned for and produced at the festival last referred to; the next occasion, in 1857, having brought forward Sir W. Sterndale Bennett's sacred cantata, "The Woman of Samaria," and Mr. J. F. Barnett's setting of "The Ancient Mariner;" another cantata, "Paradise and the Peri," by the last-named gentleman, having been produced at the festival of 1870—other specialties at which were an "Ode to Shakespeare," by Dr. Stewart, and Dr. Ferdinand Hiller's cantata, "Nala and Damayanti."

Of the three new works produced at the festival which has just terminated we shall speak specifically in the order of their hearing.

The proceedings were worthily inaugurated, on Tuesday morning, by a performance of "Elijah," the work which, as already shown, is so especially associated with these meetings, and has, therefore, been appropriately chosen for their commencement for some years past, this occasion having derived a special interest from its occurring exactly twenty-seven years after its original production here—on Aug. 26, 1846. That Tuesday's performance was a very fine one may readily be inferred from the fact of the principal solo-singers having been Mdlle. Titiens, Mesdames Lemmens-Sherrington, Patey, and Trebelli-Bettini; Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Mr. Santley, in association with the splendid chorus assembled here (upwards of 360 voices), and a fine orchestra of 140 performers—Mr. Stimpson having presided at the organ, as at many past festivals.

The concert of Tuesday evening brought forward one of the new works commissioned and composed for the festival—Signor Schira's cantata, entitled "The Lord of Burleigh." The text for this work has been written by Mr. Desmond L. Ryan, who has made no use of Tennyson's well-known poem bearing the same title, but has merely taken the traditional incident on which that is founded, and used it as a basis for a series of pieces, solo and choral. Besides many miscellaneous vocal compositions, Signor Schira will be remembered as having produced a grand romantic opera, "Niccolo de' Lapi," at Her Majesty's Theatre, in the season of 1863. In his present work the composer has produced some light and pretty vocal music, among the most effective solo pieces having been the recitative and aria, "A simple village maid," assigned to Marian (Mdlle. Titiens); a song for Constance (Madame Trebelli), "Around a bower," one for Cecil, "The grey dawn steals," given by Mr. Rigby; and a characteristic air, "Hurrah! hurrah!" for Trueman (Lord Burleigh's steward), sung by Mr. Santley. Among the best of the choral pieces may be specified the chorus of reapers which follows the overture, the choruses of villagers, and that in which the astonished village bride is welcomed to the home of her noble husband. The unaccompanied trio, "O'er seas of life," and the quartet, "How changed her state," had to be repeated. The cantata was conducted by the composer. The second part of Tuesday evening's concert consisted of a miscellaneous selection, in the course of which Rossini's fine "Song of the Titans"—for choral bass voices and orchestral accompaniment—was performed for the first time in England, among other features of this portion of the programme having been Mdlle. Albani's effective singing of the scena from "Lucia" and "The Last Rose of Summer." This portion of the concert was conducted by Sir M. Costa, as was the morning performance. The Duke of Edinburgh was present on each occasion.

The principal event of the festival, as regards novelty, took place on Wednesday morning, when Mr. Arthur Sullivan's new oratorio, "The Light of the World," was produced. The "argument" prefixed to the text states that "the intention has not been to convey the spiritual idea of the Saviour, as in 'The Messiah,' or to recount the sufferings of Christ, as in the 'Passions-Musik,' but to set forth the human aspect of the life of our Lord on earth, exemplifying it by some of the actual incidents in his career which bear specially upon his attributes of Preacher."

The oratorio commences with a "prologue chorus," which is followed by an instrumental introduction; the overture proper being reserved for the commencement of the second part. Throughout the work the choral and orchestral writing is by far more effective than the solo vocal music. Several of the choruses produced a marked impression, two having been repeated by an intimation from the president (the Earl of Shrewsbury)—these were "I will pour my spirit" and the chorus of children, "Hosanna" (a masterly combination of the ancient and modern styles)—a third repetition having been the unaccompanied quartet, "Yea, though I walk." The principal solo music is that which is especially associated with the Saviour, distinguished by a sombre accompaniment of violas, violoncellos, corno-inglese, clarinet, corno di bassetto, fagotto, and contra-fagotto. In these passages, all of a declamatory kind, Mr. Santley's fine delivery was a conspicuous feature of the performance. The soprano solos were finely sung by Mlle. Titiens, whose principal effects were produced in the airs, "My soul doth magnify" and "Tell ye the daughters of Zion." The contralto music was assigned to Madame Trebelli-Bettini, who gave great expression to the pathetic solos, "In Rama," "Weep ye not," and "God shall wipe away." The principal tenor music is scarcely of sufficient importance for so great an artist as Mr. Sims Reeves, whose airs, "Refrain thy voice" and "If ye be risen," with other incidental passages, gained every advantage from his fine delivery. In other portions of the tenor music Mr. Cummings sang with good effect. At the end of the first part the president rose and addressed Mr. Sullivan (who conducted), saying that he believed that the audience, like himself, would gladly have heard more repetitions than those which were made, but for a wish not to impede the regular progress of the oratorio. The close of the work was followed by loud and general applause. The Duke of Edinburgh was again present at the performance of Wednesday morning.

A composition of such importance can scarcely fail to gain a speedy hearing in London, when further opportunity will be offered for comment on its merits. In the mean time Mr. Sullivan will probably make such revisions and retrenchments as will tend to the condensation and improved effect of the oratorio.

The concert of Wednesday evening consisted of a miscellaneous selection, in the course of which a "National Hymn" by Rossini was given for the first time, with much effect. It is written for baritone solo, chorus, and double orchestra. This brilliant and tuneful piece is one of the many posthumous works left by Rossini. The solo portion, in Wednesday evening's performance, was finely sung by Mr. Santley.

Comment on the remaining performances must be reserved for next week. Thursday morning was appropriated to "The Messiah;" the programme of Thursday evening's concert included Mr. Randegger's new cantata, "Fridolin," and a miscellaneous selection. Yesterday (Friday) morning were to be given Spohr's cantata, "God, thou art great," Haydn's "Imperial Mass," two posthumous choruses by Rossini (for the first time), a selection from Handel's "Israel in Egypt," &c.; and on the same evening the festival was to close with the last-named composer's "Judas Maccabeus."

THEATRES.

In the present lull of dramatic enterprise our attention is invited to the kindred entertainments of our lecture-halls. There is the Polytechnic, where Mr. J. B. Malden treats us with a lively and graphic description of Vienna and its Exhibition, which, in its way, is a marvel of completeness and lucidity. After hearing his lecture we seem to know all about the place, its buildings and its inhabitants, together with their manners and opinions. The series of views now exhibiting, which are really wonders, are shortly to be supplemented by others which it is promised shall be still more astonishing.

At the Egyptian Hall we have a new conjuror, Dr. Lynn, who casts into shade all previous prestidigitators. He is one of that class of wonder-workers who start free of any paraphernalia, and trust to their unarmed fingers for the surprising effects they produce. We cannot trace the source of his tricks, nor tell how a flower-pot gives forth from the mould contained within it every variety of flower at the demand of the stultified spectator. It were folly to attempt a description of the tricks, especially since the feeling produced is not in the trick itself, its novelty, or its nature, but in the entire absence of any visible means for its production. One of the most striking is the confinement of an Indian chief in a sack and box, from which he is ultimately delivered without unlocking the box or removing the cords. Those fond of conjuring cannot do better than witness the unparalleled doings of this arch-professor.

FINE ARTS.

The autumn exhibition of the Royal Birmingham Society of Artists opened on Saturday last. The collection is of more than ordinary excellence. Among the principal features of the exhibition are "The Forced Baptism of the Moors," by Mr. Long; two large cattle pictures by Mr. H. W. B. Davis, "The Panic" and "Summer Time;" "The Longships' Lighthouse" and a large "Sunset" landscape by Mr. Brett; "Summer Showers," by Mr. Vicat Cole; "The Bonxie, Shetland," and "Fishing by Proxy," by Mr. Hook; and works by Messrs. Pettie, Watts, H. Dawson, J. T. Linnell, Smart, Sant, Alma-Tadema, Dobson, &c. Among local artists who exhibit are Messrs. Burt, Radcliffe, Baker, Pratt, Steeple, and H. Harris.

Arrangements are, we understand, made for exhibiting at Brooklyn as well as New York the collection of English water-colour drawings now being formed for exhibition in the American metropolis.

During the Antwerp fêtes last week the King of the Belgians visited the room in the Hôtel de Ville which is embellished with the famous frescoes illustrative of Flemish history by the late Baron Leys; and also the vestibule of the Musée with the more recent decorations illustrative of the historical art school of Flanders and its influence by M. de Keyser. Both these important series of wall-paintings have been described in our pages. His Majesty was also present at the opening of the triennial Exhibition of Fine Arts, some account of which we gave last week; the King likewise attended the inauguration of a statue to Leys.

Death has been very busy lately among the French artists. Since the demise of M. Conder, already announced, the following are deceased:—M. Chantreuil, landscape-painter, a distinguished pupil of Corot; M. P. d'Oubri, another landscapist of promise, who died, at the early age of twenty-eight, from congestion of the brain, occasioned by excessive application to his art; M. Clodion Roux, who met his death in attempting to clear a crevasse in the Alps; M. Georges Drouin, who died from imprudently inhaling an overdose of chloroform applied to the face in a handkerchief in order to relieve toothache; and the sculptor Auguste Poitevin, some of whose works figure in the present International Exhibition.

The number of visitors to the London International Exhibition this year has greatly declined. The Metropolitan Railway Directors state that 91,000 fewer people used the South Kensington station this year than during May, June, and July of last year.

The monument of Victory at Berlin included among the commemorative frescoes with which it is embellished one representing the German Princes offering the Imperial crown to the Emperor William at Versailles. This particular design has, however, been altered at the Emperor's special command.

LAW AND POLICE.

Mr. Saint, of the Midland Circuit, has been appointed Revising Barrister for the Warwickshire division, in succession to the late Mr. Serjeant O'Brien; and Mr. Hugh Cowie, of the Home Circuit, has been appointed Recorder of Maldon and Saffron Walden, Essex.

At the Liverpool Assizes, on Thursday week, Mr. C. Lamont, glass merchant, Liverpool, obtained a verdict against the London and North-Western Railway Company awarding him £1500—in addition to a sum of £400 previously paid to him, and his medical, hotel, and other expenses—for injuries he sustained in the Kirtlebridge collision, in October last. An application to reduce the damages was refused by Mr. Justice Quain. Yesterday week £1400 was awarded to Mr. Jepson as compensation for damages received on the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway.—An award has been made of £1000 as compensation to the widow of a Chorley collier who was killed by an accident on the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway; and £200 to a Preston publican, named Banks, as compensation for injuries received in a collision on the same line.

The trial of the Tichborne claimant on a charge of perjury is proceeding. Some particulars are given elsewhere in connection with an illustration.

At the Central Criminal Court the ex-Confederate officer Williamson, charged with sending threatening letters to Mr. Rosenbaum, has been sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment.—Mr. Commissioner Kerr has had before him the case of the Rev. John Berrington, upwards of sixty years of age, who described himself as a clergyman of the Church of England and a graduate of the Universities of Cambridge and Aberdeen, and who was indicted for obtaining £67 9s. from Mr. Henry Newton, £50 from Mr. Charles Jarvis Humpherson, and £50 from Miss Susan Middleton by false pretences, and with intent to defraud. Another indictment charged him with forgery, but this was withdrawn. He pleaded not guilty. The prisoner was found guilty, and was sentenced to fifteen years' penal servitude.—William Ives and George Pollard, of the respective ages of twenty-two and twenty-four years, have been convicted of assaulting Edward Smith, a tramway-car driver, whom they beat with a loaded bludgeon. Ives was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and to receive forty lashes; and Pollard, who is an old offender, to fifteen years' penal servitude, and to receive fifteen lashes.—William Williamson, for a libel on Mr. Joseph Augustus Levien, was sentenced to a year's imprisonment. The libel was a letter imputing to Mr. Levien that he had caused the death of a man named Cooper.—Menassia Parsek, the Persian, who pleaded guilty to the charge of endeavouring to procure the engraving of plates for the purpose of fabricating Russian ten-rouble notes, has been sentenced to seven years' penal servitude.—Lewis Taylor, for a robbery with violence at Muswell-hill, was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude and five years' subsequent police supervision, and to be twice flogged, receiving each time twenty lashes with the "cat."—The trial of the four Americans for the recent forgeries on the Bank of England has ended in the conviction of all the prisoners, and they have been sentenced by the Judge to the highest penalty admissible for their offence—that of penal servitude for life. Some particulars of this remarkable case are given elsewhere in connection with an illustration of the prisoners in court. Fresh interest has been imparted to the case by the discovery of what is reported to be a deep-laid scheme for securing the escape of the prisoners from Newgate. Four warders are implicated, one of whom has been arrested, the others being suspended while further investigations are pursued. Owen Norton was found guilty at Guildhall, on Thursday, for conveying letters from prisoners in Newgate and other breaches of the prison discipline, and Alderman Lusk inflicted the full penalties—the forfeiture of his situation and all wages due, and to pay a fine of £10, or, in default, three months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

Elizabeth Wolseley and Mary Ann Allen, both residing in St. Luke's, have been sentenced at Clerkenwell Police Court to two months' imprisonment for "telling fortunes."

Two prosecutions under the Adulteration of Food Act came before the police courts on Monday. At Westminster George Rice, of 4, Westbourne-street, Piccadilly, was charged with selling adulterated coffee. It was proved that a $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. of coffee purchased at the defendant's shop contained from 25 to 30 per cent of chicory. The defendant said he was young in business, and did not know it was an offence. He was fined 45s., and 12s. costs. At Southwark, Charles Johnson, grocer, of 141, Kent-street, was summoned for selling mustard adulterated with flour and turmeric. The defendant said the article was purchased from the makers, and he did not know it was adulterated. Mr. Partridge informed him that if he had bought the article as the best and genuine mustard he would have right of action against the makers, or he could proceed under the Act of Parliament. The defendant hoped the magistrate would not be hard upon him. Mr. Partridge said there was little justice shown to the public if such cases were lightly passed over. The defendant had rendered himself liable to a penalty of £20. He would, however, have to pay only a fine of £5 and 4s. 6d. costs.—Three milkmen were prosecuted at the Southwark Police Court, on Tuesday, for adding water to their milk. Each was ordered to pay a fine of £5 and the costs.

Two offenders against the Education Act—William Hook and Sarah Robinson—have, in default of payment of fines, been sent to prison for five days, from Lambeth.

John Britt, a convict who escaped from Pentonville Prison three months ago, has been apprehended at Birmingham.

Some naval officers concerned in a row at Plymouth Theatre on Saturday night were placed before the magistrates on Monday. Lieutenant the Hon. E. Needham, of the Agincourt, was fined £12; Lieutenant Cornwall, of the Britannia, Mr. Gilbert Cornwall, and Lieutenants Gough and May, of the Hercules, £10 each; and Lieutenant Dixon, of the Cambridge, £5.

Charles Edward Butt, charged with the murder of Miss Phipps at Arlingham, in Gloucestershire, has been arrested at Abergavenny and committed for trial.—The dead body of a policeman named May was found in a field close to the turnpike gate at the village of Snodland, near Rochester, on Sunday. His head was frightfully disfigured, and there were signs of a struggle in the road. A coroner's jury has returned a verdict of "Wilful murder against some person or persons unknown."—A memorial, signed by 17,000 persons, has been forwarded to the Home Secretary, praying that the life of Edward Abbott, under sentence of death for the murder of his child at Totterdown, near Bristol, may be spared.—On Monday night a farmer was barbarously murdered near O'Callaghan's Mills, in the eastern and most lawless part of the county of Clare.—Sub-Inspector Thomas Hartley Montgomery was hanged within the precincts of Omagh Gaol, on Tuesday, for the murder of Mr. Glasse, the manager of a bank at Newtownstewart, in June, 1871.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The valuable musical library of the late Earl of Aylesford was sold on Monday by Messrs. Puttick and Simpson. The collection included many important choral and instrumental works of great rarity.

Mr. J. O. Halliwell's discovery of documents relating to the Globe and Blackfriars Theatres, in which Shakspeare was believed to have been financially interested, has furnished an interesting communication to the Athenæum. Mr. Halliwell has selected passages which prove that the dramatist was simply a member of Burbage's company.

Last week 2189 births and 1546 deaths were registered in London. After making due allowance for increase of population, the births were 36 below, while the deaths exceeded by 23, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The annual death-rate from all causes, which in the two previous weeks had been equal to 27 and 25 per 1000, further declined last week to 24.

Mr. Thomas Holloway, the proprietor of the well-known pills and ointment, has begun upon St. Anne's-heath, Surrey, the erection of the asylum for the reception of lunatic patients, which he intends to present to the British nation. The site of the asylum is opposite the Virginia Water station of the Staines and Wokingham branch of the London and South-Western Railway. The asylum will cost £100,000, and is intended to accommodate about 400 patients.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers last week was 93,203, of whom 33,394 were in workhouses and 64,809 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 13,540, 20,470, and 29,447 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 608, of whom 411 were men, 147 women, and 50 children under sixteen.

The death is announced of M. Fenwick de Porquet, whose name has been known for upwards of half a century in connection with French and other foreign scholastic works. He died in London on Wednesday morning, at the age of seventy-seven. He was a son of Captain Fenwick, an English officer. When a young man he crossed the Channel, and began his career as a teacher of languages, adopting his mother's name—de Porquet. During the last fifty years he wrote and published upwards of seventy works—the earliest and best-known being "Le Tresor," which has long been a textbook in English schools.

The annual meeting—which is a fête—of the friends of the Orphanage for Fatherless Boys at Stockwell took place on Tuesday. A large number of those interested in the institution gathered in the buildings and grounds, which were ornamented with flags and Chinese lanterns; and a social tea on a large scale was partaken of between five and six o'clock. At seven the meeting began in the spacious hall, which was filled to overflowing. The chair was taken by Mr. C. H. Spurgeon, the president and executive founder of the institution. There are now resident in the orphanage 218 boys; there is no debt, and the endowment fund amounts to £25,700.

The annual election of children into the Merchant Seamen's Orphan Asylum, at Snarebrook, took place, on Monday, at the Cannon-street Hotel. This excellent charity has since its institution in 1827 provided homes for upwards of 1100 children, the destitute offspring of British merchant seamen who had lost their lives at sea or otherwise. This asylum is doing a great work, and at present protects, clothes, feeds, and cares for 230 poor children, and only increased support from the public is wanted to enable the committee to take in more orphans. Mr. Henry Green, the treasurer, occupied the chair, and after a few remarks declared the poll to be opened, and the election of twenty-one children, from a long list, was proceeded with.

The eighth summer flower show of the East London Amateur Floricultural Society, Bow, was held, on Monday and two following days, in the playground of the Grammar School, Bow, the use of which was given by the Rev. Mr. Perrott, headmaster. The flowers are from the neighbourhood of Old Ford, Bow, and Poplar, are all grown by amateurs; and it is the opinion of the judges that the exhibition in every respect manifests a steady advance upon previous competitions. The flowers, which embraced a great variety, were artistically arranged. In the miscellaneous classes of flowers the principal prizes were awarded to Messrs. C. Parker, J. Ennes, C. Ennes, Hanson, Hare, Wordley, and Wendon; whilst in schedule B open prizes were awarded—five to Mr. Hill and one to Mr. C. Parker. There was an exquisite assortment of table decorations, in which the taste of the lady amateurs was conspicuous.

The bodies of two sisters, Mrs. Everett, of Grove-road, and Mrs. Constable, of Seven Sisters-road, Holloway, who had been missing for two months, and who it was feared had met with foul play, were discovered, on Thursday week, half buried amid the ruins of Alexandra Palace. They had wandered unnoticed into the ruins, and were buried under some portion of the masonry which suddenly gave way.—Another mysterious disappearance has been cleared up. Mr. James Stanton, aged forty, who was in the employ of a firm in Aldersgate-street, received his wages on the evening of the 15th inst., and was never again seen alive. Some days afterwards his body was found hanging by a rope from a tree in Seymour-road, Wandsworth. In a pocket, written with a blue pencil on a portion of a weekly paper, was found the following:—"Dear Wife,—I hardly know what I am doing. My health is so very frail. No food since last Friday—my wages lost. I leave all the things to you, for you must get married to a better husband than I have been, because you are too good for me. Farewell. I have been hard up day and night—no food, no grub. Farewell.—BAD HUSBAND." At the inquest it was stated that the deceased had suffered from sunstroke in India during the mutiny, and had lately been strange in his manner. A verdict of "Suicide while in a state of temporary insanity" was returned.

THE PERONELLE LIFESHIP.

With a bright blue sky overhead, a broad expanse of clear water, an unlimited display of gay-coloured bunting, a brilliant gathering of interested spectators, and "a virgin hull of faultless symmetry;" the launch of a new vessel is about as pretty a sight as can well be witnessed. All these adjuncts were very happily combined last Saturday at Itchen (near Southampton), as the Peronelle glided gracefully from the stocks amidst the plaudits of the bystanders. It has been observed that one launch closely resembles another, and that the description of one is equally applicable to all, and merely needs the variation of time and place. But in the present instance more than ordinary interest attached to the incident we record, as the Peronelle is the first vessel of her class ever yet constructed and solely designed for the humane purpose of affording ready and efficient aid in cases of disaster at sea, and to rescue lives from wrecks. It cannot, of course, be anticipated that much service can be rendered in this way by any craft, however skilfully designed and strongly constructed, unless provided with steam-power. This advantage the Peronelle does not yet possess; but her designer, Captain Hans Busk, feels confident that as soon as the undertaking upon which he has long been engaged is more generally known, there will be no hesitation on the part of the British public to provide not only the requisite funds to supply the schooner with engines and screw, but also to enable Captain Busk to equip and endow suitably half a dozen—or, may we not say, half a score—of these noble life-ships, each commissioned to cruise off those portions of our seaboard where wrecks are known to recur with fatal precision during each successive gale.

THE PRINCE OF WALES ON THE BREAKWATER AT HOLYHEAD, OPENING THE NEW HARBOUR OF REFUGE.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT THE LIGHTHOUSE ON THE HOLYHEAD BREAKWATER.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AT PENRHOS, NEAR HOLYHEAD.

They are not intended in any way to supersede or interfere with the operations of the 233 life-boats belonging to the National Institution, and already judiciously stationed around the coast. The life-ship, on the contrary, takes up the work where the life-boat is necessarily compelled to leave off—or rather, perhaps, may be said to undertake duties which an open boat impelled by oars only would be altogether powerless to discharge.

It is obvious that a life-boat, when her crew have become aware of a casualty requiring their intervention, must of necessity, in the majority of cases, be launched from a lee-shore, in the teeth of a heavy gale, and consequently at the greatest possible disadvantage. At a time, too, when moments are of incalculable value, they have to urge their way laboriously and painfully, by dint of muscular effort, through surge and breakers, unless happily a tug be at hand to enable them to gain the required offing. Captain Hans Busk, whose experience at sea extends over seven-and-twenty years, having himself witnessed many terrible disasters, on occasions where no aid from shore could possibly have been available, was induced to design a form of hull which should combine far greater weatherly qualities and more power of contending with a stormy sea than any open boat could possibly have, together with the immense additional advantage of engines of 70 or 80 horse power, capable of driving her resistlessly through any waves.

About four years since he made a forcible public "appeal on behalf of the mariners of all nations," which met with a ready response, the Greek Consul, Mr. Michael Spartali, heading the subscription-list with the munificent donation of £200, Captain Hans Busk contributing an equal amount. Baroness Burdett-Coutts, his Grace the Duke of Wellington, Major his countrymen to carry it to a successful issue. He has already expended £100 in addition to his original gift, and before the grand experiment can be satisfactorily and practically tested at least £2000 more must be supplied to furnish boilers and engines, nor must the fact be blinked that when provided with a suitable picked crew each of the life-ships in question will have to be maintained at a weekly expense of £20 for wages alone, and that sum is irrespective of the cost of coals, wear and tear, and casualties.

Messrs. Coutts are the bankers to the Steam Life-Ship fund, and it is to be hoped that the scheme so happily and successfully inaugurated on Saturday at Southampton will be found, by a prompt and substantial increase of the present very slender balance in their hands, to receive, as it assuredly deserves, the earnest support of all classes of the community.

In addition to the pecuniary contributions handed to the committee, it is a gratifying fact that a variety of articles indispensable for the due equipment of the Peronelle have been received, to the value, in the aggregate, of nearly £250. Thus, Messrs. Clifford and Son, of Fazeley-street Mills, Birmingham, have presented copper sheathing worth £20; Messrs. May and Co., of Cowes, a complete stove and apparatus for the fore-castle, worth £15; Mr. Henry Hughes, of Fenchurch-street, supplies a handsome binnacle, complete in all respects; Messrs. Dolland, telescopes and instruments worth £12; Mr. Robert Stainbank and Messrs. Vickers, of Birmingham, each a beautifully-finished and fine-toned bell; Messrs. Frederick Edgington and Mr. Shodden, of Liverpool, sets of signal flags; Mr. Streeter, of Conduit-street, Messrs. Wales and McCulloch, of Ludgate-hill, and Mr. Benzie, of Cowes, marine timepieces for the "companion" hatch and captain's cabins respectively. Similar acceptable donations have arrived from Messrs. Underwood and Farrant, of the Haymarket; Messrs. Bailey and Pegg, Bankside; Messrs. T. Walker and Son, of Birmingham; Messrs. Martin, Messrs. Dyer and Robertson, Messrs. Browett, of Coventry, and other benefactors.

THE IRONCLAD SQUADRON SALUTING AT THE HOLYHEAD BREAKWATER.

Wallace Carpenter, and Mr. Robert Loder each gave £50, and the total amount of donations up to the present time reached nearly £1000—a small sum, certainly, with which to attempt the construction of a 70-ton steamer! Captain Busk, however, determined to persevere with the good work he had undertaken, relying implicitly on the hearty co-operation of

THE NEW LIFE-SHIP PERONELLE.

OFF THE MOUTH OF THE BIDASSOA, SPAIN.

Price-Lists free by post.—The WENHAM LAKE ICE COMPANY, 125, Strand, London (corner of Savoy-street).

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.

BOOSEY and CO.'S ENGLISH
HARMONIUMS, French Harmoniums, and Wood's American
Organs. Illustrated lists free.—24, Holles-street, W

MAPPIN BROTHERS, Manufacturers
of
SILVER PLATE CUTLERY.
Tea and Coffee Services.
Tea Trays and Waiters.
Spoon- and Forks.
Dishes and Dish Covers.
Eggspears, Fruit Stands,
&c. &c.
Ivory Table Knives and Forks.
Desert Knives and Forks.
Fish do. do.
Fish Carvers
Canisters of Cutlery,
&c. &c.
The Stock they keep in London, at 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge, also at 220, Regent-street, W., is very large and well selected, and of the best quality and design. It is sent direct from their own works, at Bakers-hill, in Sheffield. Illustrated Catalogues sent free by post.
Address 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge; or, 220, Regent-street, W.
Established A.D. 1810 at Sheffield.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR
If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use
"The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in ever-one Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair chemically beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the old and the white of the glands are not decayed. Certificate from Dr. Vermaun on every bottle, with full particulars. Ask any Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," prepared by H. C.
GALLUP, 403, Oxford-street, London.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For scurvy, scurvy, skin and blood diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 3d. each; and in Cases of Six Bottles, 11s. each; of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 27 or 133 stamps by the Proprietor, F. J. Clarke, Chemist, Lincoln.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

TAPESTRIES FOR WALL DECORATION.

WORKMEN AT THE EGYPTIAN PAVILION.

The Extra Supplement.

THE PICTURE.

With the water-colour drawing we have engraved M. Alma-Tadema made his debut as a member of the Old Water-Colour Society in the last exhibition of that body. The society has made a valuable acquisition in its new member; for, if he is not quite so much at home in water colours as in oil—or, at all events, if this particular example was not quite so brilliant and powerful, technically, as some of the artist's oil pictures—yet he brings to whatever medium he chooses to adopt a trained ability in figure-draughtsmanship and a degree of general artistic and archaeological knowledge that are rare in our schools, more especially, perhaps, among our water-colour painters. Water-colour painting, by-the-way, is not new to the artist. We have seen works in this vehicle by him which were executed many years back, when he worked more directly under the influence of his master, the late Baron Leys. In the present example, as in many of the painter's oil pictures, we are carried back by the costumes, architectural and other accessories, to the old Roman times. An aged connoisseur and a beauty of the antique Roman type are seated inspecting a picture, still on its easel; a young man, possibly the artist himself, stands behind them. "The Picture" to which the title points is painted on a tablet, or rather on tablets, of wood, for, as we infer from the bolt at the back, it is constructed in leaves, to fold together. There is authority for this, as we need hardly say, M. Alma-Tadema being rarely at fault in his archaeology, and there is an analogous arrangement in the ancient Roman ivory carvings known as Consular diptychs. The picture under inspection may be supposed to be painted in tempera, or in the kind of fresco practised in antiquity, many samples of which, from Pompeii and elsewhere, are preserved in museums. It is more probable, however, that M. Alma-Tadema had in his mind one of the encaustic pictures by Pansias or some other celebrated painter, which were purchased at enormous prices by rich Roman collectors. To suppose this to be an encaustic picture is more suggestive of the wealth and luxury of ancient Rome than the less perishable decorative wall paintings, remains of which Time has spared to us; because such works were regarded in much the same way that "high-class easel pictures" and "cabinet gems" are regarded by modern collectors, dealers, and auctioneers: they were the Turners, Meissonniers, and Fortunies of the day. Moreover, it is highly probable that the ancient method of encaustic or wax painting resembled in lustre, depth, and transparency our modern method in oils. Wax has indeed been used as a vehicle by modern artists, though generally with disastrous results, particularly in works by Reynolds, some of which, from its injudicious employment, are slipping from the canvas. The accounts of the ancient encaustic painting are confused and contradictory; yet Sir Charles Eastlake, in his "Materials for a History of Oil Painting," has traced at least two modes with a clearness which leaves no doubt that the results must have been similar to those of oil painting. In one, brushes were used; in the other, a metal instrument called a rhabdion or castrum, which may have nearly a counterpart in the palette-knife as used by many modern artists. The colours, which were numerous, were prepared in cakes or sticks or pots, and always dissolved by heat, as implied by the word "encaustic," which strictly means "burning in." For further information on this interesting subject we must, however, refer to the valuable work already quoted.

THE LABOUR QUESTION.

The threatened lock-out in the engineering trade has been averted by a reference to arbitration. Mr. J. A. Russell, Q.C., Judge of the Manchester County Court, is to act as arbitrator.

A strike has taken place in the Huddersfield Gasworks.

A trades' demonstration on a large scale took place in Edinburgh, on Saturday, the object being to agitate for the repeal of the Criminal Law Amendment Act. The procession took the character of a symbolical pageant, many of the devices being very elaborate and effective.

In the Rhondda Vale the house-coal colliers, numbering some 4000 men, have been on strike during the past three weeks, in consequence of the refusal of the masters to pay the same rate of wages for the imperial ton as that which they had been paying for the long ton of 22 cwt.

A meeting of the painters and decorators in the employ of Mr. Crace, of Wigmore-street, and Messrs. Jackson and Graham, of Oxford-street, was held, on Monday, to receive the report of the deputation appointed to wait upon those firms to effect, if possible, an amicable arrangement as to a required advance of a halfpenny per hour. Mr. George Shipton, on behalf of the deputation, having stated that both the above firms had acceded to the demands of the men, the following resolution was adopted, amidst loud cheering:—"That this meeting considers the terms offered by Mr. Crace and Messrs. Jackson and Graham to be satisfactory and acceptable; and that the best thanks of the society are due to the deputation."

The East-End carmen have held a mass meeting at Brick-lane, Bethnal-green, to ventilate their grievances. They complain of having to work eighteen to twenty hours a day for 3s. 6d., less fines and incidental expenses for broken nosebags or damaged sacks. The usual resolutions were passed, and a number of men joined the Carmen's Association.

The executive and consultative committees of the National Agricultural Labourers' Union held a meeting, on Monday night, at Leamington, to wish Mr. Arch success in his mission to America. Mr. Archibald Campbell, a Warwickshire justice, presided, and expressed his disapproval of the mission to Ireland, which he considered a great mistake, questioning also the expediency of the mission to America. Cheers having been given for Mr. Arch and his mission, Dr. Langford expressed the sympathy of Birmingham men, and declared that one outgrowth of the movement would be the extension and equalisation of the county franchise, which must inevitably be granted. Mr. Arnold and Mr. Jesse Collins, of Birmingham, also spoke. The latter wanted the land question settled, so that labourers might be here a land-possessing peasantry, instead of emigrating. He believed that Mr. Arch's visit to America would lead to emigration and to an alteration of those laws which now render emigration necessary. Mr. Arch, in responding, referred to the opposition offered to the movement by farmers, and said the Queen, in refusing the request of her labourers for additional wages, had set the country a bad example; and if she did not value her honest labourers, then he would take them to a country where their labour would be valued and appreciated. He demanded some land for working men to cultivate; and, referring to his visit to America, said he must not be tied down to any time, because he was determined to emancipate his fellow-men, if he remained away five years, provided he found there freedom, plenty, and prosperity. Several other persons addressed the meeting.

WHERE OUR EMIGRANTS GO.

From the report of the Emigration Commissioners for the year 1872 it appears that the number of emigrants who left the United Kingdom in that year was 295,213, which was the largest emigration since 1864, and exceeded the average of the seventeen years since that date by 109,971. These figures include foreigners, of whom there were 79,023 in 1872.

It is of interest to observe the destination of the 295,213 emigrants departing from the United Kingdom in 1872.

As many as 233,747, nearly four-fifths of the whole number, went to the United States—140,969 males and 92,778 females. There went to the Australian colonies 15,876—9068 males and 6808 females; to New Zealand 6616, to Victoria 5269, to Queensland 2380, to New South Wales 1102. To British North America, 32,205—20,092 males and 12,113 females; 29,984 to Ontario and Quebec, 2043 to Nova Scotia. To the West Indies 2231—1518 males and 713 females. To India, 1841; Straits Settlements, 76; Central and South America, the large number of 6411; to the Cape of Good Hope, 1456; to Natal, 386; to China, 349; to Japan, 13; to Western Africa, St. Helena, and Madeira, 290; to Malta, 141; to the Falklands, 64; to Mexico, 63; to Mauritius, 56; to Eastern Africa, 7; to Aden, 1.

Of the 68,951 "general labourers," 62,494 went to the United States; of the 2490 agricultural labourers, gardeners, &c., only 584 went to the United States, 286 to British North America, and as many as 1350 to Australasia; of the 9170 farmers, 7562 went to the United States, as many as 1215 to British North America, 334 to Australasia; of the 23,193 mechanics, 16,570 went to the United States and 6454 to British North America; of the 5569 miners and quarrymen, 4977 went to the United States, 446 to Australasia, 68 to British North America; of the 299 coal-miners, 290 went to the United States; of the 1001 clerks, only 481 went to the United States, 215 to Australasia, 90 to British North America; of the 501 (male) domestic servants, 390 went to the United States, 42 to British North America, 40 to Australasia. Of the 13,838 female domestic and farm servants, 10,925 went to the United States, 643 to British North America, as many as 2018 to Australasia; of the 1470 gentlewomen and governesses no more than 811 went to the United States, 306 to British North America, 121 to Australasia.

Of the 118,190 emigrants whose native country was England 82,339 went to the United States, 16,691 to British North America, 11,611 to Australasia, 7549 to other parts; of the 19,541 emigrants of Scotch nationality 12,691 went to the United States, 4254 to British North America, 1571 to Australasia, 1025 to other parts; of the 72,763 emigrants of Irish nationality 66,752 went to the United States, 3437 (the great majority embarking at Londonderry) to British North America, 2066 to Australasia, 508 to other parts; of the 79,023 foreigners emigrating through the ports of this country 68,137 went to the United States, 7805 to British North America, 610 to Australasia, 2471 to other parts. The nationality of the other emigrants, only a few in number, was not ascertained.

It seems from the immigration statistics of New York that there has been a slight decrease in the number of immigrants arriving at that port during the present year, from Jan. 1 to Aug. 1, as compared with the corresponding months of last year. The difference is, however, so small as scarcely to be worth consideration. In the first seven months of last year 185,673 immigrants arrived at New York; and in the first seven months of 1873—namely, to the 1st inst.—the numbers were 183,912, showing only a decrease of 1761 in the total number of arrivals. As usual, the two nations in Europe credited with the greatest amount of prosperity are those from which their children fly in the largest numbers. In the first seven months of 1872 the numbers of immigrants arriving in New York from Great Britain and Prussia were as follow:—England 22,811, Scotland 6637, Ireland 48,053, Isle of Man 116, Prussia 40,628. In the corresponding period of the present year the arrivals at New York were—from England, 21,437, Scotland 5744, Ireland 53,479, Isle of Man 119, Prussia 20,756. France, who, in spite of her troubles, has the happy knack of keeping her children at home, only contributed 1354 to the list of emigrants during the first seven months of 1872, and 1533 up to Aug. 1 of this year.

The "City of London" lioness in Bostock and Wombwell's menagerie gave birth to four cubs on Saturday at Kinross.

Mr. Fearnley, veterinary surgeon, Leeds, has been appointed principal of the Edinburgh Veterinary College.

While the workmen were engaged on the foundation of one of the piers at Taybridge works, Dundee, on Tuesday, the air-bell at the top burst, and out of fourteen men six were drowned.

Tuesday's Gazette contains the first list of awards to the exhibitors in the British section at the Vienna Exhibition, inserted by order of her Majesty's Commissioners.

The five gunners of the Royal Artillery who were concerned in the mutiny at Drake's Island, and were sentenced to five years' penal servitude each, have been ordered to be discharged.

The Musée de Cluny at Paris has received a bequest of some importance from the late M. Cottenot, consisting of objects of art, furniture, and armour. The armour lately belonged to the Soltykoff Collection, for some time past deposited in the Château de Pierrefonds, is to remain in that place.

The following is a list of the candidates for her Majesty's Indian Medical Service who were successful at the competitive examination held at Burlington House on the 11th inst.:—A. J. Willocks, J. Moloney, F. R. Swaine, C. W. S. Deakin, H. Allison, J. G. Collis, H. K. M'Kay, J. V. H. Wilkins, M. L. Bartholomew, P. Thompson, and R. C. Lucas.

The Himalaya troop-ship, Captain Grant, which arrived at Spithead on Monday night, came into harbour on Tuesday, with invalids from Cape Coast Castle. There were ten deaths during the passage. Fifty-seven men of the marines and marine artillery were sent to Haslar. Among the passengers was Lieutenant-Colonel Wise, 2nd West India Regiment, lately in command at Cape Coast Castle, who has been invalided.

Lord Frederick Cavendish was, on Tuesday, re-elected, without opposition, for the northern division of the West Riding of Yorkshire. At Shaftesbury the nomination of Mr. Danby Seymour, Liberal candidate, and Mr. Bennett-Stanford, Conservative, took place, the polling being fixed for Friday. The Speaker's writ for the election of a member for Renfrewshire, in the room of Lord Aberdare (Mr. Bruce) is published in Tuesday's Gazette.

The corps forming the 2nd Administrative Battalion of Wilts Rifle Volunteers were inspected at Chippenham last Saturday by Colonel Parish, C.B. The corps which assembled were the 3rd Wilts (Malmesbury); 4th, Chippenham and Calne; 5th, Devizes; 7th, Market Lavington; 11th, New Swindon; 12th, Melksham; 15th, Wootton Bassett; 16th, Old Swindon; 17th, Marlborough; 18th, Highworth. Colonel Parish congratulated the battalion upon their efficiency, but noticed that the markers took up too much distance when the corps wheeled into line. The skirmishing had been especially good, and he should feel great pleasure in making a favourable report to the Commander-in-Chief.

Archæology of the Month.

Mr. W. C. Hazlitt is re-editing Blount's "Jocular Tenure."

A new edition of "Motherwell's Minstrelsy, Ancient and Modern," now become scarce, is announced as in the press.

The first volume of the "Monasticum Hibernicum," a history of the abbeys, priories, and other religious houses, will be issued in a few days by W. B. Kelly, of Dublin.

The trustees of the British Museum have declined to receive the Ayrton collection of Oriental MSS. upon the conditions of the bequest, and because the collection has no scientific value.

The Autobiography of Dr. Granville, whose practice was great in England, Russia, and the German spas, is announced for publication. Dr. Granville was a pupil of Volta, and obtained a diploma at the early age of nineteen.

At Rochester Cathedral have been discovered portions of the first cathedral, erected in the year 604, and two leaden coffins, one supposed to contain the remains of Ithamar, Bishop of Rochester, who died in 655.

The Wilberforce family, according to the Antiquary, No. 76, originally came from Wilberfoss, a village in the East Riding of Yorkshire, forming part of the ancient forest of Gathes, and known in former times as "Wild-boar Foss."

Considerable interest was excited at the Mold Eisteddfod, last week, by a communication from Mr. F. D. Watkins which affirmed that recent researches place beyond doubt that the Welsh language was known in the time of the Phrygians of Troy.

The Duke of Northumberland, we learn from Dr. Bruce, has given directions to have the map of ancient Northumberland, which was prepared under the auspices of the fourth Duke, engraved, with the view of forming a frontispiece to the "Lapidarium."

In the Antiquary for Aug. 23, No. 77, Mrs. Zenobia Cunningham states that no portrait of her late husband, Mr. Peter Cunningham, has ever been engraved or published; but we remember a portrait of him to have appeared in the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS for Feb. 23, 1856.

The discovery of the wall of a Roman basilica at Lyminge, in Kent, is among the results of excavations undertaken by Canon Jenkins. The remains have been brought to light a short distance from the church in which St. Ethelburga, a Northumbrian Princess, took the veil in the seventh century. The church itself is built on a Roman foundation.

The first volume of "Inscriptions de la France du Cinquième Siècle au Dix-huitième," is exclusively devoted to inscriptions collected in the old churches, abbeys, convents, collegiate schools, hospitals, and churchyards of Paris and its neighbourhood. The subsequent volumes will successively extend to the remaining parts of France.

Mr. Golding has printed the titles of seventeen scarce tracts from his library, most of them relating to Suffolk. We have also two letters of Fairfax; the correspondence between Bedell and Wadsworth, which was afterwards reprinted with alterations by Bishop Burnet; and the story of "the hunting of the foxes from New-Market and Triptoe Heaths to White-Hall," familiar to readers of Mr. Carlyle's "Cromwell."

Sir F. Madden's literary correspondence, ranging from 1816 to 1871, autograph letters from distinguished scholars, English and foreign, arranged in forty-six parcels, was sold by auction, the other day, at a shilling a parcel, to Mr. Waller, the well-known dealer in autographs. Yet these autographs were described as from "the most distinguished scholars" and "very valuable." At the same sale one lot of fourteen twopenny and sixpenny dialect tracts brought seven guineas. The collection of the late Keeper of our National MSS. contained 27,500 printed ballads and songs, in twenty-five vols. royal folio, and a large gathering of materials for a history of Hampshire and the Isle of Wight.

The mural paintings discovered last autumn in the Norman church of Kempley, in the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol, have been photographed. The ceiling and walls, on removing several coats of whitewash, were found covered with paintings, the general subject being the worship of Heaven. On the ceiling is a large figure of our Saviour, surrounded by the various subjects as described in Revelations iv. 4—Seraphim, the four living creatures, emblems of the Evangelist, seven candlesticks as the spirit of God, the sun, the moon, and the stars, a figure of St. Peter, and opposite one of the Blessed Virgins. Beneath, on the walls, are the twelve apostles seated on thrones, gazing upwards to the Saviour, with hands outstretched in attitudes of ecstasy and adoration. In the spay of one window of the nave, which had been blocked up, a capital subject was revealed—on one side the Archangel weighing a soul for judgment, on the other the figure of St. Anthony. The date of these paintings is not later than the twelfth century.

The Archaeological Institute and British Archaeological Association congresses have been illustrated and described in our Journal. The latter concluded by the excursionists visiting Westworth House and grounds, and inspecting the halls, their sculptures and ancestral and historical portraits, and the well-known portrait of Shakespeare, of very early date. The company then drove to Wharfedale Chase, and Lord Wharfedale pointed out to them the memorial of Sir Thomas Wortley, his ancestor, who died in 1510. His Lordship also exhibited Little John's bow, the dragon's den and collar associated with the Dragon of Wantley. Ecclesfield church was next visited. In the churchyard is buried Joseph Hunter, the historian of Hallamshire. At the concluding meeting, at the Cutlers' Hall, Mr. W. Gray-Birch gave an address on some costly illuminated MSS. from the magnificent collection of Mr. W. Bragge, F.S.A., of Sheffield. Mr. Roebuck, who was present, delivered the concluding address, in which, though confessing that he was not an archaeologist, he sketched the archaeologist's business and applied inquiries.—The Newark and Lichfield Architectural Association programme included visits to the beautiful church of St. Wolfran, Grantham; the notable church at Brant Broughton, and at Stanton—the latter a fellow of Nosenby and Heckington churches, as regards its fine Decorated sculptured chancel, Easter sepulchre, altar tombs, &c.; next, the collegiate church of Southwell, Nottingham (St. Mary's Church), Derby; and the fine Norman remains at Tutbury, romantic Ashbourne and Reynard's Cave, Mayfield, and the fine old glass at Norbury church; St. Mary's, at Stafford, and the cathedral at Lichfield.—The Suffolk and Essex Societies made a joint excursion this year in the valley of the Stour, assembling at Manningtree. The Essex division included visits to Lawford, East Bergholt, Dedham, and Great and Little Wenham.—The Kent Archaeological Society met in the district of Cranbrook. Loddenden, the ancient manor house of the Usborne family, was passed, and a halt was made at Staplehurst, where Mr. Robertson read a paper on the church. Fritenden church and the Roman remains were next visited, and then Sissinghurst Castle, and the Rev. F. Haslewood read a paper on the edifice; and Colonel Colomb read a paper on the Royal Rising in Kent in 1648, and Mr. Tarbutt on the cloth trade of Cranbrook.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Aug. 25.

It is generally admitted, even by Americans themselves, that the United States makes but a very poor show at the Vienna Exhibition. The great Republic, which invariably aims at appearing to advantage at these grand international gatherings, has not nearly so complete or so interesting a display as its more modest rival, Switzerland. A variety of causes has prevented American exhibitors from sending their goods to Vienna, but the recent scandalous disclosures concerning the conduct of the Commission originally appointed by General Grant form of themselves a sufficient excuse for the non-appearance of many of the leading commercial and manufacturing houses of the United States. On entering the American gallery from the park, the first object which strikes the attention, apart from the star-spangled banners and spread eagles with which the exhibits generally are liberally adorned, is a gigantic "drinking-bar," provided with innumerable taps and surmounted by the colossal statue of a woman of robust proportions holding in her hand a huge glass mug; while close at hand, appropriately enough, may be found a display of all the more noted American wines.

Half-way up the gallery one finds the organs of the Mason and Hamlin Organ Company, of Boston, and of Estey and Co., of Brattleboro', Vermont, which are, perhaps, the most attractive objects in the entire department, a large crowd invariably gathering round them when they are played of an afternoon. The Austrian ladies, who enjoy the reputation of having exceedingly small feet and of wearing the best-made boots in the world, find much amusement in the case of Mr. Edwin Burt, of New York, who exhibits certainly the most extraordinary ladies' boots and shoes that are to be found in the whole Exhibition. There are some of every possible tint, from bright emerald green to glaring salmon colour, all being elaborately adorned with gold lace and cord. If these boots were simply intended for the stage, one could very well understand their eccentric tints and adornments; but, as the exhibitor presents them to the public with the simple intimation that they are "ladies' boots," it is to be assumed that the belles of New York are in the habit of promenading down Broadway in similar extraordinary specimens of the bootmaking art. Scattered about the gallery will be found numerous and often important articles of textile fabrics; and an extensive and at times curious collection of photographs, sent from different parts of the United States, comprising alike admirable figure groups and portraits, as well as views of some of the most attractive scenery of which the great Republic can boast. High praise must be awarded to the complete and highly interesting display of documents, reports, plans, and drawings relative to the state of education in the United States. Views and plans will be found of all the more important educational establishments, such as the Compton and Franklin Colleges, together with full statistics concerning the state of public instruction in each province. Side by side with specimens of the pupils' work, Messrs. Remington, known all over the world as the inventors of the light and convenient Remington carbine, have a curious case made of horn inlaid in parts with ivory, in which specimens of the different firearms they manufacture are exhibited. Above, one finds, naturally enough, the inevitable spread eagle, with the proud motto, E pluribus unum, and the customary "stars and stripes;" while on one side of the case stands the comical-looking effigy of a soldier of the U.S. army in full regimentals, and in a most determined attitude, who grasps his Remington rifle with a firm hand; and on the other is the counterfeit presentation of a ferocious-looking American jack tar, in a similar defiant position. To the left of this gallery is a vast covered court, crowded with every description of sewing-machine, with one of its sides decorated with a series of graphic cartoons, delineating how pigs are stuck and cured at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Passing through the vestibule of the west portal into the opposite transverse gallery, one encounters a gigantic trophy formed of bales of Louisiana cotton, plentifully decorated with the stars and stripes, and ticketed all over with inscriptions, such as "good ordinary," "middling," "average," and "choice picked." A second trophy of Carolina cotton succeeds, in which one notices a couple of ploughs perched on pedestals formed of bales of cotton and surmounted by buffalo-horns. Beyond the cotton trophies will be found the exhibits of certain of the South American States, those of Venezuela coming first. This little Republic, which plentifully decorates its five or six stalls with the national escutcheon, on which figure a horse, a bullock, a castle, and a pair of scales, on fields of argent and azure, offers a creditable display of preserved meats and extracts of meat, with a not unimportant show of grain and goats' wool. San Salvador displays nothing worthy of notice; but the Brazilian empire has numerous noteworthy exhibits, among which may be mentioned a cave of cotton with hanging pendants in the form of stalactites, from Bahia; and a grand trophy composed of bales and festoons of cotton and bags of coffee, interspersed with tobacco-leaves arranged in starlike shapes. There are, moreover, some magnificent cigars, and several cases in which some beautiful harness, saddles, and whips are displayed. The walls around are hung with flags, maps, and the skins of Brazilian fauna. One case around which the Viennese ladies seem never tired of gathering is that of Mdles. Natté, of Rio de Janeiro, who exhibit jewellery, fans, and artificial flowers. The brooches, ear-rings, and pins, which are exceedingly pretty, are all made of those wonderful little beetles and insects which abound in Brazil, and the varied wing-cases of which so admirably simulate the emerald, the ruby, the turquoise, and the opal. The fans, which are composed of the choicest plumes of gay-coloured Brazilian birds, are possibly more attractive than the jewellery, and large numbers have been bought by members of the Austrian aristocracy. One very superb one, purchased by Princess Esterhazy, has a delicate pink border, and, after several intervening rows of white, grey, and blue feathers, a centre of golden plumes, tastefully ornamented with brilliant-coloured beetles. Another, equally charming, composed of the feathers of the swan and the bird of paradise, has been purchased by the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. The artificial flowers, made also of feathers, are really marvels of imitative art, the roses, geraniums, pinks, lilies, heartseases, &c., being scarcely distinguishable from real ones, although in no single instance have these feathers, in which five and six different shades of colour can frequently be traced, been dyed. Besides these, Mdles. Natté exhibit several specimens of the more curious and least known Brazilian birds—a show of paramount interest to ornithologists. Beyond their stall will be found a complete collection of all the different woods yielded by the endless forests with which fully one half of the Brazilian empire is densely covered.

OUR ILLUSTRATIONS.

The Illustrations this week supplied by the sketches of our Special Artists at Vienna represent scenes that are daily witnessed in the precincts of the Exhibition Palace and its adjacent grounds. Such is the afternoon assemblage of loungers and listeners at the musical performances of the perfect bands under the direction of Langenbach or Strauss. The building of a pavilion for the Viceroy of Egypt, in which a party of Egyptian workmen have been employed, was one of those living examples of various foreign industries which have proved not less attractive than the displays of finished manufactures. But we now have the satisfaction to present an instance of very fine art-manufacture produced by an English firm, Messrs. Thomas Tapling and Co., of Gresham-street West and Staining-lane, London, also of Glasgow. They contribute to the exhibition various pieces of tapestry of the fabric called patent Axminster, each woven in one piece (without seam) by machinery. These tapestries are intended for altar-pieces, screens, or other wall decorations, and represent Christ and his apostles. The figures, taken from the celebrated statues by Thorwaldsen in the cathedral of Copenhagen, are larger than life, and were arranged and coloured for the working design by Mr. E. T. Parris, historical painter to her late Majesty Queen Adelaide. Each figure can be woven separately, or two or more may be grouped together, thus adapting them for panels of any size, as well as for a great variety of ecclesiastical decorative purposes. The adaptation of the patent Axminster fabric to this class of design was made by the senior partner of the firm, Mr. Thomas Tapling, with the view of producing works similar in character to the celebrated tapestries of Gobelin and Beauvais, but by machinery instead of by hand, within a very limited time, and at a moderate cost. Their durability is very great, the colours can be restored, after any lapse of time by "cropping" the surface, and designs of all kinds may be produced. The five figures shown in our Engravings form only the central portion of the whole design arranged by Mr. Parris. In the middle is the figure of Our Saviour, with the words "Pax," "La Paix," and "Peace" (Latin, French, and English), inscribed beneath. On his right hand are the Apostles Paul and John; on his left hand, Peter and Thaddeus. The eight other apostles, who are included in the design as a whole, do not appear in our Illustrations.

THE WELSH CHOIR AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

The prize gained by the Welsh Choir at the Crystal Palace, a gilt cup and cover, has been manufactured by Mr. Streeter, of

CUP PRESENTED TO THE SOUTH WALES CHORAL UNION.

Conduit-street, and is in all respects a pleasant memorial of the memorable contest. It is of silver, richly chased with various emblems, amongst which the leek is frequently introduced. The handles are formed of the red dragon of Wales, and the cover is surmounted with a model of the ancient harp-motto, "Jaith enaid ar ei Thanan" ("The soul of music is on its strings"). On the shield are engraved the arms of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and on the reverse the arms of North and South Wales and eight Royal Princes of Wales; on the stem the motto, "Nawdd Duw ai dangnef" ("The protection of God and His peace"); and on the silver plate, on base, is the following inscription:—"Presented to the South Wales Choral Union by the London Committee of the Welsh Choir Prize Fund to commemorate their success at the National Musical competitive meeting in July, 1873." The cup has been on view at Mr. Streeter's for some days.

THE NEW BISHOP OF ELY.

The successor in the see of Ely to Dr. E. Harold Browne, now translated to Winchester, is the Rev. James Russell Woodford, D.D., Hon. Canon of Christ Church, Vicar of Leeds, Rural Dean, Chaplain in Ordinary to the Queen, and Examining Chaplain to the late Bishop of Winchester. Dr. Woodford was educated at Merchant Taylors' School, London, and Pembroke College, Cambridge, where he graduated as Sen. Opt. and Second Class Classical Tripos 1842. He was formerly Perpetual Curate of St. Mark's, Easton; afterwards, in 1858, Vicar of Kempford; Select Preacher, 1864, 1867, and 1872; and Vicar of Leeds, in succession to Dr. Atlay, created Bishop of Hereford in 1868. He was formerly a proctor for the diocese of Gloucester and Bristol in the Convocation of Canterbury, and more recently in the Convocation of York for the diocese of Ripon. With reference to the Bishopric of Ely, the present income of that see is £5500 per annum, with a house in town, in addition to the palace at Ely.

The appointment of Dr. Woodford to the see of Ely adds another to the list of Cambridge men on the right rev. bench, bringing the number up to fourteen; while the number of Oxford graduates is, by the death of Dr. Wilberforce, reduced to twelve. The Cambridge Bishops are—Bangor, Bath and Wells, Carlisle, Ely, Gloucester and Bristol, Hereford, Lichfield, Lincoln, Llandaff, Ripon, St. David's, Sodor and Man, and Worcester. From Oxford come both the Primates, and the Bishops of London, Durham, Chester, Chichester, Exeter, Manchester, Norwich, Oxford, Rochester, and Salisbury. The Bishop of Peterborough is a Dublin man, and the Bishop of St. Asaph took his degree at St. David's College, Lampeter. The oldest Bishop on the bench is Dr. Thirlwall, of St. David's, who was born in 1797, Dr. Ollivant, of Llandaff, standing next, in 1798. Then follow Dr. Durnford, of Chichester, in 1802; Dr. Moberly, of Salisbury, in 1803; Dr. Jacobson, of Chester, and Dr. Powys, of Sodor and Man, in 1805; Dr. Baring, of Durham, Dr. Wordsworth, of Lincoln, Dr. Philpott, of Worcester, and Dr. Hughes, of St. Asaph, in 1807; Lord Hervey, of Bath and Wells, and Dr. Claughton, of Rochester, in 1808; Dr. Selwyn, of Lichfield, in 1809; Dr. Tait, of Canterbury, Dr. Jackson, of London, Dr. Browne, of Winchester, and Dr. Pelham, of Norwich, in 1811; Dr. Bickersteth, of Ripon, in 1816; Dr. Atlay, of Hereford, in 1817; Dr. Goodwin, of Carlisle, and Dr. Fraser, of Manchester, in 1818; Dr. Thomson, of York, and Dr. Elliott, of Gloucester and Bristol, in 1819; Dr. Mackarness, of Oxford, in 1820; and Dr. Temple, of Exeter, and Dr. Magee, of Peterborough, in 1821.

The Portrait of Bishop Woodford is from a photograph by Messrs. Russell and Sons, of Chichester.

THE ALBERT BRIDGE.

The new suspension-bridge at Chelsea was opened on Saturday for traffic without any ceremony, though a few flags were displayed from the houses adjoining. This bridge crosses the river from the end of Oakley-street, Chelsea, to the west side of Battersea Park, and will be a most convenient thoroughfare from Kensington and Brompton to Battersea and Clapham. It is expected that, on the completion of the embankment by Cheyne-walk, the bridge and the new embankment will be publicly inaugurated by a ceremony; but, as the bridge is now complete, the company open it to the public at once, that they may enjoy the benefit of the new thoroughfare, and that none of the toll for the use of the bridge may be lost. The idea of constructing this bridge is not very new, and it is more than ten years since Parliament was applied to for the needful powers, which were at first refused. In 1864, however, an Act was obtained, and the opposition of the proprietors of Battersea Bridge was terminated by an agreement under the provisions of which the old wooden bridge became, on Saturday, the property of the new "Albert Bridge Company." The erection of the new bridge was delayed by the arrangements rendered necessary with regard to the Thames Embankment, and the company had twice to seek for extensions of time, being unable to commence the works until the autumn of 1870, although their plans had been well matured and everything was ready except the site.

The Albert Bridge is on the principle of suspension, but very different in structure from those well-known bridges which are erected on the model of that which Telford threw across the Menai Strait. These are suspended from strong chains which are fastened at each side, and are stretched over two high towers, hanging down in the centre. The roadway is suspended from these chains, and thus the weight of the bridge is mainly resting on the keys which fasten them at each side; while the weight of the heavy loads passing over the bridge causes a sensible deflection in the chain as they pass along from one point to another. In the Albert Bridge the principle is to distribute the weight really as well as apparently, and but a small portion of the burden is borne by the long chains. The bridge is, in fact, suspended from the top of the towers by long iron bands, which radiate at different angles so as to carry pretty nearly equal weight at each side. Thus the distance between the towers is little more than double that of each tower from the side, and the weight is distributed between the towers, while the whole structure is much more rigid than an ordinary suspension-bridge. The long chains, which also pass over the top of the towers, and are fastened at each side, also aid in bearing the weight, but, as has been stated above, have by no means the same strain upon them as is borne by those of the old suspension-bridge. The chains in the Albert Bridge consist of something like 1000 steel wires, not twisted, but bound together, and from this cable are suspended vertical rods, which assist in bearing the girders of the roadway. This principle is the invention of Mr. Rowland M. Ordish, who has applied it successfully in the construction of the Franz-Joseph Bridge across the Moldau at Prague, which exceeds the length of the Albert Bridge by more than 100 ft.

The Albert Bridge is 710 ft. in length and 40 ft. in width, including the two footways. The space between the two towers is 400 ft., thus leaving a space between each tower and the bank of 155 ft. The centre of the bridge is 21 ft. above high water. Each of the towers rests on a pier composed of cast-iron cylinders, which are sunk into the London clay and filled with concrete. The bottom rings are 21 ft. in diameter, and are the largest cylindrical castings ever made in one piece. The rings which are imposed on those taper up to 15 ft. in diameter, and this size is maintained up to the commencement of the towers. The main girders are of wrought iron, and form the parapets of the bridge. They are perforated with apertures at regular distances in the shape of a quatrefoil. The roadway is paved with wood and the footways with Ransome's patent stone. The contractors for the bridge were Messrs. Williamson and Co.; the cylinders for the piers were manufactured by Messrs. Robinson and Cottam of Battersea; the cast and wrought ironwork for the superstructure by Messrs. A. Handyside and Co., of Derby and London; while the steel wire for the cables was supplied by the Cardigan Iron and Steel Works, Sheffield.

It is probable that the opening of this new bridge will, ere long, render it necessary to make a good thoroughfare from the top of Oakley-street, in King's-road, to the Fulham-road. This could be accomplished by widening Arthur-street and Charles-street, bringing out the new street close to the western side of Onslow-square, by the Hospital for Consumption. This would open a direct thoroughfare between Clapham and the South Kensington Museum, the Albert Hall, and Kensington Gardens.

The net-fishing season for salmon closed last week, and in the Tay and tributaries is stated to have been the most productive on record.

The estates of Sir James Hay Langham, Bart., were sold by auction, at Northampton, last Saturday, under an order of the Court of Chancery, and by direction of Mr. Samuel Warren, a Master in Lunacy. The competition was great, and the nineteen lots were in every case sold at a considerable sum above the reserve price, reaching a total of £45,525.

AFTERNOON CONCERT IN THE PARK OF THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

THE PRINCE.

BY L. ALMA TADEMA.—FROM THE LATE EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.

THE RIGHT REV. J. R. WOODFORD, D.D., THE NEW BISHOP OF ELY.

THE ROYAL ALBERT BRIDGE, CHELSEA.

NEW BOOKS.

We are all interested in the subject which has been laboriously investigated under the title of Human Longevity, by William J. Thoms, F.S.A. (John Murray), though some of us may be inclined to think that the game was not worth the candle. It is pretty certain that if centenarianism were, as the credulous are said to believe, "a matter of every day occurrence," and sufficiently common to affect the calculated average duration of human life, the fact would have been discovered by observant actuaries, and would have exercised a perceptible influence upon the rates of insurance; and if centenarianism be so uncommon as to be inappreciable in a calculation of averages, the world is just where it was when Jesus the Son of Sirach wrote that "the number of a man's days are at the most an hundred years," and when the Psalmist declared that "the days of our age are threescore years and ten," &c. The Psalmist, moreover, made, in his haste, a remark which, so far as centenarianism is concerned, might, with a very slight modification, be nowadays repeated in cold blood; for "old men forget, yet all shall be forgot, but they'll remember with advantages" how many years they have lived when once they have lived long enough to become objects of gaping curiosity. As Fuller expresses it with his usual originality and quaintness: "Many old men used to set the clock of their age too fast when once past seventy, and, growing ten years in a twelvemonth, are presently fourscore; yea, within a year or two after, climb up to a hundred." Add to this that there is a tendency in vulgar minds to hanker after the extraordinary, whether it be in a matter of superhuman age or of monstrous formation; to make random assertions; and, the more they are questioned with a view of ascertaining the truth, to reiterate them the more strenuously, just as Peter was exasperated to the extent of cursing and swearing by way of strengthening his originally false statement. To those, again, to whom, in their yearning after eternity, a thousand years seem but as yesterday, it will appear a matter of little or no moment to have it certified whether such a one did or did not attain a century and more. To what end, then, some one may say, should an enthusiastic gentleman expend a perfectly appalling amount of time and trouble upon the solution of a question which, so far as one can see, has no practical bearing upon the conditions of human existence; which, probably, is regarded by the majority of mankind with supreme indifference; and which, if it be decided against those who have a pig-headed belief in centenarianism, might just as well have been left untouched? Well, an excellent reason is given: it is "an earnest desire to ascertain the Truth, the whole Truth, and nothing but the Truth, upon this very important physiological and social question." And the inquirer has evidently spared no pains in the accomplishment of his task; and he has produced a very curious, entertaining, and, in some respects edifying, book. His conclusions, perhaps, are not altogether satisfactory. He has proved almost to demonstration that, in a great many cases, persons who were believed to have lived beyond a hundred years had not reached the century; but, on the other hand, he has proved, equally to demonstration, that a few persons have certainly lived beyond the century; and those who thus have an inch given them will most likely take an ell. In the most wonderful instances of reported longevity—to wit, Henry Jenkins, 169 years old; Old Parr, 152; and the Old Countess of Desmond, 140—our inquirer undoubtedly shows that they are "unsupported by one single atom of proof," according to the principles of evidence he lays down; but his opponents, the "true believers," are not the sort of people to have their faith shaken by anything short of the chain of evidence so successfully linked together in the case of Mary Billinge, who is shown to have been ninety-one instead of 113. He allows, they will say, that people do live sometimes, though very rarely, beyond the century; and if two or three years, why not ten or a dozen more? We will not cling to 169 years exactly, they will say, in the case of Henry Jenkins, or to 152 exactly in the case of Old Parr, or to 140 exactly in the case of the Countess of Desmond, but the chances are that they lived some years beyond the century; and that is enough for us. How fallacious is the evidence, generally relied upon in favour of centenarianism, to be derived from, 1, baptismal certificates; 2, tombstone inscriptions; 3, the number of the centenarian's descendants; 4, the recollections of the centenarians; and 5, the evidence of old people still living who knew the centenarian as "very old" when they themselves were quite young, is abundantly, ingeniously, and amusingly exemplified. As to baptismal certificates, it is easy to understand that confusion often arises from the practice of giving the name of a deceased child to another child born of the same parents but many years afterwards, and also from carelessness in verifying the names of the supposed centenarian's parents. As to inscriptions on tombstones, sacrilegious wags have been known to add or prefix a figure, so that 13 becomes 131 and 30 becomes 130; and a peculiar view of numeration has induced a chiseller of inscriptions to cut out 39 in the form of 309. On the other hand, restorers of inscriptions are not to be implicitly depended upon; they make such singular blunders in restoring figures that "a man whose fourth wife survived him" is represented as having "departed this life in the 11th year of his age."

Some books come more opportunely than others, but a book which has always been wanted is always in season and always welcome; and, therefore, very welcome indeed is Erasmus; his Life and Character as shown in his Correspondence and Works: by Robert Blackley Drummond, B.A.; with portrait (Smith, Elder, and Co.). The two volumes produce a sense of placid satisfaction; something which ought to have been long ago done has been done at last, and, so far, we may rest and be thankful. Not that almost sufficient information concerning Erasmus was not hitherto to be picked up by whosoever cared to inquire whither to go and what to pick; but it was just that necessity of rummaging here and there and that process of picking up and picking out which one would willingly have dispensed with. And henceforth there are ready to everybody's hand two elegant volumes, containing, it is confidently believed, nothing objectionable, and presenting, in a compact, but by no means meagre, form, nearly everything that anybody can desire to know about Erasmus himself, as well as the circumstances amidst which he lived and all that he committed to writing. It is curious that Erasmus, as his new biographer does not forget to point out, should have been destined, by a kind of ironical fate which often pursues great scholars as well as other great men, to offer in his own person an immortal example of philological blundering. Desiderius Erasmus, Rotterdamus, was the style and title he adopted to describe himself by name and birthplace; and each word is a blunder, according to the most correct rules of Latin and Greek formation. But, no doubt, he was not then so steeped in the classical languages as he afterwards became when he forgot his mother tongue. Erasmus has a peculiar claim upon Englishmen for their regard. He not only had young Englishmen for his pupils abroad, but in London he formed "part of the family circle of his dear friend Sir Thomas More;" at Cambridge he lectured on Greek and was Lady Margaret's Professor of Divinity; and he was within an ace of becoming naturalised in England. By English boys, too, Erasmus should be remembered with respect, if not with gratitude; for he was an intimate friend of that Dean Colet who munificently proved his love of English boys by founding St. Paul's School, and for them he wrote the work entitled "De Duplici Copia Verborum ac Rerum." At Christ's Hospital, at least, if nowhere else, the memory of him who wrote that work has been perpetuated, for there are two forms, called respectively "great Erasmus" and "little Erasmus." It is doubtful whether Erasmus be entitled to recommendation on a ground which has endeared his name to a certain section of Englishmen who hold that he was a Reformer at heart though he had reasons for not declaring himself; but it is certain that it is worth while to read what is said upon that point in the new biography. And, indeed, it is not too much to say that it is worth the while of old men and maidens, young men and children, and matrons who have an occasional hour to spare, to consult the two volumes from time to time, both as to the particular point alluded to and for the sake of mental nourishment and recreation generally.

Amongst "happy thoughts" may be included the idea of sending forth to the world of readers and thinkers the Memoir and Letters of Sara Coleridge, edited by her Daughter (Henry S. King and Co.). The work consists of two very bulky volumes, of which the contents are partly autobiographical and partly alibiographical, but principally epistolary. The autobiographical portion is distinguished by a particularly tender grace, due partly, no doubt, to innate sweetness of disposition and an hereditary tinge of the poetical spirit, partly to the effect produced upon a gentle nature by a Christian-like contemplation and experience of this sorrowful world, and partly by a consciousness of the overhanging shadow of death. The letters deal with all kinds of subjects, from theology, metaphysics, and literary criticism down to the truly feminine questions of what people "have on" and how little children should be treated; and it is just this mixture of the intellectual and the domestic, of mind and heart, of the scholarly poetess and the true woman, which gives a singular charm to the letters, and makes it safe to predict that everybody will find something congenial or admirable in some of them. There is nothing in them to show that the writer affected blue stockings. That the bulk of the volumes might have been advantageously reduced by judicious omission may be taken for granted; but filial affection and reverence can hardly be expected to conceive it possible that even a few commonplace remarks extracted from a mutilated letter, or a mere list of poems, arranged according to a certain scale and ticked off with a few jejune notes, should have no interest for the general reader. "Yesterday evening the soft blue sea and sky, illumined with windows of bright rose-colour, which seemed like windows of heaven indeed, with the Apocalyptic City stretched out in gemmy splendour on the other side, as fancy suggested, was most lovely and tranquillising," is an example of what is meant; it is apparently an extract from a longer letter; and, if the rest of the letter were to be omitted, it is difficult to see why the whole should not have remained in oblivion. It is only just, however, to the editress to say that she has, in her preface, alluded to the difficulty she experienced in choosing and rejecting, and has frankly admitted that "a book composed of epistolary extracts can never be a wholly satisfactory one." Perhaps hers is as near an approach to the satisfactory as a reasonable being would demand.

A voyage across from the other side of the Atlantic has been performed, to judge from certain indications, by the huge volume entitled Subtropical Rambles in the Land of the Aphanapteryx, by Nicholas Pike (Sampson Low and Co.); and it is not unlikely to receive a hearty welcome, although for a full description of the aphanapteryx, which it may be as well to state at once, is a bird, and not a "missing link," the apparition of a second volume must be patiently awaited. Be it premised that the volume is pretty freely, handsomely, and attractively illustrated, and is fitted up with two or three elaborately-constructed charts. The book is written principally from the naturalist's point of view, or, rather, the author is a naturalist and, consequently, misses no opportunity of introducing what is likely to be interesting to naturalists, from the portrait of himself, as he sits amongst his "specimens," in the frontispiece, down to the likeness of his dog, on the page preceding the appendix. The appendix, be it remarked forthwith, consists of a very amusing begging-letter, the writer being anxious for a loan to enable him to get married. In point of date the author goes as far back as the year 1866, when he, having been appointed "Consul for the island of Mauritius," was offered a passage "in the United States steamer Monocacy, of 1030 tons, carrying ten guns," started "from the Navy Yard at Washington" on Aug. 18, and arrived at Mauritius on Jan. 12, 1867. What adventures, more or less entertaining or distressing, were met with on the voyage—due attention being paid to natural history, inclusive of botany and meteorology—are readably recorded in the first two chapters, containing a little more than fifty pages; and the remaining four hundred and fifty or more pages are devoted to a pleasant and instructive account of "personal experiences, adventures, and wanderings in and around the island of Mauritius," the tendency, hereinbefore alluded to, towards natural history being everywhere prominent. It is a pity that gentlemen, when they quote, should not take care that their quotations are correctly printed; for when the author, having shot an albatross, and having, in consequence, got into hot water with the sailors, thinks of "The Ancient Mariner" and quotes from it, he allows the point to be missed when he permits the quotation to appear in the form—

For I had done a hellish thing,
And it would work me woe;

inasmuch as the sailor, being human, would not, of course, care what evil he brought upon himself, but would object very much to his doing anything which might "work 'em woe." At the eighty-second page, moreover, there is a statement made from which we may draw our own conclusions as to the way in which confiding people are imposed upon, and in which, perhaps, unintentional mendacity may be perpetuated in the world. "I had a special mission," says the author, "from a romantic young lady to send her some flowers from the tombs" (of Paul and Virginia, to wit), "as precious relics! Sad to relate, when I had visited them, there had been heavy rains—the whole place was a swamp, and I could not get within a hundred yards of them. However, I gathered a few rose-leaves from another part of the garden, which, I do not doubt, answered equally well." The author does not say whether he frankly avowed what he had done; but his language would lead one to infer that he made no avowal; and, if so, and if collectors of relics are in the habit of doing as he did, there must be a great deal of delusion about, especially amongst romantic people. But, however that may be, the author has unquestionably composed a book which is both agreeable to linger over and otherwise worthy of attention.

It has been for some time past believed that wonders have ceased; but the supposition is by no means confirmed in the preface prefixed to Untrodden Peaks and Unfrequented Valleys: a Midsummer Ramble in the Dolomites, by Amelia B. Edwards (Longmans). A reader will be "more astounded than if seven men had set upon him" to learn "that the arts of extortion are here unknown; that the old patriarchal notion of hospitality still survives, miraculously, in the minds of innkeepers; that it is as natural to the natives of these hills and valleys to be kind, and helpful, and disinterested, as it is natural to the Swiss to be rapacious; that here one escapes from hackneyed sights, from overcrowded hotels, from the dreary routine of table-d'hôtes, from the flood of Cook's tourists." It forthwith occurs to one, however, that if the book, which, by-the-way, is liberally and very elegantly illustrated, meet with as general an acceptance as it deserves, the lost or hitherto unknown art of extortion will soon be recovered, or discovered, and practised in the primitive region so tantalisingly described, and that Cook's tourists will be all over it, like a swarm of locusts, in no time. Dolomites, the author thinks it necessary to explain, are not, as even some educated persons still seem to think they are, a religious sect or a national community, such as the Maronites or the Moabites, but some "remarkable limestone mountains." One would have thought that the popularity attained by "Zigzagging Amongst Dolomites" would have educated the public mind up to an understanding of the term; but our author's experience negatives that idea. There are fourteen chapters. The first takes us from Monte Generoso to Venice, the second from Venice to Longarone, the third from Longarone to Cortina, the fourth for a stroll and small adventures at and about Cortina, the fifth from Cortina to Pieve di Cadore; the sixth to the Val d'Auronzo and the Val Buona; the seventh to Caprile; the eighth to sights in and about Caprile; the ninth to Agordo and Primiero; the tenth to Predazzo; the eleventh to the Fassa Thal and the Fedaja Pass and to Caprile again; the twelfth up and down Sasso Bianco; the thirteenth to Forno di Zoldo and Zoppé and to Caprile again; and the fourteenth from Caprile to Botzen, and so to the inevitable end. The district described "occupies that part of the South Eastern Tyrol which lies between Botzen, Bruneck, Innichen, and Belluno;" and, lest the title should "be taken to promise more than the author is prepared to fulfil" and should seem to hint at some tremendous feat, at which the Whympers and the Tyndalls and whosoever are the glory of the Alpine Club would have to pale their ineffectual fires, it is explained that "here in South Tyrol, within seventy-two hours of London, there may be found a large number of yet 'untrodden peaks' and a network of valleys so literally 'unfrequented' that we journeyed sometimes for days together without meeting a single traveller, either in the inns or on the roads, and encountered only three parties of English during the whole time between entering the country on the Conegliano side and leaving it at Botzen." The narrative is pleasantly written, with plenty of womanly anecdote and gossip, and with the usual information as to the fair traveller's married or unmarried condition.

To the phlegmatic Englishman there is something uncongenial and even repellent about the extremely demonstrative spirit exhibited in Old Rome and New Italy, by Emilio Castelar, translated by Mrs. Arthur Arnold (Tinsley Brothers). The "book is a record," says the author, "of the lively emotions awakened in my soul by the marvellous spectacles of Italy;" and the English translation, which reads as if it were a good one, does full justice, at any rate, to the ebullience of the author's feelings. It is difficult to control the sardonic laugh excited by the ingenuous manner in which the author describes, at the outset of his work, the snub administered to his fervent enthusiasm. He arrives off Civita Vecchia, and as the boat rapidly nears the shore his heart bounds within his bosom; he springs joyfully to land and would fain have flung himself upon his "knees and kissed the earth;" but, alas! up comes the custom-house officer, "demanding the price of admission as at a theatre;" a ragged crew falls emulously upon the baggage; police officers demand "passports, now abolished in all civilised Europe;" he is marched off after his baggage to "a wretched storehouse, dark as a dungeon of the Inquisition;" and, most prosaic of all proceedings, he is gruffly called upon to make divers payments. Well may the enthusiast exclaim, "These taxes and tariffs, this want of intercourse with the world—are these also of Divine right?" However, it is not long before he recovers, not his equanimity, but his effusiveness; and he thenceforth records his impressions—whether of Rome or of Pisa or of Venice or of Naples, whether of the Sistine Chapel or of the Ghetto—with a glowing eloquence worthy of a Spaniard of the South, and with an intermixture of political sentiments worthy of him who could call Mazzini, as well as Garibaldi, friend. "A work upon Italy," he says, "rather than a description, should be, in my judgment, a revival. . . . I am happy, quite happy, if I have succeeded in imparting to my readers the thoughts that, so to speak, are exhaled from the artistic works and the historical recollections of immortal Italy;" and those words will serve better than any other to give an idea of the rhetoric-reflective style in which the volume is written.

According to Dr. Kenealy, when he commented upon Roger Tichborne's snuff-taking, the great Napoleon owed his defeat at Waterloo to the deleterious practice of carrying snuff loose in his waistcoat-pocket, and so getting too easily at the insinuating dust; but a different, and, one would say, more reasonable, cause of the memorable defeat is suggested at page 324 of the volume entitled Victories and Defeats, an Attempt to Explain the Causes which have led to them, by Colonel R. P. Anderson (Henry S. King and Co.). "What would not Napoleon have given," says the gallant Colonel, "had he only succeeded in making Wellington for a single moment forget that Bonaparte was before him?" And again, at page 325, "Napoleon was, in fact, vanquished by his own great name making his enemies magnify his power when that power had almost departed, and at a period when his great mind, by a last desperate effort, might have turned his misfortunes to his advantage, had his enemy only considered him a poor, prostrate, and fallen foe instead of cautiously and wisely regarding him as the victor of Marengo." Whence it is to be inferred that the author very wisely inculcates the duty of carefully considering, and rather over than under estimating, the capacity of a hostile commander. Indeed, there is a great deal of good sense, apt illustration, pat anecdote, and amusing remarks, grotesquely intermixed with preachment, in the gallant author's large volume; and so peculiar is the intermixture that the effect produced upon the reader is much the same as it would be if he were to read alternately a page of the prophet Nehemiah and a page of Joe Miller. It is impossible to commend too highly the respect which the gallant author testifies for the ornaments of his profession; but when he tells us that "God helps those who help themselves," said the magnanimous Sir Henry Lawrence, and there is sound truth in that good man's words," it seems as if he would father upon Sir Henry Lawrence, whose memory does not by any means require the additional honour, an expression which is probably as old as the brave men who lived before Agamemnon. Nor is it everybody who will indorse the gallant author's assertion that Napoleon said, "Give me British officers, and I will conquer the world;" Napoleon is generally supposed, as correctly, perhaps, as Cambronne is reported to have re-

The Mold Eisteddfod was brought to a successful close yesterday week. The principal prize of £50 and a gold medal was awarded to the Birkenhead choir, and the second prize to the Carnarvon Philharmonic Society. The committee has distributed prizes amounting to £600, and granted a handsome sum towards the formation of a literary institute in Mold. Among those who received the Bardic title was Mr. John Curwen, of Plaistow, who was installed as "Dyrwnt Pencerdd." This was intended as a recognition of the Tonic Sol-Fa movement in the person of its chief. Mr. Curwen acted as judge in several of the choral competitions.

17. B takes Kt P takes B 30. P to Q B 3rd B takes P
Threatening— 31. K to B 2nd P to Q B 4th

Mr. Anderson resigns.

Downham, in the midst of the storm, when the horse, being terrified by a loud clap of thunder, bolted into the canal. Mrs. Rae was drowned, and Mr. Rae was got out in an unconscious state. The lightning struck two cottages at Highworth, near Swindon, passed down the chimney which divided the two, and, entering the house of a man named Rodbourne, who was ill in bed, struck his wife, who was sitting near the fireplace, and hurled her across the room, scorching her right arm severely. In the house on the other side of the chimney two boys, sitting near the fireplace, were struck and stunned for a time, and marks were made on the floor as if from the blows of a pickaxe. The mother of the boys, who was up stairs, was also burnt on the right side, and there was a black streak on the sleeve of her dress; but she sustained no injury.—Accounts from the provinces inform us that heavy thunderstorms occurred on Monday afternoon and night in various parts of the country. A youth named Green was struck dead by lightning in the evening, at Bittern, near Southampton.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT.

We reported the termination, on Thursday week, of Dr. Kenaly's speech in defence of the person indicted as Thomas Castro or Arthur Orton, who is accused of perjury in the recent lawsuit upon his claim to be Sir Roger Charles Doughty Tichborne, heir to the Tichborne estates. The Lord Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Mellor, and Mr. Justice Lush, in the Court of Queen's Bench at Westminster, aided by the long-suffering jury, have been engaged during the past week in hearing the evidence of many witnesses for the defence. The portraits of several of the first who were called into court, on Friday week, have been sketched by our Artist, and will be immediately recognised by all who were present on that occasion. They are Snelson, one of the two recruiting-sergeants who lately measured the defendant's figure; Mr. Page, a wharfinger and lighterman of Wapping, who knew Arthur Orton as a boy, and who declared that the man now on trial was not Arthur Orton; Mr. George Charles Salloway, of Old Gravel-lane, a sailmaker, who was a playfellow of Arthur Orton in their boyhood, and did not recognise him in the defendant; Mr. Finnis, a lighterman and bargeowner of Wapping, who gave similar testimony; Mr. Peter Goddard, a plumber and glazier; Mr. Winer, a retired fishdealer; and Mr. Weston, a shoemaker, all of that neighbourhood, who remembered what Arthur Orton was twenty or five-and-twenty years ago, and did not think the person now before them was at all like him. The sameness of this kind of evidence, continued day after day, is rather t tedious; but the audience who attend the trial for mere amusement, along with that numerous class of newspaper-readers who like to fill their minds with other people's affairs, have found a resource in noticing the personal behaviour of the witnesses, and the incidents of their private life revealed in cross-examination by hostile counsel. Two or three of the first witnesses called, Mr. Page, Mr. Salloway, and Mr. Weston, admitted that they had taken part in the local efforts to support the defendant's claim as Sir Roger Tichborne. Mr. Page, indeed, had lent the defendant £250, and his brother-in-law, a bill-discounter named Schult, had previously advanced £500 to the defendant, whom Mr. Page at first thought an impostor, but was afterwards convinced by seeing him. As for Mr. Salloway, he had been at a meeting of some hundred

1. Sergeant Snelson, with the Usher of the Court administering the oath to him; reporters below.
4. Mr. Finnis, lighterman and barge-owner.

6. Mr. Peter Goddard, plumber and glazier.

2. Mr. Page, wharfinger and lighterman, of Wapping.
6. Mr. Winer, retired fish-dealer.

3. Mr. Salloway, sailmaker.
7. Mr. Weston, shoemaker.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT: WITNESSES FOR THE DEFENCE.

persons in a public-house at Wapping, where the defendant was present, and a Captain Brown made a speech, inviting everyone who knew Arthur Orton to come forward and say whether the defendant was he. Mr. Weston was at the same meeting. At the sitting of the Court on Monday he was recalled and further questioned upon this subject; after which came Mr. John Yates, shoemaker, Whitechapel, who had made Arthur Orton's boots when a boy, and, at the Lord Chief Justice's request, produced the lasts he had used; Joseph Williams, working engineer, a former playmate of Arthur, who had bathed with him and never seen any marks on his person; Mr. Joseph Billings, Customs' officer, a former acquaintance of Arthur's when he was in his father's shop, and a strong believer in his dissimilarity to the defendant; Henry Steer, describing himself as a fireclay merchant, who swore to Arthur's earrings, his twitching of the eye, and his total unlikeness to the defendant, but whose evidence was rather discredited by investigations of his antecedents; and G. Case, a stevedore, who had only a casual knowledge of Arthur, but was perfectly convinced that the defendant was no Orton. The Court sat again on Tuesday, when nine more witnesses were called to prove that the defendant is not Arthur Orton. Mr. E. J. Wakeling, surgeon's assistant, was called to prove that Orton had a scar on his arm caused by the bite of a pony; but this witness's demeanour was such that the Lord Chief Justice declared that his expenses would be disallowed. Mr. W. Webb, wharfinger, was called to show that Orton had not the "brown mark" which the defendant has; but his evidence varied in more than one material respect from the preceding, and, though staying in the house of the Ortons at the time, he had heard of nothing which would necessarily leave an indelible scar or mark. And, after all, as to the brown mark, all he would swear was that he had not seen it. On this day, indeed, the witnesses varied considerably in their statements as to the marks relied upon, as distinguishing Orton from the defendant. Some said he was pock-marked and some that he was not; some that he had a scar on his face, some that he had not; some that he wore earrings, and others that he did not; some that he was like his father, others that he was not. One witness stated that he had never noticed any mark upon the face of Arthur Orton, neither scar nor pock-mark; nor did he remember anything particular as to his ears. The cross-examination of the witnesses suggested that they were mistaken and confused in their recollection. Those examined on Wednesday were Thomas Grady, a smith; Mr. Chamberlain, a retired butcher; Mrs. Scott, wife of a shipwright; Joseph Manning, a ship-rigger; John Searle, formerly a butcher's assistant; and John James Lever, a mast-maker. Their evidence was to the purport that the defendant was not Arthur Orton.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 108, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 108, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1878.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1775.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1873.

WITH EXTRA SUPPLEMENT { SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½d.

1. Carrying Heather and Fascines for Marsh Bridge. 2. Mess Table of the Royal Engineers. 3. Making Roadway at head of Marsh Bridge. 4. Marsh Bridge, over the Devil's Drumble.

THE AUTUMN CAMPAIGN ON CANNOCK CHASE.

BIRTHS.

On the 15th ult., at Hemingstone Hall, Suffolk, the wife of Mr. Thomas Leach, of a son.
On the 18th ult., the wife of G. Burney, of Croom's-hill and Millwall, of a daughter.
On the 29th ult., at Pimlico-road, the wife of Lewis Meyrick, of a son.
On the 27th ult., at Beaucliff House, Newquay, Cornwall, the wife of J. V. Sigvald Muller, Esq., of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 20th ult., at Alford, from Hanby Hall, the residence of E. L. Crowther, M.D., Mr. James Pearson, of West House, Congleton, to Victoria Marie Louise, eldest daughter of the Hon. W. L. Crowther, of Helston, Tasmania.
On the 27th ult., at St. James's Church, Piccadilly, by the Rev. Woodhouse Raven, Vicar of Christ Church, Streatham, Joseph Matternson, Esq., of Limerick, to Agnes, eldest daughter of George Sutherland, Esq., of Turo, Nova Scotia.
On the 27th ult., at the Church of our Immaculate Lady of Victories, Clapham, by the Rev. Father Coffin, Provincial C.S.S.R., John M. Barilli, of Como, Italy, and Castle-street, Holborn, to M. Constantia, eldest daughter of Henry Dolan, of Park-hill, Clapham. No cards.
On the 7th ult. at the Cathedral, St. Helena, by the father of the bride, assisted by the Rev. H. Whitehead, Saul, only son of Nathaniel Solomon, Esq., of that island, to Katherine Welby, fifth daughter of the Lord Bishop of St. Helena.
On the 2nd inst., at Cheltenham, by the Rev. G. F. Shaw, Rector of Edgeworth, Harry James Watson, Esq., King's Dragoon Guards, only son of James Watson, Esq., late Bengal Civil Service, to Mary, elder daughter of the late John Russell, Esq., of New Forge, Co. Antrim.
On July 2, at Gawler, South Australia, Thomas Hopkins Bowen, of Adelaide, to Emily Martha, youngest daughter of the Hon. Walter De Laune, M.L.C., of Para Para.

DEATHS.

On the 1st inst., at New Brentford, of consumption, Gerald, fifth son of Captain J. R. Ward, R.N., aged 21 years.
On the 30th ult., at High-street, Hounslow, Middlesex, Robert Hughes Turner, corn merchant, in his 50th year.
On the 21st ult., at Sendhurst Grange, the Hon. Mrs. Charles Wyndham, of Rogate, Sussex, aged 70.
On the 21st ult., at her residence, Gowrie, near Kingstown, Ireland, after a short but painful illness, borne with uncomplaining submission, Caroline Frances, the dearly-beloved wife of Major-General Adam Cuppage, retired list H.M. Indian Army.

*. The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPT. 13.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 7.		Hereford Musical Festival (four days).
Thirteenth Sunday after Trinity.	St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m.	Crystal Palace, "Snae Fell."
Rev. Prebendary Marshall, Vicar of St. Bride's, 3.15 p.m., the Rev. Canon Lightfoot, D.D.; 7 p.m., the Rev. W. J. Lawrence, Rector of St. Alban's.	Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Rev. Canon Kingsley.	WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10.
St. James's, noon, the Rev. Francis Gordon, Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal.	Whitehall, 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Rev. G. Jepson.	Museum of Practical Geology re-opens.
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., the Rev. Henry White, Chaplain to the House of Commons; 7 p.m., the Rev. W. J. Little, Assistant Chaplain of the Savoy.	French Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. W. B. Bouverie, Incumbent.	Nottingham Horticultural Society Show.
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 8.	British Museum reopens.	Doncaster Races—St. Leger.
Manchester and Liverpool Agricultural Society: trial of steam ploughing &c., at Saltney, near Chester (two days).	Crystal Palace, autumn fruit show and "Snae Fell."	Manchester and Liverpool Agricultural Society: Exhibition at Chester (three days).
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9.	Poleaster Races begin.	Crystal Palace, "Snae Fell."
		THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 11.
		Leyland Hundred Agricultural Association: Show at Walton-le-dale.
		London Rowing Club: Virtue Sculls.
		Crystal Palace, operetta and grand display of fireworks.
		FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 12.
		Bury St. Edmunds Horticultural Society Show.
		London Rowing Club: Virtue Sculls.
		Crystal Palace, "Snae Fell."
		SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13.
		Moon's last quarter, 3.40 p.m.
		Salmon-fishing in Scotland ends.
		Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 3.30 p.m.
		Crystal Palace, tonic sol-fa concert (5,500 voices).

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE Kew Observatory of the Royal Society.
Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Miles.	In.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.	Direction.
Sept. 6.	29.830	62.3	54.2	76	8	56.6	70.5	SSW. S.	335	.073
7.	29.810	59.8	53.0	80	7	58.2	65.0	SSW. WSW.	451	.117
8.	29.877	53.4	45.7	70	7	49.1	62.5	SW. W.	293	.018
9.	29.762	50.2	50.5	74	7	50.7	67.8	SW. WSW.	129	.070
10.	29.823	62.4	58.4	87	..	57.6	69.4	WSW. SW.	345	.000
11.	29.717	61.4	57.8	89	7	61.9	67.7	SSW. WSW.	273	.209
12.	29.812	57.9	48.0	71	7	53.0	64.0	WSW. WNW.	227	.000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:-

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29.801	29.757	29.785	29.743	29.729	29.740	29.773
Temperature of Air	62.3	59.8	53.4	50.2	62.4	61.4	57.9
Temperature of Evaporation	59.8	53.4	45.7	50.5	58.4	57.8	57.8
Direction of Wind	SSW.	SSW.	SSW.	SSW.	SSW.	SSW.	SSW.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 13.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
2 51	2 30	2 50	3 12	3 34	3 54	4 15
4 15	4 35	4 55	5 13	5 35	5 55	6 15
6 37

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.

The world-famed MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS, every Night at Eight.
Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Eight.
The Entertainment given by the Moore and Burgess Minstrels now enjoys the proud distinction of being classified as the OLDEST ESTABLISHED AND THE MOST SUCCESSFUL IN THE WORLD, having been presented at this Hall for EIGHT YEARS IN ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON, an instance of popularity altogether without a precedent in the annals of amusements. NO FEES OR EXTRA CHARGES.
LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL.
New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, 21 lbs. 6d. to 23 lbs. 6d.; Parquet, 2s.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Arre, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places at Mitchell's, 33, Old Bond-street; Ollivier's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St. James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

THEATRE ROYAL DRURY-LANE.—Sole Lessee and

Manager, F. B. Chatterton.—This theatre, redecorated under the direction of Mr. Marsh Nelson, WILL OPEN for the Dramatic Season on SATURDAY, SEPT. 27, when will be produced Shakespeare's Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes by Mr. Andrew Halliday, illustrated with New and Characteristic Scenery by Mr. William Beverly. The cast will include Mr. James Anderson, Mr. Ryder, Mr. James Johnstone, Mr. A. Glover, Mr. Rignold, Mr. Dolman, Mr. J. Morris, Mr. A. M. Denison, Mr. H. Clifford, and Mr. H. Sinclair; Miss Wallis, Miss Banks, Miss E. Stuart, Miss Adeline Gledhill, &c. The incidental Music selected and composed by Mr. W. C. Levey. The Ballet and grouping of crowds arranged by Mr. John Cornack. And the whole to be produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Andrew Halliday and F. B. Chatterton. At the conclusion of the Tragedy the National Anthem will be sung by the entire strength of the Company. Preceded by a Farical Musical Entertainment, in one act, entitled NOBODY IN LONDON. Characters by Messrs. Brittain Wright, F. Morehead, Fred Evans and his Ballet Troupe, Miss Harriet Coveney, and Miss Huddell. To conclude with a New and Original Farce, entitled THE STRAIGHT TIP. Prices, from Sixpence to Five Guineas. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate.

Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Douglas, Mr. Crewick, the eminent Tragedian, with Mr. Charles E. Cresswell and Mr. Charles Viney. Every Evening, in a Legitimate Play, supported by a powerful Company. The Tragedy of HAMLET and THE BRIDAL CHAMBER alternate nights.

DORE'S GREAT PICTURE of "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christian Martyrs," "Francesca di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

ELIJAH WALTON.—EXHIBITION, including "A Storm at Sea" and "A Sand Storm in the Desert," and many New and Important Drawings, Alpine and Eastern. NOW OPEN at BURLINGTON GALLERY, 191, Piccadilly. Ten to Six. Admission, with Catalogue, 1s.

VOL. LXII. ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

Elegantly bound, cloth, gilt 20s. 0d.
In Paper Covers 15s. 0d.
Cases for binding above 2s. 6d.
Portfolios for holding six Numbers 4s. 0d.
Reading Cases 2s. 0d.

Office, 108, Strand.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1873.

The subject of railway accidents—a larger number than usual of which characterise the month which came to an end last Sunday—is naturally attracting a great share of public attention. It is a matter of deep regret, though we should hesitate to say of much surprise, that what may be called "a holiday month" of the year should customarily produce a fuller crop of these accidents than any other month of the twelve. There is something very touching in the contrast presented by the joyous start of a family party, in eager anticipation of the pleasure to be derived from new scenes, associations, amusements, either on an excursion to some picturesque part of the country or for a brief sojourn at the seaside, and their return home, possibly within a few days of leaving it, bearing with them some member of the family—perhaps more than one—mutilated, maimed, or killed by some mishap to the train in which they were travelling. In the ordinary course of business the occurrence of a domestic tragedy is bad enough; but when it overtakes people in search of recreation and looking forward with pleased expectation to a long succession of grateful novelties, it cannot but be that the affliction is terribly enhanced. One can hardly help lamenting, therefore, perhaps with some mingled indignation, that our holiday season should also be the season of greatest peril to life and limb.

We do not think it would be doing justice to this painful subject to launch into an indiscriminate tirade against railway management. On the whole, the amount of foresight, care, precaution, and expense applied by directors and their chief officers in regulating the traffic upon their respective lines cannot be lightly appreciated. Nevertheless, it is certainly a suggestive and significant fact that just when railway arrangements are brought under the greatest stress—when caution is most needed, when traffic is most remunerative, and when the trust reposed in the directors is necessarily most implicit—accidents of the most destructive character (the greater number of them, too, of a preventable kind) most frequently occur. There must be general reasons which will account for this—reasons which, although they reflect no special dishonour upon one company as compared with others, certainly cast a shade of disparagement over the conditions on which railway companies fulfil the contract they have made with the public.

The exceedingly high rate of speed at which special trains are propelled might not, perhaps, be particularly hazardous, if it were not for other elements of danger, from which it cannot be wholly dissociated. This, however, is a matter the public can take into their own hands. It is not necessary to choose an express-train—though, perhaps, as a matter of fact, the casualties which happen to an express-train are not more numerous in proportion than those which befall trains of lower speed. But a general impression seems to have gone abroad that, as a rule, companies are far more prone to compete with each other in regard to celerity than in regard to punctuality and safety. We are not at all sorry, therefore, to meet with a statement made recently by the chairman of the London and North-Western Railway to the effect that he and his fellow-directors had already made a firm stand against the evils of the racing system, and that they deliberately preferred punctuality to running the risk of accidents.

The most formidable dangers, however, to be encountered in railway travelling arise not so much from high speed as from over-traffic. The companies do not appear to measure what they undertake to do with the appliances they possess for doing it as they should. There has been a general, a large, and a growing increase of railway business, without a corresponding increase of the means and agencies required for its transaction. More particularly the passenger traffic in August greatly exceeds that of any other month in the year. To put on more trains, to utilise the whole extent of rolling-stock which they may possess, and to offer a larger amount of accommodation to passengers than they are able fairly to supply, may appear to directors to be not only justifiable, but to be a duty they owe to the shareholders whom they represent. Why should they hesitate to reap the harvest of profits when, after long waiting, harvest time arrives? A natural question, assuredly, but not the only one which should be asked. Will the line bear the great expansion of traffic which it is required to sustain? Are the regulations such as suffice to obviate danger under the altered circumstances of the case? Can goods-trains, ordinary trains, express-trains, and excursion-trains, be simultaneously running on the same line, in considerably increased numbers, without a large increase of casualties?

But there is another feature of the present system to be taken into account. Over traffic on the rail must be regarded as only another mode of describing an insufficiently manned staff of servants employed on the line. That staff ought to bear a due proportion to the traffic. When the latter expands the former ought to expand with it. We fear this is a rule seldom put into force. A staff which might have been equal to any expected emergency ten years ago may be utterly incompetent, even with the experience which it has gained in the interval, to cope with the responsibilities devolving upon it now. Twice the amount of work which was then done is not likely to be well done by the same number of officials. Not a few of the accidents which have so alarmed the public of late have arisen as a result of that exhaustion of physical and mental power which is always entailed by too continuous a strain upon them of heavy and anxious work. Neither machines nor men can perform more than their original powers fit them to perform. No doubt directors are desirous of keeping down expenses, and of presenting to shareholders a handsome balance-sheet every half year. But in railway matters, as in others, a penny made is not necessarily a penny gained. Frequent complaints have been made, not by the public indeed, but by railway proprietors, of the heavy fines imposed upon them by Lord Campbell's Act. Might it not be of advantage to them to render that Act comparatively innocuous to them by spending the money which now goes in the shape of compensation to victims in making the human instruments which they employ numerous enough to answer the purposes for which they are employed?

Such thoughts as these will not, perhaps, be much heeded in board-rooms, but they find wide circulation outside of them, and leave behind them a deep impression. There are accidents, we cannot but admit, which are accurately described by the term "unavoidable;" but they are extremely rare in comparison with those which ought to have been prevented. That company will, in the long run, best promote the interests of its shareholders which conducts its traffic with most punctuality and safety. Consideration for the public seldom loses its corresponding advantage; and it must be conceded, we fear, that consideration for the public has not recently been of paramount importance in the deliberations of directors.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, Princess Beatrice, Prince Leopold, and Prince Christian Victor and Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, continues at Balmoral Castle. The Duke of Edinburgh is on a visit to her Majesty. Upon the anniversary of the birthday of the lamented Prince Consort, Prince Leopold, Prince Christian, and the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, together with the servants and tenantry of the Balmoral, Abergeldie, and Birkhall estates, assembled at the Obelisk, and drank to the memory of his Royal Highness. On Wednesday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove to the Glassalt Shiel. The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone and Sir T. M. and the Hon. Lady Biddulph dined with her Majesty. On the following day the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove to Invercauld, and was present when the Athole Highlanders marched in, under the command of the Duke of Athole. Princess Christian, Prince Leopold, and Prince Christian Victor were also present. Yesterday (Friday) week Prince Leopold and Prince Christian, accompanied by the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, went to the Braemar gathering. The Premier dined with her Majesty. On Saturday last the Queen held a Council, at which were present the Duke of Edinburgh, the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, and the Right Hon. Sir R. Collier. Mr. Gladstone took the oath on his re-appointment as First Lord of the Treasury. Sir George Jessel, Master of the Rolls, was sworn a member of the Privy Council, and took his seat at the board accordingly. Sir Arthur Helps was clerk of the Council. The Queen conferred the dignity of knighthood upon Mr. John Hawkshaw. The Premier afterwards left the castle. Sir Arthur Helps dined with her Majesty. On Sunday the Queen and the members of the Royal family attended Divine service at Crathie Church. The Rev. A. Campbell officiated. On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Christian, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold, drove to the Glassalt Shiel. Her Majesty, with the Royal family, has also driven to Braemar, to Dunchess, and other places on Deeside. The Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Christian have had good sport deer-stalking.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor, Prince George, Princess Louise, Princess Victoria, and Princess Maud of Wales, left Osborne Cottage, Isle of Wight, on Monday, for Marlborough House. Their Royal Highnesses crossed from Cowes in the Royal yacht Alberta (Staff Captain Welch) to Portsmouth, and travelled thence by special train to London. On Tuesday Prince John of Glücksburg arrived at Marlborough House on a visit to the Prince and Princess. In the evening their Royal Highnesses, with Prince John, went to the Haymarket Theatre. On Wednesday the Prince and Prince John visited Mr. Walton's studio, in Savile-row, and inspected his picture of the "London School Board." In the evening the Prince and Princess and Prince John went to the Gaiety Theatre. On Thursday the Prince and Princess, accompanied by their children and Prince John of Glücksburg, left Marlborough House for Abergeldie Castle. Lieutenant-Colonel Teedale has succeeded Major Grey as Esquerry in Waiting to the Prince.

Prince Arthur landed at Weymouth, on Tuesday, from his yacht Alix; after a short stay his Royal Highness re-embarked.

Prince and Princess Metternich have arrived at Brown's Hotel.

Count and Countess Gleichen have left their residence in St. James's Palace for Germany.

His Excellency Count Munster, German Ambassador, and Countess Mary Munster have left Prussia House for Derneberg, the Count's seat near Hildesheim, Hanover.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Bristol and Lady Mary Hervey have left Ickworth Park for Scotland.

The Marchioness Dowager of Huntly and Lady Grace Gordon have joined the family party at Aboyne Castle.

The Marquis of Ely has arrived at Ely Lodge, Fermanagh.

The Earl and Countess of Milltown have returned to Rushborough House, Blessington, Wicklow, from Germany.

The Countess of March has joined the Earl at Gordon Castle.

Earl and Countess Cadogan and Lady Mary Cadogan arrived at Cadogan House on Monday from Paris.

The Earl and Countess of Carnarvon have arrived at Highclere Castle, near Newbury, from Cowes.

Earl and Countess Howe have left Southampton on a yachting cruise.

The Earl and Countess of Yarborough have joined the party visiting Sir Roger Palmer at Keenagh, in the county of Mayo.

The Earl and Countess of Bradford have left Weston Park, Salop, for Windermere.

The Countess Dowager of Craven has arrived at her residence in Great Cumberland-place from Paris.

The Earl of Wicklow has left town for Ireland.

Count Stroganoff has left Thomas's Hotel for Paris.

Baron and Baroness Meyer de Rothschild have arrived at Mentmore, Bucks, from London.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts, accompanied by Sir James Lacaita, has left London for Edinburgh.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Davies, R. H. E., to be Curate of Stone, Worcestershire.
Langhorne, John; Curate of Bishops Tachbrook, Warwickshire.
Morse, H. G.; Vicar of Foston-on-Wolds, Yorkshire.
Nelson, W. W.; Rector of Codford St. Mary's, Wilts.
Perhall, Samuel, Curate; Rector of Oldberrow, Worcestershire.
Smith, T. Jackson; Incumbent of St. Peter's, Queenstown, Otago, N.Z.
Stothert, S. K.; Vicar of Orisall, Notts.
Symonds, H. G.; Rector of Winthorpe, Notts.
Till, L.; Vicar of St. Paul's, East Molesey, Surrey.
Walters, William; Vicar of St. Andrew's, Pershore, Worcestershire.
White, Lewis B.; Rector of St. Mary Aldemary with St. Thomas Apostle, united with St. Antholin and St. John the Baptist upon Wallbrook.
Willerforce, Ernest Roland; Vicar of St. Thomas Seaforth, Lancashire.
Wright, E. C.; Incumbent of Grosvenor Chapel, South Audley-street.

The Dean of Canterbury sailed from Liverpool, on Saturday last, for the United States.

Archdeacon Earl, of Totnes, has declined the metropolitan bishopric of South Africa.

The Rev. Cornelius William Wilson has tendered his resignation of the Archdeaconry of the Isle of Wight.

The Dean and Chapter of Winchester, having received the conge d'elire, will meet to-day (Saturday), when Dr. Harold Browne will be formally appointed to the bishopric.

Two working men of Alton, Hants, have volunteered to carve, during their spare hours, the font for the new Church of All Saints, which is now being built in that parish.

The parish of Alveley, near Bridgnorth, owing to resignation and death, is without its Vicar, parish clerk, sexton, and schoolmaster.

The restoration of the noble Early English chancel of Buckland Newton, Dorset, in 1870, has been further enhanced by a mural decoration of the east end by Miss Gunning, daughter of the late Vicar, Archdeacon Gunning.—On St. Bartholomew's Day a valuable service of altar-plate was presented to St. Saviour's Church, Kinton-heath, near Poole, by the same lady, who had laboured at Constitution Hill and the Heath district, before this congregation had either a resident clergyman or their present temporary church.

The preachers appointed at St. Paul's Cathedral for the present month are as follow:—Sunday, Sept. 7, morning, the Rev. Prebendary Marshall, M.A., Vicar of St. Bride's, Fleet-street; evening, the Rev. W. J. Lawrence, M.A., Vicar of St. Alban's. Sept. 14, morning, the Rev. Prebendary Gibbs, M.A., Vicar of Christ Church, Newgate-street; evening, the Rev. E. M. Benson, D.D., Chancellor of Lincoln. Sept. 21, morning, the Rev. Prebendary Plumtre; evening, the Rev. J. B. Grant, M.A., English Chaplain at Rome. Sept. 28, morning, Rev. Prebendary Auriol, Rector of St. Dunstan-in-the-West; evening, Rev. C. Nevin, American Chaplain at Rome.

The foundation-stone of a new church was laid on Wednesday at Abbeydale, near Sheffield. The entire cost of the building, site, and fittings is provided by Mr. John Roberts, of Abbeydale Park, who, though a Dissenter himself, vests the property in the Church of England, for the double reason that the majority of his neighbours are churchmen, and that, so vested, the church can never be alienated from purposes of religious worship. The Mayor of Sheffield, in the course of the proceedings, said that, though he was not a member of the Church of England, he hoped the day was far distant when the Church would cease to be identified with the State.

A complete restoration is now being made of the Church of St. Michael, Kirby, Essex, through the munificence of Richard Blanshard, Esq., who has contributed the entire fund for the work. The old flat roof over the nave has been removed, as well as the west gallery and high pews. New north and south arcades have been added on the site of the original ones, and the church now consists of nave, chancel, north and south aisles, organ chamber, north porch, and tower, the latter in the Perpendicular style and of flint, being one of the finest in the county. Benches throughout take the place of the old pews. Mr. Henry Stone, of London, is the architect, and Mr. Joseph Crimes, of Colchester, the builder.

The Foresters of Scotland held a demonstration in Edinburgh, last Saturday, in which several thousand members of the order, with their wives and sweethearts, took part. Assembling at the Corn Exchange, the brethren marched with bands and banners to the Gymnasium, where the afternoon was devoted to outdoor sports.

A machine for registering votes by ballot has recently been exhibited in London by Messrs. Cutts and Co., of Corporation-street, Manchester, which claims attention for the perfect manner in which the long delays and errors in counting a large number of votes are overcome, the results being apparent at once on examination of the dials with which each machine is provided. A number of metal tokens are placed in a machine, from which the returning officer, as required, takes them, each registering itself as it leaves the machine; these in their turn are deposited in the box of the respective voters' favourite (one being provided for each candidate), and are duly registered by the machine.

THE AUTUMN CAMPAIGN.

The troops assembled on Cannock Chase, in Staffordshire, under the command of General D. Lysons, for the military exercises of this season, performed their first general action of importance on Tuesday last. There was a regular engagement between the First Division, under Prince Edward of Saxo-Weimar, and the second, under General Sir John Douglas. The corps which made up the First Division were enumerated in our last. Those of the Second Division were the 9th and 12th Lancers; Royal Horse Artillery, B brigade, H battery; Field Artillery, 1st brigade, A battery, and 14th brigade, C battery; thirty-second company Royal Engineers, and B and C troops Royal Engineer Train; Infantry, 1st brigade, 8th and 95th Regiments, Dumfries Militia, and Derby Volunteers; 2nd brigade, 14th and 22nd Regiments, 5th West York Militia, and Shropshire Volunteers. In addition to these, there were three provisional battalions of volunteers, from the London Irish, Bloomsbury, 4th Cheshire, 5th Lancashire, 3rd Derby, 1st Lancashire, 2nd Lincolnshire, 8th Lancashire, 2nd London, and 1st East York Volunteer Corps or Administrative Battalions. The total number of volunteers present was about 2700, and of militia 1700, with both divisions of the army. The headquarters of General Lysons, as was mentioned in former notices, are at Etching Hill, close to the town of Rugeley, which is half way between Lichfield and Stafford. Within a few miles north-west of Rugeley, on the borders of Cannock Chase and Needwood Forest, is the pretty village of Colwich, with several beautiful parks about it, those of Wolseley, Oak Edge, Shugborough, and Tixall. The First Division has been encamped partly at Etching Hill, partly at Oak Edge Park. The Second Division has been at Brindley-heath, three miles distant from Etching Hill in another direction, near Hednesford. The country hereabouts is very suitable for the display of mimic warfare on a small scale, being mostly open, with fine bold hills and wide ravines, which gave room for engineering skill. There is a place called the Devil's Drumble (if we may quote such an ugly name), where the Royal Engineers distinguished themselves, the other day, in the skilful construction of an extemporised bridge over a piece of morass; and this performance is the subject of three of our Illustrations. The method here used is that of laying fascines, or bundles of brushwood, on the surface of the bog, across the intended roadway, then placing "chesses" or supporting beams diagonally upon them, connected by other poles or oars placed lengthwise, all being firmly lashed together; more fascines are added, or hurdles, with stuffing of cut heather, and earth trodden or beaten hard on the top. This is quite a new style of bridge, and is much favoured by the General in command on Cannock Chase. After superintending such work the officers of the Royal Engineers have well earned a comfortable dinner; but their à fresco mess-table, shown in another sketch, is merely a couple of planks laid upon a squared mound of turf or earth-heap, which is raised in the middle of a trench dug of convenient size for the gentlemen to sit round it, upon the edge at each side, as if they sat on benches. Necessity and campaigning experience are indeed the parents of invention.

The Illustrations which appear on another page were obtained by our Artist in the headquarters' camp at Etching Hill. They represent some ordinary incidents of camp life and soldierly habits in the field. Two of the tall fellows of the Grenadier Guards are seen at a watering-trough, diligent in the work of the washerwoman; but they will be content to get up their linen roughly clean without the use of mangle or flat-iron to smooth the creases and plaits. An unlucky horse of the transport service or engineer train, having been incurably lamed or hurt by some accident, is sentenced to a merciful death, which is executed promptly enough by the martial process of shooting. The interior of a marquee or large tent, at headquarters, occupied by the officials in charge of the post-office and telegraph service, is shown in another sketch. There is also the post-office van. Mr. Mapleson, the enterprising and popular lessee of the opera, has sought recreation, after the fatigues of his business during the London season, in a holiday sojourn on Cannock Chase. He has provided himself with a tent of new design, which is the subject of our last Illustration from that quarter. It weighs a trifle more than the ordinary bell-tent; but has the advantage, for a private tourist's use, that the poles can be packed in a valise with the tent, instead of being carried separately. This tent is secured by four iron pegs, one at each corner. It can be pitched by one man, without assistance, in less than five minutes, and it stands close to the flagstaff on Etching Hill. There is a contrivance by which the inmate can open or close the ventilating apertures, as the weather may incline him, while he remains inside the tent. The Cannock Chase Camp has had to endure some days of soaking rain; but the soil dries quickly there, and there is not so much bog and fog as on Dartmoor. In taking leave of that moist region, the famous Devonshire wilderness, a party of the Royal Engineers amused themselves with an effigy of the local Demon of Wet Weather, whom they had invented for a mythical impersonation of all the grievances that Sir Charles Staveley's army so lately suffered. This obnoxious deity was punished for the discomfort he had caused them by committing him to the flames of an avenging pyre.

ROYAL ALBERT YACHT CLUB.

At the regatta of this club at Southsea, on the 19th ult., the race for the Queen's Cup was an event of much interest. It was contested by thirteen vessels of different classes, from the schooner Gwendoline, of 200 tons, down to the Vanguard and Arethusa, cutters of 50 to 60 tons, a time allowance being made for size and rig. The course was from Cowes twice round the Warner Light-ship and back to Cowes. This was accomplished within three hours and thirty-four minutes by the winning yacht, which was the cutter Kriemhilda, belonging to Count Bathyan, rear-commodore of the club squadron. This vessel has lately carried all before her. The next yachts in were Mr. Jessop's yawl Florida, and Mr. J. Wylie's cutter Omara, eight minutes after the Kriemhilda; the schooners Pantomime and Egeria, and after these the little Arethusa, Iona, and Vanguard, but last of all the Gwendoline and Speranza came to the goal within half an hour. Our Illustration is a view of the scene at the end of the race.

THE BRIDGE AT CORDOVA.

The ancient city of Cordova, which was the birthplace of Lucan and Seneca, in Roman times; of the Arabic philosopher Averroes, under the Moorish rule in Southern Spain, and of the poet Gongora, the famous warrior Gonzalo, and of the Jesuitical casuist Sanchez, in later ages of Spanish history, stands on the banks of the Guadalquivir. The heraldic emblem of this city is "a bridge over water," referring to that old structure which was originally founded here, it is supposed, by order of a Roman proconsul, but the still existing irregular arches of which were built, in the eighth century, by the Arab governor As-samh, when Cordova was an appendage of the Khalifate of Damascus. Below this bridge are some picturesque mill buildings, and a pleasant copse or grove. The patient fisherman is apt to be found here plying his artful craft with several rods and lines at once, which he has fixed upon the river bank, leaving the hooks baited near the bottom of the stream, and keeping a steady eye upon all the floats, so as to be prompt to strike and secure the finny prey whenever a bite is perceived. There is not much other trade or work to be done at Cordova, except some remains of the filigree silver manufacture. The cathedral or mosque (for it was partly built by the Moors for Mohammedan worship) is a curious irregular pile, its interior being a labyrinth of pillars differing in material, in size, and in design. The whole city and its neighbourhood, with the olives and palms that surround it, have quite an Oriental aspect.

A THAMES ANGLER.

It is some time since we had the pleasure of noticing an annual dinner, at St. James's Hall, of the London Piscatorial Society, which exists for the mutual encouragement of those good fellows resident in the great and busy city who delight in the quiet rural sport of beguiling trout with a fly, or gudgeon with a snug groundbait, to put a sly hook in their jaws and to come reluctantly ashore. This pastime has always been in favour with middle-class Londoners, after the example of Master Izac Walton, the literary shopkeeper of Fleet-street two hundred years ago. They do not find any great plenty of the finer fish in the Thames; but there are trout in the Wandle, the Darent, and other streams of Kent or Surrey, within a short distance of town; while in the Lea, near the Rye House and Broxbourne, and in the Colne and Brent, to say nothing of reservoirs and large ponds like the one at Hendon, fishing of a second-rate quality may be had in abundance. The Thames itself contains, in different parts of its course above London, large numbers of perch, tench, carp, jack or pike, bream, roach and dace, barbel and chub; the perch, especially, are fine in this river; the chub and barbel are very numerous where bushes overhang the water. The season is for bottom-fishing from the end of May to the beginning of March, by order of the Thames Conservancy Board; but fly-fishing goes on all through the summer till September. The votaries of this superior art will travel fifty or sixty miles by railway, and return the same day, for the sake of casting a fly over the Whit, or any well-preserved stream in the Home Counties. An elderly citizen of modest pretensions, who shuns fatigue in the pursuit of his amusement, will perhaps content himself with a day's punt-fishing between Richmond and Hampton Court, as we see him in our Illustration so agreeably occupied, to the manifest peril of unwary dace and silly gudgeon who are tempted by his artful practice.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

There was a show of dahlias and asters at the gardens of the Horticultural Society on Wednesday.

A number of labourers in the East India Docks struck on Wednesday for an advance of wages.

The Bethnal-green board of guardians has declined an offer from the Marchioness of Salisbury to provide a Turkish bath for the inmates of the workhouse.

Dr. Frankland's analysis of the metropolitan waters shows that during the past month they were all clear and transparent. The Thames water was not quite so good as in July.

Miss Faithfull has projected an "industrial bureau" to provide employment for young women, some of whom will have an opportunity of emigrating to the United States.

Since the first registration under the Reform Act of 1837, the claims of lodgers to exercise the franchise are more numerous than they have ever been. They still bear but a small proportion, however, to the number of lodgers entitled to vote.

Application was made at the Bow-street police office, on Wednesday, respecting the disappearance of a young man named Chapman, who was sent by his employers to a bank with some money on Aug. 29, which he deposited, but he did not return, and has not since been heard of.

Yesterday week some thirty or forty working men were injured by a train on the Metropolitan District Railway tunnelling into another which had broken down in a tunnel near the Kensington Station, High-street. The line is worked on the block system, but a signalman appears to have telegraphed the line clear by mistake.

The body of Mrs. Best, who had been living alone in a house in St. Mark's-road, Notting-hill, has been found in an advanced state of decomposition. A canary had been starved to death in its cage, and a wretched dog that had drawn attention to the house by its barking was in a most pitiable condition. "Death from apoplexy" was the verdict which was returned by the coroner's jury.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers last week was 98,707, of whom 33,600 were in workhouses and 65,107 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding week in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 3008, 20,027, and 29,448 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 508, of whom 408 were men, 164 women, and 36 children under sixteen.

The Builder states that the plans for the reconstruction of Alexandra Palace having been drawn up and agreed upon, the ruins have now been handed over to the builders, and the rebuilding of the palace will be commenced as soon as the ruins can be cleared away. It is said that, with the exception of the walls of the centre transept, the building will be entirely reconstructed. The new palace is to be larger than the old building, being both longer and broader. It is to have three transepts, one forming a concert-hall, another a theatre, and the third is, it is stated, to be devoted to bazaar purposes. These will be connected by corridors, in which light galls will be exhibited for sale. In some respects the new building will resemble the Crystal Palace, it having been decided that iron and glass shall be largely used in its construction.

An explosion occurred, yesterday week, at the laboratory and ammunition-works of Messrs. Dyer and Robson, in the marshes at the eastern part of Greenwich. It appears that railway fog-signals were being made in the sheds. The girl who was working the press did not put the signal containing the powder exposed fairly under the socket, and, on the die coming in contact with it, the powder exploded. A large number of signals scattered about the bench also exploded, and one side of the shed and the roof were nearly blown off. Three young women were severely injured. Isabella Matilda Scott, one of the young women, has since died, and an inquest was opened on Saturday evening, but was adjourned for a month in order to enable the Government inspector to make his report. A beneficial result already springing from the official inquiry is that the workpeople at this factory, mostly females, will be henceforth compelled to wear woollen dresses while at their hazardous occupation.

THE CUTTER-YACHT KIRMHILDA WINNING HER MAJESTY'S CUP AT THE ROYAL ALBERT YACHT CLUB REGATTA.

SKETCHES IN SPAIN: THE OLD BRIDGE, CORDOVA.

A MEMBER OF A THAMES ANGLING CLUB.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent in Paris.)

Thursday, Sept. 4.

Political and journalistic turncoats abound in France, where public opinion is ever rushing from one extreme to the other. M. John Lemoine is well known in England as the editor of the Journal des Débats, a newspaper which enjoys to-day but a shadow of its ancient reputation in France, although it is constantly being quoted abroad. Regarded from a literary point of view, it is acknowledged to possess considerable merits; but as a political organ its influence is almost nugatory. M. Lemoine has been by turns an Orleanist, an Imperialist, and a Republican, and to-day he appears before the Parisian public, who are getting tired of these successive transformations, as a liberal Legitimist. The fate of the Débats is sealed; most of the moderate Republican members of the staff have already abandoned it, including M. Léon Say, who strongly objects to the political line which M. Lemoine has recently traced out. The latter had already prepared one for the impending change by an article published a fortnight or so ago, in which he energetically assailed the Gambettists. To-day his language is plainer and more concise. The Republic has become impossible, he informs us. France is sighing for the return of Monarchical institutions, which alone can save society. M. Lemoine will not admit the pretensions of "Divine" right, but the Comte de Paris has abandoned the inheritance of Louis Philippe and the only possible Monarch is the Comte de Chambord, whom he strongly advises to grant the nation a constitutional charter. This is looked upon by the Republican newspapers as the second step in the reconversion of M. Lemoine. The third they say will take place in another week or so, "when we shall find him preaching the white flag and the liberation of the Pope."

Meanwhile there is no doubt that the intrigues of the Monarchists are marching apace. Pilgrimages are being organised all over France. "The King" is becoming a customary toast at private dinner parties, and letters and addresses of congratulation are leaving by scores for Fribourg. It remains to be seen what course will be adopted by the Republican party in this dilemma. Their journals continue to sneer at the jubilant tone of the Royalist press, but tell us little concerning the intentions of M. Thiers, Gambetta, and their friends on the meeting of the Assembly. The Bonapartist organs, which always used to allude to the President of the Republic as the "glorious vanquisher of Reichshausen," and invariably spoke of M. de Broglie as "cet homme eminent," announce that their party is firmly resolved to resist the pretensions of the Legitimists, for whom they unwittingly pulled the chestnuts out of the fire on May 24. M. Thiers, we hear, is to have a grand reception at Nancy on his return from Switzerland, when the Republican deputies of all the departments which until recently were occupied by the troops of General von Manteuffel, will be present to receive him. No doubt this demonstration is intended to act upon the country; still, the Republicans have other work before them beyond banqueting and rejoicing together at such a critical period as the present. Meanwhile, the Francis—the private property of the Duc de Broglie—informs us that the Duc does not lean towards the Republic, "even towards one created in his own image," as an ignorant Radical newspaper had asserted, and furthermore announces that the Ministry favours no particular Conservative opinion to the detriment of others. This after phrase has evidently been tacked on with the view of conciliating the Bonapartists, who, however, formally decline to allow the serpent to charm them once again, and ruin their chances for ever.

The sitting of the Permanent Committee this week was chiefly remarkable for a discussion on the state of siege which arose on M. Tozon's asking the Minister of the Interior a question with regard to the rigorous measures adopted towards provincial newspapers. Several journals had been suppressed in the department of the Vosges, in virtue of the so-called state of siege, which he pretended did not exist in that department at all. M. Beulé replied to the effect that the Vosges was in a state of siege, although the disturbance caused by the war had prevented all the proper formalities being fulfilled. His answer elicited many comments from the indignant Republican members of the Commission.

Paris was startled, on Tuesday afternoon, by the rumour that cholera had broken out at Havre and Trouville, and was en route for the capital. The Bureau of the Academy of Medicine is reported to have held a sitting, at which the measures to be taken with the view of diminishing the ravages of the malady were discussed with considerable bitterness by the rival physicians of which it is composed.

The Assize Court of the Seine has condemned M. Huguet, the banker, and former proprietor of the Avenir Liberal—whose extradition, it will be recollected, was recently granted at Bow-street, after vain efforts to convince the magistrate that the prisoner was simply the victim of political persecution—to ten years' penal servitude for fraudulent bankruptcy. The prisoner, too wise to make a similar suggestion to the tribunal before which he was arraigned, was in a great measure reduced to throw himself on the mercy of the Court, and M. Lachaud, his advocate, even went so far as to announce that the Bonapartist party formally disavowed him.

To-day is the 4th of September, the anniversary of the Revolution of 1870; but perfect tranquillity prevails everywhere, and only a single Republican banquet—that given by the wine merchants of Bercy, at which several deputies of the Left are to attend—is spoken of. The Government, unintentionally, no doubt, will commemorate the event by sending the final 250 millions of the war indemnity to Germany.

An official decree exempts imported corn and flour from the surtax to which it has been subject, and also from bonding duty. A modification of the rules to prevent the introduction of cattle plague is also announced.

SPAIN.

A dissolution of the Ministry appeared imminent on Tuesday owing to differences of opinion as to whether the military code should be rigorously enforced, or whether all cases where sentence of death was pronounced by the military tribunals should be referred to the Cortes. On Wednesday, however, the Government issued a decree removing General Hidalgo from the Captain-Generalship of Madrid, to which they appointed him after he deserted his post at Vittoria, and thereby, it is believed, they have averted the crisis. General Laganero has been appointed his successor.

Some particulars of the two civil wars raging in different parts of Spain are given in the Supplement.

ITALY.

The King, after deliberating with his Ministers, on Monday morning, determined to accept the invitation of the Austrian Emperor to visit the Vienna Exhibition. He will also accede to the request of the German Emperor, by whom he will be invited to prolong his excursion to Berlin. The King will start after the 20th inst., and will be absent twelve or fifteen days. The King's journey is considered here (says a Florence telegram to the Times) an event of political importance, and an evidence of the cordial understanding existing between the Italian Government and the two great German Courts.

The Minister of the Interior has requested the prefects to see that the laws relating to strikes are properly observed, he having been informed that the Internationalists are seeking to bring about a general strike.

The heat is so great in Rome that the Pope has been compelled to suspend his audiences.

GERMANY.

The Emperor William arrived at Berlin, yesterday week, and was received by Prince Charles, the Prince of Wurtemberg, the Ministers now in Berlin, and the chief authorities of the city. A great crowd assembled, and his Majesty, who (the telegram says) looked in robust health, was enthusiastically cheered on his way to the palace.

The anniversary of the German victory at Sedan was signalled, on Tuesday, at Berlin by the unveiling of the monument of Victory erected on the Königs-Platz. Some details of the ceremony are given at page 230, and the monument is described in our Fine-Art column. As part of the German celebrations of victory the forts of Metz and Strasbourg have received the names of the field marshals and generals who were in command of the German army during the war. One of the Strasbourg forts will bear the name of the Crown Prince of Saxony, to whom the Emperor has written a letter recalling to mind the part which the Saxon troops took at Sedan.

Sentence has been passed on two of Prince Bismarck's contumacious Bishops, who were charged with having made illegal clerical appointments. At Posen Mgr. Ledochowski has been fined 200 thalers, with the alternative of four months' imprisonment; and at Fulda Bishop Koel has been sentenced to pay 400 thalers. A Roman Catholic priest has been sentenced to a fortnight's imprisonment for publicly preaching that marriage among Protestants is mere concubinage.

There were disturbances last week in Leipsic. It seems to have been a mere riot. There had been disorders in a street of bad repute; the police posted up notices; this, of course, brought more people there the next night, and in the end the military had to clear the quarter. Several persons were wounded with bayonets and the butt-ends of rifles.

Steps to check the exodus of German labourers to America had evidently been resolved upon at Berlin. As a beginning, notice has been issued by the Ministers of Commerce and Justice that all emigration agents found in the empire, not being German subjects, will be forthwith expelled.

RUSSIA.

From St. Petersburg is announced the arrival of the Ce arevitch and the Cesarevna, with their children.

General Kaufmann reports that a Turcoman tribe, instead of paying its tribute, made two attacks, on July 25 and 27, upon Russian detachments. In both cases the Turcomans were repulsed. The Russians captured 6000 head of cattle, and the payment of the tribute had commenced. The Russian loss was two officers, eight soldiers, and the commander of the division killed, and four officers and thirty-three soldiers wounded.

TURKEY.

The Sultan has presented Prince Bismarck with the collar of the Osmanlie, together with the star of that order set in brilliants. He has also dispatched his Foreign Minister to the Crimea with a friendly message to the Czar.

A telegram from Constantinople states that the contract for a 6 per cent loan of £15,000,000 has been finally signed by the Minister of Finance, the representative of the French Crédit Mobilier, and a Constantinople banking house.

The Turkish Bourse has been declared the property of the State. It is to be placed under the direct authority of the Minister of Finance, and a new set of by-laws will be drawn up by a commission.

AMERICA.

The decrease in the United States debt during the month of August was 6,752,829 dollars.

A cable telegram states that the amount of the Geneva award has been deposited in the Treasury in gold, preparatory to its formal payment through certificate of deposit next week at Washington.

It is stated from New York that a conspiracy to issue a great quantity of forged New York Central, Buffalo, and Erie First Mortgage Bonds has been discovered.

INDIA.

The Times' correspondent at Calcutta telegraphed on the 1st inst. that the Murrees attacked the Khelat troops near Bagh, captured two guns, and retired successful to their hills. The Yarkund envoy has left Suez. Mr. Forsyth left the Murree Main party at Leh.

AUSTRALIA.

Another Governmental crisis is imminent in Victoria, the Legislative Council having rejected the Electoral Bill.

The Shah has had a pleasant reception at Tiflis, which he reached yesterday week.

M. Vanrees, formerly member of the Dutch East Indian Council, has been nominated vice-president of that body.

The planet No. 127, which was discovered early in the summer, is named "Liberatrix," in honour of M. Thiers.

The emigrants who sailed from Liverpool last month exceeded 15,000. More than 12,000 went to the United States.

Later details respecting the storm in Nova Scotia report additional marine disasters, and that fifty lives were probably lost.

A part of Lima is in danger of being flooded by a river, the water of which is dammed up by a tremendous fall of earth from a mountain side.

The native schools in Japan for teaching English are said to be becoming very popular. An ancient Christian church, in perfect preservation, has been discovered in the interior.

The Government of Switzerland has intimated to the European Powers that the idea of holding a postal congress at Berne has been abandoned.

While the annual bazaar was being held at Kurran, in India, a ferry-boat sunk in the river Kistna and ninety persons were drowned.

The Melbourne Argus of July 15 says that the latest difficulty between the New Zealand Government and Tawhaio, the Maori King, is still unsettled.

A serious accident occurred on the Luxembourg Railway, near the Grunpout station, on Tuesday. Eight passengers were killed and fifteen injured.

The General Congress of the International Working Men's Association began its annual session at Geneva on Monday, thirty delegates being present.

A telegraphic despatch from Rangoon, dated Wednesday, announces the wreck of the steamer Ethiopia, off the coast of British Burmah, near Cape Negrais. The mails were lost, but all the passengers were saved.

The laying of the submarine cable between England, Denmark, and Sweden was completed, without accident, on Saturday. A third submarine cable is about to be laid between England and Sweden for the Danish Great Northern Company.

Advices are to hand from the Cape to Aug. 5. At that time encouraging reports had been received from the gold-fields, but they were regarded with caution. The customs revenue of the colony for the first seven months of this year showed a considerable increase.

The Russian female students of medicine, recalled from Zurich by an Imperial order, have made an application to the University of Gießen for permission to pursue their studies at that place. The Medical Faculty unanimously refused to grant the request, and expressed strong disapprobation of women attending lectures on such subjects.

Tuesday's Gazette contains the first list of awards to exhibitors from the Indian empire and the British colonies at the Vienna Exhibition, inserted by order of her Majesty's Commissioners. It also contains a statement that, at a meeting of presidents, held on July 2, it was resolved that "the medals for progress, for merit, for fine arts, and for good taste are perfectly equal in rank and value."

Dr. Otto Obermier, of Berlin, has fallen a victim to his medical researches, at the early age of thirty-one. He had lately published the result of his observations on the blood in typhus fever, which had given him a high reputation. In carrying out other experiments in connection with cholera, he kept in his bedroom pathological specimens taken from persons who had died of cholera, and in this way he became infected. He was so devoted to his inquiry that, after he had become aware of the condition in which he was, he made some microscopic examinations on his own blood.

Mr. Mandar, Mayor of St. Just-sur-Loire, died in 1872, leaving a will and a codicil, instructions being written on the envelope of the latter that it was not to be opened until a year after his death. That interval having expired, the seals were broken a few days back, when the deceased was found to have left to the Commune all the property that he possessed there, representing a value of from 220,000*fr.* to 250,000*fr.*; also a sum of 40,000*fr.*, the interest of which was to be applied to gratuitous instruction; the reversion at the death of his widow of a mansion and grounds, to be used as an hospital; and a sum of 20,000*fr.* to endow it with a chaplain; and lastly, 10,000*fr.* for the poor.

Cape Coast and Elmina were quiet on Aug. 11, according to the advices brought by the Royal mail-steamer Bonny; but the inhabitants momentarily expected the advance of the Ashantees. The Ethiopia, which left the Mersey, last Saturday, for the west coast of Africa, took a large quantity of stores for the troops at Cape Coast Castle. The most active preparations continue to be made at Woolwich Arsenal for the expedition. Out of the troops (112 strong) who left England for Cape Coast Castle in time to take part in the action at Elmina, all but twenty were invalided and sent back to England in the Himalaya; eleven died on the passage home, and on arrival sixty were sent to Haslar Hospital.

The Genevese gave a magnificent burial to their benefactor, the Duke of Brunswick, yesterday week. A short Lutheran service was performed in the Salle de la Reformation, and the cortege then proceeded to the music of a dead march, towards the temporary mausoleum in which the remains were deposited. All the shops were closed, and the city turned out thousands of spectators. The municipality, the bar, the clergy, the military, and delegates from all the Swiss trade societies were present.—Last Tuesday morning the seals which had been affixed in the Duke of Brunswick's house were opened in presence of the magistrate, the notary, the delegates from the Municipal Council, and the administrators under the will. Two boxes were found, but could only be opened after a friend of the late Duke had communicated the secret cipher key; they did not contain either any codicil or bequest, nor the celebrated onyx vase. The process of estimating the bonds, shares, &c., lasted the whole day. They comprised 16,000,000*fr.* in securities and 100,000*fr.* in specie.—The Brunswick legacy is not to be undisputed by the late Duke's relatives. The President of the Supreme Court of Brunswick has proceeded to Geneva with instructions from the Duke's brother to assert his claims.

The Sheriff of Renfrewshire has fixed to-day (Saturday) for the nomination, and Wednesday next for the election.

The Birmingham papers report a severe thunderstorm in that neighbourhood on Wednesday.

Another railway accident is reported from Hartlepool, where a train ran off the line at a junction, and demolished a bridge, the materials of which killed a passenger.

A whale was captured in the river Itchen on Wednesday. It is about 18 ft. long, and weighs about 30 cwt. It followed a German ship about a mile up the Itchen, close to Northam-bridge, when a number of workmen went out in boats and drove it into shallow water, where it was harpooned and killed.

During a thunderstorm on Wednesday, Mr. John Smith, the son of a farmer, near Leamington, took shelter, with one of the labourers, under an elm. The lightning struck the tree, killing Mr. Smith and a sheep-dog that stood by him; and the labourer, who was stunned by the shock, was afterwards found to be badly scorched and injured.

As eleven persons were descending a long and steep decline on the works of the Settle and Carlisle Railway, in waggons that are raised and lowered on a tram by means of a wire rope which is wound on a steam drum, the connection of the rope with the waggons was broken through the failure of an iron pin. Two women were thrown out and killed; and a drunken man who had selected one of the rails for a pillow and had gone to sleep on it paid the penalty of his folly with his life.

In view of the Paray-le-Monial Pilgrimage, Roman Catholics from all parts of the kingdom assembled in large numbers on Monday night at the pro-cathedral at Kensington, where, after a short service, they were addressed by Archbishop Manning, who complained of the way in which recent pilgrimages had been ridiculed. He enlarged upon the objects with which the pilgrimage to Paray-le-Monial had been promoted, the motives of those who took part in it, and the results which it was expected to accomplish. After giving them advice and instruction with respect to their journey, the Archbishop executed his special command to bestow on the pilgrims the Pope's benediction. The main body of the English contingent of pilgrims to the shrine of Margaret Mary Alacoque at Paray-le-Monial left the Victoria station early on Tuesday morning for Newhaven, embarking there for Dieppe on board two steamers. From Dieppe the party, which numbered upwards of 500, proceeded by special train to Paris. At an early hour on Wednesday morning mass was celebrated in the Church of Notre Dame des Victoires by Bishop Vaughan, of Salford; and at seven o'clock a.m. the pilgrims proceeded by train to Paray, which was reached about seven o'clock p.m.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

Among the witnesses examined in the case, yesterday week, were several who swore that they had known the Claimant and Arthur Orton in Australia, and that they were different persons, who did not at all resemble each other. Three witnesses deposed that they had seen Orton and Castro together, and one of them—Charles Jones, a greengrocer in Hornsey, London—said he knew Orton and Castro in various parts of Australia, when they were bushrangers or highwaymen, and that the Claimant was the man he knew as Castro. The cross-examination of these witnesses was postponed, with the permission of the Court, till Monday, and two of them were bound over in £50 each to appear then for that purpose. More Wapping witnesses were put into the box and swore that the Claimant was not Arthur Orton. The Lord Chief Justice remarked upon the absence, throughout Dr. Kenealy's speech, of any indication concerning the character of the evidence which he intended to call for the defence. Dr. Kenealy complained that pressure had been brought to bear upon him to bring his address to a close. Mr. Justice Mellor observed that pressure was exercised only in this sense—that the learned counsel should approach the subject of his evidence; and the jury reminded Dr. Kenealy that they had complained only of his repetitions.

The Australian witnesses who swore that they had known Arthur Orton and Castro, the Claimant, and seen them together, were under cross-examination on Monday, but nothing was elicited that materially affected the substance of their evidence. The last witness examined was William Bailey, innkeeper, Solley, near Alresford, who stated that he had known Roger Tichborne from the age of five till the time when he left England in 1853, and swore to the identity of Roger Tichborne and the Claimant.

Several Hampshire witnesses were called, on Tuesday, to prove the identity of the defendant with Roger Tichborne. One was Thomas Parker, who had sold him a horse. He recognised him by his voice, which was different from that of most Hampshire people, but the defendant now spoke better English than Roger did in 1848. Two witnesses stated that, although they had frequently seen Roger with bare arms, they never perceived any tattoo marks on them. Charles Guy, a labourer on the Tichborne estate; Caroline Skates, whose husband kept a public-house at Petersfield; and Henry Welsh, a bricklayer, all identified the defendant as Roger. Guy stated, during his re-examination, without being asked a question, that he recollected Roger's departure. On the morning of that day, while the fly was waiting in front of the house, he saw Roger and Miss Doughty together in the garden; "they were kissing, and crying, and wiping each other's tears with a white handkerchief." He could not recollect the time of the year when this occurred, but said it was a few weeks before Sir Edward Poynter's death, which occurred in March, 1853. One of the Australian witnesses produced papers that enabled him to fix May, 1858, as the date when he met Arthur Orton at Friar's Creek. Another, Albert Pavis, who, in cross-examination, said he was a tout at Newmarket, and who was called to prove a distinction between Arthur Orton and Castro, stated that in 1859 he met the defendant at Wagga-Wagga, where the defendant himself had said he never went until 1861.

More Hampshire witnesses, some of whom gave evidence on the former trial, were called on Wednesday to identify the defendant as Roger Tichborne. One of these was Ann Welsh, wife of the house carpenter at Tichborne, who had stated in an affidavit that Roger frequently came to her cottage for nails and screws, but now spoke to two visits only. Charlotte Holder, a widow, who was charwoman at Sir E. Doughty's house when Roger left, gave further particulars as to his going away in a fly from the back door. He came, she added, from an apartment in the house. Being pressed about the reason for her identification of the defendant, she replied, "I have proved him in my mind to be Sir Roger." In her opinion Roger had a gruff voice and spoke like a Hampshire man. The next witness, Ann Noble, wife of the farm bailiff, said Roger had the same quiet, soft voice as the defendant. She recognised the defendant by his walk also. The last witness, Henry Noble, who has been farm bailiff at Tichborne since 1847, denied that Roger had any tattoo marks on his arm, but stated, on cross-examination, that before the defendant returned to England he had heard it said that Roger was tattooed.

The Hampshire witnesses were again to the fore on Thursday. James Morley, a farmer, maltster, and brewer in Haunts, nearly seventy years of age, who had been a butler in the Tichborne family for many years, leaving in 1838, said he knew Roger from his childhood, and had a perfect recollection of him, as a young man, hunting and riding about with Miss Doughty and other members of the family. He now saw him in court—the defendant was Roger Tichborne. Elizabeth Stubbs, an elderly person, the wife of James Stubbs, farmer, at West Tisted, said that Roger Tichborne, when he was shooting or hunting, sometimes rested his horse in their stables, and she knew him very well. The defendant was Roger Tichborne. So also said Henry Mills Powell, who gave Roger Tichborne lessons on the French horn; William Mansbridge, who sometimes accompanied Roger when he went shooting; Thomas Lillywhite, a carter; and John Fisher, a labourer at Tichborne—all of whom identified the defendant as Roger Tichborne.

Sir G. Jessel, the new Master of the Rolls, entered upon the duties of his office on Wednesday.

Lord Romilly, the new arbitrator of the European Assurance Company, has issued a notice to the policy-holders of the Royal Naval and Military Society that he will determine whether their policies are to rank against that society or against the European, with which it was amalgamated.

The Crédit Foncier of England and other creditors claiming nearly £90,000, having opposed the bill of the Jersey States respecting the liquidation of the Mercantile Union Bank, the Privy Council have recommended the Queen not to assent to the measure, as the interests of the creditors were not sufficiently secured. An amended bill has been presented; but, pending its consideration, the shareholders are arranging to make an offer to their creditors.

Mr. Willman, a working jeweller at Upper Norwood, had a mechanical singing bird which had cost him £30, and which, having been made to sing at the Crystal Palace, on the occasion of the Shah's visit, was bought by his Majesty for £50. A stall-keeper at the Crystal Palace, named Heron, undertook to obtain the money in full, but made certain deductions from it, and the plaintiff, suing for the balance of £810s., at the Croydon County Court, obtained a verdict in his favour.

At the opening of the Surrey Sessions at Newington-causeway, on Monday, a young railway thief, named Charles Fletcher, convicted of stealing a portmanteau from the Victoria terminus of the Brighton Railway, and proved to be a member of an organised gang, was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude. On Tuesday George Essex and David Macdonald were sentenced to two years' penal servitude for selling obscene books and prints. William Lester, found guilty of house-breaking, was sentenced to penal servitude for five years. William Clark, convicted of breaking and entering a building and stealing some tools, was sent to prison for a twelvemonth. William Osborn and Arthur Black, found guilty of stealing, were sentenced to the same term of imprisonment. William Hart, a labourer, was found guilty on Wednesday of having assaulted his wife with a poker, and sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

Charles May, a youth of nineteen, who had been remanded on a charge of stealing various securities, of the value of £3700, from his employers, Messrs. Phillips and Co., of Water-lane, Tower-street, and of forgery, was again brought up at the Mansion House on Saturday last. Prisoner had returned £1000; and on his wife, to whom he was married only the day before his arrest, jewellery of the value of £1500 was found, but only £5 in money. He was again remanded. The prisoner passed as Captain Macgregor, of the Indian army.

Charlotte Avis is in custody on a charge of stealing Mary Ann Caverly, aged five years, the daughter of a general dealer, who had spent several days in searching for his child. She had been missing since Saturday week. Avis was seen, last Saturday night, to go into a house in Drury-lane, where the child was afterwards found, nearly naked. Besides stripping the child, she had cut off its long hair.

Mr. Alexander Taylor, described as a gentleman, aged seventy, was fined 20s., at the Highgate Police Court, on Monday, for putting his arm round the neck of a girl aged fourteen, and attempting to kiss her in the street.

Owen Ellis Roberts, aged twenty-two, a medical student, living at Augustus-street, Regent's Park, was, on Monday, sentenced, at Marylebone, to two months' imprisonment and hard labour, for pushing rudely against a married woman who was walking along George-street, and assaulting her husband and a friend of his who were with her.

Having taken it into his head to make a burglarious descent upon a house at Edgware, in which he had been employed as page, an adventurous youth, named Joseph Clarke, hired a cab from Westminster to the scene of his intended exploits, coveting to pay the driver 15s. for the journey there and back. While the cab was kept waiting outside a gate, at half-past three in the morning, Clarke was busy at the latch of a window; but, being disturbed in his attempt to enter his late master's dwelling, he ran off, and was subsequently captured.

William Warden, of Gordon-terrace, Peckham, was fined £5 at the Clerkenwell Police Court, on Wednesday, for attempting to send a package containing vitriol by the Great Northern Railway without declaring its contents.

Henry Hughes was summoned at the Southwark Police Court, on Tuesday, for selling a pint of milk and water as genuine milk. The milk, on being analysed, was found to have three tenths of water and to be deficient in fat and cream. The defendant said the milk was not intended for sale. He denied having sold any adulterated milk. Mr. Partridge fined him £4 and £1 3s. costs.

By advice of their counsel, a batch of betting-men, who had been captured by the police and brought before Alderman Figgins at Guildhall, pleaded guilty, on Wednesday, and threw themselves on the mercy of the Court. They were fined in penalties ranging downward from £50 to £5.

A churlish cabman, who persisted in driving his horse and cab close against the leaders of a four-in-hand, driven by Sir Henry de Bathe, has been convicted of the offence, and fined £2 or three weeks' imprisonment.

A lad of sixteen years of age, who had been employed as a letter-carrier at Droylsden, was tried at the Ashton-under-Lyne Petty Sessions, on Wednesday, for retaining in his possession letters entrusted to him for delivery to the persons whose addresses they bore. The prisoner had "detained" 480 letters, only a few of which, it is stated, had been opened; and the prisoner's counsel pleaded on his behalf that the lad had no other motive for his act than to save himself the trouble of delivering the letters. It would appear that the Post Office authorities and the magistrates accepted the view of the prisoner's counsel, for he was only proceeded against for "carelessness and misconduct," and only sentenced to pay a fine of one guinea, or to suffer one month's imprisonment.

Two members of the Devon Volunteer Engineers were summoned by the Captain before the Torquay magistrates, on Monday, for neglecting to make themselves efficient, whereby the corps lost the capitation grant. The magistrate inflicted a fine of 10s. in each case.

Three young fellows, convicted at Leeds Assizes of garotte robberies, and sentenced to penal servitude of various terms, with twenty-five lashes each, underwent, yesterday week, the flogging. A batch of incorrigible prisoners, seven in number, were paraded in front of the halberds to take a lesson from the sufferings of their fellows.

At the Birmingham police court, on Wednesday, Henry Baker, grocer and tea-dealer, was fined 20s. and costs, under the Adulteration of Food Act, for selling adulterated tea. There had been purchased from the defendant, at 2s. per lb., some tea containing over seven per cent of talc, sand, and iron-filings; and the defendant told his customer that he could have "more genuine" at a better price.

At the Preston Sessions, on Saturday last, a domestic servant named Alice Lewis, eighteen years of age, who lived at Blackburn, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment for stealing her master's cash-box and £50. The prisoner's defence was that the robbery was committed by two men whom she named, and who, after breaking into the house, had chloroformed her to prevent her giving an alarm. Unfortunately for the young woman, the doors and windows were found securely fastened, and the stolen money was found, wrapped in her own handkerchief, secreted up a chimney in her own bed-room.

A robbery of bonds, stock, and other property, of the value of about £5000, has been committed at Weston-super-Mare. The Rev. T. P. Thirkill, of Cheltenham, has lately been staying at 10, Claremont-crescent, Weston-super-Mare, and a few days ago he missed from his bed-room a leather despatch-box, containing foreign bonds, railway stocks, bank notes, &c., of the value just stated. The robbery was supposed to have been committed by a fashionably-dressed man who was seen to leave the house by one of the servants, but whose respectable appearance entirely disarmed the domestic of any suspicions. A man of similar appearance was also seen to leave the houses of other gentlemen, and in one instance a gold watch, the property of Major Nutt, and in another a gold chain with seal and key attached, were missing immediately afterwards. A reward of £100 has been offered.

Two brothers named Thomas quarrelled on Sunday morning at Swansea, and in the course of the dispute one was killed by the other with a poker. The murderer was arrested after an hour's chase.—George Frederick Baker, a constable in the Salford police force, died on Sunday morning from the effect of a blow from a stone which he received on Saturday morning.—Thomas Atkins, the bargeman, who was suspected of the murder of the policeman May, at Snodland, Kent, has been arrested, and has made a confession.—John Mole, a labourer, was brought up at the Brentford Police Court, on Saturday, charged with violently dashing his son, only six years old, on the pavement, kicking and otherwise ill-treating him, so that he now lies in a precarious condition. The prisoner was remanded.—The body of Henry Wigg, the railway guard, who attempted to murder Miss Ellen Stone, at the Hero of Waterloo Tavern, last week, was found on Sunday morning, in the mud on the banks of the river, just past Lambeth Bridge, and opposite Lucas's Wharf. On the right side of the head was found a wound from a pistol-bullet. In a letter found on the body Wigg expresses his love for Ellen Stone, states his intention to commit the crime, on account of a sister of the woman prejudicing her against him, and leaves directions as to some money, amounting to over £100, he had saved. A coroner's jury has brought in a verdict that he destroyed his life while in an unsound state of mind. Ellen Stone is still in a precarious state.—Edward Abbott, who was sentenced to death at the last Somerset Assizes for murdering his infant daughter at Knowle, near Bristol, was reprieved on Saturday. The jury strongly recommended him to mercy; and four medical men have since certified that he is insane, and was so at the time he committed the deed.

Advantage is being taken of the absence of the Queen in Scotland to effect alterations and repairs at Windsor Castle.

The dispute in the lace trade at Nottingham is still unsettled, and nearly a thousand men remain on strike.

The construction of a canal to connect the Royal and the Old Docks at Grimsby has been begun. The work is of some magnitude, and will occupy two years and a half.

The Home Secretary has issued circulars to the local authorities throughout the country asking for returns showing the working of the Licensing Act.

Some cases of pneumonia having occurred at Wollington, near Banbury, the new edict of the Privy Council, which requires the affected animals to be interred, has been enforced.

At a meeting of the shareholders of the English and Jersey Union Bank, on Wednesday, it was decided to dissolve the bank, and to transfer the business to the Hampshire Banking Company.

An open-air wedding took place, on Thursday week, in the famous Pass of Brandir, N.B. The young couple resided at Bonaw, and their minister at Glenorchy, fourteen miles distant, and for mutual accommodation the parties met half way.

In London 2160 births and 1477 deaths were registered last week. After making due allowance for increase of population, the births were 59 and the deaths 8 below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The 1477 deaths included 1 from smallpox, 26 from measles, 16 from scarlet fever, 7 from diphtheria, 53 from whooping-cough, 38 from different forms of fever, and 277 from diarrhoea.

The old manorial estate known as Old Dalby Hall, about seven miles from Melton Mowbray, was sold last week. The mansion is a fine specimen of the Tudor style, having ample accommodation, and 343 acres of grass land and plantations, lying in a ring-fence. After a spirited bidding, the property was sold, in one lot, for £19,000, to Mr. John Wright, of Osmaston Manor, Derby.

Last Saturday, in the Grand Concert-Hall, Birmingham, Madame Laura had to discharge a six-barrelled revolver whilst standing on a lofty wire, when the revolver burst, portions of the weapon lodging in her face and breast. Notwithstanding the pain she was suffering, Madame Laura walked to the end of the wire and back, that being her only method of descending. On reaching the ground she fainted, but is now in a fair way of recovery.

Mr. M. T. Bass, the senior member for Derby, having promised the munificent sum of £5000 towards the erection of a free library, on the condition that the town should provide a suitable site, a resolution was unanimously passed at a meeting of the Town Council on Wednesday to the effect that the Corporation should be empowered at once to purchase the present site of the Free Library building and land adjoining, in the Wardwick, for £3800, the sum asked.

An extensive show of fruits, vegetables, autumnal flowers, and implements was opened on Wednesday in the gardens of the Manchester Botanical and Horticultural Society, at Old Trafford. About £1400 was offered in prizes, many of which were "open to the world," and some important contributions were received from the continent of Europe and from America. Altogether the entries numbered about 2400. The Queen, besides a donation of £25, contributed some of the choicest productions of the Royal gardens. The first-prize winners were her Majesty, the Earl of Strathmore, the Earl of Darham, the Earl of Bective, Lord Wharfedale, and Lord Carington.

There were great festivities at Merthyr Tydvil, on Tuesday, in honour of the coming of age of the eldest son of Mr. R. Fothergill, member for the borough, and proprietor of the immense ironworks at Abernant, Plymouth, and Pen-y-darren. The townspeople of Merthyr and Aberdare presented the young heir with an address and a handsome 200-guinea diamond ring. Shortly afterwards the medals which Mr. Fothergill had caused to be struck for the Welsh Choir, in commemoration of their recent victory at the Crystal Palace competition, were presented, a gold one being given to Caradog, the leader, and silver ones to the rest of the members of the choir.

Several suicides have been committed of late. At Chertsey, on Sunday, Mrs. Richard Graves, a lady of independent means, died from a self-inflicted wound in the throat. The deceased, who was much respected, had appeared very depressed since the death of her husband, some months ago. The same day, Mr. Thomas Baker, of Grafton Hall, Hornsey-road, aged forty, a partner in a firm of linen factors, who had lately laboured under the impression that a charge of libel was about to be preferred against him, committed suicide by shooting himself. The following paper was found on a chest of drawers:—"I am afraid the charge will be brought against me of which I am innocent. I swear to you, William and John, the charge is false. I only thought of [destroying myself] this morning. I shall be dead in a few minutes." At Green's Norton, Northants, Reynolds Brown, a respectable young shoemaker, who lived with his mother and two sisters, having shown strong symptoms of insanity, was put under restraint. A friend was sitting up with him at night, while two others slept in an adjoining room, when he suddenly darted up the chimney, and escaped. Five days afterwards he was found drowned in a neighbouring stream. On Wednesday morning the clothes of a man named Diacon were found on the banks of the Thames, near the railway-bridge at Eton Brocas. It is supposed that he has drowned himself.

ARCHDUKE ALBERT DISTRIBUTING THE EXHIBITION PRIZES IN THE RIDING SCHOOL AT VIENNA.

ROB ROY'S CAVE, LOCH LOMOND.

The Extra Supplement.

THE HAUPT ALLEE OF THE VIENNA PRATER.

However beneficial the Vienna Exhibition may prove to the city and to Austria generally, it will have been the cause of the destruction of much of the natural beauty of the Prater, the popular park of the Viennese. Not merely have many of its finest trees and some of its wildest thickets been sacrificed to the exigencies of the new industrial palace and the heterogeneous constructions crowding the park, but scores of new restaurants and Bier-Halles have been allowed to spring up on the greensward skirting the roads leading to the Exhibition, thereby converting much of the intervening space between the entrance to the Prater and the boundary of the Exhibition grounds into a kind of gimcrack town.

The Prater, which is situated at the eastern extremity of the city, is the favourite afternoon and Sunday resort of all classes of Viennese. It is intersected by three principal avenues, of which the central one—known as the Wursten Prater, with its circuses, its monkey theatre, its cafés chantants, its shows, swings, and merry-go rounds, and its cheap restaurants and Bier-Halles—is the one most in favour with the common people. The avenue on the left leads to hot Danube and the wilder parts of the Prater, while the one on the right hand is the Grand Avenue, or Haupt Allee, which is at once the Avenue de l'Impératrice and Rotten Row of Vienna, and where at five o'clock of an afternoon the rank, fashion, wealth, talent, and beauty of the Austrian capital congregate to be gazed at by the idle and the curious. This Haupt Allee, which is thickly planted with rows of trees, comprises a broad central road for carriages, a shady ride beneath the blossoming chestnuts for equestrians, and broad and narrow footways—the former conveniently bordered on the one side by restaurants and beer-gardens, and invariably crowded with pedestrians, the latter bounded by green sward and an artificial cascade. The military element predominates largely in the throng which here assembles, from grey-headed old Generals lolling back in their barouches, and dashing young cavalry officers in their mail phaetons driving their four-in-hands, down to the common soldier in tight blue pantaloons and the most lumpish-looking of recruits. Here, moreover, strange varieties of costume continually arrest the eye, including a squat Bohemian nursemaids in high jack boots, Tyrolese in tall hats and curling feathers, Hungarian officers bedecked with brandenbourgs, Slavonian peasants in huge flannel overcoats and with some bit of finery in their billycock hats, and patriarchal Jews in quaint headgear and long robes tied with girdles.

ROB ROY'S CAVE.

The scenery of Loch Lomond is considerably varied in its length of twenty-three miles, the breadth enlarging from a narrow strip of water at the upper end to an expanse of five miles at the lower, but frequently intercepted by very beautiful islands of a diminutive size. The upper or northern part is hemmed in by lofty mountains, which in some places descend to the water's edge by precipitous cliffs; and it is at such a place, six miles above Tarbet, on the opposite or western shore, that tradition has located the romantic den, or cave of the rocks, where that famous outlaw of the clan Macgregor, in the times of the Jacobite agitation, used to take refuge when hard pressed by King George's soldiery. The opening of the cave would scarcely be visible from the deck of a passing steam-boat, but it is marked by two circles painted on the stone beside it. As this place is not far from Inversnaid, where the steam-boat takes in parties of tourists from Loch Katrine, they often come to visit the favourite retreat of the renowned Highland freebooter. Wordsworth's moral reflections upon him, as well as the descriptions in Sir Walter Scott's interesting tale, may sometimes be recalled to mind:—

And thus among these rocks he lived,
Through summer heat and winter snow;
The eagle he was lord above,
And Rob was lord below.

Heaven gave Rob Roy a dauntless heart,
And wondrous length and strength of arm;
Nor craved he more to quell his foes,
Or keep his friends from harm.

Said generous Rob, "What need of books?
Burn all the statutes and their shelves;
They stir us up against our kind,
And, worse, against ourselves.

"The creatures see of flood and field,
And those that travel on the wind;
With them no strife can last; they live
In ease and peace of mind.

"For why? because the good old rule
Sufficeth them, the simple plan,
That they should take who have the power,
And they should keep who can.

"Since, then, the rule of right is plain,
And longest life is but a day,
To gain my ends and have my rights,
I'll take the shortest way."

A famous man is Robin Hood,
The English ballad-singer's joy!
And Scotland has a thief as good,
She has her own Rob Roy!

On Monday the new Act, passed in the late Session, to amend the law relating to salmon fisheries in England and Wales took effect. It contains penalties on selling salmon during close time—between Sept. 3 and Feb. 1—and provisions as to pickled salmon and fresh salmon in certain parts.

Several explosions are reported. The most singular occurred on board an Isle of Man steamer, on Monday afternoon. A passenger threw away a lighted fusee, which fell through a ventilator into a canister of gunpowder, out of which a seaman was taking a charge, in the bulkheads below. The seaman and several passengers sustained serious injuries. By an explosion of blasting-powder in a coal-mine near Sunderland two men were killed on Tuesday. There has been another explosion of gunpowder at the mills of Messrs. Curtis and Harvey. No lives were lost, but the injuries in one or two cases were severe.

At the Society of Arts' technological examinations, which have been held this year for the first time, the subjects selected being the manufacture of cotton, steel, carriages, silk, and paper, the examiners have reported favourably of the following candidates:—In steel manufacture, W. H. Warren, of Dublin, who obtains a first-class certificate, with a prize of £10, and the offer of a studentship of £50, given by her Majesty's Commissioners for the Exhibition of 1851. In carriage-building, T. F. Mullins, of Preston, who obtains a first-class certificate, with a prize of £5, and the offer of a similar studentship of £50; and M. Mullins and J. J. Heywood, who each obtain certificates and prizes. In cotton manufacture, Thomas G. Mills, of Lonsight, near Manchester, who obtains a first-class certificate, with a prize of £5. At the examinations of 1874 the same subjects will be continued, with the addition of glass manufacture, cloth, pottery and porcelain, and gas making.

FINE ARTS.

The autumn exhibition of modern pictures in oil and water colours, at the Free Library and Museum, Liverpool, opened on Saturday last. The collection fully maintains the high character attained on the re-establishment of annual exhibitions in Liverpool two years back, mainly through the exertions of Mr. E. Samuelson, the present Mayor. Among the principal works included in the exhibition are a portrait by Mr. G. F. Watts, R.A.; "Antique Juggling Girl," by M. F. Leighton, R.A.; "The Wounded Knight," by Mr. P. F. Poole, R.A.; "At Bay," by Mr. J. Pettie, A.R.A.; "Mary Queen of Scots in Lochleven Castle," by Mr. Calderon, R.A.; An English Stream," by Mr. F. Lee, R.A.; and "Parting Words," by Mr. C. W. Cope, R.A. The strength of the display resides, however, less in academic productions than in the contributions of young and rising men, among which are comprised "Good-bye—God Bless You," by P. E. Morris; "Le Lever de Monseigneur," by C. Calthrop; "Pompeii Destroyed," by F. W. W. Topham; "A Los Toros," by Haynes Williams; "The Lily Maid," by F. Sandys; "Abraham Sends away Hagar and Ishmael," by W. Gale; "Homeless," by H. B. Roberts; "The Love-Making of Orlando and Touchstone," by A. Hughes; "Soutram," by Miss Starr; "The Gadarene Swine," by V. Prinsep; "Mountain Stream—Glen Derry, Aberdeenshire," by J. W. Oakes; and other important figure and landscape subjects by A. Legros, G. H. Boughton, E. A. Goodall, R. S. Stanhope, T. Huxon, A. H. Tourner, C. N. Hemy, Walter Field, G. H. Garraway, E. C. Barnes, W. J. Callcott, Mark Anthony, R. W. Macbeth, W. L. Wyllie, W. J. Hennessey, J. MacWhirter, E. R. Taylor, S. Solomon, C. E. Perugini, C. J. Lewis, A. Vertunni, J. Backalowitz, H. Bourne, and others. The large collection of water-colour drawings include examples of many members of the societies and prominent outsiders. Among the local artists who are well represented are Messrs. Finnies, Bishop, Kerry, Dudley, and the late W. Davis.

While the Vendôme column of the French still waits to be re-erected the Prussians have raised their great new column or trophy of Victory on the Königsplatz at Berlin, and on Tuesday last, the anniversary of Sedan, it was unveiled with a splendid religious and military ceremony. The monument measures 195 ft. in height, and is the most colossal structure of its kind in Europe—the Arc de Triomphe de l'Étoile at Paris being a totally different design. The monument has a square base or podium composed of red Swedish granite, 62 ft. on each side by 22 ft. high, which rests on a flight of grey Silesian granite steps. The four sides of the podium bear reliefs 41 ft. by 6½ ft., illustrative of the three wars the monument is intended to commemorate. On the east side the subjects are preparations for war and the storming of Düppel, on the north side the battle of Königgratz and the meeting on the battle-field of the King and the Crown Prince, on the west side the battle of Sedan and the entry into Paris, on the south side the entry of troops into Berlin. This broad base supports an enormous column 160 ft. high, which is surmounted by a statue of Victory 40 ft. in height. A number of smaller columns, each 16 ft. high, and consisting of single blocks of granite, also rise from the pedestal and surround the lower part of the great column, forming a hall 50 ft. in diameter. The capitals of these columns are in bronze, as also three gilt bands on the column above the hall, the metal being cast from Danish, Austrian, and French guns captured in the campaigns of 1864, 1866, and 1870. Within the hall the whole surface of the main column is covered by mosaics illustrative of the military achievements of the Prussian and German people. The statue of Victory—winged and gilt—which surmounts the whole, stands upon eight Prussian eagles, and holds out a laurel-wreath with the right hand, while grasping in the left a spear, into the blade of which is inserted an iron cross. The monument contains 194 representations of engagements in the three campaigns which are claimed as Prussian and German victories. A figure of Germany in a mosaic of the hall is the Portrait of Queen Louise, the Emperor's mother.

Incredible as it may appear, it is seriously proposed to convert the ruins of Kirkstall Abbey, Yorkshire—ruins so dear to lovers of the picturesque, which have been the subject of some of the happiest efforts of Turner and other artists, and which attract thousands annually to their romantic desolation—into a modern Anglican church! Sir Gilbert Scott has actually undertaken to perpetrate this offence against good taste, this piece of vandalism, for it is virtually nothing better, and he has prepared his report, with the customary plausible suggestions for modernising and utilising the old monastic buildings. Surely the so-called "restoration" mania can no further go! At a recent meeting of the Architectural Association in Lichfield Mr. Sharpe, our best authority on the Cistercian buildings, of which Kirkstall is one, spoke so well on the subject that we cannot do better than give our readers the benefit of his experience and opinions. Mr. Sharpe said that a more unreal and untruthful application of the word "restoration" cannot be imagined than to use it in connection with the proposed conversion. Kirkstall Abbey was the conventual church of a Cistercian monastery, with, as usual, simple outlines, massive proportions, and peculiar divisions, to suit its two-fold character; its utterly plain appearance, devoid of all colour and ornamentation; its Puritanic, even poverty-stricken, simplicity was in keeping with its unmissable ritual. We all know, on the other hand, what sort of aspect the modern church that we shall have at the hands of Sir Gilbert Scott will present—with its alabaster reredos, its gilt choir-screens, its painted vaultings, its gaudy stained-glass windows, and its brilliant encaustic floor, after the £40,000 or £50,000 are expended that he proposes to lay out upon it. There is not, in this case, the pretext of necessity or even a useful object, for there is no lack of church accommodation in the district. Sir Gilbert Scott suggests the utilisation of the conventual ruins as a college for the education of clergymen. But a more unsuitable or unhealthy site, in the smoky suburbs of a large manufacturing town, could hardly be found. Nor would one of these additional buildings, admirably planned as they were for the requirements, the duties, and the occupations of a body of cloistered Cistercian monks, be at all suitable for the modern requirements of a college of English youths. It is hard to say who would gain by this so-called restoration; whereas to the archaeologist, the artist, and the art-student the loss would be irreparable. To them the glories of Kirkstall Abbey, as an object of picturesque interest, as an authentic record of a peculiar phase of the art-history of the Middle Ages, as a grand national monument, will be a thing of the past; for it need hardly be said that whatever the tool of the modern restorer passes over loses at once its authentic character and its historic value; and that Kirkstall Abbey will, from the day that its "restoration" is complete, and that it is delivered over, spick and span, to the Bishop of the diocese for consecration, be to all intents and purposes a modern church. We unite with Mr. Sharpe in protesting against the preposterous conversion of these ruinous remains "into a form which they never possessed, under the pretence of their application to a use for which they are ill-suited, and to satisfy which a building infinitely more convenient could be constructed at half the cost."

Mr. Reginald C. Oldknow, engineer, R.N., has written to the Times to remonstrate against the conversion of the campanile of Chichester Cathedral into a water tower, as proposed by a local company, and agreed to, as he says, by the Dean and Chapter. He deprecates the desecration of one of the few campaniles in England; and with regard to the alleged necessity of a lofty tank to preserve the cathedral from fire, he urges that there is a great difference between precautions for the security of a sacred edifice and the establishment of an elevated hydrant for the use of a whole town, probably to the injury of a wonderful piece of ancient architecture. He thinks the company, in which some of the cathedral authorities are said to be interested, should expend £600 in erecting a water tower.

M. Verlat's triptical picture of "La Mère du Messie et les Evangelistes," which, as we lately stated, is one of the most important works in the present Antwerp exhibition, has been purchased for the Musée of that town.

Mr. S. C. Hall, the well-known editor of the Art-Journal, has produced a little temperance tale in verse entitled "The Trial of Sir Jasper," which would deserve notice in this "Fine Arts" column were it only for the illustrations it contains by many of our leading painters and engravers; the designs being in all cases, we believe, gratuitously given to further the philanthropic object Mr. Hall had in view. The artist-contributors include Messrs. A. Elmore, T. Faed, W. C. T. Dobson, E. M. Ward, G. Doré, G. Cruikshank, J. Tenniel, G. H. Boughton, Cave Thomas, P. R. Morris, Birkett Foster, H. R. Robertson, F. D. Hardy, H. Anelay, and E. S. Kennedy; Sir John Gilbert, Sir Noel Paton, Mrs. E. M. Ward, and others. We need hardly say, after quoting the names of artists so many of whom are distinguished as designers, that the illustrations generally are of uncommon merit. A design by Mr. Cave Thomas symbolical of "The Golden Mean of Temperance," representing an angel standing with a pair of compasses that divide the distance between a string of monkish pilgrims, who indulge only in water from a stream, on the one side, and a crowd of drunken debauchees on the other, forms an appropriate frontispiece.

Two amphoræ, of the kind given as prizes to the victors at the Panathenaic games, have been recently dug up at Corneto, in Tuscany. On one of them is a painting representing Pallas standing and turned towards the left in a fighting attitude, with the lance in her right hand and the shield on her left arm. The vase also bears the name of "Phythodelas Archoi," a magistrate who governed B.C. 336, the year that Philip II., King of Macedonia, died. The vases are therefore valuable as showing Grecian art just before its decline.

Sixty curious statuettes in terra cotta have been placed in the Louvre which were brought from Tanara, in Bœtia, by MM. Dumont and Chaplin, as part of the fruits of their late voyage of discovery in Greece. They vary in height from 2½ in. to 10 in., and all represent women or children.

THE MAGAZINES.

The Cornhill contains only one highly-amusing contribution of much originality, but this is irresistible. It is the "grotesque" entitled "A Vision of Communism," in which the system is supposed to be logically carried out through all the details of life—the clever boys being forbidden to learn lest they should surpass the dull ones, pretty girls being disfigured to put them on an equality with their less favoured sisters, cripples and dwarfs receiving titles as a set-off against their incurable natural disadvantages. The idea is as old as Aristophanes, but is worked out with the spirit of a novel conception. "Young Brown" may also be described as amusing, but the moral tone is unpleasantly cynical, and the incidents, if not positively unnatural, are exceptional in the highest degree. We must also protest against the exhibition of public characters under transparent disguises, for the gratification, as it would seem, of personal pique. Miss Thackeray's "Jack in the Bean-Stalk" is not amusing, but it has merits of another sort. Employing for the first time her pen on a public question, the authoress has indited a simple, unaffected description of agricultural distress, impressive from its earnest feeling and quiet, unexaggerated power. There are sensible papers on physical education and the future of the co-operative movement, and a neat résumé of the reasons which induce astronomers to regard Saturn as "a miniature sun."

Fraser has a most unique contribution in a translation of a grotesque piece of mediæval Irish humour, entitled "Mac Conglinn's Vision," relating the liberation of King Cat from the pangs of a canine appetite. It is a wonderful glorification of good living according to the ideas of the country and period, and would enable us to reconstruct the Irish mediæval cuisine if some of the terms employed had not become obsolete. The translator, Mr. Hennessy, has pointed out its remarkable resemblance to some portions of Rabelais. "Birds of the Humber" is a charming ornithological essay, with graphic pictures of sporting and scenery in the fenny districts. A paper on Irish affairs advocates the abolition of the Lord Lieutenantcy; and one on Persian affairs insists on the expediency of a vigorous intervention in them or an entire renunciation of concern about them. There are interesting biographical sketches of two dissimilar individuals—the late authoress of "Paul Ferroll," some excellent specimens of whose poetry are given, and of Antoine Court, the restorer of French Protestantism in the first half of the eighteenth century. Few have accomplished a greater work under greater discouragements than this unassuming man, whose chief characteristics, after his self-devotion, were his eminent sobriety and soundness of judgment.

Macmillan is very uninteresting this month, except for the commencement of what promises to be an able essay on Petrarch and the continuation of Mr. Black's story, which is fully up to the mark.

The current number of Blackwood is excellent, because it is so characteristically Blackwoodian, full of humorous unreasonableness, and no less so of humorous vitality. It begins with a most entertaining satire on the prevalent mania for over-government—"How John was Drilled"—in which the absurdities of Civil Service examiners, local inspectors, &c., are exhibited with a rich vein of racy exaggeration, more mirth-moving than effective for the writer's purpose. The humour of the review (very poor in other respects) of Stephen's "Liberty, Equality, and Fraternity" may be appreciated from the grave contradiction of a report that the book caused the death of Mr. Mill. A panegyrist of Don Carlos, seeking to recommend his hero to English sympathies, brings forward his intention to prohibit the public exercise of the Protestant religion, which really does appear to be the only feature of his programme respecting which no question exists. "My Active Subaltern" belongs to a class of fiction peculiar to Blackwood. It depicts the farcical, yet tragical, career of an eccentric military character with a spirit and graphic power leaving nothing to be desired. The only exceptions to this general spirit of geniality are the captious, and to us unaccountable, strictures on two such enjoyable books as Sara Coleridge's correspondence and Mrs. Grote's memoir of her husband.

Mr. Chamberlain's onslaught on the Ministry in the Fortnightly Review may or may not have the significance of a party manifesto. The gist of his complaint seems to be that Ministers, being unable to reconcile the differences of their supporters on certain questions, have elected to go with the more numerous section. Mr. Chamberlain's claim amounts in effect to a demand that his minority should be considered a majority, which is impossible. The same remarks may be addressed to Mr. Morley, who, in advocating secular and rate-supported education with great force and eloquence, entirely overlooks the fact that his system is distasteful to the majority of the country, and that the attempt to enforce it would probably lead to the destruction of national education in any form. Abstract arguments directed to effect a change of public sentiment are fully in place; but it is idle to expect those responsible for legislation in the matter to act as though this modification had been produced already. In ignoring such practical considerations, Mr. Morley exposes himself to the charge he is so ready to bring against the clergy, of postponing education to his own shibboleth. General Cluseret's vindication of himself goes off the stage as lamely as it came on. Herr Gustav Cohn's sketch of the present condition of political economy in Germany contains an interesting sketch of the school of Academic Socialists, the writers who have undertaken to mediate between the laissez-faire doctrines of the Manchester school on the one hand and Socialism on the other. An investigation of singular beauty and delicacy into the principles of Greek art, by Mr. F. Cornish, results in the conclusion that the reproduction of the Hellenic type in any department of art is all but impossible; but that the endeavour must nevertheless be persisted in as an indispensable ingredient in modern culture.

Nonconformist grievances in the matter of education are temperately expounded by the Rev. R. W. Dale, in the Contemporary Review, with an evident wish for an amicable adjustment. The writer's practical conclusion, that the universal establishment of school boards should be the chief aim, is one that will commend itself to all friends of national education, but it must be feared that the dissensions provoked by Mr. Dale's friends have too much weakened the Liberal party for it to be at present capable of carrying such a measure. The number abounds with excellent articles. The current number of Mr. Spencer's contributions to sociological science is chiefly occupied with an able discussion of the congenital differences between the sexes. Mr. Snow's beautiful essay on "Natural Ordination," professedly advocating increased "liberty of prophesying" in the Church of England, takes in reality a much wider range. There are many shrewd remarks and excellent suggestions in Dr. Littledale's rather discursive paper on the relations of masters and domestics, which also covers more ground than it professes to do. We accept "Contemporary Evolution," by Mr. St. George Mivart, as an account in the main accurate, though occasionally tinged with prejudice, of the inevitable tendency of the diffusion of knowledge, and consequent exclusion of mere hypothesis respecting the universe.

The Month has several papers of unusual interest, the most important, perhaps, being a notice of the remarkable Russian travels of Macarius, patriarch of Antioch in the seventeenth century, brought from Asia to co-operate in the deposition of the Russian patriarch Nikon. There are also an account of the present condition of Christianity in Japan; an analysis of the Provençal poet Mistral's beautiful "Mireille"; an obituary notice of the late Mr. Hope-Scott, founded on an exquisite funeral address by Dr. Newman; and a biography of that curious parasitical saint Clement Brentano, who fairly forced himself into sanctity by his persistent devotion to an ecstatic nun, Anna Katharina Emmerich.

The Gentleman's Magazine is highly entertaining. We should have thought, however, that Mr. Hutton, in general so conspicuous for inexhaustible verve, would have had invention enough to dispense with the questionable introduction of a painful law case of public notoriety into "Clytie." The number is full of amusing light reading, and there is one excellent essay in a graver vein, that on Macaulay as a critic of Dante. The verdict on the historian in this capacity is not favourable.

The most remarkable item in the Transatlantic is the "Conclusion of Edwin Drood," through a medium. It also has two very interesting reprints—a narrative of Jefferson's presidential career from the Atlantic Monthly, and the reminiscences of a visitor to President Lincoln, from the Galaxy.

Temple Bar, Belgravia, Tinsley, the Saint James's Magazine, and London Society, all labour successfully for the amusement of readers who cannot be supposed to be very exacting at this time of year. Belgravia is the most successful of the five. We have also to acknowledge the Argosy, the Monthly Packet, Cassell's Magazine, the Quiver, Old and New London, Little Folks, the Popular Recreator, Popular Educator, Good Words, Once a Week, the Sunday Magazine, Golden Hours, Aunt Judy, the Leisure Hour, the Sunday at Home, and Ocean Highways.

Mr. F. W. Mozley, M.A., late Scholar of New College, Oxford, and Assistant Master in St. Paul's College, Stony Stratford, has been appointed to the second mastership of the King's School, Bruton. Mr. Mozley was placed in the first class in classical moderations.

Presiding at the annual meeting of the Dorchester, Weymouth, and Cerne District Labourers' Association, General Sir John Michel advised his hearers to refrain from joining benefit clubs or unions. He contended that working men are no better off than they were before the general rise in wages, inasmuch as food and clothing are dearer. He charged the unions with severing the links that bind classes together.

By virtue of an Act passed in the recent Session (36 and 37 Vic., c. 49), the Treasury is empowered to issue £3,000,000 out of the Consolidated Fund to the Public Works Loan Commissioners, to enable them to make loans to school boards in pursuance of the Elementary Education Act, 1870, and to sanitary authorities under the Public Health Act. The fifty-seventh section of 33 and 34 Vic., c. 75, provides that where a school board incur any expense in making or enlarging a school-house they may, with the consent of the Education Department, spread the payment over several years, not exceeding fifty, and may for that purpose borrow money on the security of the school fund and local rate, to bear interest at the rate of 3½ per cent. The Public Works Loan Commissioners may, on the recommendations of the Local Government Board, make loans under the Public Health Act for sanitary purposes at the same rate of interest, or any such rate as the Commissioners of the Treasury deem necessary, in order to enable the loan to be made without loss to the Exchequer. The Treasury may now, from time to time, cause to be charged on the Consolidated Fund £3,000,000 for school loans and sanitary loans at the disposal of the Public Works Loan Commissioners; and the National Debt Commissioners may invest money in their hands.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The intelligence that Tom French, the famous jockey, died on Saturday last caused quite a painful sensation among turf men, for, though it was known that he had long suffered from consumption, yet the latest bulletins were very favourable, and, indeed, it was rumoured that he hoped to be able to ride again this autumn. However, he suffered a relapse on the Friday, and died on the following morning. French was born in Liverpool in 1845, and was therefore in his twenty-ninth year. He was apprenticed at a very early age to James Godding, of Newmarket—who, it will be remembered, died only a few months ago—and, after about three years' tuition, was intrusted with a few mounts. He did nothing, however, to bring himself prominently into notice till 1869, when he secured both the Great Metropolitan and Chester Cup on St. Albans. These victories gave him plenty of mounts, and in the following year he scored twenty-two victories, this number being increased to thirty-eight in 1869. Forty wins in 1869 showed a steady advance in his profession, and among them was his brilliant victory in the Goodwood Cup on Isoline, who beat La Touques, "the French Blink Bonny," by a head, after a most punishing finish. In 1866 French was within an ace of winning the Derby on the outsider Savernake; but it proved an unlucky race for him, as it was of course said that "he must have won if," &c. The result of the St. Leger triumphantly vindicated his skill, and proved how unjust were these criticisms, for Savernake, in Chaloner's hands, ran the same horse to an ounce as at Epsom. The symptoms of consumption became more alarming in 1869—in which year he rode seventy-two winners—and since then he always left England for the winter. Early in 1870 he had a bad attack of bleeding from the lungs, and was earnestly advised by his medical attendants to relinquish his profession, as the only chance of prolonging his life. This, however, he refused to do, and was rewarded by winning the Derby—the height of every jockey's ambition—on Kingcraft in the same year. He was lucky enough to get a mount on Favonius at Epsom in the following season, as Maidment was required for Ripponden, and was thus enabled to repeat the achievement. Last year was his most successful one; for he rode seventy-five winners, and during the present season he had secured thirty-four races out of the 118 in which he had ridden. His last appearance was at Windsor about three weeks ago, when he won the Berkshire Cup on Trombone. French was a most elegant rider, with great length and power, and rare judgment. His honesty and integrity were unimpeachable, and in private life his modesty and really brilliant social qualities made him one of the most popular jockeys of the day.

Numerous meetings have taken place during the present week, but the racing has been of little importance. At Warwick Field Marshal managed to give the Hippia filly 36 lb. and defeated her by a head in the Warwick Cup. This is the third time in succession that she has finished second for an important race. The Tipster won the Wright Stakes at Richmond very easily, and has evidently improved considerably since the beginning of the season.

The St. Leger will be decided next Wednesday, and as the day approaches it is evident that the field will be a small one. The following will be found a reliable list of the probable starters and jockeys:—Doncaster (Webb), Marie Stuart (T. Osborne), Kaiser (Maidment), Gang Forward (Chaloner), Andred (Morris), Negro (Jennings), Chivalrous (Fordham), Wild Myrtle (Lowe), Little Savage colt (Archer), Bonny Bell filly (J. Osborne), and possibly Montargis (Carratt). The betting may be fairly quoted as "25 to 1 bar four," and, after Marie Stuart's very slovenly performance at York, one can scarcely doubt that the finish will be confined to Doncaster and the famous "Corsican Brothers," Kaiser and Gang Forward.

Last week was a disastrous one for Notts, as the eleven not only received its first defeat this season, but could make no sort of stand against Yorkshire. For the latter county Smith played a magnificent innings of 89, and Hill and Greenwood bowled in such irresistible form that Notts was beaten by an innings and 24 runs. Gloucestershire v. Sussex ended in a draw, the scoring being very heavy on both sides. For the former Mr. W. G. Grace (51), Dr. E. M. Grace (73), and Mr. F. Townsend (136), were the chief contributors to a total of 424; while Sussex had amassed just half that number for the loss of five wickets, Mr. J. M. Cotterill (78), Lillywhite (47), and Charlwood (not out, 54) doing good service.

In an exhibition match at billiards, at Southport, on Saturday last, W. Cook beat J. Roberts, jun., by 613 points. The winner scored breaks of 271 (71 "spots"), and 466 (152 consecutive "spots"). Kentfield, a famous old player, died last Friday week. He at one time held the championship, but resigned it to John Roberts, sen.

At the end of last week a great golf-match took place in St. Andrew's links, between Tom Morris, jun. (the champion) and Davie Strath. The game was 108 holes, and, after three days' play, the former was declared the winner by two holes.

The partridge-shooting season began on Monday, but the weather was generally unfavourable. Reports vary as to the condition of the birds in different parts of England.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

The annual prize meeting of the 38th Middlesex (Artists) took place, at Ealing, on the 28th ult. and the 1st inst. There were five series of prizes, comprising silver cups, objects of art, and some eight or ten valuable sketches by members and friends of the corps. A handsome silver challenge cup was added to the list by Messrs. Hartley, of Sunderland, for the highest aggregate score in the several competitions. This was won by Private Joy, who shot splendidly throughout, taking also the commanding officer's (Mr. F. Leighton's, R.A.) cup, the first choice of the sketches, and a prize given by Messrs. Heaton, Butler, and Bayne. Among the other prize-winners were Messrs. Roberts, Wilson, Heritage, Bridgman (who obtained a prize given by Mr. J. E. Chance, of Birmingham), Cleaver (a cup presented by Messrs. Sherlock), W. Spiers (who secured a majolica breakfast set, presented by Messrs. Minton, Hollins, and Co.), and Leonard (who won the prize given by Messrs. Mappin and Webb).

The results of the first competition for the champion badges of the county of Middlesex Rifle Association have been announced. Upwards of one hundred of the best shots of the county competed at the city of London rifle-ranges at Rainham. The conditions were the same as for the first stage of the Queen's prize at Wimbledon (seven shots at each of the ranges of 200, 500, and 600 yards), the badges in gold, silver, and bronze, to be won by the three competitors making the highest aggregate scores in this and a second competition to be held in October. The winners were:—Private J. Boarder, 18th Middlesex, and Private Wilson, 22nd Middlesex; Captain Dean, London Rifle Brigade, and Sergeant Brooking, 22nd Middlesex; Corporal Felton, 1st London Engineers; Captain Cunningham, 18th Middlesex; Private Longford, London Rifle Brigade; Lieutenant-Colonel Rimington, 2nd London; Private Watts, London Rifle Brigade; Bagle-Major Matthews, 2nd Middlesex; and Private McDougall, London Rifle Brigade, 63 points each. The first two gentlemen divide £9, the second two, £5; and the last seven, £6.

All the metropolitan volunteers who had received the sanction of the Secretary of State for War to take part in the manoeuvres at Cannock Chase have returned to London. The health of the troops, notwithstanding the hardships and privations they have endured, is reported to have been good.

Colonel North, M.P., after thirteen years' command of the 1st Administrative Battalion Oxfordshire, having found it necessary to retire, took leave of the corps at the last battalion drill at Banbury, when he invited the whole regiment to parade in the beautiful park at Wroxton Abbey, and gave an entertainment to all the officers and members in that noble and celebrated specimen of an English baronial hall. By a subscription, to which every member of the corps has contributed, a handsome piece of plate has since been presented to Colonel North by a committee of officers appointed for that purpose, with a suitable address, containing expressions of their deep regret at his resignation, their admiration for his high qualities as a commander, and their gratitude for his courtesy and liberality during the long period for which he has been their commanding officer.

The annual prize-meeting of the 1st Battalion Somersetshire began at Bath on Monday. Mr. Pry won the first prize in series A; Sergeant Meudum won the challenge cup in the next series—Sergeant Vincent, who made a higher score, being disqualified on account of a light trigger. The winners of the second and third prizes were Sergeants Mercer and Moger—Major Allen and Mr. Bright, the members for the county, being the donors. The prize for company volley-firing was won by the 17th (Bath). In series C, on Tuesday, Lance-Corporal Harrison and Private Fry won the prizes. The Mayor's prize was won by Lieutenant Moger—Sergeant Morgan, who was second, securing Sir C. Styles's money prize. Corporal Collins won the Corporation prize for marksmen, Private Hawkins being second for aggregate over all the ranges. Lord Grey de Wilton's prize was carried off by Sergeant Fowler.

On Thursday the 1st Hants Battalion went into camp at Hayling Island for seven days, under the command of Colonel W. Humphrey, of Penton Lodge, Andover.

NEW ROMAN CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL AT ARMAGH.

The ceremony of dedication of the Irish National Cathedral of St. Patrick, lately completed after thirty-three years from its commencement, in the city of Armagh, which is most venerable in the ecclesiastical history of Ireland, was performed on Sunday week in the presence of several hundred Roman Catholic Bishops and prelates. This building, of which we give an illustration, is on the north side of the town, midway between the railway station and the old cathedral held by the Protestant Episcopal Church, and lately restored by the munificence of Primate Beresford. It stands on the west side of Lower English street, in face of Bannbrook Hill, and nearly opposite to the Deanery and the Observatory. The foundation-stone was laid on St. Patrick's Day, in 1840, by the Roman Catholic Primate, Dr. Crolly. The architect of the original design was the late Mr. Duff, of Newry; but in 1854, after seven years' stoppage of the work, it was intrusted to Mr. J. J. McCarthy, R. H. A., of Dublin, Professor of Architecture in the Catholic University. He adopted a bold course in changing the style of the architecture. He has so far succeeded that to none but a professional eye would any material differences be observable between the earlier and later portions of the building. The main features of the original design were three great towers, with flat roofs, parapets, and angle pinnacles, carried up in continuation of the buttresses; and with depressed roofs, and pinnacle terminations to all buttresses, rising for a considerable height over the parapets. As the building now stands its most striking characteristics are two lofty spires, rising to a height of 210 ft. each, at the western end, steep roofs, and an absence of all pinnacles on the parapets. The cathedral is 206 ft. long, and across nave and aisles 75 ft. wide, but across transept 120 ft. The roofs of the nave, transepts, and Lady chapel are of hammer-beam construction, and are plastered in panels between the moulded ribs of woodwork. The height to the centre of ceiling is about 75 ft., and to the ridge of roof 91 ft. The nave is divided into five bays, each 18 ft. from centre to centre, the division being marked by a shaft of stone carried up to support the roof principals, and terminated under these in carved stone figures of different saints. Originally it was intended to have a central tower over the intersection of nave and transepts, but Mr. McCarthy abandoned that idea, probably for the purpose of keeping down expense, and the ceiling over the crossing is now a kind of dome, formed by the intersection of the transepts and nave roofs, and self-contained, as it were, by the four arches which were intended to support the tower. The building is very much more effective externally than internally. The elevated nature of its site, and the beautiful marble (for it is really built of Armagh marble) of which it is built externally, contribute no doubt to this result; but, on the whole, the structure is very handsome. The builder was Mr. Byrne, of Belfast; and the altars were executed by Mr. Purdy, of London. It is intended to proceed, after some time, with the erection of a sacristy, chapter-house, and residence for the clergy connected with the cathedral. The building now finished has cost from £60,000 to £70,000. This money has been raised entirely by collections, and it is worthy of being recorded that on Sunday week (the day of the consecration) over £6000 was collected in the church. This sum, with the money previously paid for admission, makes a total of close on £10,000, an amount never before equalled on a similar occasion.

A newly-erected home for orphan girls, which has cost £1450 exclusive of the site, has been opened in Cliff-road, Leeds. It is contemplated to build a similar home for boys.

The foundation-stone of a new Townhall for Dunoon, near Greenock, was laid, with Masonic honours, by Mr. Grieve, M.P., on Saturday last.

The heavy weather which has been experienced on the coast has rendered bathing dangerous, and accidents begin to be announced. At Dover Lieutenant Jennings, who went out while the tide was at its height, was swept off his legs by the under-current, and speedily drowned. His brother stood within a dozen yards of him on the beach, but could render no assistance. Two sisters, the Misses Webb, of London, were bathing in Shrinkle Bay, Manorbier, five miles from Tenby, when one, aged twenty, was drowned. The other was saved by Mr. Forde. Edmund Falls, aged thirteen, fourth son of Dr. W. S. Falls, of Bournemouth, lost his life while bathing in a rough sea. At Yarmouth, on Tuesday, a visitor from London, named Gold, while bathing some distance from the beach, suddenly disappeared as if attacked with cramp. Several persons went to his assistance, but he was swept away by the tide and drowned.

1. Haidorf's Peasant's Cottage.

2. Vorarlberg Peasant's Cottage.

3. Saxon Silesian Peasant's Cottage.

4. Silesian Peasant's Cottage.

MODELS OF PROVINCIAL RUSTIC DWELLING-HOUSES AT THE VIENNA EXHIBITION

THE AUTUMN CAMPAIGN ON CANNOCK CHASE.

BREAKING UP OF THE ROYAL ENGINEERS' CAMP: THE DEMON OF DARTMOOR.

THE NEW ROMAN CATHOLIC CATHEDRAL AT ARMAGH.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

Just published, post-free, 1s. 6d.
THE ORGAN : Hints on its Construction,
Purchase, and Preservation. By W. SHEPHERDSON, M.C.O.
RAVENS AND TURNER, 185, Fleet-street, London.

Now ready,
CRACROFT'S INVESTMENT TRACTS,

Sixth Edition:
CRACROFT'S TRUSTEES' GUIDE,
Being a Synopsis of the powers of Investment ordinarily given to Trustees, with General Directions and Tables of Securities.
By BERNARD CRACROFT,
5, Austin Friars and Stock Exchange, London.
Price One Shilling;
by Post, One Shilling and Threepence.
E. STANFORD, Charing-cross, London.

EXTRACTS FROM NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

"Contains a useful summary, expressed in plain and concise language, of the effect of recent statutes, and many of the cases on the subject. The tables are most conveniently arranged, and cannot fail to prove useful to all investors."—Solicitors' Journal.
"Promises to be a publication of great practical utility. . . . Directions very brief and clear. . . . Each case appears with every important point of law clearly stated. . . . Contains intrinsic evidence of extreme care having been used. Part of the work consists of Tables of Securities. A dictionary of this nature will be extremely useful to solicitors themselves. The compilation of this part of the work has also been made with great care and accuracy. It contains an index of detail. . . . We question if there is a more useful or more satisfactory shilling's worth in the whole range of modern literature. . . . It is an admirably compiled work, comprehensive, accurate, and easy of reference. . . . English Churchman. "It is impossible to see the figures in the quantity of data is presented, and the manner in which it is presented, and the quantity of data is presented, and the manner in which it is presented. . . . A very great boon to the investing portion of the British public."—Notes and Queries. "Full and clear. . . . A most useful and valuable work. . . . Needs but to be known to be appreciated."—Bullionist. "Invaluable as a guide to investors by trustees."—Value. "For general reference."—Birmingham Morning News. "A very valuable guide to trustees and investors in securities."—Post. "A useful volume of directions for persons who have to deal with trust property."—Herald. "The Tables of Securities are elaborate and useful. The whole publication is probably the most important that Mr. Cracroft has yet issued."—Conservative. "The best and the cheapest handy-book of the kind of the kind."—Every-day. "In every way worthy the attention of those who have money to invest either for themselves or for others in trust."—The Press and St. James's Chronicle. "A mass of information which can nowhere else be found in a shape so lucid and concise."—Manchester City News. "Extremely valuable, not only to the trustee but to the ordinary investor."—Halifax Times. "An elaborate and exhaustive work."—Brecon County Times. "Widely interesting to all merchants and capitalists in the civilized world."—from The Trustee's Guide shows in what cases trustees may invest, and contains useful directions. . . . Gives the prices of the last four years. . . . Information so classified that the position and value of any security may be seen at a glance."—King's College Gazette. "Consistently prepared."—Western Times. "The guide is a most valuable and popularly written 'money market'."—Fife-shire Advertiser. "One of the most remarkable publications of this remarkable publishing age. . . . An array of facts relating to investments of all kinds which is perfectly marvellous. . . . Does not profess to estimate the value of particular investments as speculations. . . . Ought to be in the hands of every capitalist."—Shrewsbury Journal. "Wherever we have tested the accuracy of the information given we have found it perfect."—North British Daily Mail. "Here, in a book of 150 pages, is condensed a vast amount of information which could not be otherwise obtained without undertaking a long and wearisome search through returns of the Board of Trade, statistical returns, and records of public companies."—Tonbridge Directory. "Will be appreciated by commercial men quite as much as by trustees. . . . It is a book which will be warmly welcomed by the business world."—Somerset County Gazette. "The main recommendation, apart from its conscientiousness, is the fact that—so far, at least, as we know—there was no book of the kind in existence."—York Herald. "The want of such a guide in relation to investments by trustees has long been expressed."—Farmers' Herald. "Cannot fail to be of immense value to trustees."—Lincolnshire Chronicle. "Very excellent publication."—Cheshire Observer. "A capital and a creditable work, evinces an enormous amount of labour, and ought to be in the hands of every trustee."—Express. "It is the best and only work of the kind we have seen."—Kent Standard. "An invaluable book for capitalists."—Canterbury Gazette. "We can conscientiously recommend this most useful manual."—Stratford-upon-Avon Herald. "Have never seen any work which contains so much of fact carefully condensed and digested and shown in the most clear and concise manner possible."—Birkenhead Guardian. "A long-sought and much-desired want by both lawyer and layman."—Isle of Wight Observer. "A most valuable work, . . . a most complete compendium is of the most useful character, and should find a place in every merchant's office."—Norwich Mercury. "The first book of its class ever published, and we heartily commend it to merchants, speculators, and investors."—Stroud News. "A large amount of most reliable information, and a most complete work of a comprehensive and thoroughly trustworthy character."—Oxford Chronicle. "The result of great knowledge and experience, and of extreme importance to all persons who are placed in the position of trustees."—Isle of Ely Gazette. "Must prove of the greatest service to trustees and investors."—Northampton Herald. "An authority on investments and securities. . . . Must have cost an immense amount of labour, and is well worth the money."—Walsingham. "We welcome it as promising to supply a want that has long been felt."—Nottinghamshire Guardian. "To every trustee, accountant, and shareholder this bulky pamphlet is indispensable."—Richdale Observer. "Will be a useful book to many who undertake the onerous, thankless, and sometimes disastrous burden of a trust."—Nottingham Daily Express. "A more valuable work of the kind we have seen."—Salisbury Times. "Gives the highest and lowest selling prices, &c., from 1868 to the present time. . . . A most useful manual."—Gateshead Observer. "The tables are as clear and readily understood as a schoolboy's map."—Engineering and Building Trades. "This is unique in its kind, and the want of some such guide in relation to investments by trustees has often been expressed by both lawyers and laymen."—Clifton Chronicle. "An amount of information is here presented which has never been presented before in any complete form."—Somerset County Herald. "May be regarded as most valuable to the investor."—Yarmouth Gazette. "A perfect financial directory. . . . Only requires to be known to be highly appreciated."—Barnes Times. "Issued at a marvellously low price. . . . Contains a really surprising amount of well-compiled information."—Bristol Daily Post. "Invaluable to all having money to invest."—Berks Telegraph. "Exceedingly useful to trustees."—Walsall Free Press. "Many others besides trustees will find the book useful."—West Surrey Times. "Trustees should all possess it."—Malvern News. "The work is a very useful one for every investing business, stocks and shares."—Dewsbury Chronicle. "A clear, concise exposition of a trustee's powers of investment, and copies of necessary documents, followed by elaborate and carefully-prepared lists of the various investments open to trustees, with the securities on which they are held, the dividends they yield, and their prices during the last three years."—Bath Express. "This admirable manual."—Public Opinion. "Exactly the sort of one which trustees may safely apply to for information and guidance."—Richdale Observer. "Will be of use not only to trustees, but to members of the legal profession in advising their clients as to what securities they should select for investments."—Newark Advertiser. "In quantity alone this is a good shilling's worth, but in quality it is worth twenty—ay, fifty times its cost. We feel confident trustees will be very thankful for having placed within reach so valuable a work."—Exeter Flying Post. "Meets a popular want; sure to command a large circulation."—Leicester Daily Post. "One of a series of useful works on investments published by Mr. Bernard Cracroft."—Malden Advertiser. "Clear, concise, lucid."—Metropolitan.

THE NEW METHOD OF GROWING FRUIT AND FLOWERS. By the Rev. JOHN FOUNTAINE, Southcote, Brandon. Being a practical combination of Vinery, Orchard-house, and Conservatory, as now worked in a new house erected for the purpose at Chiswick. Fourth Edition, Illustrated. Free for seven stamps to the JOURNAL OF HORTICULTURE OFFICE, 171, Fleet-st.; or to the Author.

GOUT AT THE HEART. The immediate and most probable causes of Heart Disease in relation to hysteria, syncope, palpitation, oppression of the chest, epileptic fits, and other nervous affections, explained in a synopsis by Dr. ELDRIDGE SPRATT, eighteen years attendant to the National Hospital for Diseases of the Heart, Newman-street, Oxford-street. By post, 1s. 6d. pp. 18. HENRY TWEEDIE, 337, Strand.

DISEASES OF WOMEN Specially Treated at the BURGICAL HOME, BOLTON HOUSE, Clapham-road, Surrey, conducted as a Private Hospital, and ensuring to Patients Medical Supervision and Appliances such as cannot be secured at their own residences. Physician, David Jones, M.D. Consultations Daily at town residence, 15, Welbeck-street, Cavendish-square, from eleven till one, or by letter enclosing fee.

IS CANCER CURABLE? An Answer to Dr. Madden's Pamphlet on "Cancer Quacks and Cancer Cures." By JOHN PATTON, M.D. Un. New York. Price One Shilling. RIDDLE and COVEMAN, 49, Watling-street, London, E.C.

Now ready,
THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK for 1874, containing Twelve Engravings of the Coasting Craft of All Nations, from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licenses; Railways, Remittances, Postage Regulations, and a great variety of Useful and Interesting Information. The Trade supplied by G. VICKERS, Angel-court (172), Strand and H. Williams, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

WORKS ON ART, Published by J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, and obtainable at all Artists' Repositories.

Price 2s. 6d., with facilities of Drawings and many Illustrations.
LANDSCAPE-PAINTING AND SKETCHING FROM NATURE. By JOHN CHOSER. Edited by the Rev. J. Harris, M.A.

Fourth Edition, price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 2d.,
HOW TO SKETCH FROM NATURE. By NEWTON FIELDING. With numerous Illustrations.

With Coloured Diagram, price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 2d.,
WHAT TO SKETCH WITH. By EDWARD FIELDING.

With four Illustrations printed in Colours and numerous Engravings, price 1s.; post-free 1s. 2d.,
WATER-COLOUR PAINTING, Theoretical and Practical; and the Art of Sketching from Nature. By L. C. MILES.

With Coloured Plates and diagrams, price 1s.; per post, 1s. 2d.,
LANDSCAPE-PAINTING IN OIL COLOURS. By WALTER TOMLINSON.

Now ready (One Shilling), No. 165,
THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for SEPTEMBER, with Illustrations by Marcus Stone and George du Maurier.

Young Brown. (With an Illustration.) Book II. VI.—Good for Nothing. VII.—A Recruit. VIII.—So Be It. IX.—The Ten-Found Note. X.—Taken into Custody.

Book III. I.—A Fashionable Wedding. II.—The Duchess of Courthope. III.—Marquis of Kingscar.

The Ringed Planet. A Vision of Communism: A Grotesque. Jack in the Bean-Stack. Cooperative Stores. Physical Education.

Zelda's Fortune. (With an Illustration.) VIII.—King Cophetua. IX.—An Episode. X.—Miserrimus.

SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

ON OCT. 1 WILL BE PUBLISHED
THE NEW QUARTERLY MAGAZINE.

Price 2s. 6d.
A High-Class Literary and Social Periodical. The "New Quarterly Magazine" will contain more printed matter than any published magazine. The Magazine will contain, in addition to Papers on Topics of Social and General Interest, Two or more Tales of considerable length by eminent writers. The tales will invariably be completed in the Number in which they appear.

The Magazine will be written by Authentic Works of Travel and Biography. A very high literary standard will be maintained.

Travels in Portugal. Our Next War. The Ringed Planet. A Novel. By John Dangerfield, Author of "Grace Tolmar." Rabelais. A Critical Biography. A Spiritualistic Science. Horses and Riders. Giulio Vecconti, Poet and Painter. A Tale.

Annual Subscription, 11s., payable in advance.
LONDON: WARD, LOCK, and TYLER, Paternoster-row.

CHESS, WHIST, BILLIARDS.
THE WESTMINSTER PAPERS, No. 64, for OCTOBER, 6d. The Vienna Tourney, Result and 20 Games, noted by Wisner and Zukertort; 14 Problems. Three Whist hands; a Scotch Billiard guide in relation to Whist; a Scotch Billiard Article.

KEST and Co., Paternoster-row; Morgan, 67, Barbican, E.C.

OLD MOORE'S PENNY ALMANACK, improved and increased in size, for 1874, will be published next Monday. The first issue of 300,000 copies will be followed by a second and larger issue as soon as possible, with "more" to come in due season.—Ask for "ROBERTS'S" Edition.

SCRAPS FOR SCREENS and Scrap-Books. Flowers, Fruit, Birds, Landscapes, &c., in great variety, from 1s. per sheet. One dozen assorted 10s. 6d.
WILLIAM BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

VITREMANIE—A New Process for the DECORATION OF CHURCH, STAIRCASE, and other WINDOWS, with Perfect Transparency, Richness and Beauty of Colour and Design, and Small Cost. Instructions, enabling any Lady or Gentleman to perform the work, post-free, 2 stamps.
J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London.

VITREMANIE—WINDOWS of all Kinds DECORATED by this beautiful process, by Experienced Workmen, at moderate prices. Plans and Estimates free of charge.
J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London.

OLEOGRAPHS and ENGRAVINGS. A large assortment of beautiful landscapes and figure subjects, from all the best masters, at reduced prices. Exporters supplied.
GEO. REES, 41, 42, 43, Russell-street, Covent-garden.

RODRIGUES'S MONOGRAMS, CRESTS, and ADDRESSES designed, and Steel Dies engraved as gems. Note-Paper and Envelopes stamped in colour relief and brilliantly illuminated in gold, silver, and colours.—42, Piccadilly, London, W.

VISITING-CARDS, at H. RODRIGUES'S. A card-plate elegantly engraved and 100 superfine cards printed for 4s. 6d. Full Programmes and Bills of Fare arranged and printed in the latest fashion.—42, Piccadilly, W.

CREME DE LA CREME (the New Court Note-Paper), made from Charta Perfecta (Registered). The Public are respectfully CAUTIONED that the NEW COURT NOTE PAPER is to be had only of JENNER and KNEWSTUB, to the Queen, Herald Engravers and Stationers by Special Appointment to Her Royal Highness the Princess and Princess of Wales. Specimens of Monograms, Stamping, and Charta Perfecta free.
22, St. James's-street, and No. 66, Jermyn-street, S.W.

DUCHESS MARIA COIFFURE. A Novel Arrangement of Long Hair, which enables a Lady to dress it in any desired style. The design sent on receipt of stamped envelope.—24, Piccadilly, and 6, Belgrave Mansions, S.W.

LADIES' ORNAMENTAL HAIR. UNWIN and ALBERT, Court Hairdressers, 24, Piccadilly, and 6, Belgrave Mansions, Finsbury, invite inspection of their Perukes and Coverings for Thin Partings, perfect copies of nature.

THE FASHION. Coils of Long Hair and High Spanish Combs, with Curl falling on the Neck. UNWIN and ALBERT supply the Coils, 2s. 6d. long, for 21s.; Combs, 5s.; Curl, 10s. 6d., on receipt of P.O. order.
24, Piccadilly; and 6, Belgrave-mansions, S.W.

HAIR DYE—BATHOLOLOWS INSTANTANEOUS COLUMBIAN, New York Original Packages, the best in the world, black or brown. The only one that remedies the evil effects of bad dyes, &c. 6d., 7s., and 10s., of all Perfumers and Chemists.—Wholesale, R. HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.

NUDA VERITAS. GREY HAIR RESTORED by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. Price 10s. 6d. Testimonials post-free.—HOVENDEN, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GOLDEN HAIR—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted not to injure the hair. Price 5s. 6d., and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C., London; Pinaud and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris; 31, Graben, Vienna; 44, Rue des Longs Champs, Brussels; Cassell, Hazard, and Co., Fifth Avenue, Broadway, New York.

DOES YOUR HAIR TURN GREY? Then use HERRING'S PATENT MAGNETIC BRUSHES and COMBS. Brushes, 10s. and 15s. each. Combs, 2s. 6d., 5s., 7s., 10s., 15s., and 20s. each. Pamphlets upon application.—5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.; and of all Perfumers.

CROWN PERFUMES. THE GRAND PRIZE MEDAL OF MERIT has been unanimously awarded for these Perfumes, with many compliments from the president of the Jury, who said he had never seen finer goods.

MEADOW QUEEN, TANGLEWOOD, BOUQUET, MATHOLA, and Two Hundred other different Odours, distilled by THE CROWN PERFUMERY COMPANY, 40, Strand, London.

For sale by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 2s., 3s. 6d., and 5s. 6d. per Bottle.

NEW MUSIC.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S New Sacred Part Song, for full choir, SONG THE TRUMPET IN ZION. Sung by the Welsh Choir at the National Eisteddfod, Mold, Flint, and received a hearty encore. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S highly popular ELEMENTARY WORKS.—Hamilton's Modern Instructions for Singing, 45th Edition, 6s.; Clarke's Catechism of the Rudiments of Music, 15th Edition, 1s.; Hamilton's Dictionary of 3500 Musical Terms, 10th Edition, 1s.; Clarke's Catechism of Thorough Bass, 2s.; G. F. West's Questions Relating to the Theory of Music, 11th Edition, 1s.—New Burlington-street.

LET THE HILLS RESOUND.—"Most people by this time are familiar with the spirited part song, 'Let the hills resound,' which has proved the second great success of Mr. Brinley Richards. The author has now arranged it as an easy, fitting piece for the pianoforte."—Vide the Graphic, 4s.; free by post, 2s. 6d.; as a Part Song, 12 stamps; the Glass Copy, 4 stamps; as a Solo, 6 stamps.
London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

HANDEL'S GRAND MARCH IN SCIPIO. Edited and Arranged for the Pianoforte by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. 3s.; post-free for 18 stamps.
Published only by ROBERT COCKS and Co.

CATALOGUES for AMATEURS and the MUSICAL PROFESSION. Gratis and post-free.

Pianoforte. Vocal Solos, Duets, and Trios. Flute. Violin. Organ. Clarinet. Violoncello. Bass. Piano. Elementary Works. Organ (Cathedral).
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

REMINISCENCES OF MENDELSSOHN. SCOTCH SYMPHONY for the PIANOFORTE.—"Mr. Geo. F. West has succeeded in producing a sterling transcription of Mendelssohn's Scotch Symphony, which all lovers of classical music will hail with gratification."—Vide the Graphic. "Mr. West has accomplished his task reverently and well."—Vide Orchestra, 4s.; post-free for 24 stamps.—London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

PINSUTI'S NEW SONGS, post-free at half price in stamps.

WHAT SHALL I SING TO THEE? 3s. IN SHADOW LAND. 3s. BEAR GENTLY, TIME. 3s.
London: Published only by ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE TORRENT GALOP. For the Pianoforte. Composed by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. Finely Illustrated Title. 4s.; post-free for 24 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE MOSELLE QUADRILLE. For the Pianoforte. Composed by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. Beautifully Illustrated Title. 4s.; free by post, 24 stamps.
London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street. Order of all Music-sellers.

I LOVE MY LOVE. By CIRO PINSUTI. "Signor Pinsuti has produced nothing happier than the fresh, brilliant song before us. It is useful without being commonplace, and it is accompanied in masterly fashion."—Queen. Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

ESMERALDA. LEVEY'S Popular Song. "One of the brightest modern compositions of its kind."—Standard. The Song, in D, E, or F, 4s. For Piano, by Kuhn, 4s.; Richards, 4s.; Bockholt, 4s. 6d.; as a Part Song, 12 stamps. Half price. DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

NEW SONG BY LADY BAKER, THIS WORLD IS FULL OF BEAUTY. The words by Gerald Mozey. Sent for 2s. Lady Baker's favourite song, "When the Bunnies are Asleep," also in DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

DREAM OF ANGELS, LITTLE ONE. New Song, by FRANZ AIT. One of the celebrated Composer's most charming songs. Sent for 2s. DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S best NEW SONGS. Would you be a Sailor's Wife? 4s. O Willie, Boy, come home. 4s. Passing Ship, in 2 and 4 parts. 4s. Half price.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

CHARLES HALLE'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. Sections 1, 2, and 3, Elementary, Easy, and Moderately Difficult; also, eight numbers of Section 4, Difficult, and more ready. Prospectuses, containing full particulars and price, may be had of FORTY-SEVEN BOOKS, London, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street.

RAMIRO VEGA'S LAST NEW SONG. HER VOICE. All lovers of real vocal art will find this charming song most effective either for public or private singing. Half price, 2s., post-free.
R. MILLS and SON, 140, New Bond-street.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT for NICOLE. FERRER'S celebrated Instruments. A very choice selection of Boxes, playing the most popular Airs. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and post-free.—11 and 12, Cornhill, London.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT, 22, Ludgate-hill, London.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing best secular and sacred music. Prices 4s. to £100. Sixtyboxes from 18s. to 80s. Largest Stock in London. Catalogues gratis and post-free.—Apply to WALKES and MULLOCH, as above.

CLARKE'S MINIATURE STEAM-BOATS. The smallest steam-boat in the world; warranted to propel by steam in fifteen minutes. Post free for 21 stamps.
H. G. Clarke and Co., 2, Garrick-street, Covent-garden.

THE LATEST SHILLING WONDER. THE VIENNESE FAIRY FOUNTAIN throws a 4-ft. jet of perfumed water. An elegant and charming drawing-room novelty. By post 2 stamps extra.—MANDELS, St. Mary's, Southampton.

GOLD COINS FOR SALE.—FIVE GUINEA and Two-Guinea Pieces, Nobles, Angels, Guineas, and Half-Guineas. Also some Silver Coins.—Address, WALTER JAMES (at Mrs. Grayson's), No. 6, Wellington-street, Leeds.

BENSON'S WATCHES and CLOCKS. These far-famed Watches suit all pockets, all tastes, all climates, and the means and occupations of everyone. Two hundred have already been sold, and are in all parts of the world, ranging in price from 2s. to 20s. See Illustrated Watch and Jewellery Pamphlet, post-free, 2d. each, for prices, &c. Watches sent safe by post to all parts of the world.—Old Bond-street and Ludgate-hill.

ORIOLE GOLD.—Alberts, 5s.; Lockets, 3s. 6d.; Long Chains, 7s. 6d.; Earrings, 4s.; Brooch, 4s.; Snake Rings, set with Alaska Diamonds, 5s. 6d.; Seals and Keys, 4s. 6d. Price List free.
D. HOLT, 35, All Saints-road, Westbourne Park, London, W.

TINTED SPECTACLES.—Testimonial from the Right Rev. Lord Bishop Beccles:—"I have experienced such very great comfort in the use of your tinted glasses that I never fail to recommend them."—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, Abchurch-lane, Piccadilly.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for PAINTING, FERN-PRINTING, and DECALCOMANIE. Screens, Boxes, Paper-Knives, &c. Price-Lists on Application.
WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

COLT'S NEW BREECH-LOADING LARGE-BORE DERINGER PISTOL can be carried in the waistcoat pocket. Shoots accurately, and with great force. Price 20s. New supply of superior Cartridges. Colt's New Breech-Loading Central-Fire Revolvers have the Boxer Cartridge.
Address: Colt's Firearms Company, 14, Pall-mall, London.

GASOLIERS, in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze, Medieval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

OSLER'S CRYSTAL GLASS CHANDELIERS. Table Glass of all kinds. Chandeliers in Bronze and Ormolu. Moderator Lamps and Lamps for India.
London: Show-Room, 45, Oxford-street, W. Birmingham—Manufacture and Show-Room, Broad-street.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT IN PIANOFORTES.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be seen and tested at JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS, 18, Wigmore-street, London, W., on and after Oct. 1, 1873.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT is the Latest Invention, by JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS, 18, Wigmore-street, London, W.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT will be found to possess THE VOLUME OF TONE of a true Horizontal Grand Pianoforte.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT will be found to possess THE SWEETNESS OF TONE of a true Horizontal Grand Pianoforte.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT will be found to possess a VOICE-LIKE QUALITY OF TONE.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT will be found to possess a BEAUTIFULLY LIGHT AND ELASTIC TOUCH.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT will be found to possess INSTANTANEOUS REPEITION OF TOUCH.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT will be found to possess a MOST LASTING AND BRILLIANT QUALITY OF TOUCH AND TONE.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT will be found to possess EXTREME DELICACY OF ACTION.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT will be found to possess GREAT SIMPLICITY OF CONSTRUCTION.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT will be found to possess GREAT REDUCTION OF FRICTION.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT IS GUARANTEED FOR FIVE YEARS.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE PIANOS, for the price of Six Guineas.

THE NEW BICHORD PICCOLO GRAND IMPROVEMENT may be applied to JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' COTTAGE

"For the rain it raineth every day."—Shakespeare.

SANITARY CLOTH PALETOTS for MEN and CLOAKS for LADIES, throw off rain, and do not contract perspiration. Gold Medal awarded for Russia, 1872; also, the Grand Medal of Merit, Vienna, Exhibition, 1873. Demand Great. Agents, sent in London by FRANK FULLER and CO., Nos. 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

NEW MUSIC.

FRIDOLIN. A Dramatic Cantata, composed by ALBERTO RANDERGER, performed at the Birmingham Festival with immense success. The Score Complete, for Voice and Piano, paper cover 6s. 6d. Ditto, ditto, bound in cloth 10s. 6d. "Repos and Peace" (Song by Madame Sherrington) 2s. 6d. "Wildest Conductor" (Song by Mr. Santley) 2s. 6d. PIANOFORTE. Nava's Three Subjects from "Fridolin" 2s. 6d. No. 1. Hunting. 2. Chorus of Handmaidens. 3. Dance and Chorus of Villagers. N.B.—The separate Chorus and Orchestra Parts may also be had, and other Pianoforte arrangements are in the press. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

LA BELLE HELENE. Performed at the Alhambra with immense success. Opera complete, Voice and Piano 18s. Belle Helene Waltz. Strauss 4s. Belle Helene Quadrille. Strauss 4s. Fantasia by Kube 4s. Fantasia by Favarier 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES. IVY LEAVES. Polka. Illustrated. 2s. HAWTHORN BLOSSOMS. Petit Morceau. Illustrated. 2s. MOONLIGHT STROLL. Rondeau de Salon. Illustrated. 2s. ALPINE ECHOES. Reminiscence. Illustrated. 2s. Post-free, 1s. 6d. each.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LOUISA GRAY'S NEW SONGS. CHANGED. 2s. BLIND GIRL'S DREAM. 2s. IT WAS EARLY IN THE SPRINGTIME. 2s. Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW MARCH ROMAINE. Companion piece to the celebrated "Silver Trumpets." Composed expressly for the Pope. Price, for Piano, Organ (with pedal obligato), or Harmonium, 2s. Piano Duet, 4s. Full Orchestra, 8s.; Septet, 2s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM. ORIGINAL VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs by GEORGE ROBERTSON, F.R.S. Price, 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is written." CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES. CHAPPELL and Co. have an immense Stock of Secondhand Pianofortes, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Chappell, and other good makers, just returned from hire, which they can offer at exceptionally low prices. Discount for cash.—50, New Bond-street, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE. In Canadian Walnut or Mahogany Case. Price TWENTY GUINEAS. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. It has the merit of standing well in tune, and is capable of enduring hard school practice without going out of order.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT PIANO. With Folding Keyboard, Check Action, Trichord Frame. In Solid Mahogany or Black Canadian Walnut Case. THIRTY GUINEAS; or in Maple, THIRTY-FIVE GUINEAS. Constructed for Ships' Cabins, to occupy the smallest possible space, and to stand the damp of a sea voyage; the back is strengthened with iron bars and metallic plates, and the whole of the mechanism is of the best quality.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DULCIANA ORGAN HARMONIUM. by Alexander.—This new instrument is especially adapted to the Drawing-Room. It has the sweetest tone possible, resembling the soft dulciana stop of the best organ, and, by a new patent air chest, is free from the slightest harshness. Price, 3 stops, oak, 10s.; mahogany, 12s.; rosewood, 14s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S HARMONIUMS for SALE, from 6s. to 110s. Alexander, Wholesale Agents. Illustrated Catalogue on application. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN-TUBES ORGAN HARMONIUM. Solid Oak Case, Five Octaves, and Ten Feet—32 Pipes. The ever-increasing musical culture in all classes of society has created a demand for free reed instruments of a superior quality to those hitherto manufactured. The instruments now offered to the public will be found distinct from all that have hitherto been considered objectionable as regards tone. This and has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the quality rich and organ-like. Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows. The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect and without extra cost. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

RECOMMENDED BY ALL THE PROFESSORS. THE DIGITORIUM (a small Dumb Piano—Patent).—This remarkable invention materially assists any person to play and become perfect on the Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium, by strengthening and rendering the fingers independent in an incredible short time; and can now be had (price 12s.) or, with ivory keys, 18s.) of the sole Manufacturers, CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NOTICE.—ALL MUSIC AT HALF PRICE. The best Editions sent post-free, bound works accepted. Stamps or postage order in advance. Lists free on application. Horwood and Casw, 62, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S CELEBRATED MOTTO SONGS. Trifles Light as Air. Don't be After Ten. Welcome to the Flowers in May. Could I Live my Time Over Again. As long as the World Goes Round. Always do as I do. Very suitable for Penny Readings. 18 stamps each.—Horwood and Casw.

A BEAUTIFUL SONG. FAR FROM MY EYES, YET NEAR MY HEART. By CAMPANA. Written to suit all voices. The words are full of pathos, and melody exquisite. 24 stamps.—Horwood and Casw.

ADELINA PATTIS FAVOURITE SONG. EVENING BRINGETH MY HEART BACK TO THEE. By Signor CAMPANA. is a charming Ballad, and worthy the attention of all singers. In the keys of B and D. 24 stamps.—Horwood and Casw.

COOTE'S AWFULLY JOLLY WALTZ (Comique), containing the famous tune "First She Woke," "Beautiful Girl," &c. Beautifully Illustrated. 24 stamps. Horwood and Casw, 62, New Bond-street.

HOW TO DANCE.—COOTE'S BALL-ROOM GUIDE for Home Practice fully explains how to learn dancing without a master. Illustrated with the figures. Post-free 18 stamps.—Horwood and Casw, 62, New Bond-street.

A RELIC. Fantasia Impromptu. By MOZART. Edited by A. MAAS. "The lovely undulating movement of the melody bears witness to the extremely happy mood of the great Composer." As it will prove a most useful song for the drawing-room. "Wide Standard." JOSEPH WILLIAMS, Berners-street and Chesham, E.C.

SPRING SONG.—BRINLEY RICHARDS. This charming arrangement of the popular Song from "Baldi and Bijou" is now ready, post-free, 18 stamps. Also, by Richards, "Little Nell," 4s.; "She wore a wreath of roses," 4s.; "Sweet Home" (Wrightson), 4s.; "Agnes Dei" (Mozart's Twelfth), 3s.; "Offertoire" (Wey), 3s.; and "With verdure clad," 3s. Post-free, half price.—J. WILLIAMS, 14, Berners-street, and 123, Chesham.

THE MAIDEN'S FLOWER SONG. By Signor PINOTTI. Net, 1s. 6d. post-free. "One of the happiest efforts of this accomplished author. It is marked with great originality, beauty of theme, and good declamatory passages. Memoirs and soprano singers will receive this composition with interest, as it will prove a most useful song for the drawing-room." "Wide Standard." JOSEPH WILLIAMS, Berners-street and Chesham, E.C.

NEW MUSIC.

Ready this day.
THE SONGS OF IRELAND. With New Symphonies and Accompaniments by J. L. MOLLOY. A Collection of One Hundred Songs, including all the best of Moore's Irish Melodies, in addition to a number of Old Ballads, some of which are now published for the first time. THE ROYAL EDITION. Price 2s. 6d. paper; 4s. cloth, gilt edges. Also, uniform with the above.
THE SONGS OF ENGLAND. Edited by J. L. HATTON.
THE SONGS OF WALES. Edited by Brinley Richards.
THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND. Edited by Brown and Pittman. Boosey and Co., London; and of all Musicall and Booksellers, and at the Railway Stations.

KISSI-KISSI. By Burnand and OFFENBACH. Performed with great success at the Opera Comique. The Songs will be ready in a few days. Kissi-Kissi Quadrille, 4s.; Kissi-Kissi Polka, 2s. 6d.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MADAME ANGOT QUADRILLE and WALTZ. By CHARLES COOTE. On Leocoe's Celebrated Comic Opera. Performed at the Strand. Price 4s. each. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MADAME ANGOT. By Kuhe and Lindsay Sloper. Two Fantasia for the Pianoforte, on LEOCOEC'S Popular Opera. Price 4s. each. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

NEW SONG. Composed by SANTLEY.—A SHORT YEAR AGO. Song. Composed expressly for Edward Lloyd by CHARLES SANTLEY. Sung every night during the present week in the provinces. Price 4s. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

ALFRED SCOTT GATTY'S SONGS. SUNSHINE AFTER RAIN. Words by John Omerod. 2s. ELIZONDA. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. 4s. VOICES OF THE PAST. Sung by Madame Patey. 4s. UNSPOKEN. Sung by Madame Patey. 4s. THE GALLANTS OF ENGLAND. A Song for Baritone. 4s. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONGS. ONCE AGAIN. Sung by Sims Reeves. GOLDEN DAYS. Sung by Madame Patey. A LIFE THAT LIVES FOR YOU. Sung by Mr. Santley. LOOKING FORWARD. Sung by Miss Edith Wynne. LOOKING BACK. Sung by Madame Patey. BIRDS IN THE NIGHT. Sung by Madame Sherrington. Post-free, 24 stamps each, from Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

F. H. COWEN'S NEW SONGS. IT WAS A DREAM. Sung by Mlle. Titiens. 4s. MARIE. Sung by Mlle. Marie Rose. 4s. SERENADE. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. 4s. MARGUERITE. Sung by Madame Trebelli. 4s. "A song of genuine beauty."—Times. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MOLLOY'S POPULAR SONGS. DREAMS. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. SO THE STORY GOES. Sung by Miss Edith Wynne. CLOCHETTE. Sung by Madame Sherrington. TADY O'FLINN. Sung by Madame Sherrington. THE VAGABOND. Sung by Mr. Santley. THE OLD COTTAGE CLOCK. Sung by Miss E. Wynne. EILY'S REASON. Sung by Madame Sherrington. LITTLE FLOWER. Sung by Mr. Nelson Varley. Price 4s. each.

A HAPPY YEAR AGO. The prettiest and most attractive Song yet composed by ALFRED SCOTT GATTY. This day. Price 1s. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

Price 6s., elegantly bound, gilt edges.
ALBUM OF PIANOFORTE DUETS. Containing the following complete sets of Duets Music, by Strauss, Gungl, and Coote, arranged for Two Performers on the Pianoforte. Three Duets with Voice. Vagabond Quadrille. Thousand and One Nights' Waltz. Genevieve Quadrille. Ideal and Leben Waltz. Princess Quadrille. Boosey and Co., London; and all Musicall.

CHEAP EDITION OF
ROBERT SCHUMANN'S DUETS FOR PIANOFORTE. Full Music size, 8s. 6d. each. SECOND ALBUM FOR YOUNG PERFORMERS, containing 12 pieces. FIRST ALBUM FOR YOUNG PERFORMERS, containing Nine Ball Songs.—Boosey and Co.

BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET. Price 1s. each.
100. Schumann's Third Album for Youth (9 ball songs).
101. Schumann's Second Album for Youth (13 pieces).
112. Schumann's First Album for Youth (43 pieces).
117. Strauss's six sets of Waltzes (including "Tausend und ein Nacht").
101. Strauss's seven sets of Waltzes, &c. (including "Beautiful Danube").
125. Gungl's six sets of Popular Waltzes.
126. Offenbach's Dance Music (including Quadrilles and Waltzes from "Genevieve").
127. "Genevieve de Brabant" for Pianoforte.
128. Charbel's twelve Newest Ballads.
Boosey and Co., London; and all Musicall and Booksellers in town and country.

THE BOY AND THE BROOK. New Song. By J. L. HATTON; the words by Longfellow. "One of Mr. Hatton's best compositions, and must become popular." Price 4s.; sent free for 24 stamps. RAYMOND and Son, 2, Princess-street, Oxford-circus.

BOOSEY and CO.'S PIANOFORTES, from 19s. to 45s.—FOR SALE, Hire, or the Three-Year System. Pianos by all the great makers. Illustrated price-list free. 54, Holles-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, French Harmoniums, and Wood's American Organs. Illustrated lists free.—54, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES FOR HIRE and for SALE, from 25s. upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 25, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W.; Manufacturers, 45, Horse-ley-road, Westminster.

MAPPIN BROTHERS, Manufacturers of SILVER PLATE, Tea and Coffee Services, Tea Trays and Waiters, Spoons and Forks, Fish do. Dishes and Dish Covers, Eggspoons, Fruit Stands, &c., &c. CUTLERY. Ivory Table Knives, Dessert Knives and Forks, Fish do. Fish Carvers, Cutlenses of Cutlery, &c., &c. The Stock they keep in London, at 57 and 59, King William-street, London Bridge, also at 220, Regent-street, W., is very large and well assorted, being all of first-class quality and design. It is sent direct from their own works, at Bakewell, in Sheffield. Illustrated Catalogue sent free by post. Address 57 and 59, King William-street, London Bridge; or, 220, Regent-street, W. Established A.D. 1810 at Sheffield.

SECONDHAND SILVER.—An Assortment of Tea and Coffee Services, from 250; Tea Services, from 415; Tea Pots, 7s.; Crust Frames, 4s. 6d.; Waiters, 4s.; Cream Jugs, 2s.; Salt Spoons, 4s. a pair. G. A. GODWIN, 204, High Holborn, London. Established 1800.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, SOFAS. Upwards of 300 different patterns on show. Catalogue post-free. PILMER and SON, Upholsters and Decorators, 31 and 32, Berners-street, W.

PARQUET FURNITURE. HOWARD'S PATENT. Furniture of all descriptions, made of Howard's Patent Parquet, is of the most durable kind, and (being manufactured by machinery) moderate in cost, and of the finest possible quality. Combining Parquet with Wood Tapestry, residences may be fitted up without either painting or papering. HOWARD and SONS, Decorators and Cabinetmakers by steam power, 25, 26, and 27, Berners-street, London, W.; Midland-buildings, New-street, Birmingham.

A GOOD BLACK SILK for £3 10s. the Dress of 14 yards (Dagov's). PETER ROBINSON, 254, Regent-street, W. For a Pattern direct to Regent-street, as above.

SUPERIOR BLACK SILKS at PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE. Peter Robinson has now on Sale some very rich Black Silks purchased in Lyons very advantageously.

Excellent Black Gros Grains at 2s. 11d. to 5s. 6d. per yard, and Glaces at 4s. to 6s. the Dress. And Superior and most .. at 2s. to 12s. 6d. per yard, during qualities or 2s. to 27 10s. the Dress. Also Shades in Greys, Slates, Mauves, White, &c., equally cheap. "If a Whole Piece is taken, a further reduction will be made." Address for Patterns as above.—254, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILK SKIRTS and COSTUMES, at PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE. Elegant Silk Costumes, just from Paris. Skirt and Polonaise en suite.

trimmed with crapes or otherwise, at moderate prices. Note the address, 254, Regent-street, W.

NEW COSTUMES, in ALL BLACK, for £1 10s. 6d., including fully-trimmed Skirt and Polonaise, at PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, Regent-street.

FASHIONABLE COSTUMES for MOURNING, trimmed with Greys, for 4s., including a Jacket or Polonaise, at PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, Regent-street.

URGENT MOURNING. "ON RECEIPT OF LETTER or MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England on application—no matter the distance—with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required), without extra charge. PETER ROBINSON'S GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE. Funerals Furnished on a moderate scale.

MOURNING FOR FAMILIES, IN CORRECT TASTE, can be purchased at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street, at a great saving in price.

SKIRTS, in New Mourning Fabrics, 4s. to 5s. Trimmed crapes.

BLACK DRESSES, at 12s. 9d., 15s. 6d., and 18s. 6d., the materials new and useful; Black Dresses, the skirts made up, at 1 guinea; Black Silk Dresses, the skirts made up, at 5s. and upwards, at PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, 254, Regent-street.

SUPERIOR CRAPE.—A Special Quality that will not Spot with Rain. PETER ROBINSON, Mourning Warehouse, 254, Regent-street.

Established in Seventeen Hundred and Seventy-nine.

BRIDES and BRIDESMAIDS are invited to inspect at CAPPER, SON, and CO.'S Warehouse, the various qualities and designs in Underclothing, Silks, Fancy Dress Materials, Costumes, Millinery, Mantles, Shawls, Towelling, Tablelinen, Blankets, Quilts, and all similar requisites for personal as well as for household use. These articles are all made up on the premises, and Ladies can select at the counters their Silks, Linens, Laces, Madras, Woollen cloths, and other fabrics before they are sent to the various workrooms. Lists, with Prices, on application to CAPPER, SON, and CO., Gracechurch-street, and Fenchurch-street, London, E.C.

TO LADIES.—The SHREWSBURY WATERPROOF THWEE CLOAKS, SKIRTS, and JACKETS, in every variety of Shape and Colour, are supplied by the original makers, Messrs. R. W. and W. PHILLIPS, 27, High-street, Shrewsbury. Patterns and prices post-free.

LADIES' ENAMELLED KID BOOTS. Elastic or Button, beautifully made, 12s. and 14s. Soft House Boots, 8s. 6d. THOMAS D. MARSHALL, 192, Oxford-street, W.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS are manufactured in every style of "WEAR AND YOUTHFUL CLOTHING." SAMUEL BROTHERS, 50, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS. Suit for a Boy 4 ft. in height, C. Class, 2s.; Class D, 2s. 6d. Prices according to measurements according to the following list. SAMUEL BROTHERS, 50, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

MITCHAM LAVENDER.—PIESSE and LUBIN.

LAVENDER, Sweet Lavender.—PIESSE and LUBIN are now distilling, at their Flower Farm, the famed MITCHAM LAVENDER. Samples may be had either at the Stillery, Mitcham-road, Surrey, or at the Laboratory, 2, New Bond-street, London.

PIESSE and LUBIN'S HUNGARY WATER. Prophylactic, Restorative, Invigorant.—"I am not surprised to learn that Hungary Water, as prepared by Piesse, authors, and poets give it the preference for it refreshes the memory." Emphatically the scent for warm weather, for hot and depressive climates. A case of six bottles, 16s.; or single sample bottles of 4s. each at 2s. 6d. Laboratory of Piesse, 2, New Bond-street, London.

FLORILINE.—For the Teeth and Breath. Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalcules," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. Price 3s. 6d. per Bottle. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and flowers. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherby. Prepared by HENRY C. GALLUP, 498, Oxford-street, London. Retailers everywhere.

ANTIPELLICULAIRE VERSUS SCURF AND IRRITATION OF THE HEAD.—Scurf is the most prolific cause of falling out of the hair, greyness, baldness, &c. MAEST and CO.'S ANTIPELLICULAIRE is the only cure certain in its results—an indispensable gem, which, from its fresh and delicate perfume, no toilette-table should be without. It will expel all pomades, is invaluable to young and old, a luxury after the bath, a boon in the nursery, anti-scurfotic, and eradicates pimples. Sold in elegant Toilet Jars, 2s. each; sent everywhere in Great Britain free, 2s. 6d., by Maest and Co., 108, Bishopsgate-street Within, City. Wholesale Agents—Hovenden and Sons, 8, Mark-borough-street, Regent-street, and City-road, E.C.; F. Newbery and Sons, 37, Newgate-street, E.C.

SEA-BATHERS and all exposed to the Sun and Dust should use ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, for dispersing all tan, sunburn, and freckles, and effectually beautifying the complexion; ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL, for preserving, nourishing, and obviating all the baneful effects of salt water, sun, and dust on the hair; and ROWLANDS' DENTONTO, for whitening and preserving the teeth and gums. Ask any Chemist for Rowland's Articles.

DENTOCRET E.—The new Soluble TOOTH POWDER TABLETS. price 2s. 6d. per box (containing half a gross), of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale, Barclay and Sons; Hovenden and Sons; and E. C. RUBY, Proprietor, 26, Riding-house-street, W. Sample box free for four stamps.

A LADY, HAVING A RECIPE of a most simple nature, that will at once safely remove SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS, preventing their reappearance, will be pleased in forwarding it upon application to MRS. BLACKWELL, Varwood Villa, Thornton-leath, Surrey.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

"The Caracas Cocoa of such choice quality." "Food, Water, and Air," Edited by Dr. Hamill.

"An excellent article."—Grosvenor.

FRY'S MILK COCOA only requires to be mixed with boiling water to produce a delicious Cup of Cocoa.

FRY'S EXTRACT OF COCOA, "Which really consists of cocoa-nibs deprived of the superfluous oil."—"Food, Water, and Air," Edited by Dr. Hamill.

CAUTION.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA. To prevent mistakes that might otherwise arise from statements which have recently appeared respecting the manufacture of Soluble Cocoa, the Public are respectfully informed that no addition of Sugar or Fermentable matter is used in the preparation of Cocoonin or Cocoonin & a Vanilla. The high degree of SOLUBILITY and PERFECT PURITY attained in these well-known and highly appreciated Beverages is solely due to the careful manipulation and delicate mechanical treatment of the best cocoa beans. Sold in air-tight tins, at 1s. 6d., 2s., &c., by Chemists, Grocers, &c. Sole Proprietors, H. Schweitzer and Co., 16, Adam-street, Adelphi, London, W.C. Samples free by post.

COMPAGNIE FRANCAISE (Limited), Wholesale Manufacturers of and Dealers in CHOCOLATE, COCOA, COFFEE (as in France), CONFECTIONERY, &c. Thirty Gold and Silver Medals have been awarded. Every Article warranted pure, of the best quality, and at the lowest possible prices. To be obtained of first-class Grocers, Confectioners, and others. Factories—Bermontsey New-road, London; and in Paris.

MARAVILLA COCOA. The "Globe" says:—"TAYLOR BROTHERS' MARAVILLA COCOA has achieved a thorough success, and surpasses every other Cocoa in the market. Entire solubility, a delicate aroma, and a rare concentration of the purest elements of nutrition distinguish the Maravilla Cocoa above all others. For Invalids and Dyspeptics who could not, nay, in some cases, scarcely or valuable beverage." Sold in tin-lined packets only by all Grocers.—Taylor Brothers, Sole Proprietors, London.

FLOUR.—Whites, for Pastry, Households, for Bread, Wheat Meal, for Brown Bread, Rye Meal, Rye Flour, pure Flour of Egyptian Lentils, manufactured at Dulwich Steam-Mills, Essex. Hungarian and Baltic Flour. Best Scotch Oatmeal, from Aberdeen and Berwick. Hominy and fine Indian Corn Meal. New York, Arrow Brand, HOBBS, HALL, and CO. LIVERPOOL, Liverpool-road, London, E.C.

DR. DE JONGH'S (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium) LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL.

The only real test, medical experience during the last twenty-five years in all parts of the world, has conclusively proved DR. DE JONGH'S COD-LIVER OIL to be

THE PUREST, THE MOST PALATABLE, THE MOST EASILY DIGESTED, and THE MOST RAPIDLY EFFICACIOUS of all kinds.

As the Remedy for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES OF THE CHEST, DR. DE JONGH'S COD-LIVER OIL stands pre-eminent.

As the Restorative in DEBILITY OF ADULTS and CHILDREN, DR. DE JONGH'S COD-LIVER OIL is unequalled.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

SIR G. DUNNAN GIBB, Bart., M.D., LL.D., Physician to the Westminster Hospital. "The experience of many years has abundantly proved the truth of every word said in favour of Dr. DE JONGH'S Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil by many of our first Physicians and Chemists, thus stamping him as a high authority and an able Chemist. I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S Oil a remedy of great power in the treatment of many affections of the throat and lungs, especially in consumption of the latter, where it will contain life when everything else fails."

DR. MORELL MACKENZIE, Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat. "As you have called my attention to the fact that for many years in prescribing Cod-Liver Oil I have especially indicated that sold at your establishment, I cannot refuse to state my reasons for having done so. "These are as follow:—"1. That I have found your Light-Brown Oil much more uniform in character than any other Cod-Liver Oil. 2. That I have found it more uniform in its action than any other Cod-Liver Oil. 3. That I have found it more easily digested than any other Cod-Liver Oil."

DR. WHITTON, Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone. "I have been asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil. I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal properties, which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination."

DR. HARDWICKE, Medical Officer of Health, Finsbury. "In the case of tubercular disease, including Consumption, the use of Dr. DE JONGH'S Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil is attended with marked advantages; and I know of no therapeutic agent which, in connection with a judicious sanitary regimen, is better calculated to stay the ravages of these great consuming plagues of the British Islands."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in sealed tins, Half-Pint, 2s. 6d.; Pint, 4s. 6d.; Quart, 8s.; by all respectable Chemists and Druggists throughout the world.

ANAL. HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.

PULVERMACH'S PATENT GALVANIC CHAIN BANDS, BELTS, BATTERIES, &c. RECENTLY IMPROVED.

Approved by the Academy of Medicine at Paris and other Medical authorities in England and abroad. This Self-Applicable Physical Curative is of an effect vastly superior to all other external remedies. Owing to the physiological, physical, and chemical effects of the Electricity they gently and permanently impart into the system, these appliances exercise an internal action, promoting the digestion, circulation, and nutrition, thereby assisting Nature in her efforts to restore the normal balance of health and vigour in a debilitated constitution. Hence the remarkable cures they daily effect in cases of Rheumatism, Head & Tooth Ache, Epilepsy, Lumbago, Indigestion, General Local Neuralgia, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Debility, Gout, Nervous Debility, and other disorders, after all other remedies have failed, and thus popularizing Electricity in accordance with the authentic conclusions of the medical and scientific press. Recent improvements in these appliances by the inventor render their self-application extremely comfortable and effective, and thus remediate former inconveniences. Medical and scientific extracts and a selection of the daily increasing number of Testimonials, together with a List, are embodied in pamphlets, "Electricity as a Factor of Insured Vital Energy," sent post-free on application to the sole inventor and Patentee, J. L. PULVERMACH, GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 154, REGENT-STREET, LONDON, W.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 128, Strand, by the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of MIDDLESEX, GEORGE C. LONDON, 128, Strand, second, second.—SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1873.

SENOR CASTELAR, THE NEW PRESIDENT OF THE SPANISH CORTES.

SENOR CASTELAR.

This conspicuous Spanish politician, who has just been elected President of the Cortes at Madrid, was Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Provisional Government formed immediately after the abdication of King Amadeo. Emilio Castelar, who was born in 1832, is a journalist and orator of some rhetorical power, but not much of a practical statesman. He became notorious, early in his career, as an advocate of extreme democratic opinions. For a time he was Professor of History and Philosophy in the University of Madrid; but in 1866, having taken an active part in the revolutionary movement which was put down by Marshal Serrano, he was prosecuted by the Government of Queen Isabella, and was condemned to death; he had contrived, however, to escape from the country, taking refuge first in Geneva and afterwards in France. When the throne of Queen Isabella was overturned, in September, 1868, Castelar returned to Spain, and became one of the most uncompromising champions of a Republic. He exerted himself greatly for this object, but at the general election of the Constituent Cortes, in February, 1869, he found himself one of a small minority. He continued, however, in opposition to Prim and Serrano, to insist on the adoption of his favourite political theories, and was concerned in the Republican insurrections which took place in October of that year. The fall of the monarchy as represented by an Italian Prince has given Senor Castelar a fresh opportunity of trying the experiment of a Spanish Republic. But, what with the Communists or Red Republican faction in the south, and what with the Carlists in the north of Spain, it appears as though it were no easy task to establish an orderly Commonwealth based on popular suffrage in that country.

The portrait of Senor Castelar is from a photograph by M. J. Laurent, of Paris and Madrid.

THE CIVIL WARS IN SPAIN.

The Spanish Republican Government at Madrid has to deal on the one hand with the invasion led by Don Carlos of Bourbon and of Este, grandson and heir of the old Don Carlos, who claimed to be King Charles V. of Spain, as successor to his brother, Ferdinand VII., according to the Salic law, excluding the succession of his niece, the lately-reigning Queen Isabella II., to whom her father, King Ferdinand, had bequeathed his crown. The present Don Carlos, who is styled King Charles VII. by the Legitimist partisans, and bears also the title of Duke of Madrid, is a young man, in his twenty-sixth year. He is nephew, by the mother's side, to the Countess de Chambord, wife of the Prince regarded by that party as King Henry V. of France. In his present attempt to recover the throne of his ancestors Don Carlos is assisted by his brother, Don Alphonso, who commands an army of 11,000 men in Catalonia, while the main army, under Don Carlos, in the Basque Provinces and near the French frontier, is said to muster 22,000, with the advantage of being officered by men of proved military skill.

We have some details respecting the Carlist victory at Estella. The fort of San Fernando capitulated on the afternoon of the 24th, after a siege of six days, directed by Don Carlos in person. He himself aimed and fired the first piece of artillery, the ball of which penetrated one of the loopholes. The return shot of the Republicans killed an artilleryman at his side. The Republican commander, Villapadierna, arrived at the town with 800 infantry and the same number of cavalry to raise the siege, but he was repulsed by Don Carlos at the head of a column composed of troops from the band of Ollo and the first battalion of Navarre. A sergeant and five soldiers deserted from the fortress and gave the Carlists some useful information. Upwards of 500 prisoners have been set at liberty and escorted as far as Pampeluna, in order that they should not be molested on their journey. Fourteen hundred rifles and a large quantity of ammunition were taken.

The Carlist chief, Lizarraga, with 2000 Guipuzcoans, has attacked Guetaria, a town on the coast, about four leagues from St. Sebastian, and the steamer Buenaventura has gone to assist the town. A despatch from Figueras, near the frontier, says that the Carlists, while carrying out the Carlist decree forbidding the railway communication with France, fired upon the train near La Palma, killing the stoker and wounding the engineer. All the carriages were hit; but the passengers, although considerably frightened, were none of them hurt. At Barcelona the Madrid mail of the 28th ult. arrived after a delay of twenty-four hours, in consequence of having been attacked by Carlists on the way. It is probable that the trains will now only be able to go as far as Casella. There are frequent reports of Carlist local successes. A cargo of arms for the Carlists has been landed at Palamos (Catalonia). The Carlist chiefs Villarubias and Esquena entered Corbera, where they levied a contribution and burnt the archives of the registry office. The Carlist chief Calvo, with 700 men, has been levying contributions, seizing horses and rations, and releasing prisoners at Folgar, Samper, and Allora. Another chief, named Velasco, at the head of 3000 men, has gone to the mountains of Santander, in order completely to cut off all communication between Madrid and the north. Andechaga has taken up a position at Santoria in order to support him. A band of 1500 Carlists entered Segorbe, raised a contribution, and went on to Navajos.

THE YACHT DEERHOUND, LATELY CAPTURED OFF THE COAST OF SPAIN.

The capture of the English steam-yacht Deerhound, on the 13th ult., by a Spanish ship of war, and the detention of her English officers and crew, are proceedings which have been much discussed. The Deerhound formerly belonged to Mr. Lancaster, and was present at the fight between the Alabama and the United States war-ship Kearsarge, in the British Channel, towards the end of the American civil war, when Mr. Lancaster saved the officers and crew of the Alabama, upon the sinking of their own vessel. She has lately been employed by her new owners in conveying arms and ammunition to the Carlists on the shores of the Bay of Biscay. On Wednesday, the 13th ult., the Deerhound, which had been named anew, for this service, the Santa Margarita, was lying off the coast of France, directly opposite Biarritz, with no steam up, at a distance of from five to eight miles from the beach. While in this position a steamer flying British colours was seen coming up from the Spanish coast in the direction of the Deerhound. When close up the Spaniard lowered the British ensign and hoisted her own, at the same time dropping her boats into the water. They then boarded the Deerhound, which was keeping a bad look-out, and quietly took possession of her. She was taken in tow by the Spanish vessel and carried into the Spanish port of San Sebastian, where the owner, Colonel Stuart (who was on board), the captain, Captain Travers, the cook, the steward, and ten men were shut up in the fortress.

The other enemy with whom the Spanish Republican Government has to deal is the Communist or Red Republican faction, called the Intransigentes, or Irreconcilables, who have got possession of the fortified seaport and naval arsenal of Carthagena, on the east coast of Spain, as well as of several powerful ships of war. The latest intelligence from Carthagena announces that the insurgents have entered into communication with the secret agents of Don Carlos, and the former have agreed, should they find themselves hard pressed by the besiegers, to surrender to the Carlists a portion of the forts of the town, on the condition that all the Carlist bands in Valencia shall attack the Republicans. The black flag floats over the forts and ramparts of Carthagena, as a reply to General Campos's summons to surrender. The forces of the besiegers are composed of a battalion from Mendigorría, six companies from Iberia, 250 Valencians, 400 Murcians, and 1500 Carthageneans. The only action at present taken by General Campos is to send out skirmishers against the besieged, and he does not reply to the cannon-shots fired from the town. General Contreras is in command of the insurgents.

Some account was given in our last of the action taken at Carthagena by the commanders of two or three British ships of war, the Swiftsure, the Torch, and a gun-boat, in a compulsory disembarkation of the crews of the revolted Spanish war-ships. These ships were the Vittoria and the Almanza, which had been detained by our naval force after the example set by the Prussian Captain Werner in command of the Friedrich Karl, which seized the Vigilante. The insurgent dictators at Carthagena had sent out the ships to attack Almería and other neighbouring seaport towns which resisted their dictation, and the foreign squadrons on that coast were obliged to interfere. The British squadron in the Mediterranean, commanded by Admiral Sir Hastings Yelverton, arrived in Escombrera Bay, outside the harbour of Carthagena, to counteract the menacing demonstrations of the Spanish forts and ships in that harbour, which threatened to fire upon the British ships, if the Almanza and Vittoria were removed to be given up to the Madrid Government. Several German, French, American, and Italian ships of war lay in the outer roadstead, beside the British ships; and our illustration, from a sketch made by Sub-Lieutenant Gustavus Yonge, of the Triumph, shows the positions they occupied in relation to the shore forts. The Spanish ships of war opposed to them were the Mendez Nunez, the Numancia, the Tetuan, and the Fernando el Católico. It is a great relief to be now enabled to state that the dispute was solved, last Monday, by the removal of the Vittoria and Almanza to Gibraltar, without provoking the outbreak of hostilities which had seemed imminent. Admiral Sir Hastings Yelverton was determined to take these ships from under the forts of Carthagena at all hazards. His plan of action, in case of resistance, and if the Almanza and Vittoria were fired upon while in charge of British sailors, was perfectly clear. He would have bombarded the Spanish forts and silenced their batteries, captured their ships of war inside and outside the harbour, and perhaps destroyed the arsenal, but would have spared the town and the lighthouses, inflicting as little damage as possible on life or private property. Notice having been duly given of his intentions, the British squadron prepared for action on Monday morning. The guns were loaded, the tops were barricaded with hammocks and manned with riflemen. The English red ensign was hoisted on board the Vittoria and Almanza. It was intended to use the Lord Warden and other large ships as rams to run down the Mendez Nunez and Numancia, in case of a serious fight. Everybody in the fleet believed that a general engagement was at hand. The officers and men were eager to do their duty. The merchant-ships in the port had been safely towed out by the Lord Warden and Torch and an Italian despatch-boat, the day before. When the appointed time came, the Helicon despatch-boat led the way for the British squadron to pass in front of the Spanish forts and ships. They stopped there while the Vittoria and Almanza, followed by the Swiftsure and Triumph, steamed out of Escombrera Bay, within easy range of the Spanish batteries. The Numancia and Mendez Nunez lay outside the harbour, and the Tetuan at the entrance; but no attempt was made, either by these ships or by the forts, to offer resistance. The German, French, and other foreign ships, except two Italian ironclads, had taken their departure in the morning. Until the convoy was well clear of the port, two English ships, the Hart and the gun-boat Pheasant, remained in front of Fort St. Julian, lest the Spaniards should open fire. Happily, there was no conflict on this occasion, and the Vittoria and Almanza were safely conveyed to Gibraltar, in spite of the violent language of the Intransigentes at Carthagena.

MUSIC.

THE BIRMINGHAM MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Our last week's record ended with the concert of Wednesday evening, comment on the closing performances of the following days being necessarily reserved for this week's notice.

Thursday morning was appropriated to "The Messiah," of which it will be sufficient to say that the choruses were given with fine effect, the solo music having been distributed between Madame Sherrington, Mdlle. Titiens, Mesdames Trebelli-Bettini and Patey, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. Santley, and Signor Foli.

Thursday evening brought forward Mr. Randegger's new dramatic cantata, "Fridolin, or the Message to the Forge." The subject is founded on Schiller's ballad poem, "Der Gang nach dem Eisenhammer," and the English text has been supplied by Madame Rudersdorff, who has furnished a series of scenes, divided into solos, concerted pieces, and choruses, which have been set to some highly dramatic music by the composer. Four characters are concerned in the supposed action of the cantata—Eglantine, Countess of Saverne; Waldemar, Count of Saverne; Fridolin, page to the Countess; and Hubert, squire to the Count. The slight plot of the poem turns on the evil machinations of Hubert, who causes the Count to entertain jealous suspicions of Fridolin, and prompts the former to send a message, borne by the latter, to some mechanic serfs working at a mountain forge, enjoining them to cast the bearer into the burning furnace. By a fortunate accident the page is saved, and the villain himself becomes the victim. As already intimated, the music is full of dramatic effect, two special instances thereof being the scene in which Hubert expresses his jealousy and hatred of Fridolin, and triumphs in anticipation of his destruction, and the scene at the forge, with the characteristic choral music for the smiths. In these a tustions, and, indeed, in many other parts of the cantata, the orchestral colouring is very rich and varied, the instrumentation being handled with great skill. Other pieces which made an impression were—Fridolin's air, "None but holy, lofty thoughts;" a bright and vivacious hunting chorus; a well-contrasted duet for the Count and Hubert; a charming chorus of handmaidens; the Countess's song, "No bliss can be so great;" a duet for the Countess and Fridolin, "Above yon sun," the principal movement of which, written in canon, is so fluent and melodious that the scientific form is subordinated to the general effect; a very characteristic and effective dance and chorus of villagers; and a song for the Count, "O, woman with the pure and guileless face." Two numbers were encored, the chorus of handmaidens and that of hunters. The solo music was assigned to Madame Sherrington (the Countess), Mr. Santley (the Count), Mr. Cummings (Fridolin), and Signor Foli (Hubert). Mr. Randegger conducted the performance of his cantata, which was much applauded throughout.

The remainder of the concert of Thursday evening was entirely of a miscellaneous kind, consisting of familiar vocal pieces by most of the principal solo-singers, and the overtures to "William Tell" and "Ruy Blas," brilliantly played by the orchestra.

The programme of Friday morning was of a very varied and interesting character. Spohr's hymn, "God, Thou art great," is full of charming music, the tone of which, however, has little to distinguish it from the luxuriant and chromatic style of his stage and chamber works. The soprano solo portions of the cantata were finely sung by Mdlle. Titiens, the beautiful duet, "Children, pray this love to cherish," having been expressively rendered by Madame Trebelli and Mr. Rigby. Something similar to Spohr's cantata in sensuous beauty is the choral "Ave Maria," by Rossini, a posthumous work, performed for the first time on this occasion. Mdlle. Albani sang with great refinement Handel's air, "Angels ever bright and fair," and this was followed by Haydn's third mass, called the "Imperial," from its having been specially composed for a celebration of the crowning of the Emperor of Austria. Of all the many masses by Haydn this and No. 1 are perhaps the finest. The "Imperial" Mass abounds in passages of exquisite grace and beauty, while occasionally presenting more of serious dignity than is observable in many other of Haydn's masses. The solo portions were effectively rendered by Mesdames Sherrington and Patey, Mr. Cummings, and Signor Foli. The double chorus, "Cantemus" (another posthumous work by Rossini, also performed for the first time), is an essay in the severe style of the earlier composers of the great Italian church school. Its rigid solemnity is in striking contrast to the melodious suavity of his "Ave Maria," just referred to.

A selection of some of the finest choruses and several solo pieces from Handel's "Israel in Egypt" ended the last morning of the festival, which finally closed, on the Friday evening, with a fine performance of the same composer's "Judas Maccabeus," the solos being distributed between Mdlle. Titiens, Madame Sherrington, Madame Patey, Mr. Cummings, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Santley. Sir M. Costa conducted, as on all the other occasions, except those on which he gave up the baton to the composers who directed their new works. At the end of "Judas" the National Anthem was given; and this and a tribute of applause to the conductor ended the Birmingham Festival of 1873—the most successful, financially, that has ever been held, the total receipts, exclusive of after donations, having been £15,660 9s. 7d.

The Hereford Festival—the one hundred and fiftieth meeting of the choirs of that city, of Gloucester, and of Worcester—begins on Tuesday next.

M. Rivière's Promenade Concerts at Covent-garden Theatre are running a successful course. Since the opening performance, already noticed, there has been a series of varied attractions—ballad concerts, sacred concerts, and operatic and classical selections have been given in alternation. The clever English prima donna, Miss Rose Hersee, has appeared with great success, and has been followed by Madame Sinico; other excellent artists having also contributed to the vocal performances, which have been interspersed by orchestral pieces and instrumental solos. Among the announcements for this week were a Gounod night, on Tuesday; a Mozart night, on Wednesday; an Irish ballad night, on Thursday; "Elijah," on Friday (yesterday); and the first appearance, to-night (Saturday), of Herr Josef Gungl as conductor of some of his new dance music.

The scheme of Mr. Carl Rosa's English Opera Company comprises performances at Manchester and Bradford during the current month; at Sheffield and Liverpool in October; at Brighton, Bristol, Birmingham, and Nottingham, in November; and at Dublin in December. Mr. Rosa (well known as a skilful violinist) is director and conductor; and his company includes Miss Rose Hersee, Miss Blanche Cole, Miss Lucy Franklin, Mr. W. Castle, and other known vocalists, together with several who will be heard for the first time in English opera.

Mdlle. Nilsson and her husband, M. Rouzeaud, sailed for New York on Saturday in the Cunard steamer Cuba, upon an operatic tour, which will last some months.

The orphéonistes of Paris, including all the choral societies and bands in the various municipal divisions, are organising a musical festival, which is to be held on Sunday, the 21st inst.,

in celebration of the complete withdrawal of the German troops. More than four thousand vocalists and instrumentalists will take part in the performances, which will include a "Sursum Corda," written in honour of the occasion by M. de Saint Félix, with Mr. Roger as the soloist. Similar festivals are to be held throughout the French provinces.

THEATRES.

On Monday, according to announcement, the Haymarket reopened for a short season, under the management of Messrs. Joyce and Field, with George Colman's comedy of "The Heir at Law" and Stirling Coyne's comedy of "A Widow's Hunt," in which two fine dramas Mr. John S. Clarke made his appearance, as part of a farewell engagement previous to his return to America. Mr. Clarke has won a high reputation as a comedian, from the extreme polish of his style and the unwearied force of his execution. Both his Doctor Pangloss and Major Wellington de Boots are special works of histrionic art. So minute are the touches, so consistent each with the whole, so decided the delineation, and so well pronounced the idea which gives life to Mr. Clarke's acting, that the spectator is at once satisfied that in it he has all that study and skill can bestow on the representation of the character assumed. His Pangloss is a marvel—his De Boots a miracle; and the reader may be safely left to define the two words so as to make what difference he pleases in the meaning, or shade of meaning, between the terms in question. In neither case would we claim any supernaturalism; but we certainly have in both the highest perfection achieved that art can attain to in the practice of stage realisation. We must not, however, hazard a mistake as to the last word, for Mr. Clarke does not belong to the modern realistic school, but is as ideal as an artist can be. His Pangloss is an ideal, and so, in another way, is his De Boots; nor is it possible to conceive anything more complete than his representation of either. Mr. Clarke, therefore, achieved on Monday a great triumph; but he was not alone in his glory, for Mr. George Belmore, as Zekiel Homespun, excelled himself, and rose to a force of genuine passion in the scene with Dick Dowlas (Mr. Harry Crouch) such as led to the recall of both artists. Mrs. Emily Thorne as Lady Duberly was careful and efficient, and Mr. S. Hargreaves as the Baron was sufficiently humorous, though not quite so richly supplied with the requisite unction as more than one of his predecessors. The house was full, and the applause universal. We anticipate a very great success for the experiment, and gladly recognise it; for, however great, it will have been well deserved.

Mr. Creswick appeared at the Standard on Monday, in conjunction with his son, Mr. Charles E. Creswick, and Mr. Charles Viner. The tragedy of "The Bridal" was reproduced and very effectively acted. The performance terminated with a new farce by Mr. John T. Douglass, entitled "What'll the Neighbours Say?" The house was well filled, and the new company was received with every demonstration of approval.

The Charing-cross Theatre was opened on Monday, under the management of Mr. Nation, with two revivals—"The Irish Belle," by David Garrick; and "Doves in a Cage," by Douglas Jerrold. An extravaganza, entitled "The Last of the Legends," by Mr. Gilbert A. Beckett, with songs by Mr. Nation, and a ballet, concluded the performance.

The Conservatives have carried Shaftesbury. Yesterday week Mr. Vere Fane Bennett-tauford was declared duly returned by a majority of 69, the numbers being 603, against 534 for Mr. Danby Seymour.

The coroner's inquiry into the recent railway accident near Salisbury has ended in a verdict of "Accidental death" being returned by the jury, who exonerated the station-master at Wilton, and recommended that a better system of signalling should be provided.

The Speaker's chair which was in the House of Commons in 1832, when the Reform Bill was passed, is to be presented to the colony of Victoria by its Governor, Viscount Canterbury, the heir of the right hon. gentleman who presided over that assembly.

The Custom-House returns for 1872 show that the export of printed books from this country in that year reached 81,422 cwt., of the declared value of £883,914, an increase of no less than 19,212 cwt. in quantity and £104,872 in value over the preceding year. On the other hand, the import of books into this country was only 14,172 cwt., of the value of £149,189, showing a decrease of 335 cwt. in quantity and of £9240 in value. We sent out six times as much as we received. We exported our books to the United States in 1872 to the value of £307,634; to British North America, £31,590; to the West Indies, £13,563; to Australia, £181,184; to British India, £44,248; to Egypt, £77,229; to British possessions in South Africa, £28,784. The exports of books to European nations not speaking our tongue were not very large:—To France, of the value of £32,850; Germany, £27,573; Holland, £19,424; Belgium, £16,071. Our imports of books, however, are mainly from such countries—From France, in 1872, to the value of £46,938; Germany, £38,565; Holland, £18,350; Belgium, £11,085; Spain, £8150; Italy, £1215. From the United States, to the value of only £13,500; from British North America only £1493; and the import from the other countries named in the list of book exports is not enough to find any place in the official list of our book imports.

One of her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools, the Rev. G. Steele, reporting this year on Lancashire, states that, in regard to reading, it is his custom to examine the first class in the newspaper of the day. The children stand in a semicircle and pass the newspaper round, and he requires them to read in such a manner that he and all present can both hear and understand, and then he asks questions. He does not generally enter much into politics, but contents himself with the children's understanding who such persons as Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Disraeli, Mr. Forster, M. Thiers (now to vanish before a new name) are. The inspector says he almost always gets correct answers about the Queen and the Royal family. Accidents, fires, and suicides excite the keenest interest; but he often gets very fair answers to such questions as these:—What is a telegram, a locomotive, an ironclad, a telescope? What do you mean by Prime Minister, Judge, Coroner, M.P., M.D.? Once to this question, What do you mean by P.M.? a little boy sharply answered, "Past morning," which was not bad. It showed far better teaching and learning than that mere mechanical system of which inspectors so often complain as only an exercise in sound and not in sense. One inspector notices how very rare it is to find dictionaries among the stock of elementary school-books. Another (Mr. Renouf) mentions that in a paper written by a sixth-standard girl it was stated that one of the provisions of Magna Charta was that the rights of the Church should be preserved "in violet." He is afraid that many even of those who wrote "inviolable" did not know what they were writing about. It was a word for explanation in an examination. Mr. Steele observes that he never gives a first-rate report unless the children show general intelligence as well as accurate knowledge.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Sept. 1.

The scientific observer cannot find a more attractive spot in the entire Vienna Exhibition than the vast hall set aside for exhibits of machinery, which runs parallel to the Industrial Palace in its rear. As a building the annexe in question has only its vast dimensions to boast of, for, considered from an artistic point of view, it is an exceedingly ugly structure. We are told, however, that it covers a far greater area than any other single building in existence, being no less than 1200 yards long and some forty broad. The central nave, which is traversed from end to end by a line of shafting and overhead travelling cranes, is reserved for the machinery shown in motion, the two side aisles, which run the whole length of the building, being occupied by small machinery not in motion, or by such as is worked by manual power. The immense amount of railway rolling stock with which the different courts are filled, and the thousands of sewing-machines which are scattered about the hall, cannot fail to strike the observant visitor who will find, however, that, although engines, tenders, and railway carriages, and "Howes," "Singers," and "Silents" predominate over everything else, there are still numerous curious appliances and apparatuses connected with mining, metal and wood industries, spinning, weaving, and dyeing, which are worthy of attentive study, as well as machines for paper-making and book-binding, for type-founding and printing of every description, and for the manufacture of oil, sugar, stearine soap, candles, starch, and ice; while, to complete the whole, the southern aisle is crowded with a collection of barouches, chais-à-banc, phaetons, landaus, sledges, droschies, dogcarts, and cars.

Great Britain occupies 5750 of the 46,000 square yards which constitute the area of this vast hall, upwards of 1200 being appropriated by Austria and nearly 1100 being allotted to the German Empire. Comparatively small and inadequate as is the space we have secured, we have no reason to be ashamed of our show in the machinery hall, which comprises many novel inventions never before exhibited. Of the 152 British exhibitors none appear to greater advantage than the eight who uphold our country's reputation in the department of wool-working machinery. The most important, and, I may add, the most successful, of these are Messrs. Platt Brothers, of Oldham, who have secured a grand diploma of honour. Their display is both extensive and interesting, illustrating the different modes of ginning cotton and of preparing, spinning, and weaving woollen goods. Their principal exhibit is a wool-combing machine, recently invented by Messrs. Little and Eastwood, and infinitely superior to Noble's wool-comber, which is generally in use in England. With the latter there is far more wear and tear of machinery than with Messrs. Platt's apparatus, which, besides being of very simple construction, is more easily superintended than its rival. The most important feature, however, of the new invention is that it produces, at less cost in time and labour, and with far less noise, nearly double the quantity of combed wool per hour than Noble's appliance does, besides leaving no waste to be re-carded. Messrs. Platt have also an extensive show of scribblers, condensers, mules, pirn-winders, and power-looms. Their machinery for ginning cotton includes a patent roller-gin, with the hopper feed especially adapted to separate that class of cotton adhering to seeds, the husks or shells of which are covered with short fibres. Clean cotton of this class, large quantities of which are thrown on the British market every year, can be turned out by this machine at the rate of 120 lb. per hour; while of cotton with smooth seeds as much as 200 lb. per hour can be delivered.

Another firm which has achieved distinction in this class of machinery is Messrs. McNaught, of Rochdale, who display a couple of wool washing and drying machines, which rank among the curiosities of the hall, and are surrounded all day long by crowds of people, who appear immensely amazed at the marvellous speed with which the dirty, greasy, merino fleeces are thrown out perfectly dry and spotless by these machines. Wool-preparing machinery is also represented by T. Barraclough, of Manchester, whose display comprises spinning and woollen-rag-tearing machines; after whom come J. Blezzard, of Padiham, with temples for wool, cotton, and silk looms; George Hodgson, of Bradford, with plain, circular-box, and stop-motion looms, for the weaving of alpaca, mohair, reps, and various figured fabrics; Ingham and Sons, of Thornton, and Irvin and Sellers, of Preston, with shuttles and pickers for weaving and belting; and Livesey, of Blackburn, who displays a novel winding-machine, a combination of no less than four distinct apparatus, and an exceedingly clever invention.

Close at hand will be found the exhibits of Messrs. S. Lawson and Sons, of Leeds, who have obtained a diploma of honour for their remarkable display of spinning-machinery for hemp, jute, and flax. The wonderful twelve-colour calico-printing machine, with double-cylinder diagonal engine and driving gear, exhibited by Messrs. Mather and Platt, has been relegated, by some stupid blunder, to the northern aisle. But it was too important to remain long in obscurity, and was soon found out by the Austrian calico-printers, whom it has naturally highly interested. Adjoining will be found the stall of the Kirkstall Forge Company, who exhibit a couple of specimens of Naylor's patent single and double-action steam-hammers, of which they are the sole makers. The first is a 50-cwt. hammer, with double-action hand gear, suitable for preparing moulds for weldless railway wheel-tires; and the second a 3-cwt. double-action and self-acting hammer. They display also a neatly-executed model of one of these steam-hammers, and show it in motion every day. The chief advantage of Naylor's double-action hammer for forging is that it can be worked up to 200 strokes per minute when required, which is from three to four times faster than any other steam-hammer hitherto constructed. The power can also be more than doubled, and the length of stroke and force of blow altered instantaneously. The hammer is completely under the control of the hand gear, which is easy to work in any position. The rapidity of the stroke obtained by it is particularly advantageous for forgings requiring a great number of blows, by finishing the work at one heat and saving both the fuel required for the second heat and the deterioration and waste of the iron. Messrs. Thwaites and Carbutts, of Bradford, exhibit a double-action steam tilt-hammer, weighing 7 cwt., and provided with a self-acting motion, but there is really no comparison between their exhibit and the splendid hammers of the Kirkstall Forge Company. The steam-hammers of Messrs. Massey, of Manchester, are ingenious, and have several merits. None, however, are of more than 5 cwt., whereas the Kirkstall Forge Company frequently turns out Naylor hammers of 50 tons. Those of Messrs. Massey are intended principally for the use of engineers and waggon and implement makers. The steam-stamp of the same firm, for stamping bolts, rivets, and studs, is not unworthy of notice. Adjoining their stall one finds the exhibits of Messrs. Head and Wrightson, of Stockton-on-Tees, who display some newly-invented pulley-blocks, provided with two chains, both of which are stronger than usual, to prevent any chance of the links stretching. Each chain takes an equal share of the load lifted, thus distributing the weight and causing the blocks to hang plumb.

As for the exhibits of Messrs. Whitley partners, Railway Works, Leeds, their name is legion. They range from steam-engine and boiler accessories to water-filters and rasps, and include, amidst a host of interesting objects, suspended weighing-machines, "oxygen" furnace-bars for economising fuel, wrought-iron, brass, and copper tubes, and an automatic apparatus for the prevention of pipes bursting from frost, all having more or less relation to railway engineering. From the Hammersmith Ironworks come a couple of large centrifugal irrigation-pumps, one, as used in Austria and Hungary, throwing 1800 gallons of water per minute, and the other, as employed in Egypt and India, capable of lifting 3000 gallons a minute thirty feet high; besides various smaller pumps, throwing from one hundred to 1000 gallons per minute.

It appears from the official list issued by her Majesty's commissioners that the diplomas of honour awarded at Vienna to exhibitors in the British section numbered twenty-seven, besides two others conferred respectively on the Geological Survey Office, Calcutta, for its fine specimens of ores, and the Acclimatisation Society of Victoria for the admirable wines which had been sent to Vienna from that colony. The largest number of diplomas were assigned to metal industry and general machinery, the exhibitors in each of which groups received as many as six, while the groups devoted to textile fabrics and agricultural machinery each had three diplomas awarded to them, glass and china securing two, and furniture, paper manufacture, decorative art, and scientific instruments being honoured by a single diploma a piece. It is unnecessary to specify the names of the recipients, as these were given in a former Number; but a correction is required in our former list, where, under the heading of machinery, the name of Galloway and Sons appears twice, to the exclusion of the firm of Messrs. Combe and Barbour, of Belfast.

Of medals for progress, the highest distinction of the diploma of honour, British exhibitors, irrespective of those from the colonies, have had as many as 144 awarded to them. The largest number allotted in any one group—namely, thirty-five—were assigned to exhibitors of general machinery, and among the recipients one encounters the names of some of our best known London, Lancashire, Yorkshire, and Scotch firms. For textile fabrics thirty medals were allotted. Of these Ireland carries off a considerable proportion, while of the residue the majority are, as may be imagined, secured for the north of England. Metal industry receives eighteen medals for progress, which have been awarded to such representative establishments as the Coalbrook Dale Company, Spear and Jackson and Firth and Sons, of Sheffield, Gillett and Sons and Winfield and Co., of Birmingham, and Russell and Sons, of Wednesbury. Of the nine medals awarded to chemical industry, the majority have fallen to the candle manufacturers and perfumers, notably to Price's Patent Candle Company, Young's Paraffin Light Company, to Atkinson's, of Old Bond-street, and Rimmel of the scented programmes and eau-de-cologne fountains. The eight medals for progress given in the food section have all been secured by well-known firms like Crosse and Blackwell, who, in addition to a medal for preserved provisions, have secured a special medal for their pure malt vinegar. Huntley and Palmer are rewarded for their endless varieties of fancy biscuits, Colman for mustard, Fry and Sons for chocolate, and the Anglo-Bavarian Brewery Company, of Shepton Mallet, have secured the highest reward allotted in the beer section for their admirable ales. Only six medals for progress fell to the share of civil engineering and architecture, five to agricultural machinery, and the same number to leather and indiarubber industry, four to decorative and industrial design, a like number to the exhibitors of scientific instruments and in the agricultural and forestry group, three to paper manufacture, merely two to musical instruments, and two to the art of war.

The secondary class of medals—namely, those for merit—awarded to British exhibitors may be said to be legion, while of the forty-six fine-art medals nineteen have been distributed among our oil-colour painters and nine among our painters in water colours; eleven have fallen to the share of British engravers upon steel and wood, five to our sculptors, and a couple to our architects, very few of whom appear to have been exhibitors.

OUR ILLUSTRATIONS.

The proceedings of the official authorities at the Vienna Exhibition have been related by our Special Correspondent. The ceremony of presenting the prizes to meritorious exhibitors, which was performed in the Winter Riding School of the Imperial Palace on the 18th ult., by Archduke Albert, is the subject of one of our Illustrations. His Imperial and Royal Highness, first cousin of the Emperor of Austria, was accompanied on the dais by Archduke Leopold. On the floor in front of him was the Emperor's youngest brother, Archduke Charles Louis, attended by Count Andrassy, Prime Minister of the Empire, and by Baron Schwarzenberg, Director General of the Exhibition. Archduke Rainer, President of the Exhibition Committee, with the gentlemen belonging to that committee, appears where he stood after coming forward to present to Archduke Charles Louis, as representing the Emperor, a list of the awards made by the jurors. Archduke Charles Louis, turning to his senior relative on the dais, has given a consent, in the Emperor's name, to the publication of this list. Baron Schwarzenberg has taken the list in his hand, and is about to read it, at the moment of our Artist's sketch. This was the whole of the simple ceremony, followed by the music of the Austrian national hymn.

The model dwelling-houses of the rustic population in different provinces of the Austrian and German empires are not the least interesting part of the Exhibition. We have described several of these buildings and their furniture, more particularly the Elsass-Lothringen farmhouse which was partly destroyed by fire two or three weeks ago. Those shown in a page of this week's paper are the interior of the Haidorfer peasant's cottage, the Saxon Siebenbürger and Seklerhaus, and a cottage of the Vorarlberg. There is a picturesque variety in the patterns and fashions of household architecture, utensils, and costumes among the rural folk of upland and forest regions, both in Central and Southern Germany, as well as in the Tyrol and other Alpine countries under the rule of Francis Joseph I. Similar examples from the kingdom of Hungary will be shown in a future set of Illustrations.

One of our Artists at Vienna, having an eye for the queer and comical aspects of social life, has sketched a few groups of figures representing the odd looks and ways of different classes of visitors to the Exhibition. The ignorant amazement of an elderly pair from the country, at the sight of the wonder-working machines, is contrasted with the scientific zeal of a geologist or mineralogist, who makes a very minute inspection of sundry pieces of rock or metallic ores. An Arabian dealer in trinkets or cheap Oriental jewellery makes the most of his wares to attract the fancy of female purchasers. In the Fine-Arts Gallery we chance to find a trio of brother artists, confiding with each other upon the unworthy neglect of their laboriously-painted canvases, while a contemptuous appraiser of such products, the smart man with the Jewish nose, persists in refusing to buy. The display of clocks and watches has engaged the attention of two visitors, one of them, perhaps, a journeyman watchmaker, to such a degree that it is easy for his neighbour the pickpocket to carry off a trophy of skill in the craft of chevalier d'industrie. After such a stroll through the Exhibition, one is glad to sit down in the garden of the pleasant beer-drinking institution, founded by the Pilsen Brewery Company, and to enjoy a draught of that wholesome and refreshing liquid so dear to the German and to the English palate.

TAIL DANCERS OF DAHOMEY.

The negro kingdom of Dahomey, which borders on that of Ashantee in West Africa, has got rather a bad name, from the custom of entertaining its King and its gods with human sacrifices; which are, in fact, neither more nor less than the solemn execution of a number of criminals and prisoners of war who have been legally condemned to death, and whose decapitation is superintended by the Monarch, with more formal ceremony than is used by the civilised Governments of Europe. His Majesty enjoys or endures—we cannot say which—another privilege that is not exactly specified among the prerogatives of European Royalty: he is attended entirely by women, having a well-armed guard of female soldiers, and a social circle of female courtiers; none of the ruder sex, unless by special permission, may ever approach his sacred presence. There are some Englishmen who would think this rather a bore, and who are not afraid to say so; but what is the good of being King of Dahomey if one may not live after one's own taste? Our correspondent, Mr. J. A. Skeretchly, who resided some time with this singular potentate, and was very hospitably treated, furnishes a sketch of the performance of the Logunkayau-wa, which he saw during the Grand Custom, a yearly festival at Abomey, the capital of the kingdom. It took place at the palace of Ghegbeh, eight miles from that city. In the courtyard of the palace, which is the scene of our Illustration, his Majesty was seated upon a mat, placed on the ground, under an open shed. He was surrounded by his guard of amazons, as he continually smoked his pipe, with one woman to hold a spittoon, another to fan him, another with a handkerchief to wipe his face. Mr. Skeretchly writes the following description:—

"To the right a number of girls are seen, dressed in a kind of waistcoat of striped cotton cloth, and an under-skirt of pink, with a black velvet tunic as an outer garment. Their arms and ankles are encircled with numerous brass and silver bracelets, while necklaces of beads of various colours and silver and coral chains depend from their necks. Their hair is shaven, except a small circular tuft on the top of the head, which is combed straight out, and stands upright about eight inches. They wear no head-dress whatever. A belt of goatskin passes round the waist, at the back of which is a short stick, and at the end of this a long tail is suspended, composed of alternate bands of black and white horsehair.

"These are the celebrated 'tail dancers,' and are an institution of the present King. They dance before the King every alternate day of the Custom; and the 'figure,' if such it can be called, consists of their making the most grotesque gestures. One of the performers first begins to a kind of tune played by a band of music, and she is gradually joined by the others one by one. As soon as the whole 'set' is formed they commence a side step or rather hop; and by the undulating movement of their bodies their tails are swung round behind them. They then go through various evolutions, still keeping up the circular motion of the tail; and during the whole continuance of the dance they sing the praises of the King in solos and choruses. When his Majesty is tired of their performance, which sometimes lasts for three or four hours, he dismisses them with a present of rum and cowries.

"The band is seen on the left. In the front are two women sitting astride upon a drum, formed of the trunk of a tree, covered with goatskin at one end, and slightly raised from the ground by a couple of crossed sticks. Sometimes one and at others two hooked drumsticks are used, and occasionally it is beaten with the palm of the hand. Behind the drum are the 'gong-gong' players, who constitute the main body of every band. Their instruments are made of iron, in the form of a gauntlet, and they are beaten with small iron rods. Two of these 'gauntlets,' of different tones—generally at an interval of a fourth in music—are joined to one handle, and the sound produced very much resembles the harmony of a lot of saucepan handles and pokers. Outside these another portion of the band is placed, whose instruments are simply gourds, about the size and shape of a water-cooler. In these a number of small stones are placed, which they rattle in order to keep time; and attached to each of these gourds is a netting upon which the vertebrae of a boa-constrictor is strung, and these make a rattle outside the gourd and increase the noise. The last troop of the band consists of trumpeters and singers who ceaselessly sing the praises of the King, both day and night, being relieved about every six hours by fresh performers."

The following candidates have obtained Royal exhibitions of £50 per annum each for three years and free admission to the course of instruction:—To the Royal School of Mines, Jermyn-street, London—William Hewitt, 21, teacher, Kensington; C. S. Fleming, 20, assistant teacher, Islington; and Samuel Barratt, 22, assistant teacher, Stockport. To the Royal College of Science, Dublin—Henry Louis, 17, student, Anerley; Robert H. Reilly, 18, student, Roscrea; and Thomas Arnall, 22, rulemaker, Birmingham.

The Act of the late Session to make better provision for carrying into effect the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1854, and for other purposes connected therewith, came into operation on Monday. As traffic includes "passengers," a more extended supervision for the benefit of the public will now be exercised. Besides the three Commissioners appointed, there are to be assistant commissioners and clerks. The Commissioners may from time to time call in aid assessors, persons of engineering or other technical knowledge; the decisions of the Commissioners or orders may be made a rule of one of the Superior Courts, and enforced. Among their powers the Commissioners are to consider whether the granting of a rate is a due and reasonable facility in the interests of the public, and whether, having regard to the circumstances, the route proposed is a reasonable route, and are empowered to allow or refuse the rate accordingly. There are provisions as to the conveyance of mails by any train: "every railway company shall afford all reasonable facilities for the receipt and delivery of mails at any of their stations, without requiring them to be booked or interposing any other delay." The Commissioners are to decide all questions of law and fact; may require the attendance of all persons and documents, and, when sitting in open court, may punish for contempt; they are to sit either in open court or in private, but any complaint is to be made in open court; they may "sit at such times and in such places, and conduct their proceedings in such manner, as may seem to them most convenient for the speedy dispatch of business."

THE LOGUNKAYAU-WA, OR TAIL DANCERS OF DAHOMY.

THE PRATER. VIENNA.

PEASANTS IN THE MACHINERY HALL.

GEOLOGIST WITH SPECIMENS.

ARABIAN JEWELLER.

PILSENER BEER-GARDEN.

ARTISTS AT THE PICTURE GALLERY.
SKETCHES AT THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

WATCHMAKERS AND WATCH-STEALERS.

Carthage Harbour. Two Italian Frigates. H.M.S. Helicon. H.M.S. Swiftsure. Fort St. Julian. H.M.S. Triumph. Captured Spanish Ship Vittoria. U.S. Sloop Wachusett. Captured Spanish Ship Almanzar. U.S. Frigate Wabash. H.M.S. Lord Warden. Italian Frigate Venezia. H.M.S. Torch. Merchant Vessels. Escombrera Lighthouse.
CARTHAGENA HARBOUR AND ESCOMBRERA BAY, WITH THE SQUADRON ASSEMBLED THERE.

SCIENTIFIC RESULTS OF THE MONTH.

During the past month the Iron and Steel Institute has held its fifth annual provincial meeting at Liège, in Belgium. In some respects the gathering was more remarkable for its political than for its scientific significance, as the English visitors were received not merely as professional brethren, but as representatives of a nation to the protection of which Belgium is mainly indebted for her political existence. The papers read were not remarkable for the new lights they threw upon the art of iron-making, nor were there any new machines or contrivances exhibited embodying weighty or startling innovation. But a good deal of useful information on many subjects was imparted; and, as all the chief ironworks in Belgium were thrown open for the inspection of the visitors, there can be no doubt that many useful hints were received and imparted. The address of the President was chiefly devoted to statistical topics connected with the cost of procuring coal and iron ore, and the rates of wages and cost of the necessities of life in the different localities where iron is produced. Among the models exhibited was one of Gillon and Dujardin's three-high-rolling mill for iron, in which the middle roll is movable vertically through a distance equal to the thickness of the plate, and a hinged frame or table lifts the plate from the lower level to the higher, by which means it is rolled both in passing backward and forward. Three-high rolls are not unusual in this country; but a pair of engines easily reversible and without fly-wheel, made to operate upon the common mill, we consider preferable. Models of Somzée's system of jointing gas and water pipes were also shown by Messrs. Gernant and Co., of Brussels. In this system the joint is made by placing a ring of vulcanised indiarubber in a recess or groove on the end of the pipe, which is then forced into the faucet. Models were also exhibited of Whitwell's hot-blast stoves and of Wood's machine for granulating slag or cast iron. Among the papers read were those on the Geology of Belgium, by R. Malherbe; on the Rise and Progress of the Iron and Steel Industries in Belgium, by J. Deby; on the Mineralogy of Luxembourg, by M. Habets; and on Blast Furnaces, by M. Büttgenbach. M. Deby's paper is one of much archaeological interest. It has been ascertained that before the time of the Romans iron was made in Belgium; and in 1870 two of the old furnaces in which the manufacture was carried on were dug up at Lustin, between Namur and Dinant. These furnaces consisted merely of oval excavations in the clay soil, and a tunnel for conducting the wind to each was discovered, a movable mouthpiece having been, it is supposed, applied to catch the wind from whatever quarter it blew. Large mounds of scoria produced by these primitive furnaces have also been discovered, and are again being made available in the iron manufacture, the iron having been very imperfectly extracted by the rude methods then available. During the Roman dominion iron was manufactured on a better system in various parts of Belgium, and records exist showing that from the tenth to the twelfth century the manufacture of iron was actively pursued with the aid of furnaces built of stone and lined with clay. In 1345 William, Count of Namur, granted various privileges to the workers in iron; but from the twelfth to the fifteenth century little progress was made, the country having been torn by faction and war. In 1468 the ironworks near Liège were destroyed and the city was burned by Charles the Bold of Burgundy. At the close of the fifteenth century leathern bellows were in use for driving the air into the furnaces. About the middle of the last century charcoal became scarce, and attempts were made, at Julenville in 1769, and at Bouvignes in 1800, to smelt iron with coke. But it was not till 1823 that the first coke-smelting furnace was successfully established, and this was done by John Cockerill, an Englishman, who, in 1817, established the existing ironworks at Seraing; and in 1823 he founded the modern Belgian iron trade by substituting coke for charcoal. The general character of the machinery employed in the Belgian ironworks is superior to that which is in use in South Wales, but it is not better than the machinery of Barrow and of the Cleveland district.

Dr. John Dougall contributes an article to a late number of the Lancet, in which he records the results of some experiments made to ascertain the effect of the vapour of carbolic acid on vaccine lymph. The effect was found to be nil, and it is hence concluded that the prevailing impression that carbolic acid can neutralise or destroy varicellous or zymotic infection is a delusion—carbolic acid being merely an antiseptic, and antiseptics not being by any means necessarily anti-zymotic agents. To get rid of zymotic poison destructives and not preservatives are necessary, and these destructives are chiefly the mineral acids. Vaccine lymph which had been exposed to the vapour of carbolic acid for twenty-four hours was as effective in vaccination as fresh lymph.

A remarkable effect appears to be produced upon the bones of horned cattle by the fodder of certain localities, the bones being found to become brittle. Herr Nessler finds that in the hay which produces this brittleness the protein bodies are usually deficient and that it is poor in sodium. In a peculiar kind of hay very apt to produce the brittleness the amount of phosphoric acid and calcium were found to be very small, and the water drank by the affected cattle contained but a small proportion of mineral matter.

General Morin, who has long been occupied with researches regarding ventilation, gives a formula in the Comptes Rendus, indicating the amount of air which should be renewed hourly for each individual in order that the carbonic acid and vapours exhaled may not accumulate beyond a proportion of 0.0008 in a given inclosed space. In a space of 10 cubic metres it is stated that the hourly renewal should be 90 cubic metres; in 12, 88; in 16, 84; in 20, 80; in 30, 70; in 40, 60; and in 60, 40. Various applications of the formula are given to barracks, public halls, hospitals, &c.

The name of the unarmoured cruiser Blonde, which has been built at Portsmouth, has been changed to the Shah. The vessel is supposed to be an improvement on the Inconstant. She carries eight 7-inch guns in broadside, and two 10-inch pivot-guns, like those of the Hercules and Sultan. Vessels of this class, maintaining a high speed and able to carry large quantities of coal, are certainly more eligible than penetrable ironclads, such as those which Mr. Reed and others have bequeathed to this country, and we ought undoubtedly to have a number of such vessels available in the event of war, which, however, should be worked, in the meanwhile, under contract for carrying important mails. The Cunard Company, West India Mail Company, Peninsular and Oriental Company, Pacific Company, and others should all be subsidised to provide vessels to carry mails at a speed of twenty miles an hour, and those vessels should also be fitted to carry heavy guns.

It is stated that the gasworks at San Francisco have become a popular resort for persons attacked with whooping cough, upon whom the sulphurous exhalations appear to exercise a beneficial influence. The persons employed in gasworks have been found to enjoy a remarkable exemption from attacks of cholera, as also have coppermiths and persons employed in the manufacture of copper, where also sulphurous fumes are to be found. Such facts should give useful hints to medical men.

In oriental countries the teeth of saws are so formed as to cut in pulling, whereas in occidental countries the teeth cut when the saw is pushed—an inferior arrangement, as the saw is liable to buckle unless made thick, which involves more labour in working and a greater waste of material in saw-dust. The circular saws used in the manufacture of gold pens are half an inch in diameter and very thin.

The subject of aerial navigation is attracting attention in France, and M. Pierre Thomas concludes that we cannot hope to make steam-engines for aerial propulsion lighter than forty kilogrammes per effective horse power. About 112 lb. per effective horse is the lightest that has yet been made in this country. For aerial navigation it is not steam-engines that we should look to for propulsion, but gun-cotton, or some such explosive substance, which will generate much power with little weight.

LIFE-BOAT SERVICES.

On Thursday a meeting of the Royal National Life-Boat Institution was held at its house, John-street, Adelphi—Sir Edward G. L. Perrott, Bart., V.P., in the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read, rewards and payments to the amount of £372 were ordered to be made on different life-boat establishments. The Wexford No. 2 life-boat has performed a gallant service in going out during stormy weather and saving the crew of three men from the stranded schooner Rambler of that port. The thanks of the institution, inscribed on vellum, were voted to Mr. W. T. Taylor, clerk at the Wexford Custom House, who volunteered as one of the crew of the life-boat on this occasion, the boat being short-handed at the time. The New Brighton and Swansea life-boats have respectively saved ten men from the wrecked ship Dunmail, of Liverpool, and one man from the Prussian barque Triton. It was reported that the Norwegian Government has decreed by a Royal resolution that, in acknowledgment of the gallant services rendered by the Penzance life-boat in saving the crew of the Norwegian brig Otto, of Moss, on Jan. 26 last, the silver medal for civic deeds (Borgerdaad) be granted to Nicholas B. Downing, Esq., Swedish and Norwegian Vice-Consul at Penzance; and to Captain W. Howorth, R.N., inspecting commander, and Mr. William Blackmore, chief officer of H.M. coastguard at Penzance, together with a reward of £12 to the crew of the life-boat, in addition to the honorary and pecuniary rewards previously voted by the institution in this case. Various contributions to the society were announced, including £200 from Mrs. Mary Ann Butcher, £100 from "M." £73 10s. additional from the Covent-garden Life-Boat Fund, £50 from Mrs. Lowdell, and £50 from the Independent Order of Odd Fellows (M. U.), being their contribution for the past year in aid of the support of their life-boat at Cleethorpes. The life-boat presented by the Order of Good Templars is to be publicly launched at its station at Sunderland on the 16th inst. Reports were read from Captain J. R. Ward, R.N., the inspector, and Captain D. Robertson, R.N., the assistant inspector of life-boats to the institution, on their recent visits to the coast.

At Exeter the sale of horses from the Dartmoor Camp realised an average of £34 each. Their original cost to the Government is said to have been £49.

Notice has been given that the next open competitive examination for admission to the civil service of India will commence on March 24 next, and that persons who wish to compete must send in their applications to the Civil Service Commissioners, together with evidence of their age, health, and character, before Feb. 1.

Two shocks of earthquake were felt at Nottingham yesterday week. Mr. E. J. Lowe, writing from Highfield House Observatory, says:—"Two smart shocks of earthquake occurred here this morning, at 6h. 50m. 40s., the first of which lasted six seconds and the last scarcely a second, the interval between the two shocks being under half a minute. I was lying awake, when a loud noise, like a heavy railway train, came rapidly up from south-west and passed to north-east, during which a large four-post bed rose five or six times from the ground and rolled in a wave-like manner, the oscillations being from south-west to north-east. The windows shook and made a great noise, the pictures vibrated on the walls, and a looking-glass in front of me (which I was carefully watching) so moved that I saw a reflected portion of the room which otherwise I could not have done. A dog sleeping in my room rushed about while the earthquake lasted. As soon as the first shock was over I hurriedly rose from bed and went into my dressing-room to ascertain the exact time, and while doing this, before I could reach my watch, a second shock swayed me sideways."

A handsome park was formally presented to the people of Birmingham, on Monday, in the name of Miss Ryland, to whom the town is indebted for many previous valuable and enlightened benefactions. The new park, which derives its name from the estate of Cannon Hill, of which it formed part, is situated about two miles from the centre of Birmingham, in one of its most picturesque suburbs, and contains about sixty-six acres of undulating and well-wooded land, which has been laid out and planted with great taste at the expense of the donor. It contains two pools, one reserved for boating and the other for swimming, and portions of the park are specially laid out for archery, quoits, croquet, and other games. The estimated value of the gift is £30,000. It was an express stipulation of the donor that there should be no public demonstration on the occasion of the opening, and the ceremony consisted only of the presentation of the keys of the gates to the Mayor by Mr. Alderman Ryland in the name of his sister, and the distribution of a short printed message from the lady among the public present. The deed of conveyance to the Birmingham Corporation provides that no intoxicating liquors shall be sold in the park, and no games of any sort allowed on Sundays.

The report recently issued by the Registrar-General relating to the year 1871 contained further testimony on the subject of long life. In 1871 the following deaths were registered in England, the ages (like other particulars) being taken on the statement of the relatives or other persons supplying information of the death:—There were twenty-seven persons registered as dying at the age of 100 years, seventeen at 101, ten at 102, five at 103, three at 104, two at 105, two at 106, one at 107, one at 108, one at 109 years. The last three should have special mention. A man in the district of Sevenoaks was registered as dying 107 years old, a man in the district of Ledbury 108, a woman in the district of Chester 109 years old. Seven centenarians died in the metropolis, and seven in Lancashire. Of the whole sixty-nine, twenty-five were men and forty-four were women. From 1861 to 1871 the deaths of people registered as being 100 years old or more averaged seventy-eight a year—twenty-one men and fifty-seven women. The Registrar-General mentions as the only known instance of an insured life reaching 100 years, that of Jacob William Luning, who died, in 1870, at the age of 103 years. His age was clearly established by documentary evidence submitted to the Registrar-General, and published by him in his weekly return.

UNVEILING THE MONUMENT OF VICTORY AT BERLIN.

Wednesday being the anniversary of the victory of Sedan, the Monument of Victory erected on the Königs-Platz, Berlin, was unveiled with great solemnity. The Emperor, the German Imperial Prince, Prince Bismarck, the Generals, and Ministers were present, besides the regiments of the Guards and deputations from the armies of several German States. The streets were gaily decorated and much thronged. The Emperor, the Imperial Prince, and Prince Bismarck were every where received by the people with enthusiastic shouts.

The Emperor, on starting from the palace, read the following address to the Field Marshals and Generals in command:—"At the outset of this significant ceremony, which is to close the series of testimonials of gratitude and honour, I experience a feeling of pride at seeing you gathered around me, even as at the battles and engagements in which you so highly distinguished yourselves at the head of your troops."

On arriving at the Königs-Platz his Majesty addressed the deputations from the various regiments in the following terms:—"I rejoice to find the representatives of my army assembled around me on this day—one of the grandest in my whole life—on which, with feelings of the deepest gratitude, I commit to the present and future generations this Column of Victory, in memory of the deeds of the German soldiers. I authorise you to communicate these my sentiments to the troops on your return to your homes."

At the banquet which was given at the termination of the ceremony the Emperor, on rising to propose a toast, called upon his hearers, in the first place, not to forget those who had fallen in battle. He then continued thus:—"During a prosperous peace of half a century the recollection of the glorious deeds of the War of Liberation never died out in Prussia. This reminiscence found an echo in the hearts of the young generation, and animated them when they were called upon again to grasp the sword. It nerved the army to new victories, roused a self-sacrificing spirit in the people, and caused the wounds which were inflicted to be carefully and lovingly tended. Thus was this admonition to emulation complied with in the most exalted manner. The Column of Victory unveiled to-day is a proof to the present and future generations of what self-sacrifice and perseverance can accomplish. In conjunction with our faithful allies in the last glorious war we strode from victory to victory, by the grace and bountiful will of God, until we attained to the unity of Germany in the establishment of a new Empire. I drink, therefore, in gratitude to my heroic people, my illustrious allies, and our glorious army."

The pottery districts of Staffordshire have been destitute of water, owing to the bursting of the pipes on which the supply for a large population depends.

A Melbourne telegram reports further disturbances in Fiji between the natives and the planters. Two settlers have been killed and a number wounded.

The annual report of the Department of Science and Art for the year 1872 gives the following details as to attendance at the schools and classes of science and art in connection with the department:—36,783 persons attending science schools and classes in 1872, as against 38,015 in 1871; and 244,134 receiving instruction in art, showing an increase upon the previous year of 31,633, or nearly 15 per cent. The total number of persons who received direct instruction as students, or by means of lectures, in connection with the Science and Art Department in 1872, was nearly 299,000, showing an increase, as compared with the number in the previous year, of 28,000, or 10 per cent. The museums and collections under the superintendence of the department in London, Dublin, and Edinburgh were last year visited by upwards of 2,922,000 persons, showing the very considerable increase of 1,141,000, or about 63 per cent on the number in 1871. The expenditure of the department during the financial year 1872-3, exclusive of the vote for the geological survey, amounted to £209,117 2s. 2d.

Some useful information and valuable hints respecting the postage of newspapers for transmission abroad will be found in the Postmaster-General's report, recently issued. It seems that last year nearly 600,000 newspapers posted for abroad had been stopped in their progress owing to insufficient payment of postage. Many persons appear to think that a penny, or even a halfpenny, stamp will carry a newspaper of any weight to any place whatever, whereas, as the Postmaster-General points out, no newspaper can be sent abroad for a halfpenny; and it is only to certain countries and by certain routes, and when the weight does not exceed a quarter of a pound, that even a penny will suffice; while, as a rule, unless the full postage is prepaid, the newspaper cannot be forwarded at all. As the Post Office has generally no means of ascertaining who are the senders of newspapers insufficiently paid, copies are necessarily destroyed, and thus not only the newspaper, but also the sum paid upon it is sacrificed. It cannot, says the report, be too strongly impressed upon persons sending newspapers to their friends in the colonies and other places abroad that the halfpenny rate is applicable to inland newspapers only; that on newspapers going abroad the lowest rate is one penny; and that when the weight of any such newspaper exceeds four ounces the lowest rate is twopence. The neglect of another rule—viz., that fixing eight days from the date of publication as the limit within which a newspaper must be posted for foreign transmission—also leads to the loss of a large number of newspapers, such number last year having been more than 100,000.—Pall Mall Gazette.

The inquiry ordered by the Board of Trade into the foundering of the barque Anna Frances has resulted in the suspension of the master's certificate for two years.—As to the Volunteer, of New Shoreham, abandoned near the Dutch coast, the Court report that the waterways amidships were defective, and, in the absence of direct evidence as to her seaworthiness, they think she would have weathered a gale of less severity.—In the case of the John, of Bridgewater, which stranded at Slade Bay, near Waterford Hook, and was ultimately wrecked, Sydney Short, the master (who held no certificate), neglected, from the time of passing the Saltee Lights to the stranding of the ship, to keep any kind of reckoning as to his position by the use of log or lead or other necessary and proper precautions. After the stranding of the vessel no sufficient efforts were made to save the ship or cargo, and both might have been saved had proper steps been taken. The Court would have suspended the certificate of the master, had he had one, for a considerable time; but, taking all the circumstances into consideration, especially the good character given to him previous to the voyage, they adjudged him to pay £10 as a portion of the costs of the investigation.—The inquiry into the collision last month in the Mersey, between the screw-steamer Muriel and the sailing-vessel Escoeca, has resulted in a report that the Muriel was alone in fault, by a want of judgment on the part of her pilot. The masters of both vessels were on deck, were quite sober, and did all they could to assist their respective pilots and carry out their orders. The Court, therefore, acquitted them of all blame.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE DOWAGER COUNTESS OF KENMARE.

The Right Hon. Augusta, Countess of Kenmare, died on the 22nd ult., at her residence, 11, Belgrave-square, in her seventy-fifth year. Her Ladyship was the second daughter of Sir Robert Wilmot, second Baronet, of Osmaston, by Marianne, his second wife, daughter and heiress of Charles Howard, Esq., of Pipe Grange, in the county of Stafford, and was consequently half-sister of the late Right Hon. Sir Robert Wilmot-Horton, Bart., Governor of Ceylon. She was married, July 1, 1816, to Valentine, Earl of Kenmare, but had no issue. At her husband's death the earldom of Kenmare and the estates (including the lake district of Killarney) of the ancient family of Browne, of Hospital, in the county of Limerick, devolved upon his brother, Thomas, Earl of Kenmare, father of Valentine, present Earl, K.P., so long connected, as Viscount Castlerosse, with her Majesty's household.

THE HON. HENRY WODEHOUSE.

The Hon. Henry Wodehouse died recently at the British Legation, Athens. He was born (posthumous) May 27, 1834, the second son of the Hon. Henry Wodehouse, by his wife, Anne, only daughter of Theophilus Thornhaugh Gordon, Esq., of Letton, Norfolk; and was thus only brother to the present Earl of Kimberley. Mr. Wodehouse graduated at Balliol College, 1855, and the same year entered the diplomatic service. He was attached successively to the Embassies at Vienna, St. Petersburg, Stockholm, and Constantinople, and was employed in the Foreign Office, 1862-3. He afterwards proceeded (as second secretary) to the Hague, whence he was transferred to Madrid, Vienna, and Paris. At various periods he was Chargé des Archives in the last-named city. The Hon. Mr. Wodehouse married, June 25, 1872, Minnie, daughter of J. P. King, Esq., of Sand Hills, Georgia, United States.

MR. FORBES GORDON, OF RAYNE.

Arthur Forbes-Gordon, Esq., of Rayne, Aberdeenshire, died, on the 21st ult., at 16, Rutland-square, Edinburgh. He was born in 1806, the only son of the late Lieutenant-Colonel Arthur Forbes, A.D.C. to Sir Ralph Abercromby, fifth son of Sir Arthur Forbes, Bart., of Cragievar, M.P. for Aberdeenshire. He assumed the additional surname of Gordon on succeeding to the estate of Rayne, on the death of his relative, John Gordon, Esq., of Avochie, and was a J.P. and D.L., and a Commissioner of Supply for the county of Aberdeen. He married, in 1843, Charlotte, eldest daughter of the late Colonel W. Balfour, 82nd Regiment, and had three sons and one daughter.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will and three codicils thereto of the Most Noble Cecilia Letitia, Duchess of Inverness, were proved, on the 29th ult., by the Hon. and Rev. Annesley Henry Gore, the nephew of the deceased, and John Gardiner, the executors—the personal estate being sworn under £25,000. Among the several specific and pecuniary legacies the following may be noted:—To the Queen, testatrix's best diamond necklace; to Princess Alice, her second-best diamond necklace; to the Prince of Wales, a large single-stone diamond ring; to the Princess of Wales, her gold stand, with eleven bottles and gold tops, and her long diamond earrings; to testatrix's godchild, Princess Maude of Wales, a diamond necklace; to Princess Mary of Teck, £1000; to her son Prince Adolphus, £500; and a sum of £300 is left for the purpose of keeping up the tomb of her late husband, the Duke of Sussex, at Kensal-green Cemetery. The residue of her property testatrix leaves to her sister, Lady Julia Lockwood.

The will and codicil of Miss Mary Gray Ratray, late of No. 41, Tavistock-square, were proved, on July 30 last, by Edwin Bedford and Charles Jellicoe, the executors—the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The will contains very many legacies; and, among others, testatrix bequeaths £20,000, free of duty, to her executors, and directs them to retain it out of such part of her property as may by law be given for charitable purposes, and to pay and divide the same among such of the charitable institutions of the metropolis as they may in their absolute discretion think fit.

The will, with a codicil, of Mrs. Marian Glasse, late of Townley Castle, Ramsgate, and of No. 11, Connaught-square, was proved, on the 14th ult., by the Rev. Henry Collinson, Henry Matcham, and James Morshad Barnes, the executors—the personal estate, including leaseholds, being sworn under £160,000. The testator bequeaths to the Royal Sea-Bathing Infirmary, Margate, £200 free of duty; to the Rev. Henry Collinson £10,000, and also devises to him her farms in the parishes of Garveston and Yakam, Norfolk; subject to some other legacies, the said Henry Matcham takes the residue, including the Townley Castle and Tilney All Saints' estates and testatrix's house in Connaught-square.

The will of Mr. James Holmes, of Took's-court, Chancery-lane, and of Holland-villas-road, Kensington, was proved, on the 1st ult., by Charlotte Elizabeth Thomasine Holmes, the relict, the sole executrix—the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testator gives all his real estate and the residue of his personal estate, including his one fourth share of the copyright stock and effects of the Athenæum newspaper and all his interest therein, to his widow absolutely. There are two legacies of £200 each; five of £100 each, one of the legatees being Sir Charles Dilke; and one of £10; and to each of such legatees testator leaves in addition two shares of the ordinary stock in the Crystal Palace Company.

The will of Mrs. Helen Tatlock, of No. 16, Park-square, was proved, on the 23rd ult., by John Edward Parr and the Rev. Edward William Blore, the executors—the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testatrix bequeaths to each of her executors £500, and to her daughter, Miss Harriet Helen Tatlock, all her furniture and household effects. The residue of her property she leaves to her said daughter for life, and gives her absolute power of appointment over same at her death.

The will of Mr. Henry Parker, of White Lodge, Enfield, was proved, on the 25th ult., by Mrs. Susan Parker, the relict, the sole executrix—the personal estate being sworn under £40,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife, and to each of his two unmarried daughters, £500, and to Mrs. Orr and Mrs. Browne £300 each. The income of the residue of his property he gives to his widow for life, and at her death £7000 to each of his three daughters and the residue to his three sons.

Letters of administration of the personal estate of John Robinson M'Clean (M.P. for East Staffordshire), late of No. 2, Park-street, Westminster, have been granted to Frank M'Clean, his son—the personal estate being sworn under £700,000, and the stamp duty amounting to £13,500.

The Ashby and Nuneaton Railway was opened for passenger traffic on Monday. This new line has occupied nearly four years in construction, and is the joint property of the Midland and London and North-Western Railway Companies.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

H. B. S. Rickmanworth.—You overlook the fact that Black for his second move can take the attacking Bishop with his Pawn and claim a Queen.

Rev. M. Clark, W. V. G. D.—In Problem No. 1539 mate is not practicable by the line of play you propose. Study the position attentively.

J. P. H.—You have omitted to send your name and address.

P. C. G.—The lines of Mrs. Browning are very pleasing, but the geometrical figure of your tour is anything but so.

C. H. O. and the COMMITTEE OF THE CALCUTTA CHESS CLUB are thanked for the games played by telegraph between Calcutta and Bombay. The games are already under examination.

G. H. D.—Received, with thanks.

Lex.—The success of Mr. Blackburne has exceeded general expectation, and he may well be proud of his victories over Andersen, Steinitz, Paulsen, and Bird. We are glad to hear, however, that the last named player, who it is well known suffered from illness at Vienna, has arranged to play a match with Mr. Blackburne in October. If the match is a long one it will probably determine who is the best English player in the field at present. If, moreover, as is said, the victor intends to challenge Mr. Steinitz, it will, perhaps, determine who is the best player of Europe.

W. T. P. and Others.—The surest way to prevent mistakes is to indicate the colour of the men by the letters "W." and "B." Fencing a circle round the Black men, or using different coloured ink, leads to confusion.

THE CHURCH SOCIETY OF PROBLEMS No. 1539 has been received from W. P. W.—Magnus—B. D. Seale, Jerry—Joseph Janion—A. A.—Dromio—L. S. K.—Felix—B. G. N.—Taffy—B. D. J. Watkins—Calvert—Theo. Lane—M. P.—H. Re—Dunblane—Aristotle—Keith and Kate—F. R. S.—Ben—L. L.—Ralph and Sam—Box and Cor—Mont Blanc—Robert Pippin—J. Allaire—H. B.—Suganus—B. T.—Urs and Ulfion—H. P. E. R.—Holzhause and G. out—R. W. D.—J. Bale of Otley—Alice and Lizzie Harden—Allamand—Barrow Hodges—E. Frau of Lyons—St. Clair—W. V. G. D.—Omleron—S. B. B.—Henry Cole—Padden—L. S. D.—Tom Brown—An Old and True Friend—Max—W. F. Payne—Semprom—Roderick—W. T. Vernon—M. D.—Umbra—H. H. Hammer—K. Mark—Berwick—B. C. L.—H. B. S.—Ferdinand and Miranda—A. Winkle—T. A. Adams and C. A. Mueller—G. and D.—F. A. S.—Out of Town—President and Four Members—W. Furnival—Trial—P. D. H.—Helenburgh—J. Bowden—Amphitryon—Bob—Josiah Bugby—W. N. Carlyon—T. P. B.—N. S. J.—P. W. of Canterbury—Bee—Dummoire—J. Wood of Edinburgh—Sam Blick—B. D. T.—E. T. A.—Manfred and Man Friday—W. Airey—L. Calais—Kit Marks—Merry Andrew—Schahpelle—Warwick—S. T. H. Faversham—T. Wilson—Morris—Annabell—Mustapha—Basil and Sophia—John Dory—Mrs. and Mr. Rose—Manchester—Charles.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1539.

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE.
1. R to K 5th. Any move. 2. Kt to Q B 6th, Kt to Q B 2nd, according to Black's defence.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1540.

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.
1. R to Q 7th. K to B 4th or K 4th or 5th, or * 2. Q to Q R 4th or K Kt 4th
3. R or B gives mate.

* 1. 2 R takes B (ch) K to Q 5th; 2 Q gives mate.
K to B 5th or K 5th.
† 1. 2 Q to K 2nd (ch) K moves 2 Q or B mates.

PROBLEM NO. 1541.

By Mr. B. M. NEILL of Philadelphia.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

CONSULTATION CHESS.

The following Game was played, a few days since, between Messrs. BIRD and WALTON on the one side, against Messrs. POTTER and BALLARD on the other.—(Irregular Opening.)

WHITE. (Messrs. B. & W.) BLACK. (Messrs. P. & B.)
1. P to K 4th P to Q 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd P to K Kt 3rd
3. P to K 3rd B to K Kt 2nd
4. P to Q B 3rd P to Q 4th
5. Kt to Q R 3rd P to Q R 3rd
6. P to Q 4th P to K Kt 3rd
7. B to K 2nd Kt to K R 3rd
8. B to Q 2nd Kt to Q B 3rd
9. Castles Castles
10. Q to K 5th K to R sq
Neither side can be complained on the spirit of their play in this opening. We have seldom seen a game less interesting in its commencement.
11. K to R sq P to K B 3rd
12. Q to K Kt 3rd P to K 4th
13. B P takes P K B P takes P
14. Q P takes K P K Kt to K B 4th
15. Q to K B 4th K Kt to Q 5th
16. Q takes R (ch) K to R sq
This sacrifice was probably not contemplated by the opposing party. We doubt its soundness.
17. B takes Q
18. K P takes Kt P to K R 3rd
A feeble, inutile move.

THE CHESS TOURNAMENT AT VIENNA.

Though inferior both in the number of competitors and in the value of the prizes offered for competition to the great chess meetings of 1851 and 1862, in London, and even to the gathering in Paris of 1867, the Vienna Tourney of 1873 has proved a very satisfactory and interesting event.

The regulations were good, and so stringently enforced that for the first time, an "International Chess Congress" has been brought to a close before people had ceased to think of it.

In accordance with the programme, the players who had intimated their intention to enter the lists assembled at the Vienna Chess Club, on July 20, for the purpose of being paired. The champions from this country were Mr. Steinitz, an Austrian by birth, but who has lived for many years, and acquired his great chess reputation chiefly, in England; Mr. Blackburne, renowned for his amazing faculty of playing ten or a dozen games at a time, without any chess-board; and Mr. Bird, long known as one of the most intrepid and formidable players of the day. Professor Andersen, the victor in a hundred fights, together with Mr. Paulsen, almost as famous for blindfold chess as Mr. Blackburne himself, appeared for the North of Germany; Mr. Rosenthal stood up for France, Mr. Gelbfuhs for Hungary; and Austria was represented by Dr. Meitner, Dr. Fleissig, and Messrs. Heral, Schwarz, and Pitschel.

The conditions of the tourney were that each competitor must play a rubber of three games with every other. The winner of a match scored one point; if the match turned out a drawn battle, by each party winning one game and drawing the third, half a point or match should be scored to both. Thus every combatant had to fight eleven matches of three games each.

In the first round Mr. Blackburne was paired against Mr. Paulsen, and beat him. In the second he was pitted against Mr. Steinitz, and defeated him. From that moment the main interest of the tournament centred in these two champions, whom everybody set down as winners of the first and second prize. Match by match, each defeated the opponent brought against him down to the eleventh and final round. For this round Mr. Blackburne's antagonist was Mr. Rosenthal, Mr. Steinitz being paired with Mr. Heral. The excitement at this point was naturally very great. The Englishman's score was ten; the Austrian's nine. If each beat his adversary, the Englishman would take the first prize. That Mr. Steinitz would beat Mr. Heral was a foregone conclusion. That Mr. Blackburne would beat Mr. Rosenthal was highly probable, but the latter, though not up to the Englishman's standard, is capable of giving trouble to the best. The round began—in a short space, as was anticipated, Mr. Steinitz defeated Mr. Heral; as was not expected, Mr. Rosenthal defeated Mr. Blackburne, and secured the first prize! Such a result of course intensified the excitement tenfold, and from the friends and countrymen of Mr. Steinitz

"Not vanquish'd yet. A tie! a tie!"

In obedience to the inexorable decree of the directors, the "tie match" was played off on the 28th and 29th ult., Mr. Steinitz doing to Mr. Blackburne, in their last duello, what Mr. Blackburne had done to him in their first—winning two games without his opponent winning one.

Second only in interest to the play of Messrs. Steinitz and Blackburne was the play of Professor Andersen, Mr. Bird, and Mr. Paulsen. The veteran Andersen started gallantly, beating successively Messrs. Meitner, Bird, Rosenthal, Heral, Paulsen, and Pitschel. In the seventh round he had to cope with Mr. Steinitz, and—"youth will be served"—lost the match; in the next round he was pitted against Mr. Blackburne, and did the same. After these defeats, however,

Bating no jot of heart or hope, he won two more matches and drew another, coming in at the finish a good third. Mr. Bird, from whom much was expected—he having lately beaten Mr. Wisker, the winner of the B.C.A. challenge cup—kept close to the trio named above for several matches. After defeating, in succession, Gelbfuhs, Heral, Pitschel, Meitner, and Rosenthal, he was unhappily attacked by gout, and won but one match more. Mr. Paulsen was evidently rusty, and played throughout below his former force. Mr. Rosenthal, whose lucky victory over Mr. Blackburne gained him a prize, was unsuccessful against Messrs. Steinitz, Andersen, and Bird; but some of his games are equal to any in the tourney. Of the other combatants we leave the appended score to speak.

Upon the termination of the match between Messrs. Steinitz and Blackburne the distribution of the prizes took place as follows:—

The Emperor's Prize—Mr. Steinitz. Third Prize—Professor Andersen. Second Prize—Mr. Blackburne. Fourth Prize—Mr. Rosenthal.

We must not conclude this brief notice of the Vienna tournament without an acknowledgment of the obligations which both combatants and visitors are under to Mr. Kolisch, in the first place for organizing the congress, and, in the next, for his untiring efforts to ensure the comfort of all concerned in it.

SYNOPTICAL TABLE, showing the exact score made by each Competitor in the Tourney at Vienna, 1873.

	Blackburne	Steinitz	Andersen	Bird	Paulsen	Meitner	Fleissig	Schwarz	Heral	Gelbfuhs	Pitschel	Total of Won Matches	Total of Lost Matches	Total of Drawn Matches	Total of Games
Blackburne	0	1	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	10	1	0	0
Steinitz	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	10	1	0	0
Andersen	0	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	8	2	1	0
Rosenthal	1	0	0	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	7	3	1	1
Bird	0	0	0	1	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	6	4	1	1
Paulsen	0	0	0	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	1	6	3	3	1
Meitner	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	1	1	1	1	5	6	1	1
Fleissig	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	1	1	1	5	7	1	1
Schwarz	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	1	1	3	6	5	1
Heral	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	1	3	5	6	1
Gelbfuhs	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	2	7	2	0
Pitschel	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	1	10	0	0

In the above Table, 1 signifies a won match; 0 signifies a lost match; and $\frac{1}{2}$ signifies a drawn battle, which counts as half a won match.

FISK UNIVERSITY, JUBILEE HALL.

The abolition of negro slavery in America has been commemorated by founding a college in the city of Nashville, Tennessee, under the superintendence of the American Missionary Association. This institution, one of seven to be established under the same auspices, bears the name of Fisk University, in memory of General Clinton B. Fisk, of St. Louis, an officer of the United States army in the civil war, who was for some time in charge of the Freedmen's Bureau at Nashville, for the protection and settlement of the emancipated negroes in that State. The Fisk School, as it was at first called, was set up in 1866, and started with a thousand boys and girls; it has grown into a college, which in America is called a University, including provision for the more advanced education of older students. In order to erect buildings for this purpose, with a Jubilee Hall to be the conspicuous monument of a grand practical triumph of Christian humanity, a fund of £14,000 is being raised, partly in America, partly in Great Britain, where the Freedmen's Missions Aid Society is at work, to help the American Missionary Association. The foundation-stone was laid, or ground broken, for the new building, on the first day of this year, being the tenth anniversary of President Lincoln's proclamation of emancipation. The site is an elevated piece of land lying just outside the city, and contains twenty-five acres. It has a beautiful outlook: on the one side lies Nashville, with its splendid Capitol building; on the other side are fair landscapes, undulating hills and vales, shaded with forests, and watered by the river Cumberland; and in the distance are mountains, looming up against the horizon. This is the spot where the descendants of the slaves are to have a school for the education of their race. The building is to be of three stories above the basement, and is to be of brick with stone trimmings. The principal or south front is 128 ft., and the east front 154 ft. long. The dormitories will accommodate 170 persons. The dining-room, library, hall, and recitation-rooms are all to be finished with a view to economy and comfort. It is, as we have said, to cost, when finished, £14,000. The Jubilee Singers now in this country are students connected with Fisk University, who have devoted themselves to the work of raising the amount needed. The sum of £8000 has already been realised as the result of concerts given in the United States.

These young men and women, all of negro or mixed race, whose portraits we have engraved, are Minnie Tate, Greene Evans, Isaac P. Dickerson, Jennie Jackson, Maggie Porter, Ella Sheppard, Thomas Rutling, Benjamin M. Holmes, and Eliza Walker, with two other girls. Only two, Jennie Jackson and Minnie Tate, were born free; the rest were brought up in slavery till the decree of emancipation issued during the Civil War. They were selected at the Fisk College and trained as musicians by Mr. George L. White, a schoolmaster and choirmaster, of Ohio, who had served in the Quartermaster's Department of the Army and held a post under General Fisk in the Freedmen's Bureau at Nashville. Ella Sheppard is the pianist, and she, with two of the other young women, sings the soprano parts, while two of them have contralto voices; Dickerson and Evans sing bass; the other two young men are tenors; and the effect of their vocal concerts is very pleasing, as was acknowledged when they performed at Willis's Rooms in London.

A permanent camp is to be formed in the north of England.

A college which has been established at Portsea for the training and maintenance of young men as Jewish divines is to be opened on Jan. 1 next.

THE FISK UNIVERSITY COLLEGE AND JUBILEE HALL, NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

THE JUBILEE SINGERS FOR THE FISK UNIVERSITY COLLEGE.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1776.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1873.

WITH EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

THE NEW TOWNHALL, BRADFORD.

BIRTHS.

On the 6th inst., at 16, Queen's-gate-terrace, S.W., the wife of Commander Edmund H. Verney, Royal Navy, of a daughter.
On the 25th ult., at Halkin street West, Lady Agneta Montagu, of a daughter.
On the 3rd inst., at Cliffe, N.B., Lady Kensington, of a son.
On the 5th inst., at 46, Green-street, Grosvenor-square, Lady Caroline Ingham, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 1st inst., at the Presbyterian Church, Camlen-road, by the Rev. J. Oswald Dykes, D.D., of Regent-square Presbyterian Church, John Cameron, of H.M. Madras Civil Service, to Annie Cowie, only daughter of the late William Guthrie, merchant, Wallbrook, London.
On the 1st inst., at the parish church, Hove, Brighton, by the Rev. E. Maxwell, M.A., Rector of High Reading, Essex, father of the bridegroom, Thomas Maxwell, M.B., of King's College, Cambridge, to Elizabeth Jane, second daughter of the late John Eyre Ashby, LL.D., of Entfield, Middlesex.
On July 23, at St. John's Church, Buenos Ayres, by the Rev. Dr. Smith, P. V. A. Reid, Esq., Espartero, fifth son of the Rev. James Reid, Rector of Manure, Wigton-shire, to Eliza Mary, eldest daughter of John Naylor, Esq., of Montevideo.
On the 4th inst., the Earl of Granard to the Hon. Frances Mary Petre, eldest daughter of Lord and Lady Petre. The ceremony was performed by Archbishop Manning, in the private chapel at Thornhill Hall, Lord Petre's seat in Essex.
On the 4th inst., at Brecon, Lord John H. Taylour, brother of the Marquis of Headfort, Colonel of the 94th Foot, to Miss Winifred Llewellyn, daughter of the late Rev. John Llewellyn.

DEATHS.

On the 2nd inst., at the residence of her grandson, E. T. Horsley, Pye Bridge, Sarah, widow of Lewis Wilson, of Nottingham, deeply lamented, in the 81st year of her age.
On the 6th inst., at 73, Lansdowne-place, Brighton, the Hon. Marianne Oliphant Hay Paterson, relict of the late Peter Hay Paterson, Esq., of Cairnrow, and daughter of the eighth Lord Elbank.
* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPT. 20.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 14.
Fourteenth Sunday after Trinity.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Rev. Prebendary Gibbs, Vicar of Christ Church, Newgate-street; 3.15 p.m., the Rev. Canon Lightfoot, D.D.; 7 p.m., the Rev. E. M. Benson; Chancellor of Lincoln.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Rev. Canon Kingsley.
St. James's, noon, probably the Rev. Thomas Mills.
Whitehall, closed.
Savoy, 11.30 a.m. and 7 p.m., the Rev. Henry White, Chaplain of the Savoy and of the House of Commons.
French Anglican Church of St. John (St. La Savoy), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. B. W. Fournier, incumbent.
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15.
Temple Yacht Club, match at Eith; Crystal Palace: Fountain Display; "Snae Fell," 3 p.m.; Roman.
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 16.
Royal Humane Society, committee, 4 p.m.
Sutton Park Races.
Aylesbury Agricultural Show.
Crystal Palace: Operetta, 3 p.m.
WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17.
Ember Week.
Meeting of the British Association at Bradford, 8 p.m., address by Professor A. Williamson, president.
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18.
Royal Horticultural Society, exhibition of zinnias, &c.
Middleton Poultry and Dog Show (two days).
Crystal Palace: "Snae Fell," 3 p.m.; Roman.
FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 19.
Oswestry Poultry and Dog Show.
British Association at Bradford, 8.30 p.m. (Professor W. C. Williamson on Coal and Coal-Plants).
Crystal Palace: "Snae Fell," 3 p.m.
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20.
Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 3.30 p.m.
Crystal Palace: Fifth Annual Cat Show; Choral Concert of the Metropolitan Schools.
Cheshire Agricultural Society, Show at Crewe.
British Association at Bradford, evening (Mr. Siemens' lecture to working men on Fuel).
Drury Lane Theatre reopened ("Antony and Cleopatra").

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 A.M. next morning in 24 hours, read at 10 A.M. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Minimum, read at 10 A.M.	Maximum, read at 10 A.M.	Direction.	Force.
Sept. 13	30.075	54.4	47.0	73	47.6	63.9	W. NW.	123	042
14	30.048	53.8	49.0	85	47.4	63.7	W. NW. N.	111	034
15	30.043	52.4	44.9	77	46.3	58.5	N. NW. NW.	160	006
16	30.020	51.5	42.5	73	45.0	57.9	NNW. WNW.	124	000
17	29.736	52.7	48.4	78	45.9	60.9	SW. SSW.	147	389
18	29.814	52.6	42.0	70	46.8	61.2	N. WNW.	201	000
19	29.682	54.8	51.4	80	49.4	61.1	SW. SSW.	393	195

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:—
Barometer (in inches) corrected ... 29.965 30.042 30.077 29.969 29.793 29.775 29.784
Temperature of Air ... 57.3 56.6 55.5 53.6 55.9 54.7 55.7
Temperature of Evaporation ... 52.5 53.8 53.8 50.9 50.9 49.5 47.7
Direction of Wind ... W. W. SSW. SSW. SSW. W. W.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING SEPTEMBER 13.

Sunday	Monday	Tuesday	Wednesday	Thursday	Friday	Saturday
7 3	7 32	8 8	8 55	9 23	10 23	11 10
11 50	12 10	12 50	1 10	1 40	2 10	2 40

DORE'S GREAT PICTURE OF "CHRIST LEAVING THE TETRARCHIA," with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christian Martyrs," "Francesca di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

ELIJAH WALTON.—EXHIBITION, including "A Storm at Sea" and "A Sand Storm in the Desert," and many New and Important Drawings, Alpine and Eastern, NOW OPEN at BURLINGTON GALLERY, 191, Piccadilly. Ten to Six. Admission, with Catalogue, 1s.

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.

The world-famed MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS, every Night at Eight; ALL THE YEAR ROUND.
The Entertainment given by the Moore and Burgess Minstrels now enjoys the proud distinction of being classified as the OLDEST ESTABLISHED AND THE MOST SUCCESSFUL IN THE WORLD, having been presented at this Hall for EIGHT YEARS IN ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON, an instance of popularity altogether without a precedent in the annals of amusements.
LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL.
New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, £1 11s. 6d. to £2 12s. 6d.; Fautouils, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 2s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places at Mitchell's, 35, Old Bond-street; Oliver's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St. James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

THEATRE ROYAL DRURY-LANE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, F. B. Chatterton.—This theatre, redecorated under the direction of Mr. Marsh Nelson, WILL OPEN for the Dramatic Season on SATURDAY NEXT, SEPT. 20, when will be produced Shakespeare's Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes by Mr. Andrew Halliday, illustrated with New and Characteristic Scenery by Mr. William Beverly. The cast will include Mr. James Anderson, Mr. Egan, Mr. A. Glover, Mr. Keightley, Mr. Dolman, Mr. J. Morris, Mr. Byers, Mr. H. Evers, Mr. Ford, Mr. Lockett, Mr. Milner, Mr. Sargent, Mr. H. Glover, and Mr. H. Evers; Miss Walcott, Miss Banks, Miss E. Stuart, Miss Adeline Golda, &c. The incidental music selected and composed by Mr. W. C. Levey. The best and grandest of crews, arranged by Mr. J. A. Cornock. And the whole to be produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Andrew Halliday and F. B. Chatterton. At the conclusion of the Tragedy the National Anthem will be sung by the entire strength of the Company. Preceded by a Farce, Musical Entertainment, in one act, entitled NOBODY IN LONDON. Characters by Messrs. Burton, Wright, F. Marshall, F. Marshall, and his Ballet Troupe, Mrs. Herbert, C. Verney, and Miss Hodge. To conclude with a New and Original Farce, entitled THE TRAITOR-TIP. Prices, from Sixpence to Five Guineas. Box-office open from Ten till Five o'clock.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate.
Mr. Creswick, the eminent tragedian, with Mr. Charles E. Creswick and Mrs. Charles Water, in a Lyric Drama Play Every Evening. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, THE BRIDAL; Tuesday and Thursday, HAMLET; Saturday, LADY OF LYONS.

TWO COURSES OF LECTURES ON GEOLOGICAL MINERVOLOGY will be given at KING'S COLLEGE, London, by Prof. TENNANT, to which the public are admitted on paying the college fees. One course is given on Wednesday and Friday evenings, from Nine to Ten o'clock, commencing WEDNESDAY, OCT. 8, and terminating at Easter, 1874. The other course is given on Thursday evenings, from Eight to Nine, commencing OCT. 19. The lectures are illustrated by a very extensive collection of specimens.
Practical instruction in Mineralogy and Geology is given by Prof. Tennant, F.R.S., at his residence, 149, Strand, W.C.

NOW READY, VOL. LXII. ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.
Elegantly bound, cloth, gilt 20s. 0d.
In Paper Covers 15s. 0d.
Cases for binding above 2s. 6d.
Portfolios for holding six Numbers 4s. 0d.
Reading Cases 2s. 0d.
Office, 198, Strand.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1873.

Our French neighbours can once more breathe freely. On Friday last the final payment of the heavy indemnity exacted by Germany was paid at Berlin. This week the troops of the conqueror—a mere handful of them remained—are leaving the fortress of Verdun and the neighbouring district and turning their steps homewards. On reaching Metz—that great fortress which, little more than three years ago, was the headquarters of Napoleon III., and a few months later capitulated to the Red Prince—they will find themselves, strange as it still sounds, on German soil. It would seem that the leaving-taking at Verdun, as at Nancy and Belfort some weeks ago, was respectful, if not cordial. The Germans were too well disciplined to offend the population among whom they have been quartered, the French too subdued by the heavy calamities that have fallen upon them to vent their joy in ill-timed demonstrations in presence of their late enemies. The Government have wisely discountenanced all public fêtes and celebrations in connection with the liberation of French soil, and the natural rejoicings which have taken place have been purely of a local character, which could give no offence to friend or foe.

Thus quietly has been brought to a close a treaty, or succession of treaties, which will form a conspicuous page in modern history. The terms of peace were to the last degree onerous and humiliating to the conquered nation, but they have been carried out with a scrupulousness and promptitude deserving high admiration. In two years and a half there has been handed over to Germany the enormous sum of two hundred millions sterling, wrung from the resources of impoverished France, and equal to one fourth of our own National Debt. That amount has been raised by heavy taxation cheerfully borne, and by gigantic loans readily subscribed; and the ransom money of French independence has been paid down some months within the stipulated period. A country which can bear such a burden without staggering under it must have boundless resources; a people which has discharged so vast a pecuniary obligation with good faith and punctuality must possess some sterling national qualities. Patience is not generally regarded as a French virtue. Yet our vanquished neighbours have paid the indemnity without undignified wailing, and have borne even the mutilation of their territory with something like resignation. To a proud and sensitive people the exaction of a pecuniary penalty is far less galling than the absolute surrender of their soil. The debt has been cancelled, but Alsace and the richer part of Lorraine, containing more than a million and a half of the most industrious inhabitants of France, have been ceded to victorious Germany. This is the bitterest ingredient in the cup which our neighbours have had to drink to the dregs—this the national humiliation which sobers present rejoicing and, alas! portends a troublous future.

France has now become the mistress of her own destiny, and receives the news of her emancipation from the foreigner with a calm equanimity which may be regarded as a good omen. Her population have not abandoned the hope of recovering the lost provinces, but they have the good sense to see that the prospect of such a triumph is very far distant, and are sufficiently self-restrained to bide their time. Not only is France now relatively far weaker as compared with Germany than she was before the ill-fated war of 1870, but her rulers are intent upon other and more ignoble objects than the restoration of the national strength. The dominant party have cashiered M. Thiers, who more than any other French statesman secured general confidence at home and abroad, and have replaced him by Marshal MacMahon—a President in name without official power. All this time France has been dragging on nervously without a settled Constitution, under the auspices of a Provisional Republic, administered by a Government which is the creature of a Provisional National Assembly. Those who hold the reins of power are all Monarchists, but up to the present time Legitimists and Orleanists have been unable to negotiate a fusion or choose a candidate, and party intrigue is still, with the majority, the substitute for national patriotism. With what serene composure must Prince Bismarck watch the strife of French Royalist cliques!—how complacently must he note the outbreak of clerical fanaticism in France, which has both spoilt the prospects of the Legitimist pretender and aroused the indignation of Italy. The German Chancellor has lost his hold upon what remains of French territory, but the reactionists of France have been good enough to find him ample compensation in the shape of an Italian alliance; and the visit of Victor Emmanuel to Berlin is almost coincident with the recovery of her freedom of action by France. So true is it that the worst enemies of France are her own citizens.

The interests of Europe and the true welfare of the French people will not suffer by this indefinite postponement of the policy of revenge, and we would fain hope that their manly and restrained bearing during the last two years, in spite of the extravagances of their politicians, is a guarantee that our neighbours will not rush heedlessly into another war without allies or rational hopes of success. France may tolerate the assumptions of the Romish hierarchy, but will shrink from entering the field of conflict to rehabilitate the Pope. She will hardly tolerate for long the ascendancy of a clerical faction which has already alienated the Italian people from their natural leaning to the country of Napoleon III. It is just possible that the lapse of time may convince Frenchmen that it is a wiser policy to renew the strength and restore the prestige of the nation by just government and the pacific development of its industrial resources than to recover lost provinces. But we forbear to speculate further upon remote contingencies. At present France is powerless in face of united Germany. She has lost her supremacy in Europe, and will probably never recover it, and it is as true now as it was a year ago that the Republic is the form of Government which least divides her population. But, however that may be, it is certain that, by the union of all parties for truly national objects, by establishing free institutions, by recognising in practice as well as in theory the principle of religious liberty, by breaking down the system of centralisation which keeps the population in a state of pupillage and places a formidable instrument of despotism in the hands of any party that happens to be uppermost, and by allowing full play to industrial energy and commercial activity, our neighbours would reach a more elevated position in the commonwealth of nations than by the recovery of Alsace and Lorraine or the humiliation of Germany. Whether they will elect to carry out such a programme time will decide.

THE COURT.

The Queen entertained Princess Dietrichstein Mensdorf and her son, Prince Hugo, for two days last week at Balmoral Castle. Yesterday (Friday) week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove to Abergeldie Castle, and visited the Prince and Princess of Wales. Sir Thomas and the Hon. Lady Biddulph dined with the Queen. On the following day the Princess of Wales visited her Majesty. The Marquis of Hartington, who is Minister in attendance upon the Queen, and Lieutenant-Colonel Farquharson (of Invercauld) dined with her Majesty. On Sunday the Queen and the members of the Royal family at Balmoral attended Divine service, performed at the castle by the Rev. Dr. Taylor, minister of Crathie. In the afternoon her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Christian, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold, visited the Prince and Princess of Wales at Abergeldie. On Monday Prince Leopold left Balmoral for Inverary. The Marquis of Hartington dined with her Majesty.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, left Balmoral on Tuesday for Inverlochy Castle, Inverness-shire, the seat of Lord Abinger. In attendance were Lady Churchill, Major-General Ponsonby, and Dr. Fox. Her Majesty drove to Ballater, and travelled thence by a special train leaving at twenty minutes to nine o'clock a.m. Lord Kintore accompanied the Royal train to Aberdeen, whence the Queen proceeded, via Stanley junction, to Kingussie, where her Majesty left the railway, being received by the Master of Lovat, Lord-Lieutenant of the county, and Cluny Macpherson of Cluny. Nearly a thousand persons were assembled, who greeted the Queen with a truly Highland welcome. The Kingussie volunteers formed a guard of honour at the station, which was tastefully decorated with heather and mountain berries. The Queen continued the journey thence in an open carriage, the suite occupying six other carriages. The route lay via Badenoch and the demesne of Cluny Macpherson, on the Spey, to Moy, where horses were changed, and a rapid run was made through Glen Spean, via Roy Bridge, in Lochaber district, where triumphal arches were erected, and the clan Mackintosh and the retainers of The Mackintosh, in new kilts, were drawn up, headed by their young chief. Horses being again changed, the journey was continued to Spean Bridge, where Lord Abinger welcomed the Queen to the Western Highlands. Her Majesty also held a short conversation with Lady Abinger; and the Hon. Ella Campbell Scarlett, Lord Abinger's eldest daughter, presented a bouquet to the Queen. About 700 people were present, and a floral arch and banners decorated the bridge. Her Majesty continued her journey to Inverlochy, arriving at the castle at ten minutes past eight o'clock, after a drive of nearly fifty miles. A telegram to Fort William announced the Royal arrival, when a rocket was fired from the fort, giving the signal for the lighting of bonfires upon the surrounding hills. Fort William was partially illuminated, and the bells of the several churches were rung. On Wednesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove over the farm, and subsequently to the head of Lochiel, and visited Prince Charles Edward Stuart's monument.

The Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Arthur, and Prince Christian have had good sport upon the moors, as well as deer-stalking upon the Balmoral and other Royal estates. The Duke of Edinburgh left Balmoral Castle on Wednesday for the south. He was accompanied by the son of the late King Theodore of Abyssinia. His Royal Highness arrived on Thursday morning in town, remaining for a few days at Buckingham Palace.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor, Prince George, Princess Louise, Princess Victoria, and Princess Maud of Wales, and Prince John of Glucksburg, arrived at Abergeldie Castle yesterday (Friday) week from Marlborough House. Their Royal Highnesses travelled by the limited mail from London to Perth, where they partook of breakfast in the station committee-rooms, and after stay of three quarters of an hour the journey was continued via Aberdeen to Fallater, where the Royal travellers were met by the Duke of Edinburgh. A guard of honour of the 78th Highlanders was in attendance, under the command of Lieutenant Kiwan. The Royal party drove thence to Abergeldie. On Sunday the Prince and Princess and Prince John of Gluckburg attended Divine service in Crathie church. On Tuesday the Prince was present at the Highland gathering at Aboyne. The Marquis of Huntly mustered his own clansmen, and, at the Marquis's invitation, the Duff and Farquharson Highlanders and the Highlanders from Strathdon were present. The clansmen numbered 200. The Highland games were contested with great spirit.

The King of the Belgians has been making a short visit to Scarborough. On Tuesday he went to York, and remained more than an hour in the cathedral.

The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Baden have during the past week visited the principal historical and national buildings of the metropolis. Their Royal and Imperial Highnesses, with their children, have left London upon their return to Baden-Baden.

Prince and Princess Metternich and the Duke de Croij have left Brown's Hotel for Scotland.

His Excellency Prince de Reuss, German Ambassador to the Court of St. Petersburg, has left Bournemouth, en route for St. Petersburg.

The Duchess of Roxburghe has left Brown's Hotel for Paris.

The Marquis of Conyngham has arrived at Slanes Castle from Drogheda.

The Earl and Countess of Craven have left Sandown, Isle of Wight, for Scotland.

The Earl and Countess of Dudley have arrived at Witley Court from Germany.

Earl and Countess Fitzwilliam and the Ladies Fitzwilliam arrived at Wentworth House on Saturday last from Coollatin Park, in the county of Wicklow.

The Earl and Countess of Stradbroke have left town for Henham Hall, Suffolk.

The Earl and Countess of Belmore have arrived at Castle-coole, their seat in Ireland.

The Earl and Countess of Bessborough have arrived at Brighton from Bessborough House, their seat in Ireland.

The Countess Dowager of Lichfield has left town for Tunbridge Wells.

The Earl of Wilton has arrived in his yacht at Gibraltar from Plymouth.

Viccount and Viscountess Lismore have arrived at Shanbally Castle, in the county of Tipperary.

Lord and Lady Wenlock have left Escrik for Bourton Cottage, Much Wenlock.

The Home Secretary and Mrs. Lowe have returned to Sherbrooke, Caterham.

The Countess of Loudoun has appointed the Earl of Schrewsbury and Talbot one of the governors of the Grammar School, Dillhorn, Staffordshire, according to the powers given to her Ladyship by the new scheme of the Endowed School Commissioners.

The funeral service on the remains of M. Andrew Beloukha Kokhanowsky, First Secretary to the Russian Embassy and Chamberlain to the Emperor of Russia, took place at the Russian Chapel, Welbeck-street, Cavendish-square, on Wednesday. The principal mourners were M. Bartolomei, Councillor of the Embassy, and M. A. de Berg, Russian Consul-General.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Ayton, W. A., to be Vicar of Chacombe, Northants.
Bruce, Lloyd Steward, Canon and Prebendary of Tockington.
Cave, Robert H., Rector of Coventry St. Bartholomew's, Lincolnshire.
Chandler, Henry C. D., Vicar of Waterbeach, Cambridgeshire.
Crafter, Thos. Henry, Vicar of Bole and Rector of South Wheatley, Notts.
Creny, Horatio Nelson, Perpetual Curate of Eskdale, Cumberland.
FitzGerald, Frederick, Vicar of Gillingham, Kent.
Furse, C. W., Honorary Canon of Christ Church.
Law, F. H., Rector of Lea, Kent.
Lawrence, Charles, Rector of Croft, Darlington.
Layard, Charles Clement, Rector of Combe Hay.
Lewis, David, Vicar of Langyngfen, Cardiganshire.
Menda, Wakefield S., Vicar of Frosterley, Durham.
Morris, David Melville, Vicar of Penally, Pembrokeshire.
Paterson, Charles, Curate of Stoke-with-Walsgrave, Coventry.
Powys, W. Percy, Vicar of Ashow.
Strickland, William Edward, Rector of Egremont, Cumberland.
Thorn, J. T., Vicar of Stoneleigh.
Turner, William Vlado, Vicar of Bartney, Lincolnshire.
Walsh, William, Perpetual Curate of St. Andrew's, Watford, Herts.
Webber, R. L., Archdeacon of Demerara.
Wigram, Ernest, Vicar of Brayton, Rector of Whithy.
Wilson, William, Rector of Narberth, Pembrokeshire.
Wilberforce, W. F., Incumbent of St. Mary's, Oldham, Lancashire.
Williams, Arthur Monier, Perpetual Curate of Buttermere, Cumberland.
Wright, C. E., Incumbent of Grosvenor Chapel, South Audley-street.

Last week a new church, of which the Rev. E. Husbani is the Incumbent, was opened at Folkestone.

Last week the Archbishop of York consecrated a church, dedicated to St. Peter, at Middlesborough.

On the 3rd inst. the completion of tower and spire was celebrated by two services in the Church of SS. James and John, Derwent-Woodlands, Derbyshire.

Mr. Richard Asaheton-Cross, M.P., on Monday laid the foundation-stone of the new church schools in course of erection at Stubshaw Cross, near Ashton-in-Makerfield.

It is stated that the Incumbent of St. John the Divine, Kennington, has received £10,000 from an anonymous donor towards the building of the nave of his church.

The foundation-stone of a new church was laid at Ashley-green, in the parish of Chesham, Bucks, on the 25th ult., by the lady who has so kindly offered to build and endow a church in this poor district.

The Vicar of St. Farnabas, Pimlico, has filed an answer to the objection made against the application for permission to erect a baldacchino in his church. He alleges that such an addition to the building is much desired by a very large number of the parishioners.

Two handsome polished brass tablets have been placed on the north wall of St. Paul's Cathedral, in the two recesses facing the monument to Lord Melbourne, to the memory of the officers, artificers, seamen, marines, and boys who were lost in the Captain, which foundered off Cape Finisterre, Sept. 7, 1870.

The Rev. R. Shepherd (for three years senior curate at St. Michael and All Angels, Hackney) has recently been appointed to the incumbency of Heaton Moor, Lancashire; and on Monday last, at a meeting held at the Manor Rooms, Hackney, a silver tea and coffee service was presented to him from the congregation, a handsome inkstand from the choir, and an illuminated address from the working men.

The Duke of Devonshire, as the surviving trustee under the will of the Hon. Robert Boyle, has, upon the recommendation of the Bishop of London, appointed the Rev. Henry Wace, M.A., of Brasenose College, Oxford, Chaplain of Lincoln's Inn, to be Boyle Lecturer, in succession to the Rev. Dr. Hessey.

There was a successful choral festival, last Saturday, in the parish church of Wigan. About 250 chorists took part in the service, to whom Canon Baynes, Vicar of Coventry (who had travelled direct from Belgium to be present), gave a touching address on their duties in the morning, and in the evening the Dean of Manchester was the preacher.

Holt parish church, one of the finest and most ancient in the neighbourhood of Wrexham, was on Tuesday reopened, after restoration at a cost of £5000—the Marquis of Westminster being one of the chief donors. The Bishop of St. Asaph preached. He spoke strongly against what he characterised as an undue leaning in the Church of England to the usages and ritual of the Church of Rome.

A meeting of the members of the choir of St. James's Church, Clapton, was held on Tuesday, to wish "Good-bye" to the Rev. D. B. Morris, M.A., and to present him with an elegantly-bound quarto edition of "Mercer's Psalter," inscribed with their names. The rev. gentleman has received an appointment from the Duke of Argyll, and is about to leave for India, to join the Bengal ecclesiastical establishment.

The church of Eggleston, a chapel in the parish of Oakham, Rutland, was reopened on the 27th ult., after having been restored by Mr. J. Tait, architect. The work has been carried out chiefly by the instrumentality of the Rev. F. Johnston, Senior Curate of Oakham, supported by the liberality of Mr. G. H. Finch, M.P., who doubled the amount contributed by the parishioners and their friends.

NEW TOWNHALL, BRADFORD.

The prosperous manufacturing town of Bradford, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, is making itself ready for the Congress of the British Association of Science. Its new Townhall was formally opened, last Tuesday, by the Mayor, Mr. M. W. Thompson, as Lord Derby and Mr. Gladstone, who had been asked, were unable to attend. His Worship was accompanied by Lord F. Cavendish, M.P., Mr. W. E. Forster, M.P., Mr. E. Miall, M.P., and Mr. Powell, M.P. There was an elaborate procession of forty-five different trades, each with its trophy borne on a dray or "lorry," which represented the processes of manufacturing industry or samples of its produce; besides which there was a great display of flags and standards, with eighteen bands of music, and guards of Fusiliers and Artillery Volunteers. Some illustrations are in hand, to appear in next week's paper. But the rain, which fell heavily at noon that day, sadly interfered with the effect of the procession. There was an illumination of the public buildings and streets in the evening. On Wednesday night the front of the new Townhall was lit up with the lime-light, and the Mayor provided a display of fireworks in Peel Park.

We give an illustration of the Townhall, which has been built at a cost of £100,000, exclusive of the site, valued at £40,000. The architects are Messrs. Lockwood and Mawson, of Bradford; Messrs. J. Ives and Son, of Shipley, were the contractors. The whole is built of white freestone, from the quarries at Cliffe Wood, near Bradford, the finest Yorkshire building-stone. The principal front towards Market-street is 275 ft. in length and 70 ft. in height, and the massive tower is 23 ft. square and 200 ft. in height. The façade shows a basement, ground floor, first and second floors, and attic. The ground-floor windows are square-headed; those of the first floor have pointed arches, and the third floor presents a continuous arcade of window openings and niches, and the niches present a complete gallery of sculptured statues of the Sovereigns of England from William the Conqueror, Elizabeth and Victoria being on each side of the principal entrance. The statues, thirty-five in number, are by Messrs. Farmer and Brindley, London. The carved stonework on the exterior, as well as in the borough court, council-chamber, and corridors, is beautiful in design and artistically executed. The building is divided into three portions, and has three entrances, one for each. In the centre are the council-chamber and the Mayor's suite of apartments; at one end are the various municipal offices, at the other is the borough court, which communicates with the police offices below. The central staircase within the principal entrance is lighted by windows at the sides, 30 ft. in height, filled with stained glass, representing the arms of the boroughs of Yorkshire. Light is also gained from the ceiling, through stained-glass windows, showing the arms and crest of Bradford. The ceiling is richly decorated, the walls are stencilled in imitation of tapestry, and the legend by which the manor of Bradford was held of John o' Gaunt—the presentation of the tongue of the boar, instead of the head without the tongue, which is held by a discomfited rival—is portrayed on the wall at the top of the first flight of steps. The council-chamber, the most elegant room in the building, is 40 ft. square, and of proportionate height. The lower parts of the walls have oak panels, the upper panels, exquisitely carved, representing fruit and flowers. Above the oak the walls are arcaded in stone, and the ceiling is gorgeously yet tastefully decorated in gold and colours. The floors are of oak parquetterie. An oak screen and canopy placed inside the chamber, and inclosed by folding-doors, shuts off any draught from the entrance-door. Under the canopy is the Mayor's seat. The Aldermen sit left and right of his Worship, the Town Clerk immediately below the Mayor, and seats for the Councillors are arranged in a semicircle facing the chair. A gallery, to which there is a separate entrance, is provided for the public. The chamber is lighted from the top and sides, the windows being filled with stained glass, exhibiting the armorial bearings of Bradford and other boroughs. The seats are covered with maroon-coloured morocco leather, and all the fittings are in oak, covered to correspond with the panels. The borough court, which is lofty and well lighted and ventilated, measures 53 ft. by 37 ft. The fittings are of oak, and the room is simply but effectively ornamented. The lower parts of the walls are panelled in oak, then comes a stone arcade, and the ceiling springs from stone corbels and shafts. The court is lighted from the top by stained-glass windows, and by windows in the wall. The ceiling is quite as gorgeous in gold and colour as the council-chamber, and superior to it in height. The sides are coved. In the angles are figures emblematical of Industry and Agriculture, Architecture and Engineering, the Arts and Sciences, and Commerce and Navigation. Other figures represent Fortitude, Hope, Mercy, and Justice; and an open book, containing ten numerals, brings to remembrance the Commandments. The tower is not only used for ventilation, but contains a clock with four dials, and a peal of carillon bells, playing twenty-one tunes. All the ventilation-shafts converge in the tower, where the upward draught is assisted by a coil of hot-water pipes. The great clock, made by Messrs. Gillett and Bland, steam-clock factory, Croydon, strikes the hours upon a bell of about 4½ tons, with a hammer weighing 3 cwt., and chimes the quarters on four other bells, the same as at the Westminster Palace. The time is shown upon four dials, each 10 ft. 6 in. in diameter, with cast-iron figures and minutes, glazed with opal glass, and illuminated at night by gas; and, by a very ingenious arrangement of mechanism, applied to the clock, the gas is turned up and down so as to suit all seasons of the year, providing for long and short days; so that no attendance will be required to turn the gas on and off. This is the first time the invention has been applied.

THE PUNJAB CAMP OF EXERCISE.

The camp of exercise for the Indian army, held in the early part of this year, under the personal superintendence of Lord Napier of Magdala, the Commander-in-Chief, has become a thing of the past. Yet there may be some interest still remaining in the scenes displayed by our three illustrations, from the sketches taken by a naval officer—Lieutenant Francis Ingram Palmer—who visited the camp while on leave of absence from his ship, then lying at Bombay. The sketches have, as may be readily supposed, lain some time in our hands, but the publication of the Engravings has been deferred for want of space. The field of operations was an area of 700 square miles in the Hassan Abdul country, at the north-western angle of the Punjab frontier, beyond Rawul Pindoe, and towards the Indus, near the Fort of Attock. It is distant nearly 2000 miles from Bombay, by rail and dawk road, but still farther from Calcutta. Three separate camps were formed, each containing a force of some 5000 European and native soldiers, with about 3500 followers, making in all 26,000 men. The troops under each of the Generals commanding were at first drilled and exercised apart. Latterly, the whole army was massed together, and was then divided into two forces, supposed to represent the advanced guards of two opposing large armies. They executed a series of strategic manoeuvres and sham fights, which had much interest for spectators acquainted with the military art. The particular subjects of our illustrations are merely two or three scenes and incidents in and around the camp. One of these is the apparition of a steam elephant, as we might call the monster of a traction engine dragging a load of beer from the Murree station along the Grand Trunk road to Hassan Abdul. It contrasted strangely, indeed, with the beasts of burden commonly used in Asia, and these were not a little terrified by meeting their new mechanical competitor on the road.

THE TRAVELLING PHOTOGRAPHER.

The bright-faced sun, that sometimes shines upon us in the day-time, is a very good-natured potentate. He does a great deal of service, one way and another, to all that live on every planet within reach of his bountiful, healthful, beautiful rays. Let the astronomer, the physicist, and the physiologist combine to describe their beneficent natural effects. Our theme on this occasion is a more trivial incident. This blessed sun, though inconceivably sublime and powerful, is not above lending his aid to the harmless amusement of a child, who crows with glee and claps her little hands to see the dancing lights and shadows on the wall. There may indeed be, as poets have imagined, a spirit of Divine sympathy ruling the least as the mightiest operation of elemental forces, which can share in the babe's innocent mirth, or in the sportive joy of Wordsworth's "Kitten with the falling leaves." It is very kind of the sun, we must say again, great and glorious as he is, to let his rays be employed for the mere innocent gratification of a young person's fancy. Here he is, as you may observe in our Engraving, helping the shilling photographer, with his box of chemical apparatus muffled in a cloth and propped on a pair of sticks, to catch the likeness of that pretty nursemaid's face, who stands, with her infant charge in her arms, a willing subject of this marvellous portrait-taking art! It is for a soft word from the soldier, her gallant admirer, that Mary Ann consents to undergo this process, at his expense no doubt, that he may carry the photograph with him to barracks, and may there extol her charms in the hearing of envious comrades. Let us hope that she will be prudent in her dealings with this smart young member of the Queen's military service; and that she will not lose much more time in the sunny afternoon, but soon place the baby in the perambulator and pursue the course of her duty, returning in good temper, and with a pure heart and conscience, to the house of her vigilant mistress, who would be much grieved if Mary Ann were to get her head turned by any foolish talk. It would not be the sun's fault, nor yet the moon's, but the weakness of our poor humanity, and more especially of that frail womanhood, to which the contemplation of her own personal beauty has ever proved a snare, from the time when Eve first beheld her face in the glassy surface of a pool in Eden to the present ingenious age of photography and other modern devices, amazing the rustic bystanders with the cheap results of science most easily applied. The trick is performed, in a few minutes, by that cunning magician with his head in a bag, and Mary Ann's photographic portrait is handed over to Private Jack Robinson of the Royal Hampton Court Guards, who has already given her, by way of exchange, a likeness of his own martial figure, with the moustache in perfect trim.

The Weigh House Chapel, on Fish-street-hill, which has been closed some months for repairs and decorations, was reopened on Sunday, the sermon being preached by the Rev. Dr. Binney, the late minister, who preached the first sermon in the chapel when it was built, about forty years ago.

It was stated that the prize gained by the Welsh choir at the Crystal Palace, a gilt cup and cover, had been manufactured by Mr. Streeter. This is incorrect; it was made by Messrs. Cox and Sons, of Southampton-street, Strand. The cup of which we gave an illustration was made by Streeter. This was not competed for, but was given to commemorate the Welsh choir's success in winning the challenge prize, made by Messrs. Cox and Sons, which cost £1000. They also made the mace for the opening of the Bradford Townhall.

The project for an amalgamation of the National Union of Agricultural Labourers, whose head-quarters are at Leamington, and the other unions of a similar character throughout the country, has failed.—The English Agricultural Labourers' Union having determined to inquire into the condition of the Irish labourer, a report upon the subject has recently been presented to the council, chiefly referring to the south and south-eastern parts of the sister kingdom. This document describes the wretched state of the mud cabins, and declares that a worse-fed, worse-clad man than the Irish agricultural labourer is not to be found in Europe. The rate of wages depends much upon locality and circumstances, but averages about 6s. or 7s. per week of at least sixty hours. The cabins are all held at will, and the men and their families are frequently ejected without compensation, according to the pleasure of the farmer or landlord. Mr. Gladstone's Land Act not being applicable to the case of mere "cotters," it is proposed to establish an Irish union similar to the English one.

INDIAN FRONTIER SKETCHES.

TRACTION-ENGINE ON THE GRAND TRUNK ROAD, NEAR LAWRENCEPORE.

RECONNOITRING PARTY, CAMP OF EXERCISE, PUNJAB.

VIEW OF THE CAMP NEAR NOURMAHAL'S TOMB.

the will, were occupied from eight in the morning until noon and from half-past one to five, and they calculate that, even in applying themselves thus closely to the task, not less than four days will be required to complete the inventory. The jewels, those at least already examined, are contained in a sort of wadded roller case, and are fixed and arranged in order; brooches, buttons, rings, &c. None of an exceptional value have been so far discovered; the richest diamond is estimated at 60,000*fr.*, another at 20,000*fr.*, but many are not worth more than 1000*fr.* The yellow-tinted Cape diamonds abounded in the collection, mounted or isolated. A pair of epaulettes and a hat-band, sparkling with brilliants, would be of immense value if these latter were of purer water. A very fine black diamond, rather fitted for a museum or collection than for wear, was set down at a high figure, but will, of course, only sell to an amateur who can appreciate its worth. There is also a statuette in rubies, over three inches high; the stones are not quite pure, but the work of art itself is of exquisite taste." It is stated in a Geneva telegram that the diamonds have been valued as scarcely worth more than £100,000. — There has been found a correspondence with the late Emperor Napoleon, which is said to be of a very curious character. — The Brunswick Tagblatt states that Duke William has renounced all personal claim on his late brother's property, and the will is said to have been recognised as valid by the Brunswick Government. Only claims affecting the entailed property of the Crown will be legally vindicated. It is stated, however, that the will is to be opposed in the Swiss courts by the Countess of Civry, who claims to be his daughter by amorganatic marriage between the Duke and her mother. In 1865 she was unsuccessful in an application to the French courts against the Duke, one half of whose fortune she now claims.

THE NEW LAW ON UNSEAWORTHY SHIPS.

The new Act on merchant shipping, which was passed on the last day of the recent Session, contains several important provisions on unseaworthy ships, which came into force when the statute received the Royal assent. Other parts of the Act, with reference to signals and the conveyance of dangerous goods, &c., will not take effect till Nov. 1 next. There are thirty-three sections and three schedules.

British ships are now to be marked in a conspicuous manner in the way specified, under penalties. For safety and the prevention of accidents there are several sections of a most important character. Where the Board of Trade have received a complaint, or have reason to believe that any British ship is, by reason of the defective condition of her full equipments or machinery, or by reason of overloading, unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, they may appoint a competent person to survey such ship and the equipments, machinery, and cargo thereof, and to report thereon to the board. A penalty of £50 is to be incurred for obstructing such survey. The board, on receipt of a report that such vessel is in an unfit condition and dangerous to human life if she proceeds to sea, may order her detention until the alterations required are made. The costs of the survey are to be paid by the owner. On a complaint to the board of a defective vessel, the board may require security to be given for the detention and loss sustained if the vessel is not in the condition alleged, and the board to be liable to the owner for loss sustained when a survey is ordered and the vessel declared to be seaworthy. On appeal, the Court before which the case is heard may order a survey "anew."

The sections which do not take effect until Nov. 1 relate to collisions and dangerous goods, which are not to be sent without proper notice, and may be refused and thrown overboard if improperly sent. New signals set forth are to be used on and after Nov. 1.

The law, as now amended, particularly in reference to unseaworthy ships, is of an important character.

The election for Renfrewshire, rendered vacant by the elevation of the Right Hon. H. A. Bruce to the Peerage, took place on Wednesday, and resulted in the return of the Conservative candidate by a majority of 178. The numbers were—Colonel Campbell, 1855; Colonel Mure, 1677. — The O'Donoghue visited Tralee on Wednesday, and attempted to address the electors. He was favourably received by his supporters, but the riotous conduct of the Home-Rule faction rendered it impossible for his speech to be heard. — Mr. Horsman, M.P., has announced his intention of delivering a series of addresses to his constituents at Liskeard on leading political topics in the first week of December.

Two more railway accidents, besides those noted at page 254, occurred on Wednesday. Fortunately they were unattended with loss of life, although causing considerable injury to persons as well as to property. At the Coroner's inquest on the Wigan railway accident Captain Tyler read a lengthy statement of the result of his official inquiry. He sifted the various theories which had come before him till only two feasible alternatives were left—first, that the points had been opened while the train was passing; secondly, that the flange of the first of the eight carriages had slipped and struck the near tongue of the facing points. He declared the last conclusion to be unavoidable, and therefore recommended that fast trains should have to slacken speed materially in passing such stations as Wigan. While Captain Tyler was reading his elaborate condemnation of facing points at Wigan, a fresh illustration of their danger was occurring at Watford—also on the London and North Western Railway. A train had passed that station about a hundred yards, when part of it ran on to another set of rails, leaving the engine and tender on the main line. The carriage which bore the strain of the divergence was jerked off the rails and overturned, but its occupants were speedily rescued. None of them were seriously hurt. A Great Northern express train ran into some empty carriages at Lofthouse station, near Wakefield, and the concussion injured several passengers, none of whom, however, is believed to be very seriously hurt. There was an accident near the Sawbridgeworth station on the Great Eastern Railway on Thursday. An axle of a truck belonging to a coal-train breaking caused the brake to turn over on the down-line as a passenger-train was passing. A few persons were injured. Several of the principal officials of the South-Western Railway have visited the scene of the accident near Guildford. No further deaths are reported. The inquest was formally opened on Wednesday, and adjourned for a week. — A large boiler exploded, on Wednesday, at the Beehive Ironworks, East Jarrow, near South Shields, killing a man and a boy, scalding and cutting several workmen (five of whom were very seriously injured), and setting on fire and otherwise damaging several buildings in the neighbourhood. — A schooner, laden with flint, foundered, on Wednesday morning, near the Bell Buoy, at the entrance of the Mersey, and four of her crew of five men, including the captain, were drowned. The survivor kept himself afloat until he was picked up by a steamer bound from Belfast.

MUSIC.

THE HEREFORD MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

It is scarcely requisite now to remind readers that the meetings of the three choirs of Hereford, Gloucester, and Worcester take place annually at one or other of those places, being consequently triennial in their recurrence at each.

Their object, which they have so long and so beneficially served, is to aid the diocesan clerical charities in benefiting the widows and orphans of the poorer clergy in the dioceses named. Former festivals having on some occasions resulted in losses, the number of stewards who guarantee the payment of all expenses has gradually been augmented. In the present instance the list of names, headed by that of the president—Lord Bateman, Lord Lieutenant of the county—specifies eighty-eight noblemen, clergymen, and gentry, among whom any loss would be divided—a contingency now, and for some time past, of exceptional occurrence. The festival performances themselves, however, bring but little profit to the charity, the real source of aid being the collections which are made at the doors of the cathedral after each morning's performance, and subsequent donations. These have amounted, at several recent festivals, to very large sums—in 1861, to £1075 17*s.* 7*d.*; in 1864, to £1100 14*s.*; in 1867, to £1410 5*s.*; and, in 1870, to £1078 7*s.* 1*d.*

The arrangements for this year's festival included the engagement of a full and efficient orchestra, with M. Sainton as leading violinist, and comprising many other eminent artists who were likewise associated with the recent Birmingham festival. The chorus consisted of the three united choirs, reinforced from various sources. The solo singers will be specified in noticing the performances.

The one hundred and fiftieth meeting of the Three-Choir Festivals commenced in Hereford Cathedral, on Tuesday, after the special morning service, with which the proceedings are always inaugurated. The sermon, having, as usual, reference to the objects of the festival, was preached by the Rev. Archer Clive, chancellor of the choir, who took for his text the twenty-first verse of the first chapter of St. Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians, on which theme the preacher based an able discourse in advocacy of the benevolent purposes of the festival. The service included the co-operation of the members of the combined choirs, who gave effect to the music selected, Dr. Wesley having presided at the organ. About an hour after the conclusion of the service, the first festival performance commenced in the cathedral with "Elijah," which was given with some features identical with those of its recent performance at Birmingham; Mdlle. Titien, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, and Mr. Santley having been again among the principal singers; the vocal solos having been divided between these and Misses Edith Wynne and Enriquez, Messrs. Montem Smith, E. Lloyd, and Santley.

Tuesday evening's concert, in the Shire Hall, began with the overture to, and a selection from, Rossini's "Semiramide," in which the solo music of the title-heroine, of Arsace, and of Assur was sung respectively by Mdlle. Titien, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, and Signor Agnesi, as in the fine stage performances of the work given at the Drury-Lane Opera, and recently noticed.

The second part of the concert consisted of a miscellaneous selection, which included solos by the principal vocalists, a brilliant fantasia for the violin, composed and performed by Mr. Sainton, and encored; and a part-song finely sung by the Bradford Choral Society, and also repeated.

On Wednesday morning "Jephthah" was given in the cathedral. This work, the last of the numerous series of Handel's oratorios, was long ignored until revived at the concerts of Mr. Barnby's choir. In the performance now referred to the choruses produced a fine effect amid the solemn surroundings of the beautiful building in which they were heard. The movements, "No more to Ammon's god," "O God, behold our sore distress," "When His loud voice," and "Theme sublime" were particularly impressive. The solos were throughout effectively rendered by Misses Edith Wynne and Enriquez, Mr. Cummings and Mr. Santley.

A strong contrast to the grandeur and sublimity of Handel was offered by the second portion of Wednesday morning's programme, which consisted of Rossini's "Stabat Mater," a work full of genius and beauty, although not comparable to the other in the higher attributes of sacred music. The solos in the "Stabat" were finely sung by Mdlle. Titien, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Signor Agnesi.

On Wednesday evening "St. Paul" was given in the cathedral—the principal solos by Mdlle. Titien, Miss Enriquez, Mr. Montem Smith, and Signor Agnesi.

The closing performances of Thursday and Friday will be noticed next week. On the day first named Sir F. Gore Ouseley's new oratorio, "Hagar," was produced.

THEATRES.

The course of theatrical matters continues to be irregular, and leads us from the adventurous enterprise of the West-End in favour of new pieces to the somewhat safer practice at the East of encouraging revivalist stars. At the Standard Mr. Creswick appeared on Monday in Hamlet, his performance of which is too well known to admit of repeated criticism. At Sadler's Wells Miss Marriott appeared in the same rôle, and commanded a crowded house. The part of Ophelia was sustained by Miss Marston-Leigh, the best representative of the character now on the boards. Miss Marriott's engagement is for twelve nights, and includes "Love's Sacrifice," which was acted on Tuesday (Miss Marston-Leigh impersonating the part of Hermione with striking vivacity and force), and also "The Wife's Secret," which was performed on Thursday, followed by "Ingomar" on Friday. The experiment has been signally encouraged, and promises to prove a great success.

A novelty has been produced at the Gaiety, entitled "Seeing Toole," an imitation of an occasional farce which long ago amused the public, called "Seeing Wright." The piece has a twin-authorship, Mr. John Hollingshead and Mr. R. Reece having both had a finger in the pie, and is a piece of arrant nonsense. The scene is laid in the lobby of the theatre, where Mr. Toole is mistaken for a boxkeeper by some actors out for a holiday, who are assembled not to act, but to mix with the audience, among whom are Mr. Larkin (Mr. Maclean) and his nieces, Miss Jemima Gollop (Miss Harrison) and Miss Polly Gollop (Miss E. Farren). Polly is a lover of stage-performances, and induces the supposed boxkeeper to take her behind the scenes, and afterwards to rehearse a scene with her. Mr. Toole had been previously compelled to change his costume for a militia suit by one Bill Barker (Mr. Soutar). Ultimately he is arrested by a detective named Missit (Mr. Butler), and Mr. Larkins is followed by his jealous wife (Mrs. H. Leigh), whose complaints add not a little to the fun. This tissue of absurdities prospered with the audience and will bear repetition.

On Monday was produced at the same theatre a burlesque drama, by Mr. F. C. Burnand, under the name of "an original piece of absurdity entitled 'Our Own Antony and Cleopatra.'" Notwithstanding it was supported by the talents of Mr. J. L.

Toole as Ptolemy, and Miss E. Farren as Antony, to say nothing of Miss Selina Dolan as Cleopatra, so thoroughly imitated was the whole affair that the house protested against its repetition. The fact is burlesque has been done to death, and an attempt to raise it from an occasional entertainment into a permanent institution must ultimately fail.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

After all the wet weather of last week, there really seemed a good chance of a fine Doncaster meeting; but, though it did not actually rain during our journey northwards, rain was only postponed till the following day, and some of the best racing we have ever witnessed was greatly spoiled by the incessant downpour. A splendid field of thirteen turned out for the Fitzwilliam Stakes, though neither Winslow nor Lily Agnes, the latter of whom was considered the pick of the entry, came to the post. After numerous false starts, La Jeunesse got off with a good lead; and, though the Lady Palmerston filly gained rapidly on her at the finish, she could never get up, and was defeated cleverly by a neck, La Jeunesse thus showing great improvement on her York form, when Ringwood gave her 34 lb. and a head-beating. Lady Bothwell had a very easy task in the Filly Stakes, and the followers of Mr. Merry were thus early put on excellent terms with themselves. The Great Yorkshire Handicap brought out a field of a dozen, of which Pirate (6 st.), on the strength of a very high trial, was made a hot favourite, though Kingcraft (8 st. 4 lb.), in spite of something like twenty consecutive defeats, had plenty of supporters. He, however, ran as curiously as usual, refusing to make the slightest effort just at the critical point, and though Newhouse rode Pirate very hard for the last quarter of a mile, he won pretty cleverly at the finish by a length from Freeman (8 st. 5 lb.). Mestizo (6 st. 6 lb.), the newly-named Little Savage colt, was third, and thus his chance for the St. Leger was completely disposed of. The much-improved Tipster scored a clever victory over his two opponents in the Glasgow Stakes; and then, in spite of the immense reputation of Sir William Wallace, eleven other two-year-olds came out for the Champagne Stakes. Peeping Tom was reported to be greatly improved, but he was the first beaten, and though Sir William Wallace ran very prominently to the bend, he then suddenly collapsed, and Napoleon III., taking the lead about one hundred yards from home, won cleverly by a neck from Feu d'Amour, a dark colt in M. Lefevre's team. The form, as far as Sir William Wallace was concerned, was manifestly wrong, as moderate animals like Aventuriere and Farnfield were third and fourth, and we have since heard that Mr. Merry's colt is coughing. Perhaps the prettiest race of the day was the match between Hellebore and Verger, in which the riding of both Chaloner and J. Osborne was of the most brilliant description.

The weather on the Leger day was a pleasant contrast to that of Tuesday, and we never saw a denser crowd assembled on the Moor. Two of the races before the great event were reduced to matches, in both of which the favourite was easily beaten; Apology pulling up very lame after her defeat by George Frederick, who, by-the-way, is a grand-looking own brother to Albert Victor and Louise Victoria; and Narcissus standing no chance against Anisced. Eight numbers only were hoisted for the St. Leger, and the first to appear on the course was Mestizo. There is a useful, wear-and-tear look about him, though he naturally attracted little attention after his indifferent display on the previous day. Negro, who came next, is as handsome as ever, and seems to have grown a good deal since the spring; but a recent trial with Flageolet had shown his trainer that he possessed no chance, and, but for M. Lefevre's known partiality for seeing his colours in all important races, he would probably not have started. Andred was as fit as he always is; still, though he showed more muscle than in the early part of the year, he is too high on the leg to be a really good-looking colt, and he will never get more than an easy mile in good company. The fourth to appear was Kaiser, and it is not surprising that he became a hotter favourite than ever after the Yorkshiremen had looked him over. Gilbert had done wonders with him since York; his coat shone like satin, and, though he evidently had some strong gallops in the last fortnight, he looked full of life and wonderfully muscular; in fact, he only wants a little more length to be the picture of a high-class thoroughbred. He was closely followed by Chandos, perhaps the best-looking of the eight candidates. His new owner fancied him greatly for a place, though he has so often shown that he is much more at home over the T.Y.C. than in a race of this length. Mr. Merry's three were the last to leave the saddling enclosure, but at length Merry Sunshine emerged from it, his jockey wearing all yellow; Doncaster was close at his heels, Webb, who piloted him in the Derby, being distinguished by a white cap, and behind him came Marie Stuart, who seemed quite the Yorkshire idol, with T. Osborne up, in the familiar "yellow and black."

Merry Sunshine, who was only started to make the running, may be passed by without remark, and of the other two we certainly preferred the colt, though nothing could be said against Marie Stuart on the score of condition. After the usual parade past the stand, the procession being headed by Merry Sunshine and whipped in by Marie Stuart, the eight went down to the post, and got off at a first attempt to a fair start, though Merry Sunshine was left several lengths behind, and could not fulfil his mission and go to the front till they had run nearly a quarter of a mile. Doncaster then lying second, Marie Stuart third or fourth, and Kaiser being in the rear. We did not see exactly where Merry Sunshine was dispossessed of the lead; but Marie Stuart, next to the rails, rounded the bend for home with a slight lead, Kaiser being on her right, and Doncaster on the outside, and it was quite clear that the race was at the mercy of these three. At the distance Kaiser was disposed of, and Doncaster, closing up with his stable companion, looked terribly dangerous as they passed the stand, both jockeys being hard at work; the filly, however, stayed the better of the pair, and, drawing away again in the last fifty yards, won by half a length, Kaiser being double that distance behind Doncaster, and nothing else finishing within many lengths of the trio. Mr. Merry has thus crowned his wonderful Epsom successes by finishing first and second for the Leger with his Oaks and Derby winners; and the correctness of the Derby running was so conclusively proved that, but for the unfortunate break down of Gang Forward, we have no doubt that he and Kaiser would have had another desperate struggle for third place. The Portland Plate, which had been brought forward from Thursday, produced a capital field of twenty-three, and was won cleverly by Grand Flâneur (7 st. 3 lb.), though Blenheim (9 st. 3 lb.) carried his heavy weight most gallantly; and we left the course after the clever victory of Winslow in the Queen's Plate.

Next week we shall give a complete account of the yearling sales, which will be unusually heavy.

Chester has been en fête this week, on account of the exhibition of the Agricultural Society of Lancashire and Cheshire, which has been held on the Roodee.

GATHERING OF ENGLISH PILGRIMS AT THE PRO-CATHEDRAL, KENNINGTON, FOR THE PILGRIMAGE TO PARAY-LE-MONTAIG.

NEW BOOKS.

As materials for history and biography, if not with a view to any future chance of dynastic pretensions, the publication of Napoleon III.'s latest writings has considerable interest for readers of every nation. A volume has just been issued by Messrs. Sampson Low, Marston, and Searle, which is entitled Posthumous Works and Unpublished Autographs of Napoleon III. in Exile, collected and arranged by Count Alfred de la Chapelle. This gentleman was one of the special correspondents of the Standard newspaper in the war between France and Germany. He afterwards joined the late Emperor at Chiselhurst, where he was employed as literary assistant to his Imperial Majesty. A narrative of the 'three-months' campaign, from the outbreak of war on the Moselle to the capitulation of Montmédy after the grand defeat at Sedan, was compiled by M. de la Chapelle, in November, 1870, from his own letters, with some completing additions and corrections. This narrative was revised by the Emperor when already printed and published. The Emperor's marginal annotations, of which there are nearly thirty, written in French, accompany the English translation of M. de la Chapelle's original work, forming part of the new volume. They are engraved in facsimile of his Majesty's handwriting, which was, however, so bad in those last few months of his life that some words cannot easily be deciphered by persons familiar with the French language. It was not by previous arrangement, or with an express view to publication, that the Emperor made these annotations. The author called on the Emperor and Empress at Camden Place on March 28, 1871, having parted from his Majesty at Sedan. They spoke with approval of the narrative he had produced, and he received a gift of the Emperor's annotated copy. From that time Count de la Chapelle was constantly engaged in aiding the Emperor's literary labours. He visited the Emperor almost daily, at nine o'clock in the morning, to receive his instructions, or draughts and rough notes, for the pamphlets by which Napoleon III. sought to vindicate his personal administration. The first of these was a brief essay, called Principles, by a Late Diplomatist, laying the guilt of treason upon General Trochu and others who formed the "Government of National Defence," on Sept. 4, 1870, when the Regency of the Empress was overthrown, and denouncing also M. Thiers and the Assembly of Versailles, because they decreed the Emperor's deposition. This protest was written by his Majesty's own hand, and its style is characteristic, as must have appeared to every reader acquainted with his political addresses. It is, of course, included among the contents of the present volume. A work of greater permanent value is the Emperor's treatise on The Military Forces of France and the Campaign of 1870, which occupies in this volume a hundred and thirty pages. It was finished at the end of January, 1872; but its publication was delayed by the advice of "certain influential personages," till the debates in the French Assembly, a few months later, upon the new law of conscription and army reorganisation. A portion of this treatise, more especially dealing with the practical questions of military administration, but tending to excuse the Emperor for the disordered condition of the French army in the war, appeared in May, 1872, under the name of M. de la Chapelle. But this gentleman had nothing to do with its authorship; he only corrected the printer's proofs, and attended to such details of publication. The private notes addressed to him for this work by his Imperial master are reproduced as autographs in the volume before us, with the very writing on the outside of the envelope for each letter sent by post, and even the penny postage-stamp and post-office mark. Sometimes the direction is to "M. le Comte de la Chapelle, 200, Fleet-street, E.C.," sometimes "48, Cornhill, E.C.," or "4, Westbourne-villas, Harrow-road." These communications not only prove—that we knew very well before—that his Majesty was an experienced writer for the press, and had a minute acquaintance with typographic business, but also that he was ever most observant of the forms of courtesy in dealing with his servants and social inferiors. But this, likewise, is a well-known trait of his character, and the testimony of all who personally approached him has borne witness that his demeanour was that of a thorough gentleman, winning the affectionate esteem of his dependants, his guests, and his private friends. In spite of his fatal mistakes as a statesman, and of some very serious faults in his personal conduct, there was much good, as we have always declared, in the illustrious man who died last January at Camden Place. We feel sure that he was, and is, most sincerely mourned by those who knew him best; and it is not without respectful sympathy that we peruse the concluding parts of this volume. They tell us something of the Emperor's latter days, in a dignified though enforced retirement from active life. We are told, for instance, of his visitors at Camden Place, amongst whom the late Mr. Thornton Hunt was one, who describes his interview with the Emperor in an interesting letter. We learn a little about the studies with which the Imperial exile occupied himself, ranging from high problems of European policy and from wide historical researches to his old theme of the use of artillery, and an improved household grate for the more economical heating of rooms. His care for the education of his son, the Prince Imperial, is also touched upon. The last chapter is a short but rather touching account of the Emperor's death. The Comte de la Chapelle has performed his task with fidelity and sound discretion.

The kind and disinterested desire which prompted the publication of To and From Constantinople, by Hubert E. H. Jerningham (Hurst and Blackett), would of itself suffice to recommend the book, even in default of the literary merits, which are conspicuous. The desire alluded to is that "of being of use to those who may be tempted to avail themselves of the many facilities which railways and steamers now present for seeing a great deal in a short space of time." There is, of course, some difficulty in reconciling this amiable desire with a remark encountered as early as the fourth page, at which we find the author thus expressing himself—"Hungry for companionship, I spied two Englishmen. . . . They were tourists and botanists—two unpleasant qualities." &c. Now for whom, but for the tourist, did the author, by his own showing, intend his book? However, some one may say, it was the more kind of him to write his book with the sole motive of doing a service to people who are, to him, what Mr. Mantalini might have called "unpleasant bodies." Christian charity could scarcely go further. And the author's modesty is as noticeable as his pure love of his "unpleasant" neighbour. "I hope for my book no greater honour," he says, "than that of becoming an extra companion (Murray's guide-books being the companions in ordinary) to the traveller in those countries which I have spoken of." Without calling in question the author's sincerity, it occurs to one to rejoin that "some men have honour thrust upon them," and that he may, willy-nilly, find himself in that category. Indeed, it is to be feared that his book is rather too large and cumbersome, to say nothing of its cultivated and scholarly tone, for the comparatively humble use to which he would dedicate it; and he must be content to believe that it is far more likely to find a place upon the drawing-room table or upon a shelf in the library than in the portmanteau of the traveller. On the other hand, it is a book which a traveller, before the travels are commenced, would do well to read attentively with a view of making mental notes, or even of transferring hints and suggestions from the large volume to the small and portable pocket-book. The author quotes from ancient and moderns so profusely that he himself, apprehensive of being found fault with on that score, offers a sort of anticipatory apology; but the ground he travelled over was such as to make it almost impossible to refrain from incessant quotation and from frequent references to all kinds of poets, from Homer to Byron, and to all kinds of historians, from Herodotus to Finlay. Scholars, at any rate, will readily forgive him. The author first takes us from Brindisi to Athens; thence to Corinth, by Nauplia and Mycenæ, and then back to Athens. For our next trip we start from Constantinople; touch at Gallipoli and the Dardanelles, and next day at Porto Lagos and Cavalla, where we charter "a big caique, or mahone, to take us to Mount Athos;" and, after an inspection of various monasteries, we arrive by "a long and tiring" route at Salonica, whence we return to Constantinople. Our next trip is from Therapia to Cyzicus; and our next from Constantinople to Broussa, Nicomedia and Nicæa, the Bosphorus and Galata Bridge, form respectively the subjects of discourse in the succeeding—that is, the last three chapters. As to the Bridge of Galata, the author earnestly recommends "the visitor to Constantinople not to let his stay in that capital pass away without his devoting half an hour, at least, to the observation of the world as it passes to and fro on that bridge. Europe," he adds, "ends and Asia begins there. The two continents meet. This fact alone gives to Galata Bridge an interest which other grander structures and more magnificent architectural works do not, nor can ever possess." The volume is enlivened by anecdotes and embellished by two engravings, one of which is a fine view of Constantinople from Dolma Bagtché, and the other, on a smaller scale, a view of the Monastery of St. Paul, Mount Athos.

The attractiveness is by no means equal to the importance of the subjects discussed in The Religious History of Ireland, by James Godkin (Henry S. King and Co.), nor can it be said that what is of itself unpalatable has been so skillfully disguised as to change repugnance into inclination. The book resembles a dry and desultory critical commentary, rather than an interesting narrative written according to a carefully pre-arranged plan and with studied perspicuity of ideas and language. Absurd traditions are mentioned; statements are confirmed or challenged; facts are brought forward; historians, especially Mr. Froude, are tried, convicted, and sentenced to discredit; but readers are almost left to create for themselves out of chaos a distinctly-defined image of Ireland as she appeared and as she appears in her religious history, "primitive, Papal, and Protestant." It is, however, quite evident that the author has been unsparing of labour and research, and that the information he has gathered together, though it presents the appearance of a somewhat jumbled and bewildering mass, is amply sufficient in quantity to enable the patient and laborious to construct for themselves an outline of Ireland's religious history from the legendary times of St. Columba to the date of disestablishment. The author ventures upon two straightforward predictions: in the first place, he says that "as years roll on it may be confidently predicted that the conviction will become more general that the Irish Church never had so great a benefactor as Mr. Gladstone;" and, in the second place, he asserts that, so far as Dublin University is concerned, "Mr. Fawcett's bill will enable it to accomplish fully its mission, and will remove everything that can be fairly regarded as a disability." It is to be hoped that his prophetic soul may prove to be as unerring as Hamlet's.

"UN FRIPIER ESPAGNOL."

A fripier—whence is derived, we suppose, the expressive English word "frippery"—is a dealer in secondhand articles, a broker, a pawnbroker, an old-clothes-man, a merchant of Wardour-street or the New-cut, of Monmouth-street, or, to descend still lower, of Petticoat-lane and Rag Fair. This business is often selected, like others dealing with objects of indefinite value, as a favourable field for their money-making genius, by gentlemen of the Hebrew persuasion. We have a Spanish variety of the class (though he does not appear to have a Jewish physiognomy) in the amusing fine-art illustration before us, which we engrave after a photograph published by Messrs. Goupil and Co., from a picture by M. J. Worms, a French artist (we believe from Alsace) of remarkable ability and high promise.

The fripier's boiteau is a fair sample of such places, with its mass of articles, utterly heterogeneous, scattered about in most admired disorder; and oh! how dreary are its suggestions of cast-off finery, tarnished splendours, extinguished gaiety, and homely uses past or forfeited! Observe the crumpled garments hanging from the wall, the mute guitar, the empty birdcage, the picture, the metal and porcelain utensils and ornaments. Look also at the hat-case à la Anglaise, and the top-boots, which have been imitated from the British "jockey" all over Europe. The fripier evidently has that knowledge of human nature essential to success in his calling. With what assumption of honest pride does not the old fox point out the many merits of the secondhand jacket he has just tried on! "Is it not lovely?" "Does it not fit the senior's elegant figure beautifully?" "Is it not like giving away a jacket that would become any Don in the land to ask so low a price for it?" Such are the cajoleries which he addresses to the young fop's pretty, simple sweetheart. What can she say in reply? To criticise the garment might seem as though she found fault with the paragon who wears it—for he himself is plainly more than satisfied with it, and, as he attitudinises before those bright eyes, appears to regard himself, if you please, as the very "glass of fashion and the mould of form."

A bed of coal, five feet and a half thick, has been discovered by the Bentley Colliery Company, near Walsall.

The foundation-stone of the first school-board school to be erected at Wakefield was laid on Monday. It will accommodate 437 boys and girls, and will cost, with the site, £3838.

The new frigate, the Shah, formerly called the Blonde, was launched on Wednesday at Portsmouth Dockyard. Lady M'Clintock, wife of Sir Leopold M'Clintock, Admiral-Superintendent of the dockyard, performed the ceremony. The Shah is an iron ship, wood-sheathed.

A new Roman Catholic church was opened at Newcastle, on Wednesday, by Archbishop Manning. The building—one of the largest of its kind in England—which has been erected at the cost of the Dominican monks of the town, is in the Norman style of architecture, and is dedicated to their patron, St. Dominic. The monks have secured a plot of ground close to the church for building a monastery and schools. Archbishop Manning preached the opening sermon. He extolled the unity and continuity of the Catholic Church, and denounced "the men full of intelligence and pride" of the present day who look down on the Catholic faith as a superstition.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

Much amusement was caused, yesterday week, by the evidence of Mr. Attwell, a Piccadilly hairdresser, who has cut and dressed the defendant's hair for five years and a half, during which time he said it had not altered in colour. He produced a bottle of the wash which he used on the defendant's hair, and when Mr. Hawkins suggested that it should be tried on Mr. Bowker (who has white hair) witness asked the learned counsel to try it on his own hair or on his wig. It was elicited that the defendant's hair was naturally straight, and the witness boasted that the curls were the result of his "accomplishments." Two specimens of the defendant's hair, which this witness produced, were retained by the Court. Several Hampshire persons were called to prove the identity of the defendant as Roger Tichborne. One of these, a labourer named Link, stated that the defendant recollected receiving from him a pipe of tobacco. That convinced him as to the defendant being Roger Tichborne; but, although they talked together for twenty minutes, he could recollect nothing else that the defendant said.

Andrew Bogle, the negro, an old servant of the family—a witness, as the Lord Chief Justice observed, of great importance—was examined on Monday. He was the first person connected with the family who saw the defendant, unless he had seen Guilfoyle, the old gardener of the family, which is a point in controversy. The evidence already given as to Bogle is in the letters and the defendant's cross-examination. Bogle stated that he had gone out to Australia in 1854, and had received £50 a year from the Doughty family until March, 1866, when it was stopped. At that time the defendant had just asserted his claim, and a correspondence was going on with the Dowager. Lady Tichborne, in her letters, had mentioned that Bogle was living there, and could tell all about the family. The defendant stated that in June he went to Sydney, and on July 24 he wrote to the Dowager, "You spoke of Bogle in your letters to Cubitt; I have made inquiries, but cannot find him." From this it is to be inferred, though Bogle gave no time for his interview with the defendant, that it was later than that date. In the course of cross-examination the defendant admitted that he had no doubt Cubitt had told him Bogle was in Sydney. Bogle stated that in March, 1866, his £50 a year was stopped—or, at least, not paid as usual; and that some time afterwards—he did not say when, but by the letters of the defendant it must have been at the end of July—he met the defendant, and, as he said, recognised him, and that the defendant, at their first interview, offered to take him to England with him, as he did. Bogle's account of his first interview with the defendant was that when they met they "looked hard at each other," and that then the defendant said, "Is that you, Bogle?" and that he replied, "Yes, Sir, it is; how stout you are grown," and that he recognised him. And that then, a few minutes afterwards, he said to him, "I've come to see Roger Tichborne—you are not him, are you?" and the defendant said, "Oh, yes, I am, Bogle." Bogle also stated that at this interview the defendant inquired after Gosford and others at Tichborne, though there is a telegram of the defendant in evidence, previously sent from Sydney, in which he stated that the agent of his father's estate was a man named Hallett, at Bridport. Bogle, however, swore positively that the defendant is Roger; but he also swore he recognised him by his likeness to the Tichborne family, although the family witnesses stated that "Roger was not like the Tichbornes, but was like his mother." Further, Bogle swore that on three occasions he had seen Roger smoking in his bed-room in his nightgown, and that he had on each occasion seen him rub his arm, and in doing so raise his sleeves, so as to enable Bogle to see that he had no marks upon his arms. But in cross-examination he swore that he had never mentioned this to anyone until he was in the witness-box, and that he had never spoken to the defendant on the subject. Mr. Hawkins's cross-examination of Bogle was directed to show that his recollections of Tichborne were confused, erroneous, and obscure (especially, for instance, as to Roger and as to Lady Tichborne's visits), and that the defendant when he first came over knew nothing more about the family or Roger than what Bogle had told him, though Bogle swore positively he never gave him any information at all.

The proceedings on Tuesday began with a brief but rather bitter discussion raised by a complaint on the part of the defence that the Treasury Solicitor had intimated that the expenses of witnesses for the defence whose names had not been delivered within the time appointed for the purpose would not be paid. But as it turned out—though it was at first denied—that this was in accordance with distinct notice given to the attorney for the defence, in pursuance of a condition in the arrangement which the Court had considered reasonable and just, the Court intimated that they saw no ground whatever for complaint. The cross-examination of Bogle was then resumed, and many remarkable things were elicited of which nothing had before been heard; as, for instance, that the defendant (who swore at the former trial that he had had a ring when saved from the wreck bearing, not the Tichborne crest, but his initials) had sold or pawned it at Melbourne, and that he had never seen it since, had at Sydney (many hundreds of miles from Melbourne) a gold ring which he had had made there, and which bore the Tichborne crest—a hand holding a star—though at the former trial he said it was a "bird's head with wings." Further, it was elicited that the defendant told Bogle he had been to Melbourne three or four years after the time he said he had first landed there from the wreck—a statement never before made, either by the defendant in his numerous examinations, or by Bogle himself when examined at the former trial, or when examined on Monday. He further stated that, when he was sent for by the defendant down to Alresford—a few days after his arrival in this country—and got into Tichborne House, the defendant told him to notice whether the pictures there were the same as when Bogle was there before, and that Bogle accordingly did his best to notice them; and though, as he said, he could tell the defendant very little about them, he admitted that he had told him something, and that he had mentioned some alterations he had observed in going over the house. It was also elicited that Bogle, when at Tichborne, saw Mrs. Greenwood, one of Roger's favourite cousins, who lives very near; and that though she asked whether the defendant was at Alresford (where he was staying), Bogle did not tell her; and he further admitted that though she had said, assuming him to be Roger, that she should be very glad to see him, and sent a kind message to him to that effect, which Bogle delivered, the defendant did not go, but went off to town with Bogle. It further appeared that soon afterwards the defendant had Carter and M'Cann, two of Roger's servants, staying with him, as well as various other persons, well able to give him the fullest information as to Roger or the family, including Baigent and the dowager herself. Lastly, it appeared that one of Orton's sisters had been to see the defendant while he was living at Croydon. These are only a few of the things elicited in the course of the cross-examination.

Dr. Kenealy very briefly re-examined Bogle on Wednesday, the principal facts he elicited being that Carter and M'Cann had both died since the last trial. Mrs. Burt, the daughter of the miller at Cheriton, deposed to divers delicate reminiscences of Roger Tichborne and Miss Doughty. First she had seen them sitting together on a stile; then she remembered them going into a grotto in her father's garden—afterwards explained to the Lord Chief Justice to be no grotto at all, but only a walk by the river closed in with trees. Dr. Kenealy would not have this witness "pinned to dates." James Howlestone, poor-rate collector, Poole, gave the names of the deputation which had waited on Roger and asked him to stand for the borough; but, unfortunately, all the gentlemen were dead, and Mr. Howlestone had no direct personal knowledge of the incident. Eliza Roper, Charlotte Grant, and Martha Legg, former servants at Tichborne, recognised the defendant as Roger. Eliza Roper, who had been laundry-maid at Tichborne for eleven months, and last saw Roger in 1850, said the defendant was Roger. She had only seen him, however, for the first time the previous day, though her name had been included in a list of witnesses delivered on Aug. 30, who were to prove having seen and conversed with the defendant, and having a distinct recollection of him, and that the defendant was Roger Charles Tichborne. Charlotte Grant affirmed that Roger used to come into the kitchen to wash his hands when he had been fishing in the moat, and she never noticed any tattoo marks. When the Lord Chief Justice tried to "pin her to dates" she drew in, and would only abide by her statement so far "that she could not swear to the year."

Thursday's evidence was not of much moment. Among the witnesses examined were Robert Bromby, a custom-house officer at Poole; Mary Jane Williams, who had been in the service of Sir Edward Doughty at Tichborne; and Mary Ann Neale, formerly a barmaid at the King's Arms Hotel, Melksham;—all of whom deposed to the defendant and Roger Tichborne being the same person.

At the London Bankruptcy Court, yesterday week, the failure was announced of Messrs. Mansbridge, glass merchants and contractors, King's-road, Camden Town, and Red Lion-court, Holborn, with liabilities exceeding £230,000. About £260,000 of their debts are in respect of creditors holding security, leaving assets to a large amount to meet their unsecured debts.

At the Sheriff's Court, Preston, Bridget Macroy, a domestic servant, sued John Lancaster, of Whitfield, for damages for breach of promise of marriage. The jury, without hesitation, returned a verdict for the plaintiff, damages £100. Another action was brought in the same court on Monday, by Sarah Cragg, of Windy-hill, Hutton, near Kendal, against John Shepherd Clark, farmer, near Kendal. Damages were laid at £500. The plaintiff is the daughter of a farmer, and the defendant is a farmer. The jury returned a verdict for £350.

Mr. George Sorrell, of Cambridge-terrace, was fined ten shillings at Marylebone, on Saturday, for entering a carriage while in motion on the Metropolitan Railway; and a similar penalty was imposed on a Mrs. Saunders, at the Lambeth Court, for getting out of a train at the Walworth-road station before it had stopped.

At Hammersmith several persons have been fined in small sums for not sending their children to school.

Mr. W. H. Ker, who was stated to be the resident medical officer of the Caledonian-road Provident Dispensary, has been fined £5 for practising medicine without a legal qualification.

For taking part with a number of ruffians against the police, on the hasty assumption that the constables were in the wrong, two seemingly respectable persons, named Lock and Austin, have been committed for trial by Mr. Knox, who spoke with regret of the general tendency to hamper a policeman in the discharge of his duty, instead of aiding him.

Several seamen have been committed to prison for ten weeks at Swansea, others for three weeks at Ramsgate, for refusing to proceed to sea, their vessels having been declared on survey to be seaworthy.

A Birkenhead rifle volunteer was, yesterday week, fined £20, and four others £10 each, for having, along with many more, recently created a disturbance at a river ferry, and evaded payment of their fares.

Charles May, the shipping-clerk, of Water-lane, Great Tower-street, who forged his employer's name for £3000, decamped with the money, married, and presented his wife with £1500 worth of jewellery, has been committed for trial.

Edward Thomas Vialla, a cabman, has been sentenced to a month's imprisonment and three months' suspension of license, for refusing to carry two ladies who were in his cab to their destination, and threatening to assault them.

Charlotte Avis has been committed on the charge of child-stealing preferred against her some time ago.

At the Surrey Sessions, Elizabeth Setten, convicted of stealing a watch, against whom twenty convictions were proved, has been sentenced to fourteen years' penal servitude.

George Youle has been convicted, at the Middlesex Sessions, of dog-stealing, and, as there were several previous convictions to the prisoner's account, he was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment. Henry Webb, described as a cook, pleaded guilty to stealing a quantity of luggage, containing articles of great value, from the Charing-cross railway station, and, a former conviction having been proved, he was sentenced to be kept in penal servitude for seven years, and to be further under police supervision for seven years afterwards. Rewards of £2 and £1 respectively were given to Detective Parry and Inspector Harnett, for their conduct in the case.

Mary Jane Trumble, a well-dressed young woman, was charged at Westminster, on Tuesday, with stealing goods to the value of £107 from her master, Mr. R. Beardall, silk-mercant, Brompton-road. The prisoner was in the service of Mr. Beardall as forewoman, and during his absence from town for a few days some of prosecutor's property was found at her lodgings. A search being made, twenty-two jackets, three water-proofs, a lace shawl, 176 yards of cashmere, and a large quantity of silk, velvet, velveteen, &c., were found, and the defendant was given into custody. She expressed the greatest contrition, and begged to be forgiven, as she was the only support of an aged and dying mother, and had no other friend in the world. Mr. Woolrych declined to decide the matter, and sent her for trial.

Thomas Ramsay, an apprentice to a leather japper, has been summoned a second time for a breach of the Masters and Servants Act. His new offence was aggravated by decoying away other workmen who had been brought from Birmingham. In default of being able to pay the amount of damage claimed by his employer he was sent to gaol for two months.

For a most daring watch robbery on Cornhill, John Smith, described as a butcher, but proved to be a convicted thief, at large on a ticket-of-leave, was, on Saturday, committed for trial by Mr. Alderman Lusk.

Henry Williams, a "smaasher," has been committed for trial for selling counterfeit halfcrowns, on the evidence of a woman who was herself tried on the same charge last year.

Thomas Gedney, tobacconist at Somers Town, who is being prosecuted by the Inland Revenue for having in his possession a large quantity of cigars and tobacco "free of duty," was further examined at Clerkenwell Police Court on Tuesday. The prisoner, in default of bail to the full amount of the penalty sued for (£700), was removed to gaol.

Mr. Richard Charles Monro, of the Midland Railway Coal Depot, St. Pancras, was summoned, on Tuesday, before the Lord Mayor, at the Mansion House, for selling coals deficient in weight; and, it being proved that out of sixteen sacks which were weighed fifteen were deficient, he was fined £2 each sack, or £30 in all, besides the complainant's costs. At Guildhall, on Wednesday, a lady obtained a summons against a firm of coal merchants for supplying four tons of slate in lieu of coal.

In the case of two men charged at Guildhall with being in possession of a pair of blankets supposed to have been stolen, Detective Mitchell said that he found on one of them a purse containing a small piece of coal. The witness went on to say that receivers of stolen goods carried pieces of coal about with them. When they saw a thief apparently rather shy at whom he would sell his plunder they would walk up to him, take out a purse, and show him a piece of coal. This was to show that the thief might rely upon their being as faithful as the Bedouin Arabs were to those with whom they took salt.

Two charges of sending diseased meat to the London market were investigated at Guildhall on Monday. Frederick Jackson, at Spalding, in Lincolnshire, was charged with sending the carcass of a diseased pig to the Metropolitan Meat Market for sale. The main facts were not disputed on either side, but the defendant said that while he was away at a distance on Sunday preaching his man packed the pig in with some good meat and sent it to town without his knowledge. Several letters were read from the gentry of the neighbourhood, speaking highly of the defendant. Sir F. Wyatt Truscott said if the defendant had not intended to send the pig to London, he ought to have taken greater precautions to have prevented its coming. He fined him £5 and £3s. costs. The other case was that of William Leaning, a butcher and general dealer of Barton, in Lincolnshire, who was summoned for sending four quarters of a cow to market unfit for human food. The meat was stated to be putrid. The defence was that the cow was in good condition and well the night before it was found dead, and it was stated that the defendant and his family had eaten the meat. Even, therefore, if the meat was unfit for food, it was argued, the sending it to London was an error in judgment, and not an intentional act. Sir F. Wyatt Truscott said he had seen the meat himself, and he did not think that anything could be worse than it was. He sentenced the defendant to six weeks' imprisonment. The Sheffield stipendiary on Tuesday fined Thomas Hanksley, butcher, £10 and costs; Benjamin Wragg, jun., farmer, £20 and costs; and Hallam and Ward, each £5 and costs, for being possessed of and aiding and abetting the exposure of diseased meat intended for the London market.

William Walker and Samuel Quint, of Heneage-street, Mile-end, were summoned at Worship-street, under the Adulteration of Food Act, for selling milk and water as genuine milk. The sanitary inspector proved that, on July 9, he purchased at the premises of the defendants a pint of milk, placed it in a bottle, and sent it to Dr. Meymott Tidy for analysis. Dr. Tidy, Professor of Chemistry at the London Hospital, then deposed that at least one half of the "milk" was water. Mr. Hannay said the evidence was conclusive. The milk, however, had not been mixed with any deleterious matter, otherwise he would have imposed the full penalty. He now ordered the defendants to pay £5 and costs. The money was paid. Henry Foster, of Pelham-street, Mile-end, for a similar offence, was ordered to pay a like penalty.

Five shillings and costs was the penalty imposed by the Welshpool Court of Petty Sessions on Richard Thomas Stockton, a miller, for cruelty to a number of fowls. It appeared that he had tied twenty-four of these birds together by the legs and allowed them to roll out of a cart, and had left them as so much lumber, till four died.

Charles Carter, a lad eleven years of age, charged at Lambeth, on Saturday, with placing six iron chairs and a number of stones on the railway near Lower Norwood station, was sentenced to receive six strokes with a birch rod.

William Boothroyd, who is said to have been at one time landlord of the Red Lion Inn, Upper Blackley, near Manchester, has been committed, at Liverpool, for trial on the charge of having forged and uttered a deed of conveyance, and also with attempting to obtain two sums of £6000 each, by false pretences, from two Liverpool solicitors.

The despatch-box containing bonds and stocks representing £5000, which was stolen, last week, from the lodgings of the Rev. T. P. Thirkill, at Weston-super-Mare, has been found in a hedge on the outskirts of the town, by a boy seeking rabbits' food. Notes of the value of £25 and some loose money have been abstracted, but the whole of the bonds and scrip remain untouched. The reward of £100 has been withdrawn.

A revolting discovery has been made. Yesterday week different portions of the body of a woman were found in the Thames, the left upper part of the body being discovered on the shore at Battersea, the corresponding upper quarter of the same body at Nine-elms, and a portion of the internal parts under an arch of Battersea Bridge. The skin of a woman's face was subsequently found near Limehouse, and it had evidently been purposely stripped off to prevent identification. Medical opinions agree that the body has not been dissected for anatomical purposes, but has been sawn and cut to pieces by an unskilful hand, and the remains would therefore appear to be those of a person who met her death by murder. On Monday two more portions of the same body were found, the right thigh being picked up in the river, off Woolwich, and the right shoulder, with part of the arm, off Greenwich, the latter part being smeared with tar. Other portions have since been found. It is stated that the medical examination has established that death had occurred but a short time before the first portions of the remains were found; that the body was cut up but a short time before it was committed to the water; and that death was caused by a blow on the right temple—a blow, the scalp shows, hard enough to have crushed in the skull, and so to have caused instant death. An inquest is being held upon the remains, which have not been identified. They are thought to be those of a woman forty years old.

Murderous assaults are very common just now. Charlotte Hopkins has been committed from Westminster for stabbing George Durrant, with whom she lived, in the face and head. Walter Stepany appeared at Clerkenwell, in a very enfeebled condition, to complain of having been terribly beaten by Joseph Morgan, a fishmonger, of Camden Town. The injured man has been blind for a month, and in great danger from erysipelas; but, as it appeared that he had provoked the punishment he had received, his assailant was discharged. Under strong provocation, an injured husband has taken the worst way of redressing his wrongs—that of throwing vitriol in the face of his wife's paramour. The accused person has been committed for trial, bail being refused. For not being quick enough in fetching beer, a girl ten years old was knocked down, cut, caned, and kicked by her stepfather, a labouring man, named Lawrence Crane. This noble specimen of humanity has been sent for trial. The bargeman John Moles, who was charged with a savage assault upon his own son, a child six years of age, was brought up on remand before the Brentford magistrates on Saturday. The chairman sentenced him to six months' hard labour, and to be bound over to keep the peace for six months afterwards. At Marylebone, on Monday, Henry George, a labourer, was charged on remand with having attempted to murder his son by endeavouring to throw him into the Regent's Canal. The prisoner was ordered to find sureties to keep the peace, and was removed to the cells in default. Richard Brannan, a weaver, has been sentenced, at the Middlesex Sessions, to five years' penal servitude for attempting to cut his wife's throat. A Coroner's inquest, held on Monday, at Hammersmith, respecting the death of Mrs. Mary Ann Jones, of Tranquilla-terrace, who was alleged to have met her death through the ill-treatment of her family, resulted in a verdict of manslaughter against her husband, who was committed for trial by the Coroner on that charge. Moore, who was charged with the murder of Doney, and whose case has been at trial for the last seven weeks at Maryborough, in Ireland, was on Tuesday night found guilty, and sentenced to be hanged on Oct. 9. The execution of James Conner, for the murder of James Gaffney, at Liverpool, on Aug. 11, took place within the precincts of Kirkdale Gaol, on Monday. When the bolt was drawn the rope broke, and a fresh one had to be procured.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Miss Faithfull has opened another printing-office for women, in connection with her Industrial Bureau, in Paddington.

The St. Pancras Vestry has unanimously carried a resolution condemning a proposed additional outlay of £12,500 on the Cleveland-street Workhouse.

The strike of the stevedores at the East India Docks has resulted in a victory for the men. At a general meeting of working engineers, held on Saturday, reports were received from district delegates in favour of a movement to raise the minimum rate of wages to 38s. per week.

Two lives have been lost through a fire at Silver-street, Stepney-green. All the inmates of the upper floors were rescued, notwithstanding that the stairs were in flames. Afterwards the bodies of Mr. Nettlethorpe and Mrs. Murillo were found on the ground floor.

An autumn exhibition of fruit and flowers has been held at the Crystal Palace. The fruit show consisted of a very fine display of all classes, and among the most prominent features of the flower show was a remarkable collection of gladioli. Three out of four first prizes for these flowers were carried off by Messrs. Kelway, of Langport. There were table decorations.

At the last monthly meeting of the Metropolitan Asylums Board a communication was received from the Local Government Board approving of the provision made against an outbreak of cholera, but intimating that, as no cases had actually been reported in the country except those among the Danish immigrants, further preparations would be unnecessary.

About 200 men and their wives attended the International Exhibition last Saturday to hear a special lecture from Mr. Buckmaster on "Cooking for Working Men." The dishes consisted of tripe and onions, liver and bacon, mutton broth, and a pot-au-feu for a family of five persons. The cooking appeared to give great satisfaction, and several of the men's wives asked questions as to cost and materials.

The Corporation having bought from the Chapter of St. Paul's an irregular piece of ground at the west end of the cathedral, arrangements have been commenced for throwing it open to the public. The iron railings are to be removed, and the carriage-way will be widened by nearly fifty feet. On the south side of the cathedral there will be eight feet additional space available for traffic.

It appears from the weekly return of metropolitan pauperism that the total number of paupers last week was 98,095, of whom 33,464 were in workhouses and 65,142 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding week in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease respectively of 3386, 19,688, and 29,194. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 590, of whom 418 were men, 138 women, and 34 children under 16.

Asphalte paving was again the subject of discussion at the meeting of the City Commission of Sewers on Tuesday. One member said he had seen as many as thirty horses down within about a quarter of an hour. The chairman met the objection by stating that a horseshoe had been invented which would obviate the risk of horses slipping on the pavement. A memorial was presented by Mr. Scudamore urging the necessity of a noiseless roadway near the Post Office.

Last week 2248 births and 1286 deaths were registered in London. After making due allowance for increase of population, the births exceeded by 59, while the deaths were 179 below, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The annual death-rate from all causes, which in the four previous weeks had steadily decreased from 27 to 23 per 1000, further declined last week to 20. The rate, after distribution of the deaths in institutions in proportion to population, was 19 per 1000 in the west, 16 in the north, 22 in the central, 23 in the east, and 21 in the south groups of districts. The 1286 deaths included 2 from smallpox, 18 from measles, 12 from scarlet fever, 7 from diphtheria, 35 from whooping-cough, 27 from different forms of fever, and 229 from diarrhoea; thus to the seven principal diseases of the zymotic class 330 deaths were referred, against numbers declining from 585 to 418 in the seven preceding weeks. The deaths from these seven diseases were 72 below the corrected average number returned in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The fatal cases of diarrhoea, which in the four previous weeks had decreased from 470 to 277, further fell to 229; these, however, exceeded the corrected average weekly number in the corresponding week of the last ten years by 54. To simple cholera only eight deaths were referred, against 17, 16, and 12 in the three previous weeks. The deaths referred to fever, which in the five previous weeks had steadily increased from 22 to 38, declined last week to 27, and were 25 below the corrected average weekly number. Three were certified as typhus, 19 as enteric or typhoid, and 5 as simple continued fever. With reference to the death of a female, aged twenty-four years, from enteric fever in St. George's Hospital, it is stated that "deceased had been taking milk from the Reform Dairy Company prior to her attack." To different forms of violence 38 deaths were referred; 29 were the result of negligence or accident, including 11 from fractures and contusions, 2 from burns and scalds, 8 from drowning, and 7 from suffocation. Seven cases of suicide and 1 each of infanticide and manslaughter were registered.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION: 1. STYRIAN ALPINE HUT. 2. INDIAN WIGWAM. 3. STYRIAN WINEHOUSE. 4. HUNGARIAN PEASANTS' HOUSES.

WIRING A WHALE BY THE PERSIAN GULF SUBMARINE TELEGRAPH CABLE.

WIRING A WHALE.

A singular accident took place, on July 10, in that part of the Indian Ocean which extends between Western India and the shores of Muscat and Oman, the south-eastern provinces of Arabia, near the entrance to the Persian Gulf. The section of the Persian Gulf Submarine Telegraph, off the Beloochistan coast, from Gwader to Kurrachee, was suddenly interrupted in its working. To find what was the matter, H.M.S. Amberwitch, under the command of Captain Bishop, was dispatched next day from Kurrachee, in the direction indicated by the tests of electric communication, arriving at the supposed place of the fault in forty hours after the occurrence of the interruption. After grappling the cable and picking up a short length towards the fault, it became evident, from the increased strain, that the cable had fouled something on the bottom, as the deck-engine, unassisted, was quite unable to bring the cable in; but on hauling it from all points of the compass the obstruction appeared suddenly to give way; and the body of an immense whale was brought to the surface, firmly secured by two and a half turns of the cable round its tail. Many of the outer wires of the cable were broken and twisted; the gutta-percha was badly torn and the conductor of the cable was broken. The cable had evidently been hanging some distance in a bight, over a sudden depression in the bottom, and the only explanation that can be offered is that the whale, while rubbing itself to get rid of the parasites that attach themselves to these animals, had turned suddenly in passing through the bight, and had thus twisted the cable round its body. It is worthy of mention that a fault occurred about the same place a few years ago, when the cable broke while being hauled in. From the manner in which the cable was found to be twisted, it was always supposed that the damage had been caused by an anchor; but it is more than probable that a whale was then, as now, the author of the mischief. The cable for more than fifty or sixty yards in each direction from the fault was perfectly bright, but not worn, presenting the appearance of having been constantly rubbed against by some soft substance. About two thirds of the whale, when raised to the surface, remained still uneaten by the sharks; but when, after completing the repairs of the cable, those employed in this work returned next morning to the same place, they found nothing left of the whale but its tail and 14 ft. of its back-bone. Mr. Mance, the electrician, has furnished this account; and our sketch is contributed by Mr. Klingelhoefer, purser of the Amberwitch, SHIP ACCIDENT AT LONDON BRIDGE.

An unusual accident took place at London Bridge, about ten o'clock in the morning, yesterday week. The screw steam-ship Tagus, of 2000 tons burden, from Oporto, with a full cargo of fruit, was making her way up to berth off the wharf at London Bridge, and to discharge her cargo. The flood tide was running strong, and the anchor of the Tagus was thrown out to fasten her to her moorings. The current appeared to be too much for the vessel's holding; and, giving way to its force, she dragged her anchor and became unmanageable, swinging round at the full length of her cable, and coming into contact with the two central piers of London Bridge, against which she dashed with terrific force, having got beyond the control of the man at the helm. The position of the vessel was one of considerable peril, as she repeatedly bounded broadside against the abutments of the bridge; but the only damage which she sustained was an injury to her bow and to the smaller spars and taut rigging. While drifting towards the bridge, the Tagus crushed a barge against the stonework of the bridge.

A SHIP RUNNING FOUL OF LONDON BRIDGE.

A STREET IN BARCELONA.

The chief city of Catalonia, from which proceed many telegrams of the Carlist successes in the north of Spain, has been partly described. It is pleasantly situated on the eastward or Mediterranean shore of that country, about a hundred miles south of the Pyrenees, which guard its frontier, and on the verge of a fertile plain, watered by the river Llobregat, and girdled by green hills. Barcelona is a manufacturing and commercial town, as well as the capital of its province, the see of an Archbishop, and the centre of a military and a judicial administrative district, but its population, which was once 140,000, has been reduced by the troubles of civil war. It boasts of a fabulous antiquity. It is said to have been founded by Hercules, a long time before Romulus began the building of Rome. What is more like history, this was a Punic or Carthaginian town, and became afterwards a Roman colony, subject to its neighbour, Tarragona; it was conquered by the Moors, but in the ninth century belonged to a feudal lord, the Count of Barcelona, whose descendants became Kings of Arragon. The union of Arragon with Castile, under Ferdinand and Isabella, naturally lessened the dignity of this old city, which has ever borne a grudge to Madrid. A view of the Fort of Monjuich, on the top of its steep hill overlooking the town and port, was lately given in this Journal. The old and new portions of Barcelona are separated by a fine wide boulevard, or promenade, which is called the Rambla, and is agreeably planted with trees, though it was once the sandy bed of a dried-up stream. The cathedral, which is called La Seo, is a handsome old building of mixed Norman and Saracenic architecture, with two high towers, on an elevated site approached by a flight of steps; it was erected in the fourteenth century. Many of the ancient houses, in the narrow and winding streets of the old town, have a picturesque aspect, like some parts of Rouen. Our Artist's sketch is a characteristic example of this kind of street scenery.

SKETCHES IN SPAIN: A STREET OF BARCELONA.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE AT DEANE'S.
Illustrated Price Catalogue, gratis and post-free.
1. Table Knives, Ivory, per doz., 10s., 25s., 35s., 40s.
2. Electro Forks—Table, 20s. to 40s.; Dinner, 10s. to 40s.
3. Paper-Maché Tea Trays, in sets, 21s., 36s., 55s.
4. Electro Tea and Coffee Sets, 43 10s., 47 10s., 412 10s.
5. Dish Covers, in sets—Tin, 23s.; Metal, 65s.; Electro, 412.
6. Electro Cruets, 6 glass—34s., 60s., 80s.
7. Electro Liqueurs, 40s., 60s., 78s., 90s.
8. Lamps—Moderator, Rock Oil, &c., from 7s.
9. Fenders—Bright, 45s. to 115 10s.; Bronze, 3s. 6d. to 65.
10. Bath—Domestic, Fixed, and Travelling.
11. Bedsteads—Brass and Iron, with Bedding.
12. Gashears—2-light, 18s.; 3-do., 25s.; 5-do., 45 6s.
13. Kitcheners, from 3 ft., 23 5s., to 6 ft., 43 1.
14. Kitchen Utensils—Copper, Tin, and Iron.
A discount of 5 per cent for cash payments of £2 and upwards.
Deane and Co., 46, King William-street, London Bridge, E.C.

WOOD TAPESTRY DECORATIONS.
HOWARDS' PATENT.
Wood Tapestry can be applied to all even surfaces, being an adaptation of real wood, in lieu of painting or paperhanging, being beautiful in effect and exceedingly durable.
HOWARD and SONS,
Decorators,
25, 26, and 27, Berners-street, London, W.; and Mansard-buildings, New-street, Birmingham.

CHOLERA.—PURE WATER.—The Last
Improvement.—Dr. Owen says: "The SELF-CLEANING CHARCOAL FILTER, patented by the celebrated LIPSCOMBE, of Temple-bar, is the only one that removes the disgusting sewage found in cistern water."

WATER CUSHIONS for INVALIDS
(HOOPER'S), affording instant relief from pressure, and effectually preventing bed-sores by their even, softness, and elasticity. Illustrated price-list free by post.—Hooper, Manufacturer of Water Mattresses and Water Cushions to the Queen, 7, Pall-mall East, S.W.; and at 45, Grosvenor-street, W.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.
The People's Printing Press, for Authors, Amateurs, the Army and Navy, &c. Prospectuses forwarded on application.
D. G. BERRI, 26, High Holborn, London, W.C.

COLT'S NEW BREECH-LOADING
LARGE-BORE DERINGER PISTOL can be carried in the waistcoat pocket. Shoots accurately, and with great force. Price 50s. New supply of superior Cartridges. Colt's New Breech-Loading Central-Fire Revolvers have the Boxer Cartridge.
Address: Colt's Firearms Company, 14, Pall-mall, London.

NOTICE.—VIENNA EXHIBITION.
TWO FIRST-PRIZE MEDALS
have been awarded
THE LITTLE WANDER SEWING-MACHINE,
for its superiority over all others.
Vide "London Gazette," Aug. 25, 1873.
Complete, £4 4s.
Price lists and all information free.
Chief Office: 4, Great Portland-street, London, W.
Branch Office: 70, East-street, Brighton.

J. and P. COATS' BEST SIX-CORD
COTTON, for Hand or Machine Sewing.

J. and P. COATS' EXTRA MACHINE
GLASS COTTON.

J. and P. COATS' CROCHET or
TATTING COTTON is unsurpassed in quality.
J. and P. Coats' Sewing-Cotton, &c., to be had of all Wholesale and Retail Drapers throughout the United Kingdom.
London Wholesale Warehouse, 50, Wood-street, Chancery-lane.

DON'T BEAT YOUR CARPETS; have them thoroughly cleaned and colours revived. Price 4d. per yard. Bed and Mattress Purifiers. METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYEING COMPANY, 472, New Oxford-street; and 17, Wharf-road, City-road.

SILK DRESSES.—5s., 6d., and 6s. 6d. are now our only prices for DYING or CLEANING any size or quality. METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYEING COMPANY.

FADED CURTAINS DYED equal to new, in a few days, at a moderate charge. Price-lists sent. METROPOLITAN STEAM DYEING and BLEACHING COMPANY, 17, Wharf-road, City-road; and 472, New Oxford-street.

AWAY FROM TOWN for the SEASON.
Have your Carpets, Rugs, Curtains, &c., Cleaned and Colours revived before you leave. The Imperial Steam Laundry Works, Ingestre-road, Kentish-town, London. Estimates free.

COMPAGNIE FRANCAISE (Limited),
Wholesale Manufacturers of Dealers in CHOCOLATE, COCOA, COFFEE (as in France), CONFECTIONERY, &c. Thirty Gold and Silver Medals have been awarded. Every Article warranted pure, of the best quality, and at the lowest possible prices.
To be obtained of first-class Grocers, Confectioners, and others. Factories—Bermundsey New-road, London; and in Paris.

BURN the WESTMINSTER WEDGE-FITTING COMPOSITE CANDLES.
The Best, the Cleanest, the Safest, and in the end the Cheapest. Sold everywhere. Wholesale only of
J. C. and J. FIELD, Upper Marsh, Lambeth, London.

FIELD'S PATENT "OZOKERIT" LAMPDES.
Improved in Colour.
Improved in Burning.
Made in all Sizes, and
Sold Everywhere.

TAMAR INDIEN.—A Laxative, Refreshing, and Medicinal Fruit Liqueur—the immediate Relief and specific Cure of Constipation, Headache, Bile, Hemorrhoids, &c. Tamar (unlike pills and the usual purgatives) is agreeable to take, and never produces irritation. 3s. 6d. per box; postage, 2d. extra.
R. GRILLON, 24, Coleman-street, E.C.

HEALTHY DIGESTION.
Nothing is so important to the human frame as healthy digestive organs, and when they are impaired, the popular and professional remedy is MORSON'S PEPSINE.

Sold as Wine in bottles from 2s., Liqueurs in boxes from 2s. 6d. Globules in bottles from 2s., and as Powder in 1-oz. bottles at 5s. each, by all Chemists and the Manufacturers.
THOMAS MORSON and SONS,
134, Southampton-row, W.C., London.
See name on label.

FRAMPTON'S PILL OF HEALTH.
This excellent Family Medicine is the most effective remedy for indigestion, biliousness and liver complaints, sick headache, loss of appetite, drowsiness, giddiness, spasms, and all disorders of the stomach and bowels; or where an aperient is required nothing can be better adapted.
PERSONS OF A FULL HABIT, who are subject to headache, giddiness, drowsiness, and ringing in the ears, arising from too great a flow of blood to the head, should never be without them, as many dangerous symptoms will be entirely carried off by their timely use.
For FEMALES these Pills are truly excellent, removing all obstructions, the distressing headache so very prevalent, depression of spirits, dulness of sight, nervous affections, blotches, pimples, and sallowness of the skin, and give a healthy bloom to the complexion.
Sold by all Medicine Vendors, at 1s. 11d. and 2s. 9d. per box.

WHELPTON'S PURIFYING PILLS,
used by the public nearly forty years, are purely Vegetable; have proved invaluable in thousands of cases of indigestion, Sick Headache, and in all the Liver Complaints one of the best medicines known.—G. Whelpton and Son, Crane Court, Fleet-street.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE
is warranted to cleanse the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For scrofula, scurvy, skin and blood diseases its effects are irrefragable. In Bottles, 3s. 6d. each; 10s. 6d. each; 15s. 6d. each; of all Chemists. Sent by post to any address for 27 or 134 stamps by the Proprietor, F. J. Clarke, Chemist, Lincoln.

PARR'S LIFE PILLS.

LET ANY PERSON TAKE TWO or THREE of these PILLS occasionally. They at once remove all dangerous obstructions without pain or inconvenience, and produce the state most to be desired—"a sound Mind in a sound Body." Sold by all Chemists.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA, the best remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion; and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

SPECIAL SILK NOTICE.
Black ground Silks, with floral designs, 21 10s. for 14 yards.
Chinese Silks suitable for Dinner Wear, 21 10s. for 14 yards.
English Made Antiques of the best manufacture, at about half price.
Orisille-striped Silks, especially suitable for this season, 21 13s. 6d. the Dress.
The above special lots are unusually cheap.
Patterns Free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

THE BOULOGNE SERGE
(REGISTERED).
USEFUL NOVELTY FOR LADIES' DRESSES,
in all colours and new shades.
Perfect fineness of colour secured to each shade.
21 9s. 6d. the Dress.
Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London, W.

THE BOULOGNE SERGE COSTUME
(REGISTERED).
Ready for Wear, 21 9s. 6d.
Always some hundreds in stock to select from.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London, W.

REGISTERED NOVELTY FOR LADIES' DRESSES.
RUSSIAN CORDED POPLIN (Wool).
A special purchase of this charming Fabric, amounting to 1000 pieces, now ready, in Black and all the new shades of Bronze, Violet des Alpes, Ré-cha, Navy, Ardoise, Grenat, Blue, &c., at 41 9s. 6d. the Extra Full Dress.—Patterns free.

ALSO, IN ALL THE ABOVE COLOURS,
THE RUSSIAN POPLIN COSTUME,
ready for Wear, 22 9s. 6d. to 37s., elegantly made, according to the latest Paris Models. Several hundred always in stock. At PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London.

FOR AUTUMN OR TRAVELLING DRESSES.
RUSSIAN and INVERARY TWEEDS.
In rich Heather Mixtures, from Greys, Ré-cha, Bronze, Violet des Alpes, &c., from 15s. 9d. to 35s. the Dress.
Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London, W.

FOR AUTUMN OR TRAVELLING DRESSES.
SILK TERRY POPLIN.
Popeline d'Hiver, Drap Vierge, Drap d'Italie, and many other Novelties suitable for the present and approaching Season, 21s. to 45s. the Dress.

FOR AUTUMN DRESSES.
YEDDO POPLIN.—ALL WOOL.
A Special Purchase, amounting to upwards of 2000 pieces of this charming Fabric, beautifully soft, well adapted for the present and approaching season, 18s. 6d. the Dress (Patterns free, in Black and all shades of Colour. Specially prepared for PETER ROBINSON, 103, Oxford-street.

IN BLACK, WHITE, AND ALL COLOURS.
VELVET—FINISHED VELVETEENS.
Beautifully Soft Velvet Flee, Fast Black, and in Re-cha, Bronze, Violet, Brown, Green, &c., 2s. 9d. to 4s. 9d. per yard, very wide.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London, W.

The "Leather" Make of Reversible.
YOKOHAMA SILK (Registered).
This splendid novelty in White, Black, and all new Colours, including Ciel d'Italie, Bleu du Shah, Violet des Alpes, Vert de Thé, Vert de Thé, Gris d'Argent, Ardoise Foncé, &c., in 40 in. wide, 28s. 6d. to 21 10s. the Dress, being made expressly for, can be obtained only from.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London.
Patterns free.

FOR EVENING, DINNER, OR WALKING DRESSES.
RICH JAPANESE SILKS.
In White, Black, and forty-six shades of Colour, including the new Ré-cha, Bronze, Vert de Thé, Violet des Alpes, Crème de la Crème, Ardoise, Corail, &c., 20s. 6d. the Dress, or 2s. 4d. per yard. These goods are all of the highest quality. Patterns free.

TULLE, TABLATANE, MUSLIN, OR GRENADINE.
MADE WEDDING and BALL DRESSES.
Now ready, several hundred Robes and Designs in White, Black, and all Colours, from 15s. 6d. to 20s.
The "Dora," a most charming dress, with Fanier, Plumes, and ample trained skirt, 1 guinea—a substantial box included.
The Book of New Illustrations for this Season post-free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London.

WATERPROOF MANTLES,
thoroughly Waterproofed, and in every way suitable for sea-side wear and for travelling, in a variety of New Shapes, and in all the New and Fashionable Tweeds, both in plain colours and all the favourite mixtures.
25s. 6d. to 50s.
The GUINEA WATERPROOF, with or without Sleeves, in all the grey mixtures, both light and dark.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London.

YACHTING JACKETS.
Some beautiful Novelties in this very becoming Jacket are now ready. They are made of the Navy Blue Diagonal Cloth, which resists the weather. From 25s. to 31 10s.

AUTUMN JACKETS.
First delivery of New Goods for the present season, consisting of Velvet Jackets very richly trimmed, varying in price from 5s. to 10s.; and a large collection of high Novelties in Black and Coloured Cloth Jackets, handsomely trimmed. Prices range from 25s. to 60s.
Books and Sheets illustrating the Fashion for this Season are in course of preparation.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London.

NEW TRAVELLING and AUTUMN
COSTUMES, made of the New Woolen Materials. A large Collection, from 25s. 6d. Quilted Satin Skirts, 21s. New Mantles, Polonaises, Beaslines, &c., at most moderate prices.—GASK and GASK, 55 to 58, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

NEW MILLINERY and UNDER-
CLOTHING ROOMS, just opened by GASK and GASK with a large collection of the latest PARISIAN NOVELTIES, which will be sold at the same low price of profit as in the other departments of the House.
58 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

NEW SILK COSTUMES, the Latest
Fashion, made of Rich Black and Coloured French Silks, 5s. to 20s. Costume Silk and Satin Skirts, 25s.
GASK and GASK,
58 to 63, Oxford-street; 1 to 5, Wells-street, London.

JAPANESE SILKS.—The Largest and most varied Stock, chiefly the German make, excellent for wear, at prices hitherto unknown, commencing at 10s. the yard; the same has been sold at 2s. 6d.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge. Patterns post-free.

KNIGHT and CO., Silkmongers and Skirt
Manufacturers, 217, Regent-street.
The "Zephyr" Skirt, wholly satin, the latest novelty, extremely ladylike, and totally distinct from previous designs. Commencing price, 27s. 6d.
The "Guinea" Skirt, wholly Satin, of the full average size, and beautifully quilted. The latest value London.
Quilted, Kilted, and Flounced Satin and Silk Skirts, in the Latest Designs.
Lyons Finished Velveteens, 200 Boxes at less than manufacturers' present prices, ranging from 15s. 6d. to 3s. 6d.
Japanese Silks, "Excellor" finish, in all Colours, 1s. 11d. Satin Striped China Silks in the leading shades, and the worst guaranteed, 3s. 3d. per yard.
Knight and Co., 217, Regent-street, forward patterns post-free.

SILK VELVETS.—An Important Purchase of Silk Mantle Velvets, prices 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., and 5s. 11d.; very rich Lyons ditto, 6s. 11d., 7s. 11d., 8s. 11d., 9s. 11d., and 12s. 11d. per yard. Patterns post-free.
N.B. Particular notice is also invited to a large variety of Ladies' Made-up Skirts, Costumes, Mantles, &c.
Z. SIMPSON and CO., 65 and 66, Farringdon-street, E.C.

AUTUMN SERGE DRESSES.—SEWELL and CO can supply NAVY SERGE, the flannel make, that never shrinks; also a variety of other Serges, from 2s. to 2s. 9d. per yard. Serge dresses made at from 21 10s. to 41 10s.; and a choice of 300 Waterproof Cloaks at 15s. 9d. to 31s. 6d.
N.B. Moore Antiques, the largest Stock in England, price 41 10s. to 51 10s. Black and all colours.

REAL SEALSKIN JACKETS. All sizes
In Real Russian Seal Skin Jackets are now selling at 50 per cent less than in the winter season.—SEWELL and CO., Old Compton-street, and Fifth-street, Soho-square, W.

VELVETEENS. BAKER and CRISP.
1s. 1d.
VELVETEENS. BAKER and CRISP.
to VELVETEENS. BAKER and CRISP.
5s. 6d.
VELVETEENS. BAKER and CRISP.
Patterns free.
The only House in London for the Silk Mole-skin Velveteens.

BAKER and CRISP.
SERGES. THE ROYAL NAVIES.
SERGES. THE PUREST ESTAMENES.
SERGES. THE PLIMSOLL SERGES.
SERGES. THE GOVERNMENT SERGES.
SERGES. THE TROUVILLE SERGES.
SERGES. THE WEST OF ENGLAND.
SERGES. ALL THE SO-CALLED.
1s. to 7s. 6d. yard.
(Registered Serge). Patterns free.

BLACK SILKS. BAKER and CRISP.
1s. 11d.
BLACK SILKS. TO BAKER and CRISP.
15s. 6d.
BLACK SILKS. BAKER and CRISP.
yard.
Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

FANCY SILKS. BAKER and CRISP.
21s.
PLAIN SILKS. BAKER and CRISP.
to
JAPANESE SILKS. BAKER and CRISP.
21s.
Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

WATERPROOF CLOAKS, THE INDISPENSABLE.
WATERPROOF CLOAKS, THE INVERARY.
WATERPROOF CLOAKS, THE ALPINE TOURIST.
14s. 9d. to 25s. 6d.
Engravings free.
BAKER and CRISP.

THE TIME TO BUY
SEALSKIN JACKETS. BAKER and CRISP.
6s.
SEALSKIN JACKETS. BAKER and CRISP.
8s.
SEALSKIN JACKETS. BAKER and CRISP.
10s.
SEALSKIN JACKETS. BAKER and CRISP.
15s.

SATIN SKIRTS. BAKER and CRISP.
SILK SKIRTS. BAKER and CRISP.
KILTED SKIRTS. BAKER and CRISP.
QUILTED SKIRTS. BAKER and CRISP.
Engravings free.

MOURNING FABRICS, 6d. to BAKER and CRISP.
MOURNING FABRICS, 2s. 6d. BAKER and CRISP.
MOURNING FABRICS, yard. BAKER and CRISP.
Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

NEW AUTUMN FABRICS, 10s. 6d. BAKER and CRISP.
NEW AUTUMN FABRICS, to BAKER and CRISP.
NEW AUTUMN FABRICS, BAKER and CRISP.
NEW AUTUMN FABRICS, 35s. BAKER and CRISP.
Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

A LADY'S COSTUME.—The PLIMSOLL
SERGES, 25s. 6d.
A PERFECT LADY'S DRESS.—The
TROUVILLE COSTUME, 25s. 6d.
SEASIDE or MOUNTAIN.—The MARVELLOUS COSTUME, 35s. 6d.
ROAD or RAIL.—The PARAY-LE-
MONIAL, 25s.
Engravings free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

MARVELS OF CHEAPNESS.
5000 ROMAN SASHES,
that were 12s. 9d. each, now selling for 3s. 11d.; sent for two extra stamps. 100 dozen Two-Button Kid Gloves, clearing out at 1s. 9d. per pair, any size. 100 dozen of Embroidered Hemmed-Editch Handkerchiefs, at 3s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. the half dozen. 300 odd Lace Handkerchiefs, sent for 1s. each. 2000 real Shetland Shawls, 2s. 11d. each, all colours; worth 4s. 11d. All sent free for two extra stamps to BAKER and CRISP, Regent-street.

HENRY GLAVES
CHEAP BLACK SILKS.
A good, serviceable Black Silk, Gros Grain, or Glace, 14 yards for £2 1s. 6d., or 2s. 11d. a yard.
Gros Grain of superior quality.
Drap de Paris, Toppellers make, 3s. 11d. a yard.
Rich Cachemire de Lyons, Draps de France, Goussier make, 4s. 11d. a yard.
Super Draps d'Italie, 5s. 11d. a yard.
Ladies are invited to send for patterns to compare.
535 to 537, New Oxford-street.

HENRY GLAVES
NEW AUTUMN DRESSES.
Roulette Poplins,
all fine and delicate shades,
25 in. wide, 1s. 2s. 6d. a yard;
25 in. wide, 1s. 4d. a yard.
Roulette Satin Laine Raye,
25 in. wide, 1s. 4d. a yard, in rare and beautiful tints.
Fine French Merinos,
42 in. wide, 1s. 11d. a yard.
A full set of Patterns of any of these goods are now ready to be sent post-free.
535 to 537, New Oxford-street.

HENRY GLAVE
is now offering several thousand yards of Rich SILK EPINGLE at 1s. 11d. a yard, having the appearance of the richest silk.—New Colours post-free.
535 to 537, New Oxford-street.

MARRIAGE TROUSSEAUX and
LAVETTES.—CHRISTIAN and RATHBONE, Ready-made Linen Warehousemen and Hoiers to her Majesty and H.H.H. the Princess of Wales, 2, Wigmore-street, W.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY beg to invite special attention to the new Mourning Department of their Establishment, consisting of every article suitable for First and Family Mourning, either made up and ready for wear, or materials laid out in the piece, cut by the yard, according to the wishes of the purchaser.
JAYS.

JANUS CORD.
An inexpensive and remarkably good texture for Mourning wear. Janus Cord is cut from the piece to any required length. Dresses of the same material are also kept made up, trimmed with Crape, for every degree of Mourning, at about 21 10s. the Dress.
JAYS.

MOURNING.—BLACK SILK COSTUMES
Ready Made, and trimmed either with or without Crape.
JAYS.

MANTLES.—Messrs. JAY beg to assure their patrons and the public that the reputation of their House for French Mantles is maintained by a succession of novelties which are constantly imported from the first Houses in Paris.
JAYS.

THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
243, 245, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street, W.

BURGESS, DRESS FACTOR and IMPOINTER, 65, OXFORD STREET.
R.Y.C. SERGES, in all the new autumn Colours, from 1s. per yard.

NAVY BLUE SERGE COSTUME,
tastefully, elegantly, and well made, carefully packed, and sent to any part upon receipt of P.O. order for 25s. 6d.
BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

VELVETEENS! VELVETEENS!
The Lyons and French-made Fine Silks which are finer, closer, and more securely fastened, with elastic, strong, and enduring, giving it the appearance of the rich velvet. 1s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free.

FRENCH MERINOS, of the wide width, wool-dyed, fast colours, in all the fashionable tints, from 1s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free. All the colours are dyed to our own order.
GEO. BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

FLOWERS, PRETTY FLOWERS.—Bridal
Bouquets from 15s.; Bridesmaids and other Bouquets from 5s. All kinds of Floral Decorations. Country orders carefully executed.
W. HOOPER, 85, Oxford-street, London, W.

EASE AND ELEGANCE IN
DRESSMAKING.—COSTUMES elegantly made up from the best materials from the country executed if a pattern be sent. Madame ELLIOT, 5, Great Portland-street, Regent-circus.

"For the rain it raineth every day."—Shakespeare.

SANITARY CLOTH PALETOTS for MEN and CLOAKS for LADIES, throw off rain, and do not restrain perspiration. Gold Medal awarded for Russia, 1872; also, the Grand Medal of Merit, Vienna Exhibition, 1873.—Patented by DONALD NICOLL and CO., of Frouse, and Paternoster-row, London; and sold retail, with other First-Class Clothing for Gentlemen and Boys, by FRANK FULLER and CO., Nos. 61 and 62, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING BANDS, for use before and after Accouchement.
Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANTE, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

TO MOTHERS and INVALIDS.—ELASTIC
SILK ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, of very superior make and construction, for Debility, Corpulency, &c. Directions for Self-Measurement, and prices by post, free.—ELAM, 196, Oxford-street.

PALE and GOLDEN HAIR.—SOL
AURINE, in one or two days produces that pretty tint now so much admired. Perfectly free from objectionable ingredients. 5s. 6d.—ALEX. ROSS, 248, High Holborn, London.

ALEX. ROSS'S GREAT HAIR-
RESTORER.—Grey Hair becomes its Original Colour by using this wonderful Restorer. Large Bottles, 3s. 6d.; sent for Post Office order. The best possible.—ALEX. ROSS, 248, High Holborn, London.

HAIR DYE.—BATCHELORS'
INSTANTANEOUS COLUMBIAN, New York Original Packages, the best in the world, black or brown. The only one that removes the evil effects of bad dyes. 6s. 6d., 7s., and 10s., of all Perfumers and Chemists.—Wholesale, B. HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR
RESTORED by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. Price 10s. 6d. Testimonials post-free.—HOVENDEN, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S
AURICOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Guaranteed not to injure the hair. Price 6s. 6d., and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, B. HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.; London; Phild and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris; 21, Graben, Vienna; 44, Rue des Longs Chariots, Brussels; Gaskell, Hazard, and Co., Fifth Avenue, Broadway, New York.

DOES YOUR HAIR TURN GREY?
Then use HERRING'S PATENT MAGNETIC BRUSHES and COMBS. Brushes, 10s. and 15s. each. Combs, 2s. 6d., 3s. 7d., 10s., 15s., and 20s. each. Pamphlets upon application.—5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.; and of all Perfumers.

DUCHESS MARIA COIFFURE.—A
Novel Arrangement of Long Hair, which enables a Lady to dress in any desired style. The design sent on receipt of stamped envelope.—24, Piccadilly, and 6, Belgrave Mansions, S.W.

LADIES' ORNAMENTAL HAIR.
UNWIN and ALBERT, Court Hairdressers, 24, Piccadilly, and 6, Belgrave Mansions, London, invite an inspection of their Ladies' Fenders and Coverings for Hair Dressings, perfect copies of nature.

THE FASHION.—Coils of Long Hair and High Spanish Combs, with Curl falling on the Nape. UNWIN and ALBERT supply the Coils, 28 in. long, for 21s.; Combs, 2s.; Curls, 10s. 6d., on receipt of P.O. order.
24, Piccadilly; and 6, Belgrave Mansions, S.W.

DENTOCRETE.—The new Soluble
TOOTH POWDER TABLETS.
price 2s. 6d. per box, sent on receipt of a stamped envelope, and a list of all Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale, Bristley and Sons; Hovenenden and Sons; and K. C. ROSE, Proprietor, 38, Old Kent-road, E.C. Sample box free for four stamps.

A LADY, HAVING A RECIPE
of a most simple nature, that will at once safely remove SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS, preventing their reappearance, will have pleasure in forwarding it upon application to MRS. BLACKWELL, 1, Victoria Villa, Thornton-heath, Surrey.

DENTIFRICE WATER,
FOR THE TEETH and BREATH.
preserves and whitens the Teeth, imparts a sweetness to the Breath, destroys the colour of Tobacco, &c., and leaves a peculiarly delicate and refreshing sense of coolness in the mouth. See Testimonials. In Bottles, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 3s. 6d.
Prepared only by Thompson and Capper, Homeopathic Chemists, 55, Bold-street, Liverpool; 11, 12, and 13, by Chemists and Perfumers generally; London: May and Sons, Burghole, Burdette and Co., &c.; Manchester: Hoare, Maycock and Co.; Bradford: Kelly, Middleton—London: New York: Parth and Co., 107, Fulton-st

NEW MUSIC.

FRIDOLIN. A Dramatic Cantata, composed by ALBERTO RANDEGGER, performed at the Birmingham Festival with immense success. The Score Complete, for Voice and Piano, paper cover 2s. 6d. Ditto, ditto, bound in cloth 3s. 6d. "Repose and Peace" (Song by Madame Sherrington) 2s. 6d. "Wildest Confession" (Song by Mr. Santley) 2s. 6d. PIANOFORTE. Hava's Three Subjects from "Fridolin" 2s. 6d. No. 1. Hunting Chorus. 2. Chorus of Handmaidens. 3. Dance and Chorus of Villagers. N.B.—The separate Chorus and Orchestra Parts may also be had, and other Pianoforte arrangements are in the press. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

LA BELLE HELENE. Performed at the Alhambra with immense success. Opera complete, Voice and Piano 12s. Opera, for Piano Solo 6s. Belle Heleene Waltz, Strauss 4s. Belle Heleene Quadrille, Strauss 4s. Fantasia by Kuhl 4s. Fantasia by Farfänger 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BOURREE for the Pianoforte, composed by CORNFORD DICK. Price 2s. "A most charming and original composition." CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES. SUNSHINE. Overture. Illustrated 2s. IVY LEAVES. Polka. Illustrated 2s. HAWTHORN BLOSSOM. Petit Morceau. Illustrated 2s. MOONLIT STREAM. Morceau à Salon. Illustrated 2s. ALPINE KCHOES. Reminiscence. Illustrated 2s. Post-free, 1s. 6d. each. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LOUISA GRAY'S NEW SONGS. CHANGED. 4s. BLIND GIRL'S DREAM. 4s. IT WAS EARLY IN THE SPRINGTIME. 2s. Post-free for half price. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW MARCH ROMAINE. Companion piece to the celebrated "Silver Trumpets." Composed expressly for the Piano. Price 4s. Post-free, 2s. (with optional obbligato), or Harmonium, 2s. Piano Duo, 4s. Full Orchestra, 2s. 6d. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM. ORIGINAL VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments in which it is written." CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES. CHAPPELL and Co. have an immense stock of Secondhand Pianofortes by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Chappell, and other good makers, just returned from hire, which they can offer at exceptionally low prices. Discount for cash. 50, New Bond-street, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE. In Canadian Walnut or Mahogany Case. Price TWENTY GUINEAS. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. It has the merit of standing well in tune, and is capable of enduring hardest practice without going out of order. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT PIANINO. With Folding Keyboard, Check Action, Trichord Treble, in Solid Mahogany or Black Canadian Walnut Case. THIRTY GUINEAS, or in Maple, THIRTY-FIVE GUINEAS. Constructed for Ships' Cabins, to occupy the smallest possible space, and to stand the damp of a sea voyage; the back is strengthened with iron bars and metal plates, and the whole of the mechanism is of the best quality. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DULCIANA ORGAN HARMONIUM. by Alexander. This New Instrument is especially adapted to the Drawing-Room. It has the sweetest tone possible, combining the soft dulciana sound of the organ, and, by a new patent air chest, is free from the slightest harshness. Price, 3 stops, oak, 10 gu.; mahogany, 12 gu.; rosewood, 14 gu. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S HARMONIUMS. for SALE, from 6 gu. to 110 gu. Alexander, Wholesale Agents Illustrated Catalogues on application. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM. Solid Oak Case, Five Octaves, and Two Foot-Boards. The ever-increasing musical culture in all classes of society has created a demand for free reed instruments of a superior quality to those hitherto manufactured. The instruments now offered to the public will be found devoid of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable as regards tone. This end has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the quality rich and organ-like. Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by having the bellows. The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect and without extra cost. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

RECOMMENDED BY ALL THE PROFESSORS. THE DIGITORIUM (a small Dumb Piano).—This remarkable invention materially assists every person to play and become perfect on the Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium, by strengthening and rendering the fingers independent in an incredibly short time; and can now be had (price 12s.; or, with ivory keys, 18s.) of the sole Manufacturers, CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD. Oratorio. Performed at the Birmingham Festival. Paper cover, cloth back, 10s. 6d.; cloth boards, 12s. 6d.; net price, 12s. 6d. CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

SONGS IN NEMESIS. By H. B. FARNIE. THE LANGUAGE OF LOVE (Polyglot Ballad). 4s. Sung (and endorsed nightly) by Mr. Edward Terry. DON'T MAKE ME LAUGH (the Tickling Song). 4s. Sung with most rapturous applause by Miss Glenda. WHAT ARE A LADY'S WANTS TO-DAY? 4s. Sung by Miss Nellie Bromley. WILL YOU TAKE MY ARM (the Tiffin Song). 4s. Sung by Messrs. Terry, Cox, &c. J. B. CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

NEMESIS DANCE MUSIC. Waltzes, by Cotta. Solo, 4s.; and Duo, 4s. Quadrilles, by Fitzgerald. Solo, 4s.; Duo, 4s. Galop, by Fitzgerald. Solo, 4s.; Duo, 4s. All elegantly illustrated. Half price and post-free. J. B. CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

C'EST L'ESPAGNE (in the South). OFFENBACH. Sung by Madame Trebelli, Madame Demerle-Lablaiche, Mdlle. Dolara, Madame Osborne Williams, and Mdlle. de Grauderville; and by all with the greatest applause. Sent half price and post-free. J. B. CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

MUSIC HALF PRICE AND POST-FREE.—The largest and most varied stock of Music, by all the principal Publishers. CHAMBER and Co. undertake to forward, by return of post (on receipt of remittance), all sheet music ordered from them, no matter by whom published, at half price and post-free. CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

CHARLES HALLE'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. Sections 1, 2, and 3. Elementary, Easy, and Moderately Difficult; also, eight numbers of Section 4, Difficult, are now ready. Prospectuses, containing full particulars and prices, may be had of FORTNTH BROTHERS, London, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street.

THE BOY AND THE BROOK. New Song. By J. L. HATTON; the words by Longfellow. "One of Mr. Hatton's best compositions, and must become popular." Price 4s.; sent free for 24 stamps. BARNFORD and Son, 3, Princes-street, Oxford-circus.

NEW MUSIC.

Price 2s. 6d. each volume, paper; 4s. cloth, gilt edges. ROYAL EDITION OF NATIONAL SONGS. THE SONGS OF ENGLAND. Edited by J. L. HATTON. A Collection of 100 Songs. THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND. Edited by BROWN and PITTMAN. A Collection of 150 Songs. THE SONGS OF IRELAND. Edited by MOLLOY. A Collection of 100 Songs, including the best of Moore's Melodies. THE SONGS OF WALES. Edited by BRINLEY RICHARDS. A Collection of 60 Songs, with Welsh and English words. Also, an Extra Edition of the Four Volumes, splendidly bound in half morocco, gilt edges, price 7s. 6d. each. BARNFORD and Co., London; also of all Musicellers and Booksellers, and at the Railway Stations.

MADAME ANGOT QUADRILLE and WALTZ. By CHARLES COOTE. On Lecocq's Celebrated Comic Opera. Performed at the State Opera. Price 4s. each. BARNFORD and Co., London-street.

MADAME ANGOT. By Kuhe and Lindley Sloper. Two Fantasies for the Pianoforte, on LECOCQ'S Popular Opera. Price 4s. each. BARNFORD and Co., London-street.

NEW SONG. Composed by SANTLEY.—SHORT YEAR AGO. Song. Composed expressly for Edward Lloyd by CHARLES SANTLEY. Price 4s. BARNFORD and Co., London-street.

ALFRED SCOTT GATTY'S SONGS. A HAPPY YEAR AGO. (This day.) 2s. SUNSHINE AFTER RAIN. Words by John Galsworthy. 2s. ELEGANCE. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. 4s. VOICES OF THE PAST. Sung by Madame Patey. 4s. UNPOKEN. Sung by Madame Patey. 4s. THE GALLANTS OF ENGLAND. A Song for Business. 4s. BARNFORD and Co., London-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONGS. ONCE AGAIN. Sung by Sims Reeves. GOLDEN DAYS. Sung by Madame Patey. A LIFE THAT LIVES FOR YOU. Sung by Mr. Santley. LOOKING FORWARD. Sung by Miss Edith Wynne. LOOKING BACK. Sung by Madame Patey. BIRDS IN THE NIGHT. Sung by Madame Sherrington. Post-free, 24 stamps each, from BARNFORD and Co., London-street.

F. H. COWEN'S NEW SONGS. IT WAS A DREAM. Sung by Mdlle. Titiens. 4s. MARIE. Sung by Mdlle. Marie Rom. 4s. SERENADE. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. 4s. MARGUERITE. Sung by Madame Trebelli. 4s. "A song of genuine beauty."—Times. BARNFORD and Co., London-street.

MOLLOY'S POPULAR SONGS. SO THE STORY GOES. Sung by Miss Edith Wynne. CLOCHETTE. Sung by Madame Sherrington. TRADY O'FLINN. Sung by Madame Sherrington. THE VAGABOND. Sung by Mr. Santley. THE OLD COTTAGE CLOCK. Sung by Miss R. Wynne. KILTY REASON. Sung by Madame Sherrington. Price 4s. each.

Price 1s. elegantly bound, gilt edges. ALBUM OF PIANOFORTE DUETS. Containing the following complete sets of Duets: Piano, full music size, 30 pages. 1. The Dance Waltz. 2. The Dance Waltz. 3. The Dance Waltz. 4. The Dance Waltz. 5. The Dance Waltz. 6. The Dance Waltz. 7. The Dance Waltz. 8. The Dance Waltz. 9. The Dance Waltz. 10. The Dance Waltz. 11. The Dance Waltz. 12. The Dance Waltz. 13. The Dance Waltz. 14. The Dance Waltz. 15. The Dance Waltz. 16. The Dance Waltz. 17. The Dance Waltz. 18. The Dance Waltz. 19. The Dance Waltz. 20. The Dance Waltz. 21. The Dance Waltz. 22. The Dance Waltz. 23. The Dance Waltz. 24. The Dance Waltz. 25. The Dance Waltz. 26. The Dance Waltz. 27. The Dance Waltz. 28. The Dance Waltz. 29. The Dance Waltz. 30. The Dance Waltz. 31. The Dance Waltz. 32. The Dance Waltz. 33. The Dance Waltz. 34. The Dance Waltz. 35. The Dance Waltz. 36. The Dance Waltz. 37. The Dance Waltz. 38. The Dance Waltz. 39. The Dance Waltz. 40. The Dance Waltz. 41. The Dance Waltz. 42. The Dance Waltz. 43. The Dance Waltz. 44. The Dance Waltz. 45. The Dance Waltz. 46. The Dance Waltz. 47. The Dance Waltz. 48. The Dance Waltz. 49. The Dance Waltz. 50. The Dance Waltz. 51. The Dance Waltz. 52. The Dance Waltz. 53. The Dance Waltz. 54. The Dance Waltz. 55. The Dance Waltz. 56. The Dance Waltz. 57. The Dance Waltz. 58. The Dance Waltz. 59. The Dance Waltz. 60. The Dance Waltz. 61. The Dance Waltz. 62. The Dance Waltz. 63. The Dance Waltz. 64. The Dance Waltz. 65. The Dance Waltz. 66. The Dance Waltz. 67. The Dance Waltz. 68. The Dance Waltz. 69. The Dance Waltz. 70. The Dance Waltz. 71. The Dance Waltz. 72. The Dance Waltz. 73. The Dance Waltz. 74. The Dance Waltz. 75. The Dance Waltz. 76. The Dance Waltz. 77. The Dance Waltz. 78. The Dance Waltz. 79. The Dance Waltz. 80. The Dance Waltz. 81. The Dance Waltz. 82. The Dance Waltz. 83. The Dance Waltz. 84. The Dance Waltz. 85. The Dance Waltz. 86. The Dance Waltz. 87. The Dance Waltz. 88. The Dance Waltz. 89. The Dance Waltz. 90. The Dance Waltz. 91. The Dance Waltz. 92. The Dance Waltz. 93. The Dance Waltz. 94. The Dance Waltz. 95. The Dance Waltz. 96. The Dance Waltz. 97. The Dance Waltz. 98. The Dance Waltz. 99. The Dance Waltz. 100. The Dance Waltz. 101. The Dance Waltz. 102. The Dance Waltz. 103. The Dance Waltz. 104. The Dance Waltz. 105. The Dance Waltz. 106. The Dance Waltz. 107. The Dance Waltz. 108. The Dance Waltz. 109. The Dance Waltz. 110. The Dance Waltz. 111. The Dance Waltz. 112. The Dance Waltz. 113. The Dance Waltz. 114. The Dance Waltz. 115. The Dance Waltz. 116. The Dance Waltz. 117. The Dance Waltz. 118. The Dance Waltz. 119. The Dance Waltz. 120. The Dance Waltz. 121. The Dance Waltz. 122. The Dance Waltz. 123. The Dance Waltz. 124. The Dance Waltz. 125. The Dance Waltz. 126. The Dance Waltz. 127. The Dance Waltz. 128. The Dance Waltz. 129. The Dance Waltz. 130. The Dance Waltz. 131. The Dance Waltz. 132. The Dance Waltz. 133. The Dance Waltz. 134. The Dance Waltz. 135. The Dance Waltz. 136. The Dance Waltz. 137. The Dance Waltz. 138. The Dance Waltz. 139. The Dance Waltz. 140. The Dance Waltz. 141. The Dance Waltz. 142. The Dance Waltz. 143. The Dance Waltz. 144. The Dance Waltz. 145. The Dance Waltz. 146. The Dance Waltz. 147. The Dance Waltz. 148. The Dance Waltz. 149. The Dance Waltz. 150. The Dance Waltz. 151. The Dance Waltz. 152. The Dance Waltz. 153. The Dance Waltz. 154. The Dance Waltz. 155. The Dance Waltz. 156. The Dance Waltz. 157. The Dance Waltz. 158. The Dance Waltz. 159. The Dance Waltz. 160. The Dance Waltz. 161. The Dance Waltz. 162. The Dance Waltz. 163. The Dance Waltz. 164. The Dance Waltz. 165. The Dance Waltz. 166. The Dance Waltz. 167. The Dance Waltz. 168. The Dance Waltz. 169. The Dance Waltz. 170. The Dance Waltz. 171. The Dance Waltz. 172. The Dance Waltz. 173. The Dance Waltz. 174. The Dance Waltz. 175. The Dance Waltz. 176. The Dance Waltz. 177. The Dance Waltz. 178. The Dance Waltz. 179. The Dance Waltz. 180. The Dance Waltz. 181. The Dance Waltz. 182. The Dance Waltz. 183. The Dance Waltz. 184. The Dance Waltz. 185. The Dance Waltz. 186. The Dance Waltz. 187. The Dance Waltz. 188. The Dance Waltz. 189. The Dance Waltz. 190. The Dance Waltz. 191. The Dance Waltz. 192. The Dance Waltz. 193. The Dance Waltz. 194. The Dance Waltz. 195. The Dance Waltz. 196. The Dance Waltz. 197. The Dance Waltz. 198. The Dance Waltz. 199. The Dance Waltz. 200. The Dance Waltz. 201. The Dance Waltz. 202. The Dance Waltz. 203. The Dance Waltz. 204. The Dance Waltz. 205. The Dance Waltz. 206. The Dance Waltz. 207. The Dance Waltz. 208. The Dance Waltz. 209. The Dance Waltz. 210. The Dance Waltz. 211. The Dance Waltz. 212. The Dance Waltz. 213. The Dance Waltz. 214. The Dance Waltz. 215. The Dance Waltz. 216. The Dance Waltz. 217. The Dance Waltz. 218. The Dance Waltz. 219. The Dance Waltz. 220. The Dance Waltz. 221. The Dance Waltz. 222. The Dance Waltz. 223. The Dance Waltz. 224. The Dance Waltz. 225. The Dance Waltz. 226. The Dance Waltz. 227. The Dance Waltz. 228. The Dance Waltz. 229. The Dance Waltz. 230. The Dance Waltz. 231. The Dance Waltz. 232. The Dance Waltz. 233. The Dance Waltz. 234. The Dance Waltz. 235. The Dance Waltz. 236. The Dance Waltz. 237. The Dance Waltz. 238. The Dance Waltz. 239. The Dance Waltz. 240. The Dance Waltz. 241. The Dance Waltz. 242. The Dance Waltz. 243. The Dance Waltz. 244. The Dance Waltz. 245. The Dance Waltz. 246. The Dance Waltz. 247. The Dance Waltz. 248. The Dance Waltz. 249. The Dance Waltz. 250. The Dance Waltz. 251. The Dance Waltz. 252. The Dance Waltz. 253. The Dance Waltz. 254. The Dance Waltz. 255. The Dance Waltz. 256. The Dance Waltz. 257. The Dance Waltz. 258. The Dance Waltz. 259. The Dance Waltz. 260. The Dance Waltz. 261. The Dance Waltz. 262. The Dance Waltz. 263. The Dance Waltz. 264. The Dance Waltz. 265. The Dance Waltz. 266. The Dance Waltz. 267. The Dance Waltz. 268. The Dance Waltz. 269. The Dance Waltz. 270. The Dance Waltz. 271. The Dance Waltz. 272. The Dance Waltz. 273. The Dance Waltz. 274. The Dance Waltz. 275. The Dance Waltz. 276. The Dance Waltz. 277. The Dance Waltz. 278. The Dance Waltz. 279. The Dance Waltz. 280. The Dance Waltz. 281. The Dance Waltz. 282. The Dance Waltz. 283. The Dance Waltz. 284. The Dance Waltz. 285. The Dance Waltz. 286. The Dance Waltz. 287. The Dance Waltz. 288. The Dance Waltz. 289. The Dance Waltz. 290. The Dance Waltz. 291. The Dance Waltz. 292. The Dance Waltz. 293. The Dance Waltz. 294. The Dance Waltz. 295. The Dance Waltz. 296. The Dance Waltz. 297. The Dance Waltz. 298. The Dance Waltz. 299. The Dance Waltz. 300. The Dance Waltz. 301. The Dance Waltz. 302. The Dance Waltz. 303. The Dance Waltz. 304. The Dance Waltz. 305. The Dance Waltz. 306. The Dance Waltz. 307. The Dance Waltz. 308. The Dance Waltz. 309. The Dance Waltz. 310. The Dance Waltz. 311. The Dance Waltz. 312. The Dance Waltz. 313. The Dance Waltz. 314. The Dance Waltz. 315. The Dance Waltz. 316. The Dance Waltz. 317. The Dance Waltz. 318. The Dance Waltz. 319. The Dance Waltz. 320. The Dance Waltz. 321. The Dance Waltz. 322. The Dance Waltz. 323. The Dance Waltz. 324. The Dance Waltz. 325. The Dance Waltz. 326. The Dance Waltz. 327. The Dance Waltz. 328. The Dance Waltz. 329. The Dance Waltz. 330. The Dance Waltz. 331. The Dance Waltz. 332. The Dance Waltz. 333. The Dance Waltz. 334. The Dance Waltz. 335. The Dance Waltz. 336. The Dance Waltz. 337. The Dance Waltz. 338. The Dance Waltz. 339. The Dance Waltz. 340. The Dance Waltz. 341. The Dance Waltz. 342. The Dance Waltz. 343. The Dance Waltz. 344. The Dance Waltz. 345. The Dance Waltz. 346. The Dance Waltz. 347. The Dance Waltz. 348. The Dance Waltz. 349. The Dance Waltz. 350. The Dance Waltz. 351. The Dance Waltz. 352. The Dance Waltz. 353. The Dance Waltz. 354. The Dance Waltz. 355. The Dance Waltz. 356. The Dance Waltz. 357. The Dance Waltz. 358. The Dance Waltz. 359. The Dance Waltz. 360. The Dance Waltz. 361. The Dance Waltz. 362. The Dance Waltz. 363. The Dance Waltz. 364. The Dance Waltz. 365. The Dance Waltz. 366. The Dance Waltz. 367. The Dance Waltz. 368. The Dance Waltz. 369. The Dance Waltz. 370. The Dance Waltz. 371. The Dance Waltz. 372. The Dance Waltz. 373. The Dance Waltz. 374. The Dance Waltz. 375. The Dance Waltz. 376. The Dance Waltz. 377. The Dance Waltz. 378. The Dance Waltz. 379. The Dance Waltz. 380. The Dance Waltz. 381. The Dance Waltz. 382. The Dance Waltz. 383. The Dance Waltz. 384. The Dance Waltz. 385. The Dance Waltz. 386. The Dance Waltz. 387. The Dance Waltz. 388. The Dance Waltz. 389. The Dance Waltz. 390. The Dance Waltz. 391. The Dance Waltz. 392. The Dance Waltz. 393. The Dance Waltz. 394. The Dance Waltz. 395. The Dance Waltz. 396. The Dance Waltz. 397. The Dance Waltz. 398. The Dance Waltz. 399. The Dance Waltz. 400. The Dance Waltz. 401. The Dance Waltz. 402. The Dance Waltz. 403. The Dance Waltz. 404. The Dance Waltz. 405. The Dance Waltz. 406. The Dance Waltz. 407. The Dance Waltz. 408. The Dance Waltz. 409. The Dance Waltz. 410. The Dance Waltz. 411. The Dance Waltz. 412. The Dance Waltz. 413. The Dance Waltz. 414. The Dance Waltz. 415. The Dance Waltz. 416. The Dance Waltz. 417. The Dance Waltz. 418. The Dance Waltz. 419. The Dance Waltz. 420. The Dance Waltz. 421. The Dance Waltz. 422. The Dance Waltz. 423. The Dance Waltz. 424. The Dance Waltz. 425. The Dance Waltz. 426. The Dance Waltz. 427. The Dance Waltz. 428. The Dance Waltz. 429. The Dance Waltz. 430. The Dance Waltz. 431. The Dance Waltz. 432. The Dance Waltz. 433. The Dance Waltz. 434. The Dance Waltz. 435. The Dance Waltz. 436. The Dance Waltz. 437. The Dance Waltz. 438. The Dance Waltz. 439. The Dance Waltz. 440. The Dance Waltz. 441. The Dance Waltz. 442. The Dance Waltz. 443. The Dance Waltz. 444. The Dance Waltz. 445. The Dance Waltz. 446. The Dance Waltz. 447. The Dance Waltz. 448. The Dance Waltz. 449. The Dance Waltz. 450. The Dance Waltz. 451. The Dance Waltz. 452. The Dance Waltz. 453. The Dance Waltz. 454. The Dance Waltz. 455. The Dance Waltz. 456. The Dance Waltz. 457. The Dance Waltz. 458. The Dance Waltz. 459. The Dance Waltz. 460. The Dance Waltz. 461. The Dance Waltz. 462. The Dance Waltz. 463. The Dance Waltz. 464. The Dance Waltz. 465. The Dance Waltz. 466. The Dance Waltz. 467. The Dance Waltz. 468. The Dance Waltz. 469. The Dance Waltz. 470. The Dance Waltz. 471. The Dance Waltz. 472. The Dance Waltz. 473. The Dance Waltz. 474. The Dance Waltz. 475. The Dance Waltz. 476. The Dance Waltz. 477. The Dance Waltz. 478. The Dance Waltz. 479. The Dance Waltz. 480. The Dance Waltz. 481. The Dance Waltz. 482. The Dance Waltz. 483. The Dance Waltz. 484. The Dance Waltz. 485. The Dance Waltz. 486. The Dance Waltz. 487. The Dance Waltz. 488. The Dance Waltz. 489. The Dance Waltz. 490. The Dance Waltz. 491. The Dance Waltz. 492. The Dance Waltz. 493. The Dance Waltz. 494. The Dance Waltz. 495. The Dance Waltz. 496. The Dance Waltz. 497. The Dance Waltz. 498. The Dance Waltz. 499. The Dance Waltz. 500. The Dance Waltz. 501. The Dance Waltz. 502. The Dance Waltz. 503. The Dance Waltz. 504. The Dance Waltz. 505. The Dance Waltz. 506. The Dance Waltz. 507. The Dance Waltz. 508. The Dance Waltz. 509. The Dance Waltz. 510. The Dance Waltz. 511. The Dance Waltz. 512. The Dance Waltz. 513. The Dance Waltz. 514. The Dance Waltz. 515. The Dance Waltz. 516. The Dance Waltz. 517. The Dance Waltz. 518. The Dance Waltz. 519. The Dance Waltz. 520. The Dance Waltz. 521. The Dance Waltz. 522. The Dance Waltz. 523. The Dance Waltz. 524. The Dance Waltz. 525. The Dance Waltz. 526. The Dance Waltz. 527. The Dance Waltz. 528. The Dance Waltz. 529. The Dance Waltz. 530. The Dance Waltz. 531. The Dance Waltz. 532. The Dance Waltz. 533. The Dance Waltz. 534. The Dance Waltz. 535. The Dance Waltz. 536. The Dance Waltz. 537. The Dance Waltz. 538. The Dance Waltz. 539. The Dance Waltz. 540. The Dance Waltz. 541. The Dance Waltz. 542. The Dance Waltz. 543. The Dance Waltz. 544. The Dance Waltz. 545. The Dance Waltz. 546. The Dance Waltz. 547. The Dance Waltz. 548. The Dance Waltz. 549. The Dance Waltz. 550. The Dance Waltz. 551. The Dance Waltz. 552. The Dance Waltz. 553. The Dance Waltz. 554. The Dance Waltz. 555. The Dance Waltz. 556. The Dance Waltz. 557. The Dance Waltz. 558. The Dance Waltz. 559. The Dance Waltz. 560. The Dance Waltz. 561. The Dance Waltz. 562. The Dance Waltz. 563. The Dance Waltz. 564. The Dance Waltz. 565. The Dance Waltz. 566. The Dance Waltz. 567. The Dance Waltz. 568. The Dance Waltz. 569. The Dance Waltz. 570. The Dance Waltz. 571. The Dance Waltz. 572. The Dance Waltz. 573. The Dance Waltz. 574. The Dance Waltz. 575. The Dance Waltz. 576. The Dance Waltz. 577. The Dance Waltz. 578. The Dance Waltz. 579. The Dance Waltz. 580. The Dance Waltz. 581. The Dance Waltz. 582. The Dance Waltz. 583. The Dance Waltz. 584. The Dance Waltz. 585. The Dance Waltz. 586. The Dance Waltz. 587. The Dance Waltz. 588. The Dance Waltz. 589. The Dance Waltz. 590. The Dance Waltz. 591. The Dance Waltz. 592. The Dance Waltz. 593. The Dance Waltz. 594. The Dance Waltz. 595. The Dance Waltz. 596. The Dance Waltz. 597. The Dance Waltz. 598. The Dance Waltz. 599. The Dance Waltz. 600. The Dance Waltz. 601. The Dance Waltz. 602. The Dance Waltz. 603. The Dance Waltz. 604. The Dance Waltz. 605. The Dance Waltz. 606. The Dance Waltz. 607. The Dance Waltz. 608. The Dance Waltz. 609. The Dance Waltz. 610. The Dance Waltz. 611. The Dance Waltz. 612. The Dance Waltz. 613. The Dance Waltz. 614. The Dance Waltz. 615. The Dance Waltz. 616. The Dance Waltz. 617. The Dance Waltz. 618. The Dance Waltz. 619. The Dance Waltz. 620. The Dance Waltz. 621. The Dance Waltz. 622. The Dance Waltz. 623. The Dance Waltz. 624. The Dance Waltz. 625. The Dance Waltz. 626. The Dance Waltz. 627. The Dance Waltz. 628. The Dance Waltz. 629. The Dance Waltz. 630. The Dance Waltz. 631. The Dance Waltz. 632. The Dance Waltz. 633. The Dance Waltz. 634. The Dance Waltz. 635. The Dance Waltz. 636. The Dance Waltz. 637. The Dance Waltz. 638. The Dance Waltz. 639. The Dance Waltz. 640. The Dance Waltz. 641. The Dance Waltz. 642. The Dance Waltz. 643. The Dance Waltz. 644. The Dance Waltz. 645. The Dance Waltz. 646. The Dance Waltz. 647. The Dance Waltz. 648. The Dance Waltz. 649. The Dance Waltz. 650. The Dance Waltz. 651. The Dance Waltz. 652. The Dance Waltz. 653. The Dance Waltz. 654. The Dance Waltz. 655. The Dance Waltz. 656. The Dance Waltz. 657. The Dance Waltz. 658. The Dance Waltz. 659. The Dance Waltz. 660. The Dance Waltz. 661. The Dance Waltz. 662. The Dance Waltz. 663. The Dance Waltz. 664. The Dance Waltz. 665. The Dance Waltz. 666. The Dance Waltz. 667. The Dance Waltz. 668. The Dance Waltz. 669. The Dance Waltz. 670. The Dance Waltz. 671. The Dance Waltz. 672. The Dance Waltz. 673. The Dance Waltz. 674. The Dance Waltz. 675. The Dance Waltz. 676. The Dance Waltz. 677. The Dance Waltz. 678. The Dance Waltz. 679. The Dance Waltz. 680. The Dance Waltz. 681. The Dance Waltz. 682. The Dance Waltz. 683. The Dance Waltz. 684. The Dance Waltz. 685. The Dance Waltz. 686. The Dance Waltz. 687. The Dance Waltz. 688. The Dance Waltz. 689. The Dance Waltz. 690. The Dance Waltz. 691. The Dance Waltz. 692. The Dance Waltz. 693. The Dance Waltz. 694. The Dance Waltz. 695. The Dance Waltz. 696. The Dance Waltz. 697. The Dance Waltz. 698. The Dance Waltz. 699. The Dance Waltz. 700. The Dance Waltz. 701. The Dance Waltz. 702. The Dance Waltz. 703. The Dance Waltz. 704. The Dance Waltz. 705. The Dance Waltz. 706. The Dance Waltz. 707. The Dance Waltz. 708. The Dance Waltz. 709. The Dance Waltz. 710. The Dance Waltz. 711. The Dance Waltz. 712. The Dance Waltz. 713. The Dance Waltz. 714. The Dance Waltz. 715. The Dance Waltz. 716. The Dance Waltz. 717. The Dance Waltz. 718. The Dance Waltz. 719. The Dance Waltz. 720. The Dance Waltz. 721. The Dance Waltz. 722. The Dance Waltz. 723. The Dance Waltz. 724. The Dance Waltz. 725. The Dance Waltz. 726. The Dance Waltz. 727. The Dance Waltz. 728. The Dance Waltz. 729. The Dance Waltz. 730. The Dance Waltz. 731. The Dance Waltz. 732. The Dance Waltz. 733. The Dance Waltz. 734. The Dance Waltz. 735. The Dance Waltz. 736. The Dance Waltz. 737. The Dance Waltz. 738. The Dance Waltz. 739. The Dance Waltz. 740. The Dance Waltz. 741. The Dance Waltz. 742. The Dance Waltz. 743. The Dance Waltz. 744. The Dance Waltz. 745. The Dance Waltz. 746. The Dance Waltz. 747. The Dance Waltz. 748. The Dance Waltz. 749. The Dance Waltz. 750. The Dance Waltz. 751. The Dance Waltz. 752. The Dance Waltz. 753. The Dance Waltz. 754. The Dance Waltz. 755. The Dance Waltz. 756. The Dance Waltz. 757. The Dance Waltz. 758. The Dance Waltz. 759. The Dance Waltz. 760. The Dance Waltz. 761. The Dance Waltz. 762. The Dance Waltz. 763. The Dance Waltz. 764. The Dance Waltz. 765. The Dance Waltz. 766. The Dance Waltz. 767. The Dance Waltz. 768. The Dance Waltz. 769. The Dance Waltz. 770. The Dance Waltz. 771. The Dance Waltz. 772. The Dance Waltz. 773. The Dance Waltz. 774. The Dance Waltz. 775. The Dance Waltz. 776. The Dance Waltz. 777. The Dance Waltz. 778. The Dance Waltz. 779. The Dance Waltz. 780. The Dance Waltz. 781. The Dance Waltz. 782. The Dance Waltz. 783. The Dance Waltz. 784. The Dance Waltz. 785. The Dance Waltz. 786. The Dance Waltz. 787. The Dance Waltz. 788. The Dance Waltz. 789. The Dance Waltz. 790. The Dance Waltz. 791. The Dance Waltz. 792. The Dance Waltz. 793. The Dance Waltz. 794. The Dance Waltz. 795. The Dance Waltz. 796. The Dance Waltz. 797. The Dance Waltz. 798. The Dance Waltz. 799. The Dance Waltz. 800. The Dance Waltz. 801. The Dance Waltz. 802. The Dance Waltz. 803. The Dance Waltz. 804. The Dance Waltz. 805. The Dance Waltz. 806. The Dance Waltz. 807. The Dance Waltz. 808. The Dance Waltz. 809. The Dance Waltz. 810. The Dance Waltz. 811. The Dance Waltz. 812. The Dance Waltz. 813. The Dance Waltz. 814. The Dance Waltz. 815. The Dance Waltz. 816. The Dance Waltz. 817. The Dance Waltz. 818. The Dance Waltz. 819. The Dance Waltz. 820. The Dance Waltz. 821. The Dance Waltz. 822. The Dance Waltz. 8

THE PARAY-LE-MONIAL PILGRIMAGE.

The journey of religious devotion to the shrine of Paray-le-Monial, in Burgundy, performed last week by nearly 800 English Roman Catholics, with the Duke of Norfolk at their head, is a proceeding which has called forth much public comment. We have merely here to give a few illustrations, one showing the assembly of the pilgrims at the Pro-Cathedral in Kensington on the eve of their departure; and two affording views of the Convent and Garden at Paray-le-Monial, and of the chapel there lately dedicated to the saintly memory of Sister Marguerite Marie Alacoque, an enthusiastic Carmelite nun two hundred years ago, who is believed to have there seen a heavenly vision, and to have received a message ordering special observances in honour of the Sacred Heart. Paray-le-Monial is a small town of 3500 inhabitants, 230 miles south of Paris, and sixty or seventy miles north of Lyons, in the department of the Saône-et-Loire, and in the diocese of Autun; it is not very far distant from Mâcon, in one direction, and from the famous ironworks of Creuzot, in the other. The pilgrims could travel by railway to the Paray-le-Monial station; and Messrs. T. Cook and Sons, the well-known contractors for tourist parties, were employed to make the arrangements for their journey from London.

It was on Monday week, at seven in the evening, that a special service of religious worship took place at the Kensington Pro-Cathedral, attended by three or four hundred of the pilgrims, amongst whom were fifty or sixty Roman Catholic priests, or other clergy, and a large number of ladies. Each pilgrim wore a badge on the left breast, displaying a small red cross and heart on a white ground. The service was performed by Archbishop Manning, who preached a sermon, and then walked in a procession of clergy down the nave, distributing a benediction in the name of the Pope, after which he consecrated two banners to be carried by the pilgrims on their journey. The Archbishop was assisted by the Rev. J. Connolly as deacon, and the Rev. J. Reeks, as sub-deacon; the Rev. A. Douglas was cross-bearer, and the ceremonies were conducted by the Rev. J. Palmer. In the choir were

CHAPEL OF THE VISITATION OF MARGUERITE MARIE ALAOCQUE.

CONVENT AND GARDEN OF THE APPARITION, PARAY-LE-MONIAL.

many pri
Weld an same day
grims fro under th
Bishop o with the edged, standing Heart; and Our
St. Aug
From Sh vinctial t bound on departed an early haven, b Railway, at half-p hundred Vaughan crossed Dieppe,
in the c
Lord W English second arrived more ha
The tw
Marseill from N
Papal s
Sacred Jack; Monsign directed course their jou aloud in by the p their st
Dieppe
several h the hote them on early m of Notre ceeding special at Mon Monial
neaday most el with a his robe

streets, churches, and private houses of the town were illuminated, and a multitude of people, with lighted tapers in their hands, stood on each side along the road from the station to the parish church and to the Convent and Chapel of the Visitation.

The pilgrims walked in procession, led by their standard-bearers and persons of highest rank, whilst the English clergy brought up the rear; the French clergy went ahead or abreast of the van. They sang the Latin hymn of the Virgin, and Psalms in Latin, as well as the English hymns of Father Faber and Lady Georgiana Fullerton. Having reached the church, they presented their banners as offerings there, when the clock struck at midnight. From that hour throughout the night and forenoon ensuing on the Thursday, masses were recited half-hourly both in the church and in the Chapel of the Visitation. There was a special service about mid-day, and vespers in the afternoon, with a sermon preached by Monsignor Capel; after which the whole congregation knelt and repeated a form of words dedicating the Catholic people of England to the worship of the Sacred Heart. Another procession was formed, to go up to a small oratory on a neighbouring hill. This was joined by a thousand French and Belgian pilgrims. In the evening a company of 400 English ladies and gentlemen were entertained with supper at the Presbytery, and were addressed by the Rev. Dr. Talbot and Monsignor Capel, before starting on their homeward journey at daybreak next morning.

Some of them stopped at Paris on the Friday night, and took the opportunity to visit the scene of the murder of the Archbishop of Paris and other ecclesiastics by the Communists in May, 1871, as well as to attend worship in the Church of the Jesuits and in Notre Dame. All seems to have been well managed, both in going and returning. The numbers of the party between Paris and Paray-le-Monial were first-class passengers, 249; second-class, 457; third-class, 58: total, 764. The number on the passage from Newhaven to Dieppe was about 600. It must be remembered that some of the passengers from Paris were English residents or visitors there. All that Messrs. Cook had to do with the pilgrimage was to arrange for the conveyance between London and Paray-le-Monial. They had nothing to do with the arrangements either as to omnibuses or as to hotel accommodation in either of the places where the pilgrims stopped. Neither of the members of the firm accompanied the pilgrims beyond Newhaven; but they sent an intelligent French-speaking conductor right through, who rendered all the assistance that was required by the way.

A series of photographic views of Paray-le-Monial, specially taken by Mr. George Verney for this occasion, are published by Mr. Arthur Ackerman, of Regent-street, and we are permitted to engrave two of them. One represents the exterior of the chapel dedicated to St. Marguerite Marie Alacoque, with the entrance to the convent; both these edifices are surmounted by a figure of the saint. In the other view the convent is seen at the right hand; but the old parish church, with its central octagon tower and spire, and its two western towers, appears in the middle, rising above the houses of the little town. The convent, belonging to a branch of the Carmelite order called the Sisters of the Visitation, received Marguerite Marie Alacoque, the daughter of a provincial lawyer, in 1671; and she is believed to have become the medium of a special divine communication in 1675. She died in 1690, and was declared, in 1824, by a Papal decree, to be a sacred person in the esteem of the Roman Catholic Church. Her waxen effigy, within which the actual skeleton of her body is preserved, lies enshrined in the chapel, adorned with jewels and gold.

REWARDS FOR SAVING LIFE.

At a meeting of the Royal Humane Society, last week, at the offices, Trafalgar-square, the silver medallion was unanimously voted to Henry J. M'Coy, of the Royal Irish Constabulary, for saving, at the imminent risk of his own life, the lives of Mary Murphy and Honora Donnellan. On July 10, at the Courtmasherry Regatta, several persons who did not know how to manage boats got into them, and one of them capsized within fifty yards of the shore. The boat contained two men and two women, and no other boat was near. The men managed to swim ashore, leaving the women under the boat to their fate. M'Coy, who was sitting at a window a hundred yards from the beach, immediately jumped through it, a height of ten feet, and, rushing through the crowd to the shore, he swam towards the boat and found the legs of one of the women sticking out from under the gunwale. He dragged her out, swam with her to a lighter, and rested her on an oar, from which she was conveyed ashore and saved. He again swam to the boat, and, seeing some bubbles on the water, dived, and, although nearly exhausted, caught hold of the other woman drowning. He succeeded in swimming with her to shore, supporting her with one hand while swimming with the other.

On the recommendation of the Duke of Cambridge, the silver medallion was voted to Lieutenant Westaway, of the 13th Light Infantry, for saving a lad in the Liffey.

The silver medallion was, on the recommendation of the Admiralty, voted to Abraham Driver, commissioned boatman of the Coastguard, for trying to save A. F. Pickford, who was drowned in the river at Axmouth on July 14. The swell was so great that he was unable to get out of the river with his boat, and on jumping into the water was carried back by the sea. He tried a second time, but, when midway between the shore and the body, was carried to the bottom by the under current. He then made for the shore, obtained a line, and tried again, when he succeeded in reaching the body.

The silver medallion was also voted to William Osborne, twelve years of age, for saving two boys bathing near the flood-gates in the King's Meadow, Chelmsford. A lad named Westrop, who went to their assistance, was presented with the society's bronze medallion.

The bronze clasp of the society, the recipients having been previously rewarded for saving life, was given to A. D. Ross, Trinity pilot, for saving a lad named Row, who fell into the Thames at Gravesend on July 5; and to W. E. Oakes, for saving two men who were in danger of drowning in the Thames, at Hammersmith, on July 13.

In addition to the above, twenty-two bronze medallions and nine testimonials inscribed on vellum and on parchment were given, and in ten cases pecuniary rewards.

Yesterday week the autumn show of the Irish Royal Horticultural Society was held in the Springhill Gardens, Monks-town. Their Excellencies the Lord Lieutenant and Countess Spencer visited the show shortly before five o'clock, and were received by the Lord Mayor of Dublin and several members of the council of the society.

Mr. Plimsoll has had an Aberdeen clipper-ship named after him. In responding to the toast of his health, which was drunk after the launch on Saturday last, he observed that, concurrently with an increase of 8 per cent in the number of British ships, there had been an increase of 50 per cent in the number of accidents.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Sept. 8.

As the time draws nigh for the closing of the Exhibition visitors flock in greater numbers to Vienna, and just now the city is far more crowded than it has been at any moment since the unfinished Palace of the Prater was declared open by the Emperor Franz Josef. The regal and princely visits which the Viennese Weltausstellung has called forth are not yet at an end, and most of the newspapers are gravely discussing the approaching arrival of Victor Emmanuel, and the influence which his interviews with the Kaiser and Count Andrássy may have on the future relations of Austria and Italy—losing sight of the fact that his trip to Vienna is but an excuse for his journey to Berlin. Marshal MacMahon has also been expected here for several weeks past; but it would appear that affairs are in such an unsettled state in France that his Cabinet will not allow him to absent himself from the country.

Resuming our description of the machinery hall of the Exhibition which we began last week, we must first of all call attention to the remarkably interesting display of Messrs. Ransome and Co., of London, which comprises a large number of wood-working machines. First of all they show numerous vertical saw-frames, circular saw-benches and saw-machines; but their most remarkable exhibits are their apparatuses for planing, moulding, and shaping, their general joiners' machine, and their ingenious arrangements for removing instantaneously shavings, dust, and light refuse from machinery. J. Robinson and Sons, of Rochdale, have an extensive show of similar objects near at hand; but none of their appliances are of the same high order of merit as those of Messrs. Ransome. The mills displayed by Huxhams and Brown, of Exeter, are worthy of attentive examination. One of them grinds bark for tanneries and leather-dressers by horse or steam power; the other mixes mortar or concrete by hand or by steam. This firm also exhibits an iron-planing machine and a leather-rolling machine, both of which are very ingenious. Powis, Western, and Co., of London, have several samples of wood-working machinery, but none of these are equal to their band-saw machine for cutting iron, or their apparatus for moulding and planing stone.

Amongst wood-working machinery, I should mention that Mr. John Derham, of Blackburn, displays a very fine horizontal high-pressure expansion steam-engine of 25-horse power, nominal, intended for driving machinery of this character. He exhibits also one of 20-horse power, nominal, intended for printing machinery, besides a couple of specimens of Scholl's well-known atmospheric-power hammer. Steam-engines of every description abound in the British department of the machinery hall, as, indeed, they do in almost every section of that vast annexe. First of all we have Messrs. Galloway and Sons, who have placed their splendid compound high and low pressure engines, and their Galloway boilers, for which the international jury have awarded them a grand diploma of honour, at the service of the British Commission. Both the engines indicate 100-horse power, and are designed specially to secure economy in fuel and simplicity of construction. The engines are self-contained, and the governor, by being placed in direct communication with the slide-valve for the admission of steam into the high-pressure cylinder, does away with the necessity of a throttle valve, and thus gets the full pressure of steam effectually upon the piston. The exhaust valves for both high and low pressure cylinders are worked off separate eccentrics, and the disposition of the air-pump allows the engine to be run at a very high rate of speed if required. The boilers, which are of 50-horse power, and are capable of giving off sufficient steam to drive about 200 indicated horse power, are especially remarkable for the Galloway tubes which are largely introduced into the flues. The boiler is shaped in front like a plain two-flued boiler, but twenty-four Galloway tubes and four side rockets are placed in the oval back flue formed by the fire-bars. These tubes cause a rapid circulation of water, and prevent in a great measure the wear and tear which always takes place in an ordinary two-flued boiler, where there is so great a difference in temperature in the water above and below the flues. The Galloway boilers have been found, from careful experiment, to evaporate upwards of 10 lb. of water per 1 lb. of coal, the water having been let in at 60 deg. temperature.

Among the other steam-engines exhibited those entitled to the highest praise are those of the Reading Ironworks Company and of Messrs. Shand, Mason, and Co., the exhibits of the latter being, naturally enough, fire-engines. The engine displayed by the Reading Ironworks is a very fine high-pressure one, fitted with a condenser, and is said to show an economy of fuel of at least 20 per cent. Messrs. Shand and Mason's exhibits comprise a large engine, provided with a patent inclined water-tube boiler, by which steam is raised to a pressure of 100 lb. to the square inch, in six and a half to seven minutes from the time of lighting the fire, and capable of throwing 1000 gals. of water per minute to a height of 200 ft. through a jet of 1½ in. diameter; and three small engines, one of which is similar to those used by the London Fire Brigade.

Messrs. Brotherhood and Hardingham, of London, exhibit a patent "paragon" steam pump, erected for supplying Messrs. Cater and Walker's steam-boiler of 50-horse power, which is situated in an annexe at a stone's throw from the machinery hall. This pump, which is capable of supplying 1200 gals. of water per hour, consists of a steam-cylinder 5½ in. diameter, placed at the top of a hollow column which contains the pump. Pumping-engines are also exhibited by Tyler, Hayward, and Co., Gwynne and Co., and Sir W. G. Armstrong and Co. There is a fair display of paper-making machines, the finest shown being probably that of Messrs. B. Donkin and Co., of Bermondsey. Messrs. Hughes and Kimber have some creditable printing-machines; and the apparatuses of the Victoria Printing and Folding-Machine Company are worthy of notice.

Messrs. Combe and Barbour, of Belfast, have obtained a grand diploma of honour for their flax machinery and tools, which include hackling, cop, and fluting machines, spreaders, drawing and roving frames; and Messrs. Sharp, Stewart, and Co., of Manchester, have received a similar high award for their admirable slot drilling-machine and their lathes and apparatus for boring and drilling railway-wheel tyres.

OUR ILLUSTRATIONS.

The peasants' cottages and mountain homesteads—imitative of the picturesque habitations in the more remote provinces of the Austrian Empire—which, with their primitive or gaudy furniture and more or less gaily-attired and quaint-looking occupants, form one of the attractive features of the Vienna Exhibition, lie scattered about for the most part in the far north-eastern corner of the extensive park. The first of these dwellings, shown in our artist's sketch, is a rude Alpine Sennhütte, belonging to a Styrian herdsman, constructed of roughly-dressed pine logs, and this is both externally and internally almost an exact counterpart of the class of hut which may be met with by the hundred in the higher pastures of the Bernese Oberland. Far more pretentious is the Styrian winehouse, a type of the homestead of the better class. This house, embowered among tall shady trees, was a favourite place of resort with visitors to the Exhibition during the hot summer months. In the same woody dell some Yankee speculators constructed a so-called Indian wigwam, the exterior of which is painted all over with fantastic representations of incidents of savage life. Here American drinks were dispensed to thirsty visitors by the hands of sable Ganymedes.

Of the lower group of cottages shown in the Illustration, the one on the left hand represents the dwelling of a Transylvanian Saxon farmer, than whom there is no richer or more respectable class among the agriculturists of the Austrian empire. The distich on the gable, though it jolts rather than trips, is characteristic of a military agricultural colony:—

Der Kaiser führt das Schwert: der Bauer führt den Pflug.
Wer Allebeid nicht ehrt, ist ganz nicht klug.

The ground floor is devoted to cellars and storehouses. The entry to the dwelling is on the first floor, by an outer staircase under a projecting porch, and conducting to the kitchen, from which the sitting and sleeping rooms open, in the latter of which was noticed a wardrobe filled with fête-day costumes, coquettishly trimmed with sheep and fox skins.

The building in the rear is another Transylvanian dwelling, but of a type which is met with on the immediate borders of Wallachia. You enter the court under a penthouse-covered gateway, and find the Oriental love of colour displayed in the patterns in red and blue with which it is roughly inlaid, while the great German stoves within show brilliant decoration to match. The agricultural implements are, however, best worth looking at. It is at least several centuries from these you see here to those you will find in the English and American agricultural annexes; yet, perhaps, these carts and waggons of wood, pinned together by wooden pegs, without a single morsel of metal used even in the tires of the wheels, are better suited to the light sandy soil than anything we can send. The waggon can be easily moved with one hand, but it is as tough as it is light.

In the purely Hungarian cottage on the extreme right, the steep pitch of the roof cannot fail to attract attention. A rough shingle fence runs round the little garden; baskets for field labour hang under the penthouse in front, and rude field tools are suspended on the gable. There are broad interstices between the logs in the walls, and on the upper floor these are not stopped at all. The small living-room, with its low roof and heavy beams and rafters, reminds you of the cabin of a Norwegian coaster, built to knock about among the islands in winter gales. You, however, trace the signs of close contact with the East in the crimson leaves and the yellow birds which are painted upon everything—chairs, boxes, and pottery. Facing this edifice, though not depicted in our artist's sketch, is a sample of the style of architecture prevalent in the prosperous province of the Vorarlberg. The roof, with its neat tiles of shingle, has a gentle slope; broad galleries with carved railings and scallop-shell panelling run along the front under the overhanging eaves and at the lower story, while the double windows are fitted with glass within and pierced wooden shutters without.

Messrs. Peak, Frean, and Co. were awarded a medal for progress in the food section of the Vienna Exhibition for their fancy biscuits.

Archbishop Manning has written a remarkable letter to the Primate of Ireland on the condition of that country. In it he declares his belief that Ireland is the most Christian country in the world; and he "sees no future for Imperial Germany, or for revolutionary Italy, or for Spain if it abandon its Catholic traditions, or for France if it continue to deify Voltaire."

The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London were yesterday week entertained by the Mayor and Corporation of Southampton. There were processions through the gaily-decorated streets, a luncheon, and afterwards a grand banquet at the South-Western Hotel. Everything passed off with great eclat. One of the Sheriffs, Sir F. Perkins, has been five times Mayor of Southampton.

The Board of Trade returns for August show that the declared value of our exports for the month has been £22,657,334, against £24,557,502 in July, 1872. The total of the eight months ended Aug. 31 is £171,401,295, which is an increase of £4,234,659 over last year, and of £25,661,287 over 1871. The declared value of the imports for the month has been £29,895,676, a decrease compared with the corresponding month of last year of £77,575. The total of the eight months ended Aug. 31 was £245,902,119, showing an increase of £561,752 over last year.

The Aldermen who have not passed the chair, but who, having served the office of sheriff, are eligible for election as Lord Mayor on Michaelmas Day, are Mr. Alderman Lusk, M.P., Mr. Alderman Stone, Mr. Alderman Cotton, Mr. Alderman Owden, Alderman Sir Thomas White, Alderman Sir F. W. Truscott, Mr. Alderman McArthur, M.P., Mr. Alderman Figgins, M.P., and Mr. Alderman Paterson. The choice usually falls upon the senior aldermen of those who have not filled the civic chair, and there is every probability that this course will not be departed from this year; in which case Mr. Alderman Lusk (who is exceedingly popular in the City and in the borough of Finsbury, which he represents in Parliament, as well as with the Liberty generally) will be the successor of Sir Sydney Waterlow.—City Press.

The population of the British possessions beyond the seas exceeds 200 million souls, according to the official statement recently issued for 1871. The population of British India is stated at 190,663,623; of the Straits Settlements, 308,097; of Ceylon, 2,405,287; Mauritius, 318,584. The population of Canada is returned as 2,812,367 in Ontario and Quebec, 387,800 in Nova Scotia, 285,594 in New Brunswick, 11,953 in Manitoba, 10,586 (exclusive of Indians) in British Columbia, 94,021 in Prince Edward Island, and the population of Newfoundland 146,536; making a total for British North America of 3,748,857 exclusive of all inhabitants there may be in the vast stretch of country between Canada and British Columbia. The population of Australia is stated as 1,978,748; of Victoria, 752,445; New South Wales, 519,182; New Zealand, 266,986; South Australia, 187,851; Queensland, 125,146; Tasmania, 101,780; Western Australia, 25,353. The population of the West India Islands is given as 1,062,077; Jamaica, 506,154; Barbados, 162,042; Trinidad, 109,638. The population of British Guiana is 193,491; of Honduras, 24,700. Then also come the Cape of Good Hope, with a population of 566,158; Natal, 289,773; Gold Coast, 408,070; Sierra Leone, 55,373; Gambia, 14,190; St. Helena, 6444; Hong-Kong, 124,198; Labuan, 4885; Falkland Isles, 811; Bermuda, 12,121; Malta, 141,918; and Gibraltar, 16,454, both the last two exclusive of the military. The total reaches the vast number of 202,343,872 souls. In some instances the number stated is known to be below the real number. Here at home, in the United Kingdom, we count a third of a hundred million souls; and a sixth of the population of the world bears allegiance to Queen Victoria.—Times.

BY THE WAY.

"A contented mind is a continual feast," and though a continual feast may be somewhat detrimental, materially speaking, mentally, no doubt, it is excessively desirable. It therefore behoves those who, from circumstances over which they may not choose to have control, are kept in London when everybody else is out of it, to consider whether their condition is so unfortunate as it is conventionally described. First of all, the weather is, if not in their favour, certainly not in that of the envied holiday-makers. Given chill, wet, and general meteorological uncertainty, London is, far and away, the best place in the world. Stay in town, and you are not deprived of your home comforts, you have ready and ample means of transit, there is plenty of amusement if you want plays or music, your club provides a better dinner than any hotel in England (not to descend to the miseries of cookery in lodgings), you can take business, if you have any—Hamlet says that every man has some—easily and in a gentlemanly way, and if you like to read there is nobody to disturb you. And you have the satisfaction of seeing by the provincial telegrams that, wherever your friends are, the "mornings are bright but cold, wind and rain in the evening." Surely all this should tend to preserve the œquam mentem so highly recommended by the faculty. But change is a great thing. No doubt. But is it no change to have finished with heavy dinners, and (if you have the happiness of being a parent of daughters) with hot parties, and bed grudging to you at two a.m.? Is it no change to miss seeing and hearing all the people whom you have been seeing and hearing for nine months? Is it no change to be able to neglect your duties, read when you should write, answer no letters, and lounge and look into shops with none but rustic excursionists to note that eccentricity? Is it no change to be able to go to picture-galleries and exhibitions, and to see leisurely what you want to see, instead of hurrying to stare at "what everybody is talking about"? Is it no change to find in your club smoking-room a little knot of men—perhaps the pleasantest members—who are detained like yourself, or are passing through town, and who just sprinkle the room, and make up a quiet and slightly cynical party of philosophers, who discuss the world and its doings with serenity? Is not all this better than extortionate and noisy hotels or questionable lodgings at some crammed seaside place, where the excitement consists in monotonous promenades, and the coming in of a steam-boat is like a Shah's visit; where the sun's business is to tantalise you by occasionally showing how delightful he could make the scene if he chose, and then to leave you to the sworn tormentors, "wind and rain," for your chastening and humiliation? "Here be truths." Yet, as we write, we feel that the utterance of such sentiments is as conventional as the holiday business, and know that we are counting the days between the composition of such morality and the hailing the hansom for the terminus. Lord Derby was quite right the other day. "An Englishman covets country life, and even such an imitation of it as can be managed in a brief holiday is very welcome to him. The 'contented mind' is all very well until we can pack the portmanteau. Meantime, let the above sermon console those whose packing is postponed.

The French have paid off Germany, and the English, about the same time, have paid off America. Both pecuniary transactions are telegraphed in the same week.

But there,
We doubt, all likeness ends between the pair.

Our French neighbours are exulting in the thought that the last German is quitting their soil, "they hope for ever." We are by no means getting rid of Americans, we are happy to say. We believe that more of our cousins have visited us this year than in any previous one, and we rejoice in the fact with a joy in no way related to that of the hotel-keepers who have been doing their best to revenge Geneva. More and more each year is it becoming recognised in America that a visit to the Old Home is a pilgrimage which must be performed, and is one at which nobody can laugh. Some of these days the mass of educated people in the United States will know something about us—something more, we mean, than they can learn from books and pert correspondents. We should like to believe that such knowledge is already widely spread in America; but it is absurd to select a fool's paradise for a residence, and he would be well entitled to such a lodging who should think that American familiarity with our institutions and ourselves is other than exceptional. But the more who come the better, and when they will permit it they shall receive the most courteous welcome of all, that which ignores any strangeness. Let it be said on the other side that if Americans are but superficially acquainted with our institutions they know something. They comprehend our form of government, the connection between Sovereign and people, the process of legislation, and a good many of the influences and motives which produce political action among us. But how much do "well-informed" people here know about the institutions of America? We are aware that there is a President, and that there is a Parliament called Congress, and some deep readers may have studied Mr. Martin, and discovered that there is something called a Senate. But who knows how Congress is elected, and at what ages respectively men may enter the two houses, and what sort of control the President has? As to State rights, we should like to hear what meaning the words have for nineteen men out of twenty. It is not pleasant to an educated American, even when he is receiving your best hospitality, to discover how very little you have cared to comprehend the machinery of his wonderful Republic.

Archbishop Manning remarks that the question is whether the Irish shall be in future the children of this World, or the children of St. Patrick. It is a curiously Hibernian fact that here is a case where a child is to be at liberty to choose its own parent. Passing that, we take it for granted that the pious and accomplished prelate desires that the saint shall be the reputed father of Irish persons, and holds the world to be only one degree better than the flesh, and only two better than another entity. His Grace would point out St. Patrick as waiting with open arms to receive his spiritual progeny. There is much to be said for that estimable saint as a father—the lyrics of Ireland record that he "was a gentleman and came of decent people," and that is an all important fact in a pedigree. He did, we firmly believe, many good things, and intended to do a great many more, and "intention" is a mighty matter in the Catholic faith, which repudiates the proverb of a very Catholic nation about a certain pavement. We should have no objection to St. Patrick, if he had not been tried so long as a father for Ireland, and had, possibly from extra amiability, so singularly failed in bringing up his children properly. With all deference to the Archbishop, we submit that if the Irish would become children of the world, they would, in the natural course of things, become men of the world, and then Europe would not have quite so much to laugh at as at present. St. Patrick might still hold the honourable post of god-father to Pat, to whom the saint gave name; but we think the Irish may say to Dr. Manning, with Duke Frederick, "I would thou hadst told me of another father."

Brentford is not a place that has found much favour with the poets. A dramatist, to be sure, has bestowed two kings upon it, and they sit upon one throne, and smell at one nose-gay. The wisdom of this latter act is vindicated by Shenstone, who says:—

As when through Brentford town, a town of mud,
A herd of grisly swine is pricked along, &c.

We do not know that the fame of the town of mud is likely to be increased by the doings of the magnates who sit in session there. We have just read that to the infamous ruffian John Mole, whose cruelty to his little child was so atrocious that it seemed impossible that he should escape a heavy sentence, the Brentford Sessions magistrates have awarded six months of hard labour! He ought, as was admitted, to have been sent for trial, and then he would have had penal servitude. But one witness said that Mole had a good character, and the fellow himself howled and blubbered in the dock, and begged not to be sent for trial. Whether the child will live or not is uncertain. Many of our readers must be aware of the facts of the case; for those who are not we weaken our protest, because the details of the brutality are too disgusting for this column. Mr. Mole's tears have stood him in good stead, and, as he is sure to repeat some such offence as that so lightly punished, we advise him while in gaol to cultivate the hydraulic faculty that has saved him from his deserts. We gladly contrast the inexplicable leniency of the Brentford Bench with the righteous severity shown at the Surrey Sessions to a scoundrel who had assaulted a victim a little less helpless than a child—a poor girl who had enraged him. Mr. Hardman had been asked by the grand jury to add flogging to any sentence he might pronounce. That excellent magistrate regretted that he could not do so, but held over the sentence in order that a second indictment might be preferred, by means of which he should be able to punish the miscreant effectually.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

The annual prize meeting of the City of London Brigade, which was begun on Saturday last at the new City rifle-ranges at Rainham, Essex, was resumed on Monday and Tuesday, for a long list of prizes presented by most of the City companies, besides the officers and friends of the brigade. In addition, the programme included a handsome piece of plate, value 100 gs., known as the Cripple Gate Ward Challenge Trophy, representing the old Cripple Gate, to which was added a prize of 10 gs., presented by the ward, and several prizes by the officers. A camp has been formed on the range for the convenience of those competitors who do not care to return to town every day, and on this almost isolated ground, which was purchased for the volunteers by the citizens of London a few years back, the members have been endeavouring to make themselves as comfortable as heavy rains would permit. Following the example of previous years, the opening day was set apart for the first stage of the aggregate prizes and company silver medals. Colonel Sir W. A. Rose's challenge cup, value 15 gs., with 3 gs. added by the officers, was won by Private Smith; Private Wyatt (a former Queen's prize winner) was second, and Private Watts, K company, third. The cup must be won twice in succession before it becomes the property of the winner. In the second stage of the aggregate prizes the prizes were awarded in the following order:—First prize, value £25, presented by the Goldsmiths' Company, and the P company medal, Private Hammerton; second prize, value £20, presented by the Mercers' Company, and the F company medal, Private Hutchinson; third prize, value 15 gs., presented by the Merchant Taylors' Company, and the Q company medal, Sergeant Fletcher; fourth prize, value 10 gs., presented by the Drapers' Company, and the D company medal, private M'Dougall; fifth prize, value 10 gs., presented by the Fishmongers' Company, Private Fletcher; sixth prize, value 10 gs., presented by the Vintners' Company, and the B company medal, Private Runtz; seventh prize, value 10 gs., presented by the Clothworkers' Company, and the O company medal, Private Gardner; eighth prize, value 10 gs., presented by the Butchers' Company, and the E company medal, Private Saw; ninth prize, value 10 gs., presented by the Salters' Company, Private Longford; tenth prize, value 7 gs., presented by the brigade, and the K company medal, Private Watts; eleventh prize, value £5, also presented by the brigade, Private Ashley; twelfth prize, value £5, presented by the Haberdashers' Company, Colour-Sergeant Mayor; thirteenth prize, also of the value of £5, and the H company medal, private M'Lachlan; fourteenth prize, value £4, and the N company medal, Colour-Sergeant Titford; fifteenth prize, value £3, Corporal Tayton; sixteenth and seventeenth prizes, Quartermaster-Sergeant Stackey and Colour-Sergeant Rogers; and the eighteenth, Private Howkins.

The annual prizes subscribed for by the officers and gentlemen connected with the British Museum were competed for at Wormwood-scrubbe on the 5th inst. The gold medal was won by Private Anderson, the silver cup by Private Baynes, and the range prizes by Privates Dolamore, Davenport, and Baynes. The principal winners of the money prizes were Privates Anderson, Baynes, Tuppen, Dolamore, Tatnall, Lake, and Sergeant Muller.

The prize presented by the late Emperor Napoleon III. to the 10th Kent (Royal Arsenal) Artillery, together with a number of other prizes, was competed for by the members of that corps, at the Government range in Plumstead marshes, adjoining the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich, on Saturday last. The prize, which consisted of a beautiful fish-gun, throwing a harpoon about 6 in. long, mounted in gold, in case, with the Imperial arms in ivory inlaid in the centre, was presented during the lifetime of the late Emperor to the corps to be shot for, but circumstances occurred which necessitated the postponement each time the arrangements were made to carry out the competition. The contest was with the 32-pounder smooth-bore gun. Seventeen detachments entered, and at the close Sergeant Foster, of No. 7 battery, was declared the winner of the first prize—the gun presented by the late Emperor, with £9 added. Sergeant-Major Travis made the same number of points, but lost by time.

The annual meeting of the Suffolk County Rifle Association was held on Thursday and Friday, last week, at Ickworth Park, the seat of the Marquis of Bristol. A cup, given by the president of the year (Lieutenant-Colonel Parker, M.P.), with a bronze medal of the National Rifle Association, and a contingent £5, was won by Corporal Nicholls, of the Sudbury corps. A contest between squads from companies was decided, as regards the first prize, in favour of a party from the Hadleigh corps. A cup, given by the members for Bury St. Edmunds, was won by Private Read, of the Beccles corps. The members for West Suffolk offered the first prize in the contest, between squads from companies already referred to. A handsome silver tea-tray was presented on the occasion to Captain and Adjutant Barnardiston.

The Extra Supplement.

UNTER DEN LINDEN, BERLIN.

"Unter den Linden"—under the lime-trees—has a pleasant, pascoral sound, recalling visions of umbrageous foliage affording cooling shade from the noon-day heat, and evening rambles by the light of a summer moon. Unter den Linden at Berlin, however, simply signifies a broad, more or less dusty, and somewhat badly-paved thoroughfare, some half mile or so in length, planted with rows of sickly-looking lime-trees, and bordered by a number of handsome edifices and several score of second-rate shops. It is the promenade par excellence of Berlin, and one of the principal arteries of the city, where stylish equipages find themselves jostled by ramshackle droschken and primitive-looking country carts; where troops parade backwards and forwards, aides de camp canter, and grey-whiskered Generals rattle by in open carriages, at almost all hours of the day; where pedestrians hurry and loungers loiter along the foot-pavements, and sturdy guardsmen court coy nursemaids, with Berlin children dozing beside them, on the wooden benches ranged at intervals along each side of the central lime-tree avenue, from which Unter den Linden derives its name.

At the entry, so to speak, of this famous promenade, and on the verge of the Thiergarten, rises the Brandenburger Thor, a stately gateway in the style of the Propyleum at Athens, some 60 feet high and 200 feet wide, and surmounted by a colossal chariot of Victory harnessed to four prancing steeds—the laboured work of a common Berlin coppersmith after the sculptor Schadow's model. Immediately facing this triumphal arch, through the open arcades of which all the grand state entries into Berlin are made, one finds the broad Pariser Platz, bounded on its two sides by a heterogeneous assemblage of palaces and mansions, occupied as public offices or private residences, only one of which, however—the palace presented by the city of Berlin to Field Marshal Blücher—is of the smallest interest. At this end of the Linden are the Schools of Artillery and Engineers, with a couple of the Ministries, the rest being installed in, or adjacent to, Wilhelm Strasse—the Parliament and Downing-street of Berlin—which intersects the lime-tree avenue at this point, and may be regarded as the official quarter of the city. Higher up the Linden, on the northern side, is the capacious hotel of the Russian Embassy, between which and the palace of Prince Frederick of the Netherlands the broad thoroughfare is occupied on both its sides by commonplace shops, stately hotels, restaurants with beer gardens in their rear, and conditoreien, with balustrades in front, penning in their open-air customers like so many sheep. The straight and wearisomely lengthy Friedrich Strasse, with its perpetual stream of traffic, crosses the Linden at its busiest point. It is here that much of the stirring life of the city appears to culminate; here loungers congregate, and "droschken kutschers" loiter for fares, here vendors of newspapers find their customers, and "dienst-männer," in blue blouses and scarlet caps encircled with brass bands, hang about for jobs; here Berlin shoeblacks ply their trade, and the only pair of policemen who do duty on the Linden are commonly to be found. Hereabouts also are the trinkhallen and the most crowded conditoreien—where assignments are made, newspapers pored over, coffee sipped, and jam tarts devoured—to be found in all Berlin.

The eastern extremity of Unter den Linden is marked by the magnificent colossal monument erected to Frederick the Great, which completely dwarfs the adjacent two-storied edifice where the Emperor William resides—a remarkably tasteful building, which, were it only a story or two higher, might pass for a respectable clubhouse or a handsome first-class hotel. The Royal Library, which abuts upon the eastern side of the Emperor's palace, has a far more palatial façade. Spread out before it is a small garden plot, bounded on the further side by the Opera House, a vast and unquestionably elegant structure, adapted in part from the Parthenon at Athens, having its principal front in a line with the Linden, and looking on to the broad Opera Platz, at which point the five straight roads, fringed with the sickly-looking lime and chestnut trees, unite. Adjoining the Opera House, in the open space towards the east, one finds the bronze statues of Prussia's three celebrated Generals—York, Blücher, and Gneisenau—perched upon lofty pedestals and relieved by a massive background of trees, after which comes the so-called Prinzessinnen Palace, linked by an archway to the ornate edifice in which the Prince and Princess Imperial reside.

Facing the Emperor's Palace is the Academy of Arts and Sciences, a building having no pretensions to architectural beauty, but the clock of which enjoys the honour of regulating the time of Berlin, while adjoining one finds the more imposing University, the quadrangle of which is disposed in floral parterres. Eastward is the classic guard-house, flanked by Rauch's admirable statues of Generals Scharnhorst and Bulow; and higher up the Linden stands the Royal Armoury, a huge square edifice, on which native art-connoisseurs plume themselves exceedingly, maintaining it to be the handsomest edifice in all Berlin. Standing with one's back to the Linden, at the foot of the broad Schlossbrücke, spanning a narrow arm of the Spree and connecting the wide platz in front of the Armoury with the Lustgarten, one takes the finest coup-d'œil of which Berlin can boast—the panorama comprising the eight elaborate marble groups symbolical of the life of a hero, which line the bridge on both sides; the imposing façade of the old Schloss, dominated at one end by the lofty tower of the Rathhaus, and at the other by a noble dome; the Lustgarten, the former drill-ground of Frederick William I.'s gigantic guards; the bronze equestrian statue of Frederick William III.; and the Museum, surmounted by colossal groups of the horse-taming Dioscuri. The only drawback to the general effect is the Cathedral, which, spite of its portico, with its triad of colossal angels, its twin towers and prominent dome, is one of the baldest-looking and least interesting ecclesiastical edifices ever met with in a large Continental city.

At a general meeting of the governors of the Redhill Reformatory the report presented stated that the total receipts for the quarter amounted to £4468, and the expenditure to £3187. There are 301 boys in the school.

The Guardians of the South Dublin Union have resolved upon having a floating hospital built which will be capable of accommodating sixteen patients, and will be at the disposal of the board in case of an outbreak of cholera or any other epidemic.

Sir John Pakington, speaking at the opening of new school-board schools at Worcester, said he would only vote for school boards where they were necessary. Religious instruction he considered essential in all schools.

The pay of colonels of the cavalry of the Line will in future be similar to that of colonels of infantry regiments—namely, £1000, instead of £1350. This regulation applies retrospectively to officers appointed since the commencement of the present year.

UNVEILING THE SEDAN COLUMN OF VICTORY AT BERLIN.

UNTER DEN I

DEN, BERLIN.

THE EMPEROR OF CHINA.

Since October last the young Emperor of China must have had a busy time of it. On the 16th of that month he was married. He at that time took unto himself an Empress and four other wives, with a hopeful prospect of many more. At the winter solstice he had to fast and to appear as high priest at the Temple of Heaven, where he offered incense and sacrifices. Since the death of his father, in 1862, the government had been carried on by the Dowager Empress and by the young Emperor's mother, who had been raised to the dignity of an Empress on her son's elevation to the throne. These two ladies had acted as Regents till it became necessary for the Emperor to assume full power. The astronomical board were ordered to appoint an auspicious day in the second moon of this year. These astronomers, or rather astrologers and soothsayers, appointed Feb. 23 last; and on that day the regent Empresses retired, and Tung-Che began to rule as "Viceregent of all under Heaven."

Now for the audience question. In 1860, after the march of the allied English and French armies on Pekin, and the destruction of the Summer Palace, a treaty was made by which the Ministers of European Powers were allowed to keep legations at Pekin, and they were to have audiences of the Emperor—that is to say, the treaty stated that the Ministers were to be received as they would be at a European Court, but no time was stated; so that the audience question has remained since 1860 an unsolved problem.

The difficulty was this:—No one comes into the presence of the "Son of Heaven" without performing the kotow—that is, they go on all-fours three times, and each time they knock the head three times on the ground. It is also called "the three bendings and the nine knockings." If the European Ministers had been willing to go through this ceremony there would have been no difficulty in the audience question. The Emperor of China acknowledges no other power on earth as his equal: he alone expresses the will of Heaven. Hence a presumption that all must come to him as tributaries and with the homage of worshippers. The literati, or mandarin class, are opposed to all improvements. They have set their faces against railways and telegraphs. Now, the English, as well as the commercial residents in China of all other nations, are anxious for the opening up of new ports for trade, and they have been looking forward to the reception of the foreign Ministers at Pekin as the beginning of a new era. While the Emperor was in his minority it was understood that the audience question would not be pressed; but since he has assumed full powers this question has been revived, and the objects supposed to depend on it have given much importance to this matter.

On June 29 last, the Emperor did receive the Ministers of Russia, the United States, Great Britain, France, and the Netherlands. General Vlangally, the Russian Minister, read an address, which was translated by Herr Bismarck, of the German Legation, into Chinese, and was then again translated into the Manchoo Court language by Prince Kung, who knelt before the throne.

So far, a point seems to have been gained. The representatives of the principal Powers of the Western World have entered the presence of the Emperor of China without submitting to the degradation of the kotow. Still, it would seem, on a minute inspection of the details of the proceedings, that there are a number of objectionable points connected with the arrangement of the ceremony, which indicate a struggle on the part of the Chinese not to admit the "foreign barbarians" as the representatives of Powers above the rank of "tribute bearers"—this being the title always given to ambassadors coming to the Court of Pekin.

THE YOUNG EMPEROR OF CHINA, TUNG-CHE, WHANG-TI.

The young Emperor of China has just begun to rule over 360,000,000 people. With the exception of the rebellion in Yunan, in the south-west of China, the whole empire is at peace and even flourishing. It is a country larger than all Europe; but at this moment there is not a railway or a telegraph to be found from one end to the other of its vast territory. There are foreign steamers sailing between the treaty ports—such as Canton, Hong-Kong, and Shanghai—and they are always crowded with Chinese passengers, proving that the people themselves have no objection to the modern ways of travelling. San Francisco sends steamers from one side of the globe, and the Suez Canal has lately increased the number from the other. These steam-ships are not only bringing merchandise to China, but men, ideas, machinery, and everything connected with modern civilisation. Chinese exclusiveness cannot long hold out against such an invasion; and the reign of Tung-Che, just begun, is likely to see great changes before it is over.

The Emperor of China is such a very "Sacred Person" that he will not give an artist or photographer a sitting. For this cause the only way to get a representation of him that may convey some notion of his visible presence is to copy a native drawing. The costume in the Portrait we have engraved is that worn on ordinary occasions; and, as it is no new fashion, it ought to be well known, and is, no doubt, correctly represented here. The Imperial colour is yellow. On the Emperor's breast, and spotted over the dress, are conventional representations of the great Lungs or Dragon, in red.

A few biographical and historical notes must be given here. Hien-Tung, the last Emperor, came to the throne in 1852, and died in 1862, leaving the present Emperor a mere child in the charge of a Council. Prince Kung organised a coup-d'état and carried it out, putting three of the Council to death, after which he placed the young Emperor under a Regency, consisting of his own mother and the Empress Dowager, as stated above. These two ladies have lately retired from their functions. Emperors, like other mortals in China, change their names at various periods of their lives. At first the name of Chi-Seang was given him as the title by which he was to be known on the throne; but this was supposed not to be a lucky name, and it was changed to Tung-Che. That name appears on all official documents and on the coins of his reign. The meaning of this title is said to be "Union is the Cause of Law and Order," which seems a most fitting title; and it is to be hoped that the young man will do his best to carry out the purpose which his name indicates. He is also called the "Son of Heaven," the "Sacred One" or "Sacred Person," and "The August Emperor." His special title is that of Whang-Ti, which is the Chinese equivalent for "Emperor."

THE SEDAN VICTORY COLUMN AT BERLIN.

A ceremony of great national interest, not only to Prussia but to the whole of Germany, took place on Tuesday week at Berlin. That day being the anniversary of the victory of Sedan, the monument of Victory erected on the Königs-platz was unveiled with great solemnity. The Emperor William, the Imperial Prince, Prince Bismarck, the Generals, and the Ministers were present, besides the regiments of the Guard and deputations from the armies of several German States. The streets were gaily decorated and much thronged. The Emperor, the Imperial Prince, and Prince Bismarck were everywhere received by the people with enthusiastic shouts. His Majesty, on starting from the palace, read the following address to the Field-Marshal and Generals in command:—"At the outset of this significant ceremony which is to close the series of testimonials of gratitude and honour, I experience a feeling of pride at seeing you gathered around me, even as at the battles and engagements in which you so highly distinguished yourselves at the head of your troops." On arriving at the Königs-platz, his Majesty addressed the deputation from the various regiments in the following words:—"I rejoice to find the representatives of my army assembled around me on this day—one of the grandest of my whole life—on which, with feelings of the deepest gratitude, I commit to the present and future generations this Column of Victory, in memory of the deeds of the German soldiers. I authorise you to communicate these my sentiments to the troops on your return to your homes."

The scene at the performance of the ceremony is shown in our Illustration. The Emperor and Princes, with the staff, appear on horseback near the pavilion, in which the Empress and Princesses are seated. The column was described last week in our chronicle of Fine Arts. It is surmounted by a winged statue of Germania, holding a wreath of victory; its shaft is adorned with gilt cannon, pointing upwards, in the sculptured recesses; the capital of the pillar, and the balustrade of its lofty balcony, are likewise gilt. On the right hand are the stands provided for the members of the Berlin Municipality and other privileged spectators.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

Efforts have not been wanting to preserve continuity between Parliament in Session and Parliament in partibus. Even before the prorogation the doughty members for Marylebone, knowing that they would have to undergo a process which may be called electoral dentistry, thought best to meet their friends, and certainly on this occasion a few foes, as soon as possible. Doing so, as it were, under the shadow of the actual House, they, perhaps, added to their normal insignificance, inasmuch as, under such circumstances, no one would be likely to mind their utterances as much as if they had been made a week or two later. In the first days of the recess, his custom now, Mr. Mundella went to Sheffield and had his glorification. He sketched himself as a member very fairly, and in only one point seemed to overrate himself—namely, when he expressed a fear that he was rather a troublesome legislator. He need not be grievous in that regard, for reasons which are obvious to the initiated. In a very few days after Aug. 5 Mr. Lang found his way to his ultima Thule constituents, and it is to be hoped that, sometime or other, they will have the advantage of seeing a production of the most terrible caricaturist of the day, and be able to judge of the fitness of the jocular name—to wit, the "Infant Samuel"—which has been added to a "counterfeit presentment" of their member. Doubtless this honourable gentleman, when he speaks in the House, seems the very personification of guilelessness: his candour is transparent, his earnestness is evinced forcibly without the least boisterousness; while his persuasiveness is, to use an Americanism, quite "a caution." Something appears to suggest itself when he is before the House that he intends to pick up and rejoin the broken threads of his political career. Shortly after this there were two congresses of M.P.s at Gloucester at different times. In the first instance there was Mr. Monk, representative of the city, who has established a character for Parliamentary watchfulness, if that quality is to be indicated by being one of that body of members who appear to be ready to sit up to any unbounded hour in the morning. He was in his proper place, of course; but the incursion of such foreigners as Mr. Samuelson, most anxious and suggestive (in a beseeching way) of legislators, and Mr. Wren Hoskyns—most gentlemanly, sensible, and practical of landowners, who is, nevertheless, a land-tenure reformer—is not so easily accounted for by the uninitiated. Still, they discoursed plentifully, seasoned their discourses with strong Liberalism, and did not appear to be mightily proud of the legislative performances of the Session. Anon there came together at the same place a body of what, under the circumstances, may be called political counter-irritants—namely, Mr. Wait, who lately won for Conservatism the seat for Gloucester vacated by Mr. Price, when he became a Railway Commissioner, and who has not yet, one believes, got beyond asking a question in the House. Then there was Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, who, though gentle in his rhetoric almost even to melancholy, generally has something to say when he speaks, and who is regarded hopefully by his party in Parliament; and Mr. Reginald Yorke, his colleague in the representation of Gloucestershire, and they held sympathetic converse with one of those curious institutions known as working men's Conservative Associations, doubtless to great mutual edification.

Often there arises from a central place on the seat just behind the Treasury bench a gentleman whose aspect, manner, and mode of utterance suggest the possession of a quantity of sageness and experience-bought wisdom, but who, when he makes a set speech, inevitably calls to mind that which was the perpetual cry of the used-up man in the play, "there's nothing in it." Well, this gentleman, who is member for the hybrid borough of Berwick-on-Tweed, has just achieved a distinction, inasmuch as he has delivered to his constituents an address which is really in consonance with the profound gravity and sagacity of his manner and appearance, the subject being the "price of labour." Such was it that leaders have been written upon it in newspapers, and for an hour or two at breakfast-time Mr. Stapleton has been famous all over the country, and thereon he is to be congratulated. As ever, faithful and true, Colonel North and Mr. Henley have begun their autumn circuit in Oxfordshire, and their meetings with their constituents have, as ever, been pleasant and successful; and they, too, have, as usual, formed themes for editorial comment. It would seem, both from the tone of his speeches in the country and in the House, that Colonel North has lost hope in regard to military matters, and that he believes the Army is on the eve of running down Niagara. There has consequently come over him a sort of manly pathos, when he speaks of that profession to which he is so devoted, which contrasts with his former brisk, bold, and genial manner. As to Mr. Henley, up to the end of last Session he continued to be a wonder of a legislator. No one stayed so many hours in the House; no one watched so carefully the details of every measure; and, though labouring under considerable disadvantage in regard to accurately appreciating everything that was going on, he seemed as prompt and as keen as ever in detecting fallacies in the speeches of previous speakers, and as suggestive as he was wont in supplying sound practical sense in the place of them. As may be supposed, the Oxfordshire electors were warm in their reception of the Nestor of the House of Commons, and he seemed to be warmed by the manner in which he was received, and talked in that blithesome, quaint, and suggestive way which is peculiar to him, the traditions of which ought to be preserved by giving it the appellation of "Henleyese." When he was enabled at Sheffield to liberate his mind in reference to all the criticisms that have been heaped upon him, Mr. Lowe did not for a moment condescend to accuse himself by excusing himself. Though simple in language and studiously undefiant, his speech was, perhaps, as fine a specimen of quiet audacity as was ever known. What a revelation it was of the best of all possible statesmen striving and working for his country's good through nothing but evil report, bearing calumny and misrepresentation with the smiling face of a Spartan, and gently and very secretly returning good for evil, in spite of the malign influence of such an indolent and incompetent Financial Secretary to the Treasury as Mr. Baxter! But though he may now suppose himself to be triumphant, Mr. Lowe has some troubles before him, for as Home Secretary he will be, in the absence of the Prime Minister, leader of the House, must always stay until it rises, and so have to assuage those tumults which are wont to rage between two and three in the morning, while he must besides be regular leader on Wednesdays. Has anyone thought how these duties will be performed by him?

Perhaps there could not be a greater contrast than there is between the rhetorical qualities of the Prime Minister and his son. Mr. W. H. Gladstone has not a particle of the fire and rapidity, and none of the eloquence, of his father. He is slow in utterance and lymphatic in manner, but he speaks without hesitation, and on the few occasions on which he has addressed the House he has given an idea that he has been thinking about what he meant to say. Just now he has made a mark on the public mind by a speech which he has delivered to his constituents at Whitby, which goes much nearer to a declaration by a subordinate of Ministerial policy than is customary in the addresses of Cabinet Ministers; and, as what he said is weighty, it will be considered more weighty still, because it is believed that he was speaking vicariously, and therefore with a certain authority.

DISASTERS.

Mr. Irwin, a gentleman from Bath, who was on a holiday tour in North Devon, fell over the rocks at Lynton, yesterday week, and was dashed to pieces.

A boat with eight miners on board was capsized in the sea at Saltburn, Yorkshire, on Saturday, and five were drowned.

The ship Gratitude was lost, on the 10th ult., off Pattew, Holland, and eight of her crew were drowned.

Three seamen fell from aloft on board H.M.S. Achilles, and were killed, during the recent cruise for coastguard training.

Three servant girls, while bathing at low water, from the rocks at North Berwick, on Monday, got beyond their depth, and two of them were drowned.

The Holcar cotton-mills, near Rawtenstall, worked by Messrs. James Ashworth and Co., have been partially burnt.

Two children were burned to death, yesterday week, in an outhouse filled with straw, which is believed to have been accidentally ignited by the children while they were playing with some matches they had got possession of.

Mr. W. Arthur, of Truro, and Mr. Burgess, of Hoyle, were drowned in St. Ives Bay on Sunday, the boat in which they were having capsized while they were changing oars.

Augustus Brown, a boy, living in Charles-street, Caledonian-road, London, has died from the effects of a blow on the ear from a potato which a playfellow threw at him.

Two pit-boys at Caseley were amusing themselves by trying which of them could drive the point of a pick farthest into a timber-post, when one of the boys, swinging the implement over his head, caused it to penetrate the neck of his companion, who died almost on the instant.

Two hundred men and boys, through the breaking of some machinery, were imprisoned for sixteen hours in the Strand-lane Colliery Company's pit at Radcliffe.

A verdict of "Accidental death" has been returned with respect to the three men who were buried alive in a tunnel connected with the East London Railway Extension at Wapping.

Elizabeth Rice, a child, seven years of age, residing at Lewisham-street, Westminster, has been killed by falling on the broken edge of a teacup, thus severing the jugular vein.

While a party of sailors were returning to H.M.S. Tyrian, lying at anchor off Montrose dock, two of their number attempted to ascend the ship's ladder at the same time. They both fell back, and the boat went down. Three of the crew were rescued, but the fourth, named Alfred Ball, was drowned.

A Coroner's inquiry is pending as to the causes of the recent explosion in an ammunition-factory at East Greenwich. Two persons have already died.

A man, who refused to give his name to the police, made three attempts to kill himself in the City on Tuesday. He threw himself down before a cart at the corner of Gracechurch-street and Fenchurch-street, and the vehicle passed over him; he then placed himself in front of a hansom cab, the wheels passing over his neck and shoulders; and, finally, he endeavoured to get run over by a dray.

Several cases of mysterious disappearance have been reported. A man attended at the Hammersmith Police Court and stated that his daughter, nineteen years of age, who was in service, dressed to go on an excursion to the seaside on Saturday week and had not returned. Ned McIntyre, a painter, who was sent from Ludgate-hill to Dover, is reported to be missing. It is thought he left the train at Faversham, and is wandering about the country. He was weak-minded. Mrs. Mary Solomon, aged sixty-six, left her home, on the 26th ult., for the purpose of shopping, and never returned. Mrs. Gurnett, of Russell-court, Drury-lane, stated, at Bow-street, that her daughter, fifteen years of age, went out on Saturday week and did not return, and no trace of her has since been discovered.

An inquest was held last Saturday, at Gower-street, on the body of Miss Mary Alice Lewin, aged thirty-three, who had committed suicide by hanging herself to her bedstead. It was shown that since March last, when her mother, with whom she had lived all her life, died, Miss Lewin had been very depressed in spirits, and had complained much of restlessness and want of sleep. A verdict was returned that she hanged herself whilst in a state of temporary insanity. A newsgate at Surbiton named Cockle, who, it is alleged, was to have been called as a witness on behalf of the Claimant, has committed suicide by placing himself in the way of a passing train on the railway which runs near his house. He had been in low spirits for some time, and a Coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while in an infirm state of mind. The body of a man who committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor at Vauxhall railway station on Sunday, the 24th ult., has been identified, by means of his clothes, as William Neal Robinson, Drummond-road, Bermondsey, a banker's clerk.

The court of inquiry into the loss of the ship Empress of India has suspended the certificate of Mr. Caltro, the master, for three months from the date of the loss of his vessel. The official report of the Board of Trade inquiries into the loss of the brigantine Vesper has been issued. There appears to the Court to have been no sufficient cause for the master abandoning the ship, and that his having done so led to this sad loss of life. They are, therefore, of opinion that his conduct merits the severe censure of the Court, and had he held a certificate as master, they would have considered it necessary to have suspended it for six months. The Court considers that the owners, Messrs. Quin, are indirectly responsible for the loss of life, inasmuch as the vessel was sent to sea with an insufficient crew. The owners are therefore ordered to pay £15 towards the cost of the inquiry. The inquiry into the wreck of the ship Dunmail has resulted in a report that the Court is not satisfied that the master exercised as active a supervision of the pilot and the navigation, from the time of leaving the Sloyne, as he might and ought to have done. The Court finds, therefore, that the master has been guilty of negligence, and his certificate is suspended for three months. The Court has placed on record their high sense of the services of the Liverpool and New Brighton life-boats. The inquiry into the loss of the abandoned brig Isabella and Mary, of South Shields, has concluded. The owners, Messrs. J. L. Hall and Co., put in a letter, which stated that "a more scandalous loss was never done by British seamen;" but the Court found "that the loss is to be attributed to the bad condition of the vessel, and that the captain was justified in leaving her, and not at all to blame." The captain's certificate was, therefore, returned.

The Coroner's inquiry into the recent collision at Retford ended in the jury returning a verdict of manslaughter against Bryant, the driver of the goods-train, who was committed for trial. The adjourned inquiry conducted on behalf of the Board of Trade into the cause of the accident was resumed by Colonel Rich on Saturday. In the course of the day Colonel Rich expressed a strong opinion against level crossings, which, he said, could not be worked without danger; but said it appeared that, Parliament having sanctioned this one, it was out of the power of the Board of Trade to make any alteration. In reference to the Wigan railway accident the jury have found a verdict of "Accidental death," adding the opinion that trains ought not to be permitted to run through stations at so high a speed as was the case with the tourist-train on the night of the accident. Three men who were working on the Consett branch of the North-Eastern Railway, at Derwenthaugh, near Newcastle, last Saturday, were knocked down by an engine, and two of them were killed. They had stepped from the up to the down rails to allow a train to pass, and were cut down by another train coming in an opposite direction. An engine-driver named Harris, was, on Thursday week, run over near the railway station at Bury St. Edmunds, by an engine which was coming out of the shed, and his body completely cut in two. A train going from Helensburgh to Glasgow on Saturday evening had proceeded about a mile and a half on its journey when it was observed that one of the third-class carriages was on fire. The passengers escaped through the windows, and many of them were found lying on the line. Six of them—five men and a young woman—were suffering from severe injuries. The carriage was in a short time completely destroyed. The accident, it is stated, was caused by a man who was smoking throwing a lighted match on the floor where some paraffin oil had been spilled. Both the lads who were thrown from the wooden bridge that was destroyed in the railway accident that occurred near West Hartlepool on Monday last have died from the injuries they sustained. A collision between two goods-trains occurred on the Great Western line, near Lydney, on Thursday week, by which a number of trucks, with the goods they carried, were damaged. On the Irish North-Western Railway, yesterday week, two cattle-waggons having been left on the line from Fintona to Derry, the first up passenger-train dashed into them, injuring the cattle and causing much destruction of permanent stock. The mail service from Dublin was impeded until the broken waggons and maimed bullocks were removed. Through a bullock having strayed on to the line, the express-train from Portsmouth, which was due at Guildford on Tuesday at two o'clock, was thrown off the metals near Pease Marsh Bridge, and rolled over an embankment ten feet deep. Miss Martin, from Milford, and Mrs. Bringer, of Godalming, were killed, as was an infant belonging to the latter. Thirteen other persons were so much injured that they had to be taken to the Surrey County Hospital. Cannon-street Terminus has had a slight share of the prevalent railway casualties. On Tuesday morning, when the up traffic was at its busiest, the bridge was blocked for nearly an hour by the overturning of two empty waggons. While it was being cleared City passengers were backed into the London Bridge station and discharged there. Ann Evans, a woman of sixty-seven years of age, was killed at the Plympton station of the South Devon Railway, on Tuesday afternoon, while crossing the line of rails instead of by the bridge.

The annual Argyllshire gathering took place at Ohan on Thursday week. The athletic sports were witnessed by a distinguished company, including the Marquis of Lorne.

The Leeds Royal Park, where galas and other amusements have been held for years, has been sold by auction for building purposes for £16,500. It contains a little over twenty acres.

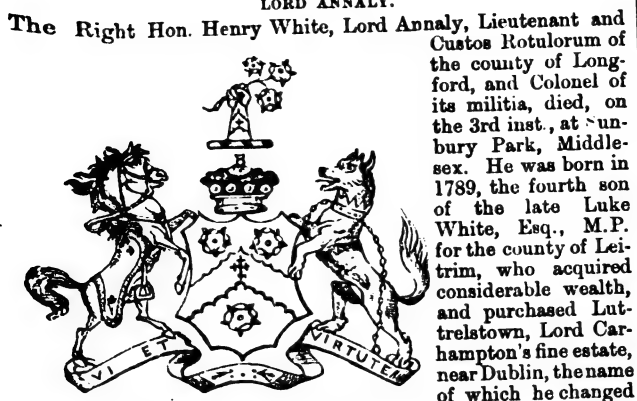

Typhoid fever in Wolverhampton has been traced, by the medical officer of health, to the milk, or at least to the impure water used in the habitual adulteration of that fluid. There have been sixty cases of the disease and four deaths.

An engagement took place at Shelbrooke, Cannock Chase, on Thursday week, between the northern or invading army, under Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and the southern army, under General Sir J. Douglas. The latter had to withdraw his flank before the battle began, as the umpire considered the position he had taken up too strong. Prince Edward attacked both wings of the southern army simultaneously, and, after a hard fight, succeeded in turning General Douglas's right flank, thereby winning the battle. On Monday General Lysons had an opportunity of experimenting against an imaginary foe with a "new system of attack" of his own invention, which looks very like a revival of a very ancient method. During a cavalry charge in the earlier portion of the day, a man who was looking on dropped down dead, it is believed from heart disease. The corporal of the Coldstream Guards who assaulted the county police, last Saturday week, has been sentenced to a fortnight's imprisonment. On Tuesday there was another fight, and on Wednesday some races came off, under the patronage of General Lysons.

Several munificent gifts have lately been made. Mr. Andrew Carnegie, of New York, has intimated his willingness to give £5000 for the erection of public baths in Dunfermline, of which city he is a native. Lord Galloway, who is a member of the Episcopal Church, has intimated that he will subscribe £250 to the Church of Scotland endowment scheme. The Bristol Post records two gifts by Mr. William Sommerville, of Bitten-hill. The first is a contribution of £1000 to the National Life-Boat Institution for the purpose of providing a life-boat with her full equipment; and the second a donation of £102 to the Bristol Hospital for Sick Children for wiping off the debt left from last year, and of "affording a practical expression of approval of the management of the hospital." Mr. Job Himelver, of Manchester, has presented, as the gift of a working man, £480 for a life-boat. Two citizens of Dublin (understood to be Sir A. Guinness and Mr. Henry Roe) have offered to subscribe £10,000 towards the sum of £22,000 estimated to be necessary to open up a new street from Dame-street to Christ Church. The good folk of St. Mary Cray are greatly indebted to the kindness of Mr. Joynson, the large paper manufacturer, who resides amongst them. Mr. Joynson employs nearly 1000 hands, and, seeing that the people had no resort in the summer months, he resolved to throw open some recreation-grounds for their use. These comprise many acres, and are gracefully laid out. The ceremony of opening these grounds was attended by nearly 6000 persons. Mr. Joynson has also established a public institute and reading-room, and he has a school where he is educating at his own cost about 600 children.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

LORD ANNALY.

The Right Hon. Henry White, Lord Annaly, Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of the county of Longford, and Colonel of its militia, died, on the 3rd inst., at "unbury Park, Middlesex. He was born in 1789, the fourth son of the late Luke White, Esq., M.P. for the county of Leitrim, who acquired considerable wealth, and purchased Luttrellstown, Lord Carhampton's fine estate, near Dublin, the name of which he changed to Woodlands. His Lordship was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, where he graduated B.A. in 1810, and, having entered the Army, served in the 14th Dragoons at the latter end of the Peninsular campaign, for which he received a medal and two clasps. Always a consistent and zealous Liberal, he sat in the House of Commons, as member for the county of Dublin, from 1823 to 1832, and subsequently for the county of Longford. In 1863 he was raised to the Peerage of the United Kingdom as Baron Annaly, of Annaly and Rathcline. He married, Oct. 8, 1828, Ellen, daughter of William S. Dempster, Esq., of Skibo Castle, in the county of Sutherland, and by her (who died May 12, 1868) had issue six sons and two daughters. Of the daughters the elder, Ellen, is wife of Lieutenant-Colonel Holden, and the second, Emilie, of the Hon. Robert W. Grosvenor, M.P. Of the sons the third and fourth were accidentally killed, the second and sixth have died unmarried, and the only survivors are the eldest, Luke, now second Lord Annaly, State Steward to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, who was born in 1829, and married, in 1853, Emily, daughter of James Stuart, Esq.; and the fifth, Charles William, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Scots Fusilier Guards, M.P. for the county of Tipperary, and Lord Lieutenant of the county of Clare.

SIR ROBERT FITZWYGRAM, BART.

Sir Robert Fitzwygram, third Baronet, of Walthamstow, in the county of Essex, died on the 3rd instant. He was born in 1813, the eldest son of the late Sir Robert Fitzwygram, Bart., by Selina, his wife, daughter of Sir John Hayes, Bart., and was grandson of Robert Wigram, of London, merchant and shipowner, who acquired great wealth by commercial pursuits, and was created a Baronet, Oct. 23, 1805. The surname was changed to Fitzwygram by Sir Robert, the second Baronet, in 1832. The Baronet whose death we record was educated at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1834. At the death of his father, in 1843, he succeeded to the title, which, as he was never married, now devolves on his next surviving brother, Sir Frederick Wellington John Fitzwygram, fourth Baronet, Lieutenant-Colonel of the 15th Hussars, who was born in 1823.

LADY NORREYS.

Caroline, Lady Norreys, died, on the 4th inst., at Wytham Abbey, in the county of Oxford, aged thirty-five. Her Ladyship was the eldest daughter of Charles Towneley, Esq., of Towneley, in the county of Lancaster, by Lady Caroline, his wife, daughter of Philip, second Earl of Sefton, and was consequently sister to Lady Alexander Gordon-Lennox, and to Lady O'Hagan, wife of the present Lord Chancellor of Ireland. She was married, July 10, 1858, to Lord Norreys, the eldest son and heir-apparent of Montagu, Earl of Abingdon, and leaves issue.

The Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge University has prohibited the appearance of the Tichborne Claimant at the Cambridge Theatre.

Some correspondence has passed between a committee of the Trades Union Congress and the Home Secretary, who has promised to consider their representations as to the legal proceedings which should be taken against trades-union officers guilty of misconduct.

Sir Joseph Whitworth has prepared a memorandum upon his scholarships, approved by the Council of Education, South Kensington, the principal points of which are as follow:—Every candidate shall produce a certificate that he has worked in a mechanical engineer's shop or in the drawing-office for two years consecutively. Every candidate must be under twenty-two years of age. He will be examined in smith's work, turning, filing and fitting, pattern making and moulding. He will be examined in theory and practice every year. The scholarships may be held for three years, but may be withdrawn if progress be unsatisfactory. The number will be reduced for 1874 from ten to six, each of a fixed annual value of £100, with an additional annual sum for progress—viz., the best scholar, £100; second, £60; third, £50; fourth, £40; fifth, £30; and sixth, £20. At the end of the three years' tenure £200 and £100 will be awarded to the two scholars of each year's set who may have done best.

A statue of gigantic proportions, erected on a rock on the Anglesea shore of Menai Strait, was unveiled, on Tuesday, by Lady Clarence Paget. The statue was modelled and executed, after two years' patient labour, by Admiral Lord Clarence Paget; and it is below his residence in Anglesea that it is placed. The material is a combination of limestone and Portland cement, and the figure is strengthened by the insertion of a central iron cone. The noble Lord's primary object was to show that statues can be constructed of a material little inferior to marble in appearance, and probably more durable, at one-tenth the cost; and thus he has endeavoured to carry out the desire of the Prince Consort. The statue, including plinth, is 19 ft. in height, and the pedestal and basement tower are 22 ft. high, making a total height of 41 ft. It is intended as a landmark to warn mariners of dangerous rocks on the Carnarvonshire and Anglesea side of the strait, and was dedicated by Lady Clarence Paget "To all mariners." Salutes were fired from an Admiralty steamer, and ashore a detachment of naval reserve men and coastguards fired a feu de joie, whilst a military band played "Rule Britannia." Afterwards the distinguished company were entertained at a déjeuner, presided over by Earl Cowley.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* * All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

O. A. PROWSE, Iowa.—Received with thanks, and replied to by letter.

R. T. Belfast.—It was afterwards corrected, we believe, to "five or six moves." The winning move, of course, upon the Black King going to Q square is not 22. R takes Q Pawn (ch), but 22. B to Kt 6th.

T. W. SHARMAN.—That, indeed, would be a childish mate. How is it possible you can miss seeing that the Black Pawn would take the Bishop, becoming a Queen?

J. P. Bedford.—We do not recollect the Problem "No. 3" at the moment. It is probably in the examens hands; but the amended version shall be substituted for the former copy.

A. GROPER IN THE DARK.—The Chessplayer's Handbook, 5s., published by Bell and Daldy, York-street, Covent-garden.

LIONEL.—You will find a long notice of the Vienna Tournament and a table showing the score of each player in our last.

ERATUM.—In the notice of the Vienna Chess Tourney, last week, where the round between Mr. Blackburne and Mr. Rosenthal is mentioned, instead of "secured the 4th prize," read "fourth prize."

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1541.

WHITE. 1. R to K R sq. BLACK. K takes Kt (*) 2. R to K sq. 3. P gives mate.

(*) 1. 2. Kt to Q 6th (ch) K moves

3. P to K 4th Dia. ch. and Mate.

PROBLEM NO. 1542.

By Sheriff SPENS, of Hamilton.

BLACK.

WHITE.
White to play, and mate in two moves.

A GAME IN THE VIENNA TOURNAMENT.

The following is a Game of the Match between Messrs. BLACKBURNE and PAULSEN. In this match Mr. B. won two games and lost one game.

(Philidor's Defence.)

WHITE (Mr. B.) BLACK (Mr. P.)

1. P to K 4th P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd P to Q 3rd
3. P to Q 4th Kt to Q 2nd

This is not a commendable way of continuing the defence.

4. B to Q 4th Kt to Q Kt 3rd
5. B to Q Kt 3rd P takes P
6. Q takes P B to K 3rd
7. Kt to Q B 3rd Kt to K 2nd
8. B to K B 4th Kt to K Kt 3rd
9. R to K Kt 3rd Q to Q 2nd
10. R to Q sq

The superior development of White's forces is very manifest. This is partly due to the nature of the opening, which is advantageous to the first player, and partly to Mr. Paulsen's third move.

11. R P takes B B takes B
12. Q to Q 2nd P to K B 3rd

To make way for his K Kt to be moved to the Q's 4th.

13. Kt to Q 4th B to K 2nd
14. Kt to K B 5th R to K B 2nd
15. Q to K 2nd R to K sq
16. Q to K Kt 4th B to K B sq
17. Castles K to R sq
18. Q to K R 5th Kt to K 4th
19. P to K B 4th P to K Kt 3rd

This was not a good return; he should have retreated his Kt.

20. Q to K R 3rd Kt to Q B 3rd and wins.

ANOTHER GAME IN THE VIENNA TOURNAMENT.

A fine Game, played in the third round, between Messrs. ANDERSEN and ROSENTHAL.—(Scott Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. R.) BLACK (Mr. A.)

1. P to K 4th P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd P to Q B 3rd
3. P to Q 4th P takes P
4. Kt takes P B to Q 4th
5. B to K 3rd Kt to K B 3rd
6. P to Q B 3rd Kt to K 2nd
7. P to K B 4th P to Q 3rd
8. Kt to Q R 3rd Kt takes Kt
9. P takes Kt B to Q Kt 5th (ch)

B takes Kt Castles P to Q B 3rd P to Q 4th Q to K R 5th (ch) Q to K R 6th

This appears to have lost time and weakened White's game.

10. K to B 2nd B takes B
11. P takes B P to Q B 3rd
12. R to Q B sq P to Q 4th
13. B to Q 3rd Q to K R 5th (ch)
14. P to K 5th Q to K R 6th
15. P to K Kt 3rd B to K B sq
16. B to K B sq

17. B to Q 3rd P to K B 4th
18. B to Q 2nd P to Q Kt 3rd
19. B to Q Kt 4th B to Q Kt 2nd
20. Q to K R 5th B to K B 2nd
21. K R to K Kt sq Kt to K Kt 3rd
22. K to K 3rd

It has been suggested, rightly, we think, that, if Mr. Rosenthal had played his Bishop at Q 6th, he would have had the better game. The move made was an act of felo de se.

22. P to Q 4th

From this point the play of Mr. Andersen is many respects, worthy of his palatine days.

23. P takes P P to Q 5th (ch) An excellent move.

24. K to Q 2nd

By taking the Pawn he would have been subjected to an overpowering attack.

25. P to Q B 6th B takes P
26. B to Q 6th B to Q 4th
27. K R to K B sq P to Q Kt 4th
28. P to K Kt 5th B to K 5th

29. R to Q B 2nd R to Q sq
30. P takes K B P R takes P
31. Q to K 2nd

He would have retained a strong attack by giving up his Queen, but whether sufficient to compensate for so great a sacrifice is doubtful.

32. Q takes B Kt takes K B P
33. Q takes Q Kt P Q to K R 3rd

Another very good move.

34. K to Q sq P to Q 6th
35. Q to Q B 4th (ch) Kt to K sq
36. Q R to K B 2nd Kt to K Kt 7th
37. Q takes P

38. K to K 2nd R takes R (ch)
39. R to K 7th Kt to K Kt 5th
40. R to K B 3rd Q takes P (ch)
41. K to K sq Kt takes P
42. B takes Kt Q takes Q (ch)
43. Q to K 2nd P to K Kt 3rd
44. K takes Q R to Q 4th
45. R to K B 7th R to K B 5th
46. R to Q R 7th

The winning coup.

47. K to K 3rd P to K R 4th
48. R to Q Kt 7th P to K R 5th
49. R to Q B 7th P to K R 6th
50. K to K 4th R to K R 4th
51. R to K B sq K to K 2nd
52. K to K 4th P to R 7th
53. R to K sq K to B 3rd
54. K to Kt 3rd P to Q R 5th
55. K to Kt 2nd K to K 4th
56. K to Kt 3rd R to R 5th
57. K to B 3rd R to R 6th (ch)
58. K to Kt 2nd K to K 5th
59. K to B 2nd R takes Q R P, and Mr. Rosenthal abandoned the game.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The confirmation, under seal of the Commissariat of Roxburgh, dated Aug. 8, of Lord Henry Kerr, Francis Ernest Kerr, George Bayley, and William Williams as the surviving executors of the will and codicils of the late Mr. Hope-Scott, Q.C., was sealed, on the 20th ult., at the principal registry, London, the inventory of the personal estate and effects in England, Ireland, and Scotland amounting to £130,000.

The will of Miss Ann Lee, formerly of Southernhay House, Exeter, but late of No. 2, Upper Grosvenor-street, was proved, on the 2nd inst., by Augustus William Henry Meyrick, the surviving executor, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. After payment of a few legacies, the said A. W. H. Meyrick takes the whole of deceased's property, including the freehold estate of Southernhay House.

The will, with two codicils, of Joseph Scott, late of Colney Hall, near Norwich, was proved, on the 15th ult., by Joseph Stonehewer Scott-Chad (the son), John Oliver Hanson and Adolphus William Hume (the nephews), the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testator leaves to his four daughters £13,000 each, free of duty; and the residue of his property, subject to a few legacies, to his said son.

The will and codicil of Samuel Fernyhough, late of the Grange, Cheadle, near Stockport, Cheshire, were proved at the district registry, Chester, on the 16th ult., by Anne Fernyhough, the relict, John Frederick Sutcliffe, and Edward Ashe, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. Subject to annuities to his brother and half-sister, the bequests of the will and codicil are wholly in favour of testator's wife and children.

The will and codicil of Walter Chamberlain Hemming, late of Spring Grove, Kidderminster, were proved, on the 23rd ult., by Mrs. Fanny Hemming (the relict), the Rev. William Lea, and George Edward Martin, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testator gives to his widow a legacy of £1000 and an annuity of £800, in addition to the provision made for her by settlement: to his eldest daughter, Margaret Georgina Hemming, £10,000, and devises to her for life the Spring Grove estate, with remainder to the use of her first and every subsequent son, according to seniority in tail male; to his three youngest daughters he leaves £10,000 each, and the residue to his said eldest daughter.

The will, with one codicil, of the late John Stuart Mill was proved, on the 5th inst., by Miss Helen Taylor, the sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £14,000. The testator devises and bequeaths to his stepdaughter, the said Helen Taylor, all his real and personal estate absolutely. He also expressly appoints her his literary executor, with full power to edit any of his works or publish any of his manuscripts as she may think fit. The testator has confided to Miss Taylor an account of his life written by himself, which she is to publish or not at her discretion; and he states that she alone has the necessary materials and knowledge for a biography of him, both literary and private. Testator has made another will relating to his property in France.

The wills of the following persons have recently been proved—viz., Mrs. Elizabeth Yates, of No. 285, Kennington-road, under £35,000; Samuel Bright, of Rochdale, under £10,000; the Hon. Enrichetta, Countess Inghirami (formerly Viscountess Weymouth), under £10,000; Dona Maria Antonia de Sarrazabel, of 117, Calle, Magor, Madrid, under £18,000; Thomas Mitchell, of No. 11, Colleshill-street, Eaton-square, under £30,000; the Hon. Emily Henrietta Bassett, under £16,000; John Hales, of the Stock Exchange, and Malvern House, Tulse-hill, under £12,000; Edward Jones, of 138, Leadenhall-street, and Canonbury Park South, merchant, under £18,000; and the Hon. Anna Maria Gage, under £10,000.

In reference to the will of the late Mr. Holmes, reported last week, we may mention that it is dated March, 1869; and that subsequently Mr. Holmes retired from the printing business and sold his share in the Athenaeum to the proprietor of the dominant interest.

A scheme is projected for improving the attraction of the People's Garden at Willesden and making it a common resort for members of working men's clubs.

A return has been printed of the number of persons charged under schedule D (trades and professions) to the income tax for the years 1868 to 1872 inclusive. Last year, to April 5, the number of persons charged in Great Britain was 437,773. The amount of income charged with the tax was £122,217,418, and the amount of tax charged £3,055,336. There were 857 persons charged at £10,000 and under £50,000; and at £50,000 and upwards, sixty-eight persons. In 1868 the number of persons charged with the income tax under the same schedule (D) was 379,290; the income charged with tax was £105,902,810; and the amount of tax charged, £2,206,146. Similar accounts are given under schedule E. Last year, ending April 5, in Great Britain, the amount charged with tax was £23,991,905; the number of persons, 147,779; and the amount of tax, £599,459. Under the several schedules last year in Great Britain the tax was net £9,765,393. Returns are given as to Ireland, as Scotland is included in Great Britain. Under the several schedules the net amount was £597,853; in 1868 it was £459,215, and last year as to Ireland it was the highest.

The report of the ninth decennial census of the United States has been published. It is in three volumes. The first deals with the subject of population, and the maps with which it is illustrated display its relative density in the different States, the distribution of English, Germans, Irish, Swedes, and Chinese, the preponderance of education and wealth, and the political and geographical division of the union from its origin to the year 1870. In the second volume the annual rainfall and the variations of temperature are made plain by maps as well as by columns of statistics; and the relative predominance of the different diseases, phthisis, typhus, and typhoid fever, and epidemic maladies are illustrated in the same way. The last volume treats of the wealth, industry, and commerce of the country, shows how far agriculture has been developed, and gives the present condition of the five staple agricultural products—cotton, maize, corn, hay, and tobacco. The total population of the United States in 1870 amounted to nearly 39 millions. The previous census showed it to be 31 millions, that for 1850 23 millions, and for 1840 only 17 millions. Thus in thirty years the population doubled itself. White men increased at the rate of 39, 36, and 30 per cent during the three decennial periods from 1840 to 1870, while the increase amongst the negro population, starting at 29 per cent, dwindled down to 22, and ultimately to 11 per cent. Of the 39 millions of inhabitants, these tables show that 5,567,229 are strangers. These may be divided roughly into an English-speaking population and a population of foreigners. The former amount to more than three millions, of whom nearly two-thirds are Irish. Amongst the foreign population, which includes Mexicans, Chinese, and gipsies, the Germans form a proportion almost as large as the Irish in the other schedule; and in New York and Pennsylvania they form a quarter of the stranger population.

STREET SCENE IN PEKIN.

The following note by our Special Artist, lately in China, explains one of his sketches—

"As the population of Peking are mostly Government pensioners, with no trade or occupation, they are an idle people. Having nothing to do, any amusement attracts them. As an artist I can speak from experience of their idle curiosity. To produce a sketch-book in the streets of Peking is simply a signal to be mobbed. They do not intend to be rude, but they crowd round in such numbers to see what the 'foreign devil' is doing with a book and a pencil in his hand, that the subject to be sketched cannot be seen. As the mob increases, the late arrivals on the outer circumference cannot see what is going on, so they push and squeeze to get even a peep at the 'devil,' and the result is a surging mass which renders all sketching an utter impossibility. I have had some experience of sketching in various parts of the East, and could always manage to accomplish my purpose, but a Chinese crowd has been too much for me. I contrived to get a sketch of the palace where the Imperial bride resided before her marriage, by having one or two friends who managed to keep a small space for me, while I made a rapid outline; but I had to be quick about it, for the whole street began to fill; and although the Chinamen who were close to me did all they could, they were helpless to keep the crowd back, as they were pushed upon me and my friends by the force of numbers around. Even after I had put the sketch-book out of sight our difficulties seemed to increase, and it was only after much struggling that some of the Imperial officials got us into a court and shut the gate, and there we remained till the crowd was somewhat abated.

"This illustration represents a favourite amusement of the Chinese, but which is more familiar to the streets of Peking than elsewhere, for the reason that there is a larger population with nothing to do. Almost every man you meet in the streets has a bird on a stick which he carries in his hand. There is a cross stick on the top as a perch, and the bird is fastened by a small string. A Peking man seems always to have his bird with him. What a dog is in England a bird seems to be here: it is the constant companion. From boyhood up to the most advanced age a bird seems a necessary part of a man's existence. Some persons even carry a bird in each hand. Instead of the stick, some walk about with their birds in small, neat, round cages. The birds are trained to fly in the air in peculiar whirls and return to the hand. They will fly in circles over the head while the owner throws up seeds, which they catch in passing. It is beautiful to see how perfect the birds are in performing various feats of this kind, how tame and docile their training has made them, how quick they are to obey, and with what confidence they return to the hand of their master, indicating far more intelligence and capability for education than one would be prepared to accede to the bird creation. Anyone taking a walk through the streets of Peking would be induced to believe that there is much more amusement to be got from birds than by merely shooting them with a gun. Whatever may be the Chinaman's faults, here at least many of our people at home might copy him with advantage to themselves, and certainly with no disadvantage to the birds."

SKETCHES IN CHINA: STREET SCENE IN PEKIN

M. Mandar, Mayor of St. Just-sur-Loire, died in 1872, leaving a will, with instructions that it was not to be opened until a year after his death. That interval having expired, the seals were broken a few days back, when the deceased was found to have left to the Commune all the property that he possessed there, representing a value of from 220,000*fr.* to 250,000*fr.*; also a sum of 40,000*fr.*, the interest of which was to be applied to gratuitous instruction; the reversion, at the death of his widow, of a mansion and grounds, to be used as an hospital, and a sum of 20,000*fr.* to endow it with a chaplain; and, lastly, 10,000*fr.* for the poor.

Mr. Lowe was one of the guests at the Sheffield Cutlers' feast on Thursday week, and replied to the toast of her Majesty's Ministers. He sketched very rapidly the programme which the Government had set before themselves when they took office in 1868, and the work they had accomplished. He pointed out the odium which had attached to himself because he had done what he thought best to promote economy in all the public departments. Mr. Lowe was most warmly received.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 108, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 108, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1873.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1777.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1873.

WITH EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

THE ASHANTEE WAR: HOWITZER BATTERY FOR NEGRO GUNNERS.

THE COURT.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove from Inverloch Castle, yesterday (Friday) week, through Fort William and Achintore, and across Inverloch Moor to Old Inverloch Castle. After inspecting the ruins her Majesty returned to Fort William and partook of luncheon, after which the Queen drove towards Inverloch suspension-bridge and to Achnacarry, where her Majesty was met by Mr. Cameron, of Lochiel, and conducted by the chief to his steam yacht, in which the Queen made an excursion on Loch Araig. Her Majesty took some sketches of the Achnasaul hills. The Queen returned in the evening to Inverloch Castle. Fort William was gaily decorated and illuminated, and the country around was brilliant with bonfires and fireworks in honour of the Royal visit. On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove from Inverloch Castle, through Fort William, to Ballachulish, where a large assemblage of the country people had assembled on the banks of Loch Leven to greet her Majesty. The Queen walked along the jetty, which was covered with Campbell tartan, to the boat Swan, which was lined with Cameron tartan, and crossed the loch, where her Majesty was received upon landing by the Rev. Alexander Stewart, of Nether Lochaber. The Queen drove thence along the shores of Loch Leven to Glencoe, where, from the plateau on the top, her Majesty passed nearly two hours sketching the "three sisters" and the surrounding scenery. After luncheon the Royal tourists returned to Ballachulish. While passing through the village Mr. Alexander Cameron Wicht offered to the Queen some real mountain dew from a curious old silver cup out of which Prince Charlie drank, during his sojourn at the house of Cameron's grandfather, on Loch Arkaig, after the defeat at Culloden. Upon the occasion of the visit of the Prince Consort to Glencoe, twenty-six years ago, Cameron's mother, then eighty-two years of age, presented the cup to the Prince, out of which his Royal Highness drank. There is now engraved on the cup, "Prince Charlie, 1745," and "Prince Albert, 1847." Her Majesty returned in the evening to Inverloch, after a journey of fifty miles. On Sunday afternoon the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, visited Glen Nevis, and obtained a good view of the cascades, the rocking-stone, and other objects of interest in the glen. Her Majesty also drove to the Fort. On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove across the suspension-bridge over the Lochy, via Bannavie, Corpach, Fassfern, and Glenmachan, to Glenfinnan House, the residence of the Rev. D. McDonald, where her Majesty partook of luncheon. The Queen was shown a letter written by Prince Charles Edward, Aug. 14, 1745, expressing his intention "to set up the King's standard at Glenfinnan, on Monday, ye 19th instant." Her Majesty afterwards visited the monument to Prince Charlie, and then returned to Inverloch. On Tuesday the Queen, with Princess Beatrice, took her departure from Lochaber. Her Majesty drove from the castle to Bannavie, where the Queen was met by Lord and Lady Abinger. Her Majesty expressed her satisfaction at the pleasure her visit to Lochaber had afforded her, and before taking leave the Queen presented Lady Abinger with a gold bracelet studded with diamonds. Her Majesty embarked on board the steamer Gondolier, and proceeded along the Caledonian Canal to Laggan Locks, at the head of Loch Lochy, where Mr. Ellice, M.P., and Mrs. Ellice had an interview with the Queen, and Mr. Ellice accompanied her Majesty some distance on the route, which lay through Loch Oich, Loch Ness, and Dochfour, to Dochgarroch, whence the Queen drove, escorted by a detachment of the 1st Royal Dragoons to Inverness, where her Majesty was received by the Provost, with the bailies and councillors. The town was en fête, the artillery and rifle volunteers, with the militia staff, lining the route, and forming a guard of honour at the railway station. The utmost enthusiasm prevailed. The Queen left by special train shortly after four o'clock for Balmoral.

Prince Leopold left Inverary Castle and proceeded by coach to Tarbat to meet her Majesty upon her journey to Balmoral. The Queen has approved the wish of the congregation of the Chapel Royal, Savoy, to insert at their own cost two painted windows, one in commemoration of the recovery from illness of the Prince of Wales, and the other in memory of the late Chaplain of the Savoy, the Rev. John Forster.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Abergeldie Castle. The Earl of Fife and a large party visited their Royal Highnesses on Saturday last. The Prince has enjoyed good sport upon the moors and in the forests. His Royal Highness is expected to visit Merton Hall, Norfolk, the seat of Lord Walsingham, in the first week of November.

The King of the Belgians arrived at Glasgow on Saturday last from Scarborough, and left the same day for Edinburgh. On Sunday his Majesty visited Melrose Abbey, Abbotsford, and Dryburgh. The King, after visiting various other places in the north, returned to London on Monday and left on Tuesday for Canterbury, whence, after visiting the cathedral and other places of interest, his Majesty proceeded to Dover and embarked on board the Belgian Royal steamer Baudwin for the Continent.

Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein arrived at Inverness yesterday week.

The Duke of Edinburgh left Buckingham Palace on Sunday to join the Emperor and Empress of Russia, the Grand Duchess Marie, and other members of the Imperial family, in Livadia. The Duke proceeds by her Majesty's ship Helicon from Marseilles to Constantinople, where his Royal Highness is expected to pay a short visit, and then go direct to Livadia. The Sultan has placed the Palace of Beglerbeg at the disposal of the Duke during his stay at Constantinople.

The Archbishop of Canterbury and Mrs. Tait have arrived at Addington Park from Raby Castle, where they had visited the Duke and Duchess of Cleveland.

His Excellency the Russian Ambassador and Countess Brunnow have left Chesham House for Brighton.

His Excellency Count and Countess Schouvaloff have left Claridge's Hotel for Paris.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Drogheda, who have been staying at Wortley Hall, on a visit to Lord and Lady Wharcliffe, have arrived at Raby Castle on a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Cleveland.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Kildare have left Kilkenny Castle, in the county of Kildare, for Maynooth, to join the Duke of Leinster.

The Earl and Countess of Carnarvon have left Highclere Castle, near Newbury, for Brethby Park, Derbyshire.

The Countess of Wilton has left town on a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough at Blenheim.

The Right Hon. the Speaker of the House of Commons and the Hon. Mrs. Brand are expected to leave to-day (Saturday) for the United States.

The Extra Supplement.

SCARBOROUGH.

An Illustration of the pleasant and lively assemblage of sea-side loungers on the fashionable promenade of this beautiful marine watering-place appeared in our pages a twelvemonth ago. Our Large Engraving, on a separate sheet, presenting a general view of the Spa, the South Sands beach, the town and port, and the old Castle upon the opposite cliff, is an appropriate gift for this period of the season. Its most obtrusive architectural features are the Spa Saloon and Music-Hall, immediately below the hill which forms the point of view; and the Grand Hotel, on the brow of St. Nicholas's-cliff, where a viaduct called the Cliff Bridge gives access to the principal streets of the town. Londesborough Lodge, the mansion in which the Prince of Wales was thought to have caught his ill but mortal illness in the year before last, is situated just above the Cliff Bridge, to the left hand in our view. There is another seaward front of Scarborough, the North Cliff and North Sands, with a new promenade pier, on the further side of that promontory surmounted by the ancient Castle. This twofold aspect of marine exposure gives to Scarborough the advantage of having two climates and two seasons for the different needs of visitors in weak health. Its regular inhabitants declare that they find it cool in summer and snug in winter, and free in spring and in autumn from damps and fogs. They have spared no cost or pains to improve its attractions by the local adornments and accommodations of art. The opening of the new line of railway to Whitby is a great additional convenience.

THE ASHANTEE EXPEDITION.

A detachment of the British naval forces on the Gold Coast of West Africa has met with a serious disaster from a treacherous attack by some natives, in complicity with the King of Ashantee, who still invades the country of the Fantees under the British protectorate. Despatches have this week been received at the Admiralty from Commodore J. E. Commerell, V.C., C.B., in command of H.M.S. Rattlesnake, describing the untoward affair, which took place on the 14th ult. at Chamah, on the Bussum Prair river, where the Commodore had led a party, in several boats fully manned and armed, to hold a conference with the native chieftains, and to ask their aid in expelling the Ashantees. The boats employed were the captain's galley of the Rattlesnake, in which the Commodore was accompanied by Commander Percy Luxmoore, of H.M.S. Argus, and Captain W. Helden, of the 2nd West India negro regiment; the steam-launch of the Colonial Government, under Sub-Lieutenant Cross, of the Argus, towing the captain's galley, and armed with rockets; the steam-cutter of H.M.S. Simoom, under Lieutenant Frederick Edwards, of the Rattlesnake, with rockets, accompanied by Sub-Lieutenant Hulton; and the whale-boat and gig of the Rattlesnake, under Surgeon C. F. Murray and Sub-Lieutenant Pocklington. The Commodore had first gone forward alone in his galley, and had landed and talked with the Chamah chiefs, who declared that they would be neutral in the war between the Ashantees and the English. After this, having been told that the Ashantees were on an island some miles up the river, Commodore Commerell thought he might go up and make a survey of its banks. He led his boats up along the Chamah shore, trusting to the promises he had that morning received; but when they had got a mile and a half up the river they were suddenly fired upon by the negroes in ambush, at fifteen yards' distance. Many of our sailors, with the Commodore himself, and the two officers his companions—namely, Commander Luxmoore and Captain Helden—were severely wounded. Commodore Commerell's wound, in the right side, presently caused such loss of blood and exhaustion, that he was compelled to give up the command of the party to Commander Luxmoore; but this officer had five wounds, in the left hip, shoulder, back, and side. He nevertheless bravely continued to act in command, as the Commodore desired, moving the boats out into mid-stream, and returning the enemy's fire till the enemy were driven out of the bush. Commander Luxmoore is said to have nearly fainted with loss of blood, when this first brunt of the action was past. In the meantime, a party of ten Fantee policemen, under the Chief Constable, had been landed by the Rattlesnake's second cutter, of which Sub-Lieutenant Driffen was in command, to take possession of the Chamah Fort. This party was also suddenly attacked by the Chamah people, and four men were killed—William Woodcock, an English sailor, of the cutter's crew, a Krooman, and two Fantees. Their bodies were quickly stripped and mutilated, their heads being cut off, as they lay on the beach. The survivors were rescued by the Rattlesnake's first cutter, under Sub-Lieutenant Wilding. The other boats having returned to the ship, a bombardment was opened, which in two hours destroyed the whole town of Chamah, leaving it a heap of burnt ruins. Next day, having been relieved by the Merlin and the Argus, the Commodore's ship returned to Cape Coast Castle. It is hoped that he and the other wounded officers are in a fair way of recovery. They have been ordered to the Cape for medical treatment, as Cape Coast Castle is very unhealthy at this time.

The departure from England of Sir Garnet Wolseley, commander of the military expedition about to be sent out against the Ashantees, is noticed in another page. It is stated that the regiments to be sent out will probably be the second battalions of the 23rd Fusiliers and of the Rifle Brigade, both now in Ireland; but they will not embark before November or December. The artillery, to be commanded by Captain Rait, will consist of a battery of six small 4½-inch-bore brass howitzers, throwing 12lb. shells, and mounted on carriages 2 ft. 6 in. wide between the axles, which are to be drawn by the native soldiers, and will pass more easily through the dense forest than larger guns or mortars could do. The native troops enlisted will be armed with muzzle-loading Enfield rifles. Great efforts are now made, both in the Royal Victualling Yard at Deptford and in the Royal Arsenal at Woolwich, to complete the stores and preparations. The screw steam-ship Warree, carrying large quantities of ammunition, with carcasses or fire-balls to set fire to native villages or stockades, has already started. She was last week lying alongside the T pier at Woolwich, embarking her cargo. The Warree, which is named after a tributary creek of the Niger river, is a new vessel of about 300 tons burden, built in the Tyne by Dudgeon and Co., for the British and African Steam Navigation Company, of Glasgow, and this is her first voyage. She is commanded by Captain Bowmaker, who expects to make the voyage to the Gold Coast in nineteen days, including a stoppage at Madeira for coal. The time allowed by the Government for the voyage is twenty-four days. She will not stop at Elmina or Cape Coast Castle, but proceed up the Volta to a landing-place more convenient for approach to the Ashantee capital, Coomassie. The decks are covered with an awning of deals and canvas from stem to stern as a protection against the painful rays of the tropical sun; and the Gertrude, which sailed a week ago, was fitted with a similar covering at Devonport, where she put in for coal. The Adela, screw steam-ship, of Grimsby, a much larger vessel than the Warree, is also loading at Woolwich, and has taken on board the battery of brass howitzers, with some wooden huts for the troops, who will require better shelter than tents can afford under the tropical rains of the Gold Coast. A fourth vessel, the King Bonny, has been engaged for the conveyance of stores.

VIEW OF BRADFORD.

This prosperous and industrious town in the West Riding of Yorkshire, where the British Association for the Advancement of Science is now holding its yearly Congress, is 200 miles north of London, thirty-four miles south-west of York, and eight miles west of Leeds. It has a station on the Leeds, Bradford, and Halifax Junction Railway, which connects it with the Great Northern, Lancashire and Yorkshire, London and North-Western, and other important lines of railway. A short branch canal connects the town with the Leeds and Liverpool canal, which passes to the north, and thus opens connection with the German Ocean and the Irish Sea. Bradford is situated at the head of a dale or valley, down which the Beck flows to meet the Aire at Shipley. The stream used to stagnate in a wide space which travellers were obliged to ford, and from this the place was called Broadford, or Bradford. The cutting of the canal about the end of the last century drew off the water, and gave space for the town to grow. The spinning of worsted yarn by machinery was introduced about that time, before which improvement, while nearly all the population of Bradford was employed in making woollen and worsted stuffs, they got their yarn from Craven and other parts of North Yorkshire, after the long wool for its spinning had been obtained from Lincolnshire. The Bradford manufacturers used then to carry their stuffs, by droves of packhorses, to fairs and markets all over the kingdom; but in 1800 there were only three factories in the town. Spinning-machines were first set up here in 1794, and in 1800 the first steam-engine was erected. Now, the woollen manufacture employs about 4000 hands, and the worsted stuffs' manufacture, 2500. A multitude of persons are employed in the spinning and weaving of woollen and worsted yarns. There are also cotton-mills and manufactories of combs and machinery; and there are extensive ironworks and foundries near the town, the Low Moor Works, which employ large numbers of hands.

Bradford is a very ancient town. After the Conquest it contained a stronghold of the La eys, lords of Pontefract; it subsequently became merged in the Duchy of Lancaster. The men of Bradford took the popular side during the Great Rebellion, and twice defeated the Royal troops in pitched battles. Subsequently, the Earl of Newcastle, at the head of the Royalist army, besieged and stormed the town, Fairfax escaping to Leeds with a small body of horse. John Sharpe, Archbishop of York, and Abraham Sharpe, the mathematician, were natives of this place. The introduction of novel machinery provoked a terrible riot, of which Bradford was the scene, in 1812. Seventeen of the rioters, who were known as "Luddites," were executed.

The town has a pleasant and cleanly aspect, though its factory chimneys fill the air with smoke. The streets are principally built of freestone, and are paved; they are well lighted with gas. A plan of street improvements, estimated to cost £35,000, was sanctioned by the Bradford Corporation in 1862. Warehouse property in the town has been greatly enhanced in value by these improvements. The Bradford Exchange, the foundation-stone of which was laid by Lord Palmerston, is an imposing structure, within sight of the new Townhall. This stands in the very centre of the town. We gave last week an illustration of the building, which cost £100,000, and the site is valued at from £20,000 to £40,000. St. George's Hall is a spacious building of Corinthian architecture, which was constructed in 1833; and Kirkgate contains the Piece Hall, the market for woollen goods. It was built in 1773, and is 144 ft. long by 36 ft. wide. A commodious Market House of stone was constructed in 1824. The Exchange buildings also include a news-room and a library. A handsome Court House was erected in 1833. In 1844 was founded the Infirmary, a fine building in the Tudor style. There are also a Dispensary, founded about twenty years earlier, and several other charitable institutions. The town contains cavalry barracks, and in the environs are many handsome residences of the wealthy classes.

In 1847 Bradford received a charter of incorporation. It is divided into eight wards, and is governed by a Mayor, fourteen Aldermen, and forty-two Councillors. The borough returns two members to the Imperial Parliament, the Mayor being the returning officer. The bounds of the Parliamentary borough coincide with the Municipal boundaries. The borough contains a population of 145,827, according to the Census of 1871. Bradford is the seat of a poor-law union, the head of a county court district, and a polling-place for the West Riding. Quarter sessions for the Riding are held there.

Bradford is situated in the diocese of Ripon. The living is a vicarage, worth £600, in the patronage of the trustees of the late Rev. C. Simeon. The church, which was rebuilt in the reign of Henry VI., is chiefly in the Perpendicular style, with a tower of somewhat late date, and is dedicated to St. Peter. It contains several mural monuments, among which is a fine work by Flaxman. Christ Church was founded as a chapel of ease in 1813. The living is a perpetual curacy, worth £200, in the patronage of the Vicar. The living of St. Jude's was erected in 1843: it is a perpetual curacy, worth £150, and vested in the same patron. Besides these, there are no fewer than twenty-one district churches in the parish of Bradford. There are thirty chapels belonging to the various sections of Dissenters—Independents, Baptists, Unitarians, Wesleyans, Presbyterians, Society of Friends, and Roman Catholics. A free Grammar School was founded here as early as the reign of Edward VI. It subsequently received a fresh charter and endowment, and has now an income of more than £400 per annum. The school house was rebuilt in 1818. The school is one of twelve which sent candidates for Lady Elizabeth Hastings's exhibition at Queen College, Oxford. The Dissenters have several colleges in the neighbourhood of Bradford.

A boy named Wilkinson, six years old, who died last week from apoplexy of the lungs, was found, upon a post-mortem examination, to have a brain 53 oz. in weight, 5 oz. more than the average weight of a man's brain.

The report of the Select Committee on Civil Service Expenditure is less severe on the Government than were some of its predecessors. Premising that the civil departments employ 11,000 clerks, and cost about three millions sterling per annum, it concurs in the policy of the existing rules, but hopes that they may be more harmoniously carried out in future. It considers that the department are greatly over-manned, and suggests as remedies for the plethora an entire cessation of clerical appointments, and, if necessary, a scheme of compulsory superannuation.

VIEW OF BRADFORD FROM CLIFF QUARRY.

OPENING OF THE NEW TOWNHALL AT BRADFORD: SKETCHES IN THE STREETS

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent at Paris.)

Thursday, Sept. 18.

The past few days have seen the curtain fall upon the last scene of that eventful drama which cost France two of her richest provinces and five milliards of francs. Napoleon his throne, Paris many of its most important edifices, and the French nation much of its self-esteem. The garrisons of Verdun and Etain, the last remnants of the German army of occupation, have finally marched off to Metz. On Saturday morning, at seven o'clock, the handful of men who remained under General von Manteuffel's command assembled on the esplanade of Verdun, where they underwent their last inspection upon French territory. The staff, having ridden round the ranks, drew up in front of the men; and then, the word of command "Present arms!" having been given, General von Manteuffel rose in his saddle, swiftly drew his sword and waved it aloft, shouting, "Hoch lebe der Kaiser! Hurrah!" The cheer was caught up by the men, and the bands bursting forth with the "Heil dir im Sieger Kranz," the troops marched down the esplanade and through the Porte de France, out of the little frontier town which braved the German cannonade so courageously less than three years ago. Scarcely had they departed than the tricolour flag was everywhere hoisted, and tricolour rosettes decorated the breast of the women and the coats of the men. At twelve o'clock the French troops arrived, and were received at the railway station by a crowd of departmental and municipal functionaries. Their march through the town to the citadel resembled a triumphal procession, the streets being lined by an enthusiastic crowd, shouting "Vive la République!" "Vive l'Armée!" and "Vive Thiers!" and ladies and children presenting them with bouquets of flowers. The soldiers were treated ad libitum throughout the day and evening by the inhabitants, and the officers were serenaded after their dinner by the town band. Most of the flags, hoisted out of the windows and on the house-tops, bore Republican inscriptions; but it is said that one on the house of the ex-Mayor displayed the Bourbon lilies, and had craped twined round its staff for the loss of Alsace and Lorraine. It is worthy of remark that very few cries of "A bas les Prussiens!" were heard. Spite of the rain, the illuminations in the evening were extremely pretty and effective. Etain was evacuated on Monday morning by the German troops. No hostile demonstrations against them were anywhere made. The town was afterwards dressed with flags, and there were shouts, as at Verdun, of "Vive la République!" "Vive la France!" and "Vive Thiers!" The behaviour of the Germans on the march is described as admirable.

Of course, the "liberation of the territory," as this withdrawal of the Germans is styled over here, has given rise to numerous articles in the different organs of Parisian opinion; but all the newspapers, with the exception of the Radical ones, speak moderately and fairly of Germany. The latter have been running wild over some verses by Victor Hugo, entitled "La Libération du Territoire," in which the author of the "Légende des Siècles" declares that, in his opinion, France is not delivered,

Tant que Strasbourg est prise et que Metz est captif.

The verses, beyond one or two extraordinary lines—in which, in opposition to M. de Salvandy, who declared that France was dancing on a volcano, M. Hugo announces that, like Enecladus and Typhon, she bears Etna on her breast—have nothing remarkable about them, and will lessen rather than add to the poet's reputation.

The question of prolonging Marshal M'Mahon's powers continues to preoccupy the Legitimist journals, who look upon the proposal as an abominable political heresy. The Union maintains that any prolongation of the provisional state of things would soon lead to the successive triumphs of Radicalism and the Empire, or, in other terms, to the ruin and enslavement of the country; while the Gazette de France asserts that, as it would be an act of the gravest imprudence to suffer France to remain in statu quo, and signal folly to proclaim the Republic, the National Assembly has no resource but to re-establish the traditional Monarchy. The proposal to prolong the President's powers gains ground, however, every day, and it seems certain that any attempt to proclaim Henry V. on the reassembling of the Assembly would meet with signal, not to say ludicrous, failure.

M. Thiers, in a letter addressed from Interlaken to the Mayor of Eelfort, announces that, having no interest in anything save the welfare of the country, and believing that he can take a cool and impartial view of the situation, it is his intention to persist as a deputy in the policy which he was prevented from following as President of the Republic. The ex-President is continually receiving ovations in Switzerland, and during the last few days numerous congratulatory addresses apropos of the liberation of the territory have been forwarded to him. Nothing positive appears to be known as to his future movements.

The last meeting of the Permanent Committee was enlivened by a rather important debate concerning the pastoral letter recently issued by Mgr. Guibert, the Archbishop of Paris. M. Noel Parfait, speaking in the name of the Republican minority, said that amid the politico-religious manifestations freely and noisily organised in all parts of France Mgr. Guibert's letter had assumed a very grave character and had caused considerable excitement. The Archbishop had attacked the Italian Government with such violence that newspapers publishing the document were confiscated in Italy, and M. Visconti Venosta had even felt it necessary to open a diplomatic correspondence on the subject. M. Parfait concluded by calling upon the Government to repudiate any connivance in an excess of Ultramontane fervour, which placed the interests of the country in jeopardy; to which the Duc de Broglie replied that the Government was neither directly nor indirectly responsible for what the Bishops might say, and that its foreign policy was the same as that indicated in the recent Presidential message and diplomatic circular—namely, a policy of peace with all foreign Powers. After a complaint from M. de Mahy, apropos of the measures of intimidation which have been adopted in departments where elections are about to be held—such as the suppression of newspapers and closing of clubs, a complaint which elicited a somewhat ambiguous reply from M. de Broglie, to the effect that the Ministry would respect the law, but make use of it to its fullest extent—the Committee adjourned until to-day.

At a recent meeting of the Council General of the Bouches-du-Rhône at Marseilles M. Labadié, a popular Republican member, was elected to the presidency of the departmental commission which carries into effect the decisions of the Council. He declined the honour, and was proceeding to deliver an oration in praise of M. Thiers when he was interrupted by the Préfet, who reminded him that political speeches were forbidden by law. M. Labadié retorted by telling the Préfet to hold his tongue, and the latter, upon appealing to the Councilors present, was received with a storm of hisses and loud shouts of "Vive la République!" whereupon, feeling his dignity insulted, he quitted the room. The Conservative newspapers are occupied in discussing what measures the Government can take in regard to the offenders, such an incident not having been foreseen by an existing law.

SPAIN.

The Cortes has followed up the election of Senor Castelar to the Presidency of the Republic by unanimously adopting the bill which confers on him the powers of a Dictator. In Tuesday's sitting the bill re-establishing the military ordinance inflicting the punishment of death on soldiers guilty of mutiny and insubordination was adopted by 115 votes against 72.

There has been a fight with Carlists near Tolosa, both sides claiming the victory. From Madrid it is stated that "the force under General Santa Pau and the column of General Loma, in all numbering 10,000 men and fourteen guns, attacked, near Tolosa, a large body of Carlists, 14,000 strong, and with nine guns, when the latter were routed with great loss, one of their flags being captured by the troops." From the London Carlist Committee the story is that—"Lizarraga has completely defeated the Republican column commanded by Santa Pau in the mountains near Tolosa. The Republicans lost ninety killed, 250 wounded, and 230 prisoners, together with two guns." Inquiries which have been made by Reuter's agent at Hendaye as to the issue of this engagement favour the conclusion that the advantage lay with the Carlists, as they succeeded in their immediate object of preventing relief being thrown into Tolosa. From Bayonne it is reported that new Carlist columns are being organised and armed. At Avila 500 volunteers have taken the field under the command of a curé. At Lakoda 200 mounted Carlists have made their appearance. Contributions are being raised in the principal towns of Segovia. Two small towns in Catalonia and Aragon have fallen to the Carlists. A telegram from Madrid on Thursday states that General Loma has defeated and completely dispersed, near St. Sebastian, the band of Lizarraga, the latter losing eight killed, sixteen wounded, and seven prisoners, including two officers. The Republican troops had only two killed and several wounded.

The insurgents at Carthagena, taking advantage of the departure of General Campos, have attempted a sortie against the quarter of Las Herreras. Two columns of the insurgents, commanded by Galvez, advanced and exchanged shots with the besiegers—one of these columns was 700 and the other 400 strong. They then retired, taking with them some cattle from Las Escobrerías. From inside comes the strange statement that Colonel Pernos, having conferred with a Carlist agent in Carthagena, has sent a mission to the Carlist leaders in Murcia and Valencia to propose to them that they should attack the camp of General Salcedo simultaneously with the besieged making a sortie in force. The terms offered for this service are not known, but the Carlists in Carthagena are said to be treated by the authorities with marked attention. The insurgent frigates Numancia and Fernando Catolica have left the harbour of Carthagena in search of provisions, and sailed in the direction of Aquilas, where the inhabitants are making preparations to resist a "requisition." A conflict is considered imminent, and the British Admiral, who, with two vessels, is watching the movements of the insurgent frigates, is said to have intimated that he would prevent any bombardment of the town if the inhabitants resist the insurgents.

Between Vittoria and Madrid an express-train has been thrown off the rails while crossing a bridge over the Douro. Seventeen persons were killed, including a General and some other persons of distinction; and more than seventy persons were injured. It is not known whether the disaster was the result of accident or design.

ITALY.

King Victor Emmanuel started from Turin, on Tuesday morning, in a special train for Vienna, his departure assuming the character of a state solemnity. At the station Prince Amadeus and Prince Carignan were present, with the municipal authorities, to take leave of him. Popular enthusiasm is rising in Italy with respect to the Royal journey. His Majesty was heartily cheered as he left Turin. At Milan he was welcomed by large crowds, and on approaching Venice numbers of citizens accompanied the municipal authorities to Mestre to meet him. In Rome, public sympathy was manifested by decorations, and many congratulatory telegrams were received from the municipal juntas. The King crossed the Austrian frontier on Tuesday night. At Gratz, which he passed through on Wednesday morning, an immense crowd assembled, and the Italian residents of the city greeted his Majesty with loud cheers. At Vienna, which he reached at a quarter to six in the evening, he was cordially received by the Emperor of Austria and several of the Archdukes. There was a large crowd and much cheering. The special correspondent of the Times at Vienna telegraphs the following account of the interview:—"Punctually at half-past five the Emperor of Austria was at the station, one minute before King Victor Emmanuel's arrival. The King wore the order of St. Stephen, and the Emperor the order of the Corona d'Italia. The Emperor was accompanied by Archdukes Louis Charles, Louis Victor, Charles Ferdinand, Albrecht, Rainer, Ernest, and Henry. The King was accompanied by six aides-de-camp, and by Ministers Minghetti and Visconti Venosta. The band played the Italian national air. There was loud cheering. The only lady present was Countess Robilant, née Princess Clary, an Austrian lady, the wife of the Italian Minister. The Italians have mustered very numerous in Vienna. The King was driven to the Hofburg.

HOLLAND.

The Session of the States General was opened on Monday by the King. In his speech from the throne his Majesty said that the general and financial condition of the kingdom was favourable. The works at the Port of Flushing created a new road to commerce. The King acknowledged the warm reception he had received at the hands of his people in his visit both to the north and to the south. The Indian complications caused the country more thoroughly to appreciate the evidences of sympathy and friendship of foreign countries. The blockade of Atchin would be maintained, and preparations were being made to carry on the war energetically. The condition of the Dutch West Indian colonies was favourable, and the treaty of immigration concluded between Surinam and England had had a favourable result.

The resignation of Major-General Count van Limburg-Stirum, the Minister of War, is officially announced. The Minister of Marine, M. Brocx, has been intrusted with the provisional administration of that department.

AMERICA.

General Butler's hope of election for the Governorship of Massachusetts is once more frustrated, his party having renominated Mr. Washburn.

Further accounts show that yellow fever is increasing in the south-west States. The deaths are very numerous. Twenty-three persons died within twelve hours in one of the towns in Illinois, and so virulent is the form of the disease that has been prevailing there, that death ensued fifteen minutes after the attack came on, and the bodies of the sufferers turned black immediately. At Shreveport 600 persons have been stricken, and the mortality is frightful. So terrible are the ravages that there is an interruption of telegraphic communication between Shreveport and New Orleans, most likely caused by the death or flight of the telegraph clerks. A panic has arisen among the inhabitants of Memphis, who are leaving the city.

Another fire has broken out in the western division of Chicago. It began on Wednesday afternoon in Newbury-street, extending for a mile in a north-westerly direction.

The steamer Ironsides has foundered on Lake Michigan, and seventeen lives were lost.

It is estimated that the cotton crop in the United States will be 4,000,000 bales, and the wheat crop 250,000,000 bushels.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science has been holding its annual session at Portland, Maine.

An address of sympathy from the Roman Catholic priests in many of the States of America has been sent to the Roman Catholic priests of the German empire, to encourage them in their struggle with the Government.

PERSIA.

The Shah seems to be exhibiting some of the traditional caprice ascribed to Eastern Monarchs. Telegrams from Teheran, in quick succession, state that the Grand Vizier, who accompanied the Shah in his European tour, has been deposed, owing to complaints made against him by the Princes in the Shah's travelling suite; that he has been sent to prison; and, finally, that he has been promoted from his cell at Koom to the governorship of Resht. It is asserted that the post of Grand Vizier will be abolished, and that the Shah will conduct the affairs of the State direct through the Ministers.

The treaty between Germany and Persia, negotiated by the Shah and his Vizier while in Berlin has been ratified.

INDIA.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs the following items of news:—The Moplah fanatics have risen at Puttamsy. The 43rd Queen's, from Calicut, killed eight rioters; four soldiers and a policeman were wounded. This riot originated in a blood feud, and was not political. The Nainbhoon Courts are inundated with rent suits. The relations between landlord and tenant are unsatisfactory. Mr. Forsyth, in proposing the Maharajah of Cashmere's health at a banquet, eulogised the arrangements for the Kashgar mission. The advanced party has departed by the Changchenmo Pass. The Santhal restlessness in Maunbhoon has ceased. The Ameer of Afghanistan has recovered his health. The indigo season has closed. The broker's first estimate is from 97,000 to 100,400 maunds weekly. The tea sales are large, and the prices high.

The Hungarian Ministers have resolved temporarily to abolish the duty on corn.

The King of the Belgians has given 2000f. for a prize to be run for at Spa races.

A Lisbon telegram states that the vine disease has made great havoc throughout Portugal.

Colonel Gage, Royal Horse Artillery, succeeds Major-General Huyshe as Inspector-General of Artillery in India.

A Melbourne telegram says a body of natives have seized the schooner Cavidia in the South Seas, and murdered the four men on board.

A fire has occurred at Auckland, destroying fifty-eight buildings, the loss being estimated at £60,000.

The Court of Appeal and Cassation of Berne has decided upon the removal from office of the sixty-nine Catholic curés of the Jura who have refused to take the oaths required by law.

Her Majesty's ship Daphne has captured near the Seychelles, a slave dhow with 300 slaves on board. Only fifty of these, mere skeletons, were alive, the rest having died of smallpox.

From official reports which have been published it appears that the crops of wheat, linseed, and hemp in Italy have been above the general average of those of last year.

The latest struggle between the Liberals and clericals in Antwerp has resulted in a victory for the priests, their candidate having obtained a majority of two hundred votes.

King Louis of Bavaria has given his assent to a measure submitted by his Cabinet, postponing the next session of the Diet on account of the prevalence of cholera.

At Ouchy, in Switzerland, a great demonstration in honour of M. Thiers took place on Sunday. A large deputation was present from Chablais. M. Thiers recommended the crowd to be calm and confident, and was loudly cheered.

The conference at Ghent on international law has concluded its sittings. It has established a permanent International Law Institute, and laid down specific subjects for discussion. The next meeting of the conference will be held at Geneva in 1874.

The total area of British India is officially stated at 950,919 square miles. All this great region is under British administration or government, and is exclusive of native States. It has a population equal to an average of 201 per square mile.

Galignani states that Prince Charles Esterhazy, belonging to one of the first families in Hungary, has committed suicide, at the age of fifty-three. He had long been suffering from a spinal complaint, said to be incurable.

The chartered Government ship Hindustan, 880 tons register, left London yesterday week for Auckland, New Zealand, with upwards of fifty families, provided with assisted passages by the Government, and seventy young women sent by Miss Rye.

The last steamer from Rio brought a number of returned Brazilian emigrants. Their account of the hardships and privations they had to endure more than confirms the worst statements already published. They stated that 300 persons were left behind at Rio in utter destitution.

M. Charles Gavard has authoritatively declared the alleged letter of the Duc de Broglie, published in the New York World, to be a fabrication, and has challenged the agent of that journal to produce the original document, which, the Duke says, was neither written, inspired, nor dictated by him.

The United States gold dollar, containing a gramme and a half of fine gold, has been selected by the Coinage Conference at Vienna as the best international unit of value. The Imperial Mint is engaged in coining specimens of seven-and-a-half gramme pieces.

Following up the gracious message which he sent to the English pilgrims through Cardinal Antonelli, the Pope has addressed a brief to the pilgrimage committee lauding their conduct and requesting that prayers be offered for the triumph of the Church over all its enemies.

The death of Ferdinand Munoz, Duke of Rianzares, the husband of Queen Christina of Spain, occurred, on Saturday, at Havre. He was a simple soldier in the Royal body-guard when the Queen, then Regent during the minority of Isabella II., took him into favour and afterwards married him. Through that union he was created Duke and grandee of Spain.

A hundred Russian emigrants, the advance guard of a colony of 40,000 who are leaving Russia to settle in Kansas, have passed through New York on their way to their new home.

The Journal de Paris says that a British traveller, Mr. Stones, arrived in Paris on Wednesday, bringing news from Dr. Livingstone up to the commencement of the month of July. Dr. Livingstone was in the enjoyment of perfect health.

The Iceland brings news that the steam-ship Seine, engaged in laying the telegraph between Lisbon and Madeira, arrived at Madeira on the 3rd inst., having parted the cable about 140 miles to eastward in 200 fathoms. They had succeeded in raising it half the distance, and buoyed it. She was to leave on the 4th, to complete the laying of the cable.

The British Consuls at Berlin, Munich, Salonica, and Helsingfors have given the Government notification of the existence of cholera in these towns; while the medical officer of the port of London reports that the Lower Danubian ports, Varna, Trieste, Genoa, Havre, Altona, Hamburg, Elsinore, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Stettin, Dantzic, Königsberg, Munich, and Cronstadt are either infected with or suspected of cholera. Vessels arriving at Malta from Italian and Sicilian ports are being subjected to twenty-one days' quarantine, and vessels from Marseilles and other French and Mediterranean ports to fifteen days' quarantine. A telegram from Marseilles, however, states that all vessels leaving that port have a clean bill of health. The cholera is suspected to exist at Naples, and the French mail-steamers are not to call there for the present.

The death of Baron Jean Jacques Desmaisons, Councillor of State in Russia, and attached to the person of the Emperor, is announced as having taken place at Aix-les-Bains, Savoy, at the age of sixty-seven. The deceased was distinguished for his learning, and for being able to speak all the languages of Europe. The death is also announced of Count de Biarn, Second Secretary at the French Legation in Washington, brother-in-law of the Duke de Broglie, at the age of thirty-two; and of M. de Lagarde, French Consul at St. Petersburg, from diphtheria. The death is also announced of M. Désiré, one of the most popular actors in the company of the Bouffes Parisiens, where he had appeared during the last sixteen years in the operas of M. Offenbach. A Leipzig telegram states that Professor Czermak, the celebrated physiologist, died on Tuesday. The Prussian correspondent of the Hör states that Dr. Strauss, the author of "The Life of Jesus," is seriously ill, and that his recovery is doubtful.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Aldy, A. C., to be Chaplain to the Borough Gaol, Stamford.
 Aldrich, J. G., Rector of St. Nicholas's, Colchester.
 Burdick, E., Sincure Rector of Backwell; Curate of Backwell, Somerset.
 Bickley, R., Curate of Alton; Vicar of Colbury, Southampton.
 Bickley, Frederick; Vicar of Easingwold.
 Brockle, Richard; Canon of North Newbald in York Cathedral.
 Evans, Samuel, Incumbent of Pont Bleiddyn; Rector of Llysfaen.
 Ellis, Richard; Vicar of Sherburn, York.
 Hume, T., Vicar of St. Paul's, Tipton; Vicar of Crossens, Southport.
 Johnson, William Henry; Vicar of Stillington.
 Lambert, R. U.; Vicar of Christ Church, Bradford-on-Avon.
 Newton, Henry; Rector of Goxhill, Yorkshire.
 Nolle, W.; Vicar of Newbottle-cum-Chalton, Northamptonshire.
 Owen, John Stanley; Incumbent of St. Paul's, Sheerness.
 Scott, John Haigh; Vicar of Whiston.
 Stott, John; Incumbent of Bransdale-cum-Farndale.
 Teolis, J. D.; Rector of Worlington, Suffolk.
 Watkins, Frederick; Rector of Long Marston.
 Weston, William Robert; Vicar of Loversall.

It is announced that a gentleman has undertaken to erect a spire for St. Mary Magdalene's, Paddington.

Canon Harvey has been urging upon his parishioners the desirability of restoring the old parish church of Hornsey.

The chapel of the Hon. Society of Gray's Inn will be reopened next Sunday, after having been closed for seven weeks.

The choir of Rochester Cathedral is being restored, and an old decorated screen has been discovered, which Sir Gilbert Scott is about to restore.

A lady residing at Ryde has given £1000 towards building the chancel of St. Michael's Church, Ryde, as a memorial of the late Bishop of Winchester.

A handsome and artistic reredos has been placed in St. Stephen's Church, Wingham, to the memory of the late Vicar, the Rev. G. Ware, M.A.

The North Wales Chronicle says that, since the Bishop of Bangor has inhibited the Rector of Beaumaris-cum-Llandegvan, the Rector insists on playing the harmonium and leading the singing in the choir.

The foundation-stone of a new rectory-house at Shepton Beauchamp was laid last week by a sister of the Rector, the Rev. Stuckey Coles. The parishioners presented to Miss Coles a silver trowel in token of their esteem and regard for her.

The handsome church of Bradfield-on-the-Moors, a dependency on Ecclesfield, was formally reopened on the 9th inst. by the Archbishop of York, after a thorough and judicious restoration of the interior.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has appointed Wednesday, Dec. 3, as a day of intercession in the Church of England on behalf of missions, and has invited Nonconformists to join in observing the day.

The Bishop of Chester has given his consent to a prosecution being instituted in the Ecclesiastical Courts against the Rev. C. Parnell, incumbent of St. Margaret's Prince's-road, Liverpool, for the Ritualistic practices pursued in his church.

The foundation-stone of the memorial chapel and other additions to the parish church of Stondon Massey, now in course of erection to the memory of the late Mr. Philip Herman Meyer, of Stondon House, was recently laid by Mrs. Meyer, his widow.

At a meeting of the clergy and laity of the Archdeaconry of Sudbury, held at Bury St. Edmunds on Wednesday, it was agreed to present a farewell address to Dr. Harold Browne on the occasion of his leaving the diocese of Ely for that of Winchester.

The Rev. James Mortimer Sanger, Curate of St. Jude's Church, Mildmay Park, has been presented, on his resignation, with a purse containing £75, in acknowledgment of the zealous manner in which he had discharged the duties of his sacred office.

The corner-stone of a new church, dedicated to St. Matthew, at Lightcliffe, near Halifax, was laid on Tuesday by Mrs. Foster. The church is being built at the expense of Major Foster, of Cliffe-hill, in an angle of the park adjoining the high road, and special gifts are made by members of Major Foster's family and neighbouring friends. As the stone was being lifted up by a jib crane for the purpose of placing the mortar, the crane gave way, and with the stone, which weighed half a ton, fell amongst the people. Eight or nine persons were injured.

The harvest festival at St. Barnabas's Church, Oxford, drew together large congregations, and the church was beautifully adorned with the choicest flowers, and an abundance of very fine fruit and vegetables was also displayed in different parts of the church. The alms collected during the day will be devoted to a fund set apart for the relief of the poor of St. Barnabas district in the coming winter.

The Chapel Royal, Savoy, will be closed until St. Luke's Day, for the repainting of the walls and the insertion of new painted windows. After a long disappearance a small brass plate, commemorating the celebrated poet and statesman Gawain Douglas, Bishop of Dunkeld, who died in London of the plague early in 1522, has been discovered, and is about to be restored to its place on the floor of the chancel.

The Bishop of London, on the 1st inst., consecrated a church at Dieppe for the use of the English residents and visitors. There is a five-light memorial window in the west front, presented by a family long resident in the place. Ladies of the congregation worked an altar-carpet. The carved oak pulpit is the gift of Mrs. Tipping, the wife of Mr. W. Tipping, M.P., of Brasted Park. The font came from the Rev. A. Gurney's church in Paris, and visitors have presented the altar-linen.

On Thursday week the new Church of St. Andrew, West Walcot, was consecrated by the Lord Bishop of the diocese. This church is to take the place of a proprietary chapel, which has hitherto served rather than sufficed for the spiritual wants of the west end of Bath. Sir Gilbert Scott is the architect of the church, which consists of three naves and a chancel, chancel aisle, organ-chamber, and vestry, with western tower, but it presents the peculiarity of the side of the western bay of the two side naves being occupied with porches, an arrangement rendered necessary by the triangular shape of the ground.

The Attorney-General has erected a memorial to his cousin, the late Bishop Patteson. It is a wayside pillar, placed at the intersection of four cross roads near Ottery St. Mary, in a spot locally known as Spence Cross, on a plot of ground placed at his disposal for this purpose by Sir John Kennaway. It performs the function of a guide-post, bearing on its four sides the names of the places to which the four roads respectively lead. On each face is inscribed a text of Scripture which has been selected on account of its containing some reference to paths or ways. A short inscription to the memory of Bishop Patteson explains the purpose of the memorial. It is a plain and unpretending structure of red brick and stone, designed by Mr. Butterfield, but having much character about it, and harmonising well with the pretty spot of ground which has been chosen for its site.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

An election will be held at Merton, Oxford, on Thursday, Oct. 30, to two fellowships. An election to two fellowships in All Souls' will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 4. Two exhibitors will be elected at St. Edmund Hall in October—1, a Bible clerk and librarian, value about £50; 2, an organist, value £24.

Regulations for the Cambridge local examinations which take place next December are issued. The list of places shows the addition of the following centres:—Darlington, Dorchester, Dover, Hastings, Islington, Jersey, Maidstone, Mauritius, Ramsgate, South Shields, Southwark, and Wolverhampton.

Mr. George Fuller, professor of civil engineering in University College, London, has been appointed professor in the same department in Queen's College, Belfast, in the room of Mr. James Thomson, LL.D., resigned.

The Countess of Loudoun has appointed the Earl of Shrewsbury one of the governors of the Grammar School, Dithorn, Staffordshire, according to the powers given to her Ladyship by the new scheme of the Endowed School Commissioners.

The Rev. J. A. Chalmers, Head Master of Spalding Grammar School, has been appointed Head Master of King Edward's Grammar School at Stafford.

The Rev. A. L. Watherston, of Emmanuel College, Cambridge (twenty-first Wrangler in 1867), has been appointed Assistant Master of Brentwood Grammar School.

It is announced that Mr. William Leonard Courtney, Fellow of Merton College, Oxford, will succeed the Rev. H. Sweet Escott as Head Master of Somersetshire College, Bath.

Mr. Robert Kalley Miller, Fellow of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, has been appointed by the Admiralty Professor of Mathematics at the Naval College, Greenwich. Mr. Miller graduated in 1867, in which year he was first Smith's prizeman.

A circular issued by the Admiralty announces the opening of the winter session of the Royal Naval College at Greenwich on Oct. 1. The entrance examinations are to commence on the 25th inst., and the list of subjects ranges from ordinary arithmetic to co-ordinate geometry. Attendance at the lectures is also to be permitted without examination.

An Act of Parliament was recently passed to amend the Public Schools Act with regard to the property of Shrewsbury and Harrow Schools. The new governing body of both schools may submit a scheme to the Special Commissioners for the dissolution of the old corporation of each, and to vest the property in the new governing bodies. One month before any scheme is submitted to the Special Commissioners it is to be laid before the old corporations. The effect of the scheme is to transfer the property without any conveyance and without the consent of any person.

A new Jewish synagogue for Manchester was consecrated on Wednesday by the Chief Rabbi, Dr. Adler.

The foundation-stones of the new Townhall, the Assize Court, and Market Hall at Oswestry were laid, on Monday, by the Earl of Powis and Mr. Owen, Mayor of Welshpool.

On Thursday morning the Elcho shield was conveyed to the Dublin Mansion House on a gun-carriage, followed by a detachment of Hussars. The shield was conveyed from the carriage to the Mansion House on the shoulders of the eight who were victorious at Wimbledon, and presented, with an address, to the Lord Mayor, who replied in suitable terms.

The tenth annual conference of the British Pharmaceutical Association was opened on Tuesday evening, in Bradford—W. H. Brady, F.C.S., of Newcastle, president, in the chair. There was a large attendance of delegates. The president's address was of great length, and dealt mainly with the progress which pharmacy had made during the last ten years, one of the chief evidences of progress being that the three pharmacopoeias of London, Edinburgh, and Dublin had been merged into one, and that there was now one pharmacopoeia for the whole of the empire. Several papers were read, among which was one by Mr. J. J. Nicholson, of Sunderland, on the composition of the air of sewers and drains, in which the writer argued against the employment of long shafts in ventilating sewers. Among the twelve papers read on Wednesday one dealt with adulterations in tea, and another gave a history of potable waters.

THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

The forty-third annual session of the British Association for the Advancement of Science was opened on Wednesday at Bradford, under the presidency of Professor A. W. Williamson, of University College, London.

At the meeting of the general committee in the afternoon, the chair was taken by Dr. Carpenter, the retiring president. The treasurer submitted a financial statement showing an income for the past year of £4053, and an expenditure of £3124. A letter was read from Dr. Joule, of Manchester, formally resigning his appointment as president, on account of ill-health. Professor Phillips, in a few well-chosen words of appreciation, moved a resolution expressive of the committee's regret and sympathy. The resolution having been passed with cordial unanimity, Dr. Gladstone then proposed, "That Professor A. W. Williamson be elected President of this meeting." He remarked that Professor Williamson had gained great eminence as a chemist, and that he took a prominent place among our philosophers. But besides that, it seemed particularly appropriate that Professor Williamson should be elected President in Bradford, because this town and the surrounding towns of Halifax and other places in the neighbourhood depended so much upon the chemical arts. He could not imagine that there was any man more fitted to inspire an interest in chemistry in this neighbourhood than Professor Williamson, and it was also well known that he paid a good deal of attention to the mechanical arts. The motion was seconded by Dr. Pengelly, and unanimously agreed to.

Professor Williamson delivered the opening address in St. George's Hall. After explaining at considerable length the principles and uses of the atomic theory in chemistry, he came to the question of what habits of mind and powers did chemical work engender and develop? It required accuracy in observation, in memory, in operation, and in reasoning; the most scrupulous fidelity and care, truthfulness and a constant and careful searching for truth. "Chemistry," Dr. Williamson continued, "presents peculiar advantages for educational purposes in the combination of breadth and accuracy in the training which it affords; and I am inclined to think that, in this respect, it is at present unequalled. There is reason to believe that it will play an important part in general education, and render valuable services to it in conjunction with other scientific and with literary studies. I trust that the facts which I have submitted to your consideration may suffice to show you how fallacious is that materialistic idea of physical science which represents it as leading away from the study of man's noblest faculties, and from a sympathy with his most elevated aspirations, towards mere inanimate matter. A science is but a body of ideas respecting the order of nature. Each idea which forms part of physical science has been derived from observation of nature, and has been tested again and again in the most various ways by reference to nature; but this very soundness of our materials enables us to raise upon the rock of truth a loftier structure of ideas than could be erected on any other foundation by the aid of uncertain materials. The first thing wanted for the work of advancing science is a supply of well-qualified workers. The second thing is to place and keep them under the conditions most favourable to their efficient activity. The most suitable men must be found while still young to be trained to the work, for which we want a system which shall give them favourable opportunities of acquiring a clear and thorough knowledge of some few truths of nature, and shall supply to each student who has the power and the will to conduct researches, all material conditions which are requisite for the purpose. Let the most intelligent and studious children from every primary school be sent, free of expense, to the most accessible secondary school for one year: let the best of these be selected and allowed to continue for a second year, and so on until the élite of them have learnt all that is to be there learnt to advantage. Let the best pupils from the secondary schools be sent to a college of their own selection, and there subjected to a similar process of annual weeding; and, finally, let those who get satisfactorily to the end of a college curriculum be supplied with an allowance sufficient for their maintenance for a year, on condition of their devoting their undivided energies to research, under the inspection of competent college authorities, while allowed such aids and facilities as the college can supply, with the addition of money grants for special purposes. Let all who do well during this first year be allowed similar advantages for a second, and even a third year. Each young investigator thus trained must exert himself to obtain some appointment which may enable him to do the most useful and creditable of which he is capable, while combining the conditions most favourable to his own improvement. Let there be in every college as many professorships and assistantships in each branch of science as are needed for the efficient conduct of the work there going on, and let every professor and assistant have such salary and such funds for apparatus, &c., as may enable him to devote all his powers to the duties of his post, under conditions favourable to the success of those duties; but let each professor receive also a proportion of the fees paid by his pupils, so that it may be his direct interest to do his work with the utmost attainable efficiency, and attract more pupils. In addition to colleges, which are and always have been the chief institutions for the advancement of learning, establishments for the observation of special phenomena are frequently needed, and will doubtless be found desirable in aid of a general system for the advancement of science. Now, if a system fulfilling the conditions which I have thus briefly sketched out were once properly established on a sufficient scale, it ought to develop and improve itself by the very process of its working. There is an urgent need of accurate scientific knowledge for the direction of manufacturing processes, and there could not be a greater mistake than to suppose that such knowledge need not go beyond the elementary truths of science."

At the close of the address a vote of thanks to Dr. Williamson was moved by Mr. W. E. Forster, seconded by Professor Tyndall, and carried by acclamation.

We have engraved Dr. Williamson's portrait, from the photograph by Mr. H. J. Whitlock, of Birmingham.

The business of the various sections into which the Association is divided began on Tuesday morning, the day concluding with a soirée.

According to a return in the Gazette, £2,720,550 has been applied, since April 1, to the reduction of the National Debt.

The Duke of Northumberland cut the first turf of a new colliery near Newcastle on Wednesday.

It is stated that the South-Eastern Railway has taken 14,000 hop-pickers into the district of which Maidstone is the centre, being slightly in excess of the average of previous years.

The Gorseddof, an eisteddfod to be held at Coedpoeth, next year, under the designation of "Eisteddfod Cadeiriol Dyffryn Maclor," was proclaimed, on Tuesday, with all the ancient ceremonies. The presiding bard was Clwyddfarld, and he was assisted by Iolo Trefaldwyn, and others. The eisteddfod will be held in June, when about £300 will be offered in prizes.

TRADE PROCESSION AT BRADFORD, ON THE OPENING OF THE NEW TOWNHALL.

SCARE

ROUGH.

"GOOD-BYE, GOD BLESS YOU!"
FROM THE PICTURE BY F. R. MORRIS, IN THE LATE EXHIBITION OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY.

"GOOD-BY; GOD BLESS YOU!"

In the last exhibition of the Royal Academy there was nothing more poetic and beautiful in sentiment, nothing more truly and purely idyllic, than the picture, by Mr. P. R. Morris, we have engraved, and which now forms a leading attraction of the Liverpool Autumn Exhibition. The story—and it might suggest a whole three-volume novel—is told with a simplicity, refinement, and freedom from affectation which are, unhappily, too rare in English pictures of its class, but which cannot be appreciated too highly. The landscape, too, which forms no inconsiderable part of the charm of the work, is in perfect keeping with the tender pathos of the humble parting. It is the quiet, rather sickening, close of an autumnal day. The rich warm after-glow lingers in the serene sky above the low hills and behind the yellowing trees; but there are traces of the inconstant time in the tiny rain-pools lying in the ruts and hollows of the road, and which, reflecting the departing glory of the sky, shine like molten gold. The smoke from the cottages soars straight upwards into the still air, telling of the peaceful fireside rest of poor families united after the day's toil. The rooks are flying home to their roost; the sheep also, following each other and crowding together in the way that has afforded so many similes of human life, are being driven by the shepherd to their fold. The landscape is not selected for its mere picturesqueness; such little-marked scenery is very common in Lancashire (where the girl's head-dress seems to carry us). But it might also be found in many other English counties, and, though but little interesting and not at all impressive, it is of pleasantly-soothing, placid aspect. Every part of the picture, even to the deeply-ploughed ruts of the road, the old weather-worn milestone, and the kitten straying after its young mistress from their cottage home, will not be without some symbolic meaning to a sympathetic mind. And how touching is the parting of this lowly couple! The girl is going, probably, farther away and for a longer period than she has ever ventured before. Poverty, doubtless, compels her to seek work and wage in some factory or family. But how hard it is to say "Good-by!" perhaps for the last time; and, though the waggon goes steadily on with the bundle or box which contains all the poor girl's provision for the future, the pair still linger together before taking the final kiss, deaf to the loud summons of the impatient waggoner. It is indeed a cruel severance for that aged grandam in garments of mourning. She is losing, apparently, the last of her dear ones; the rest are dead, or perhaps in far-distant colonies. When her only darling is gone, the light of her poor dwelling will be extinguished: what but night, and winter, and loneliest desolation will be hers? As she takes the last look of yearning love at that fair young face she may well dread the temptations, snares, and, it may be, privations, to which her child's unfriended innocence may be exposed. The girl herself, in the confidence of her inexperience, has few such fears. It is the morning of life with her, and she looks forward to her new field of exertion with some of the buoyant hopefulness natural to youth. But she is a good girl; there is considerable reassurance in the gentle pressure of her embrace, and genuine affection in the way she fondles those emaciated old hands lying in motherly benediction on her bosom. We feel sure that her earliest savings will be sent to support and cheer the aged protector of her early life to whom she owes so much. All this and more is told or suggested, and much better told or suggested, in this admirable picture. Mr. Morris had already made his mark with subjects from Calvary, imaginatively treated; but we think that higher honours await him if he continues to work the new vein he has opened up so felicitously.

The Dundee School Board, on Monday, resolved to erect five new schools.

Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen laid the foundation-stone of a working-man's hall at Ashford, on Saturday last, as a memorial of the late Mr. H. Whitfield, a local philanthropist. In the course of his address he made some pointed observations on the efforts that are occasionally made by some persons to force temperance on other people, to which he strongly objected. He preferred to trust not to harsh restrictions, but to the provision of better means of employment and enjoyment.

Messrs. Pease, the owners of the Middlesborough estate, have presented a site, consisting of one acre and a half of ground, for a new high school at Middlesborough; and Mr. J. W. Pease, M.P., has undertaken to erect, at a cost of £7000 or £8000, the portion of the pile which is to be used as a middle-class school. It is proposed to raise a sum of £15,000 by subscription for the completion of the institution; and Mr. Samuelson, M.P., and Mr. I. Lowthian Bell have each contributed £1000 towards the fund.

The Irishman, commenting upon Archbishop Manning's recent letter on the state of Ireland, designates it as "a romantic day dream," and adds:—"As a work of fiction it can hardly be excelled, but that is the most that can be said in its favour. It shows, at all events, how remarkable is the ignorance of our country's condition which prevails even amongst the most learned and distinguished of Englishmen."—A demonstration has been held at Bodenstown churchyard over the tomb of Wolfe Tone, one of the heroes of '98. Five thousand persons witnessed the ceremony of laying a new marble slab on his grave, the original tombstone having been chipped away as relics.—At a Home Rule meeting near Enniskillen the principal speaker, Mr. O'Neil Daunt, discoursed at great length on the past and present policy of the Orange party.—Resolutions have been adopted by the Roman Catholic Bishop and clergy of the diocese of Cloyne in favour of Home Rule. This is the first distinct enunciation of opinion on the part of the Catholic hierarchy as a body in reference to the movement.

Lady Caroline Murray, sister of the Earl of Mansfield, died on Thursday week, at Ashurst Lodge, Sunninghill, aged sixty-eight years. The death, at the age of eighty, is announced of Lady Sarah Maitland, daughter of the fourth Duke of Richmond, and widow of General Sir Peregrine Maitland. We have to record the death of General Matson, R.E., at the age of eighty-two. He had the silver war medal with three clasps for Peninsular services, and also took part in the United States campaign of 1815. Mr. W. Gibb, a Manchester merchant, who succeeded in fairly worrying Government into passing the Inland Bonding Act, some quarter of a century ago, died recently, aged seventy-three. The death of Charles J. M'Dermot, "Prince of Coolavin," is announced. He was a fellow-labourer of O'Connell, and was deeply revered by the people as a chieftain of a clan who paid him an unswerving allegiance. The Worcester Journal, in announcing the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Walker, of Blackmore Park Farm, gives an account from an old file of the trial and execution for burglary of four men, against whom she gave evidence ninety years ago. Her eldest son is now seventy-nine. Of her parents' children only one failed to reach eighty years and upwards. The death is announced of Colonel the Hon. Peregrine F. Cust, son of the first Baron Brownlow. He was eighty-two years of age at the time of his death.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

There can be no question that the racing at Doncaster last week, with the exception of that which took place on the first day, was decidedly below the average. No such small field has contested the St. Leger since 1852, when Stockwell had only five opponents; and though the public are greatly indebted to Mr. Merry for treating them to such a rattling finish between his representatives, yet the unfortunate collapse of Gang Forward deprived the race of its chief interest—the decisive struggle between the Fyfield champion and Kaiser. The result proved that Marie Stuart is still slightly superior to Doncaster, though there was probably more between them in May, and the truth of the Derby running was strikingly confirmed, Chandos being fourth, and Andred fifth, exactly as they finished at Epsom. Kaiser was hopelessly beaten at the distance, and though he might have been a little nearer to Mr. Merry's pair had he not been eased in the last few strides, no one can now maintain that Doncaster won the "blue ribbon" by a fluke.

The Colonel secured two races on the Thursday and Friday with ridiculous ease. He is one of the grandest-looking horses in training, and, though most of his brilliant successes have been achieved over short courses, there is really no proof that he cannot stay. Mr. Houldsworth's unlucky colours at last came to the front in a ten-sovereign sweepstakes, as Farnfield just managed to beat Rostrevor and six others, of whom George Frederick was a bad third; and he will require to make very rapid improvement if he is to rival the deeds of his own brother, Albert Victor, and win the Middle Park Plate. Mr. Merry is almost invincible just now, and Highland Fling (7 st. 8 lb.) fairly ran away with the Alexandra Plate, a new race, to which £300 was added. Drummond (8 st. 13 lb.) did not run at all in his usual form, but Oxonian (9 st. 1 lb.) managed to get second, and showed far more stamina than he has ever been credited with. Thorn won the Eglinton Stakes in such style that one well-known bookmaker remarked that "Marie Stuart would have won no Leger if Thorn had been in it," a bold statement, for which he had scarcely sufficient foundation, as Rostrevor was the best of his opponents, and the distance was only six furlongs.

The attendance on the last day was immense, and the race for the Cup made full amends for other deficiencies in the programme. Andred walked away from the wretched pair opposed to him in the Doncaster Stakes; and then Winslow, Thorn, Uhlan, Lilian, and Field Marshal, truly a notable quintet, came out for the great race. Winslow looked decidedly stale and jaded, and in very different form to when he won the Lewes Handicap. Thorn was, perhaps, the grandest animal of the party, but his breeding and antecedents did not give much promise of staying over such a long and trying course; while Uhlan, in spite of the immense amount of work he has done both in public and private, looked as fresh as possible, his condition reflecting the greatest credit on Gilbert, his trainer, who certainly has a marvellous knack of keeping his horses thoroughly wound up to concert pitch. Lilian made the running at a great pace, with Uhlan lying some four or five lengths behind her, and these tactics answered so well that half a mile from home everything was beaten except Mr. Saville's pair, and Uhlan won as he chose by half a dozen lengths. Of course, after her St. Leger victory, Marie Stuart had the Park Hill Stakes completely at her mercy, and Wild Myrtle, in receipt of 9 lb., could never make her gallop.

Never previously had so many yearlings been offered for sale at Doncaster as were put up last week, and for two out of the four days both Mr. Tattersall and Mr. Pain were fully employed. Of course, out of so large a number, a good many lots were sent back unsold; but the results, on the whole, were decidedly encouraging to breeders, as there was no difficulty in getting rid of, at remunerative prices, really good animals. The first youngster sold was Bagpipes (550 gs.), by Scottish Chief—Cachuca (dam of Houlachan), who was knocked down to Mr. Walker. Mr. Everitt's four, which were all by Paul Jones, attracted a good deal of attention, and sold well, considering that their sire is quite untried; and then twenty from the Yardley Stud were knocked down at remunerative, though not very high, prices. Euston (1000 gs.), by The Miner—Fern, was the premier; and Breach-loader (600 gs.), by Macaroni—Beechy Head; Carbon (550 gs.), by The Duke—Egyptian; and Challenger (520 gs.), by The Duke—Lifeboat, also sold well. Beaufort (600 gs.), an own brother to Somerset, was no great bargain to Lord Lonsdale, as, though very compact and beautifully shaped, he is too small ever to make a racehorse of very high class. On Wednesday a half-brother to Pace, by Parmesan—Lady Trespass, was sold to Mr. Houldsworth for 1000 gs., which we consider his full value. The Waresley yearlings, most of which were by Blinkhoolie, did not sell well, though a lengthy, good-looking colt by Speculum—Fairstar, made 600 gs.; but prices, on the whole, ruled low throughout the day. St. Leger (1800 gs.), a half-brother to Doncaster, by Trumpeter—Marigold, was the sensational youngster of the week, and fell to Mr. Joseph Dawson's lot. He was bred by Sir Tatton Sykes, and is a well-grown colt with plenty of length, though we should fancy that he will always be most dangerous over short courses. With two or three exceptions, Mr. Cookson's yearlings, which have always been regarded as the fashionable lot of the week, sold badly. The Grey Palmer (1050 gs.), by The Palmer—Eller (dam of Formosa), made the highest price of the lot. He is a grey, very lengthy and racing-like; but, on the whole, we preferred Scotch Earl (1000 gs.), by The Earl—Lady Macdonald (dam of Brigantine), who showed immense bone and power. Fourteen of the Sheffield Lane team went at low prices. On the same day Mr. Pain sold an own brother to Memoria, by Speculum—Remembrance, for 530 gs., and also knocked down fourteen of the Glasgow stud yearlings, of which a colt by Lord Clifden from a Maid of Masham mare joined M. Lefevre's stud at 1200 gs., and a colt by Brother to Stafford—Makeshift (dam of Pell Mell, &c.) reached 800 gs. Mr. Merry disposed of another draught from his stable; but, as he put a reserve price of 2000 gs. on an own brother to Lady Bothwell, we may hope that he will not altogether relinquish racing.

On Saturday last a contest took place for the swimming championship of England. The distance was a mile and three quarters, and the course from Putney to Hammersmith. It is almost unnecessary to state that J. B. Johnson, who is quite invincible at present, won very easily, J. Collard and F. Cavill swimming a dead-heat about thirty yards behind him.

At a large meeting, representing all shades of religious opinion, held on Tuesday, in the Guildhall, Kidderminster, Mr. Thomas Brock, sculptor, of London, was commissioned to erect a statue in memory of Richard Baxter, at Kidderminster.

The annual gathering of the Grand Lodge of Freemasons of Warwickshire took place on Tuesday afternoon, at Coventry, under the presidency of Lord Leigh, the provincial Grand Master. There was full choral service at St. Michael's Church. A banquet took place in the evening at St. Mary's Hall.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Three farthings apiece has been for several weeks the standing quotation for mackerel at Billingsgate. Nevertheless, the demand is small, as mackerel are considered out of season.

The latest "mysterious disappearance" is that of Mr. William Robert Clemow, the proprietor of Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. The unfortunate gentleman was under medical restraint, and whilst walking in Fleet-street he rushed away from his keeper, and has not since been heard of.

The Notting-hill and Bayswater branch of the Girls' Public Day-School Company was opened on Tuesday. The Earl of Airlie is the president of the company, which is in connection with the National Union for Improving the Education of Women, of which Princess Louise is president. The school is situated in Norland-square.

The City Press states that Mr. Johnson, the Sheriff Elect, has appointed Mr. Arthur T. Hewett, of Nicholas-lane, as Under-Sheriff for the ensuing year, in the room of Mr. Watney, who from unavoidable circumstances is unable to assume that office. Mr. Alderman Whetham has appointed Mr. Thomas Beard, of Basinghall-street, his Under Sheriff.

The auxiliary postmen have held a meeting to complain of being left out in the cold. According to their spokesmen, they do the same work for 18s. a week that the regular postmen do for 30s. In default of redress a large number of them have joined the union styling itself "The Post Office and Telegraph Service Benefit Society."

The total number of paupers in the metropolitan districts last week was 98,390, of whom 33,403 were in workhouses and 64,987 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding week in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 3106, 21,103, and 29,776 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 485; of whom 332 were men, 134 women, and 19 children.

The rooms and vaults at Somerset House recently vacated by the Admiralty are going to be handed over by her Majesty's Commissioners of Works to the authorities of Doctors' Commons. The spacious vaults beneath the terrace facing the river are being converted into strong rooms, for which purpose the earth and defective lead have been removed from the crowns of the arches to admit of a foundation of concrete, on which will be laid Claridge's patent asphalt of Seyssel, to ensure the vaults being made thoroughly waterproof.

A number of representatives of the industrial classes of the metropolis connected with the various workmen's clubs visited Guildhall, last Saturday, by invitation of the Lord Mayor and Corporation, and an address was delivered to them by Dr. Sanders, on the subject of the New City Library, and the museum connected therewith, after which they were shown over the building. In the course of his address, Dr. Sanders stated that the building and its adjuncts had cost £100,000, and that the maintenance of the building and library constituted a charge of £2000 a year on the City funds.

The report of the water examiner to the Local Government Board on the water supplied by the various metropolitan water companies during the month of August states that the water supplied by the New River, the East London, and the West Middlesex Companies, was "clear, bright, and well filtered;" that supplied by the Southwark and Vauxhall and the Grand Junction Companies was "clear and bright;" that supplied by the Lambeth Company was "clear, but insufficiently filtered;" and that supplied by the Chelsea Company was "clear, but too rapidly filtered."

At a general court of the Bank of England the Governor (Mr. Greene), in referring to the conviction of the Bank forgers, acknowledged the assistance that had been received from the Foreign Office, the American and Spanish Ministers, and the Captain-General of Cuba. A vote of thanks was passed to the Messrs. Freshfield for their skilful conduct of the prosecution. It was stated that a large portion of the moneys abstracted from the Bank by the recent forgeries would be recovered; but the expenses of the prosecution, which were very heavy, would have to be defrayed out of the recovered money. In a cursory allusion to Mr. Lowe's abortive Bank Charter Bill the Governor said, though they had been consulted about details, they had not expressed any opinion on the measure.

Professor Bernays has made his first quarterly report as analyst to the Camberwell vestry. One sample of mustard was so old as to be useless; one sample of milk was of "extraordinary goodness" a second of fair average quality, a third very deteriorated by the removal of cream. Of the six samples of butters one was of very inferior quality. Sixty-one samples of bread were analyzed. In seven only was there any alum, in one there was not enough to weigh, and in another there was not much more. He suggests half a pound of salt being mixed with a hundred pounds of bread to preserve it, and adds, "The children of many poor people obtain all the salt they take as food either in their bread or in their butter. If, then, the salt is almost absent from bread an unhealthy condition of the body must be engendered."

Last week 2256 births and 1319 deaths were registered in London. After making due allowance for increase of population, the births exceeded by 25, while the deaths were 90 below, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The annual death-rate from all causes, which in the five previous weeks had steadily decreased from 27 to 20 per 1000, slightly increased last week to 21. The rate was 17 per 1000 in the west, 19 in the north, 22 in the central, 23 in the east, and 22 in the south groups of districts. The 1319 deaths included 2 from smallpox, 29 from measles, 13 from scarlet fever, 12 from diphtheria, 49 from whooping-cough, 26 from different forms of fever, and 162 from diarrhoea; thus to the seven principal diseases of the zymotic class 293 deaths were referred, against numbers declining from 585 to 330 in the five preceding weeks. The deaths from these seven diseases were 65 below the corrected average number returned in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The fatal cases of diphtheria were excessive. The fatal cases of diarrhoea, which in the five previous weeks had declined from 470 to 229, further decreased last week to 162, which, however, exceeded by 22 the corrected average number in the corresponding week of the last ten years. To simple cholera 13 deaths were referred, against 16, 12, and 8 in the three preceding weeks. To different forms of violence 49 deaths were referred. Forty were the result of negligence or accident, including 18 from fractures and contusions, 5 from burns and scalds, 4 from drowning, 2 from poison, and 8 from suffocation. The death of a match-maker, aged twenty-six years, in the London Hospital, was referred to phosphorus necrosis. Six cases of suicide and two of manslaughter were registered. Five of the deaths from fractures and contusions, resulting from negligence or accident, were caused by horses or vehicles in the streets. From this class of accident 73 cases of injury and maiming came under the notice of the police within the London registration area.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

The Lord Chief Justice, on taking his seat yesterday week, suggested that the reports of the case should be unaccompanied with any comments or observations conveying opinions on one side or the other as to the witnesses, though he added that there was nothing objectionable in giving or referring to the evidence on such or such a point, or in stating that such and such witnesses gave such evidence on such a head. The first witnesses were clerks from the office of Mr. Harcourt, the defendant's present attorney, called in consequence of what passed on the previous day, to show that the proofs or statements of some important witnesses had been taken regularly and properly, and not communicated to the defendant. In the course of their cross-examination it was elicited that Mr. Onalow goes to the office a good deal and takes a great interest in the case, and that he also has a clerk a good deal there. Miss Eliza Froud, of Shirley, described with great vivacity her romantic acquaintance with Roger in 1849, when he helped her to bathe her cats, "which she idolised for her dear mother's sake," talked with her about music, and annoyed a pretty girl by winking at her. She was positive the defendant was her old friend, but she begged to be excused looking at any photographs unless they were canine. The evidence of Miss Froude, and the quaint manner in which it was given, had put the Court into a merry mood. But the examination of Mr. Robert Adeane Barlow was the most comical episode which the trial has yet produced. Mr. Barlow is a grandson of Admiral Sir Robert Barlow, and a nephew of the Countess of Nelson and Duchess of Bronte. He is also an agent for the sale of some Nevada silver-mines, and has, in his lifetime, been "a great many things." While the Carabiniers were quartered at Canterbury he was staying in the old city "off and on," and met Roger Tichborne upon several occasions. He is also certain that the defendant is Roger Tichborne. And this was in effect the total of his evidence. But the cross-examination by Mr. Serjeant Parry was infinitely amusing. He was not a Mormon, the witness declared emphatically; he was a Broad Churchman, and he believed in the words painted up over the synagogue at Utah—"Practise no evil, advance virtue, seek wisdom, and speak the truth." Mr. Barlow was almost beside himself with anger and excitement, and boldly avowed his belief that between the witness-box and "another place" there intervenes but a sheet of brown paper. Henry Munday, Patrick Hgan, and James Beehan, ex-Carabiniers, deposed to Roger's alleged flirtation with Miss Hales, of Canterbury. Munday also affirmed that he had repeatedly seen Roger's bare arms without observing any tattoo marks on them. It was agreed, on the application of a jurymen the previous day, that on the rising of the Court it should adjourn till Tuesday.

Tuesday was occupied with the military evidence, and several men who had been in Roger's regiment very positively identified the defendant. The cross-examination was directed to elicit variances in their recollection and description of him, one describing him as "broad-chested and broad-shouldered," and another as "slight;" one that his voice was different, another the same. It was also endeavoured to elicit that when the witnesses went to see the defendant they knew they were going to see "Sir Roger," and had heard that he was grown much stouter and was a good deal changed. These witnesses also spoke to conversations with him, in which he seemed to know the names of the officers of the regiment, and incidents which occurred in it when Roger was there; but in cross-examination it appeared that they did not know that Mr. Cann, who had been Roger's servant, and knew of all these matters, had been living with the defendant. One witness, a bandmaster, described Roger as having shoulders "moderately broad," and not at all sloping, as other witnesses had said, and as having a chest quite in proportion to his size, and not at all narrow, as had been represented, and said that the defendant, to the best of his belief, was the same man; he also said he found defendant knew that Roger had played the French horn, and who had taught him, and the witness thought that conclusive. It appeared that Carter, who had been Roger's servant, was with the defendant. Another witness, who saw the defendant at Mr. Holmes's office, said he recognised him as soon as he saw him, and he declared his voice was "the very same," though he said that of Roger was "soft." This witness stated that he had seen Roger's arms bare on several occasions, and he was sure there were no tattoo marks upon them. The witness, in course of cross-examination, told a curious story, of which nothing had previously been heard.

The defendant has committed another "interpellation." On Tuesday Mr. Serjeant Parry, in cross-examining Henry Marks on his brother's connection with the defendant, asked if he did not get £5 every time he took the chair at a public meeting. This provoked from the defendant an audible observation, "He knows it's false," of which Mr. Serjeant Parry complained to the Court. An apology was immediately tendered, and the Lord Chief Justice observed that they would know what to do were the offence repeated. The witnesses were all old Carabiniers. They included William Davies, the witness at the last trial who made so much fun out of having assisted Roger to turn the devil out of his bed—the evil one being only a young donkey which had been deposited there by Roger's fellow-officers. Davies and all the other Carabiniers flatly denies that there had been tattoo marks on Tichborne. Each of them described occasions on which they must have seen them had they been there. William Try, who had been servant to Captain Bickerstaffe, deposed to having frequently answered Roger's bell when he was in his bed-room dressing. He never saw any marks. The occasion on which Henry Marks had seen Roger's bare arms was when several officers ran a foot-race in flannels. He believed, but would not swear, that they had their sleeves tucked up to their elbows.

The Judges presiding at this trial have unanimously resolved to put a stop to the defendant's speechifying at public meetings. On Thursday the Lord Chief Justice, referring to certain proceedings which have recently taken place at Spennymoor, near Newcastle, said:—"It seems to us that the time has come when what I cannot designate otherwise than as a great public scandal should be put a stop to. That a man committed by a learned Judge, after a long trial, for perjury, the jury having disbelieved his evidence, and against whom the constitutional tribunal the grand jury has found a bill of indictment, should be paraded about the country preparatory to his trial, and while it is pending, as a victim and a martyr, is, in my opinion, on outrage on all public decency and propriety. . . . We give the defendant fair notice that, if he attend any other public meeting, we shall withdraw the liberty we have allowed him, no longer hold him to bail, and commit him to prison." Mr. Justice Lush said that, if he had been acting alone, he would at once have rescinded the bail; and Mr. Justice Mellor observed that the defendant, by announcing himself at public meetings as Sir Roger Tichborne, Bart., and arguing the question whether he was or was not an impostor, was prejudging questions which it was alone the province of the jury to decide. In answer to a question by Dr. Kenealy, the Lord Chief Justice said that the defendant was not to attend any pigeon-shooting matches. The hearing of evidence was then proceeded with. John Cheetham, a coachman at Macclesfield, who had formerly been in the Carabiniers, was then called, and identified the defendant as Roger Tichborne. David Cairns, another Carabinier, whose name has been frequently mentioned, formerly gatekeeper at Sandhurst, and now a warder at Norwich Castle, gave similar testimony. In a long cross-examination by Mr. Serjeant Parry, the witness gave an account of the active part he had taken in assisting in procuring military witnesses from different parts of the country for the defendant at the last trial. Mary Ann Cairns, the wife of the last witness, said she recognised the defendant as Roger Tichborne by the upper part of his face and walk. Martin Burke, another Carabinier, said the defendant was Roger; he recognised him more by his answers than by anything else. John Lesmore, formerly trumpet-major of the Carabiniers, had no doubt in the world that the defendant was Roger Tichborne. Did not recognise him at first, but did after twenty minutes; he had seen Roger with both arms bare, and never noticed any tattoo marks on them.

Mr. Arthur Collins, of the Western Circuit, has been appointed Recorder of Poole.

The case of Thomas Gidney, the tobaccoist in Somers Town who is charged with concealing a large quantity of foreign manufactured and unmanufactured tobacco, was again before the Clerkenwell police magistrate on Monday. The Inland Revenue authorities sued for £729 17s. 3d., or treble the value of the goods seized. A good deal of evidence having been given, Mr. Cook imposed penalties amounting to £627 odd, and ordered that the defendant should be detained until they were paid.

From the further investigation of the Special Gaol Committee of the Court of Aldermen as to the alleged attempt of the Bank forgers to escape, it appears that the affair has been much exaggerated, and that a sum of money found on one of the warders has been satisfactorily accounted for.

Mr. Henry Piejus, trading under the name of H. Lee and Co., Northern Wharf, York-road, King's-cross, was charged at the Guildhall, yesterday week, with selling coals which he had advertised as Wallsend coal, "double-screened, and unsurpassed in size and quality," when in fact they were principally slates. According to the evidence of Mr. Friend, "the best was so bad that it would only burn to a white ash and give out very little heat, and the worst was totally unfit for burning at all." He was fined £4 and costs.

An apprentice boy named Balch was sent to gaol from the Mansion House, on Monday, in default of paying £2 for a series of extraordinary vagaries practised in the workshop of his master. This was the third occasion within two months upon which he had been brought before the Court.

Philip Meredith, a dairyman, of Old Town, Clapham, pleaded guilty, at Wandsworth, to a charge of selling milk and water as genuine milk. He was fined £10 and 2s. costs, and in default ordered to be imprisoned for two months.—At the Sheffield Townhall Charles Parkinson, a milk-seller, has been fined £5 and costs for having sold a pint of milk containing 25 per cent of water.

Miss Lavinia Isaacs, dressmaker, charged with stealing two lace shawls, value £57, the property of the Belgian Lace Company, Regent-street, was again brought before Mr. Knox, at Marlborough-street, yesterday week. The prosecutors recommended her to mercy; but, notwithstanding, Mr. Knox sentenced her to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

John Murphy, described as a tall, powerful young fellow, was charged at the Marylebone Police Court, on Wednesday, with assaulting two policemen, and sentenced to a month's imprisonment; whereupon he assaulted the gaoler and two other officers, who endeavoured to remove him to the cell, for which he was ordered to be imprisoned for another month.

Mr. Thomas Middleton, of 15, Sloane-terrace, Chelsea, has been summoned at Westminster for making an excessive distress on the goods of Emily Maria Dryx, a lodger. The evidence showed that the complainant's goods were distrained upon for £2 9s. rent. The broker's man turned her out of her own bed and slept in it. Her goods were condemned and her clothes kept. The goods had not been offered her nor her clothes. A man had told her he bought the goods, and showed her a receipt for £4. Mr. Woolrych said it was a most disgraceful proceeding, and the man who slept in the complainant's bed deserved to be thrown into a pond. He ordered the goods to be returned, or £14 value and £2 costs to be paid, with the alternative of one month's imprisonment.

Honoré Dufois, engineer on board the French steamer Faulconier, has been fined, at Swansea, £100, or the alternative of six months' imprisonment, for smuggling spirits.

At Lurgan, on Monday, twenty-two Roman Catholics and eleven Protestants were sent for trial on the charge of having taken part in a riotous and illegal assemblage in Lurgan on July 23 last. Bail was accepted for their appearance.

Arthur Field, a letter-carrier attached to the Northern District Office, Islington, has been detected in possession of brooches, jewel-boxes, photographs, and a variety of valuables pilfered from letters. Before the magistrate he strove to excuse himself on the ground that the Post Office could not expect to have honest servants at 17s. a week. He was remanded.

Albert Mansfield, a butcher, of Richmond-road, Twickenham, was summoned at Brentford Petty Sessions, last Saturday, for having an unjust weighing-machine in his shop. James Greig, inspector of weights and measures, proved that he tested the machine with a 4-lb. weight, when he found that the dial registered 1 lb. against the purchaser. The Bench fined the defendant £5, or a month in default.

The Liverpool police have captured the negro valet, Mazoongo, who escaped from Lichfield Gaol, where he was confined, charged with forging his master's name to cheques.

The jury empaneled to view the fragments of a human body which have been found drifting in the Thames have returned the only verdict open to them—namely, that the deceased woman has been murdered by some person or persons unknown. The Government has offered a reward of £200 for any information that may lead to the discovery of the person who committed the murder.—An inquest on an imbecile girl, who died in Gray's-inn-lane, has issued in a verdict of manslaughter against her father and stepmother. The evidence showed that death had been caused by neglect and want of proper food.—At the Malling Police Court Thomas Atkins was committed for trial for the murder of the policeman at Snodland. The further evidence submitted against him showed that he had voluntarily admitted having caused the man's death. Thomas Bridger, who was charged with aiding and harbouring the murderer, was also committed.—A murder peculiarly atrocious in the manner of its perpetration was committed at Darlington on Saturday night. The victim was a young woman, named Addison, the murderer, an ironworker, named Dawson, and the alleged cause jealousy. Dawson got clear from the scene of his crime; but his dog knew his haunts, and being followed it led the police to a place in which he had sought refuge.—John Muller, a young German, has been arrested at Queenstown on a charge of murder. The crime is said to have been committed at Cologne, and it was on telegraphic instructions from the public prosecutor there that the arrest was effected.—A pitman at Hetton, in Durham, was quarrelling with his wife, when several of his neighbours took her part and thrashed him. Afterwards one of them threw a stone at him through the window, when he opened it, and, taking aim with a gun, shot the man dead.

INVERLOCHY AND BEN NEVIS.

Her Majesty the Queen returned on Tuesday to Balmoral from her week's sojourn at Inverloch Castle, near Fort William, Inverness-shire, the seat of Lord Abinger. This place is near the lower entrance of the Caledonian Canal, which traverses, with the aid of a chain of long lakes, the whole width of the North British peninsula, in the direction of south-west to north-east, from the Sea of Mull, off the Morven coast of Argyshire, to the Moray Firth, beyond Inverness. The entire length of inland navigation is about sixty miles, thirty-seven miles through natural sheets of water, twenty-three cut as a canal, with a depth of seventeen feet. The works were begun in 1803 by Telford, and the canal was opened in 1822; but improvements were made between 1843 and 1847. Loch Linnhe, an inlet of the western sea, with its upper extremity branching off into Loch Leven and Loch Eil, leads to the mouth of the river Lochy, where stands Fort William, a military post established by General Monk, and strengthened in the reign of William III., to check the power of the Highland chieftains. A mile or two from Fort William, and under the very shadow of huge Ben Nevis, the loftiest mountain in the British Islands, are the ruins of old Inverloch Castle. These consist of four large round towers, with connecting screens; the western and southern are nearly entire. It has been thought to have been an ancient stronghold of the Comyns, in the reign of Edward I., but this opinion is rejected by Dr. J. H. Burton and other good Scottish antiquaries. This place was the scene of a fight between Donald of the Isles and the Earls of Mar and Caithness, in the reign of James I., when the Earl of Caithness was slain; and it was here that the Marquis of Montrose, in 1645, won a great victory over the Marquis of Argyll, defeating him with the loss of 1500 men, as described by Sir Walter Scott in his "Legend of Montrose." A mile and a half from the ruins of the old castle is the modern castellated mansion of Lord Abinger, formerly called Torlundy House. It was built ten years ago. The house occupies a commanding site, and, as the old Scotch style of architecture has been adopted, its towers and turrets and crow-stepped gables command the attention of the visitor on his approach. The main front of the building is to the south, and the principal entrance is on the east. A portico leads to the main door, above which are trophies of the chase, consisting of the skulls of three stags, with antlers. On the doorway are the arms of Lord Abinger, the lion rampant, with the motto, "Suis stat viribus." The entrance hall is decorated with the heads of Highland deer, and ornamented with paintings. A number of pictures by various masters are hung in the other rooms, and several busts—including one of Lord Abinger—are arranged in the best apartments. The castle contains thirty rooms, those reserved for the Queen being in the newer part of the building; her Majesty's sitting-room being over the drawing-room. Little care has been expended on the surrounding grounds, and they are almost as wild as the adjoining moor. Within a short distance of the castle, in a northerly direction, lies a quiet little sheet of water, with a miniature island in its centre, known as Lochan na Marrock. On every side the castle is hemmed in by mountains of the wildest and grandest character; but through the valley between the mountains run the waters of the Lochy, which lose themselves in the broad expanse of Loch Linnhe; the Lundy, which joins the Lochy a short distance north of Inverloch; the Nevis, which empties itself into the loch at the north end of Fort William; and other mountain streams and rills, which pursue their turbid and sinuous courses to the loch. The country is almost destitute of trees, and there is but little ground under cultivation.

Ben Nevis, of which there is a fine view from the Lochiel Arms Hotel at Bannavie, near Fort William and Inverloch, has been ascertained by the scientific survey to be 4406 ft. above the sea-level. Its base has a circumference of twenty-four miles, and it is separated, by deep ravines on the east and west sides, from the range of other adjoining mountains. The northern front of Ben Nevis consists of two distinct portions, one surmounting the other. On the level top of the lower terrace, at an elevation of 1700 ft., is a tarn or small lake. Up to this height the steep sides of the mountain are clothed with a short grassy sward, and the rocks are granitic. But rising abruptly from the lower platform is another mountain of black porphyritic rock, without any vegetation upon it, and having a terribly bleak and forbidding aspect, with a precipice on one side 1500 ft. in depth. The summit is eight miles from Bannavie, and may be reached by a good climber in three hours. The Empress of the French and the Prince Imperial went to the top of Ben Nevis in August of last year. It commands a wonderful view of the lakes and mountains, both of Inverness and Argyshire, and of the sea with its many islands.

The Launceston Local Board of Health, in consequence of an advance in the price of gas, has resolved to light the town with petroleum oil.

A spacious new dock, built by Mr. Wemyss, of Wemyss Castle, at a cost of about £10,000, was opened, on Tuesday, at West Wemyss, a port in Fifeshire.

A vacancy for Cambridgeshire is caused by the death of the Earl of Hardwicke and the elevation of Viscount Royston to the Peerage.

The Devastation has at last met with heavy weather, and has had her seagoing qualities fairly tested. The result is said to be highly satisfactory. She rode easily over heavy seas, and rolled less than the Agincourt, which accompanied her.

The Great Eastern steam-ship returned to Sheerness on Wednesday afternoon, after laying the new cable for the French Atlantic Telegraph Company. Upon the return voyage efforts were made to grapple and repair the 1865 cable, which was broken a few months ago.

The thirteenth annual exhibition of the Derbyshire Agricultural and Horticultural Society was held in the Cattle Market, Derby, on Wednesday. The entries included 150 head of cattle, 114 horses, and 250 sheep. In the afternoon the annual dinner of the society was held in the Corn Exchange, the chair being occupied by Lord George Cavendish, M.P.

A correspondent at Wolverhampton says it has been agreed among the ironmasters of Staffordshire, Yorkshire, and the north of England to give notice to their men of a reduction of wages, to take effect from Oct. 4. A meeting of the arbitration board has been summoned for the 29th inst., to consider the subject.

BEN NEVIS.

THE QUEEN IN THE HIGHLANDS: RUINS OF OLD INVERLOCHY CASTLE.

SIR GARNET WOLSELEY, K.C.B.,
COMMANDER OF THE EXPEDITION FOR THE ASHANTEE WAR.

GENERAL KAUFMANN,
COMMANDER OF THE RUSSIAN EXPEDITION TO KHIVA.

LOADING THE WARRE, AT WOOLWICH, WITH STORES FOR THE ASHANTEE WAR.

stands, Priss Cups, Epergnes, and Flower-Stands, drawings and estimates of which will be forwarded on application.

MAPPIN BROTHERS, Manufacturers

SILVER PLATE.
Tea and Coffee Services,
Tea Trays and Waiters,
Spoons and Forks,
Liquor and Dish Covers,
Epergnes, Fruit Stands,
&c. &c.

CUTLERY.
Ivory Table Knives,
Desert Knives and Forks,
Fish do. do.
Fish Carvers,
Canteens of Cutlery,
&c. &c.

The Stock they keep in London, at 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge, also at 230, Regent-street, W., is very large and well assorted, being all of first-class quality and design. It is sent direct from their own Works, at Bakers-hill, in Sheffield. Illustrated Catalogues sent free by post.

Address 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge; or, 230, Regent-street, W.
Established A.D. 1810 at Sheffield.

SECONDHAND SILVER.—An

Assortment of Tea and Coffee Services, from £30; Tea Services, from £15; Tea Pots, 7s. 6d.; Cream Frames, 5s. 6d.; Waiters, 4s.; Cream Jugs, 3s.; Salt Spoons, 2s. a pair.

G. A. GODWIN, 304, High Holborn, London. Established 1801.

ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE AND CUTLERY.

DEANE and CO.'s Catalogue, with Engravings, post-free.
Table Knives, Ivory, 18s., 20s., 22s., 24s., 26s., 28s., 30s., 32s., 34s., 36s., 38s., 40s., 42s., 44s., 46s., 48s., 50s., 52s., 54s., 56s., 58s., 60s., 62s., 64s., 66s., 68s., 70s., 72s., 74s., 76s., 78s., 80s., 82s., 84s., 86s., 88s., 90s., 92s., 94s., 96s., 98s., 100s., 102s., 104s., 106s., 108s., 110s., 112s., 114s., 116s., 118s., 120s., 122s., 124s., 126s., 128s., 130s., 132s., 134s., 136s., 138s., 140s., 142s., 144s., 146s., 148s., 150s., 152s., 154s., 156s., 158s., 160s., 162s., 164s., 166s., 168s., 170s., 172s., 174s., 176s., 178s., 180s., 182s., 184s., 186s., 188s., 190s., 192s., 194s., 196s., 198s., 200s., 202s., 204s., 206s., 208s., 210s., 212s., 214s., 216s., 218s., 220s., 222s., 224s., 226s., 228s., 230s., 232s., 234s., 236s., 238s., 240s., 242s., 244s., 246s., 248s., 250s., 252s., 254s., 256s., 258s., 260s., 262s., 264s., 266s., 268s., 270s., 272s., 274s., 276s., 278s., 280s., 282s., 284s., 286s., 288s., 290s., 292s., 294s., 296s., 298s., 300s., 302s., 304s., 306s., 308s., 310s., 312s., 314s., 316s., 318s., 320s., 322s., 324s., 326s., 328s., 330s., 332s., 334s., 336s., 338s., 340s., 342s., 344s., 346s., 348s., 350s., 352s., 354s., 356s., 358s., 360s., 362s., 364s., 366s., 368s., 370s., 372s., 374s., 376s., 378s., 380s., 382s., 384s., 386s., 388s., 390s., 392s., 394s., 396s., 398s., 400s., 402s., 404s., 406s., 408s., 410s., 412s., 414s., 416s., 418s., 420s., 422s., 424s., 426s., 428s., 430s., 432s., 434s., 436s., 438s., 440s., 442s., 444s., 446s., 448s., 450s., 452s., 454s., 456s., 458s., 460s., 462s., 464s., 466s., 468s., 470s., 472s., 474s., 476s., 478s., 480s., 482s., 484s., 486s., 488s., 490s., 492s., 494s., 496s., 498s., 500s., 502s., 504s., 506s., 508s., 510s., 512s., 514s., 516s., 518s., 520s., 522s., 524s., 526s., 528s., 530s., 532s., 534s., 536s., 538s., 540s., 542s., 544s., 546s., 548s., 550s., 552s., 554s., 556s., 558s., 560s., 562s., 564s., 566s., 568s., 570s., 572s., 574s., 576s., 578s., 580s., 582s., 584s., 586s., 588s., 590s., 592s., 594s., 596s., 598s., 600s., 602s., 604s., 606s., 608s., 610s., 612s., 614s., 616s., 618s., 620s., 622s., 624s., 626s., 628s., 630s., 632s., 634s., 636s., 638s., 640s., 642s., 644s., 646s., 648s., 650s., 652s., 654s., 656s., 658s., 660s., 662s., 664s., 666s., 668s., 670s., 672s., 674s., 676s., 678s., 680s., 682s., 684s., 686s., 688s., 690s., 692s., 694s., 696s., 698s., 700s., 702s., 704s., 706s., 708s., 710s., 712s., 714s., 716s., 718s., 720s., 722s., 724s., 726s., 728s., 730s., 732s., 734s., 736s., 738s., 740s., 742s., 744s., 746s., 748s., 750s., 752s., 754s., 756s., 758s., 760s., 762s., 764s., 766s., 768s., 770s., 772s., 774s., 776s., 778s., 780s., 782s., 784s., 786s., 788s., 790s., 792s., 794s., 796s., 798s., 800s., 802s., 804s., 806s., 808s., 810s., 812s., 814s., 816s., 818s., 820s., 822s., 824s., 826s., 828s., 830s., 832s., 834s., 836s., 838s., 840s., 842s., 844s., 846s., 848s., 850s., 852s., 854s., 856s., 858s., 860s., 862s., 864s., 866s., 868s., 870s., 872s., 874s., 876s., 878s., 880s., 882s., 884s., 886s., 888s., 890s., 892s., 894s., 896s., 898s., 900s., 902s., 904s., 906s., 908s., 910s., 912s., 914s., 916s., 918s., 920s., 922s., 924s., 926s., 928s., 930s., 932s., 934s., 936s., 938s., 940s., 942s., 944s., 946s., 948s., 950s., 952s., 954s., 956s., 958s., 960s., 962s., 964s., 966s., 968s., 970s., 972s., 974s., 976s., 978s., 980s., 982s., 984s., 986s., 988s., 990s., 992s., 994s., 996s., 998s., 1000s., 1002s., 1004s., 1006s., 1008s., 1010s., 1012s., 1014s., 1016s., 1018s., 1020s., 1022s., 1024s., 1026s., 1028s., 1030s., 1032s., 1034s., 1036s., 1038s., 1040s., 1042s., 1044s., 1046s., 1048s., 1050s., 1052s., 1054s., 1056s., 1058s., 1060s., 1062s., 1064s., 1066s., 1068s., 1070s., 1072s., 1074s., 1076s., 1078s., 1080s., 1082s., 1084s., 1086s., 1088s., 1090s., 1092s., 1094s., 1096s., 1098s., 1100s., 1102s., 1104s., 1106s., 1108s., 1110s., 1112s., 1114s., 1116s., 1118s., 1120s., 1122s., 1124s., 1126s., 1128s., 1130s., 1132s., 1134s., 1136s., 1138s., 1140s., 1142s., 1144s., 1146s., 1148s., 1150s., 1152s., 1154s., 1156s., 1158s., 1160s., 1162s., 1164s., 1166s., 1168s., 1170s., 1172s., 1174s., 1176s., 1178s., 1180s., 1182s., 1184s., 1186s., 1188s., 1190s., 1192s., 1194s., 1196s., 1198s., 1200s., 1202s., 1204s., 1206s., 1208s., 1210s., 1212s., 1214s., 1216s., 1218s., 1220s., 1222s., 1224s., 1226s., 1228s., 1230s., 1232s., 1234s., 1236s., 1238s., 1240s., 1242s., 1244s., 1246s., 1248s., 1250s., 1252s., 1254s., 1256s., 1258s., 1260s., 1262s., 1264s., 1266s., 1268s., 1270s., 1272s., 1274s., 1276s., 1278s., 1280s., 1282s., 1284s., 1286s., 1288s., 1290s., 1292s., 1294s., 1296s., 1298s., 1300s., 1302s., 1304s., 1306s., 1308s., 1310s., 1312s., 1314s., 1316s., 1318s., 1320s., 1322s., 1324s., 1326s., 1328s., 1330s., 1332s., 1334s., 1336s., 1338s., 1340s., 1342s., 1344s., 1346s., 1348s., 1350s., 1352s., 1354s., 1356s., 1358s., 1360s., 1362s., 1364s., 1366s., 1368s., 1370s., 1372s., 1374s., 1376s., 1378s., 1380s., 1382s., 1384s., 1386s., 1388s., 1390s., 1392s., 1394s., 1396s., 1398s., 1400s., 1402s., 1404s., 1406s., 1408s., 1410s., 1412s., 1414s., 1416s., 1418s., 1420s., 1422s., 1424s., 1426s., 1428s., 1430s., 1432s., 1434s., 1436s., 1438s., 1440s., 1442s., 1444s., 1446s., 1448s., 1450s., 1452s., 1454s., 1456s., 1458s., 1460s., 1462s., 1464s., 1466s., 1468s., 1470s., 1472s., 1474s., 1476s., 1478s., 1480s., 1482s., 1484s., 1486s., 1488s., 1490s., 1492s., 1494s., 1496s., 1498s., 1500s., 1502s., 1504s., 1506s., 1508s., 1510s., 1512s., 1514s., 1516s., 1518s., 1520s., 1522s., 1524s., 1526s., 1528s., 1530s., 1532s., 1534s., 1536s., 1538s., 1540s., 1542s., 1544s., 1546s., 1548s., 1550s., 1552s., 1554s., 1556s., 1558s., 1560s., 1562s., 1564s., 1566s., 1568s., 1570s., 1572s., 1574s., 1576s., 1578s., 1580s., 1582s., 1584s., 1586s., 1588s., 1590s., 1592s., 1594s., 1596s., 1598s., 1600s., 1602s., 1604s., 1606s., 1608s., 1610s., 1612s., 1614s., 1616s., 1618s., 1620s., 1622s., 1624s., 1626s., 1628s., 1630s., 1632s., 1634s., 1636s., 1638s., 1640s., 1642s., 1644s., 1646s., 1648s., 1650s., 1652s., 1654s., 1656s., 1658s., 1660s., 1662s., 1664s., 1666s., 1668s., 1670s., 1672s., 1674s., 1676s., 1678s., 1680s., 1682s., 1684s., 1686s., 1688s., 1690s., 1692s., 1694s., 1696s., 1698s., 1700s., 1702s., 1704s., 1706s., 1708s., 1710s., 1712s., 1714s., 1716s., 1718s., 1720s., 1722s., 1724s., 1726s., 1728s., 1730s., 1732s., 1734s., 1736s., 1738s., 1740s., 1742s., 1744s., 1746s., 1748s., 1750s., 1752s., 1754s., 1756s., 1758s., 1760s., 1762s., 1764s., 1766s., 1768s., 1770s., 1772s., 1774s., 1776s., 1778s., 1780s., 1782s., 1784s., 1786s., 1788s., 1790s., 1792s., 1794s., 1796s., 1798s., 1800s., 1802s., 1804s., 1806s., 1808s., 1810s., 1812s., 1814s., 1816s., 1818s., 1820s., 1822s., 1824s., 1826s., 1828s., 1830s., 1832s., 1834s., 1836s., 1838s., 1840s., 1842s., 1844s., 1846s., 1848s., 1850s., 1852s., 1854s., 1856s., 1858s., 1860s., 1862s., 1864s., 1866s., 1868s., 1870s., 1872s., 1874s., 1876s., 1878s., 1880s., 1882s., 1884s., 1886s., 1888s., 1890s., 1892s., 1894s., 1896s., 1898s., 1900s., 1902s., 1904s., 1906s., 1908s., 1910s., 1912s., 1914s., 1916s., 1918s., 1920s., 1922s., 1924s., 1926s., 1928s., 1930s., 1932s., 1934s., 1936s., 1938s., 1940s., 1942s., 1944s., 1946s., 1948s., 1950s., 1952s., 1954s., 1956s., 1958s., 1960s., 1962s., 1964s., 1966s., 1968s., 1970s., 1972s., 1974s., 1976s., 1978s., 1980s., 1982s., 1984s., 1986s., 1988s., 1990s., 1992s., 1994s., 1996s., 1998s., 2000s., 2002s., 2004s., 2006s., 2008s., 2010s., 2012s., 2014s., 2016s., 2018s., 2020s., 2022s., 2024s., 2026s., 2028s., 2030s., 2032s., 2034s., 2036s., 2038s., 2040s., 2042s., 2044s., 2046s., 2048s., 2050s., 2052s., 2054s., 2056s., 2058s., 2060s., 2062s., 2064s., 2066s., 2068s., 2070s., 2072s., 2074s., 2076s., 2078s., 2080s., 2082s., 2084s., 2086s., 2088s., 2090s., 2092s., 2094s., 2096s., 2098s., 2100s., 2102s., 2104s., 2106s., 2108s., 2110s., 2112s., 2114s., 2116s., 2118s., 2120s., 2122s., 2124s., 2126s., 2128s., 2130s., 2132s., 2134s., 2136s., 2138s., 2140s., 2142s., 2144s., 2146s., 2148s., 2150s., 2152s., 2154s., 2156s., 2158s., 2160s., 2162s., 2164s., 2166s., 2168s., 2170s., 2172s., 2174s., 2176s., 2178s., 2180s., 2182s., 2184s., 2186s., 2188s., 2190s., 2192s., 2194s., 2196s., 2198s., 2200s., 2202s., 2204s., 2206s., 2208s., 2210s., 2212s., 2214s., 2216s., 2218s., 2220s., 2222s., 2224s., 2226s., 2228s., 2230s., 2232s., 2234s., 2236s., 2238s., 2240s., 2242s., 2244s., 2246s., 2248s., 2250s., 2252s., 2254s., 2256s., 2258s., 2260s., 2262s., 2264s., 2266s., 2268s., 2270s., 2272s., 2274s., 2276s., 2278s., 2280s., 2282s., 2284s., 2286s., 2288s., 2290s., 2292s., 2294s., 2296s., 2298s., 2300s., 2302s., 2304s., 2306s., 2308s., 2310s., 2312s., 2314s., 2316s., 2318s., 2320s., 2322s., 2324s., 2326s., 2328s., 2330s., 2332s., 2334s., 2336s., 2338s., 2340s., 2342s., 2344s., 2346s., 2348s., 2350s., 2352s., 2354s., 2356s., 2358s., 2360s., 2362s., 2364s., 2366s., 2368s., 2370s., 2372s., 2374s., 2376s., 2378s., 2380s., 2382s., 2384s., 2386s., 2388s., 2390s., 2392s., 2394s., 2396s., 2398s., 2400s., 2402s., 2404s., 2406s., 2408s., 2410s., 2412s., 2414s., 2416s., 2418s., 2420s., 2422s., 2424s., 2426s., 2428s., 2430s., 2432s., 2434s., 2436s., 2438s., 2440s., 2442s., 2444s., 2446s., 2448s., 2450s., 2452s., 2454s., 2456s., 2458s., 2460s., 2462s., 2464s., 2466s., 2468s., 2470s., 2472s., 2474s., 2476s., 2478s., 2480s., 2482s., 2484s., 2486s., 2488s., 2490s., 2492s., 2494s., 2496s., 2498s., 2500s., 2502s., 2504s., 2506s., 2508s., 2510s., 2512s., 2514s., 2516s., 2518s., 2520s., 2522s., 2524s., 2526s., 2528s., 2530s., 2532s., 2534s., 2536s., 2538s., 2540s., 2542s., 2544s., 2546s., 2548s., 2550s., 2552s., 2554s., 2556s., 2558s., 2560s., 2562s., 2564s., 2566s., 2568s., 2570s., 2572s., 2574s., 2576s., 2578s., 2580s., 2582s., 2584s., 2586s., 2588s., 2590s., 2592s., 2594s., 2596s., 2598s., 2600s., 2602s., 2604s., 2606s., 2608s., 2610s., 2612s., 2614s., 2616s., 2618s., 2620s., 2622s., 2624s., 2626s., 2628s., 2630s., 2632s., 2634s., 2636s., 2638s., 2640s., 2642s., 2644s., 2646s., 2648s., 2650s., 2652s., 2654s., 2656s., 2658s., 2660s., 2662s., 2664s., 2666s., 2668s., 2670s., 2672s., 2674s., 2676s., 2678s., 2680s., 2682s., 2684s., 2686s., 2688s., 2690s., 2692s., 2694s., 2696s., 2698s., 2700s., 2702s., 2704s., 2706s., 2708s., 2710s., 2712s., 2714s., 2716s., 2718s., 2720s., 2722s., 2724s., 2726s., 2728s., 2730s., 2732s., 2734s., 2736s., 2738s., 2740s., 2742s., 2744s., 2746s., 2748s., 2750s., 2752s., 2754s., 2756s., 2758s., 2760s., 2762s., 2764s., 2766s., 2768s., 2770s., 2772s., 2774s., 2776s., 2778s., 2780s., 2782s., 2784s., 2786s., 2788s., 2790s., 2792s., 2794s., 2796s., 2798s., 2800s., 2802s., 2804s., 2806s., 2808s., 2810s., 2812s., 2814s., 2816s., 2818s., 2820s., 2822s., 2824s., 2826s., 2828s., 2830s., 2832s., 2834s., 2836s., 2838s., 2840s., 2842s., 2844s., 2846s., 2848s., 2850s., 2852s., 2854s., 2856s., 2858s., 2860s., 2862s., 2864s., 2866s., 2868s., 2870s., 2872s., 2874s., 2876s., 2878s., 2880s., 2882s., 2884s., 2886s., 2888s., 2890s., 2892s., 2894s., 2896s., 2898s., 2900s., 2902s., 2904s., 2906s., 2908s., 2910s., 2912s., 2914s., 2916s., 2918s., 2920s., 2922s., 2924s., 2926s., 2928s., 2930s., 2932s., 2934s., 2936s., 2938s., 2940s., 2942s., 2944s., 2946s., 2948s., 2950s., 2952s., 2954s., 2956s., 2958s., 2960s., 2962s., 2964s., 2966s., 2968s., 2970s., 2972s., 2974s., 2976s., 2978s., 2980s., 2982s., 2984s., 2986s., 2988s., 2990s., 2992s., 2994s., 2996s., 2998s., 3000s., 3002s., 3004s., 3006s., 3008s., 3010s., 3012s., 3014s., 3016s., 3018s., 3020s., 3022s., 3024s., 3026s., 3028s., 3030s., 3032s., 3034s., 3036s., 3038s., 3040s., 3042s., 3044s., 3046s., 3048s., 3050s., 3052s., 3054s., 3056s., 3058s., 3060s., 3062s., 3064s., 3066s., 3068s., 3070s., 3072s., 3074s., 3076s., 3078s., 3080s., 3082s., 3084s., 3086s., 3088s., 3090s., 3092s., 3094s., 3096s., 3098s., 3100s., 3102s., 3104s., 3106s., 3108s., 3110s., 3112s., 3114s., 3116s., 3118s., 3120s., 3122s., 3124s., 3126s., 3128s., 3130s., 3132s., 3134s., 3136s., 3138s., 3140s., 3142s., 3144s., 3146s., 3148s., 3150s., 3152s., 3154s., 3156s., 3158s., 3160s., 3162s., 3164s., 3166s., 3168s., 3170s., 3172s., 3174s., 3176s., 3178s., 3180s., 3182s., 3184s., 3186s., 3188s., 3190s., 3192s., 3194s., 3196s., 3198s., 3200s., 3202s., 3204s., 3206s., 3208s., 3210s., 3212s., 3214s., 3216s., 3218s., 3220s., 3222s., 3224s., 3226s., 3228s., 3230s., 3232s., 3234s., 3236s., 3238s., 3240s., 3242s., 3244s., 3246s., 3248s., 3250s., 3252s., 3254s., 3256s., 3258s., 3260s., 3262s., 3264s., 3266s., 3268s., 3270s., 3272s., 3274s., 3276s., 3278s., 3280s., 3282s., 3284s., 3286s., 3288s., 3290s., 3292s., 3294s., 3296s., 3298s., 3300s., 3302s., 3304s., 3306s., 3308s., 3310s., 3312s., 3314s., 3316s., 3318s., 3320s., 3322s., 3324s., 3326s., 3328s., 3330s., 3332s., 3334s., 3336s., 3338s., 3340s., 3342s., 3344s., 3346s., 3348s., 3350s., 3352s., 3354s., 3356s., 3358s., 3360s., 3362s., 3364s., 3366s., 3368s., 3370s., 3372s., 3374s., 3376s., 3378s., 3380s., 3382s., 3384s., 3386s., 3388s., 3390s., 3392s., 3394s., 3396s., 3398s., 3400s., 3402s., 3404s., 3406s., 3408s., 3410s., 3412s., 3414s., 3416s., 3418s., 3420s., 3422s., 3424s., 3426s., 3428s., 3430s., 3432s., 3434s., 3436s., 3438s., 3440s., 3442s., 3444s., 3446s., 3448s., 3450s., 3452s., 3454s., 3456s., 3458s., 3460s., 3462s., 3464s., 3466s., 3468s., 3470s., 3472s., 3474s., 3476s., 3478s., 3480s., 3482s., 3484s., 3486s., 3488s., 3490s.,

NEW MUSIC.

FRIDOLIN. A Dramatic Cantata, composed by ALBERTO RANDOGER, performed at the Birmingham Festival with immense success. The Score Complete, for Voice and Piano, paper cover, 6s. 6d. Ditto, ditto, bound in cloth .. 12s. 6d. "Reposé and Peace" (Song by Madame Sherrington) .. 6s. 6d. "Wildest Condoite" (Song by Madame Sherrington) .. 6s. 6d.

PIANOFORTE.
Nava's Three Subjects from "Fridolin" .. each 6s. 6d.
No. 1. Hunting Chorus.
No. 2. Chorus of Handmaidens.
No. 3. Dance and Chorus of Villagers.

N.B.—The separate Chorus and Orchestra Parts may also be had, and other Pianoforte arrangements are in the press.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

LA BELLE HELENE. Performed at the Alhambra with immense success.
Opera complete, Voice and Piano .. 12s. 6d.
Opera, for Piano Solo .. 6s. 6d.
Belle Helene Waltz. Strauss .. 6s. 6d.
Belle Helene Quadrille. Strauss .. 6s. 6d.
Fantasia by Kuhl .. 6s. 6d.
Fantasia by Pavesi .. 6s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BOURREE for the Pianoforte, composed by COTSFORD DICK. Price 3s. "A most charming and original composition."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES.
SUNSHINE. Galop. Illustrated. 2s.
IVY LEAVES. Polka. Illustrated. 2s.
HAWTHORN BLOSSOMS. Petit Morceau. Illustrated. 2s.
MOONLIT STREAM. Morceau de Salon. Illustrated. 2s.
ALPINE SCHOONS. Reminiscence. Illustrated. 2s.
Post-free, 1s. 6d. each.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LOUISA GRAY'S NEW SONGS.
CHANGED. 2s.
BLIND GIRL'S DREAM. 2s.
IT WAS EARLY IN THE SPRINGTIME. 2s.
Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW MARCH ROMAINE.
Companion piece to the celebrated "Silver Trumpets." Composed expressly for the Pope. Price 2s. 6d. (with pedal obbligato), or Harmonium, 3s. Piano Duet, 4s. Full Orchestra, 5s. 6d. 7s. 6d. 9s. 6d. 11s. 6d. 13s. 6d. 15s. 6d. 17s. 6d. 19s. 6d. 21s. 6d. 23s. 6d. 25s. 6d. 27s. 6d. 29s. 6d. 31s. 6d. 33s. 6d. 35s. 6d. 37s. 6d. 39s. 6d. 41s. 6d. 43s. 6d. 45s. 6d. 47s. 6d. 49s. 6d. 51s. 6d. 53s. 6d. 55s. 6d. 57s. 6d. 59s. 6d. 61s. 6d. 63s. 6d. 65s. 6d. 67s. 6d. 69s. 6d. 71s. 6d. 73s. 6d. 75s. 6d. 77s. 6d. 79s. 6d. 81s. 6d. 83s. 6d. 85s. 6d. 87s. 6d. 89s. 6d. 91s. 6d. 93s. 6d. 95s. 6d. 97s. 6d. 99s. 6d. 101s. 6d. 103s. 6d. 105s. 6d. 107s. 6d. 109s. 6d. 111s. 6d. 113s. 6d. 115s. 6d. 117s. 6d. 119s. 6d. 121s. 6d. 123s. 6d. 125s. 6d. 127s. 6d. 129s. 6d. 131s. 6d. 133s. 6d. 135s. 6d. 137s. 6d. 139s. 6d. 141s. 6d. 143s. 6d. 145s. 6d. 147s. 6d. 149s. 6d. 151s. 6d. 153s. 6d. 155s. 6d. 157s. 6d. 159s. 6d. 161s. 6d. 163s. 6d. 165s. 6d. 167s. 6d. 169s. 6d. 171s. 6d. 173s. 6d. 175s. 6d. 177s. 6d. 179s. 6d. 181s. 6d. 183s. 6d. 185s. 6d. 187s. 6d. 189s. 6d. 191s. 6d. 193s. 6d. 195s. 6d. 197s. 6d. 199s. 6d. 201s. 6d. 203s. 6d. 205s. 6d. 207s. 6d. 209s. 6d. 211s. 6d. 213s. 6d. 215s. 6d. 217s. 6d. 219s. 6d. 221s. 6d. 223s. 6d. 225s. 6d. 227s. 6d. 229s. 6d. 231s. 6d. 233s. 6d. 235s. 6d. 237s. 6d. 239s. 6d. 241s. 6d. 243s. 6d. 245s. 6d. 247s. 6d. 249s. 6d. 251s. 6d. 253s. 6d. 255s. 6d. 257s. 6d. 259s. 6d. 261s. 6d. 263s. 6d. 265s. 6d. 267s. 6d. 269s. 6d. 271s. 6d. 273s. 6d. 275s. 6d. 277s. 6d. 279s. 6d. 281s. 6d. 283s. 6d. 285s. 6d. 287s. 6d. 289s. 6d. 291s. 6d. 293s. 6d. 295s. 6d. 297s. 6d. 299s. 6d. 301s. 6d. 303s. 6d. 305s. 6d. 307s. 6d. 309s. 6d. 311s. 6d. 313s. 6d. 315s. 6d. 317s. 6d. 319s. 6d. 321s. 6d. 323s. 6d. 325s. 6d. 327s. 6d. 329s. 6d. 331s. 6d. 333s. 6d. 335s. 6d. 337s. 6d. 339s. 6d. 341s. 6d. 343s. 6d. 345s. 6d. 347s. 6d. 349s. 6d. 351s. 6d. 353s. 6d. 355s. 6d. 357s. 6d. 359s. 6d. 361s. 6d. 363s. 6d. 365s. 6d. 367s. 6d. 369s. 6d. 371s. 6d. 373s. 6d. 375s. 6d. 377s. 6d. 379s. 6d. 381s. 6d. 383s. 6d. 385s. 6d. 387s. 6d. 389s. 6d. 391s. 6d. 393s. 6d. 395s. 6d. 397s. 6d. 399s. 6d. 401s. 6d. 403s. 6d. 405s. 6d. 407s. 6d. 409s. 6d. 411s. 6d. 413s. 6d. 415s. 6d. 417s. 6d. 419s. 6d. 421s. 6d. 423s. 6d. 425s. 6d. 427s. 6d. 429s. 6d. 431s. 6d. 433s. 6d. 435s. 6d. 437s. 6d. 439s. 6d. 441s. 6d. 443s. 6d. 445s. 6d. 447s. 6d. 449s. 6d. 451s. 6d. 453s. 6d. 455s. 6d. 457s. 6d. 459s. 6d. 461s. 6d. 463s. 6d. 465s. 6d. 467s. 6d. 469s. 6d. 471s. 6d. 473s. 6d. 475s. 6d. 477s. 6d. 479s. 6d. 481s. 6d. 483s. 6d. 485s. 6d. 487s. 6d. 489s. 6d. 491s. 6d. 493s. 6d. 495s. 6d. 497s. 6d. 499s. 6d. 501s. 6d. 503s. 6d. 505s. 6d. 507s. 6d. 509s. 6d. 511s. 6d. 513s. 6d. 515s. 6d. 517s. 6d. 519s. 6d. 521s. 6d. 523s. 6d. 525s. 6d. 527s. 6d. 529s. 6d. 531s. 6d. 533s. 6d. 535s. 6d. 537s. 6d. 539s. 6d. 541s. 6d. 543s. 6d. 545s. 6d. 547s. 6d. 549s. 6d. 551s. 6d. 553s. 6d. 555s. 6d. 557s. 6d. 559s. 6d. 561s. 6d. 563s. 6d. 565s. 6d. 567s. 6d. 569s. 6d. 571s. 6d. 573s. 6d. 575s. 6d. 577s. 6d. 579s. 6d. 581s. 6d. 583s. 6d. 585s. 6d. 587s. 6d. 589s. 6d. 591s. 6d. 593s. 6d. 595s. 6d. 597s. 6d. 599s. 6d. 601s. 6d. 603s. 6d. 605s. 6d. 607s. 6d. 609s. 6d. 611s. 6d. 613s. 6d. 615s. 6d. 617s. 6d. 619s. 6d. 621s. 6d. 623s. 6d. 625s. 6d. 627s. 6d. 629s. 6d. 631s. 6d. 633s. 6d. 635s. 6d. 637s. 6d. 639s. 6d. 641s. 6d. 643s. 6d. 645s. 6d. 647s. 6d. 649s. 6d. 651s. 6d. 653s. 6d. 655s. 6d. 657s. 6d. 659s. 6d. 661s. 6d. 663s. 6d. 665s. 6d. 667s. 6d. 669s. 6d. 671s. 6d. 673s. 6d. 675s. 6d. 677s. 6d. 679s. 6d. 681s. 6d. 683s. 6d. 685s. 6d. 687s. 6d. 689s. 6d. 691s. 6d. 693s. 6d. 695s. 6d. 697s. 6d. 699s. 6d. 701s. 6d. 703s. 6d. 705s. 6d. 707s. 6d. 709s. 6d. 711s. 6d. 713s. 6d. 715s. 6d. 717s. 6d. 719s. 6d. 721s. 6d. 723s. 6d. 725s. 6d. 727s. 6d. 729s. 6d. 731s. 6d. 733s. 6d. 735s. 6d. 737s. 6d. 739s. 6d. 741s. 6d. 743s. 6d. 745s. 6d. 747s. 6d. 749s. 6d. 751s. 6d. 753s. 6d. 755s. 6d. 757s. 6d. 759s. 6d. 761s. 6d. 763s. 6d. 765s. 6d. 767s. 6d. 769s. 6d. 771s. 6d. 773s. 6d. 775s. 6d. 777s. 6d. 779s. 6d. 781s. 6d. 783s. 6d. 785s. 6d. 787s. 6d. 789s. 6d. 791s. 6d. 793s. 6d. 795s. 6d. 797s. 6d. 799s. 6d. 801s. 6d. 803s. 6d. 805s. 6d. 807s. 6d. 809s. 6d. 811s. 6d. 813s. 6d. 815s. 6d. 817s. 6d. 819s. 6d. 821s. 6d. 823s. 6d. 825s. 6d. 827s. 6d. 829s. 6d. 831s. 6d. 833s. 6d. 835s. 6d. 837s. 6d. 839s. 6d. 841s. 6d. 843s. 6d. 845s. 6d. 847s. 6d. 849s. 6d. 851s. 6d. 853s. 6d. 855s. 6d. 857s. 6d. 859s. 6d. 861s. 6d. 863s. 6d. 865s. 6d. 867s. 6d. 869s. 6d. 871s. 6d. 873s. 6d. 875s. 6d. 877s. 6d. 879s. 6d. 881s. 6d. 883s. 6d. 885s. 6d. 887s. 6d. 889s. 6d. 891s. 6d. 893s. 6d. 895s. 6d. 897s. 6d. 899s. 6d. 901s. 6d. 903s. 6d. 905s. 6d. 907s. 6d. 909s. 6d. 911s. 6d. 913s. 6d. 915s. 6d. 917s. 6d. 919s. 6d. 921s. 6d. 923s. 6d. 925s. 6d. 927s. 6d. 929s. 6d. 931s. 6d. 933s. 6d. 935s. 6d. 937s. 6d. 939s. 6d. 941s. 6d. 943s. 6d. 945s. 6d. 947s. 6d. 949s. 6d. 951s. 6d. 953s. 6d. 955s. 6d. 957s. 6d. 959s. 6d. 961s. 6d. 963s. 6d. 965s. 6d. 967s. 6d. 969s. 6d. 971s. 6d. 973s. 6d. 975s. 6d. 977s. 6d. 979s. 6d. 981s. 6d. 983s. 6d. 985s. 6d. 987s. 6d. 989s. 6d. 991s. 6d. 993s. 6d. 995s. 6d. 997s. 6d. 999s. 6d. 1001s. 6d. 1003s. 6d. 1005s. 6d. 1007s. 6d. 1009s. 6d. 1011s. 6d. 1013s. 6d. 1015s. 6d. 1017s. 6d. 1019s. 6d. 1021s. 6d. 1023s. 6d. 1025s. 6d. 1027s. 6d. 1029s. 6d. 1031s. 6d. 1033s. 6d. 1035s. 6d. 1037s. 6d. 1039s. 6d. 1041s. 6d. 1043s. 6d. 1045s. 6d. 1047s. 6d. 1049s. 6d. 1051s. 6d. 1053s. 6d. 1055s. 6d. 1057s. 6d. 1059s. 6d. 1061s. 6d. 1063s. 6d. 1065s. 6d. 1067s. 6d. 1069s. 6d. 1071s. 6d. 1073s. 6d. 1075s. 6d. 1077s. 6d. 1079s. 6d. 1081s. 6d. 1083s. 6d. 1085s. 6d. 1087s. 6d. 1089s. 6d. 1091s. 6d. 1093s. 6d. 1095s. 6d. 1097s. 6d. 1099s. 6d. 1101s. 6d. 1103s. 6d. 1105s. 6d. 1107s. 6d. 1109s. 6d. 1111s. 6d. 1113s. 6d. 1115s. 6d. 1117s. 6d. 1119s. 6d. 1121s. 6d. 1123s. 6d. 1125s. 6d. 1127s. 6d. 1129s. 6d. 1131s. 6d. 1133s. 6d. 1135s. 6d. 1137s. 6d. 1139s. 6d. 1141s. 6d. 1143s. 6d. 1145s. 6d. 1147s. 6d. 1149s. 6d. 1151s. 6d. 1153s. 6d. 1155s. 6d. 1157s. 6d. 1159s. 6d. 1161s. 6d. 1163s. 6d. 1165s. 6d. 1167s. 6d. 1169s. 6d. 1171s. 6d. 1173s. 6d. 1175s. 6d. 1177s. 6d. 1179s. 6d. 1181s. 6d. 1183s. 6d. 1185s. 6d. 1187s. 6d. 1189s. 6d. 1191s. 6d. 1193s. 6d. 1195s. 6d. 1197s. 6d. 1199s. 6d. 1201s. 6d. 1203s. 6d. 1205s. 6d. 1207s. 6d. 1209s. 6d. 1211s. 6d. 1213s. 6d. 1215s. 6d. 1217s. 6d. 1219s. 6d. 1221s. 6d. 1223s. 6d. 1225s. 6d. 1227s. 6d. 1229s. 6d. 1231s. 6d. 1233s. 6d. 1235s. 6d. 1237s. 6d. 1239s. 6d. 1241s. 6d. 1243s. 6d. 1245s. 6d. 1247s. 6d. 1249s. 6d. 1251s. 6d. 1253s. 6d. 1255s. 6d. 1257s. 6d. 1259s. 6d. 1261s. 6d. 1263s. 6d. 1265s. 6d. 1267s. 6d. 1269s. 6d. 1271s. 6d. 1273s. 6d. 1275s. 6d. 1277s. 6d. 1279s. 6d. 1281s. 6d. 1283s. 6d. 1285s. 6d. 1287s. 6d. 1289s. 6d. 1291s. 6d. 1293s. 6d. 1295s. 6d. 1297s. 6d. 1299s. 6d. 1301s. 6d. 1303s. 6d. 1305s. 6d. 1307s. 6d. 1309s. 6d. 1311s. 6d. 1313s. 6d. 1315s. 6d. 1317s. 6d. 1319s. 6d. 1321s. 6d. 1323s. 6d. 1325s. 6d. 1327s. 6d. 1329s. 6d. 1331s. 6d. 1333s. 6d. 1335s. 6d. 1337s. 6d. 1339s. 6d. 1341s. 6d. 1343s. 6d. 1345s. 6d. 1347s. 6d. 1349s. 6d. 1351s. 6d. 1353s. 6d. 1355s. 6d. 1357s. 6d. 1359s. 6d. 1361s. 6d. 1363s. 6d. 1365s. 6d. 1367s. 6d. 1369s. 6d. 1371s. 6d. 1373s. 6d. 1375s. 6d. 1377s. 6d. 1379s. 6d. 1381s. 6d. 1383s. 6d. 1385s. 6d. 1387s. 6d. 1389s. 6d. 1391s. 6d. 1393s. 6d. 1395s. 6d. 1397s. 6d. 1399s. 6d. 1401s. 6d. 1403s. 6d. 1405s. 6d. 1407s. 6d. 1409s. 6d. 1411s. 6d. 1413s. 6d. 1415s. 6d. 1417s. 6d. 1419s. 6d. 1421s. 6d. 1423s. 6d. 1425s. 6d. 1427s. 6d. 1429s. 6d. 1431s. 6d. 1433s. 6d. 1435s. 6d. 1437s. 6d. 1439s. 6d. 1441s. 6d. 1443s. 6d. 1445s. 6d. 1447s. 6d. 1449s. 6d. 1451s. 6d. 1453s. 6d. 1455s. 6d. 1457s. 6d. 1459s. 6d. 1461s. 6d. 1463s. 6d. 1465s. 6d. 1467s. 6d. 1469s. 6d. 1471s. 6d. 1473s. 6d. 1475s. 6d. 1477s. 6d. 1479s. 6d. 1481s. 6d. 1483s. 6d. 1485s. 6d. 1487s. 6d. 1489s. 6d. 1491s. 6d. 1493s. 6d. 1495s. 6d. 1497s. 6d. 1499s. 6d. 1501s. 6d. 1503s. 6d. 1505s. 6d. 1507s. 6d. 1509s. 6d. 1511s. 6d. 1513s. 6d. 1515s. 6d. 1517s. 6d. 1519s. 6d. 1521s. 6d. 1523s. 6d. 1525s. 6d. 1527s. 6d. 1529s. 6d. 1531s. 6d. 1533s. 6d. 1535s. 6d. 1537s. 6d. 1539s. 6d. 1541s. 6d. 1543s. 6d. 1545s. 6d. 1547s. 6d. 1549s. 6d. 1551s. 6d. 1553s. 6d. 1555s. 6d. 1557s. 6d. 1559s. 6d. 1561s. 6d. 1563s. 6d. 1565s. 6d. 1567s. 6d. 1569s. 6d. 1571s. 6d. 1573s. 6d. 1575s. 6d. 1577s. 6d. 1579s. 6d. 1581s. 6d. 1583s. 6d. 1585s. 6d. 1587s. 6d. 1589s. 6d. 1591s. 6d. 1593s. 6d. 1595s. 6d. 1597s. 6d. 1599s. 6d. 1601s. 6d. 1603s. 6d. 1605s. 6d. 1607s. 6d. 1609s. 6d. 1611s. 6d. 1613s. 6d. 1615s. 6d. 1617s. 6d. 1619s. 6d. 1621s. 6d. 1623s. 6d. 1625s. 6d. 1627s. 6d. 1629s. 6d. 1631s. 6d. 1633s. 6d. 1635s. 6d. 1637s. 6d. 1639s. 6d. 1641s. 6d. 1643s. 6d. 1645s. 6d. 1647s. 6d. 1649s. 6d. 1651s. 6d. 1653s. 6d. 1655s. 6d. 1657s. 6d. 1659s. 6d. 1661s. 6d. 1663s. 6d. 1665s. 6d. 1667s. 6d. 1669s. 6d. 1671s. 6d. 1673s. 6d. 1675s. 6d. 1677s. 6d. 1679s. 6d. 1681s. 6d. 1683s. 6d. 1685s. 6d. 1687s. 6d. 1689s. 6d. 1691s. 6d. 1693s. 6d. 1695s. 6d. 1697s. 6d. 1699s. 6d. 1701s. 6d. 1703s. 6d. 1705s. 6d. 1707s. 6d. 1709s. 6d. 1711s. 6d. 1713s. 6d. 1715s. 6d. 1717s. 6d. 1719s. 6d. 1721s. 6d. 1723s. 6d. 1725s. 6d. 1727s. 6d. 1729s. 6d. 1731s. 6d. 1733s. 6d. 1735s. 6d. 1737s. 6d. 1739s. 6d. 1741s. 6d. 1743s. 6d. 1745s. 6d. 1747s. 6d. 1749s. 6d. 1751s. 6d. 1753s. 6d. 1755s. 6d. 1757s. 6d. 1759s. 6d. 1761s. 6d. 1763s. 6d. 1765s. 6d. 1767s. 6d. 1769s. 6d. 1771s. 6d. 1773s. 6d. 1775s. 6d. 1777s. 6d. 1779s. 6d. 1781s. 6d. 1783s. 6d. 1785s. 6d. 1787s. 6d. 1789s. 6d. 1791s. 6d. 1793s. 6d. 1795s. 6d. 1797s. 6d. 1799s. 6d. 1801s. 6d. 1803s. 6d. 1805s. 6d. 1807s. 6d. 1809s. 6d. 1811s. 6d. 1813s. 6d. 1815s. 6d. 1817s. 6d. 1819s. 6d. 1821s. 6d. 1823s. 6d. 1825s. 6d. 1827s. 6d. 1829s. 6d. 1831s. 6d. 1833s. 6d. 1835s. 6d. 1837s. 6d. 1839s. 6d. 1841s. 6d. 1843s. 6d. 1845s. 6d. 1847s. 6d. 1849s. 6d. 1851s. 6d. 1853s. 6d. 1855s. 6d. 1857s. 6d. 1859s. 6d. 1861s. 6d. 1863s. 6d. 1865s. 6d. 1867s. 6d. 1869s. 6d. 1871s. 6d. 1873s. 6d. 1875s. 6d. 1877s. 6d. 1879s. 6d. 1881s. 6d. 1883s. 6d. 1885s. 6d. 1887s. 6d. 1889s. 6d. 1891s. 6d. 1893s. 6d. 1895s. 6d. 1897s. 6d. 1899s. 6d. 1901s. 6d. 1903s. 6d. 1905s. 6d. 1907s. 6d. 1909s. 6d. 1911s. 6d. 1913s. 6d. 1915s. 6d. 1917s. 6d. 1919s. 6d. 1921s. 6d. 1923s. 6d. 1925s. 6d. 1927s. 6d. 1929s. 6d. 1931s. 6d. 1933s. 6d. 1935s. 6d. 1937s. 6d. 1939s. 6d. 1941s. 6d. 1943s. 6d. 1945s. 6d. 1947s. 6d. 1949s. 6d. 1951s. 6d. 1953s. 6d. 1955s. 6d. 1957s. 6d. 1959s. 6d. 1961s. 6d. 1963s. 6d. 1965s. 6d. 1967s. 6d. 1969s. 6d. 1971s. 6d. 1973s. 6d. 1975s. 6d. 1977s. 6d. 1979s. 6d. 1981s. 6d. 1983s. 6d. 1985s. 6d. 1987s. 6d. 1989s. 6d. 1991s. 6d. 1993s. 6d. 1995s. 6d. 1997s. 6d. 1999s. 6d. 2001s. 6d. 2003s. 6d. 2005s. 6d. 2007s. 6d. 2009s. 6d. 2011s. 6d. 2013s. 6d. 2015s. 6d. 2017s. 6d. 2019s. 6d. 2021s. 6d. 2023s. 6d. 2025s. 6d. 2027s. 6d. 2029s. 6d. 2031s. 6d. 2033s. 6d. 2035s. 6d. 2037s. 6d. 2039s. 6d. 2041s. 6d. 2043s. 6d. 2045s. 6d. 2047s. 6d. 2049s. 6d. 2051s. 6d. 2053s. 6d. 2055s. 6d. 2057s. 6d. 2059s. 6d. 2061s. 6d. 2063s. 6d. 2065s. 6d. 2067s. 6d. 2069s. 6d. 2071s. 6d. 2073s. 6d. 2075s. 6d. 2077s. 6d. 2079s. 6d. 2081s. 6d. 2083s. 6d. 2085s. 6d. 2087s. 6d. 2089s. 6d. 2091s. 6d. 2093s. 6d. 2095s. 6d. 2097s. 6d. 2099s. 6d. 2101s. 6d. 2103s. 6d. 2105s. 6d. 2107s. 6d. 2109s. 6d. 2111s. 6d. 2113s. 6d. 2115s. 6d. 2117s. 6d. 2119s. 6d. 2121s. 6d. 2123s. 6d. 2125s. 6d. 2127s. 6d. 2129s. 6d. 2131s. 6d. 2133s. 6d. 2135s. 6d. 2137s. 6d. 2139s. 6d. 2141s. 6d. 2143s. 6d. 2145s. 6d. 2147s. 6d. 2149s. 6d. 2151s. 6d. 2153s. 6d. 2155s. 6d. 2157s. 6d. 2159s. 6d. 21

RAILWAY ACCIDENT
NEAR GUILDFORD.

Last week's news mentioned the frightful accident, between two and three o'clock on the Tuesday afternoon, to the express up train on the South-Western Railway from Portsmouth to London. It ran against a bullock, which had strayed from the neighbouring high road and had got on the line at Peasmarsh, between Godalming and Guildford. All the carriages were thrown off the rails. Some were overturned down an embankment and were crushed to pieces. Three persons—one a baby in its mother's arms—were killed instantly, and many others were injured. The engine and tender, breaking the chains by which they were coupled to the train, sprang over the body of the animal; and the engine, remaining on the rails, was enabled to run on to Guildford and to convey news of the disaster. The station-master at Guildford, Mr. Dashper, acting with great promptitude, immediately sent a special train to render assistance. There were ten carriages in the overturned train; they rolled down the embankment, a height of eight or nine feet, into two adjacent fields. The destruction was terribly complete in two of the carriages—a first-class smoking-carriage, about the middle of the train, and a second-class carriage, the third from the engine. The wrecks of these two carriages, as they lay not long after the accident, are shown in our Illustrations, from photographs taken by the Surrey Photographic Company, of Guildford. It was in the second-class carriage that the effects were most fatal; as there Mrs. Henry Bridger, of Godalming, with her child, nine months old, and Miss Martin, daughter of the station-master at Milford, near Godalming, were killed. A man who sat next to these women escaped unhurt. The husband of Mrs. Bridger and the father of Miss Martin had parted from them but a few minutes before, when they got into the train, the former at Godalming, the latter at Milford. Thirteen of the sufferers were taken to the Surrey County Hospital, at Guildford, where they were attended by Dr. La Fargue, of Godalming, Messrs. Sells and Butler, and the house surgeon, Mr. Warner. Dr. Kirby, of Cambridge-terrace, Hyde Park, being a passenger in the train, and unhurt, was able to give assistance. Among the passengers were two of the inmates of the Convalescent Lunatics' Home at Witley, beyond Godalming, a branch establishment of Bethlem Hospital. They were, of course, accompanied by two attendants, William Lee and Thomas Minty. Lee was severely shaken, but the other attendant and the two patients were not at all hurt; and one of the patients, a young man who was a medical student before his affliction of mental disease, exerted himself with great zeal and intelligence to relieve the less fortunate passengers. He was enabled at once to do something for Lee, the attendant sent in charge of him. Lee was entangled in the fragments of the second-class carriage; this patient first cleverly got him out and then looked to his wounds. As soon as the news reached London, the medical superintendent of Bethlem Hospital, Dr. W. R. Williams, with Mr. G. H. Haydon, the steward, hastened from town to the scene of the accident. They found, however, on arriving at Guildford, that the station master there had already, at a quarter to four o'clock, sent up a special train to London, conveying most of the wounded passengers, and the two lunatics with their attendants. The following are the names of some of the sufferers:—Mr. Ernest W. Hall, of Brixton, medical student; Rev. R. Griffiths, of Sutton; Mrs. Evans, of Liss; Mr. S. McCarthy, of Guildford; Mrs. McCarthy and a nurse named Dyer; Mrs. Heynemann's child, aged four years. The arm of Mrs. Evans has been amputated. They are all likely to recover.

An inquest on the dead was opened next day by Mr. G. H. Hull, Coroner for West Surrey, at Guildford; and on Wednesday last the jury gave a verdict of accidental death, with a recommendation that there should be a communication between the first and rear van, and continuous breaks.

THE RAILWAY DISASTER NEAR GUILDFORD: WRECK OF A FIRST-CLASS CARRIAGE.

WRECK OF A SECOND-CLASS CARRIAGE.

THE NEW DOCKS AT FLUSHING.

His Majesty King William III. of the Netherlands, more commonly styled King of Holland, performed last week the ceremony of opening the new docks at Flushing, or Vliessingen, on the Walcheren Island, between the two mouths of the Scheldt. These docks are situated at an equal distance from Antwerp and Rotterdam, but on the seacoast, and promise to be useful as an adjunct to those commercial ports. Flushing has long ceased to be a place of military or naval importance; but the history of our great French war relates how it came to pass in 1805 that Napoleon, to take advantage of the menacing position of Flushing with regard to England, gave orders that it should be fortified. A continuous enceinte with five forts—either pentagonal or irregular redoubts—in a semicircle, and at from three quarters of a mile to one mile and a quarter from the town, made Flushing a formidable place. The works had not, however, been completed more than two or three years when Lord Chatham, at the head of an overwhelming force, bombarded and captured the place. The enemy, however, had their revenge, for 7000 English soldiers found their graves on the Island of Walcheren, and many more carried away with them a fever of which they could not get rid for years. Some were next employed in the Peninsular War; and months after they had quitted Holland whole regiments were from time to time laid up in Spain by the recurrence of the Walcheren fever, as it was called. Flushing has, perhaps, from that circumstance, acquired the reputation of being unhealthy; but it is probable that the mortality in Lord Chatham's army was caused by the troops being obliged to bivouac in the marshy fields. In 1867 the King of Holland ordered the fortress to be dismantled, and the works are now either destroyed or allowed gradually to waste away. Flushing has lately been the object of much care on the part of the Dutch Government, and a career of commercial prosperity seems about to commence. The first step to ensure that has been taken by the construction of the state railway from Middleburg to Flushing, and the new wet docks or harbours, which were opened by the King on the 8th inst., are to be used, we believe, in connection with the steam-boat service of the English Great Eastern Railway Company, whose chairman, the Marquis of Salisbury, with several other directors, visited Flushing last week. The proceedings on the day when the King opened the docks are the subjects of two sketches engraved for this Number of our Journal—one showing the Royal yacht at its entrance into the docks; while in the other his Majesty appears standing on the deck and waving his hat at the moment of declaring the new docks to be opened. The King was afterwards conducted by a procession through the town, and was also entertained with a state dinner, having first reviewed a detachment of troops before their embarkation for the Dutch war against the Sultan of Atchin, in Sumatra. There was a ball in the evening, besides a display of fireworks, after which the King left for Middleburg.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

The Speaker of the House of Commons never speaks to that Assembly except to deliver decisions, and so to utter words of weight. The existing ruler of the House from the very outset showed himself a master of its forms and orders, and he exhibited a readiness, a promptness, in the cause of order which was remarkable; and though his decisions were stern, and it was meant to be understood that they were immutable, they were delivered with a combination of suavity and dignity. In such a hotch-potch House as the present, of course there are some persons whose ideas of liberty and equality extend to the notion that they have a right to dispute the dicta of the Speaker, and now and again such exquisite legislators have attempted to question his rulings; but the right hon. gentleman has been always equal to the occasion, even if the large majority of the House had not been true to its traditions and resolutely put down these mannikin rebels against its sense of decorum. An herculean task has been essayed by the present Speaker—namely, that of stopping, or, to use a coarse phrase, shutting up, Mr. Whalley. The undertaking was difficult, and some time elapsed before it was completed, and the result was achieved only by a threat to report the contumacious member to the House. What would have been the issue of such a proceeding no one can say exactly; but there must have carried with it an instinctive terror, as it was quite effectual. A reference to a recent meeting between the Speaker and his tenantry shows that he is in private life and home affairs as sagacious as he is when "in the chair." As a general rule, and when he is enacting, with all the skill and effect of a finished actor, the part of representative of the colonial department in the Lower House of Legislature, it may be said of Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen's speaking that it is the very sugar-candy of rhetoric. The style is akin to that of those fairy tales of which he is a masterly producer, and optimism takes its highest vantage-ground with him. Lately he has proved that he can, when necessary, infuse a slightly acid flavour into his sentiments and phraseology. When speaking at the inauguration of a working man's hall at Ashford, he fell upon those whom he evidently believes to be teetotal fanatics, and smote at them as trespassers on the liberty of the subject when they sought by hard and fast vows to deprive the poor man of his beer; and doubtless the men of Kent, who were listening to him and who were, very likely, just then redolent of hops, were appreciative and sympathetic, which they might well have been in regard to other parts of his speech also.

What is the office of which The O'Donoghue has the reversion, so that he is obliged to go canvassing the electors of Tralee, preparatory to a re-election? It cannot be an under-secretaryship, for acceptance of such an office would not vacate his seat, though a Lordship of the Treasury, which is generally the political go-cart of infant officials, would. Some say the Secretaryship for Ireland, if Lord Hartington should resume his former function of Postmaster-General; but perhaps those who know the qualities and the largeness of social idea of this chieftain may think that nothing would suit him so well as the Lord-Lieutenancy of his native country, and about his enacting the part of Viceroy with grandeur and splendour there can be no manner of doubt. What is certain is that he has displayed great moral courage in the course he has adopted in regard to the political and legislative dealing with Ireland, and endless physical bravery in throwing himself into the midst of the mob of Tralee. While alluding to the Green Isle, it may be in place to say a word of the representative of Lisburn, who has just been addressing his constituents. Before he came into the House Sir Richard Wallace was invested with a prestige and an interest which were calculated to enable him, if he were ambitious, to take a position in that assembly which few Parliamentary neophytes can achieve. On his entry, soon after his election in the spring of this year, it was observable that he was in appearance eminently personable, and in manner quiet and almost dignified—at any rate, easy. His proceeding since he took his seat has been consonant with the idea which his demeanour suggested of him; for he has not thrust himself forward, as he might have done with impunity, and has set an example to new members which any who are to come would do well to follow, instead of adopting the course too common in these degenerate Parliamentary days, amongst that class, of doing early their best possible to quench the impatience to hear them under which they assume the House to be suffering. Amongst those members, principally sitting on the Conservative side, who are familiarly known as the "Colonels," distinctive and distinguished as very grievous at the Army reform which is going on, and which is sneeringly designated as Cardwellism, are Colonel Loyd-Lindsay and Colonel Charles Lindsay. The former has skirmished a good deal during the carrying out of the recent military changes, but the latter has more than once brought to bear batteries of heavy siege-gun speechmaking, and discharged his ordnance, with untiring persistency, until there was scarcely a man or a member left to be pounded, while a few were apparently lying prostrate under the weight of the fire. There was, a few days since, a gathering in Berkshire, something probably about a Conservative working-man's association, and there, as the public was led to suppose, both the Colonel Lindsays appeared, and into Colonel Loyd's mouth was put some language which was not characteristic of him, inasmuch as he is mild and undemonstrative as a speaker, and his language, though fairly pointed, is not scolding, and he is not excitedly broad in his assertions. On the contrary, Colonel Charles is no mincer of phrases, and blurs out his thoughts under the influence of indignation, without reserve or rounding off. It turns out that at the meeting in question Colonel Loyd-Lindsay was not present, and therefore did not give out the utterances attributed to him; and the solution of the mistake is that Colonel Charles Lindsay must have made two speeches, which, being more than his share, were divided equally by the chroniclers between the two Colonels, notwithstanding the absence of one.

However bold it may seem, the statement must be made that, whatever the position which Mr. Plimsoll has acquired out of doors as a philanthropist in the matter of unseaworthy ships, he does not appear to be a high favourite with the House. It is not necessary to enter into the exact reason why, and it may suffice to state that his mode of advocating his particular mission is not in consonance with the tone which is traditional in that assembly, and which, happily, has not yet been much diminished, far less extinguished. It may be a distinction to be made the subject of a motion on breach of privilege, for being too free with the character of certain members of the House, and though in a case of this sort, of which Mr. Plimsoll was the origin, the proceeding was nothing tremendous, and had no serious issue, still it does not add to the prestige of a member to be arraigned before the House and to have to cry "peccavi," even in the most diluted form. It would seem that the shipowners, who are acute in their generation, are beginning to assail Mr. Plimsoll by wily flattery, for have not some of them named a ship after him, and called him to Aberdeen to pronounce a benediction on the vessel, and to make much of him?

THE BRADFORD TOWN FESTIVAL.

The municipal and popular festivities at Bradford, on Tuesday week, upon the occasion of the opening of the new Townhall, were partly described in our last. The whole affair had a local and domestic character, which makes it rather the more interesting; and we therefore give two more pages of Engravings to the illustration of this subject, after presenting, last week, a view of the new building. No person of exalted rank or wide renown, unconnected with this place, was able to take a share in the proceedings; but the Mayor of the borough, Mr. M. W. Thompson, fitly performed the leading part.

The townsfolk all made holiday, business was entirely suspended, and everybody either joined in or became a spectator of the great trades procession, which was deemed a fit ceremony with which to open the town's chief building. The procession was marshalled at Lister Park, between two and three miles out. It was a perfect moving exhibition of all the elements which go to make up the business life of the town, special prominence being, of course, given to everything connected with the worsted and woollen manufactures. The procession was headed by mounted police, artillery volunteers, rifle volunteers, and professional gentlemen—including clergymen, ministers, lawyers, doctors, and teachers. The lead of this body was assigned to Bishop Ryan, Rector of the parish, who wore his robes. Then came the representatives of forty-five trades—some on horseback, some on foot, some in carriages and other vehicles, and some in lorries and waggons. All carried flags, banners, streamers, and mottoes. Several trades were headed by their own bands, of which there were seventeen in the procession.

The distinguishing feature of the procession was the trophy of each trade. In the getting up of these no patience and labour had been spared. They were instructive and suggestive, and some of them amusing. The number of these industrial trophies was between seventy and eighty. Fifty of the wool-staplers wore the long grey or blue smocks in which they work. Their first trophy was a large canopied effigy of Bishop Blaize, their patron saint, the founder of their trade. This magnificent trophy was drawn by six horses. Then followed four cars drawn by three horses, and five drawn by two horses, which bore pyramids of the wool of every country from which Bradford imports it. Some of the horses were led by men in uniform, reminding one of the Beefeaters of the Tower. A pyramid of dyed yarns followed, and the grooms were in Robin Hood costumes. The trophy of the Associated Weavers was a pyramid of manufactured pieces. Several lorry-loads of the women and girls employed in the weaving, with shawls over their heads, were heartily cheered. One of the most stupendous trophies was a figure of Britannia, with a very large globe at her feet, and her defenders, with battle-axe in hand, leaning over the edge of the car, and fighting their supposed enemies. Another great trophy was a model of a ship, the name of which was supposed to be the Enterprise, and which had for its figure-head the Boar's Head, which is the crest of the town. Last, but not least, came an imposing group of Jason and Medea carrying off the Golden Fleece. On succeeding waggons were men winding up pieces with the aid of the machines used for that purpose; others making up patterns; and, in fact, there was no operation connected with the staple trade which was not represented by the men and the women and the machinery employed, all making believe to work or actually working in their canopied waggons.

All the important trades of the town were represented. None made a better show than the linen and woollen drapers, hosiers, and hatters. A beautiful white and pink silk banner, carried on a chariot, preceded their combined representatives, who rode, some in ten carriages and pair, with smaller banners, some on horseback, with 200 assistants on foot; the horsemen in the front and rear bore pennons; all the horses were decorated with pink and white rosettes, and every person in the procession wore a favour of the same fair colours. The procession included many characteristic shows of other trades. The engravers, lithographers, and printers manipulated types and presses and exhibited specimens of their art, including a coloured portrait of "Lord Dundreary." The butcher boys, in their blue smocks, riding on ponies, made a good figure. Their trophies included fat oxen and sheep, and two fine Spanish bulls. Their motto, of course, was "The roast beef of old England." A well-known local gardener followed them on horseback, decked with the produce of the kitchen garden. In the moving van of a poulterer birds were being plucked as vigorously as they would be in the shop. Ice appropriately followed the poultry and fish, and then came the brewers, in red caps, who were cheered because many of them are employed in the Mayor's brewery. Their trophies were loads of hops, and malt and barrels. The drama was well presented in a trophy of several scenes taken from the "Forty Thieves," "Red Riding Hood," and "Little Bo Peep," and several dramatic characters, in stage costume, were personated by actors who rode outside the scenes. This trophy was drawn by eight horses, led by a man in stage armour. A little blackened chimney-sweep, with his brush, raised a laugh, and two stonecutters, who kept chipping a large stone with picks, were cheered for the vigour and earnestness with which they prosecuted their work.

The following is a list of the trades which were represented in the procession, with the strength of the contingent in some of the more numerous bodies:—Woolstaplers, 50; combers, spinners, and manufacturers, 1500; sizers; dyers, 100; merchants, 1000; linen and woollen drapers, hosiers, and hatters, 100; packing-case makers, 150; lithographers, 200; letterpress printers and stationers, 100; butchers, 200; fish and game dealers; brewers, 200; licensed victuallers, 150; billposters, skep and basket makers, coachbuilders, soapmakers, carters, dramatic performers, ironfounders, 50; boilermakers, 100; amalgamated engineers, 400; gas-meter inspectors, chimneysweepers, brickmakers, 120; quarryowners, quarrymen, 400; masons, 450; bricklayers; timber merchants, 350; joiners, slaters, plasterers; plumbers, 250; painters, marble masons and carvers; technical school teachers and pupils, 100; rope and twine spinners, sewing-machine makers, saddlers, and harness-makers, lamp-lighters, planemakers, tanners and leather dealers, tinnery and tinplate workers. The rear of the procession was brought up by the following officials:—Architects of the Townhall, contractors, Corporation officers, ex-Mayors, Consuls, the Mayor's guests, Town Councillors and Aldermen in their robes, macebearer, Mayor and Town Clerk, Fire Brigade, police.

The weather, so promising in the early noon, changed when the procession was well on its way, and it was exposed to a drenching rain, which lasted, with a short interval, until the front of the Townhall was passed by the whole procession. A gallery for ladies was erected along the entire length; but it presented a dark mass of upturned umbrellas. Every window of the surrounding houses was occupied. In the open space is a site set apart for a statue of Sir Titus Salt. Here was placed a stand for the band of the 101st Fusiliers, which played a selection of music, but was at one time compelled to seek shelter. The new Townhall needed no decoration beyond a few trophies in the doors and windows. There was, however, a platform for the ceremony of the day, the front of which was edged with artificial flowers. A few Venetian masts were planted, and pennons streamed from them; flags, mottoes, streamers, and drapery were fluttering or drooping in all the streets which converge to this centre.

It was twenty minutes to one when the procession began to reach the Townhall. Owing, perhaps, to the rain, it came in detachments. All went past the front of the Townhall, the holders of flags and banners returned to a reserved space in front, and all the seventeen bands, in coming up, joined that of the Fusiliers, and played very well. The Mayor was accompanied by Lord F. Cavendish, Mr. Forster, M.P., Mr. Miall, M.P., and Mr. Powell, M.P. His Worship was preceded by a mace, the gift of the Mayor to the Corporation. The ceremony was opened by Bishop Ryan offering a suitable prayer. Then Mr. McGowen, the Town Clerk, read an address of the Council to the Mayor requesting him to open the hall. The Mayor did as he was requested, opened the gate, and declared the Townhall opened, which was followed by loud cheering. The Mayor made a few remarks, and the National Anthem was then sung by the multitude, with the aid of the bands. The members of the Town Council repaired to the Council Chamber and held a formal council meeting, and this concluded the ceremonies of the day; but in the evening the Mayor gave a dinner at the Victoria Hotel, the streets were illuminated, and there was a display of fireworks in Peel Park.

WORK AND WAGES.

Mr. Brand, the Speaker of the House of Commons, met his labourers on the occasion of the harvest home at Glynde, near Lewes, and reminded them of the offer he made them twelve months ago—that if they would invest their savings in the farm he would pay them 2½ per cent interest and share with them the profit on the farm. He regretted that the proposal had not been accepted, and renewed his offer, convinced that the time will come when the labourer will be recompensed, in part at least, according to the profits of capital.

A meeting of the ironmasters and coalowners of South Wales took place, last Saturday, at Cardiff, to consider a code of rules for the government of the association, in which they have united themselves for mutual protection against the demands of the men and their union.

The North Staffordshire ironworkers, at a meeting held on Monday afternoon, instructed their delegates at the approaching national conference of their class, to support a proposal for an increase of wages. Simultaneously with this announcement there is another bearing on the same subject—100 tons of American bar iron, warranted equal to Staffordshire, were sold, on Monday, to a Liverpool firm at less price than the quotation for English iron.

In consequence of the high price of coal it has been resolved to stop the Great Works Mine, near Breage, West Cornwall.

The Leeds cloth-dressers, after being on strike for an advance of wages for eight weeks, have agreed to resume work, and to leave the matter in dispute in the hands of the Mayor.

There are now nearly 1000 lacemakers on strike at Nottingham owing to the masters having refused to reconsider the price that shall be paid for day work when patterns are being changed. As many girls and boys are employed in the finishing of lace, several thousand persons are now out of employment.

The strike of weavers at the Great Western Cotton Works, Bristol, is virtually at an end. About 600 of them turned out for an advance of ten per cent on the rate of wages then paid, and this step on their part brought the works nearly to a standstill, and necessitated the idleness of between 1000 and 1400 workpeople. As a compromise the weavers were offered an advance of five per cent, but this they declined. On Monday, however, a meeting was held to consider the question, and although a strong disposition was manifested to remain out until the whole of their demand had been conceded, a few of those who had to depend upon their own earnings for their livelihood recommended a return to work at the five per cent advance. The meeting refused to indorse this course, and the workpeople separated apparently with a determination to continue the struggle; but in the course of the day some of them evidently changed their minds, for by three o'clock between 100 and 300 had returned to work, and it was expected the others would speedily follow.

A return printed in the Gazette shows that the number of diseased animals imported into Great Britain during the month of August was 413, all of which were sheep; that 410 of them came from Antwerp and three from Bremerhafen, and that they were all slaughtered at the place of landing.

Yesterday week Dr. Carpenter presided at the opening of a free library, museum, and picture gallery at Brighton, forming part of the edifice on the Marine-parade, erected by George IV., which has been adapted for the purpose at a cost of £10,000. About 4000 persons were present; and among those who took part in the inauguration proceedings were Professor Fawcett, M.P., Mr. J. G. Dodson, M.P., and Mr. J. White, M.P.

The officers and men belonging to the Ariadne have erected a monument in the new cemetery, St. Mary's-road, Kingston, in the form of a cross on a pedestal. The monument bears the following inscription:—"In memory of Sub-Lieutenant William A. Jukes, Sub-Lieutenant William J. Talbot, Richard Bailey, coxswain of cutter; ordinary seamen, John Renouf, John S. Squires, James C. Hewson, Frederick Holland, William Heaney, Felix Richardson, Samuel Blackburne, and Richard H. Thomas, ordinary second-class, late of her Majesty's steamer Ariadne, who on March 8, 1872, off the coast of Portugal when the ship was proceeding to Gibraltar, were capsized in the second cutter and drowned, whilst manfully attempting, in a heavy sea, to rescue an unfortunate shipmate who had fallen overboard."

The annual autumn exhibition of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Horticultural Society took place last week. The show was large and successful.—The annual meeting of the Huntingdonshire Agricultural Society was held in Hinchinbrook Park, yesterday week. The entries were larger than usual, and the animals of a superior character. Lady Pigot took the 20-guinea cup for the best cow with Rose of Wytham, and the 20-guinea cup for bulls with Victor Rex. Mr. Staple, of Peterborough, took the 25-guinea cup for the best mare. Over £300 was given in prizes. At the dinner in the Corn Exchange Mr. Heathcote presided.—Politics were not wholly excluded from the annual meeting of the Woodstock Agricultural and Horticultural Association, at which Lord Randolph Churchill presided. Mr. Barnett, M.P., Mr. Henley, M.P., and the Duke of Marlborough were among the speakers.—Mr. Disraeli was not present at the annual dinner of the Bucks Agricultural Association on Tuesday. One of his colleagues, Mr. Dupré, announced his intention shortly to retire from the representation of the constituency, for which he has sat about thirty years.

MUSIC.

THE HEREFORD MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

We this week terminate our festival notices with a record of the closing performances at Hereford on Thursday and Friday of last week.

Thursday morning brought forward the only specialty of the festival—a new oratorio, entitled “Hagar,” composed by the Rev. Sir F. A. Gore Ouseley, Bart. The text, chiefly selected from the Holy Scriptures by the Rev. J. R. Gleig Taylor, embodies the well-known episode of biblical history. The subject is not one of the fittest for musical treatment, nor is the literary adaptation made in the happiest manner for the purpose of the composer. The characters supposed to be represented are Abraham; Sarah, his wife; Hagar, her bondmaid; and Ishmael, son of the bondwoman. The music assigned to them was, in the Hereford performance, sang respectively by Mr. Santley, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, Mdle. Titens, and Miss Edith Wynne, the latter of whom also sang some passages belonging to the Angel, the incidental narrative portions having been rendered by Mr. Cummings. The composer has been far happier in the choruses than in the solo music. In the former there is much masterly writing, especially in those forms of fugue and counterpoint with which Sir Frederick Ouseley is thoroughly familiar, both as a deeply-read theorist and as a practical musician. His tendency, however, even in these best portions of his work, is rather towards the formal and conventional style of cathedral music than to that varied expression of the text by which the great masters of the oratorio school give colour and sentiment, even in combination with their use of the most scientific forms. Viewed merely as specimens of contrapuntal skill, several of the choruses of “Hagar” are worthy of high praise. From among various examples may be particularly mentioned “His seed shall endure,” “The Angel of the Lord,” “Praise the Lord, O my soul!” “He turneth the wilderness,” and “Oh, sing praises unto the Lord.” Another special instance of Sir Frederick Ouseley’s command over the resources of musical science is to be found in the trio for three equal voices, “He maketh,” which is written in canon—not with absolute strictness throughout, but with more adherence to rule than that which usually characterises the more modern form called a “round.” This piece was sung by the narrator (Mr. Cummings), aided by two additional tenors—Mr. E. Lloyd and Mr. Montem Smith—called into requisition specially for this piece. The harp obbligato (cleverly played by Miss Trust) gave an agreeable relief to the vocal sostenuto.

As already said, the solos are generally inferior to the choral pieces, having still less variety of character; and betraying inexperience in the art of writing for single voices, otherwise than in the dry and formal style of the cathedral anthem. One or two exceptions, however, may be made from this assertion. By far the best of the several airs is “O God, Thou art my God,” in which a very graceful and expressive melody is supported by an accompaniment that is written with far more command of orchestral effect and variety than is shown elsewhere throughout the oratorio. This air was sung with much refinement by Miss Wynne. The solo, “O that Ishmael,” is a smooth piece of melodious cantabile that lies well for the voice of Mr. Santley, who gave it with great effect. The bravura air of display, “The Lord hath not cast out my prayer,” is forced and strained, and it owed whatever impression it made to the fine singing of Mdle. Titens.

The oratorio is preceded by an overture of some length; but in this, as in the shorter introduction which commences the second part, subjects and treatment are weak and wanting in requisite elevation of style, and the instrumentation is also feeble. Although the musical merits of “Hagar” are scarcely sufficient to justify its length and pretension, there is yet so much of musicianly skill displayed in it that we may hope before long to hear a work by the same composer that shall be more worthy of acceptance. This was the wish expressed by Sir F. Ouseley himself at the miscellaneous concert on the Thursday evening, in reply to the public eulogium pronounced by the president, Lord Bateman. The remaining performances in the cathedral on Thursday week consisted of a portion of Spohr’s symphony, “The Consecration of Sound;” the same composer’s sacred cantata, “The Christian’s Prayer” (“Vater unser”), solos by Misses E. Wynne and Enriquez, Mr. M. Smith and Signor Agnesi; and Handel’s Chandos anthem, “O, praise the Lord with one consent,” solos by Misses E. Wynne and Enriquez, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Signor Agnesi.

On the Thursday evening a second miscellaneous concert took place in the Shirehall, in which the principal solo singers were heard.

On the Friday morning “The Messiah” was given in the cathedral, the solo music divided between Mdle. Titens, Miss E. Wynne, Madame Trebelli-Bettini, Miss Enriquez, Mr. Cummings, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and Signor Agnesi. This was, as usual, the real climax of the festival; the chamber concert, given in the grand jury-room in the evening, and the ball which followed in the Shirehall, having been supplemental proceedings.

Mr. Townshend Smith, organist of Hereford Cathedral, was indefatigable in the execution of his office as conductor, as also in his labours as honorary secretary. Mr. Dono, of Worcester, was an efficient coadjutor at the organ in the cathedral performances, with the exception of that of the Wednesday evening (“St. Paul”), when the instrument was in the hands of Dr. Wesley of Gloucester, who likewise presided as organist at the early services, and also acted as accompanist at the piano-forte at the miscellaneous evening concerts.

The collections and donations, to the present time, amount to nearly £1000.

The triennially recurring music meetings of Birmingham and Hereford will this year be followed by two extra festivals—one at Bristol, commencing Oct. 21; and one at Glasgow, beginning on Nov. 4.

The Tonic Sol-Fa Association held its annual concert at the Crystal Palace on Saturday, when 3500 certificated singers exemplified the proficiency which they have attained under this popular system by the performance of various pieces, in some of which their powers of singing at sight were manifested. Mr. Proudman and Mr. W. C. McNaught were the conductors.

The eighteenth series of the Crystal Palace autumn and winter concerts will commence on Oct. 4. During the series various novelties will be produced, among others a portion of Schumann’s music to “Faust;” two movements from Berlioz’s “Romeo and Juliet” symphony; Felicien David’s ode symphony “Le Desert;” Brahms’s “Schicksalslied,” for chorus and orchestra; a MS. symphony by Mr. E. Prout; a MS. overture to “A Winter’s Tale,” by Mr. J. F. Barnett; and some vocal pieces, with orchestra, specially composed for these concerts by Mr. Arthur Sullivan. Among the artists already engaged are Madame Lemmens, Madame Alvsleben, Madame Paley, Mr. Sims Reeves, Signor Foli, Madame Schumann, Herr Joachim, Mr. Charles Hallé, Herr Pauer, Herr von Bulow, and Signor Piatti.

Mrs. Roney (Miss Helen Hogarth), whose merits as a teacher of singing we have frequently noticed, has been appointed one of the professors of singing at the Ladies’ College, Cheltenham. The tributes borne to the excellence of Mrs. Roney’s teaching comprise (besides hearty testimonials from her many pupils and their parents) letters full of the highest appreciation of her talents from the greatest musical authorities in the kingdom, including Mdle. Titens (who gracefully acknowledges Mrs. Roney’s instruction of her niece), Sir Julius Benedict, Sir William Sterndale Bennett, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Parepa-Rosa, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Brinley Richards, and Mr. John Thomas, her Majesty’s harpist. This college has also secured the services of an accomplished pianiste, Miss Scates.

THEATRES.

GLOBE.

It is with much satisfaction that we meet again with Mr. Richard Lee as a dramatic author. Our readers will recollect his drama, “Ordeal by Touch,” produced at the Queen’s last season, and how nigh it was in approaching an entire success. Unfortunately, the writer was induced by injudicious friends to modify its arrangement, and thus impaired the impression which the first representation had made on the public. We trust that he will not yield to such mistaken counsel on the present occasion. Mr. Lee’s second piece is entitled “Chivalry,” an original play in four acts. The new drama does not exhibit such various powers as its predecessor, and is deficient in the comic element. The action is laid in the time of James II., and is connected with the infamous career of Colonel Kirke, an ungracious character bravely sustained by Mr. G. Vincent, and very ably impersonated. The true artist, in such a character, aims at an historical portrait, and Mr. Vincent succeeded in his aim. The story illustrates chivalry, not where it might be expected to be found, in high rank, but in humbler station—One Sydney Bayard, a Puritan gentleman, very finely rendered by Mr. S. Emery. Bayard thinks that he is loved by a yeoman’s daughter, named Lillian Avenant (Miss Rose Massey), but soon finds that he has been anticipated by Philip, Lord Western, son of the Earl of Zoyland, and ultimately the new Earl of the same name. A quarrel takes place between the rivals, and Bayard threatens the young nobleman with “a day of reckoning.” That day comes, but in a nobler form than the speaker had intended. Lord Western, after the defeat of Monmouth, is reduced, as a fugitive, to the necessity of appealing to Bayard for protection, which, at the instance of Lillian, the latter generously affords to his unfortunate rival. The latter had not deserved this grace, for he had acted faithlessly to both Lillian and her honest lover. The circumstances are these. Charles Hautayne, the Earl of Zoyland (Mr. Charles Harcourt), had deemed it his duty to interfere with his son’s amours, and had nefariously brought about an illegal marriage between his son and Lillian. Philip had been no party to the fraud; but, his father having subsequently boasted of it and bantered him about it, his mind yields to the suggestion, and dallies with dishonour. To induce Bayard to give him refuge he offers him a portrait of his wife, which he had pledged himself not to part with, except in death, as a gift from Lillian, on condition of his saving the man whom she thereby surrendered; and, as an evidence of this arrangement, Bayard receives the token. On Bayard producing it afterwards to Lillian she sees in it only the proof of her husband’s death, and refuses to be comforted, leaving Bayard besides with her unjust reproaches. And now, before the requisite explanations can take place, the Earl of Zoyland suddenly enters, like his son, a fugitive, and would make the house of Bayard his place of refuge. But Bayard has heard of the Earl’s contrivance for the false marriage, ascertained that the clerk who celebrated it was not “unfrocked” at the time, and therefore knew that the marriage was valid. In return for giving the Earl his refuge, he requires that the latter should sign a document certifying its validity. The Earl is forced to consent; but when Bayard turns his back he treacherously stabs him and, when prostrate, robs him of his certificate. Kirke’s “lamb” now enter and take the Earl captive, who is hanged in due course; and Bayard, recovering from his wound, has to purchase the stolen paper from Kirke. He also provides for the support of Lillian, carefully concealing from her the name of her benefactor. Four years elapse, and then opens the fourth and final act. The scene is Zoyland Castle, and the time a little previously to the return of the new Earl to the ancestral halls. The husband and wife again meet, and through the medium of their child are reconciled. The last act is not so well constructed as it might have been. The diction is throughout modestly poetical, and the dialogue not without point, though not of that epigrammatic quality which gave such animation to Mr. Lee’s earlier production. The audience were in general warm in their acknowledgments, though we were told that there were dissentients; but some have a finer ear for sibilant than ourselves. The characters were throughout well supported, and the performers frequently applauded. On the whole, we think, the piece was fairly and deservedly successful.

PRINCESS’S.

Mr. Albery has been called on to write a second fairy spectacle, and has not shrunk from the task; nor has Mr. Guiver been afraid to submit “the extravagant and erring” venture to the judgment of a discerning public. The tragic poem of “Manfred” is now followed by the comic poem of “The Will of Wise King Kino.” The author has added to the play-bill a premonition for the spectator, concerning the locale of the play, and such of its residents as are engaged in its action. He tells us that the country in which his scene is laid is Clencantia—a country “not bounded in any way, and, though it is on every map, there is no map of it.” The king of it, also, is sufficiently enigmatical, for why he “was called ‘the Wise’ no one has been able to say, but having once received the title it was not his business to show his wisdom; but others delight to discover it, so that his will is not necessarily a wise will, but the will of a man supposed to be wise.” Beginning with this style of banter, even before the curtain rises, we are prepared for the continuance of the same until its descent. The poet, however, would not willingly appear as a mere trifler; he seeks to impress us with a sense of his profundity. He sees, moreover, his interest in it, for “if,” he says, “we can once gain a character for profundity, we shall always keep it, if we are only sufficiently obscure.” There is “chaff” enough of this kind in the play, but we are not inclined to “thrash” it in the interest of the author. If the reader or spectator of it can understand it, we shall be sorry; if the author pretends to do so, we pity him. There are five scenes in this farrago of badinage, with plenty of dialogue and the smallest amount of story. We start with a room in the palace, and meet with certain ladies, with puff and mirror in hand, powdering themselves, singing all the while. The song need not detain us, for it is not very good; but the ladies are, for they are Miss Everard and Miss Cowper, called respectively Baume and Bibi. We are, however, not called upon to weigh the merits of these Court dames, but to count them. The number of the former is 906, of the latter 1124. This requires explanation. The people of Clencantia have abolished names and titles, and are known only by their numbers:—

“We are all numbered—Princes, Dukes and Lords,
Tinkers and ploughmen, millmaids, Duchesses,
Parsons, and fiddlers.”
“And what is that for?”
“Government was quite hard up for Liberal measures;
And, as last year the crops were very bad,
They laid it all to inequality,
And said if all distinctions were removed
The weather would improve, the earth be fruitful,
The people would work harder, and be happy,
And so they did away with names and titles,
And every one is numbered, like a cab.
Our sweet Princess is Number One, the Regent
Is Number Two, and had you had your number You’d be about—Three Millions, I should think.”

This unnumbered gentleman is Trottoir, the lover of the Princess, and is brought on to the boards in a box, by a humorous negro, called Faussaire 11,231,618, who serves to “moralise” the incidents as they arise. This idea of numbering the characters certainly took with the audience, who for the most part willingly surrendered themselves to the magic of the modern Aristophanes, who—if we may write in Mr. Albery’s vein—is no Aristophanes at all, though he arrogates his number. There cannot, in fact, in the nature of things, be two Aristophanes; nor, out of Greece, do we think there can be any, least of all in Clencantia. At any rate, the plan of numbering failed to answer in that land of Geese, as we are afraid it would in any or all of the islands of Greece, even in the modern Athens itself, which is not in Greece but in Scotland. For note the result:—

I think it’s even worse
The tens of thousands went mix with the hundreds,
The hundreds with the millions will not mix,
And in our sphere if one is Forty-six,
His great desire is to be Forty-five;
And then he’ll plot and lie, and scheme and cheat,
To get his number changed to Forty-four.
Those who would introduce us do not tell
What worth or beauty we possess, but what
Our number is, &c.

Thus far we have ventured on the author’s style, which is very humorous. But we must pass on to the hero of the box. To him enter the Princess Volant, Number One, who is exceedingly jealous of her numerical position, and gives her quondam lover the slenderest recognition; but we can see that she loves him none the less. She ought, for he sings her a decidedly good song, accompanied with a chorus. From this point, indeed, the author goes in for poetry; and some of Volant’s speeches are decidedly pretty; but we have no space for quotations. The poor Princess, however, needs must banish her lover again to his box. But now what of King Kino’s will? It imposes a grave condition on Volant. “Until she can raise and move our great state clock, that’s always wrong, our brother Thomas, Number Two,” is to be regent. Failing to perform this condition, Volant is condemned to wed a barbarian emperor, one Bad-ki-Bad (Mr. Alfred Honey); but previous to the ceremony she falls asleep, and sees certain automatic images, with a clock, on the table convert themselves into the characters of the drama. Trottoir appears like Prometheus, chained on the clock. Here a fairy intervenes, performing various menial offices; and finally, in her dream, Volant’s wedding with the uncivilised despot is, though in a queer manner, solemnised. And then, during Bad-ki-Bad’s temporary absence, Trottoir is released from the clock; and a very improper scene of reconciliation takes place, which is very properly interrupted by the returning emperor, and ends in a general confusion. Volant wakes from her dream to reality, and goes through certain trials which tend to prove her wisdom and her lover’s constancy; and thus at once her happiness and her crown are secured, but not until a second will of the deceased King is discovered, which improves upon the first. This document is found under a stone, called Her Grace’s Muff, which Volant lifts with her lever; her power to perform that feat being deferred, that so

She never should be Queen until
She went among the poor, who inhabited that district. To unravel such mysteries as these, to explain such recondite allusions, and to decide whether such a complex riddle will interest the public in its solution, exceeds our power. But there can be no doubt that the whole affair composes a glittering masque, with much to please the ear as well as the eye, and deserves to become popular.

A memorial window to Sir William Wallace has been placed in Paisley Abbey.

It is intended to have a second training-ship in the Thames for boys, the Chichester being already so full that no more can for the present be received.

Prince Roland Bonaparte, grand-nephew of Napoleon I. and second cousin of the late Emperor of the French, has been entered as a pupil at the Royal Naval School, New-cross.

The following are declared by the Civil Service Commissioners to be the successful candidates in the recent open competition for first appointments to cavalry and infantry. The names are placed in the order of merit:—Henry Mauley Briscoe, Robert Story, Geoffrey Francis Pinkney, Finlay Cochran Beatson, James Ramsay Campbell, William Henry Burn, Nathaniel Newnham-Davis, Arthur Dillon Denis Kelly, Charles Johnstone Stutfield, Edward Cyril Newcome, Eugene Aysford Sandford, Francis Richard Pennefather Kane, Norman Aiton Bray, Henry Arthur Fletcher, George Pycroft, Joseph Watkins William Darley, Quintin Hamilton Thompson, Edward Morris Poynton, Laurence Carrington Grubbe, Robert Mercer Barry, Edward William Dun, Francis James Walker, S. S. Parkyn, William Lambert, St. John William Forbes, John Gustavus Clifford Robotham, Chessborough Gordon Mackenzie Kennedy, Arthur Francis Macmillan Scott, John George Viscount Lambton, Guy St. Maur Palmes, Charles Edwin le Queune, William John Fortescue Morgan, James Harry Schwabe, Harry Leonard Dawson, Hon. Thomas Lister, Lancelot W. Lake, Alexander Wade Mitchell, Michael Arthur Burke, Henry Arthur Littledale, Edward Linderay, Lord Alexander Kennedy, Alfred Ambrose Lane, William Gordon Yate, Richard Travers Barter, Morey Quayle Jones, Morgan Jones, George Arthur Mills, Ralph Henry Hayes Sadler, Home J. Fergusson, Charles A. B. Knyvett Leighton. The following Lieutenants of Militia have passed a qualifying examination for commissions in the Army:—Thomas Francis Conyngham Armstrong, Hon. Charles Claude Bertie, Napoleon Joseph Rudolph Blake, Carteret Walter Carey, John Herbert Carteret Carey, Osmond de Beauvoir Carey, Hugh Cecil Cholmondeley, Hugh John Hector Dive, John Emeris, Houston French, Andrew Charles Parker Haggard, Thomas Richard Francis Brabazon Hallows, Berestord Robert Hamilton, Harry Stewart Bruce Hodgkinson, Herbert Edward Hudson, Somerset E. O’Brien, Davies, Cecil B. D. Michel, James Mitchell-Innes, James Charles Oughterson, Richard Owen, James Grove White, Lionel Bootle Wilbraham.

THE ROYAL YACHT, WITH THE KING OF HOLLAND, ENTERING THE NEW DOCKS AT FLUSHING.

THE KING OF HOLLAND DECLARING THE DOCKS OPEN.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION : THE CHINESE AND PERSIAN COURTS.

POLISH JEWS IN THE GHETTO AT VIENNA.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Sept. 15.

No country has a more striking display at the Vienna Exhibition than France. The chief manufacturers have flocked in large numbers to the Vienna Exhibition, as though desirous of showing to the entire world that their country, if beaten on the battle-field, still retains all its old supremacy in the arts of peace. France has reason to feel satisfied with the results of their efforts, for her display at Vienna is a surprise even to those acquainted with the energy of her people and the resources of the country.

Entering the French Court by its southern transverse gallery, one finds oneself in the section reserved to the leading publishing firms. The large and tastefully-arranged stalls of Messrs. Marne and Hachette, standing face to face, strike one at once. The former firm are "hors concours" on account of their splendid Bible illustrated by Gustave Doré, and their equally magnificent "Touraine," with its wonderful landscape drawings by Karl Girardet; and the latter are in a similar position on account of their superb "Saints Evangiles"—two large folio volumes, with illustrations by Bida, and splendid illuminated ornamental capitals and borders designed by Ch. Rossignaux, which have taken Messrs. Hachette nearly twelve years to produce, and have cost them close upon £40,000. Grouped round these two stalls one finds the cases and stands of all the leading Parisian printers, papermakers, bookbinders, and publishers. Many of the specimens of book-binding are indeed superb, especially those displayed by MM. Chaubolle-Durn and David.

Close at hand one finds the section reserved for photographic exhibits, where Nadar and Numa Blanc, Disderi and Reutlinger, Baldus and Ferrier appear to great advantage. The stereoscopic photographs of the latter and the marine photographs of M. Alph. Bernoux, rank among the finest of the kind to be found in the exhibition. A series of interesting designs for paperhangings, shawls, dresses, and ribbons, executed for manufacturers of Lyons, St. Etienne, and Paris, follows, and then one reaches the stalls where Giroux, Marchal, and Rémond exhibit their wonderful dolls and toys, and Bontemps displays his marvellous artificial nightingales, which imitate admirably the song of the real bird. Lefrauchaux, Faure, and Le Page are here with every description of rifle, carbine, and fowling-piece, and St. Etienne is creditably represented in this branch of its manufactures.

The tourist will find much to interest him in the adjoining stall of the Parisian Bazar du Voyage, where trunks and portmanteaus, hatboxes and bags, railway rugs and every possible article of which the traveller may stand in need are displayed. A comparatively small show of clocks and watches follows, in which the only two exhibitors who are worthy of notice are MM. Bréguet and Desfontaines Leroy. Next come the fans of Duvelloy, the king of Parisian fanmakers, and many wonderful little gems of art signed Anastasi and Ch. Rossignaux are to be found in his modest and unassuming stall.

A minute later we are in the midst of the jewellery. Here are to be seen the splendid diamonds of Messrs. Mellerio, with the elegant gold chains and bracelets of M. Fontenay, followed by the cameos of Barri and Fornet, the coral ornaments of Fouquet, Guedet, and Giobertini, the ancient jewellery of Le Blanc Granger, the steel jewellery of Huet, the precious stones of Block, and the imitation brilliants and gems of Regad, as splendid to the uninitiated as the real stones that lie beside them. Passing by all these marvels, round which bevy of Viennese beauties are continually gathered, one reaches the western nave. Right in front rises a peculiar structure composed of an estrade adorned with four lofty black-and-gold Venetian masts, supporting a dark green black and sombre purple velvet drapery, upon which one reads in letters of gold the name of the well-known Parisian silversmith Cristofle. Upon this estrade a superb collection of orfèvrerie Cristofle is displayed. Dinner services innumerable and of every possible design, from the Renaissance to that in vogue at the present time, together with specimens of every kind of electro-silver-work will be found here. The chief-d'œuvre of the display is a kind of cabinet or jewel safe, the front and sides of which are adorned with a series of designs, representing the triumph of Love, and executed en repoussé, by Charles Rossignaux.

Turning to the left of the Cristofle trophy, one descends the nave in the direction of the British section—separated from the French department by a lofty woodwork gateway, hung with magnificent curtains from the Gobelins, on which our Gallic neighbours have inscribed, in letters of gold, "Porte d'Angleterre." On one's right hand stands a curious little pavilion, constructed entirely of ornamental tiles; and close to this are the stalls of the leading exhibitors of ceramic wares. Here is Barbizet, whose manufactures date from the times of Palissy; Callinet, with his architectural faïences; Briancou, famous for his delicate tints; succeeded by Hache and Pepin Lehalleur, with their elegant porcelain dinner and tea services. Next come the exhibitors of glass. Didron, with his chandeliers; Luma and Lefebvre, with their engraved crystal glasses and goblets; Besnard and Lorin, with their stained-glass windows; and Alexandre, with his Venetian glass. Turning back again towards the Cristofle trophy one notices that the walls of the nave are hung with tapestry from the Gobelins and Aubusson, and hangings and carpets manufactured by Salandrouze de Lamornaix, Braquenié and Flaissier. In the stalls by the side of which one passes, vases and candelabra, busts and statuettes, in bronze, porcelain, onyx, and marble, enriched with gold, abound. Denière, Pantrot, Vallon, Thiebaut, Susse, Schlossmacher, all the rivals of Barbedienne, are here, and the celebrated manufacturer of bronzes has himself a gorgeous trophy at the end of the French court.

Proceeding down the northern transverse gallery facing M. Cristofle's display one finds oneself in the domain of la mode. Costumes such as no other gallery in the whole Exhibition contains are to be found here, together with bottles which rival the most elegant displayed by Vienna bootmakers, and gloves, bonnets, ribbons, and stays, which lady visitors to the Exhibition are never tired of inspecting. The glass case where the leading Parisian manufacturers of artificial flowers exhibit their goods ranks, after the Cristofle and Barbedienne trophies, as the third marvel of the French court. The roses, azaleas, rhododendrons, pansies, violets, and other plants and flowers with which it is filled, are admirably imitated, and are far superior to those displayed by any other country.

Our Illustration this week presents a view of the Chinese and Persian departments of the Exhibition, which have been described with their various contents. There is another sketch from Vienna, taken in the Jewish quarter of that city. It represents a group of Polish Jews, remarkable not only for their decided physiognomical type, but also for their long "talars," often greasy and always dirty. The two curls, on each side of the head, and always worn before the ear, are called "pejes," and are, in a certain way, a symbol of Jewish orthodoxy. These are the gentlemen, whose unceasing cry of "Old Clo!" or as they say here "Handeln," sung with a fierce nasal twang, is a terror and a nuisance to all those who want quiet. They start in the world with a small stock of ready money, but with all the more shrewdness; and by opening an old curiosity shop, or clothes shop, they manage, through strenuously acting upon the principle of the largest possible profits and the quickest returns, to gain such wealth as must excite the envy of the less energetic and less cunning, if not more scrupulous, Christian brethren. The poorer sort of Jews, indeed, live in a quarter of the city which may well be called a "Ghetto," in so far as that term applies to the squalor and filth of the Jewish districts in the towns of the Middle Ages. But the newly-created barons of the Hebrew race are sure to remove from the quarter of their early infancy, and to build palaces on the King's Strasse, where they patronise art with a view of being thought connoisseurs, and revenge themselves by an ostentatious display of riches for the many humiliations they endured in the days of their wandering youth.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

By order of the War Office the London Artillery Brigade and the 1st Middlesex Artillery will form the 1st Middlesex Administrative Brigade. It is understood that Lieutenant-Colonel Walmisley will have the command. The field guns of the metropolitan artillery are being replaced by improved ordnance for garrison artillery.

The annual prize meeting of the City of London Brigade was resumed on Wednesday and Thursday, last week, at Rainham. The skirmishing prizes were divided into two series. In the first series there were three prizes—a cup, value £21, presented by the Bread-street Ward, £5 given by the brigade, and the entrance-fees. Sergeant Moodie, Corporal Tayton, and Private Bullimore scored 36 points each, and Privates Merry and Latham 32 each. In the second series the Ironmongers' Company presented a prize of 10 gs., which was won by Quartermaster-Sergeant Stuckey; Private Bullimore took the second prize, presented by Mr. Kemp, late armourer; and Colour-Sergeant Fraser the third, composed of the entrance-fees. In the small-bore contest a prize presented by Major Hayward was won by Private Watts; Private Saw taking the second prize, given by Captain and Adjutant Ewens; and Private Lacey the third prize. The Cripple Gate Ward challenge trophy, a handsome piece of plate value 100 gs., representing the "Cripple Gate" of Old London, with a prize for the first man of 10 gs., subscribed by the ward, was won by Private Laverack; Private Hammerton took the second prize, and Lieutenant Payne the third. In the 200-yards competition Captain Merdell, Private Munn, Private Bullimore, and Sergeant Fraser were the winners. In the 500-yards competition Captain Hay won the cup, Private Marsh the officers' prize, and Sergeant Rogers the third prize. In the 600-yards competition Lieutenant Payne took a challenge cup, with 5 gs. added, presented by the Grocers' Company; Private Hayward took the second, and Lieutenant Brand the third prize. For the rapid-firing contest Private F. Page, of G company, was declared the winner of the first prize; Private Haines took the second prize, while the third fell to Corporal Wrightson. In the volley-firing competition, for the second time the prize was won by O company; K company took the second prize. In the contest for the challenge cup presented by the late Private Bartlett Captain Sir Hector M. Hay stood first, Quartermaster-Sergeant Stuckey second for the officers' prize of 5 gs., and for the third and fourth prizes Corporal Atto, Private Marsh, Private Child, and Sergeant Bell tied.

Upwards of 200 of the West Middlesex competed, last Saturday, at the Government ranges, Wormwood-scrubs, for a long series of prizes of the value of between £200 and £300, including several handsome challenge cups, two of which, value £50 each, were presented by Mr. Harvey Lewis and Sir Thomas Chambers. The borough members' new challenge cup was won by Colour-Sergeant Pooley, and Private Little took the second prize. The borough members' old challenge cup, with £5 added by the council, was won by Private Spurr, Private Angel taking the second prize. Corporal Moynihan took a silver cup, value £5, presented by Mr. J. H. Foster; and another silver cup, presented by the same gentleman, was taken by Private G. Bruton. In the latter contest a tankard, added as a second prize by the Quartermaster, was won by Private Deacon. Six guineas given by the Bank of England Rifle Association, and divided into three prizes, fell to Sergeant Cowles and Lieuts. Edwards and Collier; and £20 presented by Messrs. Marshall and Snelgrove was divided into two contests—the first for officers and non-commissioned officers, and the second for privates. In the first contest Private Coulthurst took the prize of £10, while Private Angel, for the privates, took £10. A sum of £30, given by the council from the funds of the regiment, was also competed for. A silver parcel-gilt tankard, value £20, presented by Messrs. M. B. Foster and Sons, with £10 added by Colonel Somerset, and divided into four prizes, was restricted to marksmen in the regiment or any who had fired in the "battalion twenty" in a match with other corps. After a keen contest, it was won by Lieutenant Garner. Corporal Moynihan was second, and took a prize of £4; and the other prizes were awarded to Lieutenant Edwards, Private Cormack, and Corporal Coulthurst. Colonel Barber's prizes were won by Privates G. A. Coulthurst, Collins, Bell, Whitfield, and Wreford. The extra prizes were presented by Sir Thomas Rowley, Mr. E. A. Turner, Mr. W. Crick, Mr. R. Cooke, Mr. F. Darke, Mr. W. Cormack, Mr. W. Bath (of the Rifle Pavilion), Lieutenant Millard, and Sergeant Cowles. The following are the names of the winners:—Private Cuthbertson, Corporal May, Private Cormack, Private Angel, Corporal Edmonds, Sergeant Madden, Corporal Munn, Private Barker, Corporal Coulthurst, Private Madden, Private Collins, Sergeant Grimoldby, Private Petit, Colour-Sergeant Pooley, and Lieutenants Edwards, Towerzey, and Garner.

The third competition for regimental prizes offered to be shot for by the efficient members of the 1st Manchester took place, last Saturday, on their shooting ground at Astley. The prizes, fifteen in number, were presented by honorary members and officers of the regiment. The following is a list of the winners:—Corporal Hepplestone, Private Rennie, Corporal Macleese, Captain Harrap, Colour-Sergeant Mellor, Sergeant Porter, Colour-Sergeant Wallace, Sergeant Ferguson, Private Heseltine, Sergeant Mottershead, Privates Hough, Robinson, and Goodear, and Corporals Hulme and Hodgson.

The Reading volunteers have held their annual prize competition. The first prize, value £50, was given by the senior member for the borough, Sir Francis Goldsmid, to be divided among the three highest scorers. Privates Warwick, Turner, and Moore were the winners.

Mr. Thomas Brassey, M.P. for Hastings, has passed the examination of the local marine board of the port of London, and obtained his certificate of proficiency as a master in the mercantile marine. It is only granted upon the candidate exhibiting a thorough knowledge of practical navigation.

DISASTERS.

Seven persons have lost their lives at Plymouth, through the falling of a wall which had been injured by fire.

Three men were drowned in the Clyde off Dunglass Castle, last Saturday, by the upsetting of a boat during a squall.

Considerable damage to property has been caused by lightning in the neighbourhood of York and Manchester.

There were great floods on Sunday on the north-east coast of Scotland. Many of the railway bridges near Forfar were injured, and the Caledonian Railway traffic was interrupted.

The Amazon, a Swedish schooner, was wrecked on the Goodwin Sands on Monday night. The crew were saved by the Ramsgate life-boat.

The smack Hero, of Maryport, which left Douglas on Saturday afternoon, encountered a terrible gale off Maughold Head, and had to put back disabled. In endeavouring to make the harbour the vessel grounded, and three persons lost their lives. The smack became a total wreck.

A melancholy case of puerperal mania has happened at Walgrave, in Berkshire. A carpenter's wife, who had been confined about six weeks, was in the house alone, when she threw her baby out of the window, and was found hacking her throat with a penknife. She died shortly after, and it is feared that the baby is fatally injured.

At Whitby, on Saturday night, a tiger in Manders's Menagerie seized a boy named Langley through the bars of its cage. His screams produced a panic, it being believed that an animal had broken loose, and in the struggle to reach the door many persons were injured. The tiger was at last forced to relax its hold, the boy's arm being terribly lacerated. One of the keepers has had his ribs broken by being struck by an elephant.

A fire broke out, last Saturday, in Welbeck-street, Cavendish-square, by which the occupier, Mrs. Mary Ann Cartwright, who was a lodging-house keeper, lost her life. At the inquest the jury returned a verdict of "Death from burns," but how the fire occurred there was not sufficient evidence to show.—A large flax-mill at Montrose, leased by Messrs. J. and G. Paton, was destroyed by fire on Saturday, the damage being estimated at £35,000.

Mr. Wm. Worboys, surgeon, of the New-cut, Blackfriars-road, died suddenly, on Tuesday, from heart disease. He had only recently been married.—An inquest was held on Tuesday afternoon on Mr. John Moore, aged sixty-eight, a gentleman residing at Blackheath. On Monday last deceased, with his wife and brother-in-law, was at the St. Pancras terminus of the Midland Railway, intending to travel into Cheshire. His wife had got into the carriage, and deceased was about to step in, when he fell back on to the platform dead. He had for some years been suffering from heart disease, and medical examination showed that he died from syncope.

The gentleman who committed suicide by jumping in front of a train at Battersea has been identified as Mr. E. L. Beake, of the firm of Beake and Co., hat and cap manufacturers, Boud-street. A verdict of temporary insanity has been returned.

—Mr. Charles Burstow, residing at Penge, who had been in great anxiety consequent upon domestic differences, has committed suicide. The Coroner's jury found that he committed the fatal act while in a state of unsound mind.—Robert Grimwood, twenty-nine, who managed the Duke of York Tavern, Henry-street, Holborn, for his father, has committed suicide by cutting his throat. He left a written statement that he had been robbing his parents ever since he was a boy. The jury returned a verdict of "Death whilst of unsound mind, brought on by intemperance."—Miss Elizabeth Blackwell, thirty-five years of age, having independent property bequeathed to her a few months since by her father, has been found dead on the beach at Whitsands, four miles from Stoke Devonport, where she resided. She was divested of her usual jewellery, her pockets were empty, and, as blood was oozing from a wound in her head, it was at first believed she had been robbed and murdered. The post, however, conveyed a letter to her friends, written by deceased, stating when it was received she would be lying drowned on Whitsands. No motive is assigned.—Hannah Lewis, whose husband is believed to have gone to America about eleven weeks ago, after unsuccessfully attempting to drown herself, went on the North Eastern Railway at Eaton Sands, on Monday, and threw herself in front of a passing engine, which cut her almost in two.

The inquest on the three persons killed in the railway accident at Hartlepool was resumed and concluded on Thursday week. Evidence was given that the tyre of the wheel of the engine had been packed with sheet iron, which rendered it less safe than a solid wheel. The jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death," with a recommendation that no engine should be used for passenger-trains having so serious a defect, and that the speed should be diminished of all trains descending the incline at the Hartlepool station.—Colonel Rich has reported that the collision which occurred at the Creetown station on the Caledonian Railway, by which ten passengers and an inspector were injured, was caused by the engine-driver, fireman, and guard of the goods-train being in an unfit state to do their duty.—Through the breaking of an axle a collision took place between two goods-trains near Bury on Saturday night. An engine-driver and two guards were injured. Great damage was done to the rolling stock, and considerable delay was occasioned by the blocking of the line.—A passenger-train from Lismahagow to Glasgow has run into a mineral-train standing on the line. One woman is dangerously ill from the shock, and a dozen other persons suffered severely.—Another collision took place on Monday near Perth between two goods-trains. A Caledonian train was leaving the goods station when, in consequence of some misunderstanding regarding the signals, she was run into broadside by a North British train. The North British engine was smashed and thrown off the rails, and there was considerable destruction of plant. The guard of the Caledonian train sustained serious injury.—The railway slaughter of 1872 has been officially reported upon by the Board of Trade. It gives a total number of deaths of 1145, and of persons injured 3038. More than half the number of killed (633) were railway servants, but that class furnished less than half the injured—namely, 1395.

The Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company have purchased the Manchester Workhouse Hospital for £95,000, the site being required for the extension of the Victoria station.

The Suez Canal Conference has been postponed till Oct. 1, when it will meet at Constantinople. It is said that the English and Italian Governments have agreed on a common policy regarding the points to be discussed.

The Daily Telegraph has published two columns and a half of reports from the principal coal-producing districts of the country in regard to the present state of the coal trade. All the reports declare that there certainly will be no decrease in the price of coal during this winter, and most of them speak of an increase being near at hand.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

DOWAGER DUCHESS OF GRAFTON.

Her Grace the Duchess Dowager of Grafton, who died at Euston Hall, Thetford, on the 10th inst., was Mary Caroline, third daughter of the late Admiral the Hon. Sir George Cranfield Berkeley, G.C.B., by his wife, Emily Charlotte, daughter of Lord George Lennox; and was granddaughter of Augustus, fourth Earl of Berkeley, K.T. The Duchess was born in 1795, and was married, June 20, 1812, to Henry, fifth Duke of Grafton (who died March 26, 1863), by whom she had, with two daughters, three sons, the eldest of whom is the present Duke of Grafton.

LADY BELHAVEN AND STENTON.

The Right Hon. Hamilton Lady Belhaven and Stenton, who died at Wishaw House, Lanarkshire, on the 8th inst., aged eighty, was widow of Robert Montgomery, eighth Lord Belhaven and Stenton, in the Peerage of Scotland, and Lord Hamilton of Wishaw (which peerage he acquired Sept. 10, 1836) in that of the United Kingdom, K.T., to whom she was married in 1815. Lord Belhaven died without issue Dec. 22, 1868, when the peerage honours became extinct. Her Ladyship was the daughter of Walter Campbell, Esq., of Shawfield.

SIR J. N. L. CHETWODE, BART.

Sir John Newdigate Ludford Chetwode, fifth Baronet, of Chetwode, Buckinghamshire, and of Oakley, in the county of Stafford, died, at his seat at the latter place, on the 8th inst. He was born, Nov. 12, 1788, the eldest son of Sir John Chetwode, Bart., by Lady Henrietta Grey, his wife, eldest daughter of George Harry, fifth Earl of Stamford and Warrington. The Baronet whose decease we record assumed, by Royal licence, in 1826, the additional and prefix surnames of Newdigate and Ludford, in consequence of his marriage, Oct. 16, 1821, with Elizabeth Juliana, eldest daughter and co-heir of John Newdigate Ludford, Esq., of Ansley Hall, in the county of Warwick (which lady died June 17, 1859); and he married, secondly, Jan. 17, 1861, Arabella Phillis, widow of the late James Reade, Esq., of Lower Berkeley-street, Portman-square. In 1852 Sir John was High Sheriff for Warwickshire, of which county as well as of Staffordshire he was a Deputy Lieutenant. He succeeded to the baronetcy at his father's death, Dec. 17, 1845; and, as he had no issue, the title devolved on his nephew (son of his eldest brother, the Rev. George Chetwode, of Chilton House, Bucks), now Sir George Chetwode, sixth Baronet, Lieutenant-Colonel late 8th Hussars, of Byrkeley Lodge, Burton-on-Trent, who was born July 20, 1823, and married, Oct. 21, 1868, Alice Jane, second daughter of M. T. Bass, Esq., M.P., of Rangemore, in the county of Stafford, and has issue.

MR. J. H. WILSON,

James Holbert Wilson, Esq., of 19, Onslow-square, South Kensington, J.P. and D.L., and of the Inner Temple, barrister-at-law, who died suddenly at Eastbourne on the 6th inst., aged sixty-four, was a well-known and much-esteemed magistrate for Middlesex, as well as a governor of the Brompton Hospital. Mr. Wilson was a collector of great taste and industry, and accumulated a magnificent series of prints relating to the annals of London. He was the author of a popular "History of Temple Bar."

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Alfred Atkinson Pollock, late of Heathfield, Hampstead-heath, and of No. 63, Lincoln's-inn-fields, solicitor, who was drowned while bathing, on the 10th ult., at Totland Bay, Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight, was proved, on the 10th inst., by Mrs. Caroline Dorothea Hay Pollock, the relict, the personal estate being sworn under £400,000. The testator bequeaths all his personal estate and devises all his real estate to his wife absolutely for her own sole use and benefit; and requests her, soon after his decease, to make a will, so that the real property may not, unless she so desires, descend in case of her death intestate as real property instead of personality.

The will of the Rev. William Watson-Smyth, late of Wadhurst Castle, near Hawkhurst, Kent, was proved, on the 9th inst., by Robert Watson-Smyth (the brother), the sole executor, the personality being sworn under £20,000. The testator gives all his real and personal estate to his said brother.

The will of Thomas Hailes Lacy, formerly of No. 89, Strand, and late of Benhill-street, Sutton, was proved, on the 30th ult., by Samuel Kydd, the acting executor—the personality being sworn under £4000. The testator bequeaths to Mr. Kydd, £250; to Frederick Latreille, £100, and such manuscripts as may be desirable to enable him to complete the proposed publication of the annals of the London theatres and a dictionary of the works of our dramatic authors; to the Home for Dogs, Battersea, £100; and there are a few other pecuniary legacies and annuities to his assistant and housekeeper. The residue of his property testator gives to the trustees of the Royal General Theatrical Fund, of which he was a director; the capital and total sum of which is to be preserved intact, under the name of the "Lacy Bequest," but the interest, profits, and rentals are to be the property of the said fund for use and disposal, according to the rules, for its benefit and continuance. Testator gives a list of his property which will become subject to such bequest, and, besides some freeholds and leaseholds, it includes the acting rights of Mr. John Cumberland's list of plays, and the copyright and acting rights of the late Mr. Leicester Stanhope Buckingham's and three of Mr. Theyre Smith's.

The will and codicil of William Brownfield, of Barlaston Hall, Staffordshire, were proved, on the 5th inst., by Edward Etches, Mrs. Ellen Brownfield, the relict, and William Etches Brownfield, the son, the executors; the personality being sworn under £100,000. With the exception of a legacy to his brother-in-law and an annuity to his sister, the bequests of the will are limited to testator's widow and children.

The will of Charles Kennerley, formerly of No. 7, Savile-row, St. James's, and of Pond-street, Hampstead, but late of Sussex House, Hammersmith, was proved, on the 5th inst., by John Charles Kennerley, the son, the surviving executor; the personal estate being sworn under £80,000. The testator leaves to several of his nieces £500 each; to his widow, his furniture, £3000, and an annuity of £1000; and the rest of his property to his son.

The wills of the following persons have just been proved, viz.:—Lieut.-Col. Chardin Philip Johnson, under £20,000; and Joseph Shepherd Wyon, of No. 287, Regent-street, Chief Engraver of Her Majesty's Seals, £3000.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

*All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

G. REICHEL. The August number of your Chess Review has not reached us. Perhaps you will be so obliging as to send it with the number for September.

J. T. N. and G. N. of Calicut, Malabar Coast.—Yes, quite right. See our Notices to Correspondents in the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS for June 28.

Q.—We shall have much pleasure in giving you our opinion of the games.

A. LEARNER.—No. Your proposed solution is a mistake altogether. Look attentively at the position, and you will soon find your error.

J. P. H. may rest assured that the system of notation he proposes will never find favour with chess-players for ordinary games. Something very like it is adopted in playing games by telegraph, and has been for many years.

R. M. D.—Problem No. 1541 is perfectly correct.

THE TRUE SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1539 has been received, since the publication of last week's list, from Darby and Joan—D. C.—Templetown—Larry O'Garra—Felix—Colonel Newcomb—Victor—N. S. J.—Blackpool—Annie Molyneux—Harkness—Fleebrook—Banahoe—Prestis—Tilly-vally—Q. K. D.—J. Corry—Omega.

THE TRUE SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1540 has been received from Henry and Emile Frae of Lyons—J. Allaire—M. P.—Sigismund—Camilla—Civis—Twins—Bonbon—Taffy—B. N. E.—R. T. O.—W. Damant—P. N. of Mupa—W. Airey—T. W. Morris—T. W.—Canterbury—T. E. K.—W. Furnival—M. D.—Pip—S. T. H. Faversham—J. O. K.—W. V. G. D.—J. C. Moore—A. W. R. D. T.—L. L.—Mediens—Fireway.

THE TRUE SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1541 has been received from E. Bennett—S. F. H.—Faversham—M. P.—Bavenna—Piercy—L. M. K.—P. B. E.—H. Frau of Lyons—H. P. and B.—Ben.—K. Mark—L. L.—Joseph Janion—J. Bale of Orley—A. Demerby—L. W. Stapleton—W. Sharpe—Trial—J. Allaire—Notica—K. W. D.—M. D.—W. Lewis Wood—V. Vosler—J. N. K.—W. Carlyon—Dr. Pangloss—Ethony—Box and Cox—L. S. D.—1873—F. R. S.—A. A.—Metaphis—Charley—Tryagain—Fergus—Manfred and Man Friday—Florence—E. of Bayonne—M. Rhodes, Dewsbury—W. V. G. D.—T. W. of Canterbury—R. B. Seale—H. Eas—A. Wood—W. Furnival—St. Clair—J. Sowden—C. M. D.—Race Field—R. B. H.—W. S. F.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1542.

1. Kt to Q 3rd. 2. Gives mate with Q. Kt or B, according to Black's play.

PROBLEM No. 1543.
By Mr. R. WORMALD.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and give mate in four moves.

THE CHESS TOURNAMENT AT VIENNA.

Upon the termination of the rounds in this Contest, Messrs. BLACKBURNE and STEINITZ, it will be remembered, having made equal scores, were appointed to play a rubber of three games, the winner to have the first prize and the loser to take the second. The following are the Games of this, the final, duello in the Tournament.

GAME I.

(Ruy Lopez Kt's Opening.)

WHITE (Mr. Blackburne).	BLACK (Mr. Steinitz).
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
3. B to Q Kt 5th	P to Q R 3rd
4. B to Q R 4th	Kt to K B 3rd
5. Q to K 2nd	P to Q Kt 4th
6. B to Q Kt 3rd	B to Q Kt 2nd
7. P to Q 3rd	B to Q B 4th
8. P to Q B 3rd	Castles
9. B to K Kt 5th	P to K R 3rd
10. B to K R 4th	B to K 2nd
11. Q Kt to Q 2nd	K to R sq
12. Q Kt to K B sq

He would have done much better by casting e7 on the King's or Queen's side. The move in the text was an indication of the fact—painfully evident as the match proceeded—that Mr. Blackburne was incapable of putting forth all his strength in this last battle.

WHITE	BLACK
13. P to Q R 4th	P to Q R 4th
P to Q R 3rd is in every respect superior to this advance.
14. B takes Q R P	P takes P
15. Q to B 2nd	P to Q 4th

He could have gained a Pawn by taking the Q Kt with the Bishop; and Black would have obtained no equivalent in position.

WHITE	BLACK
16. P takes P	P takes P
17. B to K Kt 3rd	Kt to Q B 4th
18. R to Q sq	Q to K sq
19. Kt to K 3rd

What a contrast between the freedom of one game and the restriction of the other! The Austrian has all his forces in the field, the Englishman's are all, or nearly all, at home.

WHITE	BLACK
20. Kt to Q B sq	Kt to K 3rd
21. Kt to Q B 3rd	Q to Kt 2nd
22. K to R sq	B to K B sq
23. Q to K B 2nd	R to Q B 3rd
24. Q to K R 4th	Kt to Q 5th
25. B to K Kt 5th	B takes Kt
26. B P takes B	K to Q 2nd
27. B takes P	R takes R (ch)
28. R takes R	R to Q B sq
29. R to Q sq	R to Q B 6th
30. B to K B 6th	Q to Q B sq
31. Q to Kt 4th (ch)	Resigns.

GAME II.

(Irregular Opening.)

BLACK (Mr. S.)	WHITE (Mr. B.)
1. P to Q R 3rd	P to K Kt 3rd
2. P to Q 4th	B to K Kt 2nd
3. P to K 4th	P to Q B 4th
4. P takes P	Q to Q B 2nd
5. B to Q 3rd	Q takes P
6. Kt to K 2nd	Kt to Q B 3rd
7. B to K 3rd	Q to Q R 4th (ch)
8. Q Kt to Q B 3rd	P to Q 3rd
9. Castles	B to Q 2nd
10. P to Q Kt 4th	Q to Q sq
11. R to Q Kt sq	P to Q Kt 3rd
12. Kt to Q 5th	Kt to K B 3rd
13. Kt takes Kt (ch)	B takes Kt
14. B to K R 6th

Mr. Blackburne has again permitted his subtle opponent to prevent his casting, and again the consequences are disastrous to him.

BLACK (Mr. S.)	WHITE (Mr. B.)
17. Q to Q 2nd	Q to Q B 2nd
18. P to Q B 4th	Kt to Q sq

THE REV. HORATIO BOLTON.

The magnates who may be looked upon as connecting links between the old school of Chess and the new are rapidly disappearing. Within a short space we have seen Lewis, St. Amant, Evans, Chamouillet, and Jaenisch depart, and we have now the regretful task to announce the death of our old and respected contributor, the Rev. Horatio Bolton.

To thousands among the present generation of chess-players Mr. Bolton's name is unknown. He had so long withdrawn himself from the exercise of his favourite pastime that none but players in the sore and yellow leaf can be aware that in losing him we have lost one of the finest composers of chess problems this country has produced. Thirty years ago the problems of Horatio Bolton were considered second to none, and wherever chess was on the tapis his name was not far off. Even now, indeed, when the construction of these subtleties has been wonderfully developed, the problems contributed to this paper by Mr. Bolton rank among the most ingenious we have published, and with the veterans of the game his name is still worthily remembered.

Mr. Bolton was born in Norfolk, and, with the exception of the time spent at Cambridge for his education, was never absent from his native county for more than a few weeks during a period of thirty years.

He was a godson and a connection of the great Lord Nelson, and was highly esteemed by everyone to whom he was known. Though so advanced in years, he enjoyed good health to within a fortnight of the end, and when that came passed away with the same serenity and gentleness which he had exhibited through his long life.

It is noticeable as an indication that the practice of chess is not conducive to longevity, that of the players mentioned, Chamouillet lived to ninety years of age, Lewis to eighty-three, Evans to eighty, and Mr. Bolton died in his eighty-first year.

TOBACCO AND PIPES.

In the present year's International Exhibition at South Kensington tobacco is classified under the heading of substances used as food. In connection with this is exhibited a large collection of curious implements, such as pipes, snuff-boxes, and the like, contributed almost entirely by Mr. W. Bragge, F.S.A., F.R.G.S. It is the most valuable collection of the sort ever brought together, extending to nearly every period, country, style, and material, from the earliest ages down to our own day. It will not be necessary to do more than refer to the specimens in our page of Illustrations, as each article bears the distinctive character of the locality it came from; but a few notes on the history of tobacco will doubtless be interesting.

To those of our readers who have not seen a tobacco plant it may be briefly described as an annual, having much the appearance of a sunflower during its early growth, rising to the height of 6 ft. or 7 ft., the largest leaves, at their base, about 20 in. long. Its handsome flowers grow in clusters at the top. Their colour is yellowish white outside and delicate red within.

When Christopher Columbus, in the year 1492, discovered the New World, he found in the island now known as Cuba many persons of both sexes who had in their mouths a roll of leaves of which they were inhaling the smoke. These were from the tobacco plant, which grew wild on the heights of that island, but which at the time does not appear to have been the object of care or cultivation. Not only at Cuba was smoking prevalent, but among the North American Indians as far north as Canada; and with these it partook of a religious character, as the calumet, or pipe of peace, was and is still indispensable to the ratification of a treaty. "In the belief of the ancient worshippers the Great Spirit smelt a sweet savour as the smoke of the sacred plant ascended to the heavens, and the homely implement of modern luxury was in their hands a sacred censor." This remark is from Wilson's "Prehistoric Man."

The use of this narcotic in Europe dates from its introduction, from the province of Tobaca, in St. Domingo, in 1559, by Hernandez de Toledo. Part of the small quantity first brought by him to Spain and Portugal found its way (by means of the French Ambassador at Lisbon, Jean Nicot) to Paris, and was used as a powder by Catherine de Medici. Snuff was for a long time the shape in which it was first employed. Both in France and the Papal States it was received with general enthusiasm. Camden, in his "Elizabeth," states that Sir Francis Drake and his companions, on their return from Virginia in 1585, were "the first, as far as he knew, who introduced the Indian plant called Tobacco or Nicotia into England, having been taught by the Indians to use it as a remedy against indigestion." At first its price ran very high, and was the original cause of small pipe-bowls. A glance at Nos. 3 and 4 of our Illustrations will show this. Their date is of the time of Queen Elizabeth. The bowls of the Japanese pipes are not larger than a thimble.

Smoking is a habit at once artificial and very widely spread. It is difficult to imagine a Turk without his pipe, yet we do not hear of its being used at Constantinople before the year 1610. There is no mention whatever of tobacco-smoking in the "Arabian Nights Entertainments." To India the seeds of the plant were first carried by the Portuguese in 1559, and thence it got to China. In this latter country girls from the age of eight or nine wear as an appendage to their dress a small silken pocket, to hold tobacco and pipe. In England different substances have sometimes been smoked medicinally, as colts-foot, yarrow, mouse-ear, lettuce, and other plants; but there is no reliable evidence of pipes being in use before the introduction of tobacco.

We all know of the running fire of opposition "the weed" has encountered from soon after the time it first presented itself to the Old World to the present generation, and how it has successively encountered the indignation of popes, priests, princes, physicians, and Eastern potentates. Spenser, in his "Faerie Queene," and probably in compliment to his patron, Sir Walter Raleigh, calls it "divine tobacco." It ceased to be divine when James became King. About the time when a Turkish Vizier was thrusting pipes through the noses of smokers, and a Shah of Persia was cropping their ears, the British Solomon was fulminating his wrath against the unhappy lovers of tobacco. His famous "Counterblast" has been so often quoted that it is needless to dwell upon it here. In Russia, at first, the nose was to be cut off as the penalty of smoking. In Switzerland, in 1661, its prohibition was placed immediately under that against adultery in the Decalogue. We will, however, conclude this notice by the following allusion to the practice, contained in some lines from the "Marrow of Compliment," written in 1664:—

Much meat doth Gluttony procure
To feed men fat as swine;
But he's a frugal man indeed
That on a leaf can dine!

He needs no napkin for his hands,
His fingers' ends to wipe,
That hath his kitchen in a box,
His roast meat in a Pipe!

New Assembly Rooms for the district of Glasgow south of the Clyde were opened, yesterday week, by a concert.

From the abstract of the agricultural returns of Great Britain for 1873, issued on Tuesday night by the Board of Trade, it appears that, with the exception of barley and hops, there is a decrease in the number of acres at present under cultivation as compared with the year 1871. The number of acres under wheat are 3,490,392, which is a decrease of three per cent from 1872; under oats the acreage is returned at 2,676,234, showing a decrease of 1.1 per cent from last year; while potatoes, which claim only an acreage of 514,693, exhibit a decrease of 8.8 per cent. There are 2,336,020 acres under barley, which is an increase of 0.9 per cent on last year; while the hop acreage is 63,283, being an increase of 2.2 per cent. There has been an increase of 6 per cent in the number of cattle reared in 1873 as compared with the previous year, and of 11.7 per cent as compared with 1871; while the sheep have increased by 5.4 per cent as compared with 1872, and by 8.3 per cent as compared with 1871. The exceedingly high price of butcher's meat has undoubtedly contributed to this result, although the increasing demand for that article will probably prevent the increased production from having its natural effect in lowering the price.

J. T. BALCOMB, DEL.

- | | | | |
|--|--|---|--|
| 1. Japanese tobacco-pipes (metal). | 9. Pipe-bowl, old German. | 17. Sheisha, when smoked is filled with new milk, from Djebba-Sobat (Africa). | 24. Greenland pipe, bone. |
| 2. Old English clay. | 10. Modern French clay : man's head in boot. | 18. Porcelain pipe bowl, old German. | 25. Silver tobacco-stopper, old German. |
| 3. A native's pipe, Africa. | 11. Bronze tobacco-stopper, old German. | 19. Cigar-case, India. | 26. Chinese snuff-bottle, ivory. |
| 4. Black stone from the Upper Nile. | 12. Chinese water-pipe. | 20. Horn pipe, from Java. | 27. Turkish tobacco-pouch. |
| 5. Dark red clay, inlaid with lead, Vancouver Island. | 13. Central African pipe, of wood. | 21. Dutch snuff-grater. | 28. Indian stone pipe, Vancouver Island. |
| 6. Fragment of one of the earliest known pipes, from Indian grave-mounds, North America; represents the hinder part of a bird. | 14. Flint and steel, old German. | 22. Dutch snuff mill. | 29. Bone snuff-spoons made by the Amakoss. |
| | 15. American Indian tobacco-pouch. | 23. Japanese opium pipe. | 30. Kaffirs, South Africa. |
| | 16. Mexican stone pipe. | | |

ANCIENT AND CURIOUS TOBACCO-PIPES, FROM THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1778.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1873.

WITH
EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN: DON CARLOS AND HIS STAFF.

doubt the circle of facts ascertained by research has become widened; but among those facts there are none of a very striking order—none, at least, which absorb the attention and dominate the expectations of the scientific world.

Perhaps it might be well for the members of the Association to consider whether they are not in some danger of mistaking the true methods of advancing their object, and of leaning too dependently—or, at any rate, longing to lean—upon the aid of Government. There are cases, unquestionably, in which such aid may be legitimately sought, but they are but few; and even with regard to them the kind of help given is not always productive of the anticipated results. Would it not be far better to interest society in seeking to achieve many of those objects which our philosophers and savants are anxious to intrust to the agency of the State? We believe that a vast annual fund might be placed at the disposal of science by the spontaneous liberality of the public, were but the proper means and organisation devised for the guardianship and appropriation of it. A little contrivance might go farther towards obtaining assistance than abundant complaints. Science need not undervalue its own claims upon the community, nor its own power of getting them recognised. Let it have faith in itself! Let it appeal in proper fashion to the world, and we believe that whatever reasonable support it may need for the prosecution of its inquiries will be furnished with hearty zeal and liberality from the superabounding wealth of the country.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle. Prince Leopold returned to the castle on Saturday last, from a visit to the Earl of Aberdeen, at Haddo House, Aberdeenshire. Earl Granville is the Minister in attendance upon her Majesty. Sir William Jenner, M.D., has succeeded Dr. Fox in attendance at the castle. Sir Howard Elphinstone and the Rev. Donald M'Leod, D.D., arrived at Balmoral on Saturday last. On Sunday the Queen, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service at Crathie church. Dr. Donald M'Leod officiated. Her Majesty, accompanied by the Princess of Wales and Princess Beatrice, has made frequent excursions on Deeside, and has walked and driven daily within the Royal demesne. The Queen has entertained at dinner Earl Granville, Sir Howard Elphinstone, and the Rev. Donald M'Leod, D.D. Colonel Gardiner has succeeded the Hon. Mortimer Sackville West in attendance upon her Majesty.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, with their youthful family, continue to sojourn at Abergeldie Castle. The Princess pays frequent visits to the Queen at Balmoral, and also often receives visits from her Majesty and Princess Beatrice. The Prince has good sport in both shooting and deer-stalking.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

The Duke of Edinburgh arrived at Constantinople on Monday on board her Majesty's ship Helicon. On the following day his Royal Highness visited the Sultan. The Duke also visited the Turkish flag-ship. At noon the Sultan returned the Duke's visit at the English Embassy. His Royal Highness afterwards visited the mosques and bazaars of the city. The Duke dined at the English Embassy. His Royal Highness left Constantinople on Wednesday en route for the Crimea.

The Duke of Cambridge arrived at Dover yesterday (Friday) week from the Continent. His Royal Highness crossed the Channel on board the Maid of Kent, and travelled to London.

The Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe have arrived at Broxmouth Park from Paris.

The Marquis of Hartington has arrived in Dublin.

Earl and Countess Spencer left Dublin, on Monday, for Shelton Abbey, on a visit to the Earl of Wicklow.

Earl and Countess Delawarr and Viscount Cantelupe arrived, last week, at Bourn Hall, Cambridgeshire, and were received by the tenantry with great rejoicings. It is the first visit of the noble Earl to his paternal family estate since succeeding to the title.

The Earl and Countess of Albemarle and Lady Augusta Keppel have left Thomas's Hotel for Quidenham Hall.

The Earl and Countess of Bessborough have arrived at Bessborough House, Kilkenny.

The Earl and Countess of Yarborough have arrived at Procklesby Park from visiting the Earl and Countess of Listowel at Convmore, Mallow, Ireland.

The Earl and Countess of Jersey have left Brown's Hotel for Middleton Park.

The Earl of Harrowby, accompanied by Viscount Sandon, M.P., and Lady Mary Sandon, has left Sandon House, Staffordshire, for Norton, his Lordship's seat in Gloucestershire.

Viscount and Viscountess Dupplin have arrived at Brighton.

Lord and Lady Arthur Russell have left town for Brighton.

Lord and Lady Penrhyn have arrived at Penrhyn Castle.

Lord Carington left town on Saturday last, on a visit to Colonel Campbell, M.P., at Blythwood, Renfrewshire.

The Right Hon. Sir George and the Hon. Lady Hamilton Seymour have left their residence in Grosvenor-crescent for Brighton.

Sir Richard Wallace, M.P., has returned to town from visiting his Irish estates.

The Right Hon. B. Disraeli has arrived at Brighton from Hughendon Manor.

The infant daughter of Lieutenant-General Sir Francis and Lady Seymour was christened, on Saturday last, at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, represented by Sir Francis and Lady Seymour, were sponsors. The child was named Helena Christina Florence. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Francis Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapels Royal.

Colonel Charles Pasley, R.E., has been appointed Director of Engineering and Architectural Works under the Admiralty, in the vacancy caused by the resignation of Colonel Sir A. Clarke.

On Tuesday evening the prizes gained by the members of the Maidstone working-men's science classes were presented in the Corn Exchange by Sir John Lubbock, M.P., who delivered a brief address.

DON CARLOS AND HIS STAFF.

The civil war in the northern provinces of Spain has occupied much attention; and our Engraving which shows the Carl at Pretender, accompanied by his staff of officers, will be regarded with some interest. The Prince who claims to be King of Spain is seated in the centre of this group; Palacio is at his left hand; Polo, the brother-in-law of Don Carlos, is on his right hand; Marichalar stands in the middle. The Union, a French Legitimist organ, gives the following biography of the Prince now at the head of the insurrection in Spain:—

"Don Carlos de Bourbon and d'Este was born at Laybach, Austria, on March 30, 1848. His father, the Infante Don Juan de Bourbon and Braganza, second son of Charles V., and his mother, Princess Donna Maria Beatrix, daughter of Francis IV., Grand Duke of Tuscany, and consequently sister to the Countess de Chambord, were passing through Laybach to gain Vienna and rejoin their family. She was there confined, and the descendant of Henry IV. first saw the light in an hotel in that town. He has consequently entered on his twenty-sixth year. Let us mention that Charles IV. had three sons—Don Fernando, Don Carlos, and Don Francisco. At the death of the first, his next brother, heir to the throne according to the Salic law, struggled for seven years, under the name of Charles V., against Christina, wife of Ferdinand VII., who obtained from the latter, on his deathbed, a will illegally constituting his daughter Isabella heiress to the throne. The quadruple alliance and the treason of Maroto forced the Pretender to seek refuge at Bourges. He also had three sons—Don Carlos, Don Juan, and Don Fernando. At Bourges he abdicated in favour of the first, who took the title of Charles VI. and that of Count de Montemolin. All the family removed to Trieste. Charles VI. died there. His brother Don Juan became heir to the crown, succeeded him, and abdicated in his turn in October, 1868, in favour of his eldest son, who then bore the title of the Duke of Madrid. The Prince, Charles VII., who is known by the name of Don Carlos, is a tall young man of athletic build, with manners so affable and princely that seeing him in a drawing-room you would involuntarily exclaim, 'Long live the King!' His glance is at the same time mild and energetic, and his conversation proves the correctness of his judgment. He knows the Latin classics thoroughly, and has followed the usual courses of philosophy and mathematics. He speaks fluently Spanish, Portuguese, French, Italian, and German, and is tolerably well acquainted with English. He is an excellent horseman, and excels in all bodily exercises. He married, on Feb. 4, 1867, Princess Donna Margarita de Bourbon, daughter of the late Duchess of Parma. Her intellect and courage are remarkable. This union, a thoroughly happy one, was not contracted under the pressure of State affairs, but from the irresistible affection of the two young people. In 1864 the late Duchess of Parma arrived at Venice—where her brother, the Count de Chambord, had long resided—with her daughter, Margarita, and her son, Duke Robert. Don Carlos saw the young lady, and on Feb. 4, 1867, they received the nuptial benediction in the chapel of Frohsdorf, and left with their mother, the Grand Duchess Beatrix, to pass their honeymoon at the castle of Elbauxweyer, an estate belonging to the Count de Chambord. From this marriage have been born Princess Donna Blanca (October, 1868); Don Jaime, Prince of the Asturias (June, 1870); Princess Donna Elvira (November, 1872)."

"SUNRISE ON THE WATZMANN, BERCHTESGADEN, BAVARIAN ALPS."

In the midst of the Austrian Tyrol, or Salzkammergut, towers above all the neighbouring mountains the giant Watzmann, which, tintured with golden and roseate hues by the rising sun, and as seen from the Berchtesgaden territory, forms the focus of interest in the effective drawing by Mr. Collingwood Smith, which we have engraved from the last exhibition of the Old Society of Painters in Water Colours. The Watzmann is fitly called the "Mont Blanc" of this magnificently picturesque district; for when the snows of winter are decreased by the intense heat of summer the deep clefts of the crater-like summit of the double-horned head still glisten with virgin snow; whilst the porphyritic walls and buttresses beneath are so blanched by sun and storm that they present a lustrous aspect which would distinguish this from the surrounding heights, even if it did not command the pre-eminence by its superior altitude of 8250 ft. The strip of territory of which this mountain and the far-famed Königs-See form a part, is called the "Bavarian Alps," and was reserved to the King of Bavaria at the Congress of Vienna. It is used chiefly as a hunting-ground for the Bavarian Princes. From the lake adjacent, at St. Bartolomeo, the chamois are more easily reached than from any other part of the mountain. Here the Royal hunting-box is situated, and a corps of hunters is established. From the solemn waters of the Königssee, the Watzmann, rising almost perpendicularly from its margin, is best seen; and when its summit, effulgent with the rays of sunrise, is reflected in the still waters of the lake, it is an object hardly exceeded in magnificence or beauty elsewhere, even by mountains of much greater altitude. Its sides near the lake are concealed by vegetation down to the water's edge; but all above is naked rock, terminating, as we have said, in a two-horned summit of crater-like formation. The view here represented is from near the Bavarian Palace at Berchtesgaden.

CONVALESCENTS AT CROQUET.

The Convalescent Home in connection with St. Bartholomew's Hospital, established by the munificent aid of Sir Sydney Waterlow at Cromwell House, Highgate, has a garden with a spacious lawn, convenient for the game of croquet. That favourite pastime of ladies is not unsuitable for the open-air recreation of men who have lost strength by long confinement to a sick-bed. The scene represented in our Engraving shows a party of the convalescent patients, with two or three officers of the institution, playing on the green with a quiet enjoyment of their social sport which is pleasant to see. There is, indeed, a slight resemblance of shape to cripples' crutches in the ordinary mallets used for croquet, which has the effect of suggesting less agreeable considerations. But we may be allowed to hope that none of these poor fellows, though one or two have been compelled to bring their crutches into the garden, will be permanently deprived of the use of their limbs. If the ablest surgical treatment and skill at the hospital, followed by the kindest care for their returning health at Highgate, can obtain for their cases a complete cure, it is possible that next summer may find them restored to the full measure of natural activity. They may yet be capable of joining in a game of cricket, which is ever so much better for young men than a game of croquet, except when the players are really invalids.

In consequence of the Portuguese Government declaring the port of Hull infected with cholera, the medical officer of health, Mr. Fearn Holden, has published a certificate that the port is entirely free from cholera.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

A hospital is to be opened in Gower-street for the non-alcoholic treatment of disease—Sir Walter Trevelyan president.

The Bank rate was advanced on Thursday from 3 per cent, to which it was reduced on Aug. 21, to 4 per cent.

There is a proposal to spend another two millions on metropolitan drainage—this time for the benefit of the south and western suburbs. The towns to be included in the scheme stretch from Brentford and Ealing to Chiselhurst and Bromley.

The Revision Court for the City opened on Tuesday morning, when the Livery lists were first proceeded with. The Conservatives made 1255 objections, against 1216 on the Liberal side; 476 household claims, against 168 Liberal; and 83 lodger claims, against 555 Liberal.

Preparatory to taking possession of their new quarters, which have cost the parish about £70,000, the Lambeth paupers have had a day's enjoyment in the grounds of Lambeth Palace. About five o'clock on Monday afternoon they marched in procession to their magnificent workhouse, said to be one of the largest and most complete structures of its kind.

The fifth national cat show, comprising all known varieties of the domestic cat and examples of several of the wild species, has been held at the Crystal Palace. The judges were Mr. Harrison Weir, Mr. J. Jenner Weir, and Mr. P. H. Jones; and the general arrangements of the show were under the direction of Mr. F. W. Wilson.

The Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Sheriffs paid their annual state visit to Christ Church on Monday (instead of on St. Matthew's Day, which fell on a Sunday this year). Nearly the whole of the boys of Christ's Hospital (about 800 in number) attended the service. The Rev. D. Jacob, a former master, read the litany, and the Rev. A. F. Waugh, Incumbent of St. Mary's, Brighton, an old "Blue," preached.

At a meeting of the City Commission of Sewers, on Tuesday, Dr. Letheby reported that he had received information of the arrival in this country of about 350 chests of putrid tea, and that ninety of those chests had been sold in the City. He had examined a sample, which was composed entirely of decayed and putrid leaves. A resolution was passed that, in case the remainder be offered for sale, the solicitor take the necessary proceedings against the dealer.

It appears from the weekly return of metropolitan pauperism that the total number of paupers last week was 98,241, of whom 33,462 were in workhouses and 64,779 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding period in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 2773, 19,490, and 30,175 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 453, of whom 311 were men, 121 women, and 19 children under sixteen.

The London School Board, at its first meeting after the recess, on Wednesday, transacted a large amount of general business. On the suggestion of the Education Department, Nov. 27 was fixed for the election of a new board. It was also resolved that a report should be prepared by the clerk, showing the work that had been accomplished by the present board during its three years' term of existence. A statement submitted at the meeting placed the liabilities incurred on account of schools and sites at between £700,000 and £800,000.

At a public meeting held on Monday, for the purpose of considering the report of the Coal Committee, and whether steps could be taken to prevent "a second coal famine" this winter, Sir Antonio Brady, who occupied the chair, stated that he had lately visited America, and had there found a coal-field larger than all the coal measures of England put together. A quantity of the coal from this field, which can be put on board boats in the river at 4s. per ton, has, he said, already arrived in England, and 3000 or 4000 tons are on their way thither. Beyond appointing a committee to consider the question and report to a subsequent meeting, no resolution was arrived at.

A motion has been brought forward at a meeting of the Court of Common Council in favour of constructing a fruit and vegetable market on the site of the present Farringdon Market. To this an amendment was moved that a new market should be constructed on a plot of ground adjoining the Metropolitan Meat Market. This was lost, and the original motion was carried.—It was announced at the same Court that the late Sir David Salomons, M.P., has bequeathed to the Corporation of London the plate presented to him by the Jewish community for his services on behalf of civil and religious liberty; and, further, that he had left £1000, to be expended in some memorial of himself, to be placed in the Guildhall Library.

The number of deaths registered in London last week was 1233, which was 126 below the average. The fatal cases of diarrhoea, which in the six previous weeks had declined from 470 to 162, further decreased to 127 last week; the average number is 109. The annual death-rate from diarrhoea was equal to 2.0 per 1000 in London, while in the seventeen other large English towns it averaged 4.5 per 1000. To simple cholera only two deaths were referred last week, against 8 and 13 in the two previous weeks; both were infantile cases, certified as choleraic diarrhoea. The deaths from fever were 34, while in the three previous weeks they had been 38, 27, and 26; 5 were certified as typhus, 22 as enteric or typhoid, and 7 as simple continued fever. The death of a child, aged six years, from typhoid fever is attributed to drinking impure water in Little Cromer-street, Brunswick-square. There was 1 death from smallpox, 24 from measles, 12 from scarlet fever, 9 from diphtheria, and 25 from whooping-cough. The death of the widow of a labourer was registered in the city of London workhouse at Bromley, whose age was stated to be 100 years. The mean temperature was 55.0, or 1.7 below the average.

The City Press states that the customary banquet in honour of the Lord Mayor-Elect will be given by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress on Monday, the 29th inst.; and on the following evening a banquet will be given to the managers of the London Sick Asylum District. The Lady Mayoress's receptions will begin on Tuesday, Oct. 7, and continue on the following Tuesdays in that month, between the hours of three and five o'clock. Apropos of the civic visit to York next week, on which a question of precedence has cropped up in the newspapers, the City Press makes the following remarks:—"It is stated that when the late Prince Consort attended a banquet in the Guildhall at York, in October, 1850 (in connection with the then coming Great Exhibition), the chief magistrate of London 'was preceded by his Sword and Mace, the former being reversed; while the more ancient Sword of York—taken from his own side and given to the northern metropolis by King Richard II.—was borne upright.' Those who read history properly will recollect that Edward III. preceded Richard II., and in a charter of Edward to the city of London (which we have seen this week) it is expressly laid down that even on 'foreign service'—that is, out of the City—the Mace shall be carried in the same way as the Sergeant-at-Arms of the King carries his mace—of course point upwards—a point worth noting."

"SUNRISE ON THE WATZMANN, BERCHTESGADEN, BAVARIAN ALPS," BY COLLINGWOOD SMITH.
FROM THE LATE EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.

at Kand by the Princes and Ministers who had remained at Tehran during his absence. He explained to them that one of the objects of his visit to Europe had been to study its institutions, with a view to the introduction of a better system of government into Persia. Those Ministers who had signed the petition for the dismissal of the Grand Vizier received a severe reprimand. The Shah gave audience, on Wednesday, to the representatives of foreign Powers, and expressed to them the gratification he had derived from his tour in Europe.

Explanations of the peculiar crisis in the Shah's Government have been telegraphed from Resht. They indicate that the fall of the Grand Vizier was caused by a powerful conspiracy among the princes, priests, and courtiers, which is suspected to have found countenance in the harem. The Shah for a long while resisted the demands of the conspirators, but was prevailed on by the Grand Vizier to accept his resignation and to send him to Koom. His enemies having given out that he went to Koom as a prisoner, the Shah apprehended treachery and transferred him to the government of Resht. There is some hope entertained of his being reinstated.

RUSSIA.

The Czar left Livadia on Tuesday for a brief visit to Sebastopol. Intelligence from Khiva announces that General Kaufmann has permitted the Turcomans to settle in the districts previously occupied by them. He imposed upon them a contribution of 31,000 roubles, but as they had only paid one third of that amount at the appointed time he prolonged the term of payment, at the same time detaining twenty-six leading Turcomans as hostages. As the Turcomans had since preserved a peaceful attitude, General Kaufmann determined that orders for the return home of the Orenburg and Mangyschlak detachments might be issued.

CANADA.

The Dominion Parliament has been summoned to meet on Oct. 23. At a sitting of the Royal Commission at Ottawa, appointed to inquire into the Pacific Railway scandal, Mr. Longevin, the Minister of Public Works, admitted that he had received 32,000 dols. from Sir Hugh Allen, at the request of Sir George Cartier, during the late elections, but declared that the amount was given subject to no conditions. At another meeting Sir Hugh Allen admitted that he had paid 180,000 dols. to the Ministers and their supporters for election purposes, but asserted that his only object was to promote the policy of the Government. Elections for the Dominion Parliament have been completed in Prince Edward Island. The new members are pretty equally divided between the Government and the Opposition.

INDIA.

The Times publishes the following items of news from its correspondent at Calcutta:—"The head-quarters of the Kashgar mission leaves Ladak soon, crossing the Karakorum mountains by the summer route. Three hundred mules carry thirteen tons. The advanced party are in Changchenmo Pass. Eighty mules carry six tons. The Bengal Government have ordered a reform in marine surveys. Some coolie ships have returned unseaworthy. The Indus, with 418 coolies, has been lost. Since January last year 17,178 coolies have departed for the colonies and Mauritius. An enthusiastic meeting has been held of the Bengalees in town, who have established a society for suppressing public obscenity. The Kashgar Envoy is elated at the success of the Constantinople mission, which he declares is greatly due to the British Minister. Two other men have been killed by the idol car in Madura. The Bengal Government have finally ordered the magistrates to prevent danger to life from the cars of Juggernaut, but not themselves to undertake mechanical arrangements for safe dragging. The Roorkee camp of exercise has 6000 men and six guns under General Bright. A bill has been introduced suspending suits by the Nawab Nizam's creditors. It treats the Nawab as a minor, and vests his property in the Government, who pay the debts incurred solely for personal pleasures. The Sirdar of Sanjoo and some Yarkund officers have arrived at Shidoola with a firman from the Atalik, ordering an honourable reception to Mr. Forsyth's mission."

AUSTRALIA.

The South Australian Budget has been submitted to the Legislative Assembly, and is considered satisfactory. It is estimated that there will be a sum of £50,000 available for promoting immigration during 1874.

Vessels from French ports for Sicily are required to undergo five days' quarantine on reaching their destination.

A fire is reported in the European quarter at Smyrna, the damage done by which is estimated at £60,000.

A telegram from the steamer Seine states that the Brazilian cable has been picked up and spliced. The paying out will be resumed to Madeira.

It is notified in the Gazette of last night that the Queen has appointed Mr. George Hutchinson to be a member of the Legislative Council of the Settlement of Lagos.

The Moniteur Universel says that Prince Mohammed Houmayoun Shah, grandson of Tippoo Sahib, has been condemned in the Indian courts to imprisonment for perjury.

The reigning Prince of Montenegro, Nicholas I., Petrovich Nyegosh, has arrived in Paris. His Highness is thirty-two years of age, and speaks French perfectly.

The famous onyx vase, called the Vase of Mantole, has at last been found in the treasure-chest of the late Duke of Brunswick. It was inclosed in another vase of gilt metal.

A telegram from Montevideo announces that an attempt has been made to assassinate Colonel Sarmiento, the President of the Argentine Confederation, who, however, escaped unhurt.

An Admiralty circular has been issued forbidding the solemnisation of marriages on board ships on foreign stations by the commanding officer, such marriages being invalid.

The Servian Government, being dissatisfied with the tenders it has received for railway construction, contemplates executing the work under its own supervision. A loan will be the preliminary step.

The property destroyed in the fire which broke out in Havannah on the 6th inst. is estimated at from three to eight million dollars; and 2500 people were temporarily deprived of shelter by the disaster. Subscriptions have been started for the relief of the sufferers.

In exploring the great Brazilian coal-fields in the neighbourhood of San Jeronymo two more splendid seams have been discovered. The Imperial Brazilian Collieries Company, which holds the concession, has opened a railway from its present pits to the coast.

The American papers mention that a Jeddo publisher has brought out a "Life of Washington" in forty-four volumes, printed in Japanese characters, and profusely illustrated. The Father of his country is represented in the clothes of the present day, wears a moustache, carries a cane, and is accompanied by a Skye terrier.

The King and Queen of Belgium have proceeded with their family to Biarritz. They intend to make a stay of three weeks.

A Berlin telegram states that the Emperor William has recognised Dr. Reinkens as a Catholic Bishop.

The Prussian Minister of the Interior has notified to the district governors that the elections for the new Diet will take place in the latter half of October.

The International Congress of Agriculturists and Forest Cultivators was opened at Vienna yesterday week. About 300 persons were present. The Congress was opened by the Minister of Agriculture, Chevalier de Chlumetzky.

The Governor of Cologne, General von Bothmer, died on the 23rd inst. Signor Guerrazzi, the Italian politician and litterateur, is dead. Professor Donati, Director of the Observatory at Florence, died recently at Vienna of cholera.

Prince Frederick, the late Elector of Hesse, has recognised the annexation of that duchy to Prussia, and renounced all his rights and personal property, in consideration of an annual payment by the Prussian Government of 200,000 thalers.

It seems that the projected balloon voyage from New York to Europe is not now likely to take place. An attempt was made to inflate the balloon on the 10th, but it failed, owing to a high wind. The attempt was renewed on the 12th, but a rent appeared, and the operation was abandoned.

Wednesday's mail from the Cape announces a continuance of commercial and financial prosperity. Telegraphic enterprise is particularly active. Negotiations are proceeding for extending the land line from Colesberg to the diamond-fields, and a contract has been signed for a cable from Natal to Aden.

It is reported by a telegram from Singapore, received at the Admiralty, that the boats of her Majesty's ship Midge have been attacked by pirates near Penang, two of her sub-lieutenants being dangerously wounded. The Thalia left Singapore for Penang, in the hope of coming up with the pirates. She has captured one of the pirates' strongholds.

Several of the French journals are complaining about the immense exportation of fruits and vegetables to England, and declare that not only does this raise the price of garden produce at home, but that the English take the best of everything. It is calculated that nearly a hundred million pounds weight of fruit has been sent to England this year as against fourteen million pounds weight exported in 1860.

A pilgrimage to Jerusalem is being organised under the auspices of the Archbishop of Paris. The pilgrims will leave Marseilles, about the middle of October, on one of the steamers of the Messageries, and, after stopping a few days at Alexandria, will visit the works at the Isthmus of Suez, and then proceed to Jerusalem. Excursions will afterwards be made to Bethlehem, Jericho, Jordan, the Dead Sea, Mount Carmel, Saint Jean-d'Acre, Beyrout, and other places. The return journey will be effected by Smyrna, Athens, Sicily, and Marseilles. The duration will be two months and a half.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Armstrong, John Hopkins, to be Vicar of Staines.
Barnwell, Charles Edward Benedict, Curate of Calne, Wilts.
Clayforth, Henry, Vicar of Feliskirk, York.
Daisy, John Clerk, Scott, Rector of Machen, Monmouthshire.
Darbyshire, John, Perpetual Curate of Dyer's Hill, Sheffield.
David, E. M., Curate of Barwell.
Davies, J. H., Rector of St. Mary's, Huntington.
Druitt, Charles, Curate of Holy Trinity, Weymouth, Dorset.
Ellis, John, Curate of Heytesbury, Wilts.
Evans, Charles, Honorary Canon in Worcester Cathedral.
Gott, J., Incumbent of Bramley, Leeds; Vicar of Great Yarmouth.
Hart, P. H., Vicar of Salisbury, Lancashire.
Haslam, George, Perpetual Curate of Bromfield.
Henley, A., Rector of Cotgrave, Notts.
Hughes, William Lloyd, District Chaplain of St. Mary, Sealcoates, Hull.
Hunter, H., Vicar of Griston, Norfolk.
Little, T. G., Rector of Hutton Bushell, Yorkshire.
Ross, W. M., Curate of Ashby-de-la-Zouch, Leicestershire.
Sandilands, J. P., Vicar of Brigstock cum Stanion, Northamptonshire.
Shepherd, R., Incumbent of Heaton Moor, Lancashire.
Trower, J., Senior Curate of the parish church of Doncaster.
Urquhart, E. W., Vicar of King's Sutton, Northants.
Wall, W. A., Curate of Cirencester.
Wright, C. E., Perpetual Curate of Grosvenor Chapel, South Audley-st.
Wyatt, F. J., Rector of St. George's Cathedral, Demerara.

Professor Sullivan has been appointed President of the Queen's College, Cork.

Mrs. Rowley Conway has laid the foundation-stone of a new church at Lyserth.

Mr. W. Laslett, M.P., has given £500 towards the expense of a rectory at Hinton, near Evesham.

The Oxford diocesan conference will begin its sittings in the Sheldonian Theatre, Oxford, on Oct. 1.

Occasion was taken of a harvest thanksgiving at Preston St. Mary, Suffolk, to open a new organ given by the Rector.

An ordination for Worcester diocese was held in the Church of St. Michael, Coventry, on Sunday, the Bishop preaching in the evening.

The Bishop of Exeter passed three days at the Scilly Islands last week on a confirmation tour, the Admiralty yacht being placed at his disposal.

Preparations for the forthcoming congress of the Established Church are progressing. It will be held at Bath, and extend from Oct. 7 to Oct. 10.

Sir Hedworth Williamson laid, last week, the foundation-stone of a church, to be dedicated to St. Mark, at South Shields, with full Masonic honours.

Last week the parish church of Lund was reopened after restoration, and on Sunday the sermon was preached by the twin-brother of the Rector, the Rev. E. Moore, who is in his eighty-third year.

Two new statues, the gifts of private munificence, have been fixed in the west front of Salisbury Cathedral. One of these bears the name of St. Remigius, Bishop of Rheims in the sixth century, who baptized Clovis.

The annual gathering of the charity children of London at St. Paul's Cathedral is appointed to take place on Thursday, Oct. 9. There will be a full choral service, and the sermon will be preached by the Bishop of Rochester.

The Bishop of Bath and Wells has consecrated a church, dedicated to St. Andrew, at West Walcot. Sir Gilbert Scott was the architect. The cost already has been £14,000, and £2000 more is required for further embellishment.

On Sunday the parish church of Croydon was densely crowded during the ordination service, celebrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury. There were eighteen candidates—all of them University men save two, who go abroad as missionaries.

The foundation-stone of the new Church of England College about to be erected at Knutsford, and of a chapel in connection with that college, were laid on Wednesday, by Lord de Tabley and the Bishop of Chester respectively, in the presence of a large assembly. A luncheon, attended by 400 ladies and gentlemen, was spread in a large tent on the grounds, and at its conclusion speeches were delivered by the Bishop of Chester, Lord de Tabley, Sir H. Mainwaring, Bart., Colonel Egerton Leigh, M.P., and the Rev. W. M. Hatch, the Principal of the college.

On Thursday a fine east window by Wailes, in the Ahoghill parish church, as a memorial of the ministry of the Rev. Dr. Lee, formerly Incumbent of the parish, and now secretary of the Church Defence Association, was uncovered in the presence of a large congregation.—A handsome east window, by Hardman, costing £200, intended as a memorial of the Rev. Warren B. Hastings, M.A., the late Rector of the parish, has been placed in the church at Ludford, Lincolnshire. The central subject of the window is the Crucifixion.—At a cost of £1000 or £1500 a very fine "Jesse" window has been placed at the west end of Doncaster parish church, by Sir Isaac Moile, of Beechfield, to the memory of his deceased wife.

FINE ARTS.

We understand that Mr. Holman Hunt's picture, "The Shadow of Death," upon which the artist has been engaged during the last four years, three of which were spent in Jerusalem, is to be exhibited towards the end of next month at the New British Institution Gallery, 398, Old Bond-street. Report speaks of the work as the largest and by far the most remarkable which the distinguished artist has hitherto produced. An engraving of the picture is to be published by Messrs. Agnew.

The famous convent of S. Francesco, at Assisi, which contains quite a museum of early Italian mural painting, is about to be carefully restored, under the direction of Signor Cavalcaselle. All the altars and other woodwork, which conceal many portions of the important frescoes of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, will be removed. We hear also, but with some alarm—for the danger of such an operation is always great, and the wisdom of attempting it very questionable—that the frescoes themselves are to be restored and "refreshed." The work could, however, not possibly be placed under direction more trustworthy than that of Signor Cavalcaselle.

To the list of lately-deceased foreign artists recently given we have to add the names of two distinguished sculptors—J. P. Molin, of Sweden, and Rinaldo Rinaldi, of Italy. The "Wrestlers" of the former, representing two men bound together at the waist, and each armed with knives, struggling together in a duel to the death, after the old Scandinavian fashion, formed a leading attraction of the International Exhibition of 1862, and is, indeed, one of the most remarkable sculptures of modern times. Signor Rinaldi was a close follower of Canova, and some of his works enjoy considerable popularity.

Mr. Stephen Thompson is preparing for publication a series of photographs of the more important works of art comprised in the Castellani Collection, acquired by the British Museum.

Lieutenant Conder has forwarded to the committee of the Palestine Exploration Fund a report presenting the exact state of the ruins of Baalbec, and indicating by exact measurements and other particulars the imminent peril in which some of the finest sculptured portions now are.

Two years back the Comtesse de Caen bequeathed to the Institut de France a number of objets d'art, for the most part of great value, and, as a whole, forming an important collection. The Institut has decided to appropriate the western pavilion of the Palais Mazarin to the reception of this collection, and the new museum will shortly be opened.

A monument to Michael Angelo is to be erected at Florence. It will consist of a group in bronze cast from works by the master himself. In the centre will be placed the David, and at the four angles the Crépuscule, Aurora, Day, and Night, from the sacristy of S. Lorenzo. The four last statues are already cast.

A religious contemporary says:—"Surely there is something very like impiety in the erection of a window to the memory of William Wallace at Paisley, in which he is represented as Samson after his conflict with the Philistines, uttering thanks to the God of Battles—'Thou hast given this great deliverance into the hand of Thy servant.' We do not remember to have seen many examples of this kind of histrionic monument out of Scotland. In Glasgow Cathedral Edward Irving's window represents him as St. John the Baptist. In Westminster Abbey, by a kind of reverse process, Gideon, David, Joshua, and other Israelites are represented as mediæval knights, and a brass on the floor of the north aisle puts a half-pay colonel and his widow into plate armour and a wimple."

AUDIENCE OF THE EMPEROR OF CHINA.

We published the other day an Engraving of the Portrait, by a Chinese artist, of the young Emperor of China, seated in full attire of state, as he is supposed to appear when giving audience to those privileged with access to his presence. We then gave some account of the difficulties that so long hindered his Majesty from receiving the Foreign Envoys resident at Peking, and of the manner in which this question has been practically settled. We are now favoured by the Foreign Office with permission to engrave a drawing by Mr. Malet, Secretary to the British Legation at Peking, which shows the actual reception of the foreign representatives by the Emperor, on June 29, at nine o'clock in the morning. The moment represented in this sketch is when the Prince of Kung announced to the Emperor that letters from the Sovereigns of different States had been laid before him. These letters were placed on the long table in front of the Ministers. The Emperor wore no ornament of any description; his dress was of lilac gauze. The Princes had gold dragons worked on the round tabards they wore on their backs, chests, and shoulders. The civil mandarins had storks embroidered on the square tabards, and the military mandarins had leopards; the mandarins, both to the right and left, wore their swords at their sides. The central figure of the five diplomatic representatives, whose backs only are shown in this drawing, is Mr. Wade, C.B., the Envoy of her Majesty Queen Victoria. On his right hand are Governor Low, the United States Minister, and General Vlangaly, the Russian Ambassador, behind whom stands Herr Bismark, Interpreter to the Prussian or German Legation. On the left hand of Mr. Wade are the French Minister, M. de Geoffroy, and Mr. Ferguson, the representative of Holland. The Chinese official personage who stands a little in advance of this group to their left is their Grand Secretary of State; the kneeling figure near the Emperor, on the raised floor, is the Prince of Kung; and four other Princes stand behind the Imperial throne.

RECEPTION OF THE FOREIGN MINISTERS AND CONSULS BY THE EMPEROR OF CHINA AT PEKING.

"IMOGEN," BY MISS LOUISA STARR.
FROM THE LATE ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

"IMOGEN."

The innovation made in recent years at the schools of the Royal Academy, whereby female students were admitted and allowed to compete, has already borne good fruit. More than one female student has carried off the first prize in the biennial, as well as minor prizes in the ordinary annual competitions; and it is constantly seen that a number of young ladies are becoming fully qualified to support themselves by the professional practice of art. The career of these female artists, especially that of Miss Louisa Starr, who greatly distinguished herself by the picture with which she won the gold medal four or five years ago, has been and will be regarded with interest. The works she has since exhibited, comprising various subject-pictures and portraits, have been marked by conspicuous ability, and her two contributions to the exhibition at Burlington House, lately closed, evince steady and very promising progress. One of these—a large, finely-conceived and excellently-painted picture—illustrates De La Motte Fouque's story of "Sutram": his visit to his mother in the convent. The other we now engrave. "Imogen" is naturally one of Shakespeare's heroines most likely to attract a female pencil; not the less, perhaps, when she is disguised as a boy, and particularly when she draws her sword with an assumption of courage before venturing into the cave. The situation represented will be familiar to every reader of "Cymbeline." The famished wanderer in search of her banished husband is taking the food she finds within the cave. The sword which she drew on entering, with the womanly reflection—

If mine enemy!

But fear the sword like me, he'll scarcely look on't, is placed before her. While she is so making herself at home, Calpurnius comes to the mouth of the cave, and, desecrating this new occupant of their refuge, exclaims to Guiderius and Arviragus, the King's stolen sons and her own brothers (as she afterwards discovers):—

Stay; come not in:
But that it eats our vituals, I should think
Here were a fairy.

By Jupiter, an angel! or, if not,
An earthly paragon! Behold divineness
No elder than a boy!

MUSIC.

M. Rivière's Promenade Concerts at Covent-Garden Theatre are running a successful career, large audiences being nightly attracted by the constant succession of variety offered by the programmes. The capital orchestra of a hundred performers over which M. Rivière presides gives overtures, symphonies, and operatic selections with great effect; and vocal and instrumental solos are contributed by artists of eminence. Classical and popular nights, ranging from oratorios to ballads, are alternated in a way to satisfy all tastes. On Monday Mlle. Marini (a sister of Madame Sinico) made a successful debut, having been encoined in Meyerbeer's "Roberto, O tu che adori," for which the singer substituted the Page's song, "Saper vorreste," from "Un Ballo in Maschera." The piquant dance-music of Herr Gungl, directed by himself, still forms an attractive feature of the programmes; another specialty being the cornet-playing of Mr. Levy. The arrangements for this week included miscellaneous selections on Monday and to-night (Saturday), a second Wagner night on Tuesday, a Mendelssohn night on Wednesday, English ballads on Thursday, and Handel's "Samson" on Friday. The classical selections are conducted by Mr. Barnby, and the oratorios by Mr. W. Carter. On Saturday next Mlle. Carlotta Patti (sister of Madame Adelina Patti) is to make her first appearance. M. Rivière's concerts are pleasantly filling up the interval between the cessation of the summer season and the inauguration of winter music in London.

The afternoon orchestral concerts in association with the International Exhibition, at the Royal Albert Hall, are maintained with unabated spirit. Classical symphonies and overtures and instrumental and vocal solos are given, under the direction of Mr. Barnby. These performances will, as originally announced, cease next month, with the close of the Exhibition.

The annual autumn concert of the Metropolitan Schools Choral Society took place at the Crystal Palace, on Saturday, when Mr. John Hullah conducted, and Mr. E. J. Hopkins presided at the organ.

The Royal Academy of Music (in Tenterden-street, Hanover-square) opened on Monday for the Michaelmas term. On the same day the competition for the Welsh Choral Union scholarship took place. There were five competitors, and the successful candidate was Miss Mary Davies, daughter of Mr. William Davies, the Welsh sculptor.

The eighteenth series of the autumn and winter concerts at the Crystal Palace will begin on Saturday next.

The Monday Popular Concerts will enter on their sixteenth season on Nov. 10, and will continue until March 16. Besides the evening concerts, sixteen Saturday morning performances will be given, commencing on Nov. 15. Most of the eminent instrumentalists who have been long identified with these concerts will be heard again, including Herr Joachim, Madame Norman-Néruda, M. Sainton, Herr Straus, Signor Piatti, Mr. L. Ries, Mr. Zerbini, Madame Schumann, and Mr. Charles Hallé. Dr. Hans von Bülow, whose first visit took place last spring, will also reappear, and other well-known pianists are engaged. The list of vocalists includes the names of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. Santley.

The detailed programme of the approaching Bristol Festival has just been issued. The performances will take place in the Colston Hall, commencing at one o'clock on Tuesday, Oct. 21, with "The Creation," the oratorio announced for the following day being "Elijah," that for Thursday being Mr. G. A. Macfarren's new work, "St. John the Baptist," to be given for the first time; "The Messiah" being reserved for Friday, as the usual festival climax. Miscellaneous evening concerts will be given on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. The orchestra will consist of about eighty performers, almost entirely members of Mr. Hallé's band. That eminent pianist will conduct, and will also play solos at the evening concerts. The solo vocalists will be Mesdames Lemmens-Sherrington, Otto Alvsleben, and Patey, Misses Julia Wigan and Enriquez; Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. The choruses will be sung by the members of the Bristol Festival choir. The proceeds of the performances are to be appropriated to the aid of the Bristol Royal Infirmary, the Bristol General Hospital, and other local charities. A long list of vice-presidents is headed with the name of the Duke of Beaufort as president, and a list of guarantors nearly as long ensures the carrying out of the financial part of the scheme, the success of which will doubtless result in the periodical recurrence of the Bristol Festival.

Since the close of the Festival of the Three Choirs, held recently at Hereford, further donations towards the fund for the relief of clergymen's widows and orphans have been received, including £20 from the Earl of Powis, and £24 9s., the dividend accruing from the Gloucester invested surplus, making a total of £1007 9s. 6d. This sum goes without deduction to the charity, and is not liable to the expenses of the festival. It is anticipated that there will be a surplus on the receipts for tickets, which will add something further to the sum already realised for the charity.

THEATRES.

The present is a week of theatrical revivals, each of more or less importance, and all successful. We give the first place to the national theatre, Drury Lane, which opened on Saturday with Mr. Halliday's rifacimento of Shakespeare's marvellous tragedy, "Antony and Cleopatra." Mr. Chatterton's manifesto had for some weeks formed a striking portion of our mural literature previous to the projected performance, and doubtless had been well considered by habitual playgoers; at any rate, the house was well filled on the occasion. The interior of the theatre has been refreshed and in part re-embellished, and altogether sets forth a brilliant appearance, the credit of which is due to Mr. Marsh Nelson and Madame Jullien. Mr. Halliday has rearranged and reduced the text of the drama, but, it is understood, has refrained from adding to it, and has done his work judiciously and well. He has divided the play according to the places in which the action occurs. The first, third, and fourth acts are devoted to Egypt, the second to Rome, and this disposition of the scenes has a manifest convenience for the modern playgoer, and at any rate facilitates the spectacular representation of the dramatic history. The episode of Pompey is entirely eliminated, and thus an historical portrait is omitted from the gallery. The latest performances of this magnificent tragedy, as given by Mr. Phelps and Miss Glyn, were free from this inconvenience, and we cannot but suffer with regret the mutilation of a classic and colossal work. Whether the popularity of the work will be increased by the wrong so far done to it we cannot pretend to say; but the critic, to whom every line of the poet is dear, will decidedly object to every alteration.

The play now opens with the entrance of Cleopatra, the scene being a chamber of that great queen's palace in Alexandria, where, too, an Egyptian dance is introduced with characteristic effect. The scene is of so striking a nature that Mr. Beverly was enthusiastically called for by the audience, an honour also repeated in his favour at the conclusion of the act, which closed with the exhibition of her Majesty's state barge afterwards described by Enobarbus, in which Antony and Cleopatra depart together for the coast. There the stage-architect and poet are brought into competition, and the rivalry of the cognate arts gives birth to a picture worthy of the Shakespearean text. We may here state that the part of Antony is energetically sustained by Mr. Anderson, and that of Enobarbus by Mr. Ryder, whose delivery of the famous description extorted plaudits from the house. Of the merit of their impersonations no doubt will be entertained. Both of them were rugged and manly assumptions, and highly characteristic withal. The part of Cleopatra was intrusted to a young actress, Miss Wallis, who made her mark not long ago at the Queen's, but who is yet scarcely robust enough or old enough for a role so weighty and various as that of the Egyptian Queen. Her performance, however, was highly meritorious, though not so smooth and easy as it might have been, had her physique been more powerful. There was in parts a strain upon her powers and an effort which showed too much that the young artist was acting, and not trusting to natural impulse. We missed, too, many of the points to which we have been accustomed; but for this the new arrangement of the scenes is partly responsible, and, owing to the same cause, we were treated to new effects, suggested by the adaptation. It may seem a slight thing whether a scene commences with a discovery or an entrance, but frequently it is a matter of great importance, in an artistic point of view. The former gives occasion for a quiet beginning, and a gradually working up of a climax, a process which commends itself to the judicious auditor by a graduated sense of beauty, which is inconsistent with the treatment insisted on by the latter. There was, accordingly, a want of repose in the general style of Miss Wallis's performance, which it will be well for her to cultivate. We have mentioned the spectacle at the close of the first act; the second concludes with another scarcely so legitimate. The scene is in Rome, and a festival is supposed to take place in honour of the wedding of Antony and Octavia, in which we are treated with four processions, and a new song, the music composed by Mr. W. C. Levey, words from Shakespeare, sung by Miss Banks and a choir of thirty boys, which was honoured with an encore, and followed by a ballet, called the path of flowers, the principal dancer being Mlle. A. Gedda. We venture to hope that in these days of spiritualism the shade of the Bard of Avon was not present to witness these proceedings, that pay so little respect to the gorgeous poetry which they interrupt and show a disposition to substitute. The third act concludes with the naval battle between the Romans and the Egyptians, in which the latter were defeated. The third act gives us the deaths of Antony and Cleopatra—the first very touchingly rendered; the second spoiled by theatrical affectations necessitated by new stage arrangements. We have stated incidentally our opinion of the acting; but we must not omit notice of Mr. Henry Sinclair's Octavius Caesar, which, brief as the part is, becomes, owing to its excellent sustenance, quite a feature of the performance. Mr. Howard Russell's Eros, too, merits especial commendation. The small parts of Charmian and Iris were decidedly well supported by Miss Edith Stuart and Miss Melville. Altogether, the performance and its appointments were worthy of the stage of the national theatre. The scenery, by Mr. Beverly, is as magnificent as it is new; nor can there be a doubt the whole is deserving of public patronage.

The tragedy was preceded by a new farce, entitled "Nobody in London," the action of which is indescribable. Nobody is a personage, represented by Mr. Fred Evans, with vivacity and pantomimic trickeries. Mr. Brittain Wright, also, as Sam Skid, a waiter out for a holiday, and assuming the parts of a swell and a dustman alternately, was very amusing. Then there were Miss Harriet Coveney and Miss Hudspeth, who did duty for a young milliner, an old lady, a servant-of-all-work, and a boy in buttons. This eccentric piece is the composition of Mr. E. L. Blanchard, and exhibits much of the various talents by which he is distinguished. Another farce succeeded the Shakespearean drama, called "The Straight Tip," in which Mr. Brittain Wright and Miss Charlotte Saunders are called into requisition. Both ventures were attended with complete success.

The next theatrical revival was at the Charing-Cross Theatre, and consisted of Garrick's "Irish Belle" and Sheridan's "Trip to Scarborough." In the latter Mr. W. H. Stephens appeared as Lord Foppington, Mr. J. H. Allen as Young Fashion, and Mr. Arthur Wood as Lory, the "tiger" and confidant of the noble spendthrift. At the Prince of Wales's Theatre, the drama of "School," by the late Mr. T. W. Robertson, was likewise revived on Saturday, and, being excellently cast, met with entire success. At the Marylebone the famous "Tom and Jerry" of the late Mr. Mouricoff has also been revived.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR FEBRUARY.

At the opening of the case yesterday week, Mr. Hawkins brought under the notice of the Court an article commenting upon the case which had appeared in the Cheltenham Chronicle. The Lord Chief Justice declared the article to be a gross contempt of Court, and ordered the publisher, a Mr. Cochrane, to appear in the court on Monday. Trumpet-Major Leesware was cross-examined as to Roger's appearance, the questions put to him constituting a course of physiognomy. Benjamin Broadhurst deposed that he recognised in the defendant Roger's features and his walk, which convinced him independently of conversation. Mrs. Leesware swore that defendant had Roger's mouth exactly, and his hair, but a little more curly. Joseph Brittlebank, who had occasionally drilled with Roger, was convinced by defendant's voice, though he could not detect the original French accent. During the discussion about the admissibility of letters and telegrams respecting Lady Doughty's cross-examination, by which Dr. Kenealy wished to prove malice fides against the prosecution, the learned counsel was very pointedly accused by the Lord Chief Justice of having more than once treated him with marked disrespect.

On Monday the proceedings were diversified by the appearance, in obedience to the order of the Court, of Mr. Henry James Cochrane, the proprietor of the Cheltenham Chronicle, to answer for contempt of Court in an article in that paper commenting on the trial. He was fined £150; and the Lord Chief Justice said in all future cases imprisonment would be added. Dr. Kenealy complained of the style in which the Times reported the proceedings. But the Lord Chief Justice said he had seen a marked improvement in the reporting since he made some remarks on the subject some days ago, and it was rather late to bring the matter up now. The first witness was Mr. Anthony Biddulph, a cousin of Roger, who had spent a fortnight at Bath with him, and who identified the defendant from his remembering how they used to amuse themselves at Bath. Two or three other ex-Carabinieri swore to defendant being Roger, and to having waited for him outside Ha'e's house, once for fifteen minutes. William Bilby asserted that he had seen Miss Hales and Roger at the top of the avenue shaking hands.

Miss Braine was under examination all Tuesday morning. She described her first interview with the defendant at Croydon, the test questions she had put to him, and the personal peculiarities which reminded her of Roger. Mr. Hawkins cross-examined her as to whether she had altered her opinion of the defendant since she heard him in court state how he had acted towards his cousin and confess to having written a fictitious will. She answered, after much parleying, that of course she thought worse of him. In the afternoon William Bird, ex-Carabiniere, now timekeeper in a Glasgow warehouse, deposed to having, on a particular occasion, seen Roger bare-headed in his bed-room; there were, he said, no tattoo-marks on either arm.

Many witnesses, all of whom had been in the Carabinieri, and the wife of one of them, were examined on Wednesday and Thursday on behalf of the defendant.

Mr. Serjeant Ballantine has obtained at Guildhall a summons for libel against Mr. Fiske, the proprietor of the Home, the aggrieved party being Mr. Clement Scott, dramatic critic of the Observer and Daily Telegraph. In one of the libellous articles it was alleged that Mr. Scott, in criticising "Les Cent Vierges" for the Observer, had called it "popular," while in the Telegraph next day he treated it as "discreditable."

The suspension has been announced of Messrs. E. H. Caliot and Johnston, commission agents, a firm of about three years' standing, "owing to unexpected losses and the prospect of further losses." The liabilities are reported to be about £24,000.—Exorbitant money-lending was exposed at Newport, Isle of Wight, in the matter of the bankruptcy of the Rev. Cornelius Wilson, Rector of Colbourne, whose liabilities were estimated at £30,000. The bankrupt had, it was said, recently borrowed £1200 in London, for which he paid interest at the rate of 60 per cent per annum.

The Central Criminal Court opened on Monday, with a calendar of sixty-three prisoners—fifty-four males and nine females. In the Diprose money-lending case an application to further postpone the trial was granted, in spite of a strong opposition raised for the defence.—Henry Williams, described as a tailor, was convicted of dealing in counterfeit half-crowns, and sentenced to fifteen years' penal servitude.—Arthur Field, the young letter-carrier who, on being charged with stealing a letter, urged in extenuation of his conduct that the Post Office could not expect to have honest servants at 17s. a week, was put on his trial on Tuesday, and, having pleaded guilty, was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.—Thomas Davis, a wireworker, aged twenty-three, was convicted at the Central Criminal Court, on Wednesday, of the manslaughter of his wife, at his lodgings, at Cross-street, Soho, by striking her on the head with a poker, and sentenced to ten years' penal servitude.

The Gaol Committee of Aldermen have determined to discharge the two warders of Newgate prison who were suspended on suspicion of having been concerned in a project for procuring the release of the four Americans convicted of the great forgery on the Bank of England.

Mr. Joseph George Eley, a clerk in the Probate and Divorce Court, was convicted at the Mansion House, on Tuesday, of stealing money and stamps of the value of £27, the property of the Queen, and sentenced to four months' hard labour.—A summons against a cabman named William Edward Adolphus, who had refused to carry a passenger from the Cannon-street railway station unless he was paid about twice the legal fare, was dismissed, on the ground that a railway station is not a public place within the meaning of the Hackney Carriage Act.—A negro, who conceived it to be his mission to preach in Ludgate-circus, was ordered to Newgate that his mental condition might be inquired into.

William Daniel Moore, a young man in the employ of Messrs. Vyse and Son, warehousemen, of Wood-street, Cheap-side, was brought up at Guildhall, last Saturday, on the charge of embezzlement. On seeing the officer who had come to take him into custody, he swallowed a quantity of prussic acid, but an emetic was administered, with a successful result.

Ten persons, members of the Anti-Vaccination League, including Mr. John Proudman, the secretary, have been charged at Marylebone, at the instance of the Pallington board of guardians, with refusing to have their children vaccinated, and a penalty of 20s. and 2s. costs was imposed in each case.—Several publicans in the Marylebone police district have been summoned for allowing betting to be carried on in their houses. The charge was established against one of them, and a fine of 50s. was inflicted.—A rough-looking fellow, named William Caplin, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment and hard labour, on Tuesday, for three separate assaults on policemen during a disturbance in Devonshire-street, Lisson-grove.

The Extra Supplement.

AN APPLE ORCHARD.

The artist has put before us a very lively scene; with the boys on the ladders or among the branches of the trees; and with the girls and little children below catching the ripe fruit as fast as they can tumble it down; not to speak of the geese, which are crowding this way to hold a cackling inquest on the unwonted business of the hour; and the brisk little dog, whose bark shrewdly tells them to begone and to mind their own affairs. The kindly mother, who sits by the open baskets, which are quickly being filled, seems to enjoy this pleasant bustle; and she is very often called on to admire the size and blooming colour of an apple finer than the common run of them, which one or other of the young people brings in triumph to lay in her lap. All this we should think is very good fun, and quite as well worthy of a picture as the vintage scene in the south of France, which another artist has chosen for his subject, and which is seasonably published in the present Number of our Journal.

THE NAVAL HOSPITAL, HONG-KONG.

The Naval Hospital at Hong-Kong, of which we give an engraving, was formerly the private residence of those merchant princes Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co. It is situated in the eastern and most salubrious suburb of Victoria. It has been purchased by the Admiralty at a cost of 35,000 dols. The hospital consists of four oblong buildings, with their inner angles approaching but not touching each other, forming an inner oblong square, with verandahs on all sides protecting the wards from the sun's heat, and affording ample space for recreation in all kinds of weather. The rooms are lofty and well ventilated. The hospital is well lighted with gas, and there is an ample supply of the purest water. The hospital commands a beautiful view of the harbour. In front is to be seen Kellett's Island, named after the Admiral who surveyed all the neighbouring coasts and waters; and in the distance is seen a faint outline of the mainland of China. The promontory stretching out toward's Kellett's Island is named Kowloon, which has been ceded to the English, and here the military resort for ball practice. The engraving is taken from a picture drawn by a Chinese artist, whose name is Afong. The Admiralty have done wisely in securing so pleasant and comfortable a retreat for the officers and men of the fleet stationed in China who may happen to be sick or wounded. The hospital is now under the skilful management of Deputy-Inspector Loney, R.N.

DISASTERS.

Mr. T. B. Cross, a son of Mr. Cross, M.P., fell out of a fishing-coble, at Bridlington, on Monday, and was drowned.

The barque Sisters, belonging to Dundee, has been wrecked on her return voyage from Jutland, and four of the crew lost.

Gunner Innis, R.A., had his leg taken off by a diverging 16-pounder shot during battery practice at Aldershot.

During the past week eight more deaths from typhoid have been reported at Wolverhampton. Some of the worst cases have happened in houses where no defect can be found in the drainage. The epidemic is on the decline.

Mr. T. Wilson, parish clerk of Rawmarsh, near Rotherham, was assisting two men in putting the church clock machinery in order, when the weights gave way, killing him and breaking the arm of one of his companions.

The Board of Trade inquiry into the collision between the steamers Llama and Skerryvore, in Belfast Lough, on July 21, concluded in Glasgow on Thursday week. The Court adjudged the certificate of the master of the Skerryvore to be suspended for nine months, and severely censured the master of the Llama.

Lieutenant-Colonel Hutchinson has reported to the Board of Trade that the collision between two passenger trains which took place on Aug. 1 at St. Hilda's junction, near South Shields, was primarily due to the want of caution displayed by the driver of the Newcastle train.

An inquest was held in the Middlesex Hospital on Henry Wilson, a coachman, who, on descending from a hayloft late at night, had his hand jammed by the falling trap-door, and, notwithstanding his cries for help, was suspended by his crushed hand for eight hours before he was relieved. He lingered a fortnight before he died.

The Black Lion public-house at Exeter was destroyed by fire, on Sunday morning, and three persons were burned to death.—Last Saturday two extensive fires broke out in Aberdeen and its vicinity. In one case several large engineering shops and their contents were completely destroyed, and in the other three large buildings connected with paperwork were thoroughly gutted.—A great portion of the library of the Manchester Athenaeum, which consisted of about 20,000 volumes, was destroyed by fire on Wednesday morning.

An explosion occurred, on Thursday week, on board the new steam-ship William Batters, in Cardiff roadstead. The fore part of the ship was wrecked and two of the crew were greatly injured.—Information has been received of an explosion on board the screw-steamer Broomhough, of Newcastle, by which four of the crew were killed and five seriously injured.—By the explosion of a boiler at the works of Messrs. Millward and Son, gun-barrel grinders, Aston, Birmingham, four persons were seriously injured.—On Sunday morning the Albert colliery, between Haughton and Denton, was discovered to be on fire; and, although every effort has been since made to extinguish the flames, they continued to spread. It has been resolved to close the shafts and all other openings of the pit.—By the ignition of a powder-flask in a mine at Johnstone, near Glasgow, last Saturday, five miners were severely injured.

A Midland and a Great Western train came into collision at the Bristol station last Saturday morning, causing great destruction of rolling stock, but no loss of life occurred.—Mr. Peters, a tradesman in the Pimlico-road, who was standing at the edge of the platform at the Sloane-square station of the Underground Railway, on Monday morning, was struck by the engine, and, falling on the line, was killed.—Two accidents to railway trains occurred on Monday. On the Midland Railway, near Kettering, a train ran off the line, and the metals were torn up, but no one was injured. Shortly before four o'clock in the afternoon, as the train from Chester was descending the tunnel under Birkenhead to the Monksferry station, the engine ran off the metals and dashed against the wall of the tunnel. The carriages, however, did not leave the metals, and the passengers were not seriously hurt. They walked to the top of the tunnel, whence they were conveyed in cabs to the ferry-boat awaiting their arrival at the slip.—Three fatal accidents on railways are also reported. On Sunday night, at Hangers-hill Bridge, near Acton, on the Great Western Railway, there was found the body of a man who had evidently been run over by James East, charged at Westminster, on Tuesday, with picking the pocket of a lady who was one of the crowd waiting to see the Claimant in Old Palace-yard, was sentenced to six months' hard labour.—Seven of the Claimant's admirers, who give so much trouble to the police at Palace-yard, were charged, on Wednesday, with being riotous. As they were the first offenders who had been called to account, they were only required to enter into recognisances to keep the peace for six months; but Michael Flynn, who was convicted of assaulting the police, had to go to gaol for a month.

Thomas Goddard, dairyman, owner of ten cows, at 34, Lovegrove-street, Old Kent-road, has been fined £20 at Southwark, on Tuesday, for selling half a pint of milk and water to one of the sanitary officers of Camberwell as genuine milk. Mr. Partridge told the defendant that if the milk had been adulterated with anything injurious to health he should have fined him in the full penalty of £50.—Alfred Harmer, a cab-driver, has been fined 40s. and costs for not wearing his badge, and for refusing to take a gentleman at Waterloo station because he had no luggage.

At Lambeth, on Saturday last, James Colling and Thomas Jackson, dairymen in Camberwell, were each fined £15, and George Windle was fined £12 and costs, for selling milk adulterated with water. The summonses were taken out by the St. Giles's Vestry, Camberwell, who found fourteen samples of milk adulterated out of twenty-two, one of them being one third water. Five summonses were adjourned.—Elijah Steel, a painter, was charged, on Wednesday, with cruelly beating his own son, a cripple, and sentenced to a month's hard labour.

William Smith, a dairyman in the Wandsworth-road, was fined £5, and George Samuel Hornaby, dairyman, of Northcote-road, Battersea-rise, was fined £1, at Wandsworth, on Wednesday, for selling milk adulterated with water.

We have a long and heavy Black List this week. John Ernsting, a tailor in Newport Market, was discovered by a policeman in the act of hammering his wife with flat-irons. He had already bitten off the point of her nose and given her a severe cut on the left leg. A medical witness deposed that her head was bitten all over, and that her arms and legs were a mass of bruises. The husband, who pleaded in excuse that he "had a tremendous lot of drink in him," was remanded.—Two Spaniards, Morelli and Sandoni, are in custody for the murder of a Frenchman named Ravelli in the Dock-road. At the inquest, on Tuesday, the Coroner's jury returned a verdict of "Manslaughter" against Morelli, who was caught knife in hand.—A woman named Elizabeth Powell, residing in Warner-place, Hackney-road, was charged at Worship-street, on Monday, with stabbing her husband in the shoulder and in the hand, and was committed for trial.—On Sunday morning last, Sarah Gorman, the wife of a pensioner from the Royal Marines, was found at Mereworth, between Maidstone and Tunbridge, Kent, with several of her ribs broken. Her husband, who was beside her, was taken into custody, his clothes being stained with blood. A broken bottle was found near the spot. The woman was taken to a neighbouring house, where she died at two o'clock on Sunday. The deceased and her husband had been hop-picking, and on Sunday night, after drinking at a public-house, they were heard quarrelling on the road. A verdict of "Wilful murder" has been returned against the husband.—Thomas Nicholls, a schemer, who had been drinking all Monday morning, at Olney, near Northampton, had a quarrel with his wife on returning home, and cut her throat. He is in custody, charged with murder.—The keeper of a public-house, named William Massey, was convicted before the Macclesfield magistrates, on Monday, of a peculiarly brutal assault on his wife, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour.—At South Shields an agricultural labourer, named John Brown, was charged before the county magistrates with having made an equally savage attack on his wife last Saturday night; but, as the woman had not recovered consciousness, and was consequently unable to attend, the prisoner was remanded.—Two men are in custody at Oldbury for having caused the death of a fellow-workman by thrusting him into a brewer's vat and turning on the steam.—The adjourned inquest on the bodies of the seven men and boys who were killed by the fall of a wall at Stonehouse, on the 15th inst., was concluded on Monday. The jury returned a verdict of "Manslaughter" against Snawdon, the owner of the premises, and Blight, the contractor, who engaged the men and sent them into the building to work before examining it.—A blacksmith named Reason has been arrested charged with the murder of a girl named Byrne, whose body was found, on Wednesday, in the water near Dublin Quay.

Tuesday was observed as a holiday by the Jewish people. Their new year began on Monday, and the Day of Atonement is on Wednesday next, Oct. 1. The year A.M. 5634 has been entered upon.

Continental Bourses have suffered considerably through the American panic. At Frankfurt the New York telegrams "caused a very bad feeling to prevail." At Hamburg there was great excitement, but it was partially allayed by private advices that there was no fear of the panic extending to mercantile houses. At Vienna there was a general fall in securities.

A handsome block of schools, built at Preston on ground given by the present Earl of Derby, was opened on Thursday week. The schools are intended as a memorial to the late Earl of Derby. One of the speakers, the Rev. G. Alker, said, without entering into the political part of Lord Derby's career, they had erected those schools as a memorial to the late Lord Derby, as a great and good man, of whom Lancashire above all other places was proud. Mr. Hermon, M.P., and several other gentlemen addressed the meeting.

The crew of the American ship Polaris, who were supposed to be drowned, are all safe and well, and arrived at Dundee yesterday week. They were picked up by a Dundee whaler, the Ravenscraig, on July 20, twenty miles south of Cape York. When found they were proceeding southwards in boats made of the bulwarks of the Polaris, which had been constructed by the chief officer, Mr. Chester. By that time the fast-sailing ships had all passed through Melbourne Bay. The Ravenscraig came across the Arctic a few days afterwards, and half the crew of the Polaris were transferred on board that vessel, as she had then twenty whales and good prospects of returning home early on Aug. 20. Having fished her complement, the Arctic went in search of the Ravenscraig, and finding her at Cape Rater, took the other portion of the Polaris's crew on board and bore up for Dundee. The crew sailed from Liverpool for New York on Tuesday, in the Inman steamer City of Antwerp. Their names are—Captain G. C. Budington, Mr. H. C. Chester, chief officer; Dr. Emil Bergels, Mr. E. Schumann, Mr. A. C. Dell, William Martin, W. F. Campbell, Henry Hobby, Noah Hughes, H. Simons, and Mr. J. Coffin. The company granted free cabin passages to all the men.

one of the down trains. It was subsequently ascertained that the deceased was Stephen Coppard, formerly a draper in the village, but of late the manager of the Bell Inn, Uxbridge-road, Ealing. An inquest was held at Tempsford, on Monday, on the body of George Kefford, aged eleven. He was left in a field, close to the Great Northern Railway, on Friday week, to mind some sheep. About half-past eight o'clock in the morning he went with another boy to a level crossing near the Tempsford station. While they were looking at a luggage-train a passenger-train from St. Neot's came along at a great speed, and the deceased was caught by the buffer of the engine and killed. While some coal-waggons were being shunted, on Monday, near the coke depot of the North-Eastern Railway, near the Hartlepool station, John Wilson, a guard, was caught between the buffers of the moving coal-waggons and those of some others standing in the siding. He died four hours afterwards.—An express train from Berwick for the north, on Wednesday, rubbed shoulders with a waggon projecting on to the main line from a siding at Reston station. It was going at full speed when the collision occurred, and one side of the carriages was stripped from end to end of panels and footboards. Beyond the alarm no one was injured.

An inquest was held at Cambridge, on Monday evening, before Mr. Gotobed, the Coroner for the borough, on the body of Mr. Horace Moseley Moule, a Master of Arts of Queen's College and assistant poor-law inspector for the district, who died on Sunday night from a self-inflicted wound in the throat. His brother, Mr. C. W. Moule, M.A., stated that the deceased had been ill, and had suffered for some time past from depression of mind. Years ago he had been in the habit of talking about suicide, but not of late. The jury returned a verdict of temporary insanity. The depression of the deceased is believed to have had its commencement in connection with his University career. He was reputed one of the best classics of his time in the University, and was expected to head the classical tripos; but he failed in his mathematical examination, and, according to the usage of the University at that period, was prevented from competing in classics, and this preyed upon his mind ever afterwards.—Another distressing occurrence took place at Cambridge on Saturday night. Mr. George Hemington Harris, an elderly gentleman, living lately at Torquay, arrived in Cambridge in the evening on a visit to his brother, Mr. Henry Hemington Harris, who is a magistrate for the borough, and who was ill. Mr. George Harris had hardly been in the house ten minutes when he fell down and died. He had been known to have been suffering from disease of the heart for some time.—An inquest was held on Monday night on the body of Benjamin Cartledge, a retired tradesman of independent means, who, on the 16th inst., while sitting on one of the seats in the grounds of Chelsea Hospital, was seen to cut his throat with a razor. The medical witness was of opinion that his mind was affected through loss of rest, consequent on the pain from throat disease, and the jury returned a verdict to that effect.—A mysterious discovery has been made near Brighton, the body of an elderly gentleman having been found partly embedded in the sands, with a mark on the temple such as would have ensued on a severe blow, and traces of blood on both hands. Death had evidently been recent; but there was nothing to show how it had been caused.—The dead body of Mr. Wm. Robert Clemow, late one of the proprietors of Anderson's Hotel, in Fleet-street, was on Monday found in the Thames, close to Blackwall Pier. The deceased had been missing from home for a week. He had for some time been under medical treatment. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of "Suicide while in a state of unsound mind."—A young man named Pearce, a die-sinker, who had been missing since Saturday, was found dead, on Tuesday, on the floor in his room in Rahere-street, Goswell-road, St. Luke's. He is supposed to have taken poison by mistake.—Last Saturday the body of Mrs. Mary Smith, a widow, 3, Haywood-place, Old Kent-road, was found floating in the Grand Surrey Canal, at Peckham.—William Peate, a tailor at Royston, fifty-seven years of age, has been found dead in his bed. There was no food in the house, and, according to the medical evidence, death was caused by starvation. Not less than £40 was, however, found in the man's possession.

A sham fight took place at Aldershot on Wednesday, at which the Duke of Cambridge was present.

Mr. Knight, the Presbyterian minister of Dundee, has at length been acquitted of the charge of heresy which was brought against him on account of his essay on "Prayer." A minority of the Presbytery, however, threaten to carry the matter to a higher court.

Mr. Buckmaster delivered the opening lecture of the session, last Saturday, at the St. Thomas Charterhouse School of Science. These classes, which are specially intended for teachers, have now more than 200 in attendance, and the tutorial appliances are being greatly increased.

The annual prize distribution at the West Buckland County School, North Devon, took place on Tuesday. At the dinner which followed there were present Earl Fortescue, who presided, the Earl of Devon, the Bishop of Exeter, the Hon. T. C. Agar-Robartes, and the Rev. Prebendary Brereton.

A meeting was held, on Thursday week, at Canterbury, under the presidency of Mr. E. L. Pemberton, M.P., to promote a scheme for the construction of a railway from Canterbury to Herne Bay. It was stated that of £45,000 required for the works, three-fourths would be found by the contractors; and, on the motion of Mr. G. W. Miles, M.P., a resolution was unanimously adopted in support of the project.

The Duke of Marlborough has sent £120 to the Radcliffe Infirmary, Oxford, being money paid by visitors for viewing Blenheim Palace and grounds. During this week the Countess of Wilton and other distinguished guests have been entertained at Blenheim. The fête for the benefit of the Great Western Widows' and Orphans' Fund, held in Blenheim Park in July last, has yielded a profit to the charity of £1810.

The conference of the Associated Chambers of Commerce was opened at Cardiff, on Tuesday, by an address from Mr. Sanjson Lloyd, the president. Discussions ensued on proposed amendments in the bankruptcy laws, the Bank Charter Act, international penny postage, and one or two other topics. After the meeting the members were entertained by the Mayor and Corporation of Cardiff, and in the evening they visited the docks and other places of local interest. On Wednesday resolutions were adopted with respect to bills of lading, the modification of the wine duties so as to place those of Spain and Portugal on equal terms with French wines, the Admiralty jurisdiction of the county courts, and the best principle of load-line calculation. A resolution was passed that a load-line, dependent on the ascertained buoyancy of each ship, should be conspicuously marked upon her side, so that overloading may be rendered a misdemeanour. A motion was also carried in favour of replies, not exceeding ten words, to telegrams being charged sixpence.

THE VINTAGE IN FRANCE: GRAPE GATHERERS RETURNING.

THE LATE DR. NELATON.

The eminent French surgeon, Auguste Nélaton, died, on Sunday, in Paris; he had been some time dangerously ill, and his death was announced by mistake a few weeks ago. He was born in 1807, was a pupil of Dupuytren, attained the degree of Doctor in 1836, and was created successively Surgeon of the Hospitals and Fellow of the Faculty of Medicine. In April, 1851, he became Professor of Clinical Surgery, and in 1867 received the title of Honorary Professor. Dr. Nélaton was appointed surgeon to the Emperor in 1866, Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour in 1867, and Senator in 1868. He was a member of the French Academy of Sciences. It will be remembered how he detected the position of the bullet in the wound of Garibaldi's foot after the skirmish at Aspromonte in 1862. The late Mr. Richard Partridge, who also attended the case, thought no bullet was there; but Nélaton was right. The portrait is from a photograph by M. Reutlinger, of Paris.

THE VINTAGE IN FRANCE.

There is always a pleasant fragrance of sentimental and sensuous delight hanging over the pictorial idea of a vineyard in the south of Europe, or on the green hills of the Rhine or Danube. The reality is quite as prosaic as that of the English "Apple Orchard," which is the subject of the large Engraving for our Extra Supplement. But there are many poetical and artistic traditions which have ever associated the classic culture of the vine with visions of a free and happy social life, combining rural simplicity of manners with refinement and grace, and with joyful effusions of gratitude for the bounty of Nature in due season. The vine, too, along with the olive, has been cherished as a symbol of peace as well as of plenty, but more especially as a token and instrument of harmless household mirth. If the view which we present this week of "Les Vendanges," in the sunny plains of Burgundy, or on the shores of the Gironde and the banks of the Garonne, should prove at all suggestive of these genial affections, which are perhaps more valuable to humanity than the actual use of fermented grape-juice as a cordial beverage, we do not think the most resolute teetotaler will have any fault to find with its effect. In a botanical and horticultural point of view, the habits of this beautiful plant, and the methods of assisting and directing its profitable growth, afford a very interesting study. The traveller on the Continent is often pleased to observe the different ways of training and supporting the vines in several parts of France, Germany, Austria, Italy, and Spain or Portugal. In Tuscany, for instance, they form elegant festoons between the boughs of standing fruit-trees in a row, while in Piedmont they are led to spread themselves over a trellis or hurdles placed in a horizontal position on the top of low stone pillars, far up the steep sides of a mountain with a southern aspect; but in France they are tied to short stakes inserted in the ground near the roots of the plants, as is done with the English beans or peas; or the shoots are laid across, in the form of an arch, from one root to another, a little raised above the ground. The vine thrives best in a rocky or stony soil, with crevices into which its roots can thrust themselves as deep as possible in search of moisture and nutriment. For this purpose it is necessary to loosen the earth beneath with a pronged mattock or fork. But little manure is required, except the leaves and tendrils of the plant itself, which is a dainty creature, and a despiser of gross living. The vine is a vegetable of very lady-like habits and tastes; indeed, she is glorified by Barry Cornwall as a queen:—

THE LATE DR. NELATON, FRENCH SURGEON.

Sing! who sings
To her who weareth a hundred rings?
The Vine, boys, the Vine!

She is certainly a thing of beauty and of joy; and good sound wine, in moderate cups, has a right to make glad the heart of a sober man. But we could find something to be said in praise of our English native drink and the plants from which it is obtained. A Kentish hop-garden is quite as beautiful to look upon as the vineyards of Southern Europe. We should be inclined, for that matter, to say as much for a broad field of the bearded barley ripe unto the harvest; and the ordinary cheap produce of most Continental wine districts is less to our liking than "a drop of good beer."

NEW ROYAL NAVAL HOSPITAL, HONG-KONG.

D at the SURGICAL HOME, BOLTON HOUSE, Clapham-road, Surrey, conducted as a Private Hospital, and ensuring to Patients Medical Supervision and Appliances such as cannot be secured at their own residences. Physician, David Jones, M.D. Consultation Daily at town residence, no. 15, Welbeck-street, Cavendish-square, from eleven till one, or by letter inclosing fee.

OLEOGRAPHS and ENGRAVINGS.—A large assortment of beautiful landscapes and figure subjects, from all the best masters, at reduced prices. Exporters supplied. GEO. REES, 41, 42, 43, Russell-street, Covent-garden.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—Anyone can take good Photographs with DUBONNET'S Patent Apparatus. No previous knowledge required. No dark room wanted. Complete and portable apparatus, from 4s. Book of instruction, four stamps per post.—L. H. BERTIERE, BARBER, and CO., 60, Regent-street, London.

VITREMANIE.—WINDOWS of all kinds decorated by this new and beautiful process, by Experienced Workmen, at moderate prices. Plans and Estimates on application.—J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-st., London. W.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for PAINTING, FERN-PRINTING, and DECALCOMANIE. Hand-Screens, Book-Covers, Boxes, &c. Priced Lists on application. W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

SCRAPS for SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c.—Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, Animals, &c., in great variety, from 1s. per sheet; or one on each sheet, four stamps per post.—L. H. BERTIERE, BARBER, and CO., 60, Regent-street, London.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, at RODRIGUES'S, the new make, with Patent Leather Guards, Four Portraits on a Page. Interiors for Vignette and Cabinet Portraits, from 10s. 6d. to 20s. Albums of every description made to order.—42, Piccadilly.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES'S, 42, Piccadilly, London. Dressing Bags, 6s. to 10s. Deepatch Boxes, 2s. to 4s. Envelope Cases, 2s. to 4s. Blotting Books, 5s. to 10s. Inkstands, 5s. to 10s. Candlesticks, per pair, 1s. to 2s. Card Trays, 2s. to 4s. Writing-Table Sets, of new and elegant designs, 1s. 6d. to 3s. 6d. Rodriguez's 10-guinea silver-plated Travelling Dressing Bags. Rodriguez's 10-guinea Ladies' Dressing Cases, silver-plated. And a Large and Choice Assortment of English, French, and Austrian Novelties, suitable for Presents from 5s. to 25s.

CREME DE LA CREME (the New Court Note-Paper), made from Charta Perfecta (Registered).—The Public are respectfully CAUTIONED that the NEW COURT NOTE-PAPER is to be had only of JENNER and KNEWSTUB, to the Queen, Heraldic Engravers and Stationers by Special Appointment to their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales. Specimens of Monograms, Stamping, and Charta Perfecta free. 25, St. James's-street, and No. 64, Jernyn-street, S.W.

JUST OUT! HINDOO PENS! "They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick of the Pen, and the Water Pen." 1200 Newspapers recommended them. Sold everywhere. Sample box, by post, 1s. 1d. Patentees, MACNIVEN and CAMERON, 23 to 33, Blair-street, Edinburgh.

TINTED SPECTACLES—those Lenses used in this and tropical climates. 8. and B. SOLOMONS have made arrangements by which persons in the country or abroad can be perfectly suited.—38, Abchurch-lane, W. Directions free.

LADIES' ORNAMENTAL HAIR. UNWIN and ALBERT, Court Hairdressers, 24, Piccadilly, and 6, Belgrave Mansions, Piccadilly, invite an inspection of their Ladies' Perukes and Coverings for Thin Partings, perfect copies of nature.

THE FASHION.—Coils of Long Hair and High Spanish Combs, with Curl falling on the Neck. UNWIN and ALBERT supply the Coils, 2s. 6d. long, for 2s.; Combs, 6s.; Curl, 10s. 6d.; and 6, Belgrave Mansions, S.W.

HAIR DYE.—BACHELOR'S INSTANTANEOUS COLUMBIAN. New York Original. Packagers, the best in the world, black or brown. The only one that remedies the evil effects of bad dyes, 4s. 6d., 7s., and 11s., of all Perfumers and Chemists.—Wholesale, R. HOVENDEEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR RESTORED by this valuable specific to the original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. Price 10s. 6d. Testimonials post-free.—HOVENDEEN, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted not to injure the hair. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C. London; Pinaud and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris; St. Graben, Vienna; 44, Rue des Longs Chariots, Brussels; Caswell, Hazard, and Co., Fifth Avenue, Broadway, New York.

DOES YOUR HAIR TURN GREY? Then use HERRING'S PATENT MAGNETIC BRUSHES and COMBS. Brushes, 10s. and 15s. each. Combs, 2s. 6d., 5s., 10s., 15s., and 20s. each. Sent by post on application.—5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.; and of all Perfumers.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR, TEETH, and COMPLEXION.—ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL preserves, strengthens, and beautifies the Human Hair, and is the only preparation which is entirely free from noxious ingredients; 3s. 6d., 7s., and 10s. 6d. family bottle, equal to four small. ROWLAND'S EALYDOR preserves and beautifies the Complexion, eradicates all spots, and is invaluable to ladies either in summer or winter; 4s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. per bottle. ROWLAND'S ODONTO whitens and preserves the Teeth, prevents and arrests their decay, and is the only Dentifrice that can be relied on; 2s. 6d. per box, of all Chemists.

PALE and GOLDEN HAIR.—SOL AUREINE in one or two days produces that pretty tint now so much admired. Perfectly free from objectionable ingredients. 5s. 6d.—ALEX. ROSS, 243, High Holborn, London.

ALEX. ROSS'S GREAT HAIR-RESTORER.—Grey Hair becomes its Original Colour by using this wonderful Restorer. Large Bottles, 3s. 6d.; sent for Post Office order. The best possible.—ALEX. ROSS, 243, High Holborn, London.

DENTIFRICE WATER, FOR THE TEETH and BREATH, preserves and whitens the Teeth, imparts a sweetness to the Breath, destroys the odour of tobacco, &c., and leaves a peculiarly delightful and refreshing sense of coolness in the mouth. See Testimonials. In Bottles, 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d. Prepared only by Thompson and Capper, Homoeopathic Chemists, 55, Bold-street, Liverpool; sold by Chemists and Perfumers generally; London—Maw and Sons, Burgoyne, Burbridge and Co., &c.; Montreal—Evana, Mercer, and Co.; Barbadoes—Kell; Melbourne—Foulton; New York—107, 108, and 109, Fourth Avenue; &c. Notice Thompson and Capper's Trade Mark on each Bottle.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR. If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. Certificate from Dr. Vermann on every bottle, with full particulars. Ask any Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," prepared by H. C. GALLUP, 468, Oxford-street, London.

MITCHAM LAVENDER.—PIESSE and LUBIN.

LAVENDER, Sweet Lavender.—PIESSE and LUBIN are now distilling at their Flower Farm, the best MITCHAM LAVENDER. Samples may be had either at the Stillery, Mitcham-road, Surrey, or at the Laboratory, 2, New Bond-street, London.

PIESSE and LUBIN'S HUNGARY WATER. Prophylactic, Refreshing, Invigorating.—"I am not surprised to learn," says Humboldt, "that orators, clergymen, lecturers, authors, and poets give it the preference, for it refreshes the memory." Emphatically the scent for warm weather, for hot and depressive climates. A case of six bottles, 14s.; or single sample bottles of 4s. each at 2s. 6d. Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

CROWN PERFUMES. The GRAND PRIZE MEDAL of MERIT has been unanimously awarded at the Vienna Exhibition for these Perfumes, with many compliments from the president of the Jury, who said he had never seen finer goods. READMAN, QUEEN, TAILEWOOD, BOUQUET, MATHIOLA, and Two Hundred other different Odours, distilled by THE CROWN PERFUMERY COMPANY, 40, Strand, London. For sale by all Chemists and Perfumers, at 2s., 2s. 6d., and 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

A LADY, HAVING A RECIPE of a most simple nature, that will at once safely remove SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS, preventing their reappearance, will have pleasure in forwarding it upon application to MRS. BLACKWELL, Verwood Villa, Thornton-lea, Surrey.

CHAPMAN'S, NOTTING-HILL. Opposite Holland Park, W. Patterns of all Goods free.

BLACK SILKS, Imperial make, 4s. 11d. per yard.

BLACK SILKS	.. Bonnet's	.. 4s. 11d. per yard.
BLACK SILKS	.. Good quality	.. 2s. 11d. "
BLACK SILKS	.. Rich Lyons	.. 5s. 11d. "

VELVETEENS, Incomparable.

First Price 1s. 11d. per yard.
Second ditto 2s. 6d. "
Third ditto 3s. 6d. "
Fourth ditto 4s. 6d. "
Fifth ditto 5s. 6d. "

COLOURED VELVETEENS. "The new patent Silk Finish." (As supplied by me to H.R.H. the Princess Louise of Hesse.) 27 in. wide, all one price, 3s. 11d. per yard.

FRENCH MERINOS. Always in fashion. Forms a dress unrivalled of its kind. Finest quality manufactured, 2s. 11d. per yard, 45 inches wide. Second quality, 1s. 11d. per yard.

TREBLE DIAGONAL. 1s. 11d. per yard.

BEIGE-CASHMERE, 2s. 6d. per yard.

SATIN CLOTH. Best quality imported, 1s. 11d. per yard.

SERGES, BEST, ALL WOOL. 1s. 6d., 1s. 11d., and 2s. 6d. per yard. CHAPMAN'S, Notting-hill, W. Patterns free.

DENNIS STEPHENS and CO., 60, Regent-street, W. (two doors from the County Fire Office).

JAPANESE SILKS. In every leading colour, 1s. 11d. per yard.

JAPANESE SILKS. In every leading colour, 1s. 11d. per yard.

JAPANESE SILKS. Rich Satin Stripes, 2s. 6d. per yard.

JAPANESE SILKS. The "Silver" Make of Reversible 45 in. wide, 6s. 11d. and 8s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free.

ROYAL COURT VELVETEENS, as supplied by DENNIS STEPHENS and CO. to H.R.H. the Princess Louise of Hesse.

ROYAL COURT VELVETEENS, 2s. 6d. per yard.

ROYAL COURT VELVETEENS, 3s. 6d. per yard.

ROYAL COURT VELVETEENS, 4s. 6d. per yard.

ROYAL COURT VELVETEENS, 5s. 6d. per yard.

COLOURED VELVETEENS, Royal Court finish, all one price, 27 in. wide, 3s. 11d. per yard.

FRENCH MERINOS, 1s. 11d. and 2s. 11d. per yard. Very Fashionable.

GALATEA SERGE, 2s. 6d. per yard.

YATCHING SERGE, 1s. 11d. per yard.

Patterns free. DENNIS STEPHENS and CO., 60, Regent-street, W.

BAKER and CRISP'S NEW FRENCH MERINOS, Satin Cloths, Serges, Repps, Silk, and Wool, London Cord, Christmas Cards, Diamond, Fancy Cloths, and every New Cloth for the season, from 8s. 6d. Full Dress.—Patterns free. 198, Regent-street.

VELVETEENS. NOTICE.—BAKER and CRISP'S First delivery, 1000 Boxes. Patterns free. No. 1. 200 Boxes Black Molekin, 15s. 6d. to 39s. 6d.

VELVETEENS. No. 2. 250 Boxes Richest Colours, 15s. 6d. to 2s. 6d.

VELVETEENS. No. 3. 200 Boxes Richest Colours, 25s. 6d. to 2s. 6d.

VELVETEENS. No. 4. 350 Boxes various Stripes, and all new and beautiful Shades for the season, from 1s. 9d. to 5s. 6d. yard.

ALL THE NEW FABRICS. ALL THE NEW COLOURS.

BAKER and CRISP'S. NEW AUTUMN FABRICS. The largest variety in the kingdom at the very lowest prices. Every novelty from 1s. to 5s. 6d. yard. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISP'S PLAIN and FANCY SILKS. BAKER and CRISP'S JAPANESE SILKS. BAKER and CRISP'S BLACK SILKS, from 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISP'S NEW ESTAMENE SERGES. BAKER and CRISP'S NEW FLIMBOLL SERGES. BAKER and CRISP'S NEW TROUVILLE SERGES. 100 Shades, from 1s. per yard.—Patterns free.

MESSRS. JAY have pleasure in announcing that their Establishment is one of the most fashionable in London for LADIES' MILLINERY. Mantles. Made-up Costumes. In Black, Lavender, White, Mauve, and all the Neutral Tints. Messrs. Jay therefore request the honour of a visit from Ladies to inspect their collections, as well as many other Novelties in Fashion and in Fabric which Paris and the first manufacturers supply.

JAY'S.

MANTLES and POLONAISES. Messrs. JAY have already received their New Mantles and Polonaises from Paris, and take the earliest opportunity of announcing to their distinguished Customers the arrival in London of these Modes d'Automne et d'Hiver.

JAY'S.

FRENCH MODEL COSTUMES. Messrs. JAY have received from Paris a choice assortment of Silk Costumes Gains de Velours, which have been specially arranged for the coming season.

JAY'S.

MODES.—Various Specimens of Millinery adapted by the best Parisienne Artists to the business of the London General Mourning Warehouse have been imported by Messrs. Jay for the ensuing season.

THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 243, 245, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street, W.

KNIGHT and CO., Silkmercers and Skirt Manufacturers, 217, Regent-street.

The "Zephyr" Skirt, wholly Satin, the latest novelty, extremely ladylike, and totally distinct from previous designs. Commencing price, 37s. 6d.

The "Guinea" Skirt, wholly Satin, of the full average size, and beautifully quilted. The best value in London. Quilted, Kilted, and Flounced Satin and Silk Skirts, in the Latest Designs.

Lyons Finished Velveteens, 200 Boxes at less than manufacturers' present prices, ranging from 15s. to 5s. 6d.

Japanese Silks, "Excelsior" finish, in all Colours, 1s. 11d. Satin Striped China Silks in the leading Shades, and the wear guaranteed, 2s. 3d. per yard.

Knight and Co., 217, Regent-street, forward patterns post-free.

RUSSIAN SEAL FUR JACKETS. PETER ROBINSON has now ready for inspection an immense Stock of the above named Jackets, in all sizes, and in loose and fitting shapes, both Plain and Trimmed. Prices range from 10s. to 30s.

Other Seal Furs from 5s. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street.

WATERPROOF MANTLES. Thoroughly Waterproofed, and in every way suitable for sea-side wear and for travelling, in a variety of New Shapes, and in all the New and Fashionable Tweeds, both in plain colours and all the favourite mixtures, 25s. 6d. to 50s.

The GUINEA WATERPROOF, with or without Sleeves, in all the grey mixtures, both light and dark.

PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London.

AUTUMN JACKETS. First delivery of New Goods for the present season, consisting of Velvet Jackets very richly trimmed, varying in price from 5s. to 10s.; and a large collection of high Novelties in Black and Coloured Cloth Jackets, handsomely trimmed. Prices range from 2s. to 5s.

Books and Sheets illustrating the Fashion for this Season are in course of preparation.

PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London.

SPECIAL SILK NOTICE. Black ground Silks, with floral designs, 2 1/2 ga. for 14 yards.

Chèque Silks suitable for Dinner, 2 1/2 ga. for 14 yards.

Wear English Modes Analogues of the best manufacture, at about half price.

Grassie Striped Silks, especially 2 1/2 ga. 12s. 6d. the Dress.

The above special lots are unusually cheap.

Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, W.

REGISTERED NOVELTY FOR LADIES' DRESSES. RUSSIAN CORDED POPLIN (Wool). A special purchase of this charming Fabric, amounting to 1000 pieces, now ready, in Black and all the new shades of Grey, Violet des Alpes, Hécla, Navy, Ardoise, Grenat, Blue, &c., at 41s. 6d. the Extra Full Dress.—Patterns free.

ALSO, IN ALL THE ABOVE COLOURS, THE RUSSIAN POPLIN COSTUME, ready for wear, 22s. 6d. to 3s., elegantly made, according to the latest Paris Models. Several hundred always in stock.

At PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London.

FOR AUTUMN OR TRAVELLING DRESSES. RUSSIAN and INVERARY TWEEDS. In rich Heather Mixtures, Iron Greys, Rosé, Bronze, Violet des Alpes, &c., from 16s. 9d. to 35s. the Dress.

Patterns free. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London, W.

FOR AUTUMN OR TRAVELLING DRESSES. SILK TERRY POPLIN. Popeline d'Hiver, Drap Vigorne, Drap d'Italie, and many other Novelties suitable for the present and approaching Season, 21s. to 4s. the Dress.

FOR AUTUMN DRESSES. YEDDO POPLIN—ALL WOOL. A Special Purchase, amounting to upwards of 2000 pieces of this charming Fabric, beautifully soft, well adapted for the present season.

18s. 6d. the Dress (Patterns free), in Black and 48 shades of Colour. Specially prepared for PETER ROBINSON, 103, Oxford-street.

IN BLACK, WHITE, and ALL COLOURS. VELVET—FINISHED VELVETEENS. Beautifully Soft Velvet Pile, Fast Black, and in Rosé, Bronze, Violet, Brown, Green, &c., 2s. 9d. to 4s. 9d. per yard, very wide.

Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London, W.

The "Leather" Make of Reversible YOKOHAMA SILK, in Autumn Colours. This splendid novelty in White, Black, and all new Colours, including Ciel d'Italie, Bleu du Shah, Violet des Alpes, Vert Oxide, Vert de Thib, Gris d'Argent, Ardoise Foncé, &c., is 45 in. wide, 28s. 6d. to 24s. the Dress, being made expressly for, can be obtained only from.

PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London. Patterns free.

FOR EVENING, DINNER, OR WALKING DRESSES. RICH JAPANESE SILKS. In White, Black, and forty-eight Shades of Colour, including the new Hécla, Bronze, Vert de Thib, Violet des Alpes, Creme de Crème, Cerise, Corail, &c., 38s. 6d. the Dress, or 2s. 41d. per yard. These goods are all of the highest quality. Patterns free.

TULLE, TABLATANE, MUSLIN, OR GRENADEINE. MADE WEDDING and BALL DRESSES. Now ready, several hundred Robes, new Designs in White, Black, and all Colours, from 18s. 9d. to 20s.

The "Dora," a most charming dress, with Panier, Flounces, and ample trained Skirt, 1 guinea—a substantial box included. The Book of New Illustrations for this Season post-free.

PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, Oxford-street, London.

HILDITCH'S SILKS.—New Shades of Fashionable Colours for Autumn Wear. Any length cut. Chir de Russie. Gris Bleu. Gris Vert. Myrthe. Onyx. Black Silks, by the yard, at all prices.

Silks and Velvets forwarded to India by Parcel Post. G. and J. B. Hilditch, Silk Warehouse, 11 and 12, Chancery-lane, London. Established 1760.

NEW WARM DRESSES EXTRAORDINARILY CHEAP. The CO-OPERATIVE DRAPERY STORE, 118-120, Edgware-road, are now SELLING Two Manufacturers' STOCKS at half price.

New Linen Ties, 6d. each; 28 in. wide; Wool Serges, 9s. to 1s. 41d.; French Merinos, 1s. 41d. to 1s. 11d.; New Trossach Cloth, 10s. to 1s. 11d.; New Diamond Cloth, 1s. 9d.; Good Scotch Linseys, 6s. to 1s. 41d.; Fine Aberdeen Wincey, 10s. to 1s. 24.; All-Wool Satin Cloth, 1s. 2s. Extra Stock. No Ticket required. Patterns free.

The Co-operative Store, 118-120, Edgware-road, W.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. 1000 COLOURED GLACES, in Fashionable Shades, from 1s. 11d. to 21s. per yard. 1000 Patterns post-free to any part of the world.

D. NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

1000 NICHOLSON'S FANCY SILKS. Striped, Checked, Broché, and Plain, in all the New Colours, from 2s. to 10s. per yard. 1000 Patterns post-free to any part of the world.

D. NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

1000 NICHOLSON'S RICH SILKS. Moire Antiques, Coloured and Black, from 6s. 10s. per yard. 1000 Patterns post-free to any part of the world.

D. NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

1000 NICHOLSON'S BLACK SILKS, from 1s. 11d. to 21s. per yard, selected with special regard to perfection of dye and durability of texture. Bonnets, Tulle, &c., in all the New Colours, from 2s. to 10s. per yard. 1000 Patterns post-free to any part of the world.

D. NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

1000 NICHOLSON'S NEW DRESS FABRICS.—1000 Patterns, representing all the New Materials for present wear, forwarded post-free to any part of the world.

D. NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

AUTUMN SERGE DRESSES.—SEWELL and CO. supply NAVY SERGE, the fannel make, that never shrinks; also a variety of other Serges, from 2s. to 3s. 9d. per yard. Serge Dresses made at from 2 1/2 ga. to 4 1/2 ga.; and a choice of 500 Waterproof Cloaks at 16s. 9d. to 31s. 6d.

N.B. Moire Antiques, the largest Stock in England, price 4 1/2 ga. to 5 1/2 ga. Black and all colours.

REAL SEAL JACKETS.—SEWELL and CO.'s Russian Seal Jackets, in all lengths and sizes, are made from the best skins, and charged the lowest possible price. Compton House, Fifth-street, Soho-square, W.

HENRY GLAVE'S CHEAP SILKS. Black Silks, rich 2s. 11d. Black Silks, superior, 3s. 11d. Draps de France, 4s. 11d. Draps d'Italie, 5s. 11d. Japanese Silks, 1s. 9d. to 1s. 11d. Velveteens, in black and all colours. Silk English, 1s. 11d. to 3s. 11d. in various new shades. 535 to 537, New Oxford-street.

HENRY GLAVE'S NEW AUTUMN COSTUMES. Various Fabrics for Walking, Indiors, or Travelling. A choice Stock also Polonaise, Light Red Dress, and Over-skirts in Satin, Velveteen, and Woolen Fabrics. 535 to 537, New Oxford-street.

HENRY GLAVE'S NEW AUTUMN DRESSES. Scotch Serges, French Serges, French Merinos, Sateen Cloths, Scotch Winceys, Serge Serges, &c. &c. Laine Raye, Wool Ruffs, Silk Ruffs, Mounting Fabrics. Lowest prices. Cash payments only. Patterns free.—535 to 537, New Oxford-street.

HENRY GLAVE'S WINTER FURS. Seal Skin Jackets, Travelling Coats, Sable and Ermine Muffs, and General Winter Stock, is well worth an inspection. 535 to 537, New Oxford-street.

GASK and GASK.

NEW AUTUMN COSTUMES of SILK and WOOLLEN FABRICS. The Latest Fashions from Paris. Rich Black and Coloured Silk Costumes, 5s. to 20s. New Costumes in various kinds of Woollen Fabrics, 2s. to 4s. A very large choice of all kinds to select from.

Costume Silk and Satin Skirts, 21s. Patterns of all goods free. 58 to 63, Oxford-street. 1 to 5, Wells-street, London.

SEALSKIN JACKETS, POLONAISES, FRENCH MILLINERY.—All the leading novelties of the season now ready for inspection. Elegant Velvet Polonaises and Millinery, richly trimmed, Waterproofs, Opera Cloaks, Seal Skin, trimmed, Beaver, and other, with Furs of all kinds, much below present market prices.

GASK and GASK,

NEW MUSIC.

FRIDOLIN. A Dramatic Cantata, composed by ALBERTO RANDOGER, performed at the Birmingham Festival with immense success.
The Score Complete, for Voice and Piano, paper cover .. 5s. 6d.
Ditto, ditto, bound in cloth .. 10s. 6d.
"Epos and Poem" (Sung by Madame Sherrington) .. 2s. 6d.
"Wildest Conductor" (Sung by Mr. Bentley) .. 2s. 6d.
PIANOFORTE.
Nava's Three Subjects from "Pydolia" .. each 2s. 6d.
No. 1. Hunting Chorus.
No. 2. Chorus of Handmaidens.
No. 3. Dance and Chorus of Villagers.
N.B.—The separate Chorus and Orchestra Parts may also be had.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

LA BELLE HELENE. Performed at the Alhambra with immense success.
Opera complete, Voice and Piano .. 12s.
Opera, for Piano Solo .. 6s.
Belle Heleene Waltz .. 2s.
Belle Heleene Quadrille .. 2s.
Fantasia by Kube .. 2s.
Pantasia by Fyarger .. 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BOURREE for the Pianoforte, composed by COTSFORD DICK. Price 2s. "A most charming and original composition."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES.
IVY LEAVES. Galop. Illustrated. 2s.
HAWTHORN BLOSSOM. Petit Morceau. Illustrated. 2s.
MOONLIGHT STRAM. Morceau de Salon. Illustrated. 2s.
ALPINE ECHOES. Reminiscence. Illustrated. 2s.
Post-free, 1s. 6d. each.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LOUISA GRAY'S NEW SONGS.
CHANGED. 2s.
BLIND GIRL'S DREAM. 2s.
IT WAS EARLY IN THE SPRINGTIME. 2s.
Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW MARCH ROMAINE.
Companion piece to the celebrated "Silver Trumpets."
Composed expressly for the Piano, Organ, or Piano Organ (with pedal obligato), or HARMONIUM, 2s. Piano Duet, 4s. Full Orchestra, 8s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.
ORIGINAL VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM composed in an easy form for the use of amateurs by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post-free 5s.
This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for his or her private use.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES.
CHAPPELL and Co. have an immense Stock of Secondhand Pianofortes, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Chappell, and other good makers, just returned from Paris, which they can offer at exceptionally low prices. Discount for cash.—50, New Bond-street, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL-ROOM
PIANOFORTE, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany Case. Price TWENTY GUINEAS. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. It has the merit of standing well in tone, and is capable of enduring hard school practice without loss of order.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT
PIANOFORTE, with Folding Keyboard, Check Action, Triebert
Tribble, in Solid Mahogany or Black Canadian Walnut Case.
THIRTY GUINEAS; or in Maple, THIRTY-FIVE GUINEAS.
Constructed for Ships' Cabins, to occupy the smallest possible space, and to stand the damp of a sea voyage; the back is strengthened with iron bands and metallic plates, and the whole of the mechanism is of the best quality.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DULCIANA ORGAN HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDER. This New Instrument is especially adapted to the Drawing-Room. It has the sweetest tone possible, resembling the soft dulciana stop of the best organs, and, by a new patent air chest, is free from the slightest harshness. Price, 5 stops, oak, 12 gu.;
mahogany, 15 gu.; 7 stops, oak, 18 gu.; mahogany, 22 gu.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S HARMONIUMS for SALE, from 5 gu. to 110 gu. Alexander, Wholesale Agents.
Illustrated Catalogue on application.
ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN.
GUINOA ORGAN HARMONIUM. Solid Oak Case, Five Octaves, and Two Foot-Boards.
The over-estimated musical culture in all classes of society has created a demand for free reed instruments of a superior quality to those hitherto manufactured.
The Instruments now offered to the public will be found devoid of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable as regards tone.
This end has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the quality rich and organ-like.
Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by tuning the belows.
The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect and without extra cost.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE DIGITORIUM (a small Dumb Piano-Patent).—This remarkable invention materially enables any person to play and become perfect on the Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium, by strengthening and rendering the fingers independent in an amazingly short time; and can now be had (price 12s. 6d., or with ivory keys, 15s.) of the sole Manufacturer,
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NOTICE.—ALL MUSIC AT HALF PRICE.
The best Editions sent post-free, bound works accepted.
Stamps or post-office order in advance. Lists free on application.
Horwood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S CELEBRATED MOTTO SONGS.
Trifles Light as Air. I Don't be After You.
Welcome as the Flowers in May. Could I Live my Time Over Again.
As long as the World Goes Round. Always Do as I Do.
Very suitable for Penny Readings and the Drawing-Room.
18 stamps each.—Horwood and Craw.

SPEAK TO ME, SPEAK! is a lively
Song by F. CAMPANA. The Poetry is perfectly charming, and the Music quite equal to the Words. Full of beautiful melody.
In Keys of C and A. 24 stamps.—Horwood and Craw.

A BEAUTIFUL SONG.
FAR FROM MY EYES, YET NEAR MY HEART. by CAMPANA. Written to suit all voices. The words are full of pathos, and melody exquisite.
24 stamps.—Horwood and Craw.

ADELINA PATTI'S FAVOURITE SONGS.
EVENING BRINGETH MY HEART
BACK TO THEE. by Signor CAMPANA. Is a charming Ballad, and worthy the attention of all singers. In the keys of F and D. 24 stamps.—Horwood and Craw.

COOTE'S AWFULLY JOLLY WALTZ
(Quadrille), containing the famous tunes of "First the World."
"Beautiful Girl," &c. Prettily Illustrated. Solo, 24 stamps. Duet, 30.
Horwood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

ALL THE RAGE.
TINNEY'S MARIE QUADRILLES, on Russian Airs; with a Splendid Likeness in Colour of the Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrovna. 24 stamps.
Horwood and Craw.

HOW TO DANCE.—COOTE'S BALL-ROOM GUIDE for Home Practice fully explains how to learn dancing without a master. Illustrated with the figures. Post-free 12 stamps.—Horwood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

MASON and HAMLIN'S AMERICAN ORGANS. The First Medal at the Vienna Exposition, being the highest recompense for material superiority in Class XV. (Including Musical Instruments from all countries), has been awarded the Mason and Hamlin's CABINET ORGANS, by the concurrence of the Special Jury, International Jury, and two Sub-juries, including most eminent artists and experts from different countries.
In comparison with these other American organs were not found worthy of any, even an inferior, medal.
Sole Agents, Messrs. Metel and Co., 27, Great Marlborough-street, London, W. Illustrated Catalogue sent on application.

NEW MUSIC.

Price 2s. 6d. each volume, paper; 4s. cloth, gilt edges.
ROYAL EDITION OF NATIONAL SONGS.
THE SONGS OF ENGLAND. Edited by J. L. HATTON. A Collection of 100 Songs.
THE SONGS OF SCOTLAND. Edited by BROWN and PITTMAN. A Collection of 150 Songs.
THE SONGS OF IRELAND. Edited by MOLLOY. A Collection of 100 Songs, including the best of Moore's Melodies.
THE SONGS OF WALES. Edited by BRINLEY RICHARDS.
A Collection of 60 Songs, with Welsh and English words.
Also, an Extra Edition of the Four Volumes, splendidly bound in half morocco, gilt edges, price 7s. 6d. each.
Boosey and Co., London; also of all Musicall and Bookallers, and at the Railway Stations.

LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT.
Opera Comique, by LECOCQ. The greatest success of the day.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. By Kube. 4s.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. By L'inday Sloper. 4s.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. By Cramer. 4s.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT QUADRILLE. Cools. 4s.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT VALETS. Cools. 4s.
Various other arrangements in the press.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

NEW SONG. Composed by SANTLEY.—
A SHORT YEAR AGO. Song. Composed expressly for Edward Lloyd by SANTLEY. Price 4s.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

ALFRED SCOTT GATTY'S SONGS.
A HAPPY YEAR AGO. (This day.) 2s.
SUNSHINE AFTER RAIN. Words by John Gossard.
BLOSSOM. Song by Mr. Sims Reeves. 4s.
VOICES OF THE PAST. Song by Madame Fatey. 4s.
UNPOKEN. Song by Madame Fatey. 4s.
THE GALLANTS OF ENGLAND. A Song for Baritone. 4s.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONGS.
ONCE AGAIN. Song by Sims Reeves.
GOLDEN DAYS. Song by Madame Fatey.
A LIFE THAT LIVES FOR YOU. Song by Mr. Bentley.
LOOKING FORWARD. Song by Miss Edith Wynne.
LOOKING BACK. Song by Madame Fatey.
BIRDS IN THE NIGHT. Song by Madame Sherrington.
Post-free, 24 stamps each, from Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

F. H. COWEN'S NEW SONGS.
IT WAS A DREAM. Song by Milla Titianna. 4s.
MARIE. Song by Milla Marie Rose. 4s.
SERENADE. Song by Mr. Sims Reeves. 4s.
MARGUERITE. Song by Madame Trebelli. 4s.
"A song of genuine beauty."—Times.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MOLLOY'S POPULAR SONGS.
SO THE STORY GOES. Song by Miss Edith Wynne.
CLOCHETTE. Song by Madame Sherrington.
THADY O'FLINN. Song by Madame Sherrington.
THE VAGABOND. Song by Mr. Bentley.
THE OLD COTTAGE CLOCK. Song by Miss E. Wynne.
MILY'S REASON. Song by Madame Sherrington.
Price 4s. each.

Price 2s., elegantly bound, gilt edges.
ALBUM OF PIANOFORTE DUETS.
Containing the following complete sets of Dance Music, by Strauss, Gungl, and Cools, for Two Performers on the Piano, music size, 50 pages.
Blue Danube Waltz. Vagabond Quadrille.
Thousand and One Nights' Waltz. Gypsy Quadrille.
Ideal and Leber Waltz. Princess Quadrille.
Boosey and Co., London; and all Musicall.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT
PIANOFORTE, with Folding Keyboard, Check Action, Triebert
Tribble, in Solid Mahogany or Black Canadian Walnut Case.
THIRTY GUINEAS; or in Maple, THIRTY-FIVE GUINEAS.
Constructed for Ships' Cabins, to occupy the smallest possible space, and to stand the damp of a sea voyage; the back is strengthened with iron bands and metallic plates, and the whole of the mechanism is of the best quality.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET.
Price 1s. each.
120. Schumann's Third Album for Youth (9 ball songs).
125. Schumann's Second Album for Youth (13 pieces).
131. Schumann's First Album for Youth (45 pieces).
137. Strauss's six sets of Waltzes (including "Thousand and One Nights").
151. Strauss's seven sets of Waltzes, &c. (including "Beautiful Danube").
155. Gungl's six sets of Popular Waltzes.
158. Offenbach's Dance Music (including Quadrilles and Waltzes from "Cendrillon").
154. "Gypsy's de Brabant" for Pianoforte.
159. Charbel's twelve New Ballads.
Boosey and Co., London; and all Musicall and Bookallers in town and country.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING ORATORIOS,
MARRIES, and CANTATAS.
HYMN OF PRAISE. WALPURGUS NIGHT.
HAYDN'S IMPERIAL MARE. BRETHOVEN'S MARE IN C.
GOUNOD'S ST. CEVILLE. ACIS AND GALATHEA.
MOORE'S IMP. MARE. MOE'S REQUIEM.
ROSSINI'S STABAT MATER. DETTINGEN TE DEUM.
JUDAS MACCABEUS. ISRAEL IN EGYPT.
THE MESSIAH. THE CREATION.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING TUTORS,
by eminent Professors. Music size, 24 to 35 pages each.
Pianoforte (Mozart). Violin (Czarl).
Singing (Balle). Clarinet (Kappay).
Singing for Ladies (Hutton). Flute (Fruition).
Singing for Men (Hutton). Cornet (Stuart Jones).
Concertina (Czarl). Harmonium (Green).
German Concertina (Minned).
Also, Boosey's Shilling Singing Exercises, Cramer's Shilling
Pianoforte Studies, Cramer's 50 Best Exercises, Cramer's Violoncello, Cramer's 101 Exercises, and Beethoven's 20 Studies—all in 1s. 6d.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING OPERAS for PIANOFORTE, in the MUSICAL CABINET. Each Book contains from Forty-eight to Eighty Pages, including OVERTURES.
FIDELIO. IL BARBIERE DI SIVIGLIA.
ROBERT LE DIABLE. LA SONNAMBULA.
DOY HUAN. UN BALLO IN MASCHERA.
LUCREZIA BORGIA. LA TRAVIATA.
DER FREISCHUTZ. MARTHA.
CRISPINO E LA COMARE. WILLIAM TELL.
IL TRIOFATORE. CROWN DIAMONDS.
NORMA. MASANIELLO.
DON PASQUALE. LE DOMINO NOIR.
FRA DIAVOLO. LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR.
RIGOLETTO. PERICHOLE.
SAINT BRIGANDE. PRINCESS DE TREBIZONDE.
THE BRIGANDE. GENEVIEVE DE BRABANT.
THE GRAND DUCHESSE.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.
Oratorio.
ARTHUR A. SULLIVAN.
Performed at the Birmingham Festival.
Paper cover, cloth back, 12s. 6d.; cloth boards, gilt letters, 15s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, W.

NEMESIS SONGS AND DANCE MUSIC
(encored nightly at the Grand Theatre).—"The Language of Love" (sung by Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Hillier, Mr. Howard Paul,
&c.). "What are a lady's wants to-day?" "Don't make me laugh,
&c." "Will you take my arm?" Quadrilles and Galop, by J.
FITZGERALD; and Waltzes, Solos, and Duets, &c.; post-free, 2s.
each.
J. B. Cramer and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

MUSIC HALF PRICE AND POST-FREE.
The largest and most varied Stock of Music, by all the principal Publishers. Cramer and Co. undertake to forward, by return of post (on receipt of remittance), all sheet music ordered from them, no matter by whom published, at half price and post-free.
Cramer and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S PIANOFORTES, from 12 gu. to 45 gu.—For SALE, Hire, or on the Three-Years' System.
Pianos by all the great makers. Illustrated price-list free.
24, Holles-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S ENGLISH
HARMONIUMS, French Harmoniums, and Wood's American
organs. Illustrated lists free.—24, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE and for SALE.
From 25 gu. upwards. JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 25, Great Marlborough-street, Golden-square, W.; Manchester, 65, Newbury-road, Westminster.

EDUCATION IN GERMANY.—The Misses
PIESCHKE have opened an EDUCATIONAL ESTABLISH-MENT for Protestant Young Ladies in PYRMONT (watering-place), near Hanover. French, Italian, German, Russian, and Singing are taught, together with the other branches of a complete education. Pyrmont, being sheltered by surrounding hills, is much sought as a winter residence.—For Terms, References, and further particulars address, The Misses Piescher, Pyrmont, Germany.

LOSS of LIFE or LIMB, with the consequent LOSS of TIME and MONEY, provided for by a policy of the
RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY.
Office—44, Cornhill; and 10, Regent-street.
WILLIAM J. VIAN, Secretary.

THE IMPERIAL HOTEL,
GREAT MALVERN.
Visitors are received on Boarders or by Tariff. The hotel is beautifully situated, being surrounded by charming scenery. Excellent stable accommodation. Table d'Hôte at 8s. daily. Tariffs will be forwarded on application.
The hotel is connected with the railway platform by a covered way.

THE GRANVILLE HOTEL,
ST. LAWRENCE-ON-SEA.
Renowned for the most delicious sea-breeze. One of the most elegant, commodious, and comfortable Hotels in the kingdom.
Hydrographic, Turkish, Osage, Salina, Flunge, and other Baths in the Hotel. Table d'Hôte daily.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY.
This celebrated and most delicious old mellow spirit is the very CREAM OF IRISH WHISKIES, in quality unrivalled, perfectly pure, and more wholesome than the finest Cognac Brandy.
Note the Red Seal, Pink Label, and Cork branded "Kinahan's L.L.
Whisky." Wholesale—20, Great Titchfield-street, Oxford-street, W.

HOOPER'S BRIGHTON SELTZER, 4s.
per dozen. Six down carriage-free. To be obtained of all Chemists and Wine Merchants, or direct from the Manufacturer's London Depôt, 7, Pall-mall East, S.W., and 24, Grosvenor-street, W.

WM. YOUNGER and CO.'S ALES.
No tonic can excel the Ales of "Wm. Younger and Co., which can be had of the leading retailers. Established in Edinburgh, 1748.—London Store, Balvedere-road, E.C.

ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES.
The Original and Superior is only Manufactured by JOHN BURGESS and SON,
197, Strand (corner of Savoy-street), London.
Established 1790.

THE DIPLOMA OF HONOUR, being the highest distinction, has been awarded to LIEBIG COM-FANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT.
Requires no fire, is easily dissolved in water, and is the only Liebig's signature on the Trade-Mark Label.

LEA and PERRIN'S SAUCE
(THE WORCESTERSHIRE).
Pronounced by Connoisseurs to be "the only good sauce," improves the appetite and aids digestion. Beware of imitations.
Sold wholesale by CROSBY and BLACKWELL, and retail by all Grocers and Olives everywhere.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA. For Breakfast or Supper.
"The Caracac Cocoa of such choice quality."
"Food, Water, and Air," Edited by Dr. Hamell.

"An excellent article."—Green.
FRY'S MILK COCOA
only requires to be mixed with boiling water to produce a delicious Cup of Cocoa.

FRY'S EXTRACT OF COCOA,
"Which really consists of cocoa-nuts deprived of the superfluous oil."—"Food, Water, and Air," Edited by Dr. Hamell.

VIENNA INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—The "Medal for Progress" has been awarded to J. B. FRY and SONS,
Manufacturers of the celebrated Caracac Cocoa.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE and COCOA.
The award of the "Medal for Progress" at the Vienna Exhibition is a fresh proof of the high position assigned to the firm by a competent Jury.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.
"The caracac cocoa of such choice quality."—"Food, Water, and Air," Edited by Dr. Hamell.
Nine Prize Medals awarded to J. B. Fry and Sons.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
To prevent mistakes that might otherwise arise from statements which have recently appeared respecting the manufacture of Soluble Cocoa, the Public are respectfully informed that no addition of Sugar or Fat is made in the preparation of Cocoonina or Cocoonina & Vanilla. The high degree of SOLUBILITY and PERFECT PURITY attained in these well-known and highly appreciated Beverages is solely due to the careful manipulation and delicate mechanical treatment of the finest cocoa beans.
Sold in all-tight tins, at 1s. 6d., 2s., 3s., by Chemists, Grocers, &c.
Sole Proprietors, H. Schweitzer and Co., 14, Adonis-street, Adelphi, London, W.C. Samples free by post.

FLOUR.—Whites, for Pastry, Households, for Bread, Wheaton Meal, for Brown Bread, Rye Meal, Rye
Flour, pure Flour of Egyptian Lentils, manufactured at Boulton
Stann-Hills, Lancashire, and sold by Messrs. F. & S. B. South
Coventry, from Aberdeen and Berwick. Hominy and fine Indian Corn Meal, from New York.—Address, ROSEHILL and GATHERFORD, Liverpool-road, London, N.

FIELD'S PATENT "OZOKERIT" CANDLES.
Improved in Colour.
Improved in Burning.
Made in all Sizes, and
Sold Everywhere.

AVOID DANGER, and at the same time promote Cleanliness and Economy, by using the WESTMINSTER WEDGE-FITTING COMPOSITE CANDLES.
Sold every where.
Wholesale only of
J. C. and J. FIELD, Upper Marsh, Lambeth, London.

IF YOU VALUE YOUR HEALTH, USE
BRAGG'S PURE VEGETABLE CHARCOAL.
It is recommended by the highest medical men of the day, and sold by all Chemists, in Bottles, 2s., 4s., and 6s. each; and by J. I.
Bragg, 14, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square, London, W.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S PATENT
GALVANIC CHAIN BANDS, BELTS, BATTERIES, &c.
Approved by the Academy of Medicine at Paris and other Medical authorities in England and abroad.
This Self-Applicable Physical Curative is of an efficacy vastly superior to all other external remedies.
Owing to the physiological, physical, and chemical effects of the Electricity they gently and permanently impart into the system, these appliances exercise an internal action, promoting the digestion, circulation, and nutrition, thereby assisting Nature in her efforts to restore the normal balance of health and vigour in a debilitated constitution.
Hence the remarkable cures they daily effect in cases of—
Rheumatism, Head & Tooth Ache, Epilepsy, and Local Lumbago, Indigestion, Liver Complaint, Debility, Sciatica, Paralysis, Nervous Deafness, Functional Diseases, &c.

after all other remedies have failed, and thus popularizing Electricity in accordance with the authentic conclusions in the medical and scientific press.
Recent improvements in these appliances by the inventor render their self-application extremely comfortable and effective, and thus remediate former inconveniences.
Medical and scientific extracts and a selection of the daily increasing number of Testimonials, together with Price-List, are embodied in pamphlet. "Nature's (Ch.) of Restores of Impaired Vital Energy," sent post-free on application to the sole Inventor and Patentee.

J. L. PULVERMACHER,
GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
124, REGENT-STREET, LONDON, W.

NEW GOODS FROM PARIS.

PETER ROBINSON has now ready for inspection,
at his Mourning Warehouse,
A Choice Selection of very Beautiful Mantles,
SILK and Material Costumes, Polonaises,
Millinery, Flowers, Confections, and Fashionable Novelties,
which his buyers have secured from the leading houses.
The Court Mourning Warehouse, 264, Regent-street, London.

A GOOD BLACK SILK for £3 10s. the Dram of 14 yards (Degré's).
PETER ROBINSON, 264, Regent-street, W.
For a Pattern direct to Regent-street, as above.

SUPERIOR BLACK SILKS at
PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE.
Peter Robinson has now on Sale
some very rich Black Silks purchased in Lyons
very advantageously.
Excellent Black Gros Grains at 12s. 11d. to 15s. 9d. per yard, and Glaces or 17s. to 18s. the Dram.
And Superior and most em- at 12s. to 15s. 6d. per yard, during qualities or 15s. to 17s. the Dram.

Also Shades in Greys, Slates, Mauves, Whites, &c., equally cheap.
"If a Whole Piece is taken, a further reduction will be made."
Address for Patterns as above.—264, Regent-street, London.

NEW BLACK FABRICS, specially adapted for this season, at 15s. 6d., 18s. 6d., and 1 guinea the Gown, at PETER ROBINSON'S General Mourning Warehouse,
264 to 262, Regent-street.

NEW COSTUMES, in ALL BLACK, for 41 12s. 6d.,
including fully-trimmed Skirt and Polonaise,
at PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, Regent-street.

FASHIONABLE COSTUMES for MOURNING, trimmed with Organs, for 4 gu., including a Jacket or Polonaise,
at PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, Regent-street.

THE FASHIONABLE AUTUMN DRESS.
THE NEW BLACK WORSTED POPLIN
(similar in make to the Irish Poplin), a most serviceable material, and very inexpensive, from 12s. 6d. to 20s. the Dress. Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, Regent-street.

INEXPENSIVE MOURNING, as well as the Richest Qualities, can be supplied by PETER ROBINSON,
upon the most advantageous terms to Families.
The Court and Family Mourning Warehouse,
264, 262, 260, 252, Regent-street, London.

URGENT MOURNING.
"ON RECEIPT OF LETTER or TELEGRAM."
MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England on approbation—no matter the distance—with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required), without extra charge.
PETER ROBINSON'S GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
264, Regent-street, London.
Funerals Furnished on a moderate scale.

MOURNING FOR FAMILIES,
IN CORRECT TASTE,
can be purchased at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street, at a great saving in price.

SKIRTS in New
Mourning Fabrics,
Trimmed Organs.
12s. to 15 gu.

SUPERIOR GRAPE.—A Special Quality
that will not Spot with Rain.
PETER ROBINSON,
Mourning Warehouse, 264, Regent-street.

Established in Seventeen Hundred and Seventy-nine.
BRIDES and BRIDESMAIDS
are invited to inspect,
at CAPPER, SON, and CO.'S
Warehouses, the various qualities and designs in Underclothing,
Silks, Fancy Dress Materials, Costumes, Millinery, Mantles, Shawls, Towels, Tablelinen, Blankets, Quilts, and all similar requisites for personal as well as for household use.
These articles are all made up on the premises, and Ladies can select at the counters their Silks, Laces, Linens, Madras, Wools, Lampcloths, and other fabrics before they are sent to the various workrooms.
Ladies, with Friends,
on application to CAPPER, SON, and CO.,
Grocers, Strand-street,
and Finch-street, London, E.C.

FRENCH TWILL FLANNELS.—The largest assortment of these beautiful goods we are now offering at 4d. per yard. Very soft and warm. Brilliant colour, a fine Saxony wool.—JOHN HOOPER, 53, Oxford-street, W. Patterns free.

REAL RUSSIAN SEAL. are now showing
A LARGE STOCK OF THE FINEST RUSSIAN SEAL JACKETS.
SELECTED SKINS.
Considerably less than Winter Prices.
ALBION HOUSE, 161 to 167, BOROUGH, LONDON, S.E.

TO LADIES.—The SHREWSBURY
WATERPROOF TWEED COATS, SKIRTS, and JACKETS, in every variety of Shape and Colour, are supplied by the original makers, Messrs. E. W. and W. PHILLIPS, 27, High-street, Shrewsbury. Patterns and prices post-free.

FLOWERS, PRETTY FLOWERS.—Bridal
Bouquets from 15s.; Bridesmaids and other Bouquets from 10s.
All kinds of Floral Decorations. Country orders carefully executed.
W. HOOPER, 53, Oxford-street, London, W.

WEDDING TROUSSEAUX,
250 to 255s.
List post-free.
Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, W. Finsbury.

BABY LINEN.
A Layette for 25s.
List post-free.
Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, W. Finsbury.

BOYS' SAILOR SUITS, from 15s. 6d.
"The popular one for boys this season."—The Queen.
GIRLS' AUTUMN COSTUMES, from 12s. 6d.
Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, W. Finsbury.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS. are manufactured in every style of
BOYS' and YOUTHS' CLOTHING.
SAMUEL BROTHERS, 80, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS.
Suit for a Boy 4 ft. in height

PLACES NEAR BRADFORD VISITED BY THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION OF SCIENCE.

The opening of the yearly Congress of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, at Bradford, on Wednesday week, and the inaugural address of the president, Professor A. W. Williamson, of University College, London, were reported in our last publication. The actual business of scientific discussion began, on Thursday week, with the delivery of the presidents' opening addresses in the different sections.

MATHEMATICS AND PHYSICS.

In the Section of Mathematical and Physical Science Professor H. Smith, F.R.S., the president, gave an address, in the course of which he said the British Association should try to improve and extend scientific education. It had already appointed a committee to aid in the improvement of geometrical teaching in this country, and they had shown sound judgment in their work. Public opinion should be raised in favour of one definite textbook for schools, improving upon the old method of teaching geometry, and the British Association should give the whole weight of its influence to the proposed change. A good school course of education should include part or parts of physics, chemistry, and biology; a committee of the British Association to report on the teaching of natural science in schools. Science was not only practically useful, but was a good training for the mental faculties. It expanded the mind of the young and made them feel something of the greatness of the sublime regularity and the impenetrable mystery of the world in which they are placed. Thus it trained the growing faculties and aids in the education of the senses. He spoke of the aid given by the Government to museums and to zoology, and the very little aid it gave to physical science, adding that the Government should establish institutions to teach the latter. He hoped that pure mathematics would also come in for a modest share of State aid. The unphilosophical mind was seldom aware of the value of "original research"—that is to say, search after new truths for their own sake, without any reference to their commercial value or immediate usefulness. Euclid and Apollonius, he said, studied the nature of the curves formed when a cone was cut in various directions by a plain surface, the said curves being known as "conic sections." Had they been asked, "What was the use of these curves?" they could scarcely have given an answer, as conic sections had then no tendency to solve any scientific problem, and for 2000 years were of little value; yet they afterwards gave splendid results in solving scientific problems which beset Kepler. Without conic sections there would have been no Kepler; without Kepler no Newton; and without Newton no modern science.

CHEMISTRY : DYES.

In the Section of Chemical Science, Professor W. J. Russell read his address, which dealt with the history of the vegetable colouring matter found in madder. It had been in use from time immemorial, and was still one of the commonest and most important of dyes. It was obtained from a plant largely cultivated in many parts of the world for the sake of the colour it yields, and the special interest which now attached to it was that the chemist had lately shown how this natural colouring matter could be made in the laboratory as well as in the field—how, by using a by-product, which formerly was without value, thousands of acres could be liberated for the cultivation of other crops, and colouring matter which they formerly produced be cheaper and better prepared in the laboratory or in the manufactory. The colouring matter was first obtained by a chemist named Watt, in 1790. It appeared that there existed in the root two substances, which, when the plant dies, slowly act on each other, and develop the colouring matter. These were known as alizarin and purpurin. The president then traced the history of the researches which had resulted in the artificial production of alizarin. Last year artificial alizarin, equal in value to one fourth of the madder imported into England, was manufactured in this country; and this year the amount would be much larger. Thus was growing up a great industry which, far and wide, must exercise most important effects. Old and cumbrous processes must give place to newer ones; and, lastly, thousands of acres of land in many parts of the world will be relieved from the necessity of growing madder and be ready to receive a new crop. In this sense the theoretical chemist may be said to have increased the boundaries of the globe.

GEOLOGY : COAL.

In the Geological Section Professor Phillips dwelt upon the important results of the application of geological science to the coal and iron districts in the course of the past forty years; and, referring particularly to the coal question, he observed that to determine the extent of the British coal-fields, and the probable duration of the treasures which they yield, and to discover, if possible, other fields quite undreamed of by practical colliers, were problems which geology had been invited to solve, and that much progress had been made in these important inquiries by private research, and by the aid of a public commission. The questions most interesting to the community—the extent to which known coal-fields reached beneath superior strata, and the situation of other fields having no outcrop to the surface—could often be answered on purely geological grounds within not very wide limits of probability. But the experiment of testing it practically would be too costly for individual enterprise, while, if successful, it would benefit more than a county; and not only must a large outlay be provided for it, but arrangements made for persevering through several years in the face of many difficulties, and perhaps eventual disappointment. Still, sooner or later, he contended that the trial must be made, and that geology must direct the operation. He then passed in review the discoveries by which a knowledge of the earth's structure had been enlarged in the same period, and insisted upon the truth of the history revealed by geology as to the age of the world, measured not by the rotation or revolutions of planets, but a series of ages, slowly succeeding one another through an immensity of time. In concluding an interesting address the president pointed out that the one duty of geologists was to collect more and more accurate information, the fault to be avoided being the supposition that their work was in any department complete. Nothing, indeed, had yet been completed, except the extinction of a crowd of errors and the discovery of right methods of proceeding towards the acquisition of truth.

BIOLOGY : EVOLUTION.

The Biological Section was opened in the Church Institute by an address from Professor Allman, M.D., LL.D., F.R.S., the president; and the business of the section was afterwards conducted in three departments—the department of zoology and botany, under the presidency of Dr. Allman; that of anatomy and physiology and the anthropological department, with the sectional vice-presidents, Dr. Rutherford and Dr. Beddoe, as chairmen. The address of Dr. Allman related to the present aspects of biology and the means of biological study. The importance of the study of development to the biologist as affording, rather than anatomy, the true key to the classification of animals, was referred to in the address; and the doctrine of evolution, which had given a new direction to biological study and must powerfully influence future researches, was the subject of his disquisition. He observed that the hypothesis of evolution might not yet be established on so sure a basis as to command instantaneous acceptance, and for a generalisation of such vast significance no one could be blamed in demanding for it a broad and indisputable foundation of facts. Whether, however, we did or did not accept it as fairly established, it was certain that it embraced a greater number of phenomena, and suggested a more satisfactory explanation of them, than any other hypothesis which had yet been proposed. With all the admiration of scientific men for the doctrine of evolution as one of the most fertile and comprehensive of philosophical hypotheses, they could not shut their eyes to the difficulties which lie in the way of accepting it to the full extent which had sometimes been claimed for it. It must be borne in mind that, though among some of the higher vertebrata they could trace back for some distance in geological time a continuous series of forms which might safely be regarded as derived from one another by gradual modification, as had been done so successfully by Professor Huxley in the case of the horse, yet the instances were very few in which such a sequence had been actually established, while the first appearance in the earth's crust of the various classes presented itself in forms which by no means belonged to the lowest or most generalised of their living representatives. Again, they must not lose sight of the hypothetical nature of those primordial forms in which the branches of their genealogical tree were regarded as taking their origin; and, while the doctrine of the recapitulation of ancestral forms had much probability, and harmonised with the other aspects of the evolution doctrine into a beautifully symmetrical system, it was one for which a sufficient number of actually observed facts had not yet been adduced to remove it altogether from the region of hypothesis. One of the chief difficulties in the way of the evolution doctrine, when carried to the extreme length for which some of its advocates contended, was the unbroken continuity of inherited life which it necessarily required through a period of time of such vastness that the mind of man was utterly incapable of comprehending it. They had no reason to suppose that the reproductive faculty in organised beings was endowed with unlimited power of extension; and yet, to go no further back than the Silurian period, the hypothesis required that in the same period the ancestors of the present living forms must have existed, and that their life had continued through all the ramifications of a single genealogical tree down to our own time. Was the faculty of reproduction so tenacious as all this? Had the strongest which had survived in the struggle for existence necessarily handed down to the strongest which should follow them the power of continuing as a perpetual heirloom the life which they had themselves inherited? Or had there been many total extinctions and many renewals of life? Or, finally, was the doctrine of evolution only a working hypothesis which, like certain algebraic fictions, might yet be of inestimable value as an instrument of research, furnishing the biologist with a key to the order and hidden forces of the world of life? What Leibnitz and Newton and Hamilton had been to the physicist had not Darwin been to the biologist? But, even accepting as a truth the doctrine of evolution, they must not attribute to it more than it could justly claim. No valid evidence had been adduced to lead to the belief that inorganic matter had been transformed into living, otherwise than as through the agency of a pre-existing organism, and there remained a residual phenomena still entirely unaccounted for. No physical hypothesis founded on any indisputable fact had yet explained the origin of the primordial protoplasm, and, above all, of its marvellous properties which render evolution possible. Natural selection, the struggle for existence, the survival of the fittest, would explain much, but not all. The properties with which the primordial protoplasm was endowed, its heredity, and its adaptivity for these properties, were their cause and not their effect. For because of this cause they had sought in vain among the physical forces surrounding them, until they were at last compelled to rest upon an independent volition, a far-seeing intelligent design.

ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY.

In this department the address of Professor Rutherford was of much practical interest. He said that he anticipated great additional results from the application of microscopical anatomy, and he contended that the time had arrived when all aims at hap-hazard discoveries must be abandoned. As to physiology, that and anatomy had until lately been taught by the same professors in our public schools. This practice had given to physiology a bias and an aspect eminently anatomical. That continued in many quarters even now, though it had been conclusively proved that the two subjects ought to be separated; and he trusted the day was not far distant when, in our medical schools, mathematics and physics would be insisted upon as absolutely essential elements in the preliminary education of the students. Until this was done, physiology would not advance in this country so rapidly as was desirable. Its progress would always greatly depend upon the education of medical men; for only those who were conversant with physics and chemistry, and acquainted with the phenomena of disease, or abnormal physical conditions, could handle physiology in all its branches. Referring to cerebral convolutions in the part of the brain which was believed to minister to intellectual manifestations, Dr. Rutherford enunciated the opinion that the recent researches of Professor Ferrier and others would make phrenology a deeply interesting study in future, and probably evolve a phrenological system, though one based upon different principles from those of the Gall and the Spurzheims. The present, he went on to say, was the Renaissance period of English physiology; but its researches were expensive as well as laborious and unremunerative. He suggested, therefore, to those who possessed wealth and were inclined to apply it for the benefit of society that, in view of the unselfish and philanthropic character of physiological labours, they could not do better than endow a physiological laboratory in connection with Owens College, Manchester. It was a most desirable thing that the possessor of the human body should know something respecting it, not only because it suggested material for thought, but because he might greatly profit from a knowledge of the conditions of health. The thorough adoption of hygienic measures, or measures to preserve individuals in the highest state of health, could not be mooted until a knowledge of fundamental physiological principles had found its way into every family. England had taken the lead in the attempt to diffuse sound knowledge on the subject, and we might anticipate that this would contribute to enabling our country to maintain her rank among the nations; for every step calculated to improve the physiological state of the individual must inevitably contribute to make the nation successful.

ANTHROPOLOGY.

The opening address of Dr. Beddoe was on the anthropology of Yorkshire, and threw much light on the subject of local ethnology. He enunciated the opinion that the long-headed remains found in barrows belonged to the Brigantes, and rejected the existence in Yorkshire of any descendants of Romans; and he gave very interesting details of the apportionment in the existing population of Anglian and Scandinavian elements, with a comparison of ancient skulls and living men.

GEOGRAPHY : ASIA.

In the Geographical Section an address was delivered by the president, Sir Rutherford Alcock, who, after some introductory remarks, said—We may congratulate ourselves that each year many geographical explorations sensibly diminish the extent of unknown territory, and by so much not only facilitate the development of a constantly increasing commerce, but largely contribute to the diminution of causes of national contention in the application of treaties and the determination of boundaries. We have had several very striking examples of this within the past year. It has been well said that the surveyor is likely to do more in future than soldiers to prevent war; and the more frequently the scientific geographer precedes negotiations the less ground there will be for doubt or disputes about boundaries—a most fertile subject of quarrel in all ages. Is it not quite certain, for instance, that if accurate and complete surveys had been made of the straits between Vancouver Island and the American coast, and appended to the Treaty of 1846, which was intended to settle the Oregon boundary, with a line drawn exactly where it was intended the delimitation should take place by the negotiators, no dispute could have arisen? The result of Sir Frederick Goldsmid's geographical labours in the east of Persia during the past year has added another example of the inestimable political value of accurate geographical surveys. In Asia, more than any other country perhaps, is this necessity felt. The latest news from Constantinople brings the gratifying intelligence that the Sultan of Turkey and the Shah of Persia have mutually agreed to refer their contentions about the boundaries between the two States to a mixed commission of this kind. The delimitation fixed by the British Government on the Upper Oxus by similar action is a pledge of peace with Russia. These are so many triumphs of an enlightened policy, by which disputed boundaries are settled not by the sword, but by geographical observations, the accuracy of which cannot be contested. In this case it is rendered the more difficult and all the more important, politically, because, as Colonel Yule has recently demonstrated, the whole geography of the region of the Upper Oxus and surrounding country has been falsified by Klaproth. In all the pseudo travels that he invented he had imposed alike upon the British and the Russian Governments; and the consequence of such falsification might have been most fatal, for it vitiated the maps of the Russian Government, and with it their diplomacy. Fortunately, our own information of the geography of the trans-Himalayan regions had so much improved since Klaproth exercised his ingenuity, that it became possible not only to show where the falsification existed, but how one great source of error had arisen. There is no nation, perhaps, which has so much reason to value geographical science and the art of map-making at a high rate as the Russian. In these mysterious and hitherto inaccessible regions of Inner or Central Asia geographical knowledge is almost a necessary qualification for any Power which seeks further intercourse and access. To Russia, of course, it is matter of primary importance, situated as she is in direct contact, along all her southern border, with the nomad races which occupy the vast region stretching across the continent between her and all the southern ports and seas; but scarcely more so, perhaps, than to Great Britain, as another great Asiatic Power, the only one of equal pretensions, strength, and influence in the East, by its command of Western resources and Asiatic territory. A knowledge of the geography of the regions lying between the Caspian and the Amoor is, indeed, power of the most valuable kind. Thus, whether for conquest or for commerce, geography is the best ally and a necessary pioneer. The latest advance in this direction of Russia is fixed at present at Kulja, where she has established an important trading centre. This has been obviously dictated by a knowledge of geographical features giving her access to Eastern Turkestan. Geography, it is clear, therefore, in these regions, is the right hand of rulers and of generals, and determines alike the march of armies and advance of merchants. Nothing can be done by either without its aid. It is impossible, however, not to admire the energy and indomitable spirit with which Russia, claiming and freely using all the assistance scientific geography can give, utilises the knowledge thus secured. Persia at the present day offers striking illustration of the influence of physical causes over the progress of civilisation and the destinies of nations. Whatever may be the designs of Russia in her advances on Central Asia, it must be clear by this time that it is with her, and not with the nominal rulers of the States her armies have overrun, that we must count in any steps we may meditate for the peaceful prosecution of commerce. One of the great questions of the hour is how best and most expeditiously to open up practicable roads from the plains of India to Central Asia, on the west to Turkestan, and eastwards to the borders of Thibet, or by British Burma across the Shan to the western provinces of China. But access to the markets of Central Asia is by far the most urgent and important; for the southern route through Burma, were all difficulties overcome (and they are neither few nor slight), promises little in comparison with a more direct outlet for the Assam teas and an interchange of goods and produce with the populations of Thibet, Turkestan, and Central Asia generally. Across the Himalayan barrier it appears there is a choice of more than one or two practicable passes; and through Sikkim to the vicinity of Thibet offers the fewer difficulties, and in every respect promises the most speedy results with a moderate outlay. Other routes to the west, leading to Badakshan, and one by Ladak to Turkestan (where we have already an energetic and enterprising British representative in Mr. Shaw), and through the valley and passes of the Chitral, are beset by many difficulties, physical and political, but not more than a powerful Government like India may surmount. There seems every hope that within a few months something effective may be done to open a trade-route through Sikkim and make the passes practicable. All that seems to be required is a branch railroad from the other side of the Koozteen, where the Eastern Bengal Railway touches the Ganges, on through fertile Rungpore to the foot of the hills, and a road through the pass to the border, where a fair could be established and a trading station. Any direct access beyond the Thibetan border can only, in the present condition of affairs, be obtained by diplomatic action at Pekin. As for Asia, in general, Sir Rutherford Alcock observed that no doubt the battle of trade between England and Russia must be mainly fought through Persia and Central Asia, and the country which could most influence the making of new roads, and of railways along those courses, would be the most successful. As far as Russia was concerned, no doubt she would exercise her protective policy. England did not care so much about protection so long as she could hold her own. He hoped that she would endeavour to forward her various interests by means of a communication across the Himalaya into Central Asia.

POLITICAL ECONOMY : POOR LAW—LABOUR QUESTION.

The president for the Section of Economic Science and Statistics was the Right Hon. W. E. Forster, M.P., Vice-President of the Council for Education. His opening address was delivered, on Saturday, in St. George's Hall. After some remarks on the connection between statesmanship, or political science, and the facts and principles of social economy, he proceeded to review what should be the deliberations in that section. He thought they should aim to promote the economic well-being of the community. With regard to sanitary improvement, he said—Much remains to be done in that direction; but we may take comfort from the fact that our aim is higher than it used to be; for we are aiming now, not merely at preventing death, but at making life of better worth by making it more healthy. It is not the victims of disease that we are to consider, but those who are living sufferers from its ravages. The prevalence of preventible disease throughout the country is terrible to think of. It is most desirable that all the projects for sanitary improvements proposed by political thinkers or by practical politicians should at once be tested by scientific laws, and by men who are accustomed to work out scientific experiments. There was another subject he wished to allude to. Mr. Morris and Professor Levi had argued that, considering the progress of the well-being of the community, we ought to expect more diminution in pauperism than we have yet seen. There was already a diminution, and he was hopeful that it would be shown to a greater extent within a short period; "but," added Mr. Forster, "I am rather anxious—I may be thought heretical when I say I am rather anxious that, in our objection to the evils which accompany the poor law, we shall not go to the extent of thinking that we could do without a poor law. The objections to the poor law are evident, for they lie upon the surface. I fear it is quite true that the poor law does encourage want of thrift, and that, to some extent, it tends to deaden, weaken, or render less likely the proper performance of domestic duties. These are strong objections, and require that the reason for a poor law should not be weak. But I think there is a strong reason for a poor law. I do not believe, in the present state of civilisation, that it is safe or right for any country to exist without the acknowledgment of the principle of a family—without the acknowledgment that a man shall have a right to live, and that absolute destitution should be prevented. Few of us are really aware what an advantage the acknowledgment of that principle has been to this country. On comparing the social struggles and political convulsions in other countries with those of our own, I believe we shall find that one great reason why we have got through those struggles, or why we have had reform in place of revolution, has been that the large body of the people have known that that right was acknowledged—the right to live." Proceeding to deal with disputes between capital and labour, he noticed that it had been proposed to have a league of capitalists against labourers. "That," said Mr. Forster, "is a remedy which I should much regret to see applied. A league of labourers against capitalists has been talked about at meetings and in newspapers, but I do not believe in its possibility. But if anything would make it possible it would be a league of capitalists against labourers, and such opposing leagues would be one of the greatest calamities which could befall this country. I believe if such a contest were to take place it would be conducted with equal recklessness on both sides. The very possibility of such an occurrence as that makes me take some additional comfort from one political measure with which I have had to do. If there were anything like opposition throughout the country there would be an endeavour made by each party to clutch the power of the law—to aim at legislative measures. Something, however, has been done towards lessening the power of legislation on either side by giving the rank and file of each the protection of the ballot. Undoubtedly there ought to be perfect freedom in selling labour. That implies that there should be perfect freedom in combination. I believe there was no greater mistake ever committed than the attempt to prevent a man agreeing with his fellow-workmen as to the conditions upon which they would like to sell their labour. But there ought also to be perfect freedom to refuse to buy. In our efforts to secure that freedom there is a danger to be guarded against. We must not try to get the law to do what it cannot rightly, or cannot, in fact, effectually do. We can make use of law to protect the Queen's subjects against bodily harm, against physical violence; but it is no use attempting to protect men against persuasion or even against moral intimidation. They can only protect themselves, and if the law strives to do that which they should do for themselves it will surely fail, and probably create among those over whom it attempts to exercise its power a feeling of interference with their reasonable liberty. Nor must we look for a remedy in exceptional legislation." The right hon. gentleman commented on the conferences at Geneva, noticing that hardly any Englishman took part in them, and afterwards alluded to the subject of co-operation, instancing the success of building societies. He continued—"I cannot leave this labour question without some allusion to the movement among the rural population. It must be acknowledged by any person, however opposed to the movement, that it shows the progress that has been made even in Mr. Arch's meetings and speeches, and in the statement which has been circulated, setting forth views which I regret to see. Still, there has been progress compared with the state of things forty years ago, when there were rick-burnings in the western and southern counties. I confess I am not sorry that there is a movement among the agricultural population. I do not think their employers are to blame. They have acted as other employers would have done, and in some cases better, because they have been brought into closer contact with their people. I think sympathy ought to be shown to both parties. If the labourer deserves it, so does the farmer, because his condition is not such that he can make a large increase in money payment. It is a favourable feature in the movement that the landlords are in a position which enables them to act as moderators between the two sides; and it has occurred to me that an interesting subject of inquiry would be, how far the rent paid for the land affects the wages of the agricultural labourer." The right hon. gentleman concluded with a reference to the loss which economic science had sustained in the death of Mr. Mill.

MECHANICS: STEEL.

In the Mechanical Science Section the opening address was delivered by Mr. W. H. Barlow, F.R.S. It was occupied with the nature, properties, and application of modern steel, and embraced the details of the committee appointed some years ago by the Institute of Civil Engineers, of which Mr. Barlow was a member. The president referred to the utility of steel for shipbuilding, boiler-making, guns, crank-axles, and bridges in replacing cast and wrought iron. There was a good attendance of engineers, many of whom were distinguished men, and some of whom spoke on the restrictions placed on the use of steel by the Board of Trade, which, it was hoped, would soon be relaxed. A hope was also expressed that the British Association would use its influence in calling attention to the subject. The papers on the sand-blast process for cutting hard substances excited considerable interest. Specimens were handed round for distribution, and a discussion ensued on the extent to which the blast could be used for mining and other purposes.

The sections above mentioned were occupied, day by day, with the reading of essays and reports contributed by individual members, and with debates upon them. Some of the most important were these:—By Captain Markham, R.N., on Arctic voyages and researches, and the wreck of the Polaris and wonderful rescue of the crew; by Professor Ferrier, on the localisation of the different functions of thought in the brain; by Mr. Delmar Morgan, on Russian accounts of Khiva and Turcomania; by Sir F. Goldsmid, on recent journeys in Persia, by Mr. W. T. Blandford, on the deserts of Persia, and by Major St. John, on trade routes in Persia; by Mr. Norman Lockyer, on the elements of the sun; by a chemical committee on the treatment of sewage; by Signor Guido Cora, on the equatorial lakes of Africa, with a letter from Sir Samuel Baker, and a report of Lieutenant Cameron's African East Coast Aid Expedition on the track of Dr. Livingstone; by Commander Davis, on the voyage of the Challenger, and deep sea soundings; and by Mr. W. Firth, on coal-cutting by machinery. There were also lectures delivered on Friday and Monday evenings in St. George's Hall; by Professor Williamson, on fossil coal plants and the formation of coal; by Dr. Siemens, on the nature of fuel, and economy in its use; and by Professor Maxwell, on molecules. There was a ball on Tuesday, and a concert on Wednesday evening. The Archbishop of York preached before the Association on Sunday.

The meetings of the general committee of the Association for its business were held in the mornings. It was resolved that the Congress of next year should be held at Belfast, and Professor Tyndall was elected president. The Congress of 1875 is to take place at Bristol.

A page of Engravings in this Supplement shows several places at no great distance from Bradford which were available for excursions. The Bowling Ironworks are situated close to the town, but are not so extensive as the Low Moor Ironworks, referred to in our notice of Bradford last week, in which four thousand men are employed. Saltaire, a village or town built in connection with a great factory, established by Sir Titus Salt, is at Shipley, in Airedale, on the railway between Leeds and Bradford, and on the banks of the Aire. The factory building is handsome, of Italian architecture, and of immense size, 550 ft. long and six stories in height. It is entirely fire-proof, being of stone, with iron supporting pillars, with a cast-iron roof, and covers a space of twelve acres. About 3000 hands are employed here, chiefly in the manufacture of alpaca goods, but partly in that of woollen stuffs. The town, built on purpose for the accommodation of the factory workpeople, is a model of convenience and substantial comfort, with a Congregational church, a Mechanics' Institute, and excellent schools.

The other scenes represented in our Engravings belong to the North Riding of Yorkshire. Skipton, in the wild Craven district, towards the borders of Lancashire, between the sources of the Ribbles and the Wharfe, has the remains of an old feudal castle, that of the powerful Cliffords, sometime Earls of Cumberland, and great persons in the reigns of our Plantagenet Kings. A portion of the castle, built in the reign of Henry VIII., is still fit for habitation; the older part is of the time of Edward II. Ripon, a small town of 6000 people, is situated twelve miles north of Harrogate, and twice that distance north of Leeds. It was once a residence of the Archbishop of York, and is now a Bishop's see. Its cathedral, begun in the twelfth and nearly completed in the thirteenth century, was partly rebuilt between 1454 and 1604; a restoration was effected by Sir Gilbert Scott ten years ago. It is a fine example of English ecclesiastical architecture. The beautiful ruins of Fountains Abbey, within the demesne of Studley Royal, the seat of the Marquis of Ripon, are two miles from this town. The Abbey was founded in 1134, by the Cistercians or Reformed Benedictine monks, under the advice and sanction of St. Bernard; it became one of the wealthiest and proudest of monastic establishments, but was dissolved in the reign of Henry VIII., and its Abbot was shortly afterwards hanged at Tyburn for heading a rebellion. Barden Tower and Bolton Abbey should have been mentioned as near Skipton, in Wharfedale; here also is the violent little river Strid, with its steep rocky banks, which are the subject of a sketch. There is a story of the death of a boy, the only son and heir of William Fitz Duncan, from being dragged back by a greyhound he held in a leash while attempting to leap the Strid, and this legend of "the boy of Egremont" is connected by tradition with the founding of Bolton Priory, in 1153, for a convent of Augustinian monks. The ruins of Bolton Abbey Church are associated with Wordsworth's romantic narrative poem, "The White Doe of Rylstone." Barden Tower was a stronghold of the Cliffords already named; it was the residence of "the Shepherd Lord" who chose a reclusive life, in the time of Henry VII. and his successor. At the sources of the river Aire, seven miles from Settle, are Malham Caves and Gordale Scar, the picturesque scenery of which is beheld with astonishment by the tourist. The limestone cliffs of Gordale are 300 ft. high, and overhang their base as much as 30 ft.; the stream forms a series of waterfalls, cutting its way deep through opposing ledges of rock. The town of Settle is a good place from which to explore the natural and antiquarian curiosities of the Craven district of West Yorkshire.

THE ELCHO CHALLENGE SHIELD AT DUBLIN.

It will be remembered that at the Wimbledon-common meeting of the National Rifle Association this year the challenge shield given by Lord Elcho for a yearly international competition between the chosen eight marksmen of England, Ireland, and Scotland, was won by the Irish Eight. This victory has been the cause of just feelings of national exultation in Ireland; and the reception of the challenge shield at Dublin on Thursday week, when it had arrived from London, having been previously brought from the Vienna Exhibition, was an occasion of some interest. The shield was that day removed from the Mansion House. A procession was formed at the North Wall, the shield being placed on a gun-carriage drawn by eight horses, and preceded by detachments of the 14th Hussars and the 34th Regiment, with the band of the latter, and followed by detachments of the same regiments. The procession passed through the principal thoroughfares of the north city, including the North Circular-road, Mountjoy-square, Rutland-square, and Sackville-street, over Carlisle Bridge, up Westmoreland-street, Grafton-street, and St. Stephen's-green, to the Mansion House, where the Lord Mayor and members of the Corporation were in waiting on the steps to receive it. The procession was loudly cheered at intervals along the route, especially at Nelson's Pillar, in Sackville-street. There was a distinguished company at the Mansion House—including Mr. Parsons, adjutant of the English Eight; Captain Knox, captain of the Irish Twenty; Captain Field, captain of the English Twenty; and Mr. Braddell, secretary of the Ulster Rifle Association. Mr. Justice Barry, Major-General Cunningham, the Mayors of Limerick and Waterford, and Major Arthur B. Leech were also present. When the shield had been carried into the Mansion House on the shoulders of the Irish team—the band meanwhile playing "St. Patrick's Day"—Major Leech read an address to the Lord Mayor expressing the pleasure felt by the council of the Irish Rifle Association in placing the shield in his Lordship's custody. His Lordship having replied, Mr. Rigby, one of the Irish Eight, presented a beautiful miniature in gold of the shield to Major Leech, as an acknowledgment of his great services to the Irish Eight. Major Leech replied, and the proceedings terminated. A banquet was given, in the evening, at the Mansion House, at which his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant was present.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will, with seven codicils, of her Majesty, Caroline Auguste, Empress Dowager of Austria, born Princess of Bavaria, who died at Vienna on Feb. 9 last, was proved in London, on the 15th inst., by Count Philipp Cavriani, the sole executor named in the fourth codicil, the personality subject to the jurisdiction of the English Court being sworn under £8000. The will and codicils contain very numerous specific and pecuniary legacies, as well to her many descendants as to the ladies and gentlemen attached to the Court and in attendance on her, and to most of her dependants; there are also a great many charitable bequests. The testatrix names as her universal heir her grandson the Archduke Carl Ludwig; and among the legatees may be mentioned her grandson the Emperor of Austria, the Empress Elisabeth, her great-grandson the Crown Prince Rudolph, her great-granddaughter the Archduchess Gisela, her grandson the Emperor of Brazil, her grand-daughter-in-law the Empress Charlotte, and the Dowager Queen of Sweden. To the Imperial Exchequer at Vienna she bequeaths the consecrated rose received by her from Pope Pius VII. at Rome, in 1819, and to the Exchequer at Munich the trowel sent to her by Leo XII. in 1827, after it had served him at the closing of the Holy Porte. In connection with a bequest to the Caroline Institution for Soldiers' Daughters, she directs that nationalities must in no case be considered, as for her there is only one Austrian army, the army which her husband thanked when on his dying bed. There is a direction that 5000 holy masses should be read for her, and 5000 florins are set apart for this purpose. The deceased Empress expresses a wish that, if possible, on the occasion of her corpse lying in state, her face may be covered with a veil; and the Archduke Carl Ludwig is requested to choose a keepsake for each of his children, "though the eldest will be too young to remember her long; but they will be told that their father was the favourite of the old great-grandmother, that she loved him dearly as well. May he and his brothers, in spite of reproach and derision, confess to their Saviour, live more for duty than ambition, advantages, or pleasure, and always give pleasure to their parents!"

The will, with three codicils, of Sir Ralph Howard, Bart., of Belgrave Mansions, Grosvenor-gardens, was proved, on the 12th inst., by Colonel James Keith Fraser, the Hon. Albert Henry Petre, and Charles Gatiloff, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £180,000. The testator bequeaths £1000 to the representative Church body of the Church of Ireland for six large parishes in the west of Ireland to be named by Mr. Alfred M'Dermott, of Dublin; all his plate and plated articles, Elkington ware, and linen of the Howard family with the coronet to his cousin, the present Earl of Wicklow; and there are many other legacies. All his freehold and personal property in Ireland he gives to the Hon. Mrs. Howard for life, and at her death to her second son, Cecil Howard, the brother of the Earl of Wicklow. The residue of his property testator leaves to his stepson, Colonel Fraser.

The will of Sir John William Hamilton Anson, Bart., late of Birch Hall, Lancashire, and of Portland-place, who was killed in the railway accident at Wigan, on Aug. 2, was proved, on the 19th inst., by the Ven. George Henry Grenville Anson, Archdeacon of Manchester, Denis William Packe Beresford, and Sir William Reynell Anson (the son), the acting executors, the personal estate (including leaseholds) being sworn under £30,000. The testator has devised the Birch Hall estate to his eldest son, William Reynell, for life, and immediately after his decease to his first and every other son according to seniority in tail male; the residue of his property, subject to various legacies and directions, he gives to his wife for life, and at her death among such of their children as she shall appoint, other than the eldest son.

The will of Mr. Henry Wheeler, late of Bolingbroke House, Wandsworth-common, was proved on the 18th inst. by Mrs. Portia Wheeler, the relict, Thomas Edward Scudamore, and Augustus Wheeler, the son, the surviving executors, the personal estate being sworn under £350,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife his furniture, a pecuniary legacy of £500 and an annuity of £1500; to each of his daughters £10,000; to his sons Edward and Francis, £18,000 each; to each of his other sons £15,000, and the residue of his property to his children equally.

The will of William French, formerly of Stamford, Lincolnshire, and late of Tulse-hill, was proved on the 6th inst. by John Fraser and George Richards, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £30,000. The testator bequeaths £100 each free of duty to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge and the building fund of the Stamford, Rutland, and General Infirmary.

The will and two codicils of Joshua John Peele, banker, of Shrewsbury, were proved at the district registry, Shrewsbury, on the 13th ult., by Cecil Peele, George de Courcy Peele, and Edmund Creswell Peele, the acting executors, the personality being sworn under £70,000. The testator gives to his widow, Cecilia Peele, certain furniture, an immediate legacy, and an annuity of £600; to his sons Ernest Moultrie and Arthur John £4000 each; to each of his grandchildren, £500; and the residue to his three sons, Cecil, George de Courcy, and Edmund Creswell.

The Gazette contains an order from the Secretary of State abolishing Tonbridge fair, which has heretofore been annually held on Oct. 11.

Mr. Scudamore denies that there is any truth in the rumour that the Post-Office authorities are making inquiries with a view to the purchase of the Atlantic cables.

At a meeting of the Gloucester and Berkeley Canal Company it has been decided to purchase the Worcester and Birmingham Canal, which originally cost £600,000, for £6000.

Archdeacon Hill has given to the Chesterfield Hospital the rent of coal at Barborough, for the term of twenty years, at £1000 per acre, with a reserved minimum rent of £100 per year.

At Gibraltar the Board of Health has decided that all vessels from Marseilles, Toulon, Cette, and other southern ports of France shall be subjected to five days' quarantine.

There was an admirable exhibition of cattle, sheep, horses, pigs, dogs, poultry, and roots, yesterday week, at the Oswestry District Agricultural show. The silver cups and other prizes were awarded by the Earl of Bradford.

RECEPTION OF THE ELCHO CHALLENGE SHIELD BY THE LORD MAYOR OF DUBLIN.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION: THE ENGLISH COURT.

AN APPLE

ORCHARD.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE MARKET, VIENNA.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Sept. 22.

In the same manner as some of our first London and provincial firms have contributed their choice fabrics, furniture, and decorative work to the adornment of the British Commission House, the leading French exhibitors have furnished and decorated at their own private cost the pavilion of their Commissioner, which occupies one of the open courts on the south-west side of the Industrial Palace. The court in question, which has been transformed into a tastefully-arranged garden with a monumental fountain, and pieces of statuary grouped here and there, is entered through a remarkably elegant wrought-iron gateway in the Renaissance style. The pavilion, a compound of iron and brick work, is not handsome from an architectural point of view, but once inside one can but admit the pre-eminence of French decorative art. The grand salon de reception is especially gorgeous with its Boucher panels and ceiling, its elegant Louis XV. furniture and hangings on suite, contributed by Sallandrouze de Lamornaix, Braquenie, and Flaissier, the former of whom rivals the State establishment of the Gobelins in the splendour of his manufactures. The salle à manger, adorned à la Renaissance, has its buffet decorated with goblets and vases of ruby glass by Pelletier, and faïences by Barbinet and Collinot. The little Oriental salon, which is fitted up with excellent taste, is moreover replete with imitation Chinese and Japanese lacquer and metal work, while in the commissioner's cabinet de travail furnished with carved oak, we find a handsome bronze inkstand and numerous artistic bronze paper-weights, contributed by Denière.

The finest bronzes to be found in the French pavilion are certainly those of Denière and Barbedienne. The stall of the latter inside the industrial palace is, as I mentioned last week, one of the marvels of the French court. It consists of a dais-like structure, supported by Venetian masts, encased in purple velvet and mounted on an estrade carpeted with green, and surrounded by stands covered with green velvet. Phidias, Michael Angelo, Ghiberti, and Pradier are represented here by reproductions of their most famous works. At one corner rises the lifesize statue of the Emperor Augustus gathering his toga around him; and at another the well-known figure of the melancholy Italian youth listlessly carrying his mandolin, whom the sculptor has fitly named "Il Penseroso." Between the two rise the Ghiberti doorways of the Florentine baptistry, two wonderful specimens of artistic workmanship in bronze, and perhaps the gems of M. Barbedienne's collection. Around them is a legion of busts, statues, and statuettes of gods, heroes, and graceful nymphs, with a number of elegant chandeliers, candelabra, and lamps. Some of the finest works are in tinted bronze, and one of the most successful examples of this class is a bust of the celebrated Bianca Capello. The modelling of the flesh is thoroughly artistic, while the decorative character of the costume, which is arranged and rendered with great skill, gives ample scope for variation of tint, and silver, gold, and black bronze are alike employed to advantage. Many of M. Barbedienne's bronze castings are works of art of the highest class; and it is noticeable that in many cases the amount of metal has been reduced by skilful management to a minimum, being often not much thicker than cardboard. Among the chandeliers of different coloured bronze, one of the finest, intended for a hall or lobby, has its central lamp surmounted by a cone of opal glass, which serves at once as a shade and a reflector; the lamp itself, which is of an amphora shape, being embellished with ormolu and silver. At the corners are four smaller lamps of similar design with opal glass globes, and the entire chandelier is crowned by an elegant corona, connected with the central glass cone by links of silvered bronze.

Midway between the two stalls of Christoffe and Barbedienne, which give such a marked character to the French portion of the nave, a small door on the north leads into a covered court, where the French carriage-builders have their display, and beyond which the Municipality of the city of Paris exhibits plans, photographs, paintings, and drawings of many of the principal edifices of the French capital. Among the vehicles the most noteworthy is, perhaps, the grand state carriage built by Binder Frères for the Emperor Francis Joseph, all the appointments of which are truly magnificent. The large salle where the Parisian municipality has its exhibition is preceded by a somewhat smaller salle, where the French Ministry of Public Works has collected together a series of plans and drawings of the great engineering works which have been undertaken in France since the Exhibition of 1867. The display, which is most interesting, includes several sheets of the grand geological chart of France, the completion of which was announced not long ago to the Academy of Sciences by the Minister of Public Works. This gigantic work, which has been accomplished under the direction of M. Elie de Beaumont, assisted by several eminent mining engineers and officials of the School of Mines, is naturally of great value, it being, indeed, impossible to exaggerate its importance to the mining, metallurgical, and agricultural interests of the country.

The city of Paris exhibits both largely and effectively. Plans, elevations, and photographs of the churches, the mairies, the theatres, the markets, the schools, the fountains, and the bridges that have been erected or restored of late years will be found here in large numbers, together with the six principal designs for the rebuilding of the Hôtel de Ville. There is also a large and admirably-executed plan in relief of the city of Paris itself, including not merely the woods of Boulogne and Vincennes, but extending, on the one hand, beyond Mont Valérien, and on the other to the banks of the Marne. The Vendôme column, the Tuileries, the Hôtel de Ville, and other buildings destroyed by the Commune, are shown intact on their old sites. The height of a six-story house on this model is upwards of an inch and a half, and the average breadth of the streets about one inch. The fine-art section of this exhibition includes innumerable copies of stained-glass windows and paintings for wall and ceiling decoration, with models of statuettes, brackets, and the like, and is, perhaps, the most interesting collection of all.

To the left of the salle one finds a smaller apartment, containing the laces and muslins of Tarare, followed by the gallery in which the silks of Lyons are displayed. The latter, a mere temporary construction, was completely inundated by the storm of June 20, which irremediably spoiled two thirds of the fabrics exhibited. The lower part of the adjoining transverse gallery is filled with woollen fabrics sent by Elbeuf, Sedan, Vienne, and Roubaix; also velvet from Amiens, and carpets and stuffs for upholstery manufactured at Nîmes and Turcoing. The upper end is set aside for the "articles de Paris" described in my last week's letter.

On the other side of the salle devoted to the exhibition of the Parisian municipality the French Ministry of Public Instruction makes its display, composed of the class-books used in the Government schools, models of educational establishments, and specimens of the work performed by the scholars. Appropriately enough, one finds close by the gymnastic apparatus and appliances sent by the Parisian Professor Eugène Paz, the counterparts of those used in all the French Lycées. The gallery of chemical products is naturally but a succession of stalls in which perfumery, acids, salts, soap, stearine, petroleum, starch, gums, resin, and substances used in dyeing are displayed. Several of the perfumers have prettily-arranged cases; but the gallery contains little of importance save some wonderful varnishes which an Englishman, Mr. Hadfield, of Sevres, exhibits, and which have been pronounced to be the finest in the Exhibition. Passing rapidly through the gallery one finds on the opposite side another large covered court, the lower end of which is filled with harps, organs, pianos, and brass musical instruments of every description, the upper part being set aside for furniture and decorative designs. Here again the excellent taste of French upholsterers and designers becomes evident. Designs and furniture alike are often wonderfully simple and yet wonderfully gorgeous—the great effect being obtained by a pure harmony or judicious contrast of colours. France, M. du Sommerard declares, has carried off one fourth of all the recompenses—diplomas and medals of honour, progress, and merit—distributed by the international jury; and an attentive examination of the splendid examples of her handiwork sent to this exhibition cannot fail to convince an impartial observer that her exhibitors have well merited the honours that have been awarded them.

Our Illustration engraved for this week's publication shows part of the interior of that section of the Exhibition Palace which is occupied by the productions of English manufacturers. The stalls or stands of several eminent London goldsmiths and silversmiths are in this place—a most attractive portion of the great collection of chefs-d'œuvre of industry and art. But their merits have been commended with a more particular description in our Correspondent's former letters. Another Engraving presents a view of the Obst-Markt, or Nasch-Markt, the market for fruit and vegetables at Vienna. This market is situated in the suburb of Wieden, on the south bank of the little river Wien, and nearly opposite the Elizabeth Bridge. The large church dome, flanked by two pillars, which is seen at the back of the view, looking north, is that of the Carlskirche, built from 1716 to 1737, in performance of a vow taken by the Emperor Charles VI. when the plague was raging in Vienna. To the right is the Polytechnic Institution, a Government college of applied science and the useful arts. The large house fronting the market is the so-called Frei-Haus, which was formerly a nobleman's mansion, and is still privileged with exemption from taxes, though now partitioned and let for hire in 200 petty lodgings. In the courtyard of this mansion stood Schikaneder's Theatre, where Mozart's opera of the "Zauberflöte" was first performed; and he composed that opera in the garden pavilion here.

ASTRONOMICAL OCCURRENCES IN OCTOBER.

(From the "Illustrated London Almanack.")

On the morning of the 18th the MOON rises at 2h. 55m. a.m., Jupiter at 3h. 15m. a.m., and Venus at 3h. 32m. a.m.; and these bodies are near together in the morning hours, Venus being to the extreme left. The Moon is near Mercury on the 22nd, and Mars on the 26th and 27th. She is near Saturn on the 28th. Her phases or times of change are:—

Full Moon on the	6th at 31 minutes after 5h.	in the morning.
Last Quarter	" 13th " 25 "	" 6 " morning.
New Moon	" 21st " 55 "	" 10 " morning.
First Quarter	" 29th " 10 "	" 0 " morning.

She is nearest to the Earth on the morning of the 5th, and most distant from it on the afternoon of the 17th.

MERCURY is an evening star, setting on the 3rd at 5h. 45m. p.m., on the 18th at 5h. 21m., and on the 28th at 5h. 9m. At the commencement of the month the planet sets at about 10m. after the Sun, and this interval gradually increases to about 30m. at the end. He is not well situated for observation. He is in aphelion on the 18th, and in conjunction with the Moon on the 22nd.

VENUS is a morning star, rising at 2h. 44m., or 3h. 17m. before the Sun, on the 1st; and on the 22nd she rises at 3h. 43m., or 2h. 53m. before the Sun; and on the 27th at 3h. 58m., or 2h. 48m. before the Sun. She is in conjunction with Jupiter on the morning of the 14th, in perihelion on the 18th, and in conjunction with the Moon on the afternoon of the 18th.

MARS is an evening star, setting on the 1st at 8h. 21m. p.m., and a little earlier day by day, till, on the 19th, he sets at 8h. 6m. p.m., and from the 24th at 8h. 3m. every day to the end of this month. He is in conjunction with the Moon on the 27th. He is due south on the 15th at 4h. 29m. p.m.

JUPITER rises on the 2nd at 4h. a.m., or 2h. 3m. before sunrise, which interval increases to 2h. 45m. by the 12th. On the 22nd he rises at 3h. 4m. a.m., or 3h. 32m. before the Sun; on the 27th at 2h. 49m. a.m., or 3h. 57m. before the Sun, and is a morning star. He passes the meridian, or is due south, at 9h. 52m. a.m. on the 15th, and at 9h. a.m. on the 31st. He is in conjunction with the Moon on the 18th.

SATURN is an evening star, setting on the 1st at 11h. 17m. p.m., on the 10th at 10h. 42m. p.m., on the 20th at 10h. 4m. p.m., and on the last day at 9h. 24m. p.m., or 4h. 50m. after sunset; passing the meridian, or is due south, at 6h. 16m. p.m. on the 15th, and at 5h. 16m. p.m. on the last day. He is in quadrature with the Sun on the 19th, and in conjunction with the Moon on the 28th.

Archbishop Manning laid the foundation-stone of a new Roman Catholic seminary in connection with Salford Cathedral on Monday last.

The election at Dover, on Monday, resulted in the return of Mr. Barnett, the Conservative candidate, who obtained 1415 votes against 1085 recorded for Mr. Forbes.

The Dyers' Company has given ten guineas to enable the London School Board to send school-children to inspect the manufacturing processes at the International Exhibition.

The fat stock at Claremont belonging to the Queen, consisting of six Herefords and thirty-two Devons, was sold by auction, by Mr. Robert Cowles, at Claremont Park, Esher, on Tuesday afternoon. The total proceeds of the sale amounted to £1261 10s., giving an average of £33 4s. per head.

A monument erected to the memory of the late Lord Dunkellin by the people of Galway was unveiled, on Monday, at Galway. The memorial consists of a bronze statue, about eight feet and a half high, and is the work of Mr. Foley. It bears the inscription, "Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Dunkellin, M.P. of the County Galway, born 1827, died 1867. This statue is erected by the inhabitants of the town and county of Galway as a tribute of affection and respect to his memory."

We learn from the Scotsman that the Educational Institute of Scotland, at its annual meeting on Saturday, adopted a series of amended rules intended to widen the basis of the association and bring within its borders the whole body of Scottish teachers. Following up a memorial from the Northern Counties Association in reference to the training of teachers, a committee was appointed to consider what steps can be taken to promote the establishment of chairs of education in the national Universities.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

The town of Aylesbury may be called the Delphi of the Conservative party, for there are generally delivered the oracular sayings of their half-mystic chief. On a late occasion, for obvious reasons, Mr. Disraeli was not present at a gathering of members, the object of which was such as to enable all the representatives in the county of Bucks to meet in quite a millennium-like manner. The good folk of the district had an advantage which few persons who are familiar with the House of Commons enjoy—namely, that of seeing and hearing Mr. Dupré, who for much more than thirty years has represented Buckinghamshire, but who, it is firmly believed, has never in that time opened his mouth to say more than "Ay" or "No," and perhaps not even that. Certainly a more remarkable instance of Parliamentary obscurity, of course voluntary, has never occurred. Often has Mr. Disraeli stated publicly that he had an excellent colleague in Mr. Dupré, and therefore the outside world in company with the electors of Bucks must believe that all this while he has been doing Parliamentary good by stealth, which may some day bring him fame. However, after the lapse of the existing Assembly, his place in the House, wherever that was, will know him no more, for he has signified to his constituents that he is about to retire—we were going to say from public life, but, under the circumstances of his secretiveness, it may better be said, from the representation of Bucks. At this meeting there was also another singular M.P.—to wit, Mr. Lambert. When the principle of the representation of minorities was thrust into his reform bill, Mr. Disraeli gave out an order to his party that in all "unicorns"—that is, three-membered—constituencies the third seat should be allowed to a Liberal, and in Bucks Mr. Lambert achieved that rather negative honour. Though he has been very quiet of late, during the present Parliament he has shown that he has a mission, which is to pay off the National Debt without the operation costing anyone a farthing. This idea he has, we will not say expounded, but set forth, with quaint rhetoric, eccentric manner, and a wilderness of figures; unfortunately, however, always to the very scantiest of audiences, and with little or no notice from the chroniclers, so that it is to be feared that his scheme has not yet reached the heart and mind of the nation. There, too, were the two members for Aylesbury itself—Mr. Samuel George Smith, who is, to the general observation of the House, much in the same position of no-knowledge as Mr. Dupré and Mr. Nathaniel Rothschild, who is well known as one of the most personable, though not at all the most talkative of members. They all got on extremely well with their electoral friends and each other, though, of course, no oracles were delivered.

No better member of Parliament can be than Lord George Cavendish, who is eminently practical in general affairs, is intimately acquainted with the ways of the House, and has a dry humour, which he uses sparingly, and therefore enhances it. He did a great feat last Session. Time out of mind it has been a Parliamentary mode of speaking to say that a subject has been treated with as much indifference as if it were a Turnpike Bill. Well, Lord George contrived, when the annual Turnpike Acts Continuance Bill was brought in as usual, to produce an amendment which raised some of the sharpest and latest debates of the year, and went near to put the Government into a minority, under circumstances which would have been serious. Again and again, at intervals, the discussion was resumed, and every sort of device was employed to postpone the dreaded division, and still Lord George held on with bulldog tenacity. However, some process of sapping must have been employed upon him, for at length, in the penultimate week of the Session, he gave way, and the Turnpikes Bill fell again into its conventional and proverbial insignificance. The noble Lord in question has just been talking, in his terse, easy, and bantering way, to his constituents in North Derbyshire, and, doubtless, giving them all possible satisfaction.

The appearance of Sir Stafford Northcote at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at Exeter, where he talked practically and sensibly on affairs in general, especially on the income tax and the liquor traffic, suggests that of late he has come out as a representative Englishman, in a manner that no one who did not know him well would have suspected of him. When the High Commissioners on the Alabama question were at Washington some American gentlemen who, it seems, keep packs of hounds, invited them to hunt, and, of course, expected that they all of them would "witch the world with noble horsemanship." It turned out however, that Lord Ripon—who is a Yorkshireman, and therefore, supposably, nearly a centaur—is by no means Nimrodic; that Sir Edward Thornton does not combine equitation with diplomacy; and that Mr. Montague Bernard is a college don, and therefore, presumably, if he does take a constitutional ride now and then, he does so on an easy-going pad. So it was left to Sir Stafford Northcote to vindicate the character of England in one of her prime sports, and it is said that he did so in a manner to entitle him to any of those titular or decorative rewards which were offered to and declined by him on his return from his mission, apart from considerations of the diplomatic services which he rendered.

While referring to hunting and hunting-men, a transition to Lord Henley, who is great across country, is natural and appropriate, and therefore it is set down that he has headed an aggregation of Northamptonshire members recently, at one of those meetings which, having agriculture for their inspiration, and where politics are excluded and invariably talked, are common grounds for Conservatives and Liberals to exchange ideas and to be social. Certainly Lord Henley, in his position as chairman of the gathering, did his best possible to conciliate the Opposition members who were present, for he praised the speeches and the conduct and the good feeling of the men of their party in the House without stint; and almost gave one a notion that he believed that it was owing to the generosity and forbearance of the Conservative leaders rather than to its own inherent strength, that the Government is at this moment in power. There, in great force, was Mr. Ward Hunt discoursing of Army and Navy and affairs of all kinds in that critical, dogmatic way which specially belongs to him, his hard hits and his sharp comments being perhaps more telling owing to his easy, good-natured, pleasant mode of delivery and the mellow tone of his voice. He has become decidedly potential in the House, and imagination expands when one thinks how large a space he must fill on a platform in Northamptonshire, the people of which county are, it is whispered, apt to take things that they do not understand for wonderful. At the same time, the meaneast understanding must be capable of entering into sympathy with the downright good sense and clear and pointed speaking of Mr. Ward Hunt.

In the counties of England and Wales there are 800,769 electors, out of a population of 12,059,843; and in the boroughs there are 1,356,526 electors, out of 10,645,086.

The Marquis of Lorne, it is stated, has purchased the Dornden mansion and estate, on the Langton and Groombridge-road, near Tunbridge Wells. The Lucknam estate, near Bath, was sold by auction to Mr. Malmesley, of Frome, for £62,600.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE EARL OF HARDWICKE.

The Right Hon. Charles Philip Yorke, fourth Earl of Hardwicke, P.C., D.C.L., F.R.S., Admiral on the reserved list, Lieutenant and Custos Rotulorum of Cambridgeshire, died, on the 17th inst., at Sydney Lodge, Southampton. He was born April 2, 1799, the eldest son of the late Vice-Admiral Sir Joseph Sydney Yorke, K.C.B., M.P., who was third son of the Hon. Charles Yorke (second son of Philip, first Earl of Hardwicke), who was appointed Lord High Chancellor in 1770, and died suddenly a few days after, before his patent as Baron Morden had passed the great seal. The family of Yorke has for generations been associated with the profession of the law. The founder of its Peerage honours, a great lawyer (the son of an eminent solicitor of Dover), was Philip Yorke, who was made Chief Justice of England and created Baron Hardwicke in 1733, and constituted Lord Chancellor and advanced to an earldom in 1754. That nobleman acted as one of the Lords Justices in the absence of King George II., and presided as Lord High Steward at the trial of Lovat and the other Jacobite Lords. The Earl whose death we record was educated at Harrow, and at the Royal Naval College. Entering the Navy in 1815, he served in 1816 on board the Queen Charlotte, Lord Exmouth's flagship at the bombardment of Algiers, and, after passing through the various grades, was employed, as Captain in command of the Alligator, from 1828 to 1831, in the naval operations connected with the struggle between Turkey and Greece. He attained flag rank in 1835, and accepted the retirement in 1870. He sat in Parliament for some years, first as member for Reigate, and afterwards for the county of Cambridge, and succeeded to the Peerage at the death of his uncle, Philip, third Earl, K.G., Nov. 18, 1834. In 1841 he was appointed one of the Lords in Waiting, and in 1852 held the office of Postmaster-General, with a seat in the Cabinet in Lord Derby's first Administration. He married, Oct. 14, 1833, Susan, sixth daughter of Thomas Henry, first Lord Ravensworth, and leaves four surviving sons and three daughters. The youngest son, the Hon. Eliot Yorke, Esq., to H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh, was married, last February, to a daughter of Sir Anthony de Rothschild, Bart.; the eldest son, Charles Philip, Viscount Royston, now fifth Earl of Hardwicke, late Comptroller of her Majesty's Household, and M.P. for Cambridgeshire, born in 1836, is married to Lady Sophia Georgiana Wellesley, and has issue.

SIR RICHARD FREDERICK, BART.

Sir Richard Frederick, sixth Baronet, of Burwood House, Surrey, formerly a Captain in the Army, died on the 20th inst., in his ninety-third year, having been born Dec. 30, 1780. He was second son of Sir John Frederick, fifth Baronet, M.P., by Mary, his wife, daughter and coheir of Richard Garth, Esq., of Morden, Surrey, and succeeded to the title at the decease of his father, Jan. 16, 1825. His elder brother, John Frederick, Lieutenant in the Coldstream Guards, died of a wound received at Aboukir Bay. The baronetcy, as Sir Richard has died unmarried, passes to his cousin and heir male, now Sir Charles Edward Frederick, seventh Baronet, an officer in the 10th Hussars.

THE HON. P. F. CUST.

Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. Peregrine Francis Cust, who died on the 15th inst., was the fifth son of Brownlow, first Baron Brownlow, by Jocosa Catharina, his wife, youngest daughter and coheir of Sir Thomas Drury, Bart., of Overstone, Northamptonshire, and was thus brother to John, first Earl Brownlow. He was born Aug. 13, 1791; and, entering the Army, served with the 3rd Dragoon Guards in most of the Peninsular campaign, including Talavera and Busaco. He received the war medal with three clasps, and retired in 1846. Colonel Cust was three times married—first, in 1823, to Lady Isabella Scott (who died in 1829), third daughter of William, fourth Duke of Buccleuch; secondly, in 1833, to the Hon. Sophia Townshend (who died in 1852), daughter of John, second Viscount Sydney; and thirdly, in 1860, to Frances, widow of Augustus Frederick, fifth Earl of Albemarle. His eldest son is Colonel John Francis Cust, late Grenadier Guards; his youngest son, Captain Horace Cust, was killed at the battle of the Alma.

DR. DALRYMPLE, M.P.

Donald Dalrymple, Esq., F.R.G.S., M.D., M.P. for Bath, whose death took place on the 19th inst., was born in 1814, the fourth son of the late William Dalrymple, Esq., by Marianne, his wife, daughter of the late Benjamin Bertram, Esq. He was educated at the Grammar School, Norwich, and, having adopted the medical profession, became a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons and a member of the Royal College of Physicians. He practised formerly for some years at Norwich, served as Sheriff of that city, 1860-1, and was J.P. and D.L. of the county of Norfolk, as well as a director of the Norwich Union and chairman of the governors of Edward VI.'s Schools. He was first elected for Bath in 1868, and has always acted with the Liberal party. He married, 1841, Sarah, daughter of the late Thomas Osborne Springfield, Esq., of Norwich.

MR. GARNETT, OF QUERNMORE PARK.

William James Garnett, Esq., of Quernmore Park, and Bleasdale Tower, Lancashire, M.A., J.P. and D.L., barrister-at-law, and M.P. for Lancaster from 1857 to 1864, died on the 15th inst. He was born July 10, 1818, the only son of the late William Garnett, Esq., of Quernmore and Bleasdale, High Sheriff of Lancashire in 1842, by Margaret, his wife, daughter of Alexander Carson, Esq., of Liverpool. His only sister, Eliza, is widow of Mr. Serjeant Bellasis, whose lamented death we recorded not long since. Mr. Garnett, who was educated at Eton, and at Christ Church, Oxford, was author of "A Report on Lancashire Farming," for which he received the Royal Agricultural Society's prize of £50. He married, June 26, 1846, Frances Anne, second daughter of the Rev. Henry Hale, of King's Walden, Herts, and leaves issue.

Experiments have begun at Woolwich on a new invention for steering torpedoes from the shore. Electricity is the agent employed, and the inventor claims for it the capability of moving a torpedo in any direction towards an enemy's ship.

Dr. Eliza Walker has resigned her office of house surgeon to the Bristol Hospital for Women and Children. The reason assigned in her letter of resignation is the difficulty of getting a sufficient number of honorary medical officers.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

*All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the Illustrated London News," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

C. W. of Sunbury.—No. 1 requires some modification, for White can certainly give mate by moving 1. Q to K 3rd, as well as by 1. Q to K 3rd. The game has been safely received, and we return you thanks for it.

J. CLELLA and Others.—See notice regarding Problem 1543, below.

Tom Brooks; M. E. Horta.—Problem No. 1544, cannot possibly be solved by 1. K to B 7th or by 1. Kt to Q 4th (ch). Examine it more attentively.

J. de S. Reiter.—1. They shall have early attention. 2. We have heard nothing of the promised distribution of the "Clifton Games."

C. W. M. Dale, J. P. W. C.—Received, with thanks.

Rimwood, San Francisco.—Your solution of the Knight's Tour No. XVI. is syllabically correct.

Zoe.—Your problem is under examination, and shall be speedily reported on.

Colza, South Africa.—Quite right. You will have seen, since the departure of your letter, that the second solution is mentioned in our Number for June 25.

Rowson.—They are both defective; the first in admitting of more than one solution, the second in being insoluble in the stipulated number of moves.

Match of Chess between Steinitz and Bird.—A match is said to have been arranged between these players, to begin next month. The winner of eight games to be victor.

The "time limit" to be twenty moves an hour.

The Trick Solution of Problem No. 1542 has been received from Keith and Kate—W. Furnival—M. P.—Ravenna—K. B. C.—Kemp—Laura—Sigua—D. C. L.—F. R. S.—G. of Turin—Chamois—L. F.—P. G. C.—V. Vosler—W. Lewis Wood—W. Goodlife—Charley—F. Rosenauer—H. B.—Dido—P. H.—Johnny Raw—Rhenner—Longhanks—Kate and Robin—R. W. D.—Ingh—Rev. M. Gares—W. A. A.—N. Worby, Bellevue—F. H. of Mons—R. A.—L. S.—J. Bate of Otley—D. B.—Joseph Janion—F. A. S.—Bertram—Shindard—W. V. G. D.—E. Fran of Lyons—Anglo-Indian—Omaga—Notas—Isle of Wight—Carol—T. W. of Canterbury—Fidele—M. D. K.—Lionel—J. B. and W. B.—F. N.—Lucy and Mary—Cold Harbour—Try again—F. A.—Ernest—Combination—Lucerne—R. D. K.—Pip—Amelia—H. H. A.—Bain—Rev. A. Bala—Ber—George—H. P. d B.—J. N. K.—R. D.—S. T. H. of Faversham—T. Wilson Morris—Emma and Geraldine—Holzhansen and Groux—A. Wood—Barrow Hedges—Li Cabel—Merry Thought—Flanchetto—W. Airey—Allanah—Louth—Race Field—Durham.

ERRATUM.—In the diagram of Problem No. 1543 the White Queen should be a White King. We shall reserve the solution until next week.

PROBLEM No. 1544.

By Mr. E. A. SCHMITT of Delfshaven, Holland.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and give mate in two moves.

THE VIENNA TOURNAMENT.

Game in the Rubber played by Messrs. BLACKBURNE and ROSENTHAL, in the final round.—(Queen's Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. B.)	BLACK (Mr. R.)	WHITE (Mr. B.)	BLACK (Mr. R.)
1. P to Q 4th	P to Q 4th	26. P to K 5th	P takes P
2. P to Q B 4th	P takes P	27. P to K 5th	Q to K B 4th
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K 3rd	28. Q to Q 3rd	Kt to K 5th
4. P to K 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd	29. Kt to K R 4th	Q to Kt 5th (ch)
5. B takes P	B to K 2nd	30. K to B 3rd	R takes P
6. Kt to Q B 3rd	Castles	31. Kt to K B 3rd	Q to R 6th (ch)
7. Castles	Q Kt to Q 2nd	32. K to Kt sq	Kt takes K B P
8. B to Q 2nd	Kt to Q Kt 3rd	33. B takes P (ch)	K to R sq
9. B to Q 3rd	P to Q 4th	34. Kt takes R	Kt takes Q
10. Kt to K 2nd	P takes P	35. R takes Kt	P to K B 6th
11. Q Kt takes P	B to Q 3rd	36. Kt takes P	B takes P (ch)
12. Kt to Q Kt 5th	B to K 2nd	37. Kt takes B	Q takes R
13. Q to K 2nd	P to Q 3rd	38. R to K B sq	Q to K 6th (ch)
14. Kt to Q B 3rd	B to Q 3rd	39. K to R sq	R to Q 7th
15. K R to Q sq	Q to K 2nd	40. B to K Kt 6th	R takes Kt (ch)
16. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
17. Q R to K B sq	P to K Kt 5th
18. B to K 3rd	Q Kt to Q 2nd
19. B to K Kt 5th	P to K 3rd
20. Kt to Q 5th	P to K 3rd
21. B takes Kt	Kt takes B
22. B to Q 4th	Q R to Q sq
23. Kt to K B 4th	B takes Kt
24. P takes B	Q to Q 2nd
25. Kt to Kt 6th	K R to K sq
26. P to K B 4th

THE CHESS TOURNAMENT AT VIENNA.

Our contemporary the Manchester Weekly Times, which throughout this tourney supplied the earliest reports of the proceedings, has drawn up the following interesting resumé of the play. By aid of this table we can ascertain how many games as well as matches each combatant won, lost, and drew, and with whom; and see, also, the grand total of games played:—

	Matches Won.	Games Won.	Lost.	Drawn.
1. BLACKBURNE beat Paulsen, Steinitz, Schwarz, Gelbfuhs, Bird, Heral, Pitschel, Andersen, Fleissig, and Meitner	10	20	7	3
2. STEINITZ beat Pitschel, Fleissig, Meitner, Rosenthal, Paulsen, Andersen, Schwarz, and Gelbfuhs, Bird, and Heral	10	18	2	5
3. ANDERSEN beat Meitner, Bird, Rosenthal, Heral, Paulsen, Pitschel, Schwarz, and Gelbfuhs; and drew with Fleissig	8½	17	9	4
4. ROSENTHAL beat Fleissig, Meitner, Schwarz, Gelbfuhs, Heral, Pitschel, and Blackburne; and drew with Paulsen	7½	16	9	2
5. BIRD beat Gelbfuhs, Pitschel, Fleissig, Meitner, Rosenthal, and Schwarz; and drew with Heral	6½	14	9	1
6. PAULSEN beat Fleissig, Meitner, Gelbfuhs, Bird, Pitschel; and drew with Rosenthal, Schwarz, and Heral	6½	14	9	3
7. MEITNER beat Schwarz, Gelbfuhs, and Pitschel; and drew with Heral	3½	7	13	8
8. FLEISSIG beat Pitschel and Meitner; and drew with Andersen, Heral, and Schwarz	3½	9	15	5
9. GELBFUHS beat Pitschel and Fleissig; and drew with Heral and Schwarz	3	6	15	8
10. SCHWARZ beat Pitschel; and drew with Heral, Fleissig, Paulsen, and Gelbfuhs	3	6	15	9
11. HERAL drew with Bird, Fleissig, Gelbfuhs, Meitner, Paulsen, and Schwarz	1	3	9	16
12. PITSCHEL beat Heral	1	3	20	4
Total	68	139	139	58

The above table shows 139 games won and lost, and 58 drawn games; or, as drawn games counted to each competitor, 29 drawn games. Deduct as forfeited by Pitschel to Meitner, Paulsen, and Rosenthal

And add two played in the match between Steinitz and Blackburne

The grand total is

THE GOLD COAST AND ASHANTEE COUNTRY.

The Maps presented to our readers this week have been designed expressly to assist their comprehension of the localities to be mentioned with reference to the Ashantee war. It may be convenient on this occasion to recall some few matters of geographical knowledge which are seldom brought to mind unless when there is stirring news from that part of the world. The name of Guinea is applied to the whole of that vast angle of the western coast of Africa formed by the general shape of the entire continent, which recedes eastward very abruptly, to the extent of nearly 30 deg. of longitude, from the tenth or twelfth degree of latitude north of the equator. Upper Guinea is the general name bestowed on the northern portion or line of shores composing this huge bend of the African continent, which is nearly a right angle, as it appears in the smallest of our three maps. Our second map includes the several countries of Upper Guinea, besides the region of Senegambia, so called from the two rivers Senegal and Gambia, situated in the projecting part of West Africa, north of Guinea. It is usually considered that Upper Guinea begins at Sierra Leone and extends to the Gaboon River, which is almost under the Equator. It thus comprises the inner part of the great angle formed by the West African coast; this part is the Bight of Biafra, marked by the island of Fernando Po, opposite the Cameroon river and mountains of the mainland. The Upper Guinea Coast, between Sierra Leone and the Cameroons, stretching from west to east, but including the Bight of Benin, must be nearly two thousand miles in length. It is divided, popularly speaking, into the Grain Coast, the Ivory Coast, the Gold Coast, and the Slave Coast, to which might be added the Palm-Oil Coast, these names indicating the chief commodities of merchandise for which those shores were resorted to by early navigators. The Portuguese, succeeded by the Dutch, were the first commercial colonists on the coast of Guinea; their place is now taken mainly by the British, established in several detached forts and factories at the most convenient seaports—at Sierra Leone, at the mouth of the Gambia, at Cape Coast Castle, and at Lagos, with other points of less importance. But some places along the seaboard are still retained by the Dutch and the Danish Governments, for the sake of protecting their subjects' trade. A territory named Liberia, on the Grain Coast, is occupied by the republic of freed negroes from America, under the patronage of the United States. The native populations of Upper Guinea consist of five different groups or generic races—the Mandingo, the Grebo or Mandoo, the Kwakwa, the Fantee, and the Warree. These have very little in common with each other, and still less with those of Lower Guinea and South Africa. Their aggregate numbers are reckoned at nearly ten millions, inhabiting countries which altogether must be five times the size of our own. The Fantees are the people of the Gold Coast; and to this race belong the two powerful nations of Ashantee and Dahomey, who dwell in the interior, but at no great distance from the European settlements by the seaside. Our third map, to which reference is made henceforth, shows the position of Ashantee with regard to Cape Coast Castle and its dependencies, Elmina, Annamaboe, Dixcove and Axim, Chama and Accra, with the country of the Fantee tribes under the British protectorate, intervening between the seacoast and the Ashantee frontier.

We now invite the reader's attention to a few remarks upon this Ashantee war, referring to our third map, the one drawn on a scale of 30 miles to the inch, which shows the British Gold Coast settlements and the Ashantee kingdom, with the "protected territory," situated between the river Assinee and the river Volta. Although Coomassie, the capital city of King Kofi Kankali, the monarch of the Ashantee empire, is but 120 miles from Cape Coast Castle, the intervening country is a dense forest without a road, the climate very unhealthy for Europeans, and more than one attempt to march that way with British troops has disastrously failed. At the present moment, the invading Ashantee army, commanded by a skilful and experienced General named Assah Moquantah, has conquered all the Fantee tribes under our "protectorate" throughout a country as large as England; and the British forces can actually do no more than hold the forts along the seacoast. Elmina, seven miles from Cape Coast Castle, was either captured by the Ashantees or had revolted in their favour, till its destruction by our bombardment, about midsummer; and Chama, at the mouth of the Bussum Prah, was the scene of the disaster that befel Commodore Commerell and his party of sailors, on Aug. 11, in a boat expedition to survey that river. The news received this week is of serious import, as it shows that the Ashantees have spread their power and influence westward along the coast, and that the native tribes about Seconde and Tacorady, and even at Dixcove, Axim, and Apollonia, are excited or compelled to rise against the British authority. At Taccorady on the 18th ult., a party of seamen from the Argus and Barracouta, under Lieutenant Young, who was in command of the Argus, having landed to destroy some native canoes, after bombarding the revolted village, were attacked by a large force of the natives and were forced to retreat to their boats; Lieutenant Young and eleven others were wounded, but none were killed. The village of Seconde was likewise in revolt, but was subdued by a bombardment from the fort. Axim was menaced by a strong force of Ashantees, and had to demand reinforcements. Colonel Festing, at present holding the chief military command, had moved inland upon Simeo and Abbah, but found that the Ashantee army was removed further west. It is thought probable that Sir Garnet Wolseley, when he gets his forces together, will attempt to gain an entrance into the Ashantee kingdom from its eastern side, by ascending the river Volta, which is navigable for steam-boats. A light railway, thirty-five miles in length, is sent out from England in the ship King Bonny. But the success of Sir Garnet Wolseley's expedition will in great measure depend upon his obtaining the services of 10,000 native auxiliary or stipendiary troops. The men of the Hausa tribes, in the interior beyond the river Niger, are considered the best that can be got for this service; they were employed by Major H. A. Leveson at Lagos, with great advantage, about ten years ago. The neutrality or friendly disposition of the King of Dahomey is much relied upon. There is also a country west of the Prah (or rather of that supposed branch of it called the river Ofim) which once held the King of Ashantee as its vassal, receiving tribute from him. The name of this territory is Dankara, its people are more warlike than the Fantees, and may be expected to furnish a reliable force to encounter the warriors of Ashantee. South of Dankara is Wassaw, whence also may be drawn better men than the Fantees. It is probable that Dankara and Wassaw will be able to furnish 2000 men each. Then there are the Jollofs, who inhabit a country at the mouth and along the banks of the Gambia. They are of a warlike faith—that of Mohammed, and can contribute 3000 or 4000 soldiers. The Hausa force is now being organised by Captain Glover. Altogether, it is reckoned that a body of auxiliaries not much short of 10,000 in number can be assembled.

MAPS OF AFRICA, UPPER GUINEA, AND THE GOLD COAST, SHOWING THE SITE OF THE ASHANTEE WAR.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1779.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1873.

WITH EXTRA SUPPLEMENT { SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN: INSURGENTS FROM CARTAGENA FORAGING AT TORREVIEJA.

BIRTHS.

On the 24th ult., Mrs. H. S. Clive, of a son.
On the 25th ult., at Garryhinch, King's County, Ireland, the wife of Richard Warburton, Esq., of a daughter.
On the 25th ult., at 75, Conway-street, Birkenhead, the wife of William Barton Long, Esq., of a daughter.
On the 18th ult., at Gortgowan, the wife of the Hon. E. Cochrane, of a son.
On the 30th ult., the wife of William Robinson, Esq., Riedley Bank, near Burnley, of a son.
On the 27th ult., at Idrighay, Derbyshire, the wife of J. B. E. Blackwell, Esq., of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 27th ult., at the Church of Our Lady of the Rosary, London, by the Rev. Alfred White, assisted by the Rev. W. Smith, Florence Daniel, eldest son of the late Daniel McCarthy, of Glen Carragh, in the county of Cork, to Leonie Mary, only surviving daughter of McCarthy Downing, M.P., D.L., county Cork.
On the 1st inst., at St. George's, Bloomsbury, by the Rev. H. W. Adams, Rector of Great Parndon, in the county of Essex, Alexander Edward Bartlett, surgeon, Royal Artillery, to Alice Harriet, only child of the late Thomas Rose, of Madeley, in the county of Salop, and step-daughter of Borlase Hill Adams, Esq., of 55, Torrington-square.
On July 31, at Harewood Church, in the parish of St. Thomas in the Vale, Jamaica, by the Rev. C. R. Chandler, Charles Gohlie, Esq., H.M. Customs, Kingston, to Alice, eldest daughter of G. Jemmett Evelyn, Esq., of Rio Magno, in the same parish.
On the 17th ult., at the parish church of Torre, Torquay, by the Rev. Sheldon Bryett, M.A., Alfred, only son of the late Edward Leizer, Esq., of Glenholme St. Mary Church, Devon, to Minnie, eldest daughter of Henry Kingsmill, Esq., of Belfast, in the county of Antrim, Ireland.
On the 26th ult., at Christ Church, Sefton Park, Liverpool, by the Rev. Alex. Whishaw, M.A., Edward William Rayner, Esq., of Abercrombie-square, to Ann Faith, eldest daughter of J. W. S. May, Esq., of Liverpool, and granddaughter of the late Admiral Sir May, of the Royal Dutch Navy.

DEATHS.

On the 23rd ult., at 65, St. George's-square, Lady Anna Maria Tollemache, third daughter of the late Duke of Somerset, K.G.
On the 26th ult., at her residence, 52, Seymour-street, Portman-square, Mary Ann, widow of the late Richard Davies, Esq., of The Vigna, Madeira, and Jerez de la Frontera, aged 59.
On the 28th ult., somewhat suddenly, after a long illness, Richard Coenen, 28, Londond-road, St. John's-wood, formerly of 5, Gloucester-terrace, Regent's Park.
On the 25th ult., at 4, Alwyne-road, Canonbury, Priscilla, the beloved wife of Frederick Braham, and youngest daughter of the late R. W. Leage, Esq.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 11.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 5.
Seventeenth Sunday after Trinity.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 11.30 a.m., the Rev. Dr. Irons, Prebendary; 3.15 p.m., the Right Rev. Bishop Cloughton, D.D.; 7 p.m., the Rev. J. Gregory Smith, Vicar of Malvern.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., the Rev. Dr. C. B. Scott, Head Master of Westminster School; 3 p.m., the Rev. Canon Conway.
St. James's, noon, the Rev. Francis Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapels Royal.
Whitehall, 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., uncertain.
Savoy, closed till the 19th inst.
Temple Church reopened: probably, 11 a.m., the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Master of the Temple; 3 p.m., the Rev. Alfred Ainger, Reader at the Temple.
French Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. B. W. Bouvier, Incumbent.
MONDAY, OCTOBER 6.
Full moon, 5.31 a.m.
National Canine Society at Nottingham, close of the Dog Show.
Newmarket Races, Second October Meeting.
Society of Engineers, 7.30 p.m.
National Social Science Association at Norwich (Captain Douglas Galton on Public Health).
King's College, 4 p.m., Professor Robert Kerr on the Arts of Construction; 8 p.m., the Rev. Thomas Wiltshire on Geology and Paleontology (commencement of courses).
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 7.
Opening of the Church Congress at Bath (four days).
Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 2 p.m.
South Kensington Museum: Commencement of Dr. G. G. Zerlin's course of forty lectures on the History of the Development of Ornament in Art (on Tuesdays), 3 p.m.
University College, 4 p.m. (Professor Hayter Lewis on Architecture: commencement of course).
National Social Science Association at Norwich (Mr. T. Brunsy, M.P., on Economy and Trade).
Royal Toxophilite Society: Extra Target.
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 8.
Annual Meeting of the National Social Science Association at Norwich closes.
Liverpool Golf Club: Autumn meeting (two days).
Working Men's College, Blackfriars: General meeting of the students.
King's College: Professor Tennant on Geological Mineralogy, 9 a.m. (commencement of the course).
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 9.
Anniversary meeting of the charity children at St. Paul's (sermon by the Bishop of Rochester), doors open at 10 a.m. and close at noon.
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 10.
Oxford Term begins.
Church Congress at Bath closes.
Tunbridge-Wells Agricultural Show.
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11.
Old Michaelmas Day.
Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 2.30 p.m.
Thames Sailing Club, Surbiton match.
Peckham Amateur Athletic Club.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.
September	Inches.	°	°	°	0-10	°	°
24	30.267	51.2	47.2	87	5	39.6	61.9	NNE. E.	205	0.0	0.0
25	30.194	57.5	49.0	75	0	50.9	63.7	SE. ESE.	134	0.0	0.0
26	30.127	56.1	52.4	88	0	45.1	70.3	ESE. S.	70	0.0	0.0
27	29.915	54.5	49.1	83	0	41.0	71.2	ESE. S.	87	0.0	0.0
28	29.988	52.9	49.2	88	0	42.3	65.8	S. W. N.	175	0.0	0.0
29	30.145	50.4	48.5	79	7	42.3	59.1	NNE. E.	123	0.0	0.0
30	30.086	54.3	51.8	92	8	44.9	64.4	ESE. SSE.	74	0.0	0.0

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:—
Barometer (in inches) corrected .. 30.334 30.232 30.173 29.983 29.948 30.102 30.073
Temperature of Air .. 50.3 50.2 52.6 56.8 55.5 51.9 57.6
Temperature of Evaporation .. 48.9 48.9 51.7 55.2 54.8 48.9 51.4
Direction of Wind .. NNE. NNE. NNE. E. WSW. NNE. E.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 11.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
0 58	1 22	1 42	2 2	2 23	2 43	3 3

DUTCH FLOWER ROOTS.—DANIELS BROS.' 40s.
CASE contains 60 Hyacinths, choice named and mixed; 400 Crocus, in four colours; 48 Tulips, double and single; 96 Anemones, choice double and single; 48 Ranunculi, 16 Jonquills, 16 double white sweet Narcissus, 20 Snowdrops, 24 Iris, 24 Polyanthus Narcissus, 18 Scilla, 16 Saxifrage. Half the above quantity, 21s.; quarter ditto, 11s. 6d., with full cultural directions. Case and package included, and carriage-free on receipt of P.O.O.
Daniel's Bros., Seed and Bulb Merchants, Exchange-street, Norwich.

MARIE STUART and DONCASTER, 10s. each, with Jeckey, beautifully coloured, 26 by 24. The first issue will be ready Oct. 10. Also, 20 Derby Winners—GEO. REES, 41, Russell-street, Covent-garden.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—Anyone can take good Photographs with DUBRON'S Patent Apparatus. No previous knowledge required. No dark room wanted. Complete and portable apparatus, from 22. Book of Instruction, four 10s. per post.—LECHERTER, BARBE, and CO., 60, Regent-street, London.

DISEASES OF WOMEN Specially Treated at the SUTCLIFF HOME, BOLTON HOUSE, Clapham-road, Surrey, conducted as a Private Hospital, and ensuring to Patients Medical Supervision and Appliances such as can be resorted to at their own residences. Physician, David Jones, M.D. Consultations at his town residence, 18, Welbeck-street, Covent-garden, from eleven till one, or by letter on request.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS' NEW PROGRAMME.
Having been received with the most enthusiastic manifestations of approval from the vast audience that have witnessed their Hall since its production, will be repeated, and further notice, every Night at Eight and every Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday Afternoon at Three. Also ENTIRELY NEW REPERTOIRE OF SONGS, BALLADS, AND CHORUSES
In the First Part. In the Second Part the unrivalled Choir connected with Messrs. MOORE and BURGESS COMPANY will sing the IMMENSELY POPULAR and CHARMING CHORUS from Charles Lecocq's New Comic Opera "La Fille de Madame Angot." The success of this Chorus in Paris and Brussels has been really marvellous, having received three and four encores every night since its production, last December, down to the present time.
AN ENTIRELY NEW AND APPROPRIATE COMIC SONG will also be introduced, entitled THE TALE OF A SHAH, written expressly for Messrs. Moore and Burgess by Henry S. Leigh, Esq., the music from the legend of "Madame Angot," taken from Charles Lecocq's new and charming Comic Opera of that name, special license having been granted to Messrs. Moore and Burgess for the performance of the said Comic Opera in England.
A NEW AND INTERESTING FEATURE will be introduced into the Second Part of the Moore and Burgess Minstrels' Entertainment by a performance of a series of the MOST BEAUTIFUL GLEES, MADRIGALS, and PART SONGS of the old English Composers, sung by the Magnificent and Unrivalled Choir connected with this Company, under the direction of Mr. A. Nish, the Musical Conductor. The glee for the present week will be STRIKE THE LYRE, arranged for twelve male voices.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.
Every Night at Eight; Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Six.
ALL THE YEAR ROUND.
THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED AND MOST POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT IN THE WORLD.
THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS.
NOW IN THE TENTH YEAR OF ANNE CONTINUOUS SEASON AT THIS HALL, an event altogether unparalleled in the history of the world's amusements.
NO FEES OR EXTRA CHARGES.
LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL.
New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the best in London, 411s. 6d. to 221s. 6d.; Pantofole, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 2s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places at Mitchell's, 33, Old Bond-street; Olivier's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St. James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

THEATRE ROYAL DRURY-LANE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, F. B. Chatterton.—Triumphant success of "Antony and Cleopatra," unanimously pronounced by the public press to be the grandest and most gorgeous spectacle ever witnessed on the stage.—ON MONDAY NEXT, OCT. 6, and during the Week, will be performed Shakespeare's Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes, by Mr. Andrew Halliday, illustrated with New and Characteristic Scenery by Mr. William Beverley. The cast will include Mr. James Anderson, Mr. Ryder, Mr. H. Russell, Mr. A. Glover, Mr. Richard, Mr. Dolman, Mr. J. Morris, Mr. Byrd, Mr. Ford, Mr. Lockford, Mr. Milton, Mr. Sargent, Mr. H. Clifford, and Mr. H. Sinclair; Miss Wallis, Miss Banks, Miss E. Stuart, Miss Melville, Miss Adeline De La, &c. The performance will commence with a Farce Musical Entertainment, in one act, entitled NOBODY IN LONDON. Characters by Messrs. Brittain Wright, F. Morland, Fred Evans and his Ballet Troupe; Miss Harriet Coveney, and Miss Hudspeth. To conclude with a New and Original Farce, entitled THE STRAIGHT TIP. Characters by Messrs. Brittain Wright, F. Morland, A. M. Denison, P. R. Hamilton, &c. Performances commence at Seven, with WHO SPEAKS FIRST?—Messrs. E. F. Edgar, F. Charles, Miss Le Thiere, Miss Seymour, &c. Conclude with HES A LUNATIC—Mr. John Clayton, Mrs. Carter, Miss Le Thiere, and Miss Seymour.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Bateman. Every Evening, at Eight, Lord Lytton's Play, entitled RICHIEU—Richard III. Mr. Henry Irving; Louis XIII. Mr. Henry Clayton; Gaston, Mr. Beaumont; Barolus, Mr. Henry Forester; De Mauprat, Mr. J. B. Howart; De Berchem, Mr. F. Charles; Joseph, Mr. Carter; Haquet, Mr. E. F. Edgar; Francis, Mr. Conway; Marion de Lorraine, Miss Le Thiere; and Julie de Mauprat, Miss Adeline De La. Performances commence at Seven, with WHO SPEAKS FIRST?—Messrs. E. F. Edgar, F. Charles, Miss Le Thiere, Miss Seymour, &c. Conclude with HES A LUNATIC—Mr. John Clayton, Mrs. Carter, Miss Le Thiere, and Miss Seymour.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate.
Sixth Week and triumphant success of the Legitimate Drama. Mr. Croswick, the eminent tragedian, with his son, Mr. Charles E. Croswick and Mrs. Charles Viner (of the Olympic Theatre) Every Evening in a Legitimate Play, supported by a selected Dramatic Company.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S VOCAL ACADEMY.
The next Term begins on MONDAY, OCT. 20; and Madame Sainton-Dolby will receive Candidates for Admission at her residence, 7, Gloucester-place, Hyde Park, on Saturday, Oct. 19, from Ten to One O'clock. Prospectuses can be had on application at Messrs. Chapell's, 50, New Bond-street; and of Mr. George Dolby, 52, New Bond-street, W.

DORE'S GREAT PICTURE OF "CHRIST LEAVING THE TETRUM," with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christian Martyr," "Francesca di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

ELIJAH WALTON.—EXHIBITION, including "A Storm at Sea" and "A Sand Storm in the Desert," and many New and Important Drawings, Alpine and Eastern, NOW OPEN at BURLINGTON GALLERY, 191, Piccadilly. Ten to Six. Admission, with Catalogue, 1s.

STEAM.—LONDON TO CALCUTTA Direct, via Suez Canal.—CARLYLE BROTHERS and CO'S DUCAL LINE OF STEAMSHIPS. These magnificent, full-powered steamships have been built expressly for the trade, and will be found on inspection as fine and substantial vessels as have ever been built in this country. The cabins are elegant, light, and commodious, with every convenience for tropical climates, and are placed on-deck, where there is the least motion. Each steamer is provided with bath-rooms (hot and cold water) and ice-house, and carries a surgeon and stewardess.

	Tons.	Captain.	To Sail.
Duke of Argyll	3015	Bartie ..	Oct. 31.
Duke of Devonshire	3015	—	Nov. 30.
Duke of Burleigh	3015	—	—
Duke of Lancaster	3015	—	—
Duke of Sutherland	3015	Edward ..	Sailed.

The Duke of Argyll is intended to leave the Victoria Dock about Oct. 30. Rates of passage, for first-class passengers only, 40s., 50s., and 60s., according to the season, and on required. For further particulars apply to M'Diarmid, Greenhields, and Co., No. 1, East India Avenue, Leadenhall-street, London, E.C.; and No. 2, Drury-lane, Liverpool.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS, CRESTS, and ADDRESSES designed, and Steel Dies engraved as usual. Note-Paper and Envelopes stamped in colour relief and brilliantly illuminated in gold, silver, and colours.—41, Piccadilly, London, W.

VISITING-CARDS, at H. RODRIGUES'S.—A Card-plate elegantly engraved and 100 superfine cards printed for 4s. 6d. Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare arranged and printed in the latest fashion.—42, Piccadilly, W.

WATCHES, about Half Price, by eminent Makers (McCabe, Frohman, Barraud, Dent, &c.), warranted genuine and quite unimpaired. Descriptive Catalogues, with Prices, gratis on application.—WILES and MCCULLOCH, 22, Ludgate-hill, London.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1873.

King Victor Emmanuel is at home again. His visit to Vienna and Berlin must have cost him an effort of self-restraint which, in prospect at least, would assume an appearance of martyrdom. It was undertaken at the suggestion of others, and with a reluctance at which even his own subjects could hardly be surprised. Patriotism persuaded him to accede to the evident wishes of his Ministers and his people. He has made the sacrifice of his personal feeling for the benefit of his country right royally. That his visit has come to an end is no doubt a matter of joy to himself. That, on the whole, it has been satisfactory may be, we trust, ground for congratulation to all European States.

The King of Italy's visit to Germany, and the respectful, if not cordial, reception which he met with, are more significant than the visits of Sovereigns usually have been. They reveal a mutuality of feeling as well as of interest highly conducive to European repose. They not only indicate, but they infuse new vigour into, those conditions upon which the peace of Europe will probably depend for some years to come. They are a significant warning to France that any course of vindictive policy which her statesmen may be disposed to project must be pursued solely in her own name, on her own responsibility, and with her sole strength. They exhibit tute a kind of guarantee against the outbreak—for some time to come, at all events—of that direst calamity to mankind, a religious war. No insult has been offered to the just susceptibilities of any nation. No defiance has been paraded in the face of any Power. No treaties of alliance have been contracted, whether for offensive or defensive purposes. But an understanding has been arrived at between Italy, Germany, and Austria as to the part which either of them would be disposed to play in given eventualities, which may serve to allay apprehensions, to create confidence, and to repress, wherever they may find entertainment, ambitious dreams. Ordinarily, the world is not inclined to place too much faith upon the personal intercourse of Sovereigns. In the present instance, it sees in the visit of Victor Emmanuel to the Courts of Vienna and Berlin a sign of international relations more pregnant with good than in any formal act by which the concord of the three Powers could have been expressed.

Victor Emmanuel the guest of Francis Joseph! What a suggestive fact it is! How it carries back the mind to those passages of history, remote as well as modern, which illustrate the harsh rule of conquest, and the sullen submission—not to say the moral deterioration—of its helpless victims! The divided state of Italy, sustained by the Imperial might of Austria; the struggles of its various provinces to shake off the foreign oppression which crushed their spirit; the conflicts at Novara, at Magenta, at Custoza, and on other battle-fields too numerous to mention; the quadrilateral, and the political serfdom imposed upon Venetia;—these and a hundred other stirring incidents could hardly have failed to present themselves to the memory of the two Sovereigns, as they stood face to face, under vastly altered circumstances, and exchanged, with as little affectation as possible, the courtesies becoming host and guest. Political and international relationships, however, are seldom strongly affected by sentiment. Austria needs rest. She is engaged in a political reconstruction of the empire indispensable to the welding into unity of the several and differing nationalities of which it is composed. Constitutional government has laid bare its weakness at the same moment that it has planted the germ of its strength. Austria, ousted from the German Confederation, has been compelled to concentrate her solicitudes upon the problems which the political condition and aspirations of her various peoples have presented for solution. For the happy solution of those problems she requires time and rest. She has to struggle with many foes to her internal tranquillity, her material development, and her political and social freedom. An Ultramontane crusade in Italy, conducted by the possible rulers of France, would excite a fever of agitation in Austria which, perhaps, it might be found impossible to control. Both Monarchs must have understood that the traditional alienation of feeling between them would necessarily favour ambitious projects in sight of the public, paid to each other tokens of respect and amity, and by their mutual courtesies have proclaimed to all whom it may concern that, as between them, the past is dead and buried, and that the future will be entered upon without prejudice, as the interests of their respective peoples may determine.

The position of the King of Italy at Berlin was not free from embarrassment. When the Emperor Napoleon III. declared war against Germany, and before events had cast any light upon its probable course and termination, Victor Emmanuel had expressed his personal determination to cast in his lot with France. That he had not done so was due to the wise policy of his statesmen. The German people were somewhat scandalised by what they regarded as the ingratitude of the Sovereign who had received Venetia mainly through their intervention. But Victor Emmanuel was perfectly frank and open-hearted in apologising to the Emperor for the step which he had taken. He had received no small part of his dominions from Napoleon's hands; he was allied to him by his daughter's marriage; he was impelled by a feeling of gratitude to the deliverer, in part at least, of Italy. He could not have addressed his explanation to a personage more susceptible to its force than the Emperor William. All coldness and formality were thereupon abandoned, and the utmost cordiality of feeling was instantly established. Between the Court of Berlin and that of Rome—between the Confederation of North Germany and the kingdom of Italy—comparatively recent circumstances have established an unusual mutuality of interests. Each of them is menaced with the same danger; each of them has to contend against the insidious intrigues of the same foe; each of them is compelled to mount guard over the newly-constructed unity of their respective dominions; and each is open to the sudden incursion of a powerful and restless neighbour to whom that unity has been distasteful. Politically speaking, there may be great dissimilarity between the two, nor is there much sympathy in personal and social respects between them. But the people of both countries discern clearly enough that their future prospects will largely depend upon the closeness of their agreement with each other. This has now been openly exhibited. Its effects can hardly be otherwise than salutary. It has probably already dissipated many dreams of ambition, and so far it has given unanticipated solidity to the peace of Europe.

Victor Emmanuel is at home again. On a review of this latest episode of his reign he has certainly no reason to feel disappointed. He has done his own country and the world no little service by assuring a fair continuance of peace on the Continent. What it may lead to we shall not be rash enough to predict. In politics, said Mr. Disraeli, the only thing sure to happen is the unexpected. That will probably be the case in the present instance. But whether the unexpected shall take the shape of confusion or of order, of the conflict of armies or of a proportionate disarmament, of evil or of good to mankind, who will venture to pronounce? We see, it is true, but a very little way before us; we are subject to casualties which upset all human calculations. A few steps onward may bring us across fresh difficulties; but even in the full consciousness of this we can rejoice in the fact that the outlook, as far as our limited vision extends, presents to us a cheerful rather than a gloomy aspect, and that the forces now in operation tend appreciably towards the maintenance of tranquillity, and encourage hopes of the increasing well-being of nations.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Balmoral Castle. On Sunday her Majesty, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service at Crathie church. The Rev. Dr. Milligan, Professor of Biblical Criticism, Aberdeen University, officiated. On Monday the Right Hon. John Bright and the Right Hon. Hugh C. Childers arrived at the castle. On Tuesday the Queen held a Council, at which the Right Hon. John Bright was sworn in as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and received the seals of office, in the place of the Right Hon. Hugh C. Childers. After the Council Earl Granville, who had been a fortnight as Minister in attendance upon her Majesty, the Right Hon. John Bright, and the Right Hon. Hugh Childers left the castle. The Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales and Princess Beatrice, has visited Glen Eye, the Linn of Quoich, and other picturesque localities. Her Majesty has entertained at dinner Earl Granville, Sir Howard Elphinstone, and the Hon. Lady Biddulph. Lady Waterpark has succeeded Lady Churchill as Lady in Waiting to the Queen. Lady Churchill has left the castle.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince John of Glücksburg attended Divine service, on Sunday last, at Crathie church. In the afternoon their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, the Earl of Aylesford, Mr. Cockerell, Mr. and Miss Knollys, and Colonel Teesdale, drove from Abergeldie Castle to the Lochnagar Distillery, and partook of tea with Mr. and Mrs. Begg; and subsequently drove to Balmacraich, and visited Mr. and Mrs. Peter Farquharson. On Monday the Prince, with a large party, went deer-stalking to the Knocks. The Earl of Aylesford, who had been on a visit to the Prince and Princess, left the castle. Sir Hastings Doyle arrived on a visit to their Royal Highnesses. The Prince, with Prince John of Glücksburg, last week, visited the Earl of Fife at Mar Lodge for a few days' deer-stalking. A distinguished company was invited to meet his Royal Highness. The Royal and distinguished sportsmen had fine sport in the Forest of Mar, Glen Quoich, and the Dorrie. The Prince, with Prince John of Glücksburg and other guests, has also had excellent sport shooting over the Royal demesnes. The Princess has taken daily drives, and has paid frequent visits to the Queen at Balmoral.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

The Duke of Edinburgh has been appointed commander of the second battalion of Marines of the Black Sea Fleet. The battalion will bear the name of "His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh's 2nd Black Sea Marines." The Grand Vizier and the Minister for Foreign Affairs were present at the dinner given at Therapia by his Excellency Sir Henry Elliot, on the eve of the Duke's departure for the Crimea. His Royal Highness purposes to return from the Crimea about the middle of November next. The Duke, upon his return, will lay the first stone of the National Training-School for Music, the site being near the west portico of the Royal Albert Hall. The betrothal of the Duke and the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia will shortly be celebrated at Livadia, according to the rites of the Orthodox Church. Lord Loftus will be present. The marriage is fixed to take place in January next, at St. Petersburg.

His Excellency Count d'Harcourt arrived at the French Embassy, Albert-gate, on Monday, from Paris, to present at an early day his letters of recall.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Queensberry have arrived at the Balmoral Hotel, Edinburgh, from Lockerbie House.

The Earl and Countess of Derby have arrived at Knowsley from Scotland.

The Earl and Countess of Granard arrived on Saturday last (after their wedding tour) at Castle Forbes, in the county of Longford.

Earl and Countess Fitzwilliam and the Ladies Fitzwilliam have arrived at Coollatin Park, in the county of Wicklow, from Yorkshire.

The Earl of Shaftesbury and Lady Edith Ashley and the Hon. Cecil Ashley have arrived at St. Giles's House, Dorsetshire, from Ireland.

The Earl and Countess of Galloway and Lady Margaret Cecil have arrived in town from Paris.

Earl Delawarr has entertained at Bourn Hall, Cambridgeshire, a large number of his tenantry, where there has been a series of festivities on the occasion of the visit of the Earl and Countess to the old family mansion.

Viscount and Viscountess Ashbrook arrived, on Tuesday, at Castle Durrow, their seat in the county of Kilkenny, from a Continental tour.

Viscount and Viscountess Lismore have returned to Shanbally Castle from visiting the Earl and Countess of Listowel at Cnavamore, Mallow.

Viscountess Combermere has arrived at St. Leonards-on-Sea from Belgrave-square.

Lord and Lady Alfred Paget have returned to their seat in Norfolk from Ireland.

Lord and Lady Colchester have arrived at Dandrum Castle, on a visit to Viscount Hawarden.

Lady Frances and Miss Gordon have left town for Aboyne Castle, Aberdeenshire.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone has arrived at his residence on Carlton House-terrace, from Hawarden, Flintshire.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Spanish Legation has removed from Gledhow-gardens, South Kensington, to 15, St. George's-place, Knightsbridge.

The Bank rate was, on Monday, raised from four per cent, to which it was advanced on the 25th ult., to five per cent.

The Great Northern Hospital has received a donation of £1000, the fourth of the same amount from S. W. Y.

An influential meeting of dairymen and cowkeepers was held yesterday week in Exeter Hall, at which it was decided to advance the retail price of milk to fivepence per quart.

The medical schools in connection with the great metropolitan hospitals were opened on Wednesday for their winter campaign, and lectures were delivered by various professors.

Nov. 27 has been decided upon (having been approved by the Education Department) as the date for the re-election of the London School Board.

Seats are being placed along the whole length of the Embankment. Already the steam-boat pier recesses and railway and other bridges have been furnished, and it is intended to place another line under the trees.

A conference of the friends of Bands of Hope was held, on Wednesday, at Exeter Hall. In the course of the proceedings prizes were distributed to several young essayists, who had sent in compositions on the "Advantages of Total Abstinence."

The new bridge over the Thames, from Wandsworth to Chelsea, was opened yesterday week by Colonel Hogg, the Chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Works. The bridge will be called Wandsworth Bridge. Foot passengers using it will have to pay a toll of one halfpenny.

The Murillo, in charge of an Admiralty officer, arrived, yesterday week, at her moorings in the West India Docks, there to remain, pending the suits brought against her by the owners of the Northfleet and her cargo for £24,000, or until released on bail.

A new school, which has been built by the London School Board, was opened on Monday in Cottenham-road, Upper Holloway. The schools will accommodate 920 children—viz., 360 boys, 240 girls, and 320 infants. The site, which covers three-quarters of an acre, was purchased by the board for £500, and the total cost of the building, site included, has been £7100.

The Treasury has refused to accede to the request of the College of Preceptors to be allowed accommodation in Burlington House, Mr. R. R. W. Lingen replying—"My Lords do not think it advisable to extend further the principle of granting aid by the State to learned societies, and they regret, therefore, that they are unable to comply with your application."

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers last week was 97,839, of whom 33,605 were in workhouses, and 64,234 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 3061, 19,671, and 30,564 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved was 464, of whom 307 were men, 131 women, and 26 children.

Dr. Frankland, in his monthly report on the metropolitan water supply, notes a general improvement as compared with the month of August, except in regard to the Chelsea and Southwark companies. The Southwark water contained living organisms. Dr. Frankland observes that, "with a visitation of epidemic cholera threatening us, careful filtration is of the utmost importance, being the only defence we possess against the diffusion of zymotic matter from the towns draining into the Thames and Lea above the intakes of the water companies."

The annual report of the Superintendent of the Metropolitan Meat and Poultry Market furnishes us with the means of forming some notion of the size and population of London. The average quantity of produce brought into the market weekly from all sources was 2336 tons; of which 1335 tons were foreign and town-killed meat, and £1501 tons country meat; and the average quantity brought in weekly by the railway companies was 803 tons. The return shows that the largest proportion of meat brought to the London market from the country comes from the districts intersected by the London and North-Western line, the Great Northern and Great Eastern lines coming next.

Last week 2234 births and 1177 deaths were registered in London. After making allowance for increase of population, the births were 44 and the deaths 254 below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The annual death-rate from all causes, which in the two previous weeks had been equal to 21 and 19 per 1000, further declined last week to 18. The fatal cases of diarrhoea, which in the seven previous weeks had declined from 470 to 127, further decreased to 85 last week, and were slightly below the average. The annual death-rate from diarrhoea was equal to 1.3 per 1000 in London, while in the seventeen other large English towns it averaged 3.5 per 1000. To simple cholera only 3 deaths were referred last week, all being cases of children certified as choleraic diarrhoea. The deaths from different forms of fever were 39, against 26 and 34 in the two previous weeks; 2 were certified as typhus, 28 as enteric or typhoid, and 9 as simple continued fever. There were 2 deaths from smallpox, 22 from measles, 11 from scarlet fever, 4 from diphtheria, and 39 from whooping-cough.

Monday being Michaelmas Day, the Liverymen of the City proceeded to nominate two candidates for the office of Lord Mayor for the ensuing year. Mr. Alderman Lusk, M.P., and Mr. Alderman Stone, the members of the Council next in rotation, were designated, and Mr. Lusk was then duly elected by the Court of Aldermen. A vote of thanks to the retiring Lord Mayor, expressing a very flattering eulogy on the manner in which he has signalled his year of office was carried with enthusiasm. Last Saturday afternoon Mr. Alderman Whetham and Mr. J. H. Johnson, who were elected on Midsummer Day last to serve the office of Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, were sworn in at Guildhall with the usual ceremonies. Subsequently the Master and Wardens of the Leathersellers' Company entertained the new Sheriffs and a number of other guests at a luncheon in their hall in St. Helen's-place.—Mr. Wallford, of Aldersgate, has been elected without opposition to the vacancy for that ward in the Common Council resulting from Mr. Paterson's promotion to the aldermanic chair of the late Sir David Salomons.

An immediate rise in the price of coal in Lancashire is announced. In the Manchester district the rates are to be put up 3s. 4d. a ton.

Apparently, genuine cases of Asiatic cholera have been imported into Liverpool by a French vessel from Havre. Four deaths have been reported. At the meeting of the Liverpool Health Committee, on Wednesday, the chairman announced that stringent protective measures had been taken by the health authorities, and that there was every reason to believe that the progress of cholera had been effectually stayed.

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN.

This twofold war, of the Carlists in the north and east, and of the Intransigents or Communists, on the south-east coast of Spain, both combating the Republican Government established at Madrid, continues to rage with unabated fury. The bombardment of Alicante, last Saturday, by the powerful ships-of-war Numancia, Mendez Nunez, and Fernandoel Catolico, serving the Intransigentes of Carthage, is the chief event of this week.

The seaport town of Alicante, situated on the east coast, about seventy miles north of Cathage, and in the province of Valencia, was held by English troops during the Peninsular War, and was fortified at our expense. The French, under General Montbrun, were repulsed here by the British garrison, and Bonaparte could never get possession of Alicante. The old castle, on its lofty rock, was built ages since to defend the trade of the port against the pirates of Algiers; but there is not so much trade now, and the population has declined; the neighbouring country is very fertile.

The Intransigentes of Carthage have been sending out their war-ships to threaten the neighbouring towns on the coast, and to extort contributions of money, as was done at Aguilas and Torrevieja. A rumour as to the bombardment of Alicante prevailed in Madrid on Saturday, and was ultimately confirmed by explicit accounts of the outrage. Three insurgent vessels, the Numancia, Tetuan, and Fernando Catolico, left Carthage on the 23rd ult., after their crews had been harangued by one of the leaders of the faction. They assumed a hostile position eastward of the jetty in Alicante harbour, and consular mediation to avert a bombardment was at once resumed. Owing to divergent instructions among the Admirals of the foreign fleets—the German commander being, it is said, disposed to interfere, while the English and French Admirals decided to remain neutral—all attempts to avert the attack were unsuccessful. Foreign shipping accordingly withdrew outside the harbour; the women and children, and many other inhabitants, took their departure; and on Saturday morning the Numancia and Mendez Nunez began to shell the defenceless town. The re-organised artillery force at Alicante distinguished itself by the steady and effective fire with which it answered the enemy's guns. After seven hours' fighting, in course of which petroleum shells were thrown into the town, the insurgent vessels were so much injured that they withdrew. In the town eleven persons were killed and thirty wounded. The thanks of the Government were promptly telegraphed to the garrison and people of Alicante for the heroic defence they had offered.

Carthage is about to have the military and naval force of the Madrid Government concentrated against it. The frigates released by the English Admiral have been ordered round to the insurgent port. Reinforcements of troops left Madrid on Saturday for the same destination, and it is confidently hoped that the Separatist rebellion will be speedily stamped out.

The sketches we have engraved, showing the scenes that lately took place at Aguilas, on the south coast, thirty-six miles west of Carthage, were made by an officer of H.M.S. Torch, which was engaged in watching the Intransigente iron-clads, on the 16th and 17th ult., to prevent their injuring the property or persons of British subjects. Five hundred of the Carthage men landed at Aguilas, and the only resistance attempted was by a small party of twenty-four Carabineros, or soldiers of the Coastguard. These fired upon a detachment of the invaders going round a street corner, but nobody was killed or wounded, and the Carabineros, seeing themselves outnumbered, ran away into the country. The Intransigentes levied their forcible requisitions at Aguilas, to the amount of 16,000 dols. They did the same on the 12th ult., at Torrevieja, which is a small town on the coast, forty miles north-east of Carthage, and not far from Cape Cervera.

The Carlists have been guilty of great excesses in the province of Valencia, burning railway stations and carriages, and destroying roads, without any strategical necessity for such acts. The instigators of these deeds are said to be fanatic priests, and such indignation against them is felt in Valencia, where there are no regular troops, than an armed body of citizens demanded to be furnished with special trains to go and assist Alcala. This request being granted by the authorities, the citizens arrived at Alcala in time to prevent excesses being committed there by the Carlists, who were completely beaten, and lost 114 prisoners. On their retreat they were hotly pursued across the open country, but succeeded in gaining the mountains.

In the north, Tolosa has had a narrow escape from the Carlists, a large force of whom surrounded the town and its Republican defenders, when they were obliged to retire before the approach of General Moriones with a still larger force. Berga has also been relieved, a large convoy of supplies, escorted by 6000 men, having reached the town. On the journey it had two encounters with the Carlists, driving them off on both occasions. The Government at Madrid is making great efforts, and it is stated that the accessions from the reserve now exceed 30,000 men. They are actually under drill, and will be incorporated with the army as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Lowe has appointed Lord Edmond Fitzmaurice, M.P., to be his private secretary at the Home Office.

Mr. Edward Cecil Guinness has been appointed a Deputy-Lieutenant for the city of Dublin.

A new school of medicine, in connection with the Royal Infirmary of Liverpool, was opened, on Wednesday, by Mr. John Torr, M.P. for the borough. An introductory address was given by Dr. R. Caton, lecturer on physiology, after which the prizes to pupils of the old institution were delivered.

With a view to affording more systematic instruction to the junior officers serving in her Majesty's ships to which no naval instructors are appointed or which are temporarily without a naval instructor, the Commissioners of the Admiralty have established regulations for the employment of non-commissioned naval officers below the rank of commander, or of any officer of the Royal Marines on this duty.

The Warrington Guardian states that a noble addition is about to be made to the recent gifts to the town of £9000 by Mr. G. Crofield and £3000 by Colonel Wilson-Patten. Mr. Hatton, of Hatton, to whom Warrington is already indebted for the noble gift that laid the foundation of a hospital for the town, has expressed his intention of doubling his gift. Mr. Hatton is about to give another £5000 for the support of the Warrington Hospital.

The revenue returns for the year and quarter ending Sept. 30 show that the receipts for the quarter just ended amount to £17,342,439, being a net increase of £1,532,622 over the corresponding quarter of 1872. For the year the receipts were £77,428,999, being an increase of £337,344 over the year ending Sept. 30, 1872. The items of increase are:—Customs, £274,000; excise, £1,390,000; stamps, £551,000; Post Office, £634,000; telegraph service, £295,000; Crown lands, £4000. In the receipts for land tax and house duty there is a decrease of £10,000; for property tax, £2,869,000; and for miscellaneous, £4656.

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN.

AGUILAR, VISITED WITH REQUISITIONS BY THE INSURGENTS OF CARTHAGENA.

CARABINIERES RESISTING THE CARTHAGENA INSURGENTS AT AGUILAR.

Her Majesty's ship Niobe has bombarded the town of Cúma, in Honduras. The leaders of one of the factions had imprisoned foreign residents and some British subjects, and this sharp measure was necessary to secure their release and due compensation.

Lieutenant-Colonel Hogg, who was plaintiff in the divorce case "Hogg v. Hogg and Cordery," lately tried, has been suspended from the office he holds in India, pending investigations as to the abstraction by him, while Director-General of the Post Office, of a letter written by his wife to the co-respondent.

From Paris the death of M. Jean Chacornac, the well-known French astronomer, is announced, and of Don Salustiano Olozaga, late Spanish Ambassador there. — A Leipzig despatch says that the celebrated comedy writer, Herr Roderich Benedix, died there yesterday week, after a protracted illness, aged sixty-two. — A despatch from Leghorn announces the death of Signor Guerrazzi, the Italian writer, at the age of sixty-eight. He had played a prominent part in the struggles of his country for freedom. — The Cologne Gazette records the death, on the 26th ult., of the German authoress Mrs. Clara Mundt, whose maiden name was Muller, but who was better known under her assumed name of Louisa Mühlbach.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Andrews, F., to be Rector of Kinnersley, Herefordshire.
Brooks, William : Curate in Sole Charge of Cusop, near Hay.
Bower, Charles Uppley : Vicar of Wollerlow, Tenbury.
Jones, H. : Rector of Llanberis, Carnarvonshire.
Langford, J. Frere : Chaplain of the Foundling Hospital.
MacDougall, Francis T., late Bishop of Labuan : Canon of Winchester.
Monnington, T. P. : Vicar of Downton, Hereford.
Palmer, R. : Vicar of Queenborough, Kent.
Russell, John : Incumbent of Holy Trinity, Barking-road, Essex.
Robinson, William A. Scott : Honorary Canon in Canterbury Cathedral.
Simcox, H. K. : Rector of Patney, Wilts.
Street, Arthur J. : Vicar of Whitlebury, Tewkesbury.
Thynne, A. B. : Curate of Wilsford, Marlborough : Vicar of Seend.
Watts, George Edward Oscar : Rector of Kensworth, Herts.
Wake, Heathcote Allen : Rector of Nettleswell, Essex.
Wood, John : Curate-in-Charge of the District of High Town, in Luton.

The Pall Mall Gazette says that Dr. Hayman has given notice of dismissal to Mr. Arthur Sidgwick from his mastership at Rugby School.

The foundation-stone of St. Gabriel's, a new mission church for the parish of St. Mary, Newington, was laid on Monday, the festival of St. Michael and All Angels.

The Rev. H. Victor Maddons, Vicar of St. Paul's, Kilburn, has been presented by his congregation with a beautifully-furnished parsonage, as a token of their esteem.

At a crowded public meeting in Exeter a resolution was adopted deploring the Romanising practices now prevalent in the Church, and calling on the Bishops to exercise their authority for their repression.

The Church of St. Antholin, in Watling-street, which is to be removed, subject to a scheme prepared by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, has been closed, after a valedictory service and a sermon by Bishop Claughton.

A stained-glass window, dedicated to the memory of the late Bishop of Winchester, was uncovered, on Monday, in St. Mary's Church, Reading. Underneath it will be placed a brass plate with a suitable inscription.

The foundation-stone of a church to be called St. Michael and All Angels was laid at Wigan, on Monday, by Mrs. Slade, of London. The church is to be built in the Gothic style of architecture, at a cost of from £7000 to £8000.

Canon Kingsley preached an eloquent sermon, on Sunday, on behalf of the Westminster Abbey Pension Fund, inaugurated last year by Dean Stanley. Its object is to provide pensions for the aged and necessitous daughters of printers. The attendance at the Abbey was very numerous.

The Earl of Shaftesbury laid the central stone of a new church (Christ Church) at Weymouth yesterday week. After the stone had been laid his Lordship was entertained at a luncheon at the Royal Hotel, and in the evening he addressed a meeting of working men at the parish school-rooms.

The Oxford Diocesan Conference, which was arranged to be held after the last Diocesan Synod, was opened, on Wednesday morning, in the Sheldonian Theatre, under the presidency of the Bishop of Oxford. There was a large attendance of the clergy and laity, including the archdeacon of the diocese, most of the rural deans, several members of Parliament, and a great number of ladies.

The foundation-stone of a new church for the district parish of Pontnewydd, Pontypool, Monmouthshire, was laid, on Thursday week, by Mrs. Hanbury Leigh, of Pontypool Park, in the presence of a numerous company. The congregation presented the lady with a silver trowel, richly chased. — Llanuwchllyn church is another example of a dilapidated uninteresting Welsh church rebuilt, an addition to the roll, now happily increasing, of ecclesiastical buildings in that part of the country properly cared for. With the single exception of a grand old effigy of a Crusader, there was nothing of interest in the previous edifice.

The steam-yacht Diana, which sailed in the beginning of the year on an exploratory cruise in the Arctic seas, has returned to Dundee, all well. Mr. Smith, who was accompanied by Mr. Potter, son of Mr. T. B. Potter, M.P., furnishes the following particulars regarding the voyage :—Mr. Smith's intention was to get to the north coast of Spitzbergen, and then to strike north-east. When they got to the Seven Islands the ice was found to be tight upon the lands, and it was impossible to get beyond this. Three successive attempts were made, and the Diana penetrated to the east of the islands, but got beset near Cape Platen. On three occasions Mr. Smith endeavoured to get a passage via Hinlopen Strait, in the hope of getting to the north or to the east, but unfortunately fast ice was again encountered. The expedition explored and surveyed some of the north-east land, and went farther than had been done before, no ship having as yet got so far north as Mr. Smith had been. This was owing to the ice being so closely packed. The highest latitude reached was 81 deg., whereas, in 1871, Mr. Smith got to 81° 24 deg. After that all further attempts to get north had been given up, and the Diana steamed to the south of Spitzbergen, the object being to get to Wecha's Land. There, however, the progress of the vessel was stopped by the young ice, which was forming very fast, and had got so thick that it was not safe to take a vessel further into it. Under the circumstances, further progress was considered impossible, and so on the 16th the Diana bore up for home, having a very rough passage. The whole of the route traversed by the Diana has been laid down on the charts, and no doubt will be deeply interesting to all who are concerned in the navigation of the Polar seas. Capital sport was enjoyed during the voyage, consisting principally in shooting bears, walrus, seals, reindeer, and from the carcasses of narwhale and seals two or three tons of oil were obtained.

NEW BOOKS.

A fresh, simple, wholesome, pathetic love story is prettily told in the two volumes entitled Courtship and a Campaign: A Milanese Tale of '66, by H. Dalin (Sampson Low and Co.). It is written by the author of "In the Golden Shell," of which one seems to still cherish some indistinct but pleasant memories. The tale exhibits certain symptoms of carelessness, the very names of the characters being occasionally either forgotten or misplaced (as, for instance, at p. 213 of the second volume). There is more than enough, too, from a reader's point of view (though an author, having to fill the requisite number of pages, may think differently), of what relates to Garibaldi's fruitless campaign and to his unfortunate followers' wounds and sufferings, which are described with morbid and sickening minuteness; but there are at the same time some "battle-pieces" sketched with great spirit and admirably coloured. The real charm, however, of the story lies in the delicate skill and the tender manner with which and in which a double love affair, with its cross purposes, jealousies, and misunderstandings, is handled and brought to a successful issue by a woman-like and judicious tact in making patriotic spirit subserve selfish interests. The difficulty which has to be solved in order that things may beset right is of a sort tolerably familiar to novel-readers. A and B, who are of the feminine gender, the former being lovely and the latter more than passable, are beloved respectively by C and D, who are of the masculine gender, and both—especially the latter—dashing young fellows. Now, A is poor and C is rich, or, at least, has a rich father; and B is rich, or, at least, has a rich father, whilst D is not only poor but, by public reputation, a scapegrace. Moreover, the two rich fathers have agreed to make a up a match between their son and daughter. Further, the two girls are a little suspicious one of the other; or, at any rate, one of them believes that the young hero she loves may have to marry the other. Then the people who are poor have, as generally happens, a great deal of pride, which helps to render the entanglements worse than ever. And how is this knot to be undone? It must be cut by the sword of Garibaldi; and the patriotic spirit of Italy must be summoned to assist in tying afresh the severed threads in the form of a true lover's knot. The two young heroes must be wounded; the hearts of the already patriotically inclined fathers must be softened at the sight; the wealthy girl must nurse the needy soldier; confessions must be made, and proud thoughts must be subdued, and paternal stubbornness must yield before a spoilt daughter's artifice and wheedling. And all this without prejudice to the good service performed by an eccentric but a sympathetic and lovable old doctor of medicine.

The biography of a musical artist seldom offers much matter of interest to the general reader. Some lives of musicians, including even those of several great composers, contain but little of incident or event beyond such details respecting their works as only enthusiastic admirers will care to read in a lengthened narration. The contrary of this is largely the case with the two volumes of the Life of Moscheles, just published by Messrs. Hurst and Blackett. This is an adaptation, by Mr. A. D. Coleridge, from the original German of Madame Moscheles, who has interwoven her own narrations and remarks with extracts from the diary of her late husband. Ignace Moscheles, born at Prague, in 1794, became distinguished as a pianist at a very early age, and was soon destined to exercise a large and beneficial influence on his art, having been one of the first to develop the brilliant and bravura style of playing, besides having had a principal share in the introduction of Beethoven's greatest works into this country. Moscheles's fame as a pianist and composer for his instrument rapidly spread from Germany to Paris, and then to London, where he took up his residence from 1821 to 1846, when he settled at Leipzig as Professor at the Conservatoire. The personal friendship between him and Beethoven, and, later, that which prevailed between Moscheles and Mendelssohn, are illustrated by numerous highly interesting letters and details in the volumes now referred to. Not only in these and other matters of musical history is the book to be valued; it contains also reminiscences of some of the most distinguished notabilities of the last half century, political, artistic, and literary. Moscheles was not merely a musician; he was a man of large powers of observation, keen perception, and not without a considerable share of dry humour. Notwithstanding the active pursuit of a very laborious profession, he went much into society of the best kind; and the records which he kept, amplified as above stated, are now collected in a book which is one of the best examples of its kind that has appeared for some time.

The fourteenth edition of Haydn's Dictionary of Dates and Universal Information, "containing the History of the World to August, 1873," has just appeared, and bears evidence of the unremitting conscientious labour of its editor, Mr. Benjamin Vincent, the librarian of the Royal Institution, whose charge of the work began with the sixth edition, in 1855. Since then the work has been thoroughly revised and renovated; much useless matter having been expunged, and fully one third more information introduced. The editor's object has evidently been to produce a work of reference, acceptable either in the study, the library, the news-room, the drawing-room, or the school-room; and the rapid sale of so many editions shows that he has not been unsuccessful. The present edition comprises the eventful history of the last five years, set forth under the headings of the respective countries and in separate articles, including the revolutions in France, Germany, Spain, and Italy; the Franco-German War, with its battles and sieges; the Alabama difficulty, and sundry other recent events; especial attention having been given to the affairs of the British empire. Nothing of importance to which a date could be affixed appears to have escaped the editor's notice; and few questions will arise, either in the perusal of the public journals or during the conversation at the dinner-table, to which a satisfactory answer will not be found in this comprehensive volume.

The literature of the young has received a really valuable addition in Six by Two, Stories of Old Schoolfellows, by Edith Dixon and Mary De Morgan (Virtue and Co.). The six stories are one and all extremely interesting as tales, and thoroughly enjoyable by much older readers than the public of young ladies in their early teens for which they are especially designed. What pleases us most, however, is their thorough sanity and unaffected simplicity, their extreme fidelity in the delineation of character, their frank sensible tone, equally remote from sentimentality and hardness. The liveliness of Miss Dixon's three stories, two of which are apparently derived from actual reminiscences of school life in Germany, shows how much literature may have lost by her early death; while the ability displayed in Miss De Morgan's, the first especially, augurs well for her success in the wider field where we hope to meet her again.

Mr. Orr-Ewing, M.P., laid the foundation-stone of a new church in connection with the Church of Scotland at Leazie on Saturday last.

FINE ARTS.

It is with deep regret that we have to record the death, on Wednesday morning last, of Sir Edwin Landseer. The great painter had long been known to be afflicted with a most alarming illness; of late years he exhibited few completed works executed during that period, and he was seldom seen in the circles where before he was so well known; yet his death is hardly the less painful a surprise, and his loss will not be the less widely deplored. We are preparing a portrait of the eminent artist, which will be accompanied by a biographical notice.

We stated last summer that Mr. E. M. Barry had recommended the adoption of incombustible floors for the new National Gallery, and we, with others, supported the architect's preference of tiles or mosaic for such a purpose. But the First Commissioner of Works was not of the same opinion. However, it appears from a corrected return to the House of Commons recently issued, that the floors themselves are not to be of wood, but solid fireproof structures of iron and brick covered with concrete, and that only the flooring over all will be of oak. It may, notwithstanding, still be objected, perhaps with reason, that the priceless treasures of our National Gallery will not be absolutely free from all danger from fire with such a flooring, and especially if, as we understand will be the case, any wood be used in the facing of the walls.

The Art-Congress lately held at Vienna united between seventy and eighty representatives from all parts of Europe, and was conducted in a laudably serious spirit, and gave occasion for several lectures of great interest. A "bureau" or committee was formed, with M. von Eitelberger for president. Most of the propositions made were referred to commissions, which will have to present their report at the next congress, which is appointed to be held at Berlin in 1875.

During the last seven years a series of extremely delicate and elaborate wood-engravings has been in course of execution by Messrs. Whymper, after the remarkably spirited designs by Mr. Joseph Wolf, illustrative of the "Life and Habits of Wild Animals." The series is now complete, and will be published by Messrs. Macmillan early in the approaching season.

The monuments to Kleber and Desaix, at Strasburg, have been generously given up to France by her German conquerors.

The discovery has been made, at Rome, on the Esquiline Hill, of some vessels in pottery larger than any yet found, and of such a size that a man could easily live in one. The discovery confirms the opinion that the "tub" of Diogenes was not made of wood, but of earthenware, as is implied by Juvenal.

A statue to Wedgwood was unveiled, last week, at Burslem. Mr. Gladstone, in a letter to the secretary of the Burslem Institute, spoke of the great potter as "that remarkable person whom observation and reflection lead me to regard as, perhaps, the most distinguished individual in the whole history of commerce, taken from the earliest age."

A portrait of Mr. Edward Baines, the senior member for Leeds, has been painted, by Mr. Waller, for the Leeds Town-hall, where it will hang with the portraits of several Yorkshire worthies.

A statue of Richard Baxter, to be executed by Mr. Brock, is to be erected at Kidderminster.

Scaffolding has been erected round the smaller spires of the Houses of Parliament for the purpose of repairing the decaying stonework.

A monument to Sir Herbert Edwardes, K.C.B., has been erected in the north transept of Westminster Abbey. It consists of a bust of Sir Herbert, on a pedestal bearing the inscription, at each side of which is an angel with outstretched wings.

A memorial window to Dr. Jenner is about to be placed in the parish church at Berkeley, Dr. Jenner's native town. The subjects of the window will represent, in nine groups, Christ's miracles of healing the sick.

The death is announced, at Rome, of M. Rosales, director of the Spanish Academy of Fine Arts. Among his best known pictures are the "Death of Lucretia" and the "Testament of Isabella the Catholic."

The Provincial Council of Naples has voted the sum of 50,000 lire for an art-exhibition in that city. The council has also decided to purchase sixty copies of the medal struck in memory of Urbano Rattazzi.

"GRANDMOTHER'S TREASURES."

In this pleasant picture the artist, Mr. W. Holyoake, has ingeniously conceived an incident which, while quite natural and probable in itself, has, at the same time, furnished him with an opportunity for artistically utilising many objects of the kind which usually go to make up the heterogeneous picturesqueness of an artist's studio. But, of course, the objects here are selected for a purpose: they suggest little clues to the story of a life; they indicate antiquated tastes, olden memories of bygone associations, and the hoarding, secretive habits which so often grow with age. On the floor there is a scrap-book or "album," with, no doubt, many wonderful amateur artists' performances, and many of those not less wonderful effusions which our grandfathers were expected to have in readiness at a moment's notice, to celebrate the charms of their female acquaintance. What an awful tax on the gallantry of the "swells" of the present day would such a custom be! Among the other volumes—those in the cabinet—we should expect to find old "keepsakes" and "books of beauty," scented with a musty odour of dead rose-leaves, and music-books with melodies the echoes of which are fainter even than the mimic thunders of the "Battle of Prague." Old-fashioned embroidery (which that little girl eyes so curiously), "antique" lace, scraps of old brocade, and peacocks' feathers—fit emblems of cast-off vanities—are not wanted; nor the favourite little old mirror, which so long pictured Vanity to itself. Then there is another class of objects, witnessing to another period of life—stuffed birds, sea-shells, a bowl of large egg-shells, shears of Oriental pattern, which seem to intimate that grandpapa (when he resembled the youthful portrait on the wall) was a traveller, perhaps a naval captain of the heroic Nelsonian times. Lastly, there is the concealed pile of guineas, sad testimony to the miserly propensities of age. The seventeenth or early eighteenth century carved cabinet is an appropriate receptacle for such "treasures." Why, however, are these saucy girls diving so irreverently into the secrets of their venerable ancestor? The "treasures" are not bequeathed yet, or, we suppose, the artist would have painted the girls in mourning. No; grandmother has forgotten the key of her treasure-house, and these undutiful children have taken advantage of her growing forgetfulness to laugh at her. Ah! well; their turn will come before long. Relics of the past are but germs of the future; for there is nothing new under the sun. Some of the prettiest points in their costumes are but grandmamma's fashions revived, and two generations hence be sure that they will reappear as the newest modes of that day.

"GRANDMOTHER'S TREASURES." BY W. HOLYOAKE.

SCENE FROM "ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA," AT DRURY-LANE THEATRE.

Our Illustration this week leads us back to the great Shakspearean revival at Drury Lane—a revival which does equal credit to the adapter, the scenic artist, and the manager. We trust that their efforts have been appreciated by the public. Perhaps there is no man on the boards so fitted to be the representative of Antony as Mr. Anderson, whose person is cast in the very mould of the noble and voluptuous Roman, and whose training enables him to realise the "high Roman fashion" of the antique hero, such as the traditions of the stage have exemplified for the benefit of the modern artist. The representative of the Egyptian coquette, though a clever performer, has not those advantages of personal appearance and of special genius for the part that we have seen displayed in Miss Glyn's personations of Cleopatra, whether at the reading-desk or on the stage. The other characters are, on the whole, respectably enacted. One small part in particular we have already noted—that of Eros, by Mr. Howard Russell, to whom the scene of the death of Antony is indebted for most of its impressiveness. To this scene our Illustration is devoted, and anything more dramatic, heroic, and pathetic cannot be conceived. Our mute Engraving will recall the eloquent rendering by the two competent artists engaged in the tragic action, and remind the spectator of the palmy days of the legitimate drama.

MUSIC.

Since our last week's notice of M. Rivière's promenade concert, the programmes have offered several specialties. On Monday M. Brindis de Salas, a violinist from the Paris Conservatoire, made his first appearance here, and was well received and encored in a brilliant solo. Middle Secretain repeated her skillful performance of her fantasia on themes from Auber's "La Fille du Regiment;" M. Rivière's arrangement of subjects from Lecoq's "La Fille de Madame Angot" for orchestra, chorus, and military band, was given for the second time, and a new overture—to the opera "Stella Monti," by Herr Aloys Kettenuß—was performed for the first time. On Tuesday, Misses Edith Wynne and Helen D'Alton, Mr. E. Lloyd and Signor Caravoglia contributed to the vocal performances, and M. Sainton played his own brilliant Fantasia on Scotch airs. Wednesday was a "classical night," Thursday was a second "Scotch ballad night," on Friday (yesterday) Rossini's "Stabat Mater" was to be given, and to-night (Saturday) Middle Carlotto Patti is to make her first appearance. Among the novelties in preparation is a grand Welsh Festival, at which national ballads and songs will be sung by eminent Welsh vocalists.

We have already given the details of the arrangements for the Bristol Festival, which is to commence on Oct. 21. That which is to follow, at Glasgow, will open, on Nov. 4, with an evening performance of Mendelssohn's "Elijah." On the following (Wednesday) morning there will be a miscellaneous concert, and in the evening Sir Michael Costa's "Eli" will be given. On Thursday evening there will be a second miscellaneous concert; and on Friday evening two new works will be brought out—Mr. Henry Smart's sacred cantata, "Jacob," and Mr. H. A. Lambeth's setting of the Eighty-fourth Psalm. The festival will conclude, on Saturday afternoon, with "The Messiah." The solo vocalists engaged are Misses Titians and Carola, Misses Edith Wynne and Enriquez, Mesdames Trebelli-Bettini and Patey, Mr. Vernon Rigby and Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Santley and Mr. Lewis Thomas. The band will consist of between sixty and seventy performers, mostly selected from the best London instrumentalists; and the choruses will be sung by about 400 members of the Glasgow Choral Union. Mr. Best, of the Royal Albert Hall, London, and St. George's Hall, Liverpool, will preside at the organ; and Sir Michael Costa will conduct, in alternation with Mr. H. A. Lambeth, a local professor of high repute. The profits of the festival will be devoted to the funds of the new Glasgow Western Infirmary, on Donald's Hill.

To-day (Saturday) the eighteenth series of autumn and winter concerts commences at the Crystal Palace with a programme of great interest and variety. Besides Spontini's overture to his little-known opera, "Nurmahal," and Mendelssohn's well-known (but never to be too well-known) "Scotch" symphony, a festival overture, by Dr. Julius Rietz (the excellent capellmeister of Dresden), will be performed for the first time, as will a pianoforte concerto of Bach by Herr Pauer.

M. Gounod's choral concerts at St. James's Hall are to be resumed in February, and will, we understand, include a performance of his incidental music to the drama of "Jeanne d'Arc," written for the Paris Gaité. The same eminent composer is still at work on what will probably prove to be his most important sacred composition, the oratorio of "The Redemption," the production of which will be looked forward to with much interest.

THEATRES.

LYCEUM.

Pursuant to the evident intention of the indefatigable management of this theatre, Mr. H. Irving appeared on Saturday to test his qualifications for the higher drama by exhibiting himself in the difficult rôle of Richelieu, in Lord Lytton's celebrated drama. Mr. Irving has already established himself as a master spirit in romantic drama, and won golden opinions from an enthusiastic section of the public, which has learned to believe in him as "the coming man." Mr. Irving's antecedents are, however, not in favour of his ability to sustain the sterner characters of history with satisfaction to the critical minds accustomed to weigh the merits of Mr. Macready's and Mr. Phelps's interpretation of such characters. His style is the familiar one of the drawing-room play; nor do we believe that the modesty of the actor would prompt him to more difficult attempts. Other interests than his own, however, have placed him in an equivocal position, and it is his duty to maintain the post to which he has been deputed. Mr. Irving's Richelieu is throughout a judicious performance, and some of the minute points made by him in the earlier scenes were good, and in due measure effective. As the action proceeded new elements were developed, and new powers required from the actor. These we never imagined that Mr. Irving possessed, and we were therefore the more surprised at the positive excellence that he manifested. He played the part much better than we might have expected, and supplied by mental ingenuity the defects of his physique. Up to the end of the third act he was very good, and judiciously included in the text more than one passage usually omitted, which he delivered with skill and effect. The last two acts transcended his strength and the resources of the specific amount of art at his disposal. De Mauprat was sustained by Mr. J. B. Howard, an actor of considerable promise, but whose friends in the auditorium did much to injure their favourite and the general performance. Their riotous interruption of the general harmony, both on and off the stage, deserves the most thorough condemnation, and particularly perilled the opening scene of the second act. Mr. Howard certainly made a decided impression in the first, but afterwards his acting fell off, and probably through the flutter naturally consequent on the unseemly demonstration of which we have complained. Miss Isabel Bateman has much to learn and much artistic force to acquire before she can be equal to the part of Julie de Mortemar. But the laudable ambition she displayed more than atones for her natural deficiency, and will yet help her to a better interpretation of the important rôle. The new scenery, by Messrs. Craven and Cuthbert, is in the highest style of pictorial art as applied to stage purposes; and the costumes are as historically accurate as they are artistically beautiful. The entire representation was enthusiastically received.

OPERA COMIQUE.

On Wednesday Madame Ristori began a four-weeks' engagement with the historic drama of "Marie Antoinette." She was supported by the same company as recently at Drury Lane; and they acted with the same minute attention to details as on the former occasion. The costumes are all of the costliest description, and the dramatic groupings managed with extreme skill. The drama, however, is one of conversation rather than of action, the incidents of the French Revolution being reserved for the close of the acts, when the curtain falls on a striking tableau. On the whole, the drama is effective; but it is too long, much too long. Madame Ristori was received with a cordial welcome by a select and fashionable audience, and we trust that her engagement will prove successful.

ALEXANDRA.

The Royal Alexandra theatre and opera house at Camlen Town reopened on Monday. Though nearly new, it has been already partially reconstructed. It is now under the direction of Madame St. Clair. The performance commenced with "The Happiest Day of my Life," and Mr. Danvers supported the part of Mr. Gilman with his accustomed humour. An original comic-opera followed, entitled "The Magic Pearl." The music is by Mr. T. Thorpe Pede, evidently a student of the works of Balfe and Wallace, and the libretto is written by C. Fitzball. The leading parts were filled by Mr. J. W. Turner and Miss Alice Barth, and both were eminently successful. The performances concluded with a ballet, entitled "Roses d'Amour" by Paul Valentine, with music by W. Corri.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The First October meeting was one of the most enjoyable we ever spent on the famous heath. The weather was perfect, so warm, indeed, that it was difficult to believe that we were not "behind the Ditch," watching the July or Chesterfield Stakes: there was a small attendance, which is so much pleasanter than the crowding on a Two Thousand or Cesarewitch day; and the sport, if not particularly exciting, was very fair. The Grand Duke Michael Stakes was, perhaps, the most interesting event of the whole week, as it afforded Doncaster an opportunity of wiping out his defeat by Flageolet in the Grand Prix de Paris. On paper it did not appear feasible that Doncaster could give away 7 lb., yet, as Peck said that the horse had never been so well in his life, while Jennings expressed doubts if Flageolet retained his Goodwood form, Mr. Morry's colt was made a strong favourite. Seldom has a Derby winner come to such terrible grief, for a quarter of a mile from home Doncaster was rolling all over the course, and though Andrew stuck gamely to Flageolet for some distance further, he, as usual, died away to nothing on the hill, and the Frenchman came in alone. Twenty-one came to the post for the Great Eastern Railway Handicap, for which Roquefort (8 st. 9 lb.) was greatly fancied, in spite of his somewhat poor display at Doncaster. He never showed prominently, however, at any part of the race, a splendid finish between Day Dream (6 st. 2 lb.) and Sister to Eltham (6 st. 2 lb.) resulting in the head victory of the latter, while Delay (6 st. 7 lb.) was only a neck behind the second. A capital field of two-year-olds came out for the Hopeful Stakes, and the result established Couronne de Fer's claim to be considered the best youngster of the season, now that Ecossais is under suspicion. He won very cleverly indeed, though he carried the full penalty, the distance was just under half a mile, and he stumbled at a critical part of the race. Still, whatever he may do in the Derby, we cannot fancy his chance for the Middle Park Plate, as he has incurred the extreme penalty, and he is not the sort of horse we should select to break the spell which has hung over animals like Achievement, Formosa, Lady Elizabeth, Sunshine, and Cantiniere.

Kaiser won the St. Leger very easily; still the remembrance of Cremorne's defeat in this event last year made the book-makers field strongly, and, even after the race, some of Kaiser's persistent enemies cavilled at the performance, and said that he pulled up very tired. Wild Myrtle had not much difficulty in winning a Triennial A. F. from three moderate opponents. There was, however, some talk of an objection to her, on the ground that Chaloner had been guilty of foul riding. Had this been proved, it would doubtless have gone hard with him, as he was reprimanded for this serious offence at Doncaster. On Thursday, Eve, in receipt of 7 lb., beat Mr. Winkle cleverly, thereby confirming her Goodwood form, and making her Doncaster defeat by Jesuit even more inexplicable than before. George Frederick won both his engagements in good style, and it is reported that Mr. Cartwright has declined £3000 for him. This is very difficult to believe, for though he is certainly better looking than Albert Victor, and is by no means fit yet, still he has not defeated even a single second-rate performer. The Queen's Plate secured an unusually good entry, and the finish between Eole II. and Shannon was a great treat, both Fordham and Chaloner riding in their best form. Lilian was half a length behind Shannon, and this running appears to dispose of her chance for the Cesarewitch, though it must not be forgotten that the pace in the early part of the race was too slow to bring out her fine staying powers. A field of sixteen contested the October Handicap on Friday, which was won very easily by Tichborne (6 st. 3 lb.), who was beautifully ridden by Morbey, one of the best light-weight jockeys of the day. His success at once drew attention to the great chance possessed by Oxford Mixture in the Cesarewitch, as she is at least 14 lb. superior to her stable companion.

In the course of the First October Meeting, Lord Coventry's motion—"That, on and after Jan. 1, 1874, no horse of the age of three years old and upwards shall run in any race which is of a shorter distance than one mile"—was brought before the Jockey Club. As we remarked some weeks ago, it was far too sweeping a measure to have any chance of success; and, with the exception of Lord Calthorpe, not one single member supported it, and it was lost by a majority of twenty.

The gold medal given at the autumn meeting of the Aberdeen Golf Club was won by Mr. Charles Anderson, who also won Prince Leopold's Cup.

On Monday evening last an interesting swimming-match took place between T. Morris and W. H. Beckwith, a son of the ex-champion. The distance was twelve lengths of the Lambeth bath (480 yards), and, after an exciting race for half the distance, Morris drew away and won by thirteen yards, in 7 min. 17 sec., the fastest time on record.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

Yesterday week was occupied with the evidence of two witnesses—one of the Carabiniers and the regimental tailor, both of whom gave evidence as to their personal recognition of the defendant, and also of his knowledge of matters which had occurred in the regiment or which concerned Roger. The first witness, in cross-examination, stated that Roger's hair was darker than the defendant's now is, and both the witnesses recognised some resemblance in the Chilli daguerreotype of Roger, both in figure and features, which so many of the defendant's witnesses have failed to perceive. The first witness stated that the voice of the defendant is rougher than that of Roger, and disavowed a passage in his affidavit drawn by Baigent which the Court said was to a different effect, and on which they made some observations. The witness spoke to the defendant's knowledge of men in the regiment and of incidents which had happened to Roger. In cross-examination it appeared that he did not know if the defendant had not already seen or heard of the men; and, as to the chief incident mentioned, it appeared that it had previously been mentioned in a correspondence with Baigent, who saw him before the interview. The military tailor spoke as to the defendant's knowledge of the clothes ordered by Roger within the two years before he left England. In cross-examination, it appeared that the defendant had Roger's old servant, Carter, and also had some of Roger's old clothes which had been left behind, and that his attorney had previously got the tailor to bring up his ledger containing the dates of Roger's orders, although he was positive Mr. Holmes did not look at it. The cross-examination of this witness was not concluded, and the defendant's counsel protested against the adjournment; but it appeared that they had had him in town above a week before producing him as a witness.

When Mr. Hawkins had finished, on Monday, his cross-examination of Roger's military tailor, Mr. Greenwood, the Court reverted for a time to Carabinier evidence. James Hobson deposed to having once ridden across Phoenix Park with Roger on a review day. The defendant, he swore, was the same person. Ellen Ella, who had been servant to Adjutant Bickerstaffe at Portobello, remembered Roger coming into her kitchen for hot water when his servant was out; often with his arms bare and with not a trace of tattooing upon them. After her an Orton witness was produced, Thomas Trivett, who detailed a very diverse experience he had had at the Victorian gold-diggings between 1852 and 1858. One of his strange adventures happened at Avoca in 1856, where an anonymous person he called a "settler" employed him to kill a number of sheep. Arthur Orton was in the "settler's" service, and helped him with some of the sheep. They spent many nights by the camp fire together yarning. Arthur giving him an account of Wapping Old Stairs, which so interested him that immediately on his arrival in England he performed precisely the same pilgrimage as the defendant had done to the home of Arthur's childhood. Mr. Hawkins cited against this witness statements which he was alleged to have made to various persons in Leicester—that he could not swear one way or the other, that the hair was similar, &c. Mr. Trivett was ready now to swear that the defendant was not the Arthur Orton whom he had met in Avoca. Robert Gardner, butcher, Richmond, spoke to a rather prolonged acquaintance with Arthur Orton. Their first meeting was at Forest Creek, where Arthur was loafing about, and "not thought to be after much good." Saw him daily for three months, but had never anything to say to him, unless when they joined in general conversations. Next time they met at Brooking, about sixty miles from Wagga-Wagga, whither Orton was travelling. Witness had also known Castro while in the service of Higgins at Wagga-Wagga. Their appearance as described by him was a perfect contrast, Castro being a dreamy-looking man, and Orton a raw-boned man, with a "straggling fox-coloured beard."

Mixed evidence was given on Tuesday—Australian, Wapping, and Carabinier witnesses preponderating. Mr. Hawkins, in his cross-examination of Gardner, ascertained that the witness had not seen defendant till three weeks ago, and that the Orton seen near Wagga-Wagga had no scar on his face nor rings in his ears. Daniel Cotton, general dealer at Wapping, formerly seaman on board an American cruiser in the Pacific, deposed to having met Arthur Orton and spent a night boozing with him at Santiago, in a small whaling bay three or four days' sail south of San Francisco. Thomas Newman, a watchman at the Metropolitan Meat Market, remembered Arthur from having once gone with him on board a ship to feed tigers with shins of beef. Then came two witnesses who had known Roger Tichborne—one in Canterbury, the other at Cahir, in Ireland—who positively identified the defendant.

Several witnesses were called in the course of Wednesday. Ellen Pearce, sister of Mrs. Woodman, who was examined on the previous day, and who had known Roger Tichborne whilst in the Carabiniers, recognised the defendant as he. William Hewitt, formerly in the service of Mrs. Hopkinson, mother-in-law of Mr. Henry Seymour, and who had been valet to Roger, identified the defendant chiefly by his eyes, eyebrows, and forehead. Daniel Collins, now a member of the metropolitan police, remembered the Carabiniers being drawn up at Canterbury five or six times in the year 1852, waiting for their officer to march them off to barracks after mass. John Palmer, who was called to speak to his knowledge of Arthur Orton when the witness was a boy, was not cross-examined. Captain E. B. Cunliffe, formerly in the Carabiniers, expressed his opinion that the defendant was Roger Tichborne, although he would not pledge his oath to it. Mary Fitzpatrick, who had lived with Sir James Tichborne as cook, recognised the defendant by the formation of his head, as well as by his voice. During the day the proceedings were for a short time suspended on account of the indisposition of a juror.

The first witness called on Thursday was Thomas Muston, a coachman at Brighton, who went into the service of Sir E. Doughty at Upton in 1841 or 1842, when he was twelve years of age. He was Roger Tichborne's groom and valet in Ireland, and assisted to dress and undress him. Had seen his arm bare several times and never observed any tattoo-marks. He believed that the defendant and Roger were the same person. Lieutenant-Colonel Norbury, who was examined at the former trial, believed the defendant to be the Roger Tichborne whom he knew in the Carabiniers. He, also, had seen Roger's arms bare, but did not remember seeing any tattoo marks. In reply to Mr. Serjeant Parry, the witness said the examination, cross-examination, and re-examination of the defendant at the last trial raised a doubt in his mind whether he was not mistaken in his identity of the defendant. That doubt still existed, but it was not so strong as before.

A communication from Lord Hatherley states that in Lord Eldon's time the salary of the Lord Chancellor, including bankruptcy fees, exceeded £20,000 a year. At a much more recent date it was as high as £14,000. Lord Hatherley says:—"The last reduction was made by Lord Truro, and I had the pleasure, as Solicitor-General, of introducing the bill which reduced the salary from £14,000 to its present amount of £10,000—namely, £6000 as Lord Chancellor and £4000 as Speaker of the House of Lords."

The appointment of Mr. Henry James, Q.C., as Solicitor-General has been officially notified in the Gazette.

The Home Secretary has appointed Mr. Arthur Collins, of the Western Circuit, to be Recorder of Poole.

There was an adjourned sitting of the Court of Bankruptcy, on Tuesday, in the matter of Bowles Brothers. Pending an arrangement which Mr. Stevens, a trustee of the American estates, is negotiating, in order to make some proposal to the creditors, the sitting was again adjourned to Dec. 23.

The Middlesex September adjourned sessions began on Monday. The calendar contains the names of eighty-three prisoners. On Wednesday Sophia Barrett was convicted of stealing two metal pots. There were to her disadvantage several former convictions for the manufacture of counterfeit coin, and she was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

O'Neill and Valvin, the two dishonest turfites who forged a cheque for £400 in the name of Captain Candy, and cashed it by means of a commissionaire, were sentenced at the Central Criminal Court to ten years' penal servitude.

Thomas W. Haynes, under cashier to Messrs. Linklater and Co., solicitors, Walbrook, was charged at the Mansion House, on Tuesday, with embezzlement. He ultimately pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

At Guildhall, on Tuesday, Mr. Fiske was summoned for publishing in the Hornet a series of libels on Mr. Clement Scott. The prosecutor gave evidence, and was cross-examined by Mr. George Lewis at great length with respect to the particulars of the alleged libels, and the further hearing was adjourned for a week.

William Ayres, Thomas Low, and Walter Price have appeared before Mr. Alderman Lusk on various charges of theft and unlawful possession. Ayres, who was a builder's foreman, had been found by three detectives carrying off lead and white paint belonging to his master. He had at the same time in his possession a quantity of indiarubber goods, taken from a warehouse in Victoria-buildings, of which Price and his wife had been in charge. After his arrest Price made a confession, implicating Low, and both these men are remanded for further inquiry. Ayres, who appeared to have no connection with this theft, was condemned to three weeks' imprisonment for illegal possession of the lead.

The chairman and ex-manager of the Jersey Joint-Stock Bank have been committed for trial at the November sessions for issuing false reports of the state of the bank, and inducing people to purchase shares by fictitious representations. Bail was taken in £500 each.

William Shean was sentenced to one month's imprisonment, with hard labour, at Bow-street, last Saturday, for kissing the wife of a publican whilst she was standing at her door.—John Adams Matthews, a clerk in charge of the Seething-lane branch of the General Post Office, was charged with having embezzled two sums of £10 and £1, paid to him by depositors in the Post Office Savings Bank, and committed for trial.

Mr. Knox concluded at Marlborough-street, on Saturday, a painful inquiry into a charge of stealing articles of jewellery preferred against the wife of Major Fitzgerald by Messrs. Collingwood. The evidence for the prosecution tended to prove that the lady had committed various larcenies both in England and during her residence in India; while the testimony adduced for the defence went to show that she was suffering from mental hallucinations. As the law did not permit him to decide the plea of insanity, the magistrate committed the prisoner for trial.—A long investigation took place before Mr. Newton, on Wednesday, in reference to the Free Dormitory Association, in connection with which Frederick Cox stands charged with obtaining various sums fraudulently. Suspicion has hung over the place for eighteen months, and it was stated on Wednesday by the prosecuting counsel that it was intended to prove that the prisoner had obtained £5000 from the public in support of his dormitory and kindred institutions. Prisoner was remanded under heavy bail.

The number of summonses taken out at Westminster against parents for neglecting to send their children to school has been so numerous of late as to interfere with the ordinary business of the Court. On one day last week there were sixty-seven, and the average is stated to be about twenty a day.—Mrs. Elizabeth Reeves was fined at this court £2 for keeping two dogs without a license. In a similar charge against Mr. Thomas Kenny, the only witness was an informer, and the summons was dismissed.

Mr. James Pain, pyrotechnist, of Heygate-street, Walworth, was fined £20 and costs, at Southwark, on Saturday, for sending packages containing fireworks to the Great Northern depot at Blackfriars without declaring the contents of the packages.

—Joseph White, described as a powerful young fellow, aged twenty-two, was committed for trial on a charge of gouting Mr. F. G. Fleury, at half-past eleven o'clock at night, in High-street, Borough.

At Lambeth, a man named Roberts was accused of the systematic robbery of lodging-houses. According to the evidence adduced, the prisoner had called at various houses pretending to seek apartments for a young clergyman, and availed himself of the opportunity to carry off some articles of value. Mr. Chance committed him for trial.

William Allen and Thomas Kelly, costermongers, charged at Worship-street, on Monday, with wantonly assaulting two tradesmen who were conversing together in the street, in Kingland, were sentenced to fourteen days' imprisonment, without the option of a fine.

Another batch of milkmen were convicted, at Lambeth, yesterday week, of selling milk mixed with water. George Bailey, of New Church-road, was fined £5; Alfred Searle, of New Church-road, £3; George Bradford, of Clifton-road, £3; Alfred Ayers, of Old Kent-road, 1s.; and Edward Green, of Albany-road, £3, the costs being added in each case. It was stated by Mr. Marsden, the vestry clerk, that since the imposition by this Court of heavy penalties for this offence there had been a great improvement in the milk sold in Camberwell.—Edward Batley, of the Sovereign Coal Company, was summoned at Marlborough-street, on Monday, for selling inferior coal to that which had been ordered. The magistrate remarked, after hearing the evidence, that the defendant had advertised good coal at the price paid, and had supplied mere rubbish. He intimated an intention to send the case for trial. Three summonses were granted at the Clerkenwell and Hammersmith Police Courts, on Tuesday, against coal-dealers, whose "best Wallsea 1" had not proved satisfactory to purchasers. One of the applicants, himself an analyst, had found from 1½ to 9 per cent of white ash where there should have been less than 3 per cent.—Mr. William Jeacocke, a salesman in the Metropolitan Meat Market was fined £10 at Guildhall, yesterday week, for having a pig on his premises in such a state of disease as to be unfit for human food.—Thomas Marshall, fishmonger, charged at the Brentford Sessions with exposing 101 mackerel for sale in an unfit state for human food, was fined forty shillings.

John Selby, a colliery proprietor at Dark Hill, near Cleford, Dean Forest, was on Tuesday fined £60 for having violated three of the general rules of the Miners' Regulation Act. The framing of defendant's mine, it was stated, could be pulled down by a couple of men, and some of the requisite fittings were entirely wanting.

At the Liverpool Police Court, on Tuesday, a lad named Friesan, eleven years of age, was charged with having cut his younger brother in a horrible manner with a knife. It was stated that only a few weeks ago he had attempted to hang his little sister, and nearly caused her death.

Two sales of goods belonging to Nonconformists, distrained for non-payment of a denominational school rate, took place at Sheffield on Tuesday.

Thomas Oakley Potter, landlord of the Admiral Nelson Inn, Leicester, was, on Monday, fined £20 and costs, or six months' imprisonment, for permitting betting in his house.

Thomas Peacock, an assistant signalman at the Stockton station of the North-Eastern Railway, was brought up before the magistrates at Stockton, on Monday, and fined £5 and 8s. 6d. costs, or two months' imprisonment, for being found drunk on a heap of bricks when he should have been on duty.

Early on Saturday morning last a daring robbery was committed at the shop of Mr. William Coltman, watchmaker and jeweller, Bradford-road, Dewsbury. The thieves having inserted a jemmy or some other instrument into the bottom of one of the shutters, they prized it open and then broke the glass of the window, which fell with a crash and alarmed the inmates of the house. The thieves, however, managed to get clear away with about £70 worth of booty, which mostly comprised watches and gold and silver chains. Prior to commencing their operations on the shutters they had wedged the door tight, so that the inmates could not get out.

Rogues and vagabonds will do well to note that a new Act, the provisions of which are specially applicable to them, has come into operation. The Vagrant Act of 1863 is repealed, and the new statute is to be construed as one with the 5th George IV., c. 83, for the punishment of idle and disorderly persons and rogues and vagabonds in England. The law is now extended to gaming with coins, cards, tokens, or other articles, in any street, road, or public highway, and the offender to be deemed a rogue and vagabond within the recited Act, and may be imprisoned under that Act, or, in lieu of such punishment, be fined for a first offence a sum not exceeding 40s., and for a subsequent offence not exceeding £5. Persons gambling in the streets at "pitch and toss" are to be deemed rogues and vagabonds.

DISASTERS.

Lord Denbigh was thrown from his horse in the hunting-field last week. He is progressing favourably towards recovery.

At Lydney, in Gloucestershire, a man has been killed and two others much hurt by the explosion of a rocket.

A gentleman, said to be seventy-nine years of age, fell over the cliffs at Eastbourne on Wednesday. Although terribly injured, some hopes are entertained of his recovery.

A workman in the employ of Messrs. Broadwood and Co. was assisting at the Foreign Office, on Saturday afternoon, in the removal of a pianoforte, when he fell over the baluster from the top to the bottom of the grand staircase, and was killed.

Hugh Williams, a farmer, who some time ago bought the wreck of the Royal Charter, lying on the coast of Anglesea, went down yesterday week, in a diving suit, with some gunpowder for the purpose of blasting. The powder exploded prematurely, and when brought up Williams was dead.

Joseph Gilchrist was killed, yesterday week, at the locomotive works of the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company at Bury, by the fall of a heavy crane, which snapped under the strain of a large piece of hot iron that was being forged at a steam-hammer.

An inquest was held, on Tuesday afternoon, on the remains of Richard Norman, a night watchman at the Alexandra Palace, which were recently discovered among the ruins of that building. Evidence was given that the remains were found near the spot where the deceased was last seen alive, and a verdict was returned that he met his death by suffocation.

An explosion occurred on board the steamer Broomhaugh, of Newcastle, coal-laden, for Port Said. Three seamen were blown off the deck and never seen again; one was killed on the spot, and several were so much injured that they had to be landed at Gibraltar. The vessel herself sustained serious damage. Bad ventilation is said to have caused the catastrophe.

A shaft at the Nunnery Colliery, near Sheffield, caught fire, and for a time exposed the lives of 200 miners to considerable danger. Ultimately they were all rescued by another shaft.—An explosion occurred, on Wednesday, in the Furnace Main Colliery, about three miles from Barnsley, which resulted in five men being burnt, two very severely.

Alexander Clifford, aged fourteen, the son of Mr. Henry Clifford, Lansdowne-place, Blackheath, was one of the candidates for the open scholarship at Wellington College, and arrived at the college on Tuesday week. In the evening the matron took him to his room. The gas was then burning, but the boy said he knew how to turn it off. The next morning the room was found to be full of gas, and he was dead.

A sad accident occurred last week in Bedfordshire. Miss Gertrude Charlotte, aged nine, second daughter of Mr. Thomas Francis Fremantle, J.P., of the Old House, Swanbourne, near Winslow, was riding a pony with her father and sister at Littlecote, and while, as is supposed, she was adjusting her riding habit, she overbalanced herself and fell, and, her dress having caught in the saddle, she was dragged, partly by the side of the pony (which galloped on at full speed) and partly under its hoofs, a distance of several hundred yards. Death resulted almost immediately.

There have been several railway accidents, some of them fatal, during the past week. Mr. J. Pickersgill Cunliffe, who was knocked down and injured by a train at Caterham junction, is going on favourably. Mr. Cunliffe remains at Guy's Hospital.—Mr. Richard Berry, cashier to a Preston firm, was killed last week while attempting to get out of a Scotch express as it was entering Euston station. An inquest was held on Tuesday. The jury accompanied their verdict of "Accidental death" with a declaration that the accident would not have occurred if continuous footboards had been provided.—There were four railway accidents yesterday week. At Wetheral, about five miles from Carlisle, a mineral and a cattle train came into collision on the River Eden viaduct, which stands one hundred feet above the road. Some of the waggons were dashed against the parapet with such force as to knock a hole in it, through which they fell into the river below. A driver, a fireman, and three men in charge of cattle were seriously hurt. About the same time a passenger-train from Stockton to Harrogate ran into a goods-train at Arthington and injured twenty passengers. Near Retford, a Manchester and Sheffield cattle-train dashed into a Great Northern coal-train, throwing the greater part of it off the line. The fourth mishap was caused by a Great Western express killing a man who tried to cross the line in front of it as it was entering Oxford station.—A serious collision occurred near Crewe on Saturday morning. The Holyhead mail, whilst kept standing on the bridge at Mill-street, was run into by a heavy goods-train from Chester, and a number of carriages were smashed. Many persons were injured, but none fatally.—A fatal accident occurred on the South Coast Railway to John Emery, a goods guard in the employ of the Brighton railway. On Sunday night he arrived at Amberley with a goods-train. As some trucks were being shunted he fell on the line, and the train went over him. He died shortly afterwards.—On Sunday morning Henry Higgs, a labourer, was knocked down by an engine, near Greentield level crossing, and killed. The deceased was rather deaf and short-sighted. He was forty years of age.—At the Railway Hotel, Weston-super-Mare, on Saturday, an inquiry was concluded respecting the death of Mrs. Barrett, aged sixty-seven, of Clifton. It was deposed that on the 18th ult. the deceased was alighting from a carriage at the Yatton station, on the Bristol and Exeter Railway, when she slipped and seriously injured herself. She died in consequence. The evidence as to whether the train had stopped was conflicting, but the jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death."—An inquest was held at the West Kent General Hospital, Maidstone, on Monday, on the body of Edward Hayes, a young man, from 2, Gray's-inn-road, London, employed as a hop-picker, who was run over by a train, at the East Farleigh station on the South-Eastern Railway, on Saturday afternoon, and killed. From the evidence it appeared that a very excited mob of hop-pickers were awaiting their departure by the train, and in the rush to secure seats before the train had stopped the unfortunate young man was pushed beneath the train.—On Tuesday morning the Scotch express (limited mail), from London to Glasgow, came into collision, near Motherwell, with several empty waggons which were being shunted. The stoker was killed, and several of the passengers were hurt.—The morning mails on the Great Western Railway were delayed for three hours, on Tuesday morning, by a collision which occurred at a small station between Reading and Didcot. A fish-train came into collision with a luggage-train, disabling an engine and interrupting the traffic. Further, the fish lost their market.—The Rev. R. M. Frost, who was seriously injured while attempting to enter a train in motion, at Stafford, has died from the injuries he received.—Captain Tyler's report on the Wigan accident has been issued by the Board of Trade. It minutely describes the scene of the catastrophe, summarises the evidence taken at the inquest, and then sets forth the general conclusions of the inspector. These, as anticipated a short time ago, set up alternative theories of the points having been moved during the passage of the train over them, and of the near wheel of carriage No. 123 having slipped and left the main line. Captain Tyler decidedly prefers the latter explanation, and deduces as a moral from it the necessity of a limit being placed on speed in passing such dangerous places as Wigan station.

The Sheffield Town Council is proposing to spend £2,000,000 on street improvements.

There was a review yesterday week, on Portsdown Hills, of the troops in the Portsmouth and Gosport garrison, and a sham fight, in the presence of the Duke of Cambridge.

A Welsh mining company have completed a lease of the extensive coal-field near Trant, Midlothian, owned by Sir George Suttie, Bart. Several pits that have been closed for years are to be opened up, and 1000 men will soon be employed.

The engineers' strike at Sheffield, which has lasted twelve weeks, was closed on Monday by the acceptance by the men of the offered increase of 2s. per week, with a compromise on the question of overtime.

The ladies' council of the Yorkshire Board of Education has arranged for a series of lectures to schoolmistresses on the rudiments of anatomy and physiology. The lectures are to be delivered by Dr. Eddison, Mr. Nunneley, and Mr. Wright, and are to be continued during the ensuing winters.

A sham fight, under the superintendence of General Sir J. Hope Grant, took place on Hankley-common on Wednesday. The men were divided into two sections—viz., the eastern and western force; the former under the command of Major-General J. W. S. Smith, the latter under that of Major-General Parke.

In the barrack square of the West Kent Light Infantry Militia, on Wednesday, Captain Cragg presented to Sergeant-Major Shaw a magnificent silver salver and a purse containing 100 guineas, subscribed by the officers of the regiment, past and present, in recognition of nearly twenty years' faithful service.

On Wednesday the forty-first annual ploughing-match of the South Bucks Association was held at Windsor upon the farm of Mr. E. Aldridge. Upwards of sixty teams entered into competition. The first prize, the Prince Consort's silver cup, value 20 gs., given by her Majesty to farmers for the growth of root crops generally, was won by Mr. John Nash, of Langley.

Two attempts were made in Kent, on Wednesday, to bring off a prize fight. The police came up with the parties first at Dartford; they then dispersed, and were followed to Erith. There the ring had been formed when the officers arrived, and they put an end to further proceedings by arresting one of the intending combatants.

Lord Houghton presided at the annual meeting of the Social Science Congress, which began its sittings on Wednesday at Norwich. In his inaugural address, given in St. Andrew's Hall, his Lordship referred to the consolidation of the law courts, international arbitration, extradition of criminals, sanitary legislation, the Licensing Act, poor-law reform, elementary and university education, competitive examinations, co-operation in trade and in agriculture, socialism, communism, and property in land; and finished with a tribute to the memories of Sir John Bowring and Mr. Mill, and with an expression of esteem and friendship for Miss Martineau. A vote of thanks to his Lordship was passed at the close of his address. The departments consist of four—1, jurisprudence and amendment of the law, divided into two sections, one for the consideration of international and municipal law and the other for the discussion of questions relating to the repression of crime; 2, education; 3, health; 4, economy and trade.

A MICHAELMAS GOOSE FAIR.

THE BRADFORD MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

THE DANISH CABLE LANDING-PLACE, NEAR CALAIS.

MOVABLE SCHOOLS FOR THE LIVERPOOL SCHOOL BOARD.

NEW METHOD OF PASTURE IRRIGATION.

HOP-GROWING ON THE VINEYARD PRINCIPLE.

HOWARDS' PATENT.
Wood, Tapestry can be applied to all even surfaces, being an adaptation of real wood, in lieu of painting or paperhanging, being beautiful in effect and exceedingly durable.
HOWARD AND SONS,
Decorators,
25, 26, and 27, Berners Street, London, W.; and Midland Buildings, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

A GOOD BLACK SILK for £3 10s. the Dress of 14 yards (Dress of 14 yards).
PETER ROBINSON, 256, Regent-street, W.
For a Pattern direct to Regent-street, as above.

SUPERIOR BLACK SILKS at
PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE.
Peter Robinson has now on Sale
some very rich Black Silks purchased in Lyons
very advantageously.

Excellent Black Gros Grains at 2s. 11d. to 5s. 9d. per yard,
and Glaces or 2s. to 5s. the Dress.
And Superior and most on at 2s. to 12s. 6d. per yard, during quality or 2s. to 5s. the Dress.
Also Shades in Greys, Slates, Mauves, Whites, &c., equally cheap.
"If a Whole Piece is taken, a further reduction will be made."
Address for Patterns as above—256, Regent-street, London.

MOURNING FOR FAMILIES,
IN CORRECT TASTE,
can be purchased at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street, at a great saving in price.

SKIRTS (in New)
Mourning Fabrics, 4s. to 8s.
Trimmed crapes.

SUPERIOR CRAPE—A Special Quality
that will not Spot with Rain.
PETER ROBINSON,
Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street.

BLACK SILK SKIRTS and COSTUMES,
at PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE.
Elegant Silk Costumes, just from Paris.

Skirt and Polonaise en suite, trimmed with crapes or otherwise,
at moderate prices.
Note the address—256, Regent-street, W.

BLACK DRESSES, at 12s. 9d., 15s. 6d.,
and 18s. 6d.,
the materials new and useful;
Black Dresses, the Skirts made up,
at 1 guinea;
Black Silk Dresses, the Skirts made up,
at 5s. and upwards.

at PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street.

FRENCH SILKS and VELVETS UNDER
VALUE.—GASK and GASK are now showing Lyons striped Velvets, new colours, 11s. 6d. per yard; rich all-silk French Dress Silks, all colours, 5s. 6d.; Black Lyons Dress Velvets, 10s. 6d.; Black French Silks, 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., 7s. 6d., 7s. 11d. These lots are very cheap. Patterns free.
25 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

DRESS FABRICS.—GASK and GASK are showing the new Bannockburn, Inverary, and Kill-crankie Tweeds, Vicuna Cloths, Equinoxes, Roubaix Cloths, Diagonals, &c. An immense variety, at all prices, from 10s. to 2s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free.
25 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

NEW AUTUMN COSTUMES of SILK and WOOLLEN FABRICS, just from Paris.
Rich Black Silk Costumes, 4s.; Handsome Silk Costumes, new colours, 4s. 7s. 6d., to 10s. 6d.
The new Boulevard Costume, in All-Wool Serge, a great novelty,
2s. 6d.
Handsome New Costumes, 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d.
The new EVENING and DINNER DRESSES, in Tulle, Net, Tartan, &c., White, Black, and all Colours, from 2s. 6d. The vast assortment of made-up dresses of all kinds will be sold at the lowest cash prices.
GASK and GASK, 25 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

MANTLES, MILLINERY.—GASK and GASK have just received from Paris decided Novelties in Bonnets and Hats, Rich Velvets, and all Colours, and Polonaises,
&c. A large choice at most moderate prices.
25 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

CASHMERE HATS for LADIES.
"The Novelty of the Season."
JAYS.

IMPROVED JANUS CORD (Registered).
To be had only at JAYS, 21, 41, 61, 81, 101, 121, 141, 161, 181, 201, 221, 241, 261, 281, 301, 321, 341, 361, 381, 401, 421, 441, 461, 481, 501, 521, 541, 561, 581, 601, 621, 641, 661, 681, 701, 721, 741, 761, 781, 801, 821, 841, 861, 881, 901, 921, 941, 961, 981, 1001, 1021, 1041, 1061, 1081, 1101, 1121, 1141, 1161, 1181, 1201, 1221, 1241, 1261, 1281, 1301, 1321, 1341, 1361, 1381, 1401, 1421, 1441, 1461, 1481, 1501, 1521, 1541, 1561, 1581, 1601, 1621, 1641, 1661, 1681, 1701, 1721, 1741, 1761, 1781, 1801, 1821, 1841, 1861, 1881, 1901, 1921, 1941, 1961, 1981, 2001, 2021, 2041, 2061, 2081, 2101, 2121, 2141, 2161, 2181, 2201, 2221, 2241, 2261, 2281, 2301, 2321, 2341, 2361, 2381, 2401, 2421, 2441, 2461, 2481, 2501, 2521, 2541, 2561, 2581, 2601, 2621, 2641, 2661, 2681, 2701, 2721, 2741, 2761, 2781, 2801, 2821, 2841, 2861, 2881, 2901, 2921, 2941, 2961, 2981, 3001, 3021, 3041, 3061, 3081, 3101, 3121, 3141, 3161, 3181, 3201, 3221, 3241, 3261, 3281, 3301, 3321, 3341, 3361, 3381, 3401, 3421, 3441, 3461, 3481, 3501, 3521, 3541, 3561, 3581, 3601, 3621, 3641, 3661, 3681, 3701, 3721, 3741, 3761, 3781, 3801, 3821, 3841, 3861, 3881, 3901, 3921, 3941, 3961, 3981, 4001, 4021, 4041, 4061, 4081, 4101, 4121, 4141, 4161, 4181, 4201, 4221, 4241, 4261, 4281, 4301, 4321, 4341, 4361, 4381, 4401, 4421, 4441, 4461, 4481, 4501, 4521, 4541, 4561, 4581, 4601, 4621, 4641, 4661, 4681, 4701, 4721, 4741, 4761, 4781, 4801, 4821, 4841, 4861, 4881, 4901, 4921, 4941, 4961, 4981, 5001, 5021, 5041, 5061, 5081, 5101, 5121, 5141, 5161, 5181, 5201, 5221, 5241, 5261, 5281, 5301, 5321, 5341, 5361, 5381, 5401, 5421, 5441, 5461, 5481, 5501, 5521, 5541, 5561, 5581, 5601, 5621, 5641, 5661, 5681, 5701, 5721, 5741, 5761, 5781, 5801, 5821, 5841, 5861, 5881, 5901, 5921, 5941, 5961, 5981, 6001, 6021, 6041, 6061, 6081, 6101, 6121, 6141, 6161, 6181, 6201, 6221, 6241, 6261, 6281, 6301, 6321, 6341, 6361, 6381, 6401, 6421, 6441, 6461, 6481, 6501, 6521, 6541, 6561, 6581, 6601, 6621, 6641, 6661, 6681, 6701, 6721, 6741, 6761, 6781, 6801, 6821, 6841, 6861, 6881, 6901, 6921, 6941, 6961, 6981, 7001, 7021, 7041, 7061, 7081, 7101, 7121, 7141, 7161, 7181, 7201, 7221, 7241, 7261, 7281, 7301, 7321, 7341, 7361, 7381, 7401, 7421, 7441, 7461, 7481, 7501, 7521, 7541, 7561, 7581, 7601, 7621, 7641, 7661, 7681, 7701, 7721, 7741, 7761, 7781, 7801, 7821, 7841, 7861, 7881, 7901, 7921, 7941, 7961, 7981, 8001, 8021, 8041, 8061, 8081, 8101, 8121, 8141, 8161, 8181, 8201, 8221, 8241, 8261, 8281, 8301, 8321, 8341, 8361, 8381, 8401, 8421, 8441, 8461, 8481, 8501, 8521, 8541, 8561, 8581, 8601, 8621, 8641, 8661, 8681, 8701, 8721, 8741, 8761, 8781, 8801, 8821, 8841, 8861, 8881, 8901, 8921, 8941, 8961, 8981, 9001, 9021, 9041, 9061, 9081, 9101, 9121, 9141, 9161, 9181, 9201, 9221, 9241, 9261, 9281, 9301, 9321, 9341, 9361, 9381, 9401, 9421, 9441, 9461, 9481, 9501, 9521, 9541, 9561, 9581, 9601, 9621, 9641, 9661, 9681, 9701, 9721, 9741, 9761, 9781, 9801, 9821, 9841, 9861, 9881, 9901, 9921, 9941, 9961, 9981, 10001, 10021, 10041, 10061, 10081, 10101, 10121, 10141, 10161, 10181, 10201, 10221, 10241, 10261, 10281, 10301, 10321, 10341, 10361, 10381, 10401, 10421, 10441, 10461, 10481, 10501, 10521, 10541, 10561, 10581, 10601, 10621, 10641, 10661, 10681, 10701, 10721, 10741, 10761, 10781, 10801, 10821, 10841, 10861, 10881, 10901, 10921, 10941, 10961, 10981, 11001, 11021, 11041, 11061, 11081, 11101, 11121, 11141, 11161, 11181, 11201, 11221, 11241, 11261, 11281, 11301, 11321, 11341, 11361, 11381, 11401, 11421, 11441, 11461, 11481, 11501, 11521, 11541, 11561, 11581, 11601, 11621, 11641, 11661, 11681, 11701, 11721, 11741, 11761, 11781, 11801, 11821, 11841, 11861, 11881, 11901, 11921, 11941, 11961, 11981, 12001, 12021, 12041, 12061, 12081, 12101, 12121, 12141, 12161, 12181, 12201, 12221, 12241, 12261, 12281, 12301, 12321, 12341, 12361, 12381, 12401, 12421, 12441, 12461, 12481, 12501, 12521, 12541, 12561, 12581, 12601, 12621, 12641, 12661, 12681, 12701, 12721, 12741, 12761, 12781, 12801, 12821, 12841, 12861, 12881, 12901, 12921, 12941, 12961, 12981, 13001, 13021, 13041, 13061, 13081, 13101, 13121, 13141, 13161, 13181, 13201, 13221, 13241, 13261, 13281, 13301, 13321, 13341, 13361, 13381, 13401, 13421, 13441, 13461, 13481, 13501, 13521, 13541, 13561, 13581, 13601, 13621, 13641, 13661, 13681, 13701, 13721, 13741, 13761, 13781, 13801, 13821, 13841, 13861, 13881, 13901, 13921, 13941, 13961, 13981, 14001, 14021, 14041, 14061, 14081, 14101, 14121, 14141, 14161, 14181, 14201, 14221, 14241, 14261, 14281, 14301, 14321, 14341, 14361, 14381, 14401, 14421, 14441, 14461, 14481, 14501, 14521, 14541, 14561, 14581, 14601, 14621, 14641, 14661, 14681, 14701, 14721, 14741, 14761, 14781, 14801, 14821, 14841, 14861, 14881, 14901, 14921, 14941, 14961, 14981, 15001, 15021, 15041, 15061, 15081, 15101, 15121, 15141, 15161, 15181, 15201, 15221, 15241, 15261, 15281, 15301, 15321, 15341, 15361, 15381, 15401, 15421, 15441, 15461, 15481, 15501, 15521, 15541, 15561, 15581, 15601, 15621, 15641, 15661, 15681, 15701, 15721, 15741, 15761, 15781, 15801, 15821, 15841, 15861, 15881, 15901, 15921, 15941, 15961, 15981, 16001, 16021, 16041, 16061, 16081, 16101, 16121, 16141, 16161, 16181, 16201, 16221, 16241, 16261, 16281, 16301, 16321, 16341, 16361, 16381, 16401, 16421, 16441, 16461, 16481, 16501, 16521, 16541, 16561, 16581, 16601, 16621, 16641, 16661, 16681, 16701, 16721, 16741, 16761, 16781, 16801, 16821, 16841, 16861, 16881, 16901, 16921, 16941, 16961, 16981, 17001, 17021, 17041, 17061, 17081, 17101, 17121, 17141, 17161, 17181, 17201, 17221, 17241, 17261, 17281, 17301, 17321, 17341, 17361, 17381, 17401, 17421, 17441, 17461, 17481, 17501, 17521, 17541, 17561, 17581, 17601, 17621, 17641, 17661, 17681, 17701, 17721, 17741, 17761, 17781, 17801, 17821, 17841, 17861, 17881, 17901, 17921, 17941, 17961, 17981, 18001, 18021, 18041, 18061, 18081, 18101, 18121, 18141, 18161, 18181, 18201, 18221, 18241, 18261, 18281, 18301, 18321, 18341, 18361, 18381, 18401, 18421, 18441, 18461, 18481, 18501, 18521, 18541, 18561, 18581, 18601, 18621, 18641, 18661, 18681, 18701, 18721, 18741, 18761, 18781, 18801, 18821, 18841, 18861, 18881, 18901, 18921, 18941, 18961, 18981, 19001, 19021, 19041, 19061, 19081, 19101, 19121, 19141, 19161, 19181, 19201, 19221, 19241, 19261, 19281, 19301, 19321, 19341, 19361, 19381, 19401, 19421, 19441, 19461, 19481, 19501, 19521, 19541, 19561, 19581, 19601, 19621, 19641, 19661, 19681, 19701, 19721, 19741, 19761, 19781, 19801, 19821, 19841, 19861, 19881, 19901, 19921, 19941, 19961, 19981, 20001, 20021, 20041, 20061, 20081, 20101, 20121, 20141, 20161, 20181, 20201, 20221, 20241, 20261, 20281, 20301, 20321, 20341, 20361, 20381, 20401, 20421, 20441, 20461, 20481, 20501, 20521, 20541, 20561, 20581, 20601, 20621, 20641, 20661, 20681, 20701, 20721, 20741, 20761, 20781, 20801, 20821, 20841, 20861, 20881, 20901, 20921, 20941, 20961, 20981, 21001, 21021, 21041, 21061, 21081, 21101, 21121, 21141, 21161, 21181, 21201, 21221, 21241, 21261, 21281, 21301, 21321, 21341, 21361, 21381, 21401, 21421, 21441, 21461, 21481, 21501, 21521, 21541, 21561, 21581, 21601, 21621, 21641, 21661, 21681, 21701, 21721, 21741, 21761, 21781, 21801, 21821, 21841, 21861, 21881, 21901, 21921, 21941, 21961, 21981, 22001, 22021, 22041, 22061, 22081, 22101, 22121, 22141, 22161, 22181, 22201, 22221, 22241, 22261, 22281, 22301, 22321, 22341, 22361, 22381, 22401, 22421, 22441, 22461, 22481, 22501, 22521, 22541, 22561, 22581, 22601, 22621, 22641, 22661, 22681, 22701, 22721, 22741, 22761, 22781, 22801, 22821, 22841, 22861, 22881, 22901, 22921, 22941, 22961, 22981, 23001, 23021, 23041, 23061, 23081, 23101, 23121, 23141, 23161, 23181, 23201, 23221, 23241, 23261, 23281, 23301, 23321, 23341, 23361, 23381, 23401, 23421, 23441, 23461, 23481, 23501, 23521, 23541, 23561, 23581, 23601, 23621, 23641, 23661, 23681, 23701, 23721, 23741, 23761, 23781, 23801, 23821, 23841, 23861, 23881, 23901, 23921, 23941, 23961, 23981, 24001, 24021, 24041, 24061, 24081, 24101, 24121, 24141, 24161, 24181, 24201, 24221, 24241, 24261, 24281, 24301, 24321, 24341, 24361, 24381, 24401, 24421, 24441, 24461, 24481, 24501, 24521, 24541, 24561, 24581, 24601, 24621, 24641, 24661, 24681, 24701, 24721, 24741, 24761, 24781, 24801, 24821, 24841, 24861, 24881, 24901, 24921, 24941, 24961, 24981, 25001, 25021, 25041, 25061, 25081, 25101, 25121, 25141, 25161, 25181, 25201, 25221, 25241, 25261, 25281, 25301, 25321, 25341, 25361, 25381, 25401, 25421, 25441, 25461, 25481, 25501, 25521, 25541, 25561, 25581, 25601, 25621, 25641, 25661, 25681, 25701, 25721, 25741, 25761, 25781, 25801, 25821, 25841, 25861, 25881, 25901, 25921, 25941, 25961, 25981, 26001, 26021, 26041, 26061, 26081, 26101, 26121, 26141, 26161, 26181, 26201, 26221, 26241, 26261, 26281, 26301, 26321, 26341, 26361, 26381, 26401, 26421, 26441, 26461, 26481, 26501, 26521, 26541, 26561, 26581, 26601, 26621, 26641, 26661, 26681, 26701, 26721, 26741, 26761, 26781, 26801, 26821, 26841, 26861, 26881, 26901, 26921, 26941, 26961, 26981, 27001, 27021, 27041, 27061, 27081, 27101, 27121, 27141, 27161, 27181, 27201, 27221, 27241, 27261, 27281, 27301, 27321, 27341, 27361, 27381, 27401, 27421, 27441, 27461, 27481, 27501, 27521, 27541, 27561, 27581, 27601, 27621, 27641, 27661, 27681, 27701, 27721, 27741, 27761, 27781, 27801, 27821, 27841, 27861, 27881, 27901, 27921, 27941, 27961, 27981, 28001, 28021, 28041, 28061, 28081, 28101, 28121, 28141, 28161, 28181, 28201, 28221, 28241, 28261, 28281, 28301, 28321, 28341, 28361, 28381, 28401, 28421, 28441, 28461, 28481, 28501, 28521, 28541, 28561, 28581, 28601, 28621, 28641, 28661, 28681, 28701, 28721, 28741, 28761, 28781, 28801, 28821, 28841, 28861, 28881, 28901, 28921, 28941, 28961, 28981, 29001, 29021, 29041, 29061, 29081, 29101, 29121, 29141, 29161, 29181, 29201, 29221, 29241, 29261, 29281, 29301, 29321, 29341, 29361, 29381, 29401, 29421, 29441, 29461, 29481, 29501, 29521, 29541, 29561, 29581, 29601, 29621, 29641, 29661, 29681, 29701, 29721, 29741, 29761, 29781, 29801, 29821, 29841, 29861, 29881, 29901, 29921, 29941, 29961, 29981, 30001, 30021, 30041, 30061, 30081, 30101, 30121, 30141, 30161, 30181, 30201, 30221, 30241, 30261, 30281, 30301, 30321, 30341, 30361, 30381, 30401, 30421, 30441, 30461, 30481, 30501, 30521, 30541, 30561, 30581, 30601, 30621, 30641, 30661, 30681, 30701, 30721, 30741, 30761, 30781, 30801, 30821, 30841, 30861, 30881, 30901, 30921, 30941, 30961, 30981, 31001, 31021, 31041, 31061, 31081, 31101, 31121, 31141, 31161, 31181, 31201, 31221, 31241, 31261, 31281, 31301, 31321, 31341, 31361, 31381, 31401, 31421, 31441, 31461, 31481, 3

NEW MUSIC.

BOURREE for the Pianoforte, composed by COTSFORD DICK. Price 2s. "A most charming and original composition."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS by COTSFORD DICK.
"THE VOICE I LOVED." Words by Louisa Gray. 2s.
"A beautiful song for a tenor voice."
"WHEN SHAD'W'S FLEE AWAY." Words by Gordon Campbell. 2s.
Post-free for half price.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FRIDOLIN. A Dramatic Cantata, composed by ALBERTO RANDEGGER, performed at the Birmingham Festival with immense success.
The Score Complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, paper cover 6s. 6d.
Ditto, ditto, bound in cloth. 10s. 6d.
"Roses and Peaches" (Song by Madame Sherrington) 2s. 6d.
"Wildest Conflicts" (Song by Mr. Santley) 2s. 6d.
Nava's Three Subjects from "Fridolin" 2s. 6d.
No. 1. Hunting Chorus.
No. 2. Chorus of Handmaidens.
No. 3. Dance and Chorus of Villagers.
N.B.—The separate Chorus and Orchestra Parts may also be had.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES.
"SUNRISE GALOP." Illustrated. 2s.
"IVY LEAVES." Polka. Illustrated. 2s.
"HAWTHORN BLOSSOMS." Petit Morceau. Illustrated. 2s.
"MOONLIGHT STREAM." Morceau de Salon. Illustrated. 2s.
"AUF'N' EISEN." Reminiscence. Illustrated. 2s.
Post-free, 1s. 6d. each.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LOUISA GRAY'S NEW SONGS.
"CHANGED." 2s.
"BLIND GIRL'S DREAM." 4s.
"IT WAS EARLY IN THE SPRINGTIME." 2s.
Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW MARCH ROMAINE.
A companion piece to the celebrated "Silver Trumpets." Composed expressly for the Pope. Price, for Piano, Organ (with pedal obligato), or Harmonium, 2s.; for Piano, Duo, 4s. Full Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.
ORIGINAL VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM, composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post-free 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is written."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES.
CHAPPELL and Co. have an immense stock of Secondhand Pianofortes, of Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Chappell, and other good makers, just returned from Paris, which they can offer at exceptionally low prices. Discount for cash.—50, New Bond-street, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL-ROOM.
PIANO-FORTE, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany Case. Price TWENTY GUINEAS. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. It has the merit of standing well in use, and is capable of enduring hard school practice without going out of order.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT.
PIANO, with Folding Keyboard, Check Action, Trichord Table. In Solid Mahogany or Black Canadian Walnut Case, THIRTY GUINEAS; or in Maple, THIRTY-FIVE GUINEAS. Constructed for ships' cabins, to occupy the smallest possible space, and to stand the damps of a sea voyage; the back is strengthened with iron bars and is of solid pine, and the whole of the mechanism is of the best quality.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DULCIANA ORGAN HARMONIUM, by Alexandra.—This new instrument is especially adapted to the Drawing-room. It has the sweetest tone possible, resembling the soft dulciana stop of the best organs, and, by a new patent air-chest, is free from the slightest harshness. Price, 3 stops, oak, 10 gu.; mahogany, 12 gu.; rosewood, 14 gu.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S HARMONIUMS for SALE, from 5 gu. to 110 gu. Alexandra, Wholesale Agents. Illustrated Catalogues on application.
ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM. Solid Oak Case, Five Octaves, and Two Foot-Bords.
The ever-increasing musical culture in all classes of society has created a demand for free reed instruments of a superior quality to those hitherto manufactured.
The instruments now offered to the public will be found devoid of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable as regards tone. This has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the quality rich and organ-like.
Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows.
The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect and without extra cost.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

RECOMMENDED BY ALL THE PROFESSORS.
THE DIGITORIUM (a small Dumb Piano-Patent).—This remarkable invention materially assists any person to play and become perfect on the Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium, by strengthening and rendering the fingers independent in an incredibly short time; and can now be had (price 15s.; or, with ivory keys, 18s.) of the sole Manufacturers, CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.
Oratorio.
Performed at the Birmingham Festival.
Paper cover, cloth back, 10s. 6d.; cloth boards, gilt letters, 12s. 6d.
CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

STANDARD WORKS ON HARMONY and THOROUGH BASS.
G. A. Macfarlane (G. A.)—Rudiments of Harmony .. Net, 10s. 6d.
Büchler (E. F.)—Treatise on Harmony .. Net, 7s. 6d.
(Translated from the German by Francis Taylor.)
Burrows's Pianoforte Primer (with Cramer's Dictionary of Musical Terms) .. Net, 1s. 6d.
Burrows's Thorough Bass Primer .. Net, 2s. 6d.
Cramer's Dictionary of Musical Terms .. Net, 6s. 6d.
CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

KELER BELA'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
Die Letzten Gluck's Stützen. Walzes .. 4s.
Traum Glück. Polka Menuet .. 2s.
Die Glückseligkeit. Polka Française .. 4s.
Keller Bela well sustains his deserved popularity with the above new compositions; like Strauss and Gungl, his dance music is thoroughly good.
CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

MARRIOTT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
Alpine Schottische .. (Illustrated) 4s.
Fun of the Ball Galop .. Ditto 4s.
Guardians of the Night Galop .. Ditto 4s.
Nacht Lieder Walzes .. Ditto 4s.
Peerless Pier Polka .. Ditto 4s.
Salute Galop .. Ditto 4s.
Shah Galop .. Ditto 4s.
Snap Dragon Quadrilles .. Ditto 4s.
Vienna Quadrilles .. Ditto 4s.
Warblers of Fairlight .. Ditto 4s.
The above are being played daily at Hastings by Mr. Marriott's excellent band, and are much admired.
CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

NEMESIS SONGS and DANCE MUSIC (encored nightly at the Strand Theatre).—"The Language of Love" (sung by Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Hillier, Mr. Howard Paul, &c.). "What are a lady's wants to-day?" "Don't make me laugh, &c." "Will you take my arm?" Quadrilles and Galop, by J. FITZGERALD; and Walzes, Solos, and Duets, &c.; post-free, 2s. each.
J. B. CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and POST-FREE.—The largest and most varied Stock of Music, by all the principal Publishers. CHAMBER and Co. undertake to forward, by return of post (on receipt of remittance), all sheet music ordered from them, no matter by whom published, at half price and post-free.
CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

CHARLES HALLE'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. Sections 1, 2, and 3, and 4, and 5, and 6, and 7, and 8, and 9, and 10, and 11, and 12, and 13, and 14, and 15, and 16, and 17, and 18, and 19, and 20, and 21, and 22, and 23, and 24, and 25, and 26, and 27, and 28, and 29, and 30, and 31, and 32, and 33, and 34, and 35, and 36, and 37, and 38, and 39, and 40, and 41, and 42, and 43, and 44, and 45, and 46, and 47, and 48, and 49, and 50, and 51, and 52, and 53, and 54, and 55, and 56, and 57, and 58, and 59, and 60, and 61, and 62, and 63, and 64, and 65, and 66, and 67, and 68, and 69, and 70, and 71, and 72, and 73, and 74, and 75, and 76, and 77, and 78, and 79, and 80, and 81, and 82, and 83, and 84, and 85, and 86, and 87, and 88, and 89, and 90, and 91, and 92, and 93, and 94, and 95, and 96, and 97, and 98, and 99, and 100, and 101, and 102, and 103, and 104, and 105, and 106, and 107, and 108, and 109, and 110, and 111, and 112, and 113, and 114, and 115, and 116, and 117, and 118, and 119, and 120, and 121, and 122, and 123, and 124, and 125, and 126, and 127, and 128, and 129, and 130, and 131, and 132, and 133, and 134, and 135, and 136, and 137, and 138, and 139, and 140, and 141, and 142, and 143, and 144, and 145, and 146, and 147, and 148, and 149, and 150, and 151, and 152, and 153, and 154, and 155, and 156, and 157, and 158, and 159, and 160, and 161, and 162, and 163, and 164, and 165, and 166, and 167, and 168, and 169, and 170, and 171, and 172, and 173, and 174, and 175, and 176, and 177, and 178, and 179, and 180, and 181, and 182, and 183, and 184, and 185, and 186, and 187, and 188, and 189, and 190, and 191, and 192, and 193, and 194, and 195, and 196, and 197, and 198, and 199, and 200, and 201, and 202, and 203, and 204, and 205, and 206, and 207, and 208, and 209, and 210, and 211, and 212, and 213, and 214, and 215, and 216, and 217, and 218, and 219, and 220, and 221, and 222, and 223, and 224, and 225, and 226, and 227, and 228, and 229, and 230, and 231, and 232, and 233, and 234, and 235, and 236, and 237, and 238, and 239, and 240, and 241, and 242, and 243, and 244, and 245, and 246, and 247, and 248, and 249, and 250, and 251, and 252, and 253, and 254, and 255, and 256, and 257, and 258, and 259, and 260, and 261, and 262, and 263, and 264, and 265, and 266, and 267, and 268, and 269, and 270, and 271, and 272, and 273, and 274, and 275, and 276, and 277, and 278, and 279, and 280, and 281, and 282, and 283, and 284, and 285, and 286, and 287, and 288, and 289, and 290, and 291, and 292, and 293, and 294, and 295, and 296, and 297, and 298, and 299, and 300, and 301, and 302, and 303, and 304, and 305, and 306, and 307, and 308, and 309, and 310, and 311, and 312, and 313, and 314, and 315, and 316, and 317, and 318, and 319, and 320, and 321, and 322, and 323, and 324, and 325, and 326, and 327, and 328, and 329, and 330, and 331, and 332, and 333, and 334, and 335, and 336, and 337, and 338, and 339, and 340, and 341, and 342, and 343, and 344, and 345, and 346, and 347, and 348, and 349, and 350, and 351, and 352, and 353, and 354, and 355, and 356, and 357, and 358, and 359, and 360, and 361, and 362, and 363, and 364, and 365, and 366, and 367, and 368, and 369, and 370, and 371, and 372, and 373, and 374, and 375, and 376, and 377, and 378, and 379, and 380, and 381, and 382, and 383, and 384, and 385, and 386, and 387, and 388, and 389, and 390, and 391, and 392, and 393, and 394, and 395, and 396, and 397, and 398, and 399, and 400, and 401, and 402, and 403, and 404, and 405, and 406, and 407, and 408, and 409, and 410, and 411, and 412, and 413, and 414, and 415, and 416, and 417, and 418, and 419, and 420, and 421, and 422, and 423, and 424, and 425, and 426, and 427, and 428, and 429, and 430, and 431, and 432, and 433, and 434, and 435, and 436, and 437, and 438, and 439, and 440, and 441, and 442, and 443, and 444, and 445, and 446, and 447, and 448, and 449, and 450, and 451, and 452, and 453, and 454, and 455, and 456, and 457, and 458, and 459, and 460, and 461, and 462, and 463, and 464, and 465, and 466, and 467, and 468, and 469, and 470, and 471, and 472, and 473, and 474, and 475, and 476, and 477, and 478, and 479, and 480, and 481, and 482, and 483, and 484, and 485, and 486, and 487, and 488, and 489, and 490, and 491, and 492, and 493, and 494, and 495, and 496, and 497, and 498, and 499, and 500, and 501, and 502, and 503, and 504, and 505, and 506, and 507, and 508, and 509, and 510, and 511, and 512, and 513, and 514, and 515, and 516, and 517, and 518, and 519, and 520, and 521, and 522, and 523, and 524, and 525, and 526, and 527, and 528, and 529, and 530, and 531, and 532, and 533, and 534, and 535, and 536, and 537, and 538, and 539, and 540, and 541, and 542, and 543, and 544, and 545, and 546, and 547, and 548, and 549, and 550, and 551, and 552, and 553, and 554, and 555, and 556, and 557, and 558, and 559, and 560, and 561, and 562, and 563, and 564, and 565, and 566, and 567, and 568, and 569, and 570, and 571, and 572, and 573, and 574, and 575, and 576, and 577, and 578, and 579, and 580, and 581, and 582, and 583, and 584, and 585, and 586, and 587, and 588, and 589, and 590, and 591, and 592, and 593, and 594, and 595, and 596, and 597, and 598, and 599, and 600, and 601, and 602, and 603, and 604, and 605, and 606, and 607, and 608, and 609, and 610, and 611, and 612, and 613, and 614, and 615, and 616, and 617, and 618, and 619, and 620, and 621, and 622, and 623, and 624, and 625, and 626, and 627, and 628, and 629, and 630, and 631, and 632, and 633, and 634, and 635, and 636, and 637, and 638, and 639, and 640, and 641, and 642, and 643, and 644, and 645, and 646, and 647, and 648, and 649, and 650, and 651, and 652, and 653, and 654, and 655, and 656, and 657, and 658, and 659, and 660, and 661, and 662, and 663, and 664, and 665, and 666, and 667, and 668, and 669, and 670, and 671, and 672, and 673, and 674, and 675, and 676, and 677, and 678, and 679, and 680, and 681, and 682, and 683, and 684, and 685, and 686, and 687, and 688, and 689, and 690, and 691, and 692, and 693, and 694, and 695, and 696, and 697, and 698, and 699, and 700, and 701, and 702, and 703, and 704, and 705, and 706, and 707, and 708, and 709, and 710, and 711, and 712, and 713, and 714, and 715, and 716, and 717, and 718, and 719, and 720, and 721, and 722, and 723, and 724, and 725, and 726, and 727, and 728, and 729, and 730, and 731, and 732, and 733, and 734, and 735, and 736, and 737, and 738, and 739, and 740, and 741, and 742, and 743, and 744, and 745, and 746, and 747, and 748, and 749, and 750, and 751, and 752, and 753, and 754, and 755, and 756, and 757, and 758, and 759, and 760, and 761, and 762, and 763, and 764, and 765, and 766, and 767, and 768, and 769, and 770, and 771, and 772, and 773, and 774, and 775, and 776, and 777, and 778, and 779, and 780, and 781, and 782, and 783, and 784, and 785, and 786, and 787, and 788, and 789, and 790, and 791, and 792, and 793, and 794, and 795, and 796, and 797, and 798, and 799, and 800, and 801, and 802, and 803, and 804, and 805, and 806, and 807, and 808, and 809, and 810, and 811, and 812, and 813, and 814, and 815, and 816, and 817, and 818, and 819, and 820, and 821, and 822, and 823, and 824, and 825, and 826, and 827, and 828, and 829, and 830, and 831, and 832, and 833, and 834, and 835, and 836, and 837, and 838, and 839, and 840, and 841, and 842, and 843, and 844, and 845, and 846, and 847, and 848, and 849, and 850, and 851, and 852, and 853, and 854, and 855, and 856, and 857, and 858, and 859, and 860, and 861, and 862, and 863, and 864, and 865, and 866, and 867, and 868, and 869, and 870, and 871, and 872, and 873, and 874, and 875, and 876, and 877, and 878, and 879, and 880, and 881, and 882, and 883, and 884, and 885, and 886, and 887, and 888, and 889, and 890, and 891, and 892, and 893, and 894, and 895, and 896, and 897, and 898, and 899, and 900, and 901, and 902, and 903, and 904, and 905, and 906, and 907, and 908, and 909, and 910, and 911, and 912, and 913, and 914, and 915, and 916, and 917, and 918, and 919, and 920, and 921, and 922, and 923, and 924, and 925, and 926, and 927, and 928, and 929, and 930, and 931, and 932, and 933, and 934, and 935, and 936, and 937, and 938, and 939, and 940, and 941, and 942, and 943, and 944, and 945, and 946, and 947, and 948, and 949, and 950, and 951, and 952, and 953, and 954, and 955, and 956, and 957, and 958, and 959, and 960, and 961, and 962, and 963, and 964, and 965, and 966, and 967, and 968, and 969, and 970, and 971, and 972, and 973, and 974, and 975, and 976, and 977, and 978, and 979, and 980, and 981, and 982, and 983, and 984, and 985, and 986, and 987, and 988, and 989, and 990, and 991, and 992, and 993, and 994, and 995, and 996, and 997, and 998, and 999, and 1000, and 1001, and 1002, and 1003, and 1004, and 1005, and 1006, and 1007, and 1008, and 1009, and 1010, and 1011, and 1012, and 1013, and 1014, and 1015, and 1016, and 1017, and 1018, and 1019, and 1020, and 1021, and 1022, and 1023, and 1024, and 1025, and 1026, and 1027, and 1028, and 1029, and 1030, and 1031, and 1032, and 1033, and 1034, and 1035, and 1036, and 1037, and 1038, and 1039, and 1040, and 1041, and 1042, and 1043, and 1044, and 1045, and 1046, and 1047, and 1048, and 1049, and 1050, and 1051, and 1052, and 1053, and 1054, and 1055, and 1056, and 1057, and 1058, and 1059, and 1060, and 1061, and 1062, and 1063, and 1064, and 1065, and 1066, and 1067, and 1068, and 1069, and 1070, and 1071, and 1072, and 1073, and 1074, and 1075, and 1076, and 1077, and 1078, and 1079, and 1080, and 1081, and 1082, and 1083, and 1084, and 1085, and 1086, and 1087, and 1088, and 1089, and 1090, and 1091, and 1092, and 1093, and 1094, and 1095, and 1096, and 1097, and 1098, and 1099, and 1100, and 1101, and 1102, and 1103, and 1104, and 1105, and 1106, and 1107, and 1108, and 1109, and 1110, and 1111, and 1112, and 1113, and 1114, and 1115, and 1116, and 1117, and 1118, and 1119, and 1120, and 1121, and 1122, and 1123, and 1124, and 1125, and 1126, and 1127, and 1128, and 1129, and 1130, and 1131, and 1132, and 1133, and 1134, and 1135, and 1136, and 1137, and 1138, and 1139, and 1140, and 1141, and 1142, and 1143, and 1144, and 1145, and 1146, and 1147, and 1148, and 1149, and 1150, and 1151, and 1152, and 1153, and 1154, and 1155, and 1156, and 1157, and 1158, and 1159, and 1160, and 1161, and 1162, and 1163, and 1164, and 1165, and 1166, and 1167, and 1168, and 1169, and 1170, and 1171, and 1172, and 1173, and 1174, and 1175, and 1176, and 1177, and 1178, and 1179, and 1180, and 1181, and 1182, and 1183, and 1184, and 1185, and 1186, and 1187, and 1188, and 1189, and 1190, and 1191, and 1192, and 1193, and 1194, and 1195, and 1196, and 1197, and 1198, and 1199, and 1200, and 1201, and 1202, and 1203, and 1204, and 1205, and 1206, and 1207, and 1208, and 1209, and 1210, and 1211, and 1212, and 1213, and 1214, and 1215, and 1216, and 1217, and 1218, and 1219, and 1220, and 1221, and 1222, and 1223, and 1224, and 1225, and 1226, and 1227, and 1228, and 1229, and 1230, and 1231, and 1232, and 1233, and 1234, and 1235, and 1236, and 1237, and 1238, and 1239, and 1240, and 1241, and 1242, and 1243, and 1244, and 1245, and 1246, and 1247, and 1248, and 1249, and 1250, and 1251, and 1252, and 1253, and 1254, and 1255, and 1256, and 1257, and 1258, and 1259, and 1260, and 1261, and 1262, and 1263, and 1264, and 1265, and 1266, and 1267, and 1268, and 1269, and 1270, and 1271, and 1272, and 1273, and 1274, and 1275, and 1276, and 1277, and 1278, and 1279, and 1280, and 1281, and 1282, and 1283, and 1284, and 1285, and 1286, and 1287, and 1288, and 1289, and 1290, and 1291, and 1292, and 1293, and 1294, and 1295, and 1296, and 1297, and 1298, and 1299, and 1300, and 1301, and 1302, and 1303, and 1304, and 1305, and 1306, and 1307, and 1308, and 1309, and 1310, and 1311, and 1312, and 1313, and 1314, and 1315, and 1316, and 1317, and 1318, and 1319, and 1320, and 1321, and 1322, and 1323, and 1324, and 1325, and 1326, and 1327, and 1328, and 1329, and 1330, and 1331, and 1332, and 1333, and 1334, and 1335, and 1336, and 1337, and 1338, and 1339, and 1340, and 1341, and 1342, and 1343, and 1344, and 1345, and 1346, and 1347, and 1348, and 1349, and 1350, and 1351, and 1352, and 1353, and 1354, and 1355, and 1356, and 1357, and 1358, and 1359, and 1360, and 1361, and 1362, and 1363, and 1364, and 1365, and 1366, and 1367, and 1368, and 1369, and 1370, and 1371, and 1372, and 1373, and 1374, and 1375, and 1376, and 1377, and 1378, and 1379, and 1380, and 1381, and 1382, and 1383, and 1384, and 1385, and 1386, and 1387, and 1388, and 1389, and 1390, and 1391, and 1392, and 1393, and 1394, and 1395, and 1396, and 1397, and 1398, and 1399, and 1400, and 1401, and 1402, and 1403, and 1404, and 1405, and 1406, and 1407, and 1408, and 1409, and 1410, and 1411, and 1412, and 1413, and 1414, and 1415, and 1416, and 1417, and 1418, and 1419, and 1420, and 1421, and 1422, and 1423, and 1424, and 1425, and 1426, and 1427, and 1428, and 1429, and 1430, and 1431, and 1432, and 1433, and 1434, and 1435, and 1436, and 1437, and 1438, and 1439, and 1440, and 1441, and 1442, and 1443, and 1444, and 1445, and 1446, and 1447, and 1448, and 1449, and 1450, and 1451, and 1452, and 1453, and 1454, and 1455, and 1456, and

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN: ALICANTE, BOMBARDED BY THE INTRANSIGENTES.

ST. PAUL'S COLLEGE, KNUTSFORD.

On Wednesday week the Bishop of Chester and Lord de Tabley laid the foundation-stone of a new chapel and college at Knutsford, in Cheshire, twelve or fourteen miles from Manchester. The new building is to be a college for the northern counties, and is intended to provide scholastic education on a scale rivalling that given at Eton and Harrow. It is designed to accommodate 500 boys, twenty-four junior resident masters, senior and junior warden, and the required number of servants. The style adopted by the architects, Messrs. Pennington and Bridge, of Manchester, is that known as the late middle-pointed Gothic. The ground attached to the college—forty acres—is excellent. The cost is estimated at £60,000. Full Masonic ceremonies were observed in laying the stone of the collegiate chapel, and Lord de Tabley delivered an address, in which he said that, although the institution would be connected with the Church of England, yet its portals would not be closed to the members of other Churches who chose to observe regulations formed for its government. A banquet was subsequently held, at which the nobility, gentry, and clergy of the surrounding district were present. The Principal of the institution is the Rev. W. H. Hatch, M.A. The building is expected to be completed by January, 1875.

KROLL'S GARDENS, BERLIN.

Kroll's establishment, in the Thiergarten, Berlin, is a respectable kind of Cremorne, largely patronised by the middle classes and universally recognised—Royalty itself having deigned to visit it—as one of the lions of the Prussian capital. On the right-hand side of the entrance gateway rises a large and somewhat stately-looking stucco building, some 400 ft. in length and upwards of 100 ft. in depth, with lofty central towers and pavilions at the extremities of its two wings, the whole standing in a moderate-size garden, of which the most has been cleverly enough made. The interior of the building is arranged in covered corridors, vestibules, a spacious theatre, a so-called Roman dining-saloon, and the Ritter and Korb Salle, together with underground restaurant, Bier-halle, and billiard-room for the accommodation of those numerous Berliners who find the hours pass pleasantest in the bowels of the earth.

On Sundays Kroll's is the Berliners' Mecca, and on that day it is the place of all others to study the middle classes to advantage. The entertainments commence with a table d'hôte at two o'clock, to which in summer as many as a couple of thousand people will occasionally sit down in the dining-saloons and the large open pavilion in the gardens. The charge, two shillings, includes admission to the grounds, which are laid out with the customary terraces, rectangular, serpentine, and sequestered walks, studded with trees, and duly ornamented with the conventional fountains, the waters of which trickle over rock-work, bathing glossy green artificial aquatic plants, or descend like dew on the gigantic metal leaves of illusory

PROCESSION OF FREEMASONS.

THE BISHOP OF CHESTER LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF ST. PAUL'S COLLEGE, KNUTSFORD.

PROCESSION OF CHORISTERS.

bananas, with primly-painted plaster gods and goddesses, branching bronze candelabra connected by festoons of coloured lamps, and flower beds in which the more intricate figures of Euclid may be traced, while countless chairs and tables occupy the larger vacant spaces.

When the banquet is over a band plays at frequent intervals, continuing its performances after the entertainments in the theatre have commenced for the amusement of those who prefer a lounge in the open air, combined with continual potations; for at no hour of the day or night does beer seem to come amiss to the droughty Berliner. At dusk, when the gardens are lighted up with artistically-arranged, fantastic jets of gas and thousands of coloured lamps, something of the effect of a studied stage transformation scene is produced, except that, in lieu of houris in gossamer, it is peopled with a thirsty crowd, to do whose bidding agile kellner, bearing trays laden with refreshments and balancing numerous beer-mugs in each hand, only strive in vain; while the band, perched like stage brigands among a mass of counterfeit rockwork, are playing favourite airs from famous operas. The scene is generally enlivened by the presence of numerous officers, whose varied uniforms contrast with the bright tints of the toilettes of the Berlin belles, who wear their Rabagas chapeaux jauntily on the backs of their heads. The killing glances of these military dandies seem to light on sympathetic eyes, which, under such circumstances, naturally scorn the impassioned gaze of enamoured civilians and even the chubby-cheeked youth of the Berlin Cadetten Corps.

A FONTAINEBLEAU HUNTING TROPHY.

The Prince of Wales, on Nov. 18, 1868, was stag-hunting with the late Emperor Napoleon, in the Forest of Fontainebleau. He was charged by two stags, his horse was overthrown, and the Prince got some bruises or slight grazes, which did not prevent him from mounting again, to finish the chase of that day. A foot of one of the stags then killed was preserved and given to the Prince. In January last, when his Royal Highness had been at Chislehurst to see the dead body of the Emperor lying in state, he ordered Mr. Edwin Ward, the naturalist, of Wigmore-street, to mount this stag's foot in the form of an inkstand, for a memorial of the Emperor. The task has been well executed. The base is of fine black marble, carved at the corners, recessed to form the pen-tray, and supported by feet, consisting of stags' heads and antlers, in frosted silver. The fetlock contains the inkstand; the cover is the French Imperial crown in solid gold. The outline is a circle of eagles and palm branches, with purple velvet cap inside, decorated with pearls, rubies, and emeralds. Round the bottom is a band of ermine in silver, inlaid with black spots, and surmounting the crown is the usual ball and cross. There are two crystal inkstands on each side, surmounted by the Imperial cipher. The feet stand on a plaque of silver, chased to represent fern leaves and other vegetation appropriate to the stag's habits. The whole is 17 in. long, 12 in. wide, and 13 in. in height to the top of the crown.

NEW METHOD OF IRRIGATION.

One day in the past summer there was a party of visitors assembled at Stoke Park, near Slough, by invitation of Mr. Edward John Coleman, to inspect a novel system of management applied to pasture land. This embraces, first, an increased production of grass; and, secondly, an improved and more economical method of consumption. Mr. Coleman has devoted some forty acres of his park to a trial of the new irrigation with artificial showers, invented by Mr. Isaac Brown, of the British River Irrigation Company, India-buildings, Edinburgh. A 12 horse power steam-engine, working a Tangey force-pump, draws water from the ornamental lake, and waters the whole area with jets of "artificial rain," squirted from small perforations in lead pipes, which are laid down in parallel lines sixteen yards apart. With a pressure of 60 lb. to 70 lb. per square inch, or a head of 120 ft. or more, the engine maintains a shower upon a plot of about an acre and a half in extent, applying ten tons of water in fifteen minutes. Plot after plot is taken in rotation until the whole is thus irrigated, the work in summer proceeding for the most part in the night, so as to avoid any ill effect upon the herbage from watering under a hot sun. Six acres are watered every night. Mr. Coleman has hitherto used the system chiefly for promoting the growth of hay crops, but it is not less available for grazing purposes. Our illustration shows the irrigating apparatus at work combined with the arrangements for pasturing sheep in an economical manner. The sheep are confined in a narrow space between two movable rows of hurdles placed across the width of the meadow, so that they may put out their heads through the front hurdles and eat of the fresh grass in advance of them. The hurdles are shifted four times a day, moving one yard each time; and the ground behind them is then irrigated, to make the grass grow very soon again. It is expected by the advocates of this improved mode of consumption that it will fatten sheep on a tenth part of the area of grass-land hitherto required for the same number, so as to leave nine times as much grass-land to be added to the area used for breeding flocks. This system, instead of demanding an increased supply of store sheep which can never be produced, provides a surplus of pasture upon which the additional stock of lambs may be raised. The meat-consumers of the kingdom will wish the enterprise every success.

The Devastation has returned to Portsmouth, and the nautical verdict on her sea trials is that she has acquitted herself sufficiently well to take her place in the Channel fleet.

Earl Delawarr has entertained a large number of the tenantry on his Cambridgeshire estates, on the occasion of his visit to his ancient family residence in that county.

The Scotsman says that the Hon. and Rev. A. G. Douglas has withdrawn from the candidature for the bishopric of Argyle and the Isles, on the ground that a Bishop ought to be chosen of the whole and not of part of a diocese.

Sergeant Hoff, whose exploits during the siege of Paris have gained so much celebrity, has been appointed to the post of guardian of the Colonne Vendôme by the French Government.

From the report of the Registrar-General on this year's crops and live stock in Ireland, it appears that, compared with 1872, the land under cultivation with wheat shows a decrease of 56,859 acres; oats of 114,622 acres; and potatoes of 88,589 acres. In barley there is an increase of 11,175 acres, and meadow and clover, 37,210 acres.

HOP-GROWING ON THE VINERY PRINCIPLE.

Hop-growing is very picturesque, but it is an anxious and expensive occupation. The grower has many difficulties to contend with; he is positively surrounded by enemies. It is a severe struggle from first to last. If he escapes the flea the red spider is awaiting him; should the spider have to succumb, the fly may put in an appearance, or the still more fatal honey-dew may fill the heart of the farmer with dismay. To keep the insects under, hundreds of barrels of soft soap and tons of sulphur are used every year. The sulphur is sometimes used dry and sometimes mixed with the soft soap, and the plants are washed with it. But there is yet another foe, the last, but by no means the least, of these enemies: it is the wind. When the hops are in an advanced state, should the farmer wake in the night and hear a stiff breeze blowing, he knows that destruction is going on; the bine is lashed and torn, the ground is covered with wreck, often to the extent of cart-loads. In vain are "lews" erected. They afford some shelter; but no plan has succeeded so well as that invented by Mr. Thomas Coley, of Maidstone. His method is this. Two rows of 12-ft. poles are fixed permanently in the ground, 12 ft. apart one way and 3 ft. the other. Each couple is braced together by a cross piece 4 ft. 6 in. from the ground. From this piece to the tops of the next, two uprights, which are 16-ft. poles, are laid, fitting into a staple at the lower end and into a wire fork at the upper. These poles are movable. At the gathering-time the bine is cut and the pole is removed altogether, making the picking much more convenient. By this plan the running surface is greater, and the plant gets more sun and air, and in falling over at the ends of the slanting poles it is quite out of the wind. Though a great improvement, this plan has not deprived the hop-gardens of their beauty; they are even more picturesque than with the old plan of three poles to a "hill." Those about Owen's Court, and Gosmere, near Faversham, where Mr. Coley's plan was first tried, look exceedingly beautiful, and the crops are the heaviest in the county.

THE DANISH TELEGRAPH CABLE.

Early in August of this year a cable was laid successfully between Nordby, in the island of Fanø, Denmark, and Calais; the shore end on the French coast terminating at Les Huttes d'Oye, about ten miles east of Calais, and four miles from Gravelines. The need of this extra and independent communication had been long commercially and politically felt, as the German lines were choked by the flow of messages, and could not be always serviceable. The cable was manufactured by Messrs. Henley, and the Africa and Plata steamers were employed in laying it down, under the superintendence of Mr. Fraser. The length of the cable is 376 miles. Communication having been interrupted about the equinox, the usual tests were successfully applied and the fault discovered by Captain Hoskins on the part of the company. It was all along thought that the defect was very much nearer to the Danish than the French coast, as the result clearly proved it to be.

HUNTING-TROPHY OF THE PRINCE OF WALES, A MEMORIAL OF NAPOLEON III.

Les Huttes d'Oye is the spot where the shore end of the cable is taken to French territory. This village, stretched along the flat coast, is built on the sandy "dunes" common in those parts. There are scattered huts on the sea level, which are comfortably and strongly built, and tiled with bright red; each has its pollarded poplar hedges and potato patch. But the village d'Oye lies one mile more inland, where the view is extensive over flat fields, hedgeless and open, which would form natural battle-fields for large modern armies. Here, however, the foot of the German invader never came. The peasantry around are tall and slight men; the women also tall, but hard featured; all having a well-to-do appearance. Les Huttes d'Oye is merely the sea station of the Danish cable, the principal office being at Calais, adjoining the French telegraph bureau. The cable was brought here, as the immense stretch of sand ensured its safety. The operations of the cable, so far, have been successful, and it promises to be an important link between North and Central Europe.

The general assembly of French Freemasons has resolved to abolish the office of Grand Master. The great council of the united lodges is to take the supreme direction of the order in France.

The Swiss Times states that the Conseil Administratif of Geneva have concluded the purchase of the fine property of Crompton, containing about nine acres and a half, for the sum of 335,100f., subject to the approval of the Municipal Council. The property is beautifully situated on the wooded slope which rises on the north side of the city at Montrilland, and the object of the purchase is to lay it out as a park for the inhabitants of the quarters of St. Gervais and Paquis.

The New York Times gives an account of a swimming-match in the Harlem River, on Sept. 7, between ten young ladies. The prize was a silk dress valued at 175 dols., and the distance a mile. Miss Goboss proved the winner, and Miss Colton was second, the former reaching the stake-boat in forty minutes. Miss Denan led for some time, but resigned her chance for the prize to aid in the rescue of a young man who had accidentally fallen into the water. The spectators resolved to present Miss Denan with a gold watch as a reward for her bravery.

BRADFORD MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.

Our illustrations of the last two or three weeks have shown not a few places, scenes, and objects of interest in the town of Bradford and its neighbourhood, upon the occasion of the Congress of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. With reference to the fine building of which a view is now given, we observe that, on the evening of Tuesday week, a conversation was given in the Mechanics' Institute, the directors of that establishment having kindly thrown open the exhibition to the members of the Association. There was a very large attendance, and not the least popular room was one which had been made available as a refreshment-room, belonging to the Central Liberal Club adjoining. An entrance to this had been effected from the gallery of the lecture hall, and the addition proved a welcome relief to the almost crowded rooms of the Institute. The Mayor lately opened the Art-treasures and Industrial Exhibition in these rooms, the object of which is the liquidation of a debt of £5000 still remaining on the building. The exhibition is on a scale of considerable magnitude, including works of art and industry to the number of upwards of a thousand. The collection of oil-paintings and water-colours forms the most prominent feature of the exhibition. The first room devoted to such works contains productions of local artists to the number of about fifty. Along the walls of seven or eight other rooms are arranged paintings by masters of the modern English and foreign schools.

MOVABLE SCHOOLS AT LIVERPOOL.

One of the difficult problems the Liverpool School Board has had to solve is that of providing accommodation for the lowest class of children, who abound in Liverpool. Some time ago the Board determined to erect in a few places temporary penny schools, as trial schools, before more permanent structures should be erected. As in all such cases they would probably have to be put up on sufferance, and to be removable on notice given by the owner of the land, it was of great importance to adopt some plan by which they could be readily erected and taken down again, when required to be re-erected elsewhere, without damage and at little cost. Several architects were invited to send in plans for schools for 600 children, but the designs chosen were those furnished by Mr. J. Mellard Read, of the firm of Messrs. Read and Goodison, architects and civil engineers, Liverpool. Much delay has occurred in obtaining the contract for the buildings, consisting of three blocks—namely, for infants, boys, and girls' schools—was at once let to Messrs. Jones and Son, of Liverpool; and the whole of the buildings have been put in frame in the builders' yard for some time past, ready to be erected. It has been decided to divide the blocks; and now two blocks, 80 ft. long by 13 ft. wide, are being put up on land in Love-lane, at the North End, belonging to the Liverpool Dock Board; while one block, 100 ft. by 22 ft., is to be put on land at Toxteth Park, South End, belonging to the Earl of Sefton, and situated at the corner of Mill-street and Yates-street. It is not often that a building is constructed as these have been, before a site has been found for it. A few details of the construction, showing how this has been possible, may be interesting. Except the foundations and the slating, the whole is composed of American spruce. The walls are in sections, 10 ft. long by 10 ft. 9 in. high, framed with with posts 4 in. by 3 in. thick, covered on the outside with inch-thick lap boarding, and lined inside with 7-inch rebated vertical boarding. These frames are put together at the junction with an oak tongue, and are well bolted to each other and to the kerbs below. The ends are framed in two pieces, which are of the full heights of the gables. At intervals of 10 ft. apart, and resting on the uprights, are the principals, with backs 9 ft. by 3 ft., held together by iron tie-rods, and footing into cast-iron shoes. When the walls are erected, these principals are simply lifted into their place; purlins are then stretched across, from principal to principal, and the roof is covered with inch-thick spruce sheeting in sections 5 ft. wide, while the length of the slope of the roof is secured with wrought-iron knees and screws. Ventilators are framed in these sheets at intervals, and when all is fixed the boarding is covered with slating. The floor is also framed in sections 5 ft. wide and the length of the width of the school, and secured to the joisting by screws. In each section of the walling is a window or door, as the case may be. The exterior is painted and the interior whitewashed. It will be seen that the building may be put up and taken down again without damage, or the necessity, except in the case of the slating, of driving or drawing a nail. As the whole is constructed in sections 10 ft. long, the school could be lengthened or shortened by additions or detachments of 10 ft. It is thus capable of adaptation to any site or division into any number of schools. The Liverpool School Board has already found the advantage of the system in being able to divide the schools and erect them in two different localities without alteration, and at very little increase of cost. The contract was for £1145. According to the modification adopted, the schools will accommodate 400 children in Love-lane and 300 in Mill-street.

Further information has been received at the Admiralty respecting the attack on the Laroot pirates. The town they occupied surrendered, it seems, with 3000 men, and the stockades and junks were destroyed. According to the despatch the pirates fought well.

Under a new regulation made by the Italian Post Office, in accordance with the present customs laws of Italy, packets consisting of patterns or samples of merchandise sent by post exceeding 8 oz. in weight can no longer be delivered in Italy. Consequently no packets above that weight addressed to Italy can be received hereafter for transmission by the post.

Brazilian news savours of assassination. An attempt was made on the life of President Sarmiento, but ended in the capture of the would-be assassins. At Maranhão an appeal Judge of the mature age of sixty-two has murdered a young woman. The attention of the Senate is about to be engrossed by railway and banking legislation.

The mails to and from the Channel Islands, via Southampton, are now forwarded only four days a week—viz., from London on the nights of Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday. From Jersey and Guernsey, on the mornings of Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday. There will be a mail, via Weymouth, leaving London on Tuesday afternoon by 4.50 p.m. train from Paddington (for which letters, &c., may be posted at the chief office up to 3 p.m.), and leaving Jersey and Guernsey on Thursday morning.

The Extra Supplement.

THE LORD MAYOR'S BANQUET AT YORK.

The Lord Mayor of York entertained the Lord Mayor of London and the Mayors of two hundred other corporate towns with a banquet in the Guildhall at York on Thursday week. This is the scene of stately and sumptuous festivity, several incidents of which form the subjects of our four Engravings prepared for the Extra Supplement given with the present Number of our Journal.

Most of the provincial Mayors assembled in the city of York on the day before the banquet. The Right Hon. Sir Sydney Waterlow, Lord Mayor of London, accompanied by the two Sheriffs and several Aldermen and Common Councillors, with a number of ladies, left London at ten o'clock and arrived at York at a quarter past two, by the Great Northern Railway express train. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs travelled in a saloon carriage, wearing their robes of state. The Lord Mayor of York, with the Aldermen, Town Council, and city officers, met them at the railway station. They were first led, across a crimson-carpeted platform, to luncheon in the adjoining hotel. A procession was then formed to conduct them to the Mansion House of the York Lord Mayor. It was led by the band of the York Artillery Volunteers; first came a long row of carriages, containing members of the York Corporation and provincial Mayors; then the Lord Mayor of York preceded in his carriage the city marshal and the state carriage, with four horses, of the Lord Mayor of London, who was followed by the London sheriffs and aldermen, and by a guard of honour of the York Rifle Volunteers, with their band, the rear of the procession being brought up by a number of private carriages. They passed over the Lendal Bridge, and went on, traversing the same streets as the Prince and Princess of Wales did in 1866, past the Roman Catholic cathedral of St. Wilfrid, past the metropolitan church of St. Peter, better known as York Minster, down Stonegate, then to Sampson-square, along by the market in Parliament-street, over the Ouse Bridge, down Micklegate, and, making a turn by the railway station, back over the Ouse Bridge, and along Coney-street to the Mansion House, where the Lord Mayor of London became the guest of his brother of York. In the city business was entirely suspended, nearly all the shops being closed. Some of the streets were fairly canopied with flags, and there were inscriptions of welcome here and there. The Minster bells rang out cheerily, and the streets were thronged with people, heartily cheering the guests of their city.

The company at the Lord Mayor's banquet began to assemble at the Mansion House, in Spurriergate-street, about six o'clock. They passed through the ancient hall of the Mansion House, adorned with red cloth and tropical plants, to the top of the grand staircase, where they were announced to the Lord Mayors by Mr. Harker, the well-known London toastmaster, and had the honour of shaking hands with the representatives of the two first corporations in England. In this hall, which is hung round with portraits of the Lord Mayors of York and Royal visitors to that city, was passed the time until the toastmaster announced that dinner was served; and then the visitors followed the two Lord Mayors down crimson-covered steps, lined with volunteers presenting arms, to the old Guildhall, built in 1411, and still retaining so much of its early freshness that the stone yet shows the chisel marks. Here, in a gallery over the entrance, was the band of the East York Militia, and a few spectators were admitted; the Lady Mayoress and other ladies were in the gallery. All the arrangements had been so well made that everyone found his seat without difficulty.

The Lord Mayor of York had on his right the Lord Mayor of London. At the high table, or within the inclosure of the dais, were the Earl of Feversham, Earl Cathcart, Mr. Sheriff Perkins, Mr. Sheriff White, Lord Houghton, Mr. J. Lowther and Mr. Leeman (the members for the city of York), Major-General D. Lysons, C.B., commanding Northern District, Captain Curtis Hayward, A.D.C., Colonel Seager, Inspector of Yeomanry Cavalry, Colonel Graham, Royal Engineers, Colonel Nason, commanding Sixth Brigade Depot, Colonel Fitzhugh, Inspector of Auxiliary Forces, Mr. Alderman Finnis, Mr. Alderman Cotton, Mr. Alderman Lawrence, M.P., Sir J. D. Lawrence, M.P., Mr. M'Arthur, M.P., the Hon. and Very Rev. Augustus Duncombe, Dean of York, the Ven. Archdeacon Jones, the Mayors of Liverpool, Manchester, and Leeds; while the heads of the Corporations of more than a hundred other towns were among the general company. In the body of the hall were Sir John Bennett, Mr. Under-Sheriff Crossley, Mr. Frank Lancaster, of Southampton, Mr. Augustus Smith, Mr. Philip Waterlow, and about a hundred other gentlemen, mostly connected with municipal corporations.

The hall was decorated by Mr. Gibson Hartley, of York, in accordance with the suggestions of Mr. Joseph Wilkinson, the town clerk. The wall spaces between the windows and the old oaken octagonal pillars that support the fine wood roof of the hall were decorated with groups of shields of the arms of the Corporations of England and Wales, and around the shields were draped flags, while the lower part of the walls, the pillars, and the gallery were covered with crimson cloth. What with the remarkably fine stained glass illuminated from the outside of the Guildhall, the floral and green decorations, shields and flags, the gas and candles, and épergnes laden with fruit or flowers, and the bright scarlet robes which a few of the Mayors continued to wear, the scene was animated and brilliant, if not beautiful. It would not be rendered more effective, in a pictorial view, for the purpose of our illustration, by reporting the speeches, which were appropriate to the occasion and all in good taste. The toasts were expressive of loyalty and patriotism, and of particular zeal for the maintenance of all municipal franchises vested in the towns of England, or rather of the United Kingdom.

Father O'Keeffe has broken off his negotiations with Bishop Moran as abruptly as he began them. The terms offered him were absolution and a curate's stipend during good behaviour, provided he resigned his parish. He now announces that he has rejected them with scorn.

Mr. Coxwell recently made an ascent from the Alexandra Park for the purpose of testing the theory of an easterly current, on which Professor Wise and Mr. Donaldson calculated in their proposed Atlantic voyage. He left the ground under the influence of an easterly current, at a temperature of 61 deg. At a height of 2600 feet the balloon veered round in a south-westerly direction, and was carried across the Thames at Chelsea. At 10,000 ft. it kept a level course, but from north to south, and not, as the American aeronauts assumed, from west to east. "The light cloudy streamers far above it were," he says, "drifting in a similar direction, thus proving that, at least on that day, the movement of the upper atmosphere was from pole to pole." The party descended at Buckland, near Box-hill, which Mr. Coxwell says will be found to be nearly due south of his starting-point at Horney.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Sept. 29.

In describing the French court last week I omitted to call attention to the remarkable display made by M. Deak, the great Parisian manufacturer of decorative faience, who retains his place at the head of ceramic art in France. He appears to have been treated with a great want of appreciation by the French Commission, who assigned him less than half the space he applied for, thereby compelling him to crowd the valuable works which he exhibits too much together, to their manifest disadvantage. M. Deak has no superior in decorative pottery, mural plaques with figure groups, vases, tazzas and platters, his style of execution being illustrated to perfection by a wonderful series of gorgeous Oriental embossings in majolica. His colours, too, are always marvels of beauty; and, although his stand is far from favourably lighted for the perfect exhibition of such delicate productions, their richness cannot fail to strike every eye. Among his collection we find works signed by Messrs. Ranvier, Anker, Gluck, Ehrmann, and Legrain—artists who know how to unite elegant and perfect design with a fine feeling for colour. M. Ranvier excels in painting idyllic subjects, and does not hesitate, in order to give more relief to his figures, to slightly emboss them, colouring them afterwards with delicacy, as was the practice at Capo di Monti. His colleagues, MM. Gluck and Anker, paint, for the most part, figures in the mediæval style, and delight in deep greenish-blue backgrounds. Treading closely on the heels of Deak come Collinot, with his Persian and Japanese faïences, which are especially beautiful, and Pull, a most enthusiastic potter whose imitations of Palissy faïence are perfect in their style. Geoffroy, with his exquisite restorations of the Moustier style and careful copies of old Roman faïences, comes close behind, with Rousseau, whose paintings on enamelled china are most beautiful in their way.

In carpets and tapestry the well-known house of Sallandrouze, father and son, of Aubusson, sustains all its old reputation. The bulk of their exhibits are in the florid old and still more florid modern French style, but they also display one or two quiet Persian-pattern carpets of considerable merit. Their two magnificent pieces of tapestry, symbolical of the city of Paris in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, are noble works. The harmony of the colours is most felicitous, the tints are warm and pure, the faces and flesh of the female figures who personate the French capital admirably executed, and the drapery and backgrounds faultless. MM. Braquenie's stuffs for furniture are, perhaps, the finest in the entire exhibition. They are altogether admirable productions—the workmanship is perfect, the harmonies and contrasts of the tender transparent colours are something exquisite, and the designs are both spirited and graceful, although to English tastes many of them will seem out of place. For instance, as a sofa-covering we are presented with the Rape of Europa; while on an arm-chair we have the finding by Diana of Endymion, with the rising moon and all the accessories of Mr. Longfellow's pretty poem. The covering of another chair presents us with a representation of Don Quixote in his study; while a pretty little tapis de pied, bordered with wreaths of flowers, is adorned with the figure of Penelope carrying her distaff. In France, however, it seems to be by no means uncommon to find oneself sitting on a pair of doves, or a true lover's knot traversed by an arrow, a phylandering shepherd and shepherdess, or even a waterfall and ancient chateau; while people think nothing of crushing a splendid bouquet of flowers every time they sit down. The principal piece of tapestry displayed by MM. Braquenie depicts a wolf-hunt, and is remarkable for the energetic conception of the design.

Among the French exhibitors of bronzes—of whom Barbedienne is the chief—we must not ignore M. Thiebaut, who displays the monster lion which stands on a lofty pedestal in the great Rotunda. The same manufacturer exposes a large collection of statues and statuettes, many after Clesinger, and known to all who have visited the Paris salon of late years. Royer exhibits grand garniture de cheminées in the Louis XIV., Louis XV., and Louis XVI. styles, and magnificent decorative vases in marble, onyx, and gilt bronze. Susse and Servant, Lemaire and Levy display many remarkable art-bronzes; and Fameze frères expose the magnificent bronze cup presented to M. de Lesseps, symbolising the piercing of the Isthmus of Suez. The same firm also exhibit a handsome aiguière in repoussé silver; two fine cups with repoussé designs, one representing Spring and the other the birth of Amphitrite; besides a splendid clock in lapis lazuli, enriched with allegorical ornaments in silvered and gilt bronze. Then comes Baguès, with his clocks, candelabra, and chandeliers; and Bellenger-Fasbender, with his handsome bronzed girandoles, fire-dogs, and fenders.

The remainder of the western nave having been described in preceding letters, we must now pass across the Rotunda to the corresponding nave, where Austria has her profuse display. Right at the entry of this nave stands the stall of MM. Kobek and Egidi, the Court jewellers, who display, among other wonderful parures, an historical necklace of brilliants, value £50,000, which Napoleon I. presented to his wife, the Empress Maria Louisa. The great Stewart diamond, from South Africa, valued at nearly £40,000, figures also among their display, which is rich in coronets, necklaces, brooches, and bracelets of enormous value. In the Rotunda also, at a stone's-throw from MM. Kobek and Egidi's case, are the stalls of Biedermann and Granichsleuten. The former exhibits many dazzling parures, the most remarkable of which is one in diamonds and rubies, executed to adorn the gorgeous state costume of a wealthy Hungarian magnate. The display of MM. Granichsleuten and Co., who show both plate and jewellery, is equally brilliant, and abounds in objects of great worth.

The jewellers' and goldsmiths' art has attained rare perfection in Vienna, thanks to the liberal encouragement of the wealthy Austrian and Hungarian nobility; and in the adjoining nave a vast number of valuable parures and surtouts will be found. The Austrian display is resplendent with those innumerable objets de luxe for which she is so famed. Besides the rich and brilliant jewellery, there are rare marqueterie, gorgeous upholstery, rich and intricate leather-work, bronzes, all kinds of nicknacks, and a wealth of amber and carved meerschaum which will have irresistible fascination for Western smokers. But where she appears with the most marked effect is in her courts of glass, where innumerable sparkling lustres suspended in profusion among falling showers of glancing drops hang over one, the walls being lined with resplendent mirrors, and the centre of the gallery occupied by tables covered with dazzling crystal and magnificent Bohemian ware of every hue.

Assembled in the eastern nave are the stalls of August and Theodor Klein, Franz Bergmann, Joseph Ott, Anton Bing, Louis Bohm, Jacques Kùw, Ignas Luksch, F. Neiber, Carl Wenisch, and others, who display every species of "Wiener artikel," as those elegant leather, papier-mâché, bronze, and carved wood nicknacks, for which the Austrian capital is renowned, are displayed. Some of the most charming of these are the cigar-cases ornamented with delicate paintings of women and children and microscopical flowers. Many of the photographic albums are also superb, and their bronzes, gilt, jewelled, and enamelled leather, ivory, and mother-of-pearl bindings are frequently exquisite works of art. By no one has this branch of trade been carried to a higher perfection than by August Klein, who sustains his world-wide reputation by an admirable display. I spoke a few minutes ago of the Vienna meerschaums. In the Austrian capital the art of meerschaum-carving has reached the highest possible point of perfection, and Vienna supplies every part of the smoking world with her elegant, tasteful, and at the same time remarkably cheap pipes, cigar and cigarette holders. A whole court is set aside for exhibits of this nature, every possible variety of which is displayed in great profusion. The commercial branch of the Viennese bronze trade is also admirably represented at the Exhibition; and the candlesticks and chimney ornaments displayed by MM. Dziedzinaki and Hanusch, who supplied the beautiful ornamental bronze-work of the new Vienna opera-house, and the handsome chandeliers of Hollanbach, are equal to many of those shown in the French court.

THE VIENNA CATTLE SHOW.

One of the distinctive features of the Vienna Exhibition will have been the horse and cattle shows, held in a vast inclosed space in the Prater, to the east of the Weltanstellung. At the present moment a horse show, at which specimens of all the finest breeds of Eastern Europe will be found, is taking place, and in a few days there will be a series of races for prizes to be contributed by the Emperor, the Archdukes, the Exhibition authorities, and the Viennese Municipality. The principal is the Exhibition prize of £1363 (15,000 florins), with a piece of plate valued at £100, added to a sweepstakes of £27 each.

At the cattle, sheep, and pig show, of which an illustration is given in this Number, Great Britain appeared to singular advantage, and none of the animals exhibited surpassed our beautiful shorthorns, our pure Southdown and Shropshire sheep, and our splendid Windsor and Berkshire pigs. Mr. Smith, of Sutton Mill, Yorkshire, and Mr. J. Fowler, of the Prebendal Farm, Aylesbury, each secured medals of merit for their magnificent roan steers—beautiful compact animals, without their equals in the show. Italy sent an interesting collection of her great white Reggion, Novara, Lucca, Pinerolo, and Arczzo steers and cows, such as the traveller meets in hundreds grazing on the banks of the Arno or in the Piedmontese plains. The great majority of these beasts being intended for draught, there was a slight want of flesh about them, but otherwise they were handsome and well proportioned. Germany, represented by the Montafener, Simmenthaler, Freiburger and Oldenburg, West and East Friesland Dutch and shorthorn breeds, secured a large number of prizes, the majority being awarded to members of the familiar black and white Holland race. In the Austrian section Baron Romaszkan, of Horodenka, secured a first-class prize for a remarkably handsome silver grey Podoli calf, and Herr Stiff received several medals for his splendid Murzthaler oxen. Some of the finest cattle exposed here was that displayed by the great Austrian and German noblemen, Princes Schwarzenberg Liechtenstein and Schaumburg-Lippe, the Archduke Albert and the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. Prince Schwarzenberg's powerful Bernese cows and delicate cream-coloured, compact Marhofer shorthorns were much admired. The Styrian and Tyrolean exhibitions were extremely interesting, as was also the Hungarian, where each stall had its attendant keeper, clothed in an elaborately embroidered loose white robe, or an ample white woollen cloak adorned with arabesques of red and blue braid, and wearing fabulous head-gear and high boots. Here one found the magnificent Almásy and Csáky cattle, with their white bodies, bluish-grey heads, and branching horns, the tips of many of which were at least five feet apart. The most attractive part of the Hungarian show, however, was the separate pen of the Kapuvár Agricultural Society, situated near the entrance to the grounds, and forming the centre subject of our sketch, and where some splendid cattle, with handsome shapes and graceful heads, of a breed reared by Prince Esterhazy, were displayed. By the side of the pen where they were confined rose a curious, tent-like Hungarian hut, with a dog-kennel, a primitive fireplace composed of three cross poles, from which hung an iron pot, and a well, which one had to look down the trunk of a hollow tree to discover. Scattered round about, seated on benches outside or lying cozily inside the hut, were Hungarian peasants, in the most picturesque of their striking national costumes.

In the pig and sheep sheds, where Great Britain made a very satisfactory display, Lords Sondes and Walsingham each obtained medals of progress for their splendid Southdowns, Lord Chesham a similar award for his unequalled Shropshires, and Mr. Russell, of Horton Kirby, for his fine long-wooled Kents; while Messrs. Swanwick, Fowler, and Duckering, the first exhibiting Berkshire, the second Windsor, and the third Lincolnshire pigs, each secured medals for merit. France displayed some fine merinos from Rambouillet and La Pommeraye; Italy some little Bergamos and tall Bergamaschi; and Germany principally merinos, electorals, and negretts, the finest coming from Pomerania and Silesia. Austria and Hungary showed every variety of merino, pure and crossed, that it is possible to have; the latter, moreover, displaying a few curious Wallachian sheep; and Russia, singular as it may seem, a few pure Spanish. Germany had pigs of English breeds to show, but Italy sent some curious little black hogs unknown in this country; while Austria followed in the steps of Germany, and Hungary offered for inspection its ferocious woolly Mangalica swine, one of which is depicted in the drawing we engrave.

A meeting was held at Brighton, last Saturday, to further the erection of a school of art and science. The cost is to be about £5000. Many liberal donations have been made, and there is a fair prospect of success.

Major Moncrieff's new development of a self-elevating gun-carriage has been subjected to a preliminary course of experiment at Woolwich. Its distinctive feature is a cylinder containing water and compressed air, on which the force of recoil operates by means of a piston. The working of the carriage elicited general admiration.

Nitah Surawongse, a young Siamese noble, destined to occupy a high military position in his own country, applied, in January, 1872, for permission to undergo a course of military training with one of her Majesty's regiments, and the second battalion 22nd Regiment, then at Aldershot, was selected by the Commander-in-Chief to receive the distinguished young stranger. Here he applied himself with the utmost assiduity to master all the details of his future profession, for which he displayed remarkable aptitude; and on quitting the regiment, in December last, he carried with him the friendship and esteem of all with whom he had come in contact. On leaving he presented a handsome centrepiece of solid silver (manufactured by Messrs. Elkington) to the officers of the regiment.

PRIZE ANIMALS AT THE INTERNATIONAL CATTLE SHOW OF THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

THE MAYORS' BANQUET AT YORK.

RECEPTION OF THE LORD MAYOR OF LONDON.

PROCESSION TO DINNER, LED BY THE LORD MAYOR OF YORK.

THE LORD MAYOR'S TABLE.

THE MAYORS' BANQUET AT YORK.

DINNER OF THE LORD MAYORS AND MAYORS IN THE GUILDHALL.

KROLL'S GARDENS, BERLIN.

Archæology of the Month.

Arrangements have been made for the Archæological Congress which is to take place next year in Russia. It will be held at Kiev, from Aug. 13 to Aug. 17. The Grand Duke Constantine will be the honorary president. The principal feature will be an exhibition of antiquities from all the Slavonic countries, dating from pre-historic times to the end of the fourteenth century. There will be an "archæological excursion" along the shores of the Dnieper, from Vniagorod to Kanef. Explorations will be made among the ruins of the neighbourhood, and some of the Kurgans, or tumuli, within easy reach of Kiev will be opened.

The Bedfordshire Archæological Society, this year, visited St. Albans. The company took a cursory view of Barnard's Heath, north of the town, with its earthworks—the scene of the Yorkists' defeat under the Earl of Warwick, at the hands of Margaret of Anjou in 1461, in "the second battle of St. Albans." Upon their return the archæologists alighted at the clock tower, said to have been built between 1402 and 1427: possibly it may have been erected at first to bring the curfew-bell near to the centre of the town. The whole is a very curious structure, and unique in this country. St. Michael's Church is the resting-place of Lord Bacon, Baron of Verulam, and Viscount of St. Albans. His alabaster statue fills a recess in the north wall of the chancel: he is represented in his chancellor's robes, reclining in an elbow-chair. The party next turned their steps towards the third of Abbot Wulstan's foundations, the church of St. Stephen, on the Roman road of Watling-street. The return path to St. Albans afforded a distant view of the ruins of Sopwell Nunnery. Camden and Stukeley record the tradition that Henry VIII. was here married to Anne Boleyn. The venerable Abbey of St. Albans proved very attractive.

At the Somersetshire Archæological Society's meeting, held at Wells, the beautiful cathedral was visited and illustrated. Among other attractions, the Rev. Prebendary Scarth read a paper descriptive of an inscribed stone which was found within the Roman station at Sea-mills. He combated the idea of a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries that the stone was Mithraic, contending that it was a Christian tombstone. The Rev. Prebendary Earle regarded the word "Spes" engraved on the stone as a religious sentiment, and not a name, as had been suggested.

The Yorkshire Archæological Association visited York this year. Mr. Barber read a paper on the Guildhall and the Guilds, the Council Chamber, and the Mansion House. The company next visited the cathedral, and inspected the nave, the north transept, the chapter-house, presbytery, choir, and crypt. They then inspected the remains of the multangular tower, parts of the Roman walls, more subsequent city walls; St. Mary's Abbey, St. Leonard's Hospital, and the Hospitium.

A party of archæologists recently inspected a series of camps, mounds, and earthworks, which were discovered during the past year, by Mr. J. T. Burgess, in central Warwickshire. The first of these earthworks is a large trenched camp, near Claverton, in Barmoor Wood. A deep fosse surrounds an elliptical area, which is connected with a level plateau by a narrow causeway; the hill is sharply escarped, and surrounding the whole are traces of terraced valla. On Yarningdale hill, to the east, is a twin tumulus; and some three miles north is the great mound of Donnilee, near Henly-in-Arden, on which the De Montforts erected their castle of Beaudesert. This camp is one of a series of ancient frontier fortresses lying within the forest of Arden, on the northern bank of the Avon. In Oakley Wood, between Banbury and Warwick, the party inspected a formidable vallum and fosse, inclosing an area of some six acres, pronounced of decidedly military character. This intrenchment lies three miles from the Roman camp at Chesterton, and is one mile to the north of the Fosse-way. Previously unknown mounds and intrenchments at Hodnall, Frizmore-hill, and Bowshot-wood were pointed out by Mr. Burgess, who then led the party to the woods which skirt Redhill, above Wellesbourne, where is a series of intrenchments of a peculiar character and of great extent.

The Monmouth and Caerleon Antiquarian Association held their annual meeting in Usk Castle, the history of which was traced by the president from the time of William the Conqueror.

At Leicester, 15, Newark-street, has been excavated, at 7ft. depth, a large leaden coffin, inclosed in a wooden chest, which crumbled away. The coffin lay east and west, and contained a skeleton, of which the skull is very fine and perfect, and is of the dolichocephalic or longheaded type. Fragments of Samian ware were also found in excavating. The date of the interment is presumed Roman, or between Roman and mediæval times.

In excavating for the foundations of a new building at the bottom of Queen Victoria-street has been laid bare a portion of the Old Wall Brook, as well as some ancient pottery, and a few gold trinkets; besides a number of bones, considered to be those of Saxons, Romans, and ancient Britons.

The demolition of one of the canonical houses attached to the cathedral of Norwich has exposed to view the remains of the Norman refectory of the Benedictine convent, discovering many features of great interest to the archæologist. This is almost the only instance of a Norman refectory existing in England in so perfect a state. The stones in many places have been reddened by fire, a memorial of the great conflagration of the cathedral and its buildings in 1272, arising out of a quarrel between the prior and the citizens.

The tomb of Joshua, the son of Nun, is stated to have been discovered by M. Guérin, the French explorer in Palestine. The tomb is situated at Tigné, the ancient Timnath Serath, the heritage of Joshua. In the hill at this spot one tomb has a vestibule into which the light of day penetrates, and the place has nearly 300 niches for lamps. The vestibule gives entrance to two chambers, one containing fifteen receptacles for coffins, and the other but one, in which M. Guérin supposes the body of Joshua to have been deposited; and he thinks he has discovered strong evidence of this in the statement that the sharp flint knives with which Joshua used to circumcise the Children of Israel at Gilgal were buried in his tomb. On removing the dirt from the floor of the tomb, a large number of flint knives were found, as well as in Gilgal, the passage of the Jordan. The pillars in the vestibule of the tomb are surrounded by a fillet, in the style of Egyptian monuments.

Lambeth Palace repairs are nearly completed. The Lollards' Tower has been newly roofed, and the whole structure restored, and is now occupied by the Bishop of Lichfield as a town house. The Gate Tower, erected by Cardinal Morton about 400 years ago, has also been restored; the library, built by Wren, has been repaired, and the adjacent manuscript-room repaired and rendered fireproof; it contains the records of the palace and many precious manuscripts, one of which bears, it is alleged, the signature of Canute.

St. Martin Outwich Church removal has been commenced, the parish being united with that of St. Helen, Bishopsgate. The parish of St. Martin is one of the oldest in the City. One of its monuments, dated 1385, is said to be the earliest citizen monument in London; it is to John Otterwhith and his wife.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

The continuity of extra-Parliamentary utterances has been unbroken. No day without a speech, or many speeches, from conciliating and confidence-asking members to sympathetic and appreciative constituents. The Conservatives are all agog about the believed reaction of their principles, and the Liberals are forcing themselves to deride the idea that they and their political doctrines are in decadence. It would ill congrue with the position he now holds in the House if the appearance of Sir Massey Lopes before a portion of his electorate were not to be mentioned with all appropriate reverence. Be it understood that last Session, when the subject of local taxation was being, so to speak, flirted with by the Government, Sir Massey Lopes, as the leader under whom that decisive victory was gained over the Ministry on this question, demeaned himself with quiet dignity. During the tedious discussions on the rating bills—in which the Opposition, having the better knowledge of the details of the subject, bothered those on the Treasury bench who had the carriage of the bills, not a little—he, as he well might, did not constantly intervene and deliver himself ex cathedra, but contented himself with a speechlet or two, general in their terms, and signifying that he was aware that all that was going on was nearly a sham, and that he and those who support him bided their time. When he was communicating with his friends at Doddbrooke the other day he expressed himself contented with the situation as regarded local taxation, inasmuch as it had made some progress. After his manner, he was rough upon the Government for their ignoring the agricultural interest, while he uttered some sentiments as to the relations between landlord and tenant, which must have been gratifying to his audience.

Having been assisting at the inauguration of a Working-Man's Constitutional Association at Newton Abbott, Sir John Kennaway, one of the members for East Devon, is obvious as a subject for remark. A year or two ago, when he was a fledgling in the House, some efforts which he made to "imp his wings" were promising, and it was thought that when he really began to fly he would fly high. Last Session he had an opportunity complete for showing what real quality was in him—that is, he made a long speech. It must be said that he did not take the assembly he addressed by storm; and though it would be inexact to say that he did not handle his subject knowingly, yet he was not, as was expected, epigrammatic and pointed; and, indeed, there were some insensate persons who declared that he was dull, if not prosy. However, he has in him the elements of a good member, and it is more than likely that he is well regarded in his electoral district, and rhetorically, as compared with at least one of his Devonshire colleagues, who was with him on the occasion, he must "stick fiery off indeed."

The name of Sir John Lubbock is nearly famous as a man most "various." As a legislator he has done well; for he, a private member, has actually passed an Act which has produced a sort of social revolution, inasmuch as it has added to the few holidays which the population at large enjoy in this country, and that without any circumlocution or pretext of saints' days, or days of nominal religious observance. Then, when he can catch the Speaker's eye, he is sure to enlist the attention of the House, though he was unlucky last Session, having had to wait in vain, night after night, for some special motion which he wanted to bring on; while a bill which he introduced providing for the preservation of ancient monuments stuck for months at its second reading, and collapsed in the last days of legislation, and is only in supposition and hope of revival next year. To the electors of Maidstone, whom he represents, and whom he has been lately addressing, it may be said that the best thing they can do is to keep Sir John Lubbock as their member for as long as he is desirous of holding that position, inasmuch as by him they gain a prominence in the House of Commons, which few constituencies enjoy. Recently Sir John has been helping the good folk of that borough to expand an institution which is in its midst, with which he is sure to sympathise, the existence of which is, on the face of it, creditable to Maidstone, and which is called the Working Men's Science Classes.

When one learns by hearsay that Lord John Manners has been addressing an agricultural meeting on the prosaic subject of beef and mutton, one wonders whether he treated that question in the exalted, excited style which characterises all his speeches in the House. Surely he could not talk of bullocks in that loud, high-pitched tone of voice, in that eager aggressive manner, and in that inflated language which he uses in the House, when, as his custom is, he is abusing Ministers as incapables, and something worse. Probably that genial side of his temperament which he is known to possess is turned towards his rustic audience, and he makes things as pleasant for them as he makes things unpleasant for those to whom he addresses himself in Parliament. Around the noble Lord at Loughborough, which was the scene of his recent appearance, were several Parliamentary satellites. Thus there was Mr. Unwin Heygate, who, if solidity and gravity of demeanour and solemnity of utterance are indications of wisdom, must be a very sage; there were Mr. Clowes, who is an invisible (in the House) representative of Leicestershire, and Colonel Dyott, who must have been an importation from Staffordshire specially for that occasion, and who exhibits so wonderful a talent for silence in his place in Parliament that it could hardly have been with an expectation that he would contribute to the oratory of the occasion that he was invited to the meeting.

It is more than probable that few people are aware that there are three Mr. Brights in the House. To those who are so ill-informed, let there be presented Mr. Richard Bright, who no doubt worthily, though silently, represents East Somersetshire, who has been lately shining—or glimmering, as the case may be—as a star at Frome, where there has been a cheese exhibition, as well as an exhibition of members, of whom Mr. Henry Lopes was one, he being in the situation of suitor to the borough, from which Mr. Thomas Hughes makes his exit when the present Parliament dies, either a violent death or by inanition. Then, at a social gathering at Burslem, met Sir Smith Child, a sturdy county Conservative, and Mr. Roden, a Liberal and something more, out of the Potteries; and perhaps the most notable sentiment which the county member uttered was that there was too much talk in the House; and certainly he verifies his opinion by his practice; for he does not contribute to the babble which he deprecates, though Mr. Roden is often striving to do what he can towards multiplication of speeches.

Soon after the election of 1868 Mr. Alderman Carter, a new Radical M.P. for Leeds, made one or two attempts to make himself heard, but somehow there was no such fascination in his oratory as to induce encouragement to be given to its pouring forth, and so he sank into silence for a long time. In the penultimate days of last Session some inspiration came upon him, and on several occasions he speechified to the twenty-five or so members that were left. During the recess he has been keeping up continuity in loquacity; once presiding over a home-rule meeting, where, almost on his own confession, he was surprised that anything so rich and rare as himself should have been found there. Apparently he was more at his ease when he was, last week, addressing a Leeds Radical Reform Association, and he was bold in assertion that the last Session had not been wasted, probably because he himself was busy in a sort of way; and he seemed hopeful of the standing together of the Liberal party against the alleged Conservative reaction, if Mr. Gladstone would display his wonted activity of mind—a phrase which, being interpreted, means that the Liberals want a good round scheme of demolition, which would be exciting.

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

Messrs. J. B. Cramer and Co. have just issued some pleasing music that will be welcome in drawing-room circles. That well-known and successful composer of songs and ballads, Miss Virginia Gabriel, has set some sentimental lines by Russell Gray, "Words, vain Words," to an expressive melody that lies within a limited compass of voice. Another name that has been long associated with ballad music is that of Miss Elizabeth Philp, whose setting of "Restored" (lines by C. J. Rowe) again exemplifies that lady's power of writing effectively for the singer within a small range of voice, and with an avoidance of executive difficulties.

A set of five songs, by Mrs. Harvey, of Ickwell Bury, attests both the literary and musical skill of that lady. The titles of these pieces are "Maying," "I'm faithful to thee," "The Song of the Water Nymphs," "On a dewy summer morning," and "Jeanie." The last named, a ballad, has been sung by Madame Sainton-Dolby. In these, and in her setting of Burns's lines, "The winter now is past," Mrs. Harvey has shown a nice perception of melodic phrasing appropriate to the sentiment to be expressed. One or two points in the accompaniments are open to objection, such as the consecutive octaves between the bass and the vocal melody in the last line of the first page of "Maying;" but these are probably mere slips of the pen, and are easily corrected, in the case just referred to, by changing the bass to C.

Messrs. Boosey's "Royal Edition" of national songs has been further extended by the issue of "The Songs of Ireland," just published in large octavo size, uniform with the preceding volumes of English, Scottish, and Welsh melodies. The collection now referred to is edited by Mr. J. L. Molloy, who has arranged new symphonies and accompaniments. Fifty of Moore's Irish melodies are given, besides many celebrated songs, with the original words and some well-known airs expressly adapted to suitable verses. The interest and the extent of the contents of this volume render it a worthy pendant to its predecessors.

Messrs. Novello, Ewer, and Co. have added Mozart's "Die Zauberflöte" ("Il Flauto Magico") to their valuable series of the octavo edition of operas. This renowned work, belonging to the latter period of Mozart's career, and including some of his most popular melodies, is given with the original German text, and an English translation by Madame Macfarren, the musical editorship having been in the competent hands of Mr. Berthold Tours. As in previous volumes of the series, valuable indications are given throughout of the leading orchestral effects of the score.

The "Organist's Quarterly Journal" (also published by Messrs. Novello, Ewer, and Co.) has now reached its nineteenth issue. The contents of the last number are varied and interesting, comprising marches by Mr. C. E. Horsley, Mr. J. H. Wallis, and Mr. J. Pattinson, an introductory voluntary by Dr. Verrinder, a postlude by Mr. B. Tours, a romance by Mr. R. F. Brion, and an andante pastorale by Mr. J. Tomlinson.

The "Musical Monthly," published by Messrs. Enoch and Sons and edited by Sir J. Benedict, has now reached nine issues in its double shape—pianoforte pieces and songs. The latest numbers contain, in the former division, some very pleasing pieces in a great variety of styles. Among the many names of those who have contributed to this department are those of Franz Abt, E. M. Delaborde, H. A. Wollenhaupt, E. Silas, and Berthold Tours. The collection of songs will be found quite worthy of comparison with the instrumental pieces. Here, again, we recognise some well-known names—M. Gounod, Franz Abt, Henry Smart, Chevalier de Kontski, Charles Salaman, J. L. Hatton, Madame Sainton-Dolby, and others have produced some pieces that offer abundant variety and contrast between the lighter and more serious styles. The work is beautifully printed, the music is copyright, and yet the price is only ninepence per number.

The gold medal of the Royal Artillery Institution at Woolwich for this year has been awarded to Lieutenant E. Clayton, of No. 1 battery, 10th brigade, Royal Artillery, for the best essay on "The Principles which Regulate the Efficiency of Artillery Projectiles."

The Postmaster-General has issued a pamphlet drawing the attention of the public to the advantages of postal telegraph cards, post-office savings banks (in which we learn there are now 1,535,000 depositors), Government insurances and annuities, and especially to the great assistance they could give to the Post Office by the general adoption of street-door letter-boxes.

At a public meeting held in Liverpool, on Monday, convened by the Mayor, a committee was appointed for the purpose of collecting subscriptions for the establishment of a fine-art gallery in that town. The estimated cost of the proposed gallery is £25,000, and five Liverpool gentlemen have already promised contributions of £1000 each.

A public meeting was held in Birmingham Townhall, on Monday, in reference to the Ashantee war, and resolutions adopted expressing regret at the outbreak of hostilities, a hope that our settlements on the Gold Coast would continue to be limited to trading stations, and throwing suspicion on the Fantes of having, on the strength of the British protectorate, needlessly quarrelled with the Ashantees.

The public gardens, purchased and beautified by Mr. Julius Brenchley, of Milgate Park, and the museum, containing his collection of birds, shells, ivories, bronzes, &c., together costing upwards of £20,000, were thrown open to the public, last week, amid great rejoicing. At half past two p.m., the Mayor and Corporation of Maidstone walked in procession from the Townhall to the gardens, and declared them open. At four there was a luncheon in the Townhall, and in the evening a conversation was held in the museum. The munificent donor did not live to see the completion of a work in which he had taken so great an interest. He died last February.

Professor Williamson, President of the British Association, distributed the prizes to the pupils of the Liverpool School of Science yesterday week; on Monday the Bishop of Manchester presented the prizes gained during the past year to the successful pupils of the Salford Working Men's College, Great George-street; and Sir John Lubbock distributed, last week, the prizes to members of the science classes, in connection with the Maidstone Working Men's Club, who have successfully passed the Government examinations.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR R. R. MACKENZIE, BART.

Sir Robert Ramsay Mackenzie, tenth Baronet, of Coull, Ross-shire, died on the 19th ult., at 6, Atherton-terrace, South Kensington. He was born July 21, 1811, the fourth son of Sir George Stenart Mackenzie, Bart., F.R.S., Vice-President of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, by his wife, Mary, fifth daughter of the late Donald MacLeod, Esq., of Geanies, Ross-shire; and was brother to Sir William Mackenzie, ninth Baronet, whom he succeeded, Dec. 21, 1868. Sir Robert was at one time Colonial Treasurer, and afterwards Premier of Queensland. He married, in 1846, Louisa Alexandrina, daughter of Richard Jones, Esq., of Sydney, New South Wales, M.L.C., and had, besides four daughters, an only son, now Sir Arthur George Ramsay Mackenzie, who was born May 2, 1866.

SIR W. D. GODFREY, BART.

Sir William Duncan Godfrey, third Baronet, of Bushfield (now Kilcoleman Abbey), in the county of Kerry, J.P., whose death at his residence in Kerry is just announced, was born Aug. 31, 1797, the eldest son of Sir John Godfrey, second Baronet, by Eleanor, his wife, daughter of John Cromie, Esq., of Cromore. His family, which claimed to be of the Kentish Godfreys, was established in Ireland by Major John Godfrey, who obtained, temp. Charles II., a very extensive grant of land for his public services. Sir William married, Oct. 14, 1824, Maria Theresa, second daughter of John Coltsmann, Esq., of Flesk Castle, in the county of Kerry, and had seven sons and two daughters. He succeeded to the baronetcy at the decease of his father, in 1841, and the title now devolves on his eldest son, Sir John Fermor Godfrey, as fourth Baronet. He was born in 1828; and was married, in 1856, to Mary Cordelia, only child of Thomas White Scutt, Esq., of Clapham House, Lillington, Sussex.

MR. CLAY, M.P.

James Clay, Esq., M.P. for Hull, who died on the 26th ult., was born in 1804, the son of the late James Clay, a London merchant, by Mary, his wife, eldest daughter of William Ems, Esq., of Bowbridge, Derbyshire, and Elvetham Park, Hants. He was educated at Winchester, and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he graduated in 1827. Following his father's pursuits, he became an eminent merchant of this City, and, advocating extreme Liberal views, was elected M.P. for Hull in 1847. In 1837 he had unsuccessfully contested Beverley, and in 1841 the borough for which he afterwards sat. He married, in 1830, Eliza Camilla, daughter of Joseph Allen Woolrych, Esq., of Weobley, Herefordshire, and by her, who died in 1855, had four sons and one daughter. The eldest son, Harry Ernest Clay, Esq., for some time Chargé d'Affaires at Paris, and subsequently Secretary of Legation at Bern, assumed the additional surnames and arms of Ker-Seymer by Royal licence, in 1864, on his marriage with Gertrude, the only child and heiress of the late Henry Ker-Seymer, Esq., of Hanford, M.P. for Dorsetshire.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The confirmation of the will and two codicils of the Right Hon. John Alexander, Earl of Hopetoun, granted by the Commissariat of Linlithgow, was sealed at the principal registry, London, on the 11th ult.; the inventory of the personal estate in England and Scotland amounts to nearly £95,000. The executor nominate is testator's eldest son, John Adrian Louis, now Earl of Hopetoun.

The will of the Hon. Henry Wodehouse, late of No. 24, Upper Brook-street, who died on Aug. 20, at Athens, was proved, on the 22nd ult., by Philip Henry Wodehouse Currie, the acting executor, the personalty being sworn under £20,000. The testator leaves all his real and personal estate to his widow, the Hon. Mrs. Mary Livingstone Wodehouse, absolutely.

The will and codicil of Sir Francis Dugdale Astley, Bart., of Everleigh, and of Eastleigh Lodge, near Warminster, Wilts, were proved, on the 23rd ult., by Ambrose Goddard Lethbridge and William Thomas Longbourne, the executors, the personalty being sworn under £20,000. The testator leaves his furniture to his wife for life, and the residue of his property among his children except his eldest son, John Dugdale Astley.

The will, with six codicils, of Lieutenant-General Robert Martin-Leake, of Woodhurst, Oxford, Surrey, was proved, on the 15th ult., by Charles Francis Gale, the nephew, the acting executor, the personalty being sworn under £14,000. The testator directs his executor to offer his "Madonna," by Guido, to the trustees of the National Gallery, and if they decline to purchase it he is to sell it by public auction. Various provisions are made for Miss Maria Jackson, and the residue of his estate testator gives to the children of his sister, Lucy Gale.

The will and codicil of Mr. Thomas Rock Shute, of Watford, Herts, were proved, on Aug. 1, by Harry Preston Thomson, John James, and John Lawrie, the nephews, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testator bequeaths upon trust for his son, Walter Thomas Shute, £8000, and the residue to his daughter, Mrs. Eliza Georgina Thomson.

The wills of the following persons have recently been proved—viz., Dame Harriott Mary Marley Macgregor, under a nominal sum; the Hon. Elizabeth Anne Wyndham, under £6000; Colonel the Hon. Kenneth Douglas Mackenzie, under £6000; Robert Hayes, late of Iwer, Bucks, and 60, Russell-square, under £35,000; John Pullman, late of Grove End, Chiswick, under £35,000; Edgar Barker, late of Oxford-square, Paddington, under £35,000; and Henry Brown, late of Cheltenham, under £25,000.

Mr. Joshua John Peele, banker, of Shrewsbury, left to his sons, Ernest Moultrie and Arthur John, £5000 each (the sum was wrongly given at £4000 last week), in addition to liberal provisions made to both in the testator's lifetime.

Last Saturday the Archbishop of Canterbury opened at Croydon a new hospital, intended to meet the requirements of that parish, which contains a population of nearly 60,000.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.
 * * * * *
 * * * * *
 * * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

* * * * *

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1543.

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.
 1. R to Q 4th R to Q B 6th 3. R to K 6th Any move
 2. R to K 4th K to Q 6th (best) 4. R gives mate.

PROBLEM NO. 1545.

By Mr. I. PIERCE.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN VIENNA.

A stubbornly-fought Game between Mr. GELBPUHS, one of the best players in Austria, and Mr. HAMEL, president of the Nottingham Chess Club. (Fianchetto di Donna.)

BLACK (Mr. G.) WHITE (Mr. H.)
 1. P to K 4th P to Q Kt 3rd
 2. P to Q 4th B to Q Kt 2nd
 3. P to Q 5th P to K 3rd
 4. P to Q 4th B to Q Kt 5th (ch)
 5. K to Q B 3rd K to K B 3rd
 6. B to Q 3rd P to Q B 3rd
 7. P to K 5th Q B P takes P
 Tempting, certainly, but very hazardous.
 8. P takes Kt Q takes P
 9. B to Q 2nd P takes P
 10. B to K B sq Castles
 11. Kt to K B 3rd P to Q 4th
 12. Q to K 2nd Kt to Q B 3rd
 13. Castles Q R to Q sq
 An oversight which ought to have cost the game.
 14. B to K Kt 5th Q to K B 4th
 15. B takes R R takes B
 16. Kt to Q 4th Q to K B 3rd
 17. Kt takes Kt B takes Kt
 18. Q to K B 3rd Q to K 2nd
 19. B takes Q B P Q to Q B 4th
 Mr. Hamel was fortunate in this move, which at once gave him an attack almost sufficient to counterpoise his adversary's superiority of force.
 20. B to Q Kt 3rd P to Q 5th
 21. Q to Q 3rd R to Q 3rd
 22. B to Q B 2nd P takes Kt
 The combat now becomes peculiarly exciting from the critical position of both parties.
 23. Q tks K R P (ch) K to B sq
 24. Q to R 8th (ch) K to K 2nd
 25. Q takes P P takes P (ch)
 26. K to Kt sq B to Q B 6th and Mr. G. resigned.

CHESS IN LONDON.

Another Game in the second Match between Messrs. BIRD and WISKER. (Irregular Opening.)

WHITE (Mr. B.) BLACK (Mr. W.)
 1. P to K B 4th P to Q 4th
 2. Kt to K B 3rd Kt to Q B 3rd
 3. P to Q Kt 3rd P to Q B 3rd
 4. P to K 3rd P to K 3rd
 5. B to Q Kt 2nd P to K 3rd
 6. P to K Kt 3rd Kt to K B 3rd
 7. B to K Kt 2nd P to Q Kt 4th
 8. Castles P to K Kt 3rd
 9. Kt to Q B 3rd B to K Kt 2nd
 10. Kt to K 2nd Castles
 11. P to Q B 3rd Q to Q Kt 3rd
 12. P to K 3rd P to Q Kt 4th
 13. Q R to Q Kt sq B to Q R 3rd
 14. P to K Kt 4th P to Q Kt 5th
 15. P to Q B 4th P to Q Kt 5th
 Well played. His adversary could not take this Pawn without running into danger.
 16. Q to Q B 2nd P takes P
 17. P takes P P to Q R 5th
 18. P to K Kt 5th Kt to K R 4th
 19. B takes B Kt takes B
 20. Kt to K Kt 3rd Kt to K sq
 21. Q Kt to K 4th P to K B 4th
 22. P takes P (in passing) K takes P
 23. Q Kt to K Kt 5th Kt to K 2nd
 24. Kt to K 5th Kt to K B 4th
 25. K to K B 2nd P to Q R 6th
 26. K to R 2nd R to Q B sq
 27. R to K Kt sq
 The game hitherto has been very wearisome; but the last two or three moves of Mr. Bird give promise of some sport to come.
 28. B to K B 3rd R to Q B 2nd
 29. B takes B R to Q Kt 2nd
 30. Q to Q sq R takes B
 31. P to K 4th R to K Kt 2nd
 32. P to Q 3rd Kt to Q 5th
 33. Kt from K 5th Kt to Q R sq
 Kt takes Kt (ch)
 and the game was drawn.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

The silver challenge cup presented to the volunteers of Rotherhithe and Bermondsey by Field Marshal Sir W. W. Gomm, Constable of the Tower, was competed for last week, at the Government ranges, Plumstead Marshes, by the picked teams of the two corps. The Rotherhithe men were the winners by twenty-eight points.

At the annual prize-meeting of the City of London Engineers the prizes were won as follows:—First prize, Sapper A. Batter; second, Sergeant Jackson; third, Sergeant Kennett; fourth, Sapper T. Wilkins; fifth, Quartermaster-Sergeant Riddell; sixth, Corporal Ridgway; seventh, Sergeant Woodward; eighth, Sapper J. Hislop; ninth, Sergeant Watkins; tenth, Corporal Lister; eleventh, Corporal Cotter; twelfth, Sapper Jones; and the thirteenth, Sergeant-Major Davis. Other prizes were competed for in engineering.

Five captains and nine lieutenants of the 6th Tower Hamlets Rifles have sent in their resignations to the War Office, and they have been accepted. In the 5th Lanarkshire Rifle Volunteers the honorary colonel, lieutenant-colonel, two captains, three lieutenants, the surgeon, assistant surgeon, and honorary chaplain have all resigned. It is stated that the number of volunteer officers who have resigned during the year is 280.

The results of the competition for the gold medal of the London Rifle Brigade—the most coveted of the numerous prizes shot for during the recent meeting at Rainham—were as follows:—The ranges were the same as in the final stage of the contest for the Queen's prize at Wimbledon (500, 900, and 1000 yards), and the weapon used was also the same—the Martini-Henry. The number of rounds fired at each distance was seven. Private Saw was declared the winner, Private Fletcher was second, Private Hutchinson third, Private Watts fourth, Private Smith fifth, and Private Runtz sixth. In the contest at 300 and 500 yards, five rounds at each, for members who had never won a prize at a rifle meeting, Private Raines took the first, Private Ellis the second, and Private Pollard the third, formed of the entrance-fee.

The results of the annual rifle contest of the Paddington Volunteers (36th Middlesex) are as follows:—The prizes were of the value of upwards of £100. In the first contest, for three prizes given by Lieutenant-Colonel Ives, the competitors had to fire five rounds in two minutes at 250 yards, advancing ten yards at the double and lying down to fire each shot. Corporal Cobb took the first prize, Private Hearne the second, and Private Denham the third. Thirty-seven competitors entered for the second contest, also for three prizes given by Colonel Ives. The conditions in this case were that ten rounds should be fired in three minutes, at 350 yards, at a proper third-class target, advancing, as in the first contest, ten yards at the double, and lying down to fire each shot. This excellent practice for skirmishers resulted in Private Price winning the first prize, and Privates Spurgin and Hughes the second and third. Fifteen prizes, value £35, produced sixty-four competitors, who fired seven rounds at 200, 500, and 600 yards. The principal prizes were won by Lieutenant Reed, Private Downes, Sergeant Davies, Private Warrington, Lieutenant Tatham, and Colour-Sergeant Barter. The challenge cup and silver medal of the corps, contested at the same ranges, were won by Sergeant Davies; Corporal Rudkin took the bronze medal, and Private M. Jefferson was third. The officers' prizes, value 10 gs., brought out fifty-four competitors, and the highest scores (400 and 500 yards, five shots) were made by Corporal Miller, Captain Vickerman, Sergeant Williams, Lieutenant Gange, and Private Cave. Corporal Mandy took Sir R. T. Kindersley's challenge cup, and second and third prizes in the same contest (200 and 500 yards) were won by Colour-Sergeant Barter and Corporal Miller. Prizes presented by Major Baylis and Quartermaster Read were won by Private Pavey and Corporal Mandy. The Adjutant's prizes fell to Sergeant Horne, Private Dettmer, and Private Bayford, and Colour-Sergeant Barter took Captain Barrow's prize of £4 for the best score at 100 and 600 yards. Several other minor prizes were also shot for.

The annual rifle competition between the Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Dundee Highland Volunteers was shot last Saturday at Stirling. The Edinburgh team proved the victors by 13 points over Glasgow and 26 over Dundee.

The annual competitions of the Highland Rifle Association took place last week at Inverness.

LIFE-BOAT SERVICES.

A meeting of the Royal National Life-Boat Institution was held, on Thursday, at its house, John-street, Adelphi—Mr. Thomas Chapman in the chair. Mr. Richard Lewis, the secretary, having read the minutes of the previous meeting, rewards and payments to the amount of £1485 were ordered to be made on different life-boat establishments. The Ramsgate Harbour steamer Vulcan and life-boat Bradford had saved thirteen persons from the wrecked barque Amazon, of Gothenburg, and the North Deal life-boat had rescued five Broadstairs boatmen from the same wreck. The Wexford No. 2 life-boat had saved the crew of five men and a pilot from the stranded schooner Gem, of that port, and the Cullercoats life-boat Palmerston was also instrumental in saving twelve men from the wrecked steamer Lizzio, of London. The silver medal of the institution was voted to Mr. Richard Jinks, chief officer of H.M. Coastguard at Cardigan, and the thanks of the institution, inscribed on vellum, to Mr. L. Dakyns, of Holy Island, and Mr. Thomas Thorogood, boatman in H.M. Coastguard at Cairnbulg, N.B., together with pecuniary rewards to the crews of different shore-boats for saving life on our coasts. Various contributions and legacies to the society were announced. New life-boats have been forwarded by the institution to Sunderland and to Blakeney, Norfolk. The first-named boat was the gift of the Independent Order of Good Templars, and a demonstration took place at Sunderland on its inauguration and launch, on the 16th ult., a large number of persons being present on the occasion. The committee expressed their deep regret at the decease of Alderman Sir John France, of Glossop, who was the original promoter in the Ancient Order of Foresters, as well as in the Order of Odd Fellows, of the project to raise life-boat funds, which resulted in three life-boats being presented to the society, together with liberal annual subscriptions in aid of the maintenance of those boats. Reports were read from the inspector and the assistant inspector of life-boats to the institution on their recent visits to the coast.

A large meeting, composed of the leading inhabitants of Cambridgeshire, presided over by the High Sheriff, was held at Cambridge last Saturday, at which resolutions were passed expressive of regret at the death of the late Lord Hardwicke, and of condolence with his family on their bereavement.

The Dundee Advertiser learns that Mr. Gordon, brewer, London, is to be at the expense of erecting a public hall in Ballater, at a cost of over £600. Last year Mr. Gordon, who is a native of Glenmuick parish, gave a handsome subscription for the new Established Church of Ballater.

A MICHAELMAS GOOSE FAIR.

There is a good deal in a goose; so much the better for some of us in the present company. Ladies and gentlemen will be pleased to agree to this; for what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Let us try the effect of a little cheap show of learning on the subject. In the ancient Egyptian hieroglyphics, according to the testimony of erudite archaeologists who belong to quite a different species of biped, the figure of this bird is the emblem of a silly fellow. So much for all the wisdom of the Egyptians! Did any goose in the world's history ever do such a silly thing as to build the Pyramids?—unless we believe, with Professor Piazza Smyth, that they were not mere cumbrous sepulchres of the now-forgotten kings, but cunning records of mathematical and astronomical science? Let us now pass on to the Greeks. One of their classic authors tells the fable of a rustic who killed his goose that laid the golden eggs, because he wanted to get all the eggs at once. Now, we would put it to the verdict of a mixed jury of the two nations, geese and men, to declare whether in this case the man or the goose was the bigger fool; and we should feel no hesitation in claiming the verdict for our respectable feathered client. If the Greeks are of small account in this age of modern improvements, it may still be worth while to appeal to the Romans. Was not the warlike city of Romulus once saved by hearkening to the voice of the goose—by listening, as it were, to her sage counsel, which even commends itself to ourselves in sage-and-onion stuffing—when the fierce onslaught of the Gaul was impending over Rome, in the absence of a sufficient garrison to repel the foe? And what did those old Romans do for their national saviour, the goose? What is the Latin for goose? Anser, says the man who knows the trick of it, before the dinner-table cloth is drawn; the answer is a little glass of brandy, which sometimes follows as quickly (but we don't approve of this custom) as any other answer to any other question. It is never the goose that asks for this fiery liquid condiment, but the peevish human stomach, too often malcontent, under the misrule of a foolish appetite which has mingled too many dishes in a dangerous repast. The goose which grazes on the stubble is much better advised; but see the wanton folly and cruelty of man! He takes this judicious bird, shuts her up in a dark cellar, or puts out her eyes, then crams her with excessive and unwholesome feeding, against her own better taste and judgment, to produce a diseased liver, which he puts into his Strasbourg pie. Why the mischief cannot we be content with disordering our own livers, as most of us contrive to do before we are fifty years of age? Let us therefore repent, learn of the goose, and be wise.

There are many old stories about men and geese, but always more to the credit of geese than of men. Plato was reputed a great philosopher, and it was he, or somebody else, who defined man as "a two-legged animal without feathers." Now the goose, it must be confessed, is a two-legged animal with feathers. But ever since the art of writing with pen and ink came into vogue, it has been the practice of man to pluck the geese of those feathers; and when he has got the goose-quill in hand, what does he too often do with it but write himself down the greater goose? Doth man herein show his vaunted superior discretion? We trow not, and it is a proof of this that every time he writes of geese—except, of course, this present writing, which is all on the other side—he presents himself at a disadvantage by the comparison. The pages of history, and other grave or merry reading, with which the goose does not trouble her mind, have been quoted upon this all-important theme. As for English history, there is not much to be made of the anecdote that Queen Elizabeth was eating a Michaelmas goose when she heard of the defeat of the Spanish Armada. The hostile fleet was dispersed in July, and there was a thanksgiving prayer and sermon at St. Paul's in August. The year was 1588, and the customary eating of a goose at Michaelmas is noticed by Gascoigne, the poet, in 1577. Ecclesiastical history comes off not much better; for an old legend tells how St. Martin was tormented by a goose, which disturbed him at his devotions. He rashly killed and ate the bird, which punished him with a death by indigestion. This is worse nonsense than the hissing of any goose, and deserves the fate of a bad play at the theatre—"to get the goose;" that is, to be hissed into shame and silence. If our readers would like more history, we can relate how Eric, King of Sweden, besieged a town where the men were saucy. They had too much goose, as well as sauce for the goose. They hung out a goose at the town gate, and defied the King to shoot at that. When he had knocked down their wall, and was marching in with his soldiers, "I'll cook your goose for you!" said he. That is what man calls being facetious. He vaunts himself lord of the creation, but there be those who know better—

While Man proclaims, "See, all things for my use!"
"See Man for mine!" replies a pampered goose.

To which response your simple rejoinder is the short word, "Giblets!" There is nothing like having the last word in a controversy, if you can get it. The goose after this cannot say another syllable, or so much as utter a dissenting hiss. Sentiments like those we have ventured to express are not unsuitable for the present season. That the goose is a Michaelmas bird we should be the last to deny; we remember certain birthdays. The reason is obvious in the fattening goose-pasture of the stubble corn-fields, into which the jolly bird is admitted when harvest is reaped and gleaned. For an reads out the stock which is to be disposed of, and the members then begin to make offers, at the same time arranging among themselves how many shares each will take, and at what price; and it is their manner of doing this which constitutes the peculiarity of the place. Each member has a desk at which he sits, but when stock is put up in which he wishes to deal he rushes into the centre of the hall shouting and gesticulating like a madman. They howl at each other and at the chairman, they push and shove as if it were a street fight; the little men seem as if they were getting the worst of it. The whole scene would make one believe that murder was being done. At the end of three or four minutes the chairman hammers a sort of gong he has, when they all have to return to their seats, and it then appears that a good deal of business may have been transacted. How Mr. Coit, the chairman, follows the doings of his noisy congregation would be impossible for a stranger to tell, but somehow it has been done, and it is all written down by the clerks, for he rises when the din has ceased and reads over the transactions, so that if any mistake has taken place it may be corrected. The chairman has the right to impose fines on any member who misbehaves himself, as in not returning to his seat when the gong is struck, or putting his feet on the desk. Five dollars is the usual penalty; and when there is great excitement among the "bulls" and "bears" some of the irresponsible members have been delinquents to the extent of 200 dols. a week. The board is limited to eighty members; so, like the French Academy, a desk or seat must become vacant before a new member can be admitted. The price of a seat varies according to the business going on in stocks, in dull times selling as low as 700 dols.; but last year, when there was great excitement, 10,000 dollars was paid; at the present time a seat is worth about 8000 dollars. The board has a cash surplus of about 80,000 dols., and contemplates buying a site and building instead of renting the present premises. There is great speculation in mines at San Francisco, and this gives interest and excitement to the doings of the board. The telegraph comes into the building, and the prices of stock are wired to all parts, the noisy doings of this place being the power which determines the quotations elsewhere.

ST. COLMAN'S, DROMORE.

Dromore is in the county of Down, Ireland, some twenty miles from Belfast. We give an illustration of St. Colman's Roman Catholic church, Dromore. This building was commenced in 1871. Its architectural style is an adaptation from the early French phase of Gothic. It consists of nave and aisles, chancel and side chapels, baptistery (close to the tower entrance), tower and spire, north porch, and sacristy. This church is worthy of attention as perhaps the only one in Ireland that ever was entirely completed before its consecration, even to the artistic ornaments and furniture, which are too often left over for years. The altar furnishing is especially good: a magnificent jewelled gold chalice, worth about 200 g., presented by a New York merchant (a native of Dromore), is the chief feature. This chalice, as well as the other appurtenances, was made from a special design. The church has already cost about £10,000, and this sum (all paid) has been collected by the exertions of the priest of the parish, the Rev. William M. Cartan. The architect who designed the building, and superintended its construction and perfect completion, is Mr. T. Hervey, F.R.I.A.I., Belfast; the contractors were Messrs. H. and J. Martin, also of Belfast. It is intended to proceed at once with the erection of a parochial residence on a scale commensurate with the church. The site is presented by Mr. James Quin, of the Palace, Dromore.

The conference of Associated Members of Commerce, at Cardiff, was closed on Thursday week. Resolutions were passed calling the attention of Government to the heavy dues charged on the Suez Canal, with a view to their reduction; and adopting a memorial to the Government requesting that steps be taken for a survey of South-West China in accordance with Sperry's route. Various votes of thanks were awarded, and then an excursion to Dowlais took place. On Friday several places of local interest, including Raglan Castle, Caerphilly, and the Crumlin Viaduct, were visited.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 128, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 128, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1878.

THE SAN FRANCISCO STOCK AND EXCHANGE BOARD.

Whoever has seen the howling and whirling dervishes of Cairo would imagine, were he to visit the San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board, that the two sects were there combined, and practised together each of their rites. In transacting their business the members of this board rush, at frequent intervals, into the middle of the room, and all shout at the top of their voices what sound like cabalistic sentences, and at the same time they raise their arms in the air in a way which at once recalls the manner of the whirling dervishes. It is principally mining stock which is dealt with in this place; and the chairman's function is something like that of an auctioneer. He

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1780.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1873.

WITH
EXTRA SUPPLEMENT { SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6½d.

THE WAR ON THE GOLD COAST: H.M.S. DRUID DESTROYING THE VILLAGE OF AGUIDAH.

BIRTHS.

On the 2nd inst., at La Fliche, France, the wife of W. G. Cunningham, of a daughter.
 On the 5th ult., at 4, Princes square, the wife of F. S. Massy Tawson, Esq., of a son.
 On the 2nd inst., at Rendmere, Englefield-green, Surrey, the wife of H. W. Coxen, J. P., late of Queensland, of a son.
 On the 2nd inst., at Haddo House, Aberdeen, Lady Harriet Lindsay, of a daughter.
 On the 5th inst., at Raynham Hall, Lady Elizabeth St. Aubyn, of a daughter.
 On the 5th inst., at Carberry Tower, Lady Elphinstone, of a daughter.
 On the 6th inst., at 20, Lowndes-square, Viscountess Newport, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 30th ult., at 53, Union-street, Greenock, by the Rev. Alexander Bryson, of Allen, John Brough-Bryson, merchant, Linna, to Marianne, youngest daughter of the late Peter Maxton, merchant, Greenock.
 On Jan. 15, at All Souls' Church, Lambham-place, Frederick Magloire Roche, late Captain Madras Staff Corps, to Georgina Florence, widow of Cuffie Adams, Esq., and daughter of Mrs. Aubery, 6, Berners-street, Oxford-street.

DEATHS.

On the 2nd inst., on his return voyage from America, John Baynes, Esq., Claremont Hall, Blackburn, J.P. and Deputy-Lieutenant for the county of Lancaster, aged 58 years.
 On the 5th inst., at Dunbar House, Cromwell-road, South Kensington, Edith Mabel, the youngest child of Caroline and James C. Hayne, of Valparaiso, aged 6 months.
 * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCT. 18.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 12.		WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 15.
Eighteenth Sunday after Trinity.	Royal Tophill Society, Extra target.	Royal Horticultural Society, Jersey Exhibition.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Rev. Dr. Hesse, Prebendary, Preacher at Gray's Inn; 3.15 p.m., the Right Rev. Bishop Clouston, D.D.; 7 p.m., the Rev. C. J. Thompson, Diocesan Inspector of Schools for Llandaff.	Crystal Palace: Opera, 3 p.m. Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30 p.m.	Meteorological Society, 7 p.m. Ipswich Poultry and Pigeon Show (two days).
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., the Rev. J. Bardsley, Rector of Stepney; 3 p.m., the Rev. Canon Conway.	University College, 5.30 p.m. (Professor Bund on English History; commencement of the course).	Crystal Palace: reopening of the School of Art, Science, and Literature.
St. James's, noon, probably, the Rev. Robinson Duckworth.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., the Rev. W. F. Eiskine Knollys; 3 p.m., the Rev. H. W. Thompson.
Savoy, closed.
Temple Church, probably, 11 a.m., the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Master of the Temple; 3 p.m., the Rev. Alfred Anger, M.A., Reader at the Temple.
French Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. B. W. Douvier, Incumbent.
MONDAY, OCTOBER 13.		THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16.
Moon's last quarter, 6.25 a.m.	Crystal Palace: Grand Military Fete, under the patronage of the Duke of Cambridge and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar; fireworks, &c.	Bromley Races, autumn meeting. Crystal Palace: Opera, 3 p.m. Royal Society Club, 6 p.m.
University College, 6 p.m. (Professor Morley on the Study of English, for ladies; commencement of the course).
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 14.		FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17.
Croydon Races, October meeting.		Fox hunting begins. Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, 2 p.m. Royal Athletic Club, meeting at Westward Ho; Royal Challenge Cup, &c. Ely Cathedral, celebration of the 1200th anniversary of the foundation (five days).
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.	General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
October	1 29.924	57.6	56.2	95	9	48.3	67.3	ESE. SW.	129	0.00
	2 29.975	58.0	54.7	89	7	51.2	70.2	SW. SSW.	74	0.00
	3 29.857	60.6	58.7	94	9	53.6	72.7	SW. SSW.	193	0.00
	4 29.976	55.3	51.6	88	10	55.8	69.5	SW. NNE.	168	0.00
	5 30.058	53.5	47.6	79	11	50.2	60.5	NNW. WSW.	102	0.00
	6 29.922	52.1	48.2	83	7	39.9	62.8	SW. SSW.	283	0.00
	7 29.612	52.7	50.9	94	8	53.4	60.7	SSW. WSW.	123	0.20

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:
 Barometer (in inches) corrected .. 29.934 | 29.913 | 29.907 | 29.915 | 29.976 | 29.943 | 29.955
 Temperature of Air .. 57.6 | 58.0 | 60.6 | 55.3 | 53.5 | 52.1 | 52.7
 Temperature of Evaporation .. 58.6 | 57.7 | 61.7 | 56.8 | 51.6 | 51.3 | 53.7
 Direction of Wind .. ESE. | WSW. | SW. | SSW. | NNW. | SW. | SSW.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 18.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
5 48	6 10	6 35	7 5	7 40	8 25	9 10

STEAM.—LONDON TO CALCUTTA Direct, via Suez
 Canal.—CARLISLE BROTHERS and CO.'S DUCAL LINE OF STEAMSHIPS. These magnificent, full-powered steamships have been built expressly for the trade, and will be found on inspection as fine and substantial vessels as have ever been built in this country. The cabins are elegant, light, and commodious, with every convenience for tropical climates, and are placed amidships, where there is the least motion. Each steamer is provided with bath-rooms (hot and cold water) and ice-house, and carries a surgeon and stewardess.

	Tons.	Captain.	To Sail.
Duke of Argyll ..	3015	Barrie..	Oct. 30.
Duke of Devonshire ..	3015	—	Nov. 30.
Duke of Edinburgh ..	3015	—	—
Duke of Lancaster ..	3015	—	—
Duke of Sutherland ..	3015	Edward ..	Sailed.

The Duke of Argyll is intended to leave the Victoria Dock about Oct. 30. Rates of passage, for first-class passengers only, 40 gu., 50 gu., and 55 gu., according to the accommodation required. For further particulars apply to Messrs. Carlisle, Greenhills, and Co., No. 1, East India Avenue, Leadenhall-street, London, E.C.; and No. 2, Drury-lane, Liverpool.

GEOLOGICAL MINERALOGY.—TWO COURSES of LECTURES ON MINERALS AND ROCKS will be given at KING'S COLLEGE, by Professor TENNANT, F.R.S. One course is given on Wednesday and Friday Mornings, from Nine to Ten o'clock, commencing WEDNESDAY, OCT. 8, and terminating at Easter, 1874. The other course is given on Thursday Evenings, from Eight to Nine, commencing OCT. 9. The lectures are illustrated by an extensive collection of specimens. Practical instruction in Mineralogy and Geology is given by Prof. Tennant, at his residence, 149, Strand, W.C.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S VOCAL ACADEMY.
 The next Term begins on MONDAY, OCT. 20, and Madame Sainton-Dolby will receive Candidates for Admission at her residence, 7, Gloucester-place, Hyde Park, on Friday, Oct. 18, from Ten to One o'clock. Prospectuses can be had on application at Messrs. Chappell's, 50, New Bond-street; and of Mr. George Dolby, 62, New Bond-street, W.

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.
 Every Night at Eight; Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Eight. ALL THE YEAR ROUND. THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED AND MOST POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT IN THE WORLD. THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS. NOW IN THE NINTH YEAR OF ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON AT THIS HALL. An event altogether unparalleled in the history of the world's amusements. NO FEE or EXTRA CHARGES. LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL. New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, 41 1/2 to 42 1/2 to 43 1/2 to 44 1/2 to 45 1/2 to 46 1/2 to 47 1/2 to 48 1/2 to 49 1/2 to 50 1/2 to 51 1/2 to 52 1/2 to 53 1/2 to 54 1/2 to 55 1/2 to 56 1/2 to 57 1/2 to 58 1/2 to 59 1/2 to 60 1/2 to 61 1/2 to 62 1/2 to 63 1/2 to 64 1/2 to 65 1/2 to 66 1/2 to 67 1/2 to 68 1/2 to 69 1/2 to 70 1/2 to 71 1/2 to 72 1/2 to 73 1/2 to 74 1/2 to 75 1/2 to 76 1/2 to 77 1/2 to 78 1/2 to 79 1/2 to 80 1/2 to 81 1/2 to 82 1/2 to 83 1/2 to 84 1/2 to 85 1/2 to 86 1/2 to 87 1/2 to 88 1/2 to 89 1/2 to 90 1/2 to 91 1/2 to 92 1/2 to 93 1/2 to 94 1/2 to 95 1/2 to 96 1/2 to 97 1/2 to 98 1/2 to 99 1/2 to 100 1/2 to 101 1/2 to 102 1/2 to 103 1/2 to 104 1/2 to 105 1/2 to 106 1/2 to 107 1/2 to 108 1/2 to 109 1/2 to 110 1/2 to 111 1/2 to 112 1/2 to 113 1/2 to 114 1/2 to 115 1/2 to 116 1/2 to 117 1/2 to 118 1/2 to 119 1/2 to 120 1/2 to 121 1/2 to 122 1/2 to 123 1/2 to 124 1/2 to 125 1/2 to 126 1/2 to 127 1/2 to 128 1/2 to 129 1/2 to 130 1/2 to 131 1/2 to 132 1/2 to 133 1/2 to 134 1/2 to 135 1/2 to 136 1/2 to 137 1/2 to 138 1/2 to 139 1/2 to 140 1/2 to 141 1/2 to 142 1/2 to 143 1/2 to 144 1/2 to 145 1/2 to 146 1/2 to 147 1/2 to 148 1/2 to 149 1/2 to 150 1/2 to 151 1/2 to 152 1/2 to 153 1/2 to 154 1/2 to 155 1/2 to 156 1/2 to 157 1/2 to 158 1/2 to 159 1/2 to 160 1/2 to 161 1/2 to 162 1/2 to 163 1/2 to 164 1/2 to 165 1/2 to 166 1/2 to 167 1/2 to 168 1/2 to 169 1/2 to 170 1/2 to 171 1/2 to 172 1/2 to 173 1/2 to 174 1/2 to 175 1/2 to 176 1/2 to 177 1/2 to 178 1/2 to 179 1/2 to 180 1/2 to 181 1/2 to 182 1/2 to 183 1/2 to 184 1/2 to 185 1/2 to 186 1/2 to 187 1/2 to 188 1/2 to 189 1/2 to 190 1/2 to 191 1/2 to 192 1/2 to 193 1/2 to 194 1/2 to 195 1/2 to 196 1/2 to 197 1/2 to 198 1/2 to 199 1/2 to 200 1/2 to 201 1/2 to 202 1/2 to 203 1/2 to 204 1/2 to 205 1/2 to 206 1/2 to 207 1/2 to 208 1/2 to 209 1/2 to 210 1/2 to 211 1/2 to 212 1/2 to 213 1/2 to 214 1/2 to 215 1/2 to 216 1/2 to 217 1/2 to 218 1/2 to 219 1/2 to 220 1/2 to 221 1/2 to 222 1/2 to 223 1/2 to 224 1/2 to 225 1/2 to 226 1/2 to 227 1/2 to 228 1/2 to 229 1/2 to 230 1/2 to 231 1/2 to 232 1/2 to 233 1/2 to 234 1/2 to 235 1/2 to 236 1/2 to 237 1/2 to 238 1/2 to 239 1/2 to 240 1/2 to 241 1/2 to 242 1/2 to 243 1/2 to 244 1/2 to 245 1/2 to 246 1/2 to 247 1/2 to 248 1/2 to 249 1/2 to 250 1/2 to 251 1/2 to 252 1/2 to 253 1/2 to 254 1/2 to 255 1/2 to 256 1/2 to 257 1/2 to 258 1/2 to 259 1/2 to 260 1/2 to 261 1/2 to 262 1/2 to 263 1/2 to 264 1/2 to 265 1/2 to 266 1/2 to 267 1/2 to 268 1/2 to 269 1/2 to 270 1/2 to 271 1/2 to 272 1/2 to 273 1/2 to 274 1/2 to 275 1/2 to 276 1/2 to 277 1/2 to 278 1/2 to 279 1/2 to 280 1/2 to 281 1/2 to 282 1/2 to 283 1/2 to 284 1/2 to 285 1/2 to 286 1/2 to 287 1/2 to 288 1/2 to 289 1/2 to 290 1/2 to 291 1/2 to 292 1/2 to 293 1/2 to 294 1/2 to 295 1/2 to 296 1/2 to 297 1/2 to 298 1/2 to 299 1/2 to 300 1/2 to 301 1/2 to 302 1/2 to 303 1/2 to 304 1/2 to 305 1/2 to 306 1/2 to 307 1/2 to 308 1/2 to 309 1/2 to 310 1/2 to 311 1/2 to 312 1/2 to 313 1/2 to 314 1/2 to 315 1/2 to 316 1/2 to 317 1/2 to 318 1/2 to 319 1/2 to 320 1/2 to 321 1/2 to 322 1/2 to 323 1/2 to 324 1/2 to 325 1/2 to 326 1/2 to 327 1/2 to 328 1/2 to 329 1/2 to 330 1/2 to 331 1/2 to 332 1/2 to 333 1/2 to 334 1/2 to 335 1/2 to 336 1/2 to 337 1/2 to 338 1/2 to 339 1/2 to 340 1/2 to 341 1/2 to 342 1/2 to 343 1/2 to 344 1/2 to 345 1/2 to 346 1/2 to 347 1/2 to 348 1/2 to 349 1/2 to 350 1/2 to 351 1/2 to 352 1/2 to 353 1/2 to 354 1/2 to 355 1/2 to 356 1/2 to 357 1/2 to 358 1/2 to 359 1/2 to 360 1/2 to 361 1/2 to 362 1/2 to 363 1/2 to 364 1/2 to 365 1/2 to 366 1/2 to 367 1/2 to 368 1/2 to 369 1/2 to 370 1/2 to 371 1/2 to 372 1/2 to 373 1/2 to 374 1/2 to 375 1/2 to 376 1/2 to 377 1/2 to 378 1/2 to 379 1/2 to 380 1/2 to 381 1/2 to 382 1/2 to 383 1/2 to 384 1/2 to 385 1/2 to 386 1/2 to 387 1/2 to 388 1/2 to 389 1/2 to 390 1/2 to 391 1/2 to 392 1/2 to 393 1/2 to 394 1/2 to 395 1/2 to 396 1/2 to 397 1/2 to 398 1/2 to 399 1/2 to 400 1/2 to 401 1/2 to 402 1/2 to 403 1/2 to 404 1/2 to 405 1/2 to 406 1/2 to 407 1/2 to 408 1/2 to 409 1/2 to 410 1/2 to 411 1/2 to 412 1/2 to 413 1/2 to 414 1/2 to 415 1/2 to 416 1/2 to 417 1/2 to 418 1/2 to 419 1/2 to 420 1/2 to 421 1/2 to 422 1/2 to 423 1/2 to 424 1/2 to 425 1/2 to 426 1/2 to 427 1/2 to 428 1/2 to 429 1/2 to 430 1/2 to 431 1/2 to 432 1/2 to 433 1/2 to 434 1/2 to 435 1/2 to 436 1/2 to 437 1/2 to 438 1/2 to 439 1/2 to 440 1/2 to 441 1/2 to 442 1/2 to 443 1/2 to 444 1/2 to 445 1/2 to 446 1/2 to 447 1/2 to 448 1/2 to 449 1/2 to 450 1/2 to 451 1/2 to 452 1/2 to 453 1/2 to 454 1/2 to 455 1/2 to 456 1/2 to 457 1/2 to 458 1/2 to 459 1/2 to 460 1/2 to 461 1/2 to 462 1/2 to 463 1/2 to 464 1/2 to 465 1/2 to 466 1/2 to 467 1/2 to 468 1/2 to 469 1/2 to 470 1/2 to 471 1/2 to 472 1/2 to 473 1/2 to 474 1/2 to 475 1/2 to 476 1/2 to 477 1/2 to 478 1/2 to 479 1/2 to 480 1/2 to 481 1/2 to 482 1/2 to 483 1/2 to 484 1/2 to 485 1/2 to 486 1/2 to 487 1/2 to 488 1/2 to 489 1/2 to 490 1/2 to 491 1/2 to 492 1/2 to 493 1/2 to 494 1/2 to 495 1/2 to 496 1/2 to 497 1/2 to 498 1/2 to 499 1/2 to 500 1/2 to 501 1/2 to 502 1/2 to 503 1/2 to 504 1/2 to 505 1/2 to 506 1/2 to 507 1/2 to 508 1/2 to 509 1/2 to 510 1/2 to 511 1/2 to 512 1/2 to 513 1/2 to 514 1/2 to 515 1/2 to 516 1/2 to 517 1/2 to 518 1/2 to 519 1/2 to 520 1/2 to 521 1/2 to 522 1/2 to 523 1/2 to 524 1/2 to 525 1/2 to 526 1/2 to 527 1/2 to 528 1/2 to 529 1/2 to 530 1/2 to 531 1/2 to 532 1/2 to 533 1/2 to 534 1/2 to 535 1/2 to 536 1/2 to 537 1/2 to 538 1/2 to 539 1/2 to 540 1/2 to 541 1/2 to 542 1/2 to 543 1/2 to 544 1/2 to 545 1/2 to 546 1/2 to 547 1/2 to 548 1/2 to 549 1/2 to 550 1/2 to 551 1/2 to 552 1/2 to 553 1/2 to 554 1/2 to 555 1/2 to 556 1/2 to 557 1/2 to 558 1/2 to 559 1/2 to 560 1/2 to 561 1/2 to 562 1/2 to 563 1/2 to 564 1/2 to 565 1/2 to 566 1/2 to 567 1/2 to 568 1/2 to 569 1/2 to 570 1/2 to 571 1/2 to 572 1/2 to 573 1/2 to 574 1/2 to 575 1/2 to 576 1/2 to 577 1/2 to 578 1/2 to 579 1/2 to 580 1/2 to 581 1/2 to 582 1/2 to 583 1/2 to 584 1/2 to 585 1/2 to 586 1/2 to 587 1/2 to 588 1/2 to 589 1/2 to 590 1/2 to 591 1/2 to 592 1/2 to 593 1/2 to 594 1/2 to 595 1/2 to 596 1/2 to 597 1/2 to 598 1/2 to 599 1/2 to 600 1/2 to 601 1/2 to 602 1/2 to 603 1/2 to 604 1/2 to 605 1/2 to 606 1/2 to 607 1/2 to 608 1/2 to 609 1/2 to 610 1/2 to 611 1/2 to 612 1/2 to 613 1/2 to 614 1/2 to 615 1/2 to 616 1/2 to 617 1/2 to 618 1/2 to 619 1/2 to 620 1/2 to 621 1/2 to 622 1/2 to 623 1/2 to 624 1/2 to 625 1/2 to 626 1/2 to 627 1/2 to 628 1/2 to 629 1/2 to 630 1/2 to 631 1/2 to 632 1/2 to 633 1/2 to 634 1/2 to 635 1/2 to 636 1/2 to 637 1/2 to 638 1/2 to 639 1/2 to 640 1/2 to 641 1/2 to 642 1/2 to 643 1/2 to 644 1/2 to 645 1/2 to 646 1/2 to 647 1/2 to 648 1/2 to 649 1/2 to 650 1/2 to 651 1/2 to 652 1/2 to 653 1/2 to 654 1/2 to 655 1/2 to 656 1/2 to 657 1/2 to 658 1/2 to 659 1/2 to 660 1/2 to 661 1/2 to 662 1/2 to 663 1/2 to 664 1/2 to 665 1/2 to 666 1/2 to 667 1/2 to 668 1/2 to 669 1/2 to 670 1/2 to 671 1/2 to 672 1/2 to 673 1/2 to 674 1/2 to 675 1/2 to 676 1/2 to 677 1/2 to 678 1/2 to 679 1/2 to 680 1/2 to 681 1/2 to 682 1/2 to 683 1/2 to 684 1/2 to 685 1/2 to 686 1/2 to 687 1/2 to 688 1/2 to 689 1/2 to 690 1/2 to 691 1/2 to 692 1/2 to 693 1/2 to 694 1/2 to 695 1/2 to 696 1/2 to 697 1/2 to 698 1/2 to 699 1/2 to 700 1/2 to 701 1/2 to 702 1/2 to 703 1/2 to 704 1/2 to 705 1/2 to 706 1/2 to 707 1/2 to 708 1/2 to 709 1/2 to 710 1/2 to 711 1/2 to 712 1/2 to 713 1/2 to 714 1/2 to 715 1/2 to 716 1/2 to 717 1/2 to 718 1/2 to 719 1/2 to 720 1/2 to 721 1/2 to 722 1/2 to 723 1/2 to 724 1/2 to 725 1/2 to 726 1/2 to 727 1/2 to 728 1/2 to 729 1/2 to 730 1/2 to 731 1/2 to 732 1/2 to 733 1/2 to 734 1/2 to 735 1/2 to 736 1/2 to 737 1/2 to 738 1/2 to 739 1/2 to 740 1/2 to 741 1/2 to 742 1/2 to 743 1/2 to 744 1/2 to 745 1/2 to 746 1/2 to 747 1/2 to 748 1/2 to 749 1/2 to 750 1/2 to 751 1/2 to 752 1/2 to 753 1/2 to 754 1/2 to 755 1/2 to 756 1/2 to 757 1/2 to 758 1/2 to 759 1/2 to 760 1/2 to 761 1/2 to 762 1/2 to 763 1/2 to 764 1/2 to 765 1/2 to 766 1/2 to 767 1/2 to 768 1/2 to 769 1/2 to 770 1/2 to 771 1/2 to 772 1/2 to 773 1/2 to 774 1/2 to 775 1/2 to 776 1/2 to 777 1/2 to 778 1/2 to 779 1/2 to 780 1/2 to 781 1/2 to 782 1/2 to 783 1/2 to 784 1/2 to 785 1/2 to 786 1/2 to 787 1/2 to 788 1/2 to 789 1/2 to 790 1/2 to 791 1/2 to 792 1/2 to 793 1/2 to 794 1/2 to 795 1/2 to 796 1/2 to 797 1/2 to 798 1/2 to 799 1/2 to 800 1/2 to 801 1/2 to 802 1/2 to 803 1/2 to 804 1/2 to 805 1/2 to 806 1/2 to 807 1/2 to 808 1/2 to 809 1/2 to 810 1/2 to 811 1/2 to 812 1/2 to 813 1/2 to 814 1/2 to 815 1/2 to 816 1/2 to 817 1/2 to 818 1/2 to 819 1/2 to 820 1/2 to 821 1/2 to 822 1/2 to 823 1/2 to 824 1/2 to 825 1/2 to 826 1/2 to 827 1/2 to 828 1/2 to 829 1/2 to 830 1/2 to 831 1/2 to 832 1/2 to 833 1/2 to 834 1/2 to 835 1/2 to 836 1/2 to 837 1/2 to 838 1/2 to 839 1/2 to 840 1/2 to 841 1/2 to 842 1/2 to 843 1/2 to 844 1/2 to 845 1/2 to 846 1/2 to 847 1/2 to 848 1/2 to 849 1/2 to 850 1/2 to 851 1/2 to 852 1/2 to 853 1/2 to 854 1/2 to 855 1/2 to 856 1/2 to 857 1/2 to 858 1/2 to 859 1/2 to 860 1/2 to 861 1/2 to 862 1/2 to 863 1/2 to 864 1/2 to 865 1/2 to 866 1/2 to 867 1/2 to 868 1/2 to 869 1/2 to 870 1/2 to 871 1/2 to 872 1/2 to 873 1/2 to 874 1/2 to 875 1/2 to 876 1/2 to 877 1/2 to 878 1/2 to 879 1/2 to 880 1/2 to 881 1/2 to 882 1/2 to 883 1/2 to 884 1/2 to 885 1/2 to 886 1/2 to 887 1/2 to 888 1/2 to 889 1/2 to 890 1/2 to 89

ciples, the duration and issue of which no seer can predict; and that industry, commerce, peace, and knowledge may be allowed to make their beneficent way without being exposed to the interruption and disturbance which threaten to ensue from any violent application of time-worn and obsolete theories of government.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, continues to sojourn at Balmoral Castle. Her Majesty, in accordance with existing arrangements, will return from the Highlands to Windsor Castle about Nov. 13. At the Council held by the Queen at Balmoral on Tuesday week Parliament was further proceeded from the 22nd inst. to Tuesday, Dec. 16, and the Conventions of Canterbury and York to the following day, Dec. 17. On Sunday last the Queen, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service, performed at the castle by the Rev. Dr. McKichan, of Lochgilphead. Her Majesty's dinner party included the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Beatrice, Prince Leopold, and Prince John of Glücksburg. On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove to Birk Hall, and visited Lady Knollys. On Tuesday her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove to Braemar, and, after changing horses at Fisher's Hotel, proceeded to the Linn of Dee, where the Queen partook of luncheon. Subsequently her Majesty drove to the Linn of Quoich, and thence returned by Victoria Bridge and Mar Lodge to Braemar, where the Queen's greys were again attached to the carriage and the journey continued to Balmoral. Her Majesty has also taken her customary daily walks and drives on Deeside. The Queen has entertained at dinner Viscount Macduff, Sir Thomas and the Hon. Lady Biddulph, Lieutenant-Colonel and Mrs. George Farquharson, and Sir Arthur Helps. The Queen was deeply grieved at the death of Sir Edwin Landseer, information of which was transmitted by telegraph to her Majesty. The Queen, who had always entertained a high personal regard for Sir Edwin, in addition to her appreciation of his great talents as an artist, was constant in her inquiries after his health during his long illness.

Prince Christian Victor and Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein have left Balmoral.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales gave a ball, on Wednesday week, at Abergeldie Castle, at which Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold were present. On Monday the Prince and Princess drove to Invercauld Lodge. Their Royal Highnesses were met at the Bridge of Dee by Colonel Farquharson and a large party, with whom they proceeded to the hill behind Invercauld House, where luncheon was served, after which the Royal and distinguished party went in the direction of the Sluggan Lodge, where a deer-drive was engaged in, during which four stags and a hind were brought down. The Prince passes much of his time shooting. The Princess makes frequent excursions in the neighbourhood.

Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, after visiting the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland at Dunrobin, and the Marquis and Marchioness of Westminster at Reay Forest, proceeded on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Dudley, at Black Mount.

His Excellency Duke Decazes, the newly-appointed French Ambassador to the Court of St. James, has arrived from Paris.

His Excellency the Danish Minister and Madame de Bülow have returned to their residence in Wimpole-street from the Continent.

His Excellency the Brazilian Minister (Baron de Penedo) has left London en route for Rome on a special mission from the Brazilian Government.

The Duke and Duchess of Wellington have arrived at Apsley House from Tunbridge Wells.

The Duke and Duchess of Leeds have arrived at the St. George's Hotel.

The Duke and Duchess of Manchester have arrived at Vienna.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Lansdowne have arrived at Bowood, Wilts, from the family seat in the county of Kerry.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Clanricarde have arrived at Portunna Castle, in the county of Galway, from Ilfracombe.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Kildare and the Ladies Fitzgerald have arrived at Dunrobin from Carton House, Maynooth, in the county of Kildare.

The Marquis d'Azeglio has returned to the Albany from visiting Lady Molesworth at Pencarrow.

Earl and Countess Delaware have arrived at Buckhurst Park, Sussex, from Fournes Hall, Cambridgeshire.

The Earl and Countess of Shrewsbury have arrived at Brighton from Ingestre Hall, Stafford.

The Countess of Wiltton has arrived at Tulliallan Castle, Perthshire, on a visit to Lord and Lady William Godolphin Osborne Elphinstone, from Heaton Hall, Lancashire. The Earl of Wiltton has arrived at Malta in his steam-yacht Palatine.

The Earl of Enniskillen, accompanied by Viscountess Cole and the Ladies Cole, have returned to Florence Court.

The Earl of Dartrey has left town for Dartrey House, his seat in Ireland.

The Earl of Cork has returned to Marston House, Somerset, from visiting his estates in the south of Ireland.

Lord and Lady Londesborough have left Berkeley-square for their seat in Yorkshire.

Lord Kilmarnock has left Mar Lodge for Slains Castle, Aberdeenshire.

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone has left his residence on Carlton House-terrace for Hawarden Castle, Flintshire.

The Duke of Argyll has left town for Inverary Castle, Scotland.

Earl Granville has gone to Walmer Castle.

The Earl of Kimberley has left his residence in Bryanston-square for Kimberley Park, Norfolk.

The Lord Chancellor has left town for his seat in Hampshire.

The Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., has left Carlton-gardens for The Priory, Chewton Mendip.

The Right Hon. G. J. Goschen has gone to his residence at Seacox-heath.

The Right Hon. John Bright has left town for the north.

A paper has been printed by authority showing that in the year ended March 31 last a number of persons had remitted to the Chancellor of the Exchequer as much as £9847 4s. 3d. as "conscience money."

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Arthy, W. R., to be Vicar of Weston, Yorkshire.
Davies, Robert Powell; Curate of Chew Magna, Somerset.
Downer, A. C.; Vicar of St. Silas's, Hunslet, Leeds.
Favell, Henry Arnold; Perpetual Curate of St. George's, Sheffield.
Garry, Nicholas T.; Vicar of Speenhamland, Newbury.
Gough, W. H.; Vicar of Horton, Northampton.
Hodgson, Thos. E.; Vicar of St. Cuthbert's, Darlington.
Howell, Howell; Rector of Aberystwith, Monmouth.
Jones, Henry; Rector of Llanberis.
Kemm, William Henry; Vicar of East Kennett, Wilts.
Kennion, G. W.; Vicar of St. Paul's, Hull.
Kingham, D. P.; Curate of St. George's, Battersea.
Leaver, Tay; Curate of Maulden, Bedfordshire.
Reavely, F.; Rector of West Lexham, Norfolk.
Robertson, William A. Scott; Honorary Canon of Canterbury Cathedral.
Ryan, Vincent J., Curate of Bradford; Perpetual Curate of Wibsey.
Trotter, H. E.; Vicar of Northam, Hampshire.
Wyld, E. G.; Rector of Woodborough, Wiltshire.

It is announced that the Hon. and Right Rev. C. A. Harris has been compelled by the failure of his health to resign the bishopric of Gibraltar.

The canonry of Ely, vacant by the transfer of Bishop M'Dougall to a canonry of Winchester, has been conferred on the Rev. E. C. Lowe, of Denstone College.

The Rev. Reginald Hay Hill has been presented by the teachers and children of St. Martin-in-the-Fields with a handsome book-case and dressing-case, on his leaving the parish.

A new cemetery for South London was opened at Lee last Saturday afternoon. The consecration was performed by the Bishop of Rochester, who expressed his disapproval of the high fees charged in most of the metropolitan cemeteries for the interment of the poor.

On the 22nd ult. the parish church of Longstone, Derbyshire, was reopened for Divine service, after a thorough and most successful restoration by Mr. Norman Shaw. There was a large gathering of parishioners, and many of the neighbouring gentry were also present, among others the Duke of Devonshire, who has been a handsome contributor.

On Wednesday the Bishop of Exeter laid the corner-stone of the first of seven churches to be erected in Plymouth, Devonport, and Stonehouse, under what is known as the "three towns church extension scheme." The Bishop's address contained a caution that the doctrines of Ritualism must not be allowed to sap the foundation of the Christian religion.

The parish church of Saddington, Leicestershire, was reopened on the 23rd ult., after having been closed for nearly six months during a very complete restoration, under the direction of Mr. Peek, architect. The sum expended on the restoration of the church and churchyard—upwards of £1500—has been raised by the efforts of the Rector, the Rev. W. P. Wood, and the parishioners of Saddington, with the kind co-operation of many friends and neighbours.

The Church Congress was opened at Bath on Tuesday, and there was a great gathering of the clergy from every part of the kingdom. The proceedings commenced with Divine service in the Abbey Church, which was densely crowded. The sermon was preached by the Bishop of Derry. At two o'clock the Bishop of Bath and Wells, who is the president for the year, delivered the inaugural address. His Lordship pointed out that the class of questions with which the congress had to deal were those which related to the efficiency of the Church as regarded her contact with the outer world. The Bishop of Oxford and the Rev. Llewelyn Davies then read papers on "The Church's Duty in regard to Strikes and Labour." The subject was also spoken to by Earl Nelson and Canon Girdlestone. The subjects for discussion in the evening were "Lay Help" and "Christian Almsgiving." Wednesday's sitting was opened by the delivery of an address by Sir Bartle Frere on Foreign Missions. In the afternoon a discussion took place upon the union of Church and State, in which the Dean of Exeter and Sir Stafford Northcote, M.P., were amongst the speakers. A meeting was held on Thursday in reference to the Wilberforce Memorial, when it was decided that, as diocesan memorials at Cuddesdon and in Winchester Cathedral had already been decided upon, the general memorial should be that recommended to the Bishop of Chichester's committee—viz., a missionary college for the clergy in Southwark. The speakers were the Bishops of Bath and Wells, Oxford, and Peterborough; Earl Nelson, Mr. B. Hope, M.P.; and Canons Barry and Woodgate.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Dr. Liddell was, on Thursday, elected Vice-Chancellor in Convocation at Oxford, and he nominated as his pro-Vice-Chancellors the Warden of All Souls' College, the Warden of New College, the Rector of Exeter College, and the President of Lincoln College.

The election to the vacant scholarships at Queen's College, Oxford, terminated as follows:—To a classical scholarship (of the yearly value of £90, tenable for five years), Mr. Warwick Wyatt Crouch, from Christ's Hospital, London. To a mathematical scholarship (of the yearly value of £90, tenable for five years), Mr. James Rochefort Maguire, from Cheltenham College. Proxime Accessit—Mr. Alfred John Parkman Shepherd, from Sydney College, Bath. To the Dixon and Wilson Exhibition (tenable for five years), Mr. George Hughes, Liverpool Institute. There were twenty-five candidates.

At the distribution of prizes to successful students at the Queen's Institute, Dublin, last week, Earl Spencer said that the institute had done good work in imparting artistic education to this country, the result of which was to be found in the relative numbers of art-works sent forth from Ireland. Ladies especially came within the sphere of the working of the institute, and it had been found that their capabilities were such as to enable them to take pre-eminence among the schools of Great Britain.

The Rev. Harman Chaloner Ogle, M.A., has been appointed Warden and Professor of Pastoral Theology at Queen's College, Birmingham, in the room of the Rev. T. E. Espin, B.D., recently appointed Chancellor of Chester Cathedral. Mr. Ogle, who is a Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, graduated in 1865, when he took a first class in Lit. Hum., after which he held successively the second mastership of Magdalen College School and the classical lectureship, and a tutorship at his college. He also gained the Ireland and Craven Scholarships and the Denyer and Johnson Theological Scholarship.

Owens College, Manchester, which is regarded by its friends as a future University for the North of England, was opened on Tuesday by the Duke of Devonshire. The congratulatory addresses were delivered by the Duke, as president, by the Bishop of Manchester, Sir Benjamin Brodie, Sir J. Kay-Shuttleworth, Mr. C. S. Roonbell, and others, and in the evening there was a soirée, which was attended by 2000 ladies and gentlemen. The cost of the building is about £130,000.

A new statute by the governing body of Winchester College declares that "The school known as the Choristers' School shall be maintained until the governing body shall determine otherwise. So soon as the income of the college will permit, the governing body may, if they think fit, establish and maintain a subordinate school in connection with Winchester College, and with that view they may, if they think fit, extend, remodel, or abolish the Choristers' School."

On Wednesday the Great Northern Congregational College at Silcoates, near Wakefield, was inaugurated by a public meeting. There was a large gathering of friends from all parts of Yorkshire and the adjacent counties. Mr. W. H. Conyers, of Leeds, presided. The inaugural address was delivered by the Rev. R. Bruce, Huddersfield. By the purchase of the estate and the erection of the seminary the managers are liable for a sum of £20,000, of which £6000 has yet to be realised. The building is intended for ministers' sons primarily, and also as a middle-class college for the Congregational denomination.

Mr. R. H. A. Schofield, of Lincoln College, Oxford, has obtained the scholarship in science, £100, tenable for one year, at St. Bartholomew's.

The quarrymen of Wales have founded a scholarship at the University College of Wales, Aberystwith. The value is £20, and it is tenable for two years.

Mr. Henry Garrett, B.A., late Scholar of Caius College, Cambridge, who graduated as Thirtieth Wrangler in 1872, has been appointed to a mathematical mastership in Dover College; and the Rev. Wm. Linton Wilson, B.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge, late Second Master in the Burgh School, Lincolnshire, has been appointed to an assistant mastership.

The Rev. Henry A. G. Oliver, M.A., Jesus College, Cambridge, late Second Master of Brentwood Grammar School, has succeeded the Rev. E. D. Ward, M.A., as Head Master of St. John's-wood School, Acacia-road, where Mr. Godfrey Robinson, B.A., has been appointed Second Master.

For a long time past it has been felt that the under-masters of King Edward's School, Birmingham, have been inadequately paid for their services; but, although the governors were anxious to meet the claims of the masters, the funds at their disposal, and the growing demands upon them, forbade any movement in the direction of higher salaries. The Birmingham Daily Post states that the difficulty thus existing has been met by a voluntary and most generous act of self-sacrifice on the part of the new Head Master, the Rev. A. R. Vardy. Feeling that the under-masters ought to be better paid, Mr. Vardy proposed to the governors to surrender a large part of his own emoluments—more, we believe, than one third of the total—conditional upon a grant of equal amount by the governors, in order to augment the stipends of his colleagues. The offer was not at first accepted, the governors naturally feeling that it was not a sacrifice to be lightly made. Mr. Vardy, however, pressed his proposal so strongly that the governors, we understand, have accepted it, and have appointed a committee to give effect to his generous design.

THE ASHANTEE WAR.

Sir Garnet Wolseley, commander of the British military forces to encounter the Ashantees on the Gold Coast of West Africa, arrived at the Canary Isles on the 21st ult., so we may hope that he is by this time at Elmina or Cape Coast Castle. The western portion of the Gold Coast, to the river Assinze, has been declared in a state of naval blockade. Here at home the preparations at Woolwich and other arsenals or factories of warlike apparatus and ammunition have been continued during the past week. Meantime it appears that our troubles on the Gold Coast are not confined to hostilities on the part of the Ashantees. All the towns and villages in the district purchased from the Dutch bear our supremacy with great ill-will. Dix Cove, originally an English settlement, seems to be the only exception to the rule, and its inhabitants have paid the penalty of their loyalty by suffering aggressions at the hands of their neighbours. A marauding party, principally composed of the inhabitants of Aguidah, recently attacked and fired Atchowa, a small village adjacent to Dix Cove, and redress being naturally enough expected, a scheme was organised for reprisal. Accordingly at daybreak on Aug. 23 a body of black warriors, some 800 in number, marched from Dix Cove to Aguidah, a distance of ten miles. They were led by a native chieftain, and lay concealed in the bush till a signal was made for them to advance. Meanwhile H.M.S. Druid steamed up to Aguidah, and, about half-past nine, opened fire on the town. When a few shells had been thrown in, the negro party from Dix Cove appeared on the beach, waving the English flag, as they were too impatient to wait for the appointed signal. The Druid then ceased firing, and the pinnace and two cutters were sent in, manned and armed, to meet any attack that might be made from the bush. Such good hands the natives proved themselves at firing houses that before the boats got ashore the whole place was in flames. The King's house, being partly stone, was standing after the fire, but was speedily pulled down. After the Dix Cove people had got all they could out of the place, they started back, burning three villages on their way. The Druid returned to Dix Cove the same evening. Aguidah is a pretty little cove, with the village built at the mouth of a small stream called the Alligator, which only runs in the wet season. All the surrounding country is thick jungle.

THE MADRAS RAILWAY TERMINUS.

The building lately erected at Madras for the railway terminus, which was opened by the Governor of that Presidency, Lord Hobart, soon after his arrival last year, is the subject of one of our Illustrations. It was designed by Mr. George Hardinge for the Madras Railway Company, and has some architectural pretensions, as well as the merits of fitness and convenience for its use. The situation of the railway terminus is on the Black Town Esplanade, outside the north wall of the city, and between this and the village of Rayapuram. It is therefore close to the beach, affording great facilities for the transfer of merchandise or passengers between the land and the sea traffic, while it is in the immediate vicinity of the custom-house. The advantages of railway conveyance have now become familiar to every province of British India, and will soon effect a mighty change in the condition of that vast territory and of its two hundred millions of people.

At a meeting of the Coventry Town Council on Tuesday Mr. Alderman Gulson formally handed over to that borough a new free library building, erected at a cost of £4000, of which Mr. Gulson had contributed £3000, the remaining £1000 having been given by Mr. Carter, of Battle, Sussex. The site on which the free library stands is also the gift of Mr. Gulson.

A large number of Conservatives assembled at dinner at Tiverton, on Saturday last, when Sir Stafford Northcote, who presided, presented a testimonial—a handsome silver candleabra—from 600 subscribers, to Mr. Walrond, who unsuccessfully contested Tiverton last year in the Conservative interest. The Earl of Devon, Viscount Sidmouth, Sir J. Kennaway, Mr. N. Grenville, M.P., and Major Paget, M.P., were present.

THE DUKE D'AUMALE.

The court-martial held at the Trianon, Versailles, for the trial of Marshal Bazaine upon the charges of treason and cowardice when in command of the French army at Metz, is presided over by one of the Princes of the Orleans Royal family, whose high character and ability have long been recognised. Henri Eugène Philippe Louis d'Orleans, fourth son of King Louis Philippe and of Queen Marie Amélie, and therefore uncle to the Count de Paris, who is heir to the crown of that King, was born in Paris on Jan. 12, 1822. He was educated, like his brothers, in the Collège Henri IV., and at the age of seventeen entered the military service. In 1840 he accompanied the eldest of his brothers, the Duke of Orleans, to the war in Algeria, and went through the campaign of that year, but returned to France in 1841, and completed his military education at Courbevoie. In 1842 he was again employed in active service in Algeria. In command of the subdivision of the army engaged in the district of Medeah, he conducted one of the most spirited and effective operations of the war, capturing the camp of Abd-el-Kadir, with 3600 prisoners, and with the treasure-chest and despatches of the Arab chieftain. For this service his Royal Highness was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-General, and was appointed to the command of the province of Constantine. In 1844 he commanded the expedition against Biskara, and in 1847 he succeeded Marshal Bugeaud as Governor-General of Algeria. The Duke d'Aumale had, in 1844, married a lady of the Neapolitan Royal family, Maria Carolina Augusta de Bourbon, daughter of Prince Leopold of Salerno. Upon the dethronement of King Louis Philippe by the revolution at Paris in February, 1848, the Duke d'Aumale resigned his government of Algeria to General Cavaignac, and joined the King and the rest of his family in England. His Royal Highness has made himself quite at home in the best English society, residing sometimes at Twickenham, sometimes in Worcestershire, where he owns a fine estate, and where he devoted much care to agricultural improvements. He has also been a good deal occupied in literary and historical studies; he is author of a "History of the Princes of Condé in the Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries," which was published in 1869, and which has been translated into English. He joined with his brother, the Prince de Joinville, in a protest against the decree banishing the Orleans family from France, and in 1861 he assailed the Empire in a letter addressed to Prince Napoleon, which excited some controversy, as it occasioned the prosecution of a French printer and a challenge to fight a duel. About the same time the Duke d'Aumale was invited to take the chair at the dinner of the Royal Literary Fund in London, where he delivered a graceful, scholar-like, and becoming address. He had the misfortune to lose his wife by the death of that lady in 1869. His eldest son, the Prince of Condé, born in 1845, died in 1866; and his second son, François Louis Marie Philippe d'Orleans, Duke of Guise, died last year, in the nineteenth year of his age. Two years ago, after the overthrow of the Empire, when the French Assembly at Versailles repealed the laws which had exiled the Orleans Princes, the Duke d'Aumale returned to his country with his nephew and his brothers. He was elected a member of the Assembly, but refrained for the time from taking his seat, in pursuance of an arrangement made between the political parties in favour of constitutional government. It is believed that he has kept aloof from the steps lately taken by the Orleanists towards a fusion of their interests with that of the Legitimists, or partisans of the Count de Chambord. Indeed, the Duke d'Aumale has been more than once mentioned of late as a person who might possibly become President of the Republic, if that form of political constitution were firmly established on the basis of secure social order and regular administration. The selection of this Prince, as a military man of experience, of extensive knowledge, sound judgment, and high honour, to superintend the trial of Marshal Bazaine, is very generally approved. The proceedings were begun on Monday last, the accused being present; but as there are 272 witnesses for the prosecution, this trial is likely to be as lengthy as the Tichborne case. The sittings of the Court are held in the hall of the Grand Trianon palace, which has been adapted to this purpose by some alterations. Here the Duke d'Aumale and his six colleagues are seated at a crescent-shaped green-baize table; the Judge Advocate and the counsel for the prosecution and defence occupy their own

THE DUKE D'AUMALE, PRESIDENT OF THE COURT FOR TRYING MARSHAL BAZAINE.

TERMINUS OF THE MADRAS RAILWAY.

SKETCHES IN VIENNA.

PEDLARS AND LAUNDRESS.

A FASHIONABLE CONDITOREL.

tables right and left; while the Marshal, wearing his uniform and grand cross of the Legion of Honour, sits in an arm-chair beside his counsel, Maître Lachaud, with an officer of his staff, Colonel Villette, to assist them in military details. Before allowing the case for the prosecution to be opened his Royal Highness ordered the reading of a statement of Marshal Bazaine's services since the beginning of his military career, with an account of the wounds he had received, and a list of the distinctions conferred upon him. This act of just consideration was regarded as a pledge of the impartiality, candour, and forbearance with which the Duke d'Aumale is expected by those who know him to conduct one of the most important judicial inquests that have ever taken place in France.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent in Paris.)

Thursday, Oct. 9.

The question of the restoration of the Monarchy in France assumes every day a more defined form. By dint of intriguing and trimming, a majority of deputies in its favour is said to be at length assured; and, thanks to Jesuits and place-hunters, and an unprincipled press, there is a chance—but by no means a certainty—of the coming Session of the Assembly witnessing the delivering over of France, almost without guarantees, to the aged recluse of Frohsdorf. And this without any opportunity being given to the nation—who conferred no such mandate as this upon their rulers—of expressing an opinion upon a step the fruits of which will be another revolution, and the relieving of France from both branches of Bourbon pretendants. The Courrier de Paris, which has monopolised the specialty of sensational news during the last week or two, announces that the Comte de Chambord has given orders to an eminent horsedealer to purchase the horses and gala carriages necessary for his triumphal procession through his "bonne ville de Paris." The same journal also informs us that 340 deputies have agreed to vote with M. Thiers on all questions, thus reducing the Monarchical majority from 110 to 70; and adds that the adherents of the ex-President of the Republic are increasing in number every day. The Paris Journal has given us the names of the nonentities who will in all probability form the first Ministry of the second Restoration; and according to this list we find that the movements of the French army will be directed by General Changarnier, and the national finances administered by M. Chesnelong, a financier of the ancien régime. M. Léon Say, the political director of the Débats, and president of the Left Centre Club, has addressed an important circular to the members of his group, which concludes with the words, "After as before the fusion we remain convinced of the necessity of voting the Constitutional laws and of organising a Conservative Republic." The Republican candidates are certain to be successful at the coming elections, and the greatest discipline appears to prevail among the different fractions of the minority, who talk of leaving the Assembly en masse should any Monarchical propositions be brought forward on the return of the Deputies to Versailles. The effect of such a manoeuvre would be to paralyse the action of the Legitimists, and would be equivalent to a "count out" in our own House of Commons. M. Thiers, who returned to Paris a few days ago, is actively engaged in concocting measures with the leading Republican Deputies.

Just now, however, even the all-engrossing subject of the Restoration is dominated by the temporary excitement caused by the commencement of the long talked-of proceedings against Marshal Bazaine for his conduct before Metz, and all the old discussions are again resumed upon the incidents and surmises set forth in the lengthy act of accusation. The trial, which commenced on Monday last, is being held in the salle of the Grand Trianon—one of the various whims born of the mania for building which possessed Louis XIV.

The council of war is presided over by the Duc d'Aumale, who has for his colleagues, Generals Chabaud, Latour, Tripiér, Lamotte-Rouge, Guind, Malroy, Ressayre, Lallemand, and Martineau. On Monday the court was opened. The Judges entered the salle at noon precisely, and the Duke, turning to an officer who was waiting in readiness, ordered him to introduce the Marshal. The countenance of the ex-commander of the Army of the Rhine was intensely pale as he walked slowly up to the place reserved for him, and bowed ceremoniously to the tribunal previously to taking his seat. His voice showed no signs of emotion, however, as he replied to the questions of the president, whose duty it is to assure himself of the identity of the accused by asking him his name, age, residence, and profession. These formalities accomplished, the president proceeded to call over the names of the witnesses, who occupied the crimson velvet benches which line the lower end of the gallery, and which have since been allotted to the public. Marshals Canrobert and Lebœuf were the first to reply "Present" to their names, being followed in order by Generals de Palikao, Frossard, Coffinières, Lebrun, &c. Next came the turn of the civilians, among whom one noticed the notorious M. Regnier, Jules Favre, and Gambetta, the latter bowing ceremoniously to the Duke, who returned his salutation in a somewhat solemn manner. Several of the 326 witnesses who are to figure in the trial were absent, and the president notified his intention of inflicting the usual penalties upon such as could not present legitimate excuses. The sitting having been suspended when the lengthy list came to an end, such witnesses as were present were authorised to leave the court, as they would not be required to attend for several days to come; and then the greffiers proceeded to read the états de service of the Marshal, the opinion of the Committee of Inquiry into the capitulations of the Franco-German War, and various other documents. Next came the acte d'accusation, a lengthy document, the reading of which continued during the sittings of Tuesday and Wednesday, and is not yet finished. It commences with certain general considerations apropos of the events which preceded the declaration of war, alludes to the situation of the French army, gives a passing mention to the famous combat of Saarbrücken, which it appropriately terms a reconnaissance, and describes in detail the battle of Forbach-Spicheren, the first important engagement of the war, in which General Frossard was seriously worsted by the enemy, owing to the negligence of the Marshal, who, when at only twenty minutes' distance from the scene of the fight, neglected to reinforce the former's small division, although he had the troops of Generals Castagny, Montaudon, and Metmann at his disposal. Named commander-in-chief on Aug. 12, Bazaine directed the retreat upon Châlons, and, his rear-guard being attacked by the enemy on the 14th, he hurried to the scene of action at Borny and repulsed the Germans with great vigour. On the 16th he was forced again to give battle, owing to some unfortunate strategical movements, the responsibility of which he endeavoured to throw upon the chief of his staff, General Jarras, and the result of which was that Verdun was cut off from the French army. The Prussians were victorious at Gravelotte, and the Army of the Rhine was thrown into the greatest confusion, which was increased by the scarcity of provisions. At the battle of St. Privat, which followed, Marshal

Canrobert resisted the enemy all day, at the head of the 6th Corps d'Armée, vainly awaiting reinforcements from Bazaine, who was stationed with the reserve some distance off. The reinforcements never came, and, pressed by the superior forces of the enemy, Canrobert was compelled to retire. The acte d'accusation enters very minutely into the question of the numerous despatches sent by the Emperor and MacMahon to Bazaine, which the latter says he either never received, or received too late to be able to act in accordance with them. On Aug. 26 the Marshal held a council of war, at which, without referring to the arrangement proposed by MacMahon, that the two armies should meet at Montmédy, he suggested a programme of manoeuvres, with Metz for their basis. On the 31st a grand battle took place, which resulted in the complete separation of the two corps and the blockade of Bazaine's forces under the walls of Metz. General Pourcet's report criticises severely the various military manoeuvres of the army after the commencement of the siege, and speaks in condemnatory terms of the negotiations opened through the medium of M. Regnier, to whom the Marshal foolishly revealed the critical position of his troops with regard to the supplies of food. It is not the verdict of the Court upon his strictly military measures that the Marshal has most to fear, but rather the judgment that may be passed upon these negotiations, which included the mission of General Bourbaki to Chiselhurst, and that of General Boyer to Versailles, and the lengthy correspondence with Prince Bismarck and the Empress. Bazaine certainly acted very foolishly in listening to that ambiguous personage, M. Regnier, whom the report accuses of being a Prussian emissary. When the Empire and the Regency fell, the Marshal, instead of recognising the new Government, aspired to play an independent military part, and wrote to the German Chancellor at Versailles to suggest that his army "might become the palladium of society." While these illusory negotiations were going on, the stock of provisions became exhausted, any further resistance was rendered impossible, and the surrender of the virgin city inevitable. On the eve of the capitulation the Marshal's enemies, moreover, assert that he obtained the flags and eagles from the Colonels of the different regiments on the pretext that they should be burned, and then reserved them for the enemy. The report is full of numerous stories like this, which require proof or disproof, and the circulation of which has led in no small degree to the opinion that the unfortunate commander betrayed his army.

SPAIN.

General Moriones has gained a great victory over the Carlists near Puente la Reyna, in Navarre. Notwithstanding that they held very formidable positions, they were completely routed. The followers of Don Carlos lost a hundred killed and five times as many wounded, besides prisoners; while the Republicans had four officers and sixteen men killed and twenty-five officers and 176 men wounded. Estella is in the hands of General Moriones, the Carlists having abandoned it precipitately rather than risk a pitched battle. Tristany and Miret, with their united bands, surprised the town of Valls, but they had hardly taken possession when the local volunteers rallied and drove them out. Another Carlist defeat, though on a small scale, has occurred at La Junquera. Shots were exchanged with the garrison and communications were interrupted, but in the end the Carlists were driven off. Don Juan, the father of the Spanish Pretender, has reappeared on the theatre of war along with the disrated General Saballs. They have arrived in Catalonia. It is said that the Carlists have succeeded in landing 900,000 cartridges in Biscay, and that they are expecting 4000 rifles and six guns. The mail train from Badajoz was on Tuesday stopped by Carlists between Veredas and Caracolleras, in the province of Ciudad Real. No violence was offered to the passengers. The first military execution since the proclamation of the Republic has been in the case of a corporal of chasseurs, who, having deserted to the Carlist side, was recaptured by the Republicans, and shot by them at Farragura. A telegram has been received by the Spanish Government from its representative in Athens announcing that a battalion of young Greeks had offered to go to Spain to fight against the Carlists. The offer has not, however, been accepted.

General Ceballos, who is now conducting the siege of Carthage, is extending his lines toward Herrera, in order to prevent the foraging sorties of the besieged. He is receiving large reinforcements, especially of officers. Considerable parties of insurgents are deserting from the besieged lines. A sortie of 2000 insurgents has been repulsed. The insurgent vessels Tetuan and Fernando el Católico set out on another raid last week; the Numancia had a mutiny on board, and could not accompany them. The two ships arrived before Garrucha, in the province of Almería, followed by an English war-schooner. They effected a landing, seized 5000 dollars and an abundant supply of provisions, but were prevented from re-embarking with their spoil, owing to a heavy sea. The insurgent frigates have returned to Carthage. Admiral Lobo is at last on his way with his squadron to Carthage. In addition to the iron-clad Vittoria, he has with him three frigates and two corvettes. But, although fortune continues to favour the Government, no decisive blow has yet been struck at either of its opponents, and there is no sign of any adequate efforts being made to suppress the twofold rebellion against which it has been so long contending.

ITALY.

A decree summoning Parliament to meet in November has been forwarded by the Government to the King for signature. The King has signed the decrees relative to the reorganisation of the army, the division of the kingdom into military territorial districts, and the departments which are to be placed under the control of the Minister of War. These laws will shortly be promulgated.

The Pope is said to be in excellent health, and holds receptions daily. On the anniversary of the plebiscite (Oct. 2) which extinguished the Temporal Power his Holiness received 300 members of the Catholic societies. In answer to their address of condolence he predicted better times for the Church, and declared that confusion had already entered into the enemy's camp. In conversation his Holiness afterwards said:—"They wish me to leave Rome, but I never will." On the same day, in the Monti quarter, there was an illumination, and bands of music paraded the streets, playing national airs. While giving audience, on the following day, to some members of the Catholic party, he was questioned as to the period of the triumph of his cause, he replied, "We give way to no illusions on this point; humanly speaking, it is very far off."

GERMANY.

The Emperor William will be accompanied to Vienna by his relatives the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Baden, in accordance with an invitation from the Emperor of Austria.

The formal recognition of Bishop Reinkens as a Bishop in the Prussian dominions is now complete. He was, on Tuesday last, admitted to the oath of office as a Bishop, according to the Prussian Constitution. His investiture was made a political event by the action of the Minister of Public Worship. Before administering the oath, Dr. Falk made a speech, setting forth the claims of the Old Catholics upon the consideration of the Government. First and foremost among them was their willingness to render unto Caesar that which is Caesar's. The oath was the same as that taken by Catholic Bishops, except that it omitted the proviso about fidelity to the Pope.

Mgr. Ledochowski, the anti-Bismarckite Bishop of Posen, has incurred a second fine of 600 thalers, with the alternative of four months' imprisonment, for illegal ecclesiastical appointments. He will probably be asked to resign his see.

HOLLAND.

Major-General Weitzel has been appointed Minister of War. The Second Chamber has adopted a bill suspending the coinage of the new standard silver pieces until May 1, 1874. The Chamber has been prorogued sine die.

DENMARK.

The Rigsdag was opened on Tuesday by Royal Commission, without a Speech from the Throne. At a later period of the day a colossal bronze statue of the late King Frederick VII. was unveiled with much ceremony, in the presence of the Court. A Schleswig deputation was present to testify the respect of the Schleswigers for their last Danish Sovereign.

GREECE.

The Queen of Greece arrived at Odessa on Sunday from the Crimea, and was most enthusiastically received. The Greek residents presented to her Majesty the sum of 34,000*l.*, and Johann Vulchina 20,000*l.*, to be distributed among the poor in Greece. At eleven p.m. the Queen left, with the Grand Duchess Wera Constantinowna, for Vienna.

AMERICA.

The Treasury has deposited large amounts of currency at New Orleans and Charleston, in order to facilitate the shipment of cotton, which had been obstructed by the late financial crisis. The monetary panic has not quite subsided.

A New York telegram states that yellow fever is increasing at Memphis, there being twenty-five deaths every day.

With the exception of two, who were reprieved, the Modoc Indians were hanged on Saturday morning. Captain Jack and his fellow braves marched to the scaffold without flinching.

A telegram reports the opening of the Evangelical Alliance. A remarkable feature, it is stated, was the cordial hand-shaking between the French and German delegates.

INDIA.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs that there are rumours of Russia wishing to establish a trade with India by the Aral Sea and the Oxus. According to the same authority the Forsyth Mission is pushing on to Shadool. It has received a letter of welcome from Yarkund.

An earthquake shock was felt at Darmstadt and in the Odenwald on Tuesday afternoon.

A Constantinople telegram says that Monsignor Anthimos, the Greek Ecumenical Patriarch, has resigned.

The annual sale of surplus animals bred at the Zoological Gardens at Antwerp realised £4000.

By a telegram from Melbourne we learn that the Fiji Islands are again in a disturbed state, in consequence of the refusal of the whites to pay taxes.

The Porte has received a telegram from Teheran announcing that the Shah has again summoned the ex-Grand Vizier to his councils, and has exiled three of the latter's enemies.

The next mails for Australia and New Zealand will be dispatched from London as follows:—Via Southampton, on the morning of Oct. 23; via Brindisi, on the evening of Oct. 23.

A grand festival has been held at Rio in celebration of the anniversary of Brazilian independence. Mass was performed in the state chapel, attended by the Emperor and Empress, and in the evening the city was illuminated.

Since the suppression of the Melegar and Pallacios revolution in Honduras the Central American Republics have been comparatively quiet. The frontier question between Costa Rica and Nicaragua is gradually adjusting itself.

The American balloon, in its second attempt to reach Europe, missed the easterly current which was to carry it across the Atlantic, and, after a short sail across Connecticut, descended within a hundred miles of where it started from.

All the maritime Powers, except the United States and Portugal, are represented at the International Commission on the tonnage dues of the Suez Canal, which began its sittings in Constantinople, on Monday, under the presidency of Eliezer Pasha, the Turkish Minister of Public Works.

It is stated that ex-Queen Isabella, at Trouville, on Saturday, in attempting to afford help to her son, Prince Alphonso, when in some danger of drowning, was herself carried away, and would have been lost if one of the bathing men had not saved her.

Advices from the Cape show that the border is in an unsettled condition. The gold-fields at Lydenberg are paying, one firm at Natal having received six pounds of the precious metal. Lieutenant-General Sir Arthur A. Conyngham is appointed Commander of the Forces and Lieutenant-Governor at the Cape of Good Hope, in the place of the late Lieutenant-General Charles Craufurd Hay.

The second party of free-passage emigrants going out to settle upon the farmsteads of the Emigrant and Colonists' Aid Corporation, in New Zealand, were embarked on board the Salisbury, in the South West India Dock, on Thursday week. Admiral George Elliot, one of the directors, and Mr. Stuart Bailey, the secretary to the corporation, were on board the ship to receive the emigrants, to inspect the arrangements for their comfort on the voyage, and to wish them "God speed" to their new homes in the colony.

Kassa, Prince of Tigré, now Johanni II., Emperor of Abyssinia, and a Christian to boot, according to the correspondent of the Giornale delle Colonie who writes from Massawa, under date of Aug. 3, having captured the brave pretender to the throne, Abba Kassai, ordered his ears to be filled with gun-cotton, which he caused to be exploded, when the head was blown to atoms. It is reported that he lately caused the right hands and the left legs of no less than twenty-seven captives to be chopped off in his Imperial presence, and then abandoned the prisoners to be preyed upon by lions, tigers, and panthers.

The Postmaster-General has issued the following notice:—"The Post Office of Queensland having given notice to this department that packets containing jewellery or other articles of value, received in that colony, are chargeable with customs' duties, the Postmaster-General thinks it necessary to make this regulation known to the public, and to state that any letters or packets containing such articles, sent through the post to Queensland, are, according to the colonial laws, liable to be detained and not delivered to the addressees until the customs' duties have been paid."

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Sir Edwin Landseer's funeral is to take place to-day (Saturday) at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The festival service of the Metropolitan Charity Schools took place on Thursday morning at St. Paul's Cathedral.

A temperance hospital was opened, yesterday week, in Gower-street, its special object being to test the theory of medical treatment without stimulants.

The consent of the Metropolitan Board of Works has been obtained for the construction of a public swimming-bath upon the Thames, at the west side of Charing-cross.

The death of Sir Paul Edmund de Strzelicki, perhaps better known as Count de Strzelicki, took place on Monday morning. He was a celebrated Polish exile and traveller.

At a meeting of the Commissioners of Sewers, on Wednesday, it was decided to pave the remainder of King William-street, London Bridge, with Val de Travers asphalt.

Professor Huxley opened the winter session at the South Kensington School of Art and Science, on Monday morning, by delivering a lecture on biology. His especial subject was yeast.

Mr. Edmond Beales has received from a number of working men a gold watch and chain, of the value of 100gs., as a testimonial of his services in extending and securing the political rights of the people.

The Queen's prizes gained by students at the Islington Schools of Science and Art at the late May examination of the Science and Art Department, South Kensington, were, on Thursday week, distributed by Dr. C. Meymott Tidy, in the lecture-room of the schools, Windsor-street, Essex-road.

The inaugural lecture of the winter session was delivered in the large room of the Bedford College for Ladies, in Bedford-square, on Wednesday, by Mr. S. Gardner, B.A., the subject selected being "Europe in the Seventeenth Century." There was a large attendance of ladies.

The Society of Arts has selected for prizes four cabs from those competing—viz., two two-wheelers, one by Thorn, of Norwich, and one by Forder, of Wolverhampton; and two four-wheelers, one by Lambert, of Great Queen-street, and one by Quick and Norminton, of Kilburn. The cabs may be seen in the International Exhibition at South Kensington.

At this week's meeting of the London School Board Mr. J. Macgregor proposed a system of rewards for pupils and pupil teachers in board schools. In consequence of the limited attendance its consideration was postponed. A proposition made by the Rev. J. Rogers, for permitting the establishment of penny lanks in connection with board schools, was referred to a committee.

The committee of the Hospital-Sunday fund announce in their final report that the net amount realised, after payment of expenses, was £26,949 19s. 3d. The whole of it has been disbursed by the distribution committee, with the exception of a small amount reserved for the preliminary expenses of next year. A list of institutions exceeding a hundred in number is given to show how the distribution was carried out.

The total number of paupers in the metropolitan districts last week was 97,893, of whom 33,695 were in workhouses and 64,198 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding week in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 3190, 19,520, and 29,891 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 476, of whom 329 were men, 125 women, and 22 children.

The Great Northern Railway Company have given notice to the Islington vestry of their intention to open up Highbury-crescent West, and construct railway works from the Seven Sisters-road station to form a junction with the North London Railway. A public road is also to be opened, upon which a locomotive will be used instead of horses, but the company state that every precaution will be taken to prevent accident.

Two schools were opened yesterday week under the auspices of the London School Board in the neighbourhood of New-cross. One is situated in Clifford-road, Deptford, close to the termini of the South Eastern and London and Brighton lines at New-cross. The other is built in Creek's-road, about a mile distant. A new school, erected in Blundell-street, Caledonian-road, by the board was opened on Monday. The building can accommodate 830 children—viz., 340 infants, 245 boys, and 245 girls. It contains three stories, with a basement under part of the ground floor. It cost about £7000.

Last week 2234 births and 1386 deaths were registered in London. After making due allowance for increase of population, the births were 39 and the deaths 10 below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The fatal cases of diarrhoea, which in the eight previous weeks had declined from 470 to 85, further decreased to 71 last week, but exceeded the correct average number in the corresponding week of the last ten years by 6. The deaths from different forms of fever further rose to 43, from 26, 34, and 39 in the three previous weeks; 13 were certified as typhus, 23 as enteric or typhoid, and 7 as simple continued fever. There was 1 death from smallpox, 32 from measles, 19 from scarlet fever, 8 from diphtheria, and 38 from whooping-cough. The mean temperature was 57.2, or 3.2 above the average.

We are requested to announce that the Commissioners of her Majesty's Works and Public Buildings intend to distribute this autumn, among the working classes and the poor inhabitants of London, the surplus bedding-out plants in Battersea, Hyde, Regent's, and Victoria Parks, and in the Royal Gardens, Kew, and the Pleasure Gardens, Hampton Court. If the clergy, school committees, and others interested will make application to the superintendents of the parks nearest to their respective parishes, or to the Director of the Royal Gardens, Kew, or the Superintendent of Hampton Court Gardens, in the cases of persons residing in those neighbourhoods, they will receive early intimation of the number of plants that can be allotted to each applicant, and of the time and manner of their distribution.

It having been determined by vote at the International Congress of Orientalists, recently held in Paris, that the Congress of 1874 should assemble in London, a committee of management has been formed to make the necessary arrangements. The congress will meet in the course of next year, and the subscription is fixed at 12s., or half-a-guinea. The languages, archaeology, ethnology, and the arts and sciences of the various Oriental countries will form the subjects for discussion. It is proposed that the sittings should occupy six evenings, and that the mornings of the same days should be devoted to visiting the different national institutions connected with Oriental literature and science. The statutes of the Congress are in course of preparation, and detailed programmes will shortly be issued. All communications should be addressed to Robert K. Douglas, British Museum, London; and those interested in Oriental studies who may wish to join the congress are requested to inform him of their intention as soon as possible.

Some interesting piscicultural experiments in connection with the Thames fishery were begun at Sunbury on Saturday last, when some thousands of young salmon and trout, hatched from ova collected from various parts of the world, were turned into the river, under the superintendence of Mr. Frank Buckland and Mr. Stephen Ponder. The fish comprised young salmon from the Tyne, salmon presented by the Prussian Government, Great Lake trout from Neuchâtel, trout from Norway, presented by Mr. Bennett, of Christiania; common trout, from Lord Portsmouth; and char, from Mr. Parnaby, of Keswick. These were all hatched in Mr. Buckland's museum at South Kensington, and in Mr. Ponder's troughs at Hampton, whence they were transferred to Sunbury. They were all in healthy condition. The ponds, which lie close and parallel to Sunbury Lock, are supplied by water from the Thames.

Dr. Tidy, Medical Officer of Health and Analyst of Food for the parish of Islington, has reported to the vestry as to the Adulteration of Food Act:—"I felt strongly it was my duty to render the Act as far as possible a means of preventing the dishonest tradesman robbing the poor man of his money, and the rich and poor alike of their health. I have considered it advisable to begin my food investigations with the common food of the common people. I examined seventy samples of milk, and gave certificates in eleven cases that the milk was adulterated with water. In no case, except a little salt, did I find any other matter added. These cases were heard at the Clerkenwell Police Court, and in eight cases the offence was proved and the parties fined. As a proof that the prosecutions in these milk cases have been of very considerable benefit, I may add that the last twenty samples of milk I examined proved to be very superior in quality to those I previously analysed. I have also examined twenty samples of bread, and it is a matter for congratulation that only in four cases did I find alum. The amount in these, even, was small, and therefore no action was taken. I have also examined two samples of tea, both of which were pure."—Dr. Stevenson, Medical Officer of Health and Food Analyst for St. Pancras, states:—"I am sorry to say that I cannot give a very favourable account of the milk supply of this parish." In sixty-seven samples of milk examined he found twenty-two skimmed, three watered, eleven skimmed and watered, eleven poor, and only twenty-two genuine.

ELECTIONS NEWS.

Captain Hayter, the Liberal candidate, was on Wednesday elected member for Bath, obtaining 139 votes more than Mr. Forsyth, the Conservative. Mr. Thompson, the Alliance candidate, polled only 57. At a meeting held at Bath, on Monday night, to hear an address from Mr. Forsyth, Lord Grey de Wilton read the following letter which he had received from Mr. Disraeli:—"My dear Grey, I am much obliged to you for your Bath news. It is most interesting. It is rare a constituency has the opportunity of not only leading, but sustaining, public opinion at a critical period. That has been the high fortune of the people of Bath, and they have proved themselves worthy of it by the spirit and constancy they have shown. I cannot doubt they will continue their patriotic course by supporting Mr. Forsyth, an able and accomplished man, who will do honour to those who send him to Parliament. For nearly five years the present Ministers have harassed every trade, worried every profession, and assailed or menaced every class, institution, and species of property in the country. Occasionally they have varied this state of civil warfare by perpetrating some job which outraged public opinion, or by stumbling into mistakes which have been always discreditable, and sometimes ruinous. All this they call a policy, and seem quite proud of it; but the country has, I think, made up its mind to close this career of plundering and blundering."

Mr. Bright's address to the electors of Birmingham was issued on Tuesday. The right hon. gentleman says that the office which he has accepted is not a heavy departmental one, or he could not have ventured upon it. He will, however, be enabled to take part in the deliberations of the Cabinet, and to render services to principles which he had often expounded, more important, he believed, than any he could render in the House of Commons unconnected with the Government. Mr. Bright adds that in office he holds the principles which he had constantly professed since he was elected for Birmingham sixteen years ago. He assures the electors that when he finds himself unable to advance those principles and to serve them honestly as a Minister he shall abandon a position demanding sacrifices which he cannot make.

In a speech delivered at Rowbarton on Monday night, the Solicitor-General said that while he "believed home to be woman's world, and that domestic life and political life would alike suffer if she turned her attention from home to politics," he would at the same time support the extension of the franchise to women when "one half or nearly one half" of the women of England asked for the suffrage.

Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen and Mr. H. A. Brassey were entertained by their constituents at a banquet at Deal on Wednesday night. The Under-Secretary for the Colonies spoke at some length in vindication of the policy of the Liberal Administration.

The nomination for Taunton will take place to-day (Saturday) and the polling on Monday next.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

The annual prize-meeting of the K (Aldersgate Ward) company, London Rifle Brigade, was held on Saturday last at Essex. The winners were Messrs. Tayton, Sanderson, Richardson, Westrup, Britt, Kitchingman, Ellett, Poulter, Wrightson, Frost, Haines, Gibbons, Watts, Sell, Page, Ruff, Wright, and Read.

Several of the annual rifle competitions in the west came off recently. At Dorchester, in the shooting for the £10 cup presented by the borough member, Colonel Napier Stuart headed the list. The gold medal and the Mayor's silver salver fell to Private Muford. The challenge prize presented to the Sherborne corps by a lady was won by Private Morley. A piece of plate given by the ladies was taken by Sergeant Foot. Lieutenant Calder was the winner of the piece of plate presented by Mr. Wingfield Baker, M.P. At Yeovil, Sergeant Melbourne won the champion cup given by the Mayor, also £4 and a piece of plate presented by another gentleman.

Colonel Chermide's report on the volunteer artillery camp at Shoeburyness is in nearly all respects complimentary. It strongly commends the soldier-like conduct of the men and the orderly manner in which camp duties were observed. The only qualification given to the eulogy bestowed is in noting that the practice with the 40-pounder breechloaders was not so good as might reasonably be expected. Colonel Chermide surmises that the cause lies in imperfect acquaintance with the handling of the tangent scale.

At the annual All-Comers' Prize meeting at Clondeboye, county Down, the All-Ireland Challenge Shield was again won by the Ulster Rifle Association.

SKETCHES IN VIENNA.

The dress, manners, and employments of different classes of the people in the lively capital of the Austrian empire afford much entertainment to an observant foreign visitor, independently of the Great Exhibition, still open in the Prater Park. There is great diversity of figures, costumes, and dialects among the various nationalities comprised in the dominions of Francis Joseph, and the poorer inhabitants of this large city are in the habit of practising a multitude of trades or shifts to get their precarious living. An industrious woman, for instance, who has worked hard to finish her job of washing, ironing, or mangling linen, and who goes through the street laden with a basket of clean clothes, may be accosted by a mob of travelling pedlars from the Danubian provinces, clad in half-Asiatic attire, and speaking a language scarcely known in Western Europe. They will tempt her feminine taste for personal finery with a display of cheap brooches and earrings, or they may endeavour to extract from her maternal fondness the price of a toy for one of her children, if she does not care to buy a new mock-meerscham, or other fancy tobacco-pipe, for the evening solace of her worthy husband. This dilemma of the female Viennese workwoman is portrayed in one of our Artist's street sketches; while the other shows us the interior of a fashionable restaurateur's shop, or conditorei, as it is called in German, where ladies and gentlemen are briskly served with palatable food and drink of a light and dainty sort in the noontide interval between breakfast and dinner.

DISASTERS.

Three men were scalded to death last week in the Trancher-bone Pit, near Bolton, by the bursting of a pipe while they were engaged in repairing one of the joints of the boiler.

As a party of boys at Warrington were playing with a roughly-extemporised toy cannon, it burst, and one of the juvenile artillerists was struck in the neck and killed.

Mr. Charles Fyfe, cashier in the Post Office, who had started for his yearly holiday, was drowned last week in attempting to ford the river Spey, near Garmonth. Mr. Fyfe had been in the Post Office service thirty-six years.

Mr. Joseph Staples, a bootmaker, of George-street, Richmond, while waiting for a train at Twickenham station, last week, was observed to fall forward as if in a fainting fit. A doctor was immediately called, but found him dead.

Yesterday week five men were killed and about a dozen others seriously injured by the fall of a newly-erected chimney shaft at the cement works of Messrs. Gostling, at Northfleet, near Gravesend.

A storm, brief in duration, but most violent in its character passed over Brighton at a few minutes past six on Wednesday morning. Two men employed on the drainage works in front of the sea were struck by lightning and killed instantaneously.

Ellen Pelly, a ballet girl, has died in Charing-cross Hospital from the effects of a severe burning at the Alhambra Theatre. She was about to ascend in the irons, when her light dress caught fire, and, owing to the poor girl's excitement, it was with difficulty extinguished. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death," with a recommendation to the manager to provide more wet blankets at the sides of the stage, so as to be better prepared for such emergencies.

Colonel Rich, reporting upon the recent railway accident at Retford junction, attributes it to "most unaccountable conduct on the part of the driver of the fish-train." This driver has been committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter. Colonel Hutchison, in his report on the collision between two passenger-trains in a tunnel near Gloucester-road station, attributes it to the mistake of signalman Green in signalling the line clear for the 5.10 train when he thought the five o'clock train was being inquired about. It is recommended as a strict injunction for the future that signalmen, in asking about trains, should refer to them by number. Again the Caledonian Railway porters have, while shunting coal-waggons, been surprised by a passenger-train. The collision occurred on an incline, and the passengers escaped with a fright. A collision between a passenger and a goods train took place, on Saturday last, at Mary-hill, a few miles from Glasgow. One man was killed and sixteen persons were injured.

A Board of Trade inquiry was concluded at the Greenwich Police Court, on Saturday, into the circumstances attending the stranding of the screw-steamer Black Duck, Captain Michael Johnson. The steamer left Newcastle, on Sept. 8 last, with a cargo of 750 tons of coal for London, and on the following day, in fine weather, went aground on the Gunfleet Sands, near Sandwich. The Court held that no reasonable cause was shown for the vessel going aground, and ordered the certificate of the captain to be suspended for twelve calendar months. The inquiry into the foundering of the grain-laden steam-ship Hilton Philipson, of South Shields, was concluded on Monday. The Court were of opinion that the steamer was lost from various causes, the nature of which, and their opinion thereon, would be reported to the Board of Trade. They did not find Captain Purvis in default, and returned him his certificate. A Board of Trade inquiry was held at South Shields, on Tuesday, into the circumstances attending the wreck of the schooner Elizabeth, of that port, which occurred near Arbroath, on Aug. 26. The vessel was thirty-two years of age, and was commanded by an uncertificated master, to whose fault her loss was ascribed by the Court, and who was ordered to pay the costs of the inquiry, not exceeding £5. The American schooner Addie Osborne has been run down and sunk by the Hull steamer Precursor, off Cape Breton, during a heavy fog. Only three out of the crew of fifteen were saved.

The anniversary festival of the Royal Albert Asylum for Idiots was held at Lancaster on Wednesday. One of the events of the day was a banquet, at which Lord Derby presided.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

Per Annum ..	£1 6s. 6d.; post-free ..	£1 8s. 6d.
" Half-year ..	0 13s. 6d.; " ..	0 14s. 6d.
" Quarter ..	0 6s. 6d.; " ..	0 7s. 6d.

The Christmas Number Sixpence extra for the Half-Year or Quarter.

Copies will be supplied, per post, direct from the Office, for any period, at the rate of 6d. for each Number, paid in advance.

Copies will be sent to the following places abroad on the under-mentioned terms:—To Australia, Belgium, Canada, Cape of Good Hope, France, Honduras, New Zealand, United States, and West Indies, per annum, £1 11s.; to Austria, Ceylon, China, Constantinople, Germany, Holland, India, Spain, and Switzerland, per annum, £1 15s. 6d.; to Italy, per annum, £2.

The Subscription must be paid in advance, direct to the Publishing Office, 193, Strand, either in English money, or by Post-Office order, payable to the publisher, G. C. Leighton.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS may also be had in Monthly Parts and Half-Yearly Volumes.

OFFICE, 193, STRAND, LONDON.

THE KING OF ITALY IN VIENNA: EXHIBITION OF HORSES.

THE KING OF ITALY IN BERLIN: REVIEW OF THE GUARDS.

The Extra Supplement.

"THE OLD SHEPHERD'S CHIEF MOURNER"

BY SIR EDWIN LANDSEER, R.A.

We have in another page given some account of the life and works of Sir Edwin Landseer, whose death, as recorded in our last, is felt to be a great loss to contemporary English art. The famous picture, of which we are enabled to present an engraving for this week's Extra Supplement, has often been made a theme of appreciative and admiring comment. It will perhaps be most acceptable to our readers that we should here quote the remarks of Mr. Ruskin, in the first volume of "Modern Painters," in which he speaks as follows of this work:—"Take one of the most perfect poems or pictures (I use the words as synonymous) which modern times have seen, 'The Old Shepherd's Chief Mourner,' by Landseer. Here the exquisite execution of the glossy and crisp hair of the dog, the bright, sharp touching of the green bough beside it, the clear painting of the wood of the coffin, and the folds of the blankets, are language—language clear and expressive in the highest degree. But the close pressure of the dog's breast against the wood, the convulsive clinging of the paws, which has dragged the blanket off the trestle, the total powerlessness of the head laid close and motionless upon its folds, the fixed and tearful fall of the eye in its utter hopelessness, the rigidity of repose which marks that there has been no motion nor change in the trance of agony since the last blow was struck on the coffin-lid, the quietness and gloom of the chamber, the spectacles marking the place where the Bible was last closed, indicating how lonely has been the life, how unwatched the departure, of him who is now laid solitary in his sleep: these are all thoughts—thoughts by which the picture is separated at once from hundreds of equal merit, as far as mere painting goes, by which it ranks as a work of the highest art, and stamps its author not as the neat imitator of the texture of a skin or the fold of a drapery, but as the Man of Mind."

It is, of course, to this picture of "The Old Shepherd's Chief Mourner" that the author of some beautiful and truthful verses on the death of Sir Edwin Landseer, which appeared in this week's Punch, meant especially to refer, in speaking of Landseer as he "who, first of painters, gave dumb things a soul"—

And made us feel the links that hold men bound
In love, and joy, and grief with those dumb things,
Till hidden depths of sympathy were found
Where human kindness flowed from secret springs.

He sought the shelling of the shepherd dead,
Beside whose bier nor man nor woman weeps;
Only the colly lays his faithful head
Upon the coffin, where his master sleeps!

[It is a fitting place here to mention the exhibition which has been opened at the establishment of Messrs. Henry Graves and Co., 6, Pall-mall, comprising all the engraved works of Sir Edwin Landseer, from the most important to the smallest, such as the book illustrations designed by him—those of Scott's Waverley novels and others; in the collection we likewise find the very earliest and the very latest productions of his pencil, from the drawing of an Alpine mastiff, done when Edwin Landseer was a little boy, to "The Pont," which was exhibited by the Royal Academy in 1872. The whole number of works here shown exceeds 300, arranged in the front and back rooms on the ground floor of Messrs. Graves' premises, with several of the original paintings. The engravings are one of "Rat-Catching" (1823), by John Landseer, A.R.A., father of Sir Edwin; many by Thomas Landseer, A.R.A., Sir Edwin's brother; some by Samuel Cousins, R.A., R. J. Lane, A.R.A., J. Burnet, F.R.S., T. G. Atkinson, C. G. Lewis, J. T. Wilmore, A.R.A., G. Zobel, and others. Messrs. Graves have artists' proofs of all the engravings, and keep them on hand in every stage of the plates. Among those which have considerably risen in value, and which may be expected to advance still higher, are "The Monarch," "The Stag at Bay," "Peace" and "War," "The Highland Drovers," "Night" and "Morning," "Saved," "Shoeing the Horse," "Browsing," and the scene from "Midsummer Night's Dream." There is a series of twenty engravings of "The Forest" in a portfolio, which affords an attractive study of nature and art. Some few unpublished productions of Landseer are included in this collection; amongst these are his designs for the heading of sheets of note-paper used by the Queen at Balmoral in her private correspondence. We may, perhaps, again notice this exhibition, which will remain open for some time.

THE KING OF ITALY IN GERMANY.

The visit of King Victor Emmanuel to Vienna and Berlin has been an occasion to congratulate the Italian nation upon this token of a cordial friendship with the rulers of those two powerful monarchies whose subjects include nearly the whole of the great German race. Whether it was attended with important political negotiations, having reference to any future contingency that may threaten to disturb the peace of Continental Europe, we are not here concerned to inquire. Personally, there can be no doubt, the King of Italy is seldom inclined to go and be entertained at foreign Courts for his own pleasure and pastime. It is well known that he dislikes the cumbrous parade and formal etiquette of Royalty, and even the cities of Italy, where life is comparatively quiet and easy, are a residence less agreeable to him than one of his hunting-boxes on the Alpine or the Apennine slopes, where he may enjoy the delights of the chase. With some deference therefore to Victor Emmanuel's individual taste, we have selected for our illustrations, from among the series of ceremonial entertainments with which he was greeted in the metropolis of Austria and subsequently in the Prussian capital of the new German Empire, two scenes which may be supposed to have proved more congenial to his known predilections as a sportsman and a soldier. It was on Friday, the 19th ult., that Victor Emmanuel, accompanied by the Emperor Francis Joseph, was conducted through the International Exhibition, where he doubtless found much to admire in the works of art and manufacture; but he would be likely to have taken the greatest interest in the opening of the horse show which is annexed to that multifarious exhibition; and the moment when the stallions from the Imperial stables at Mezohegyes were led in, by the cavalry soldiers acting as grooms upon this occasion, is well chosen for a sketch of the proceedings. In like manner with regard to the King's entertainment at Berlin a few days later, when the Emperor William did all that such a grand and generous host could do, with the aid of the Crown Prince and Princess, to make Victor Emmanuel feel himself quite at home among the Germans, it is probable that there was nothing which pleased him better than the review of the Guards' Brigade at Potsdam. This took place on the 24th ult., in the esplanade next the Lust-Garten before the Royal palace, a space of not more than two acres, but enough for the mere inspection and "marching past" of four or five thousand troops. It is the subject of our second illustration.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The weather during the early part of the Newmarket Second Autumn Meeting was a sad contrast to that of the First Autumn gathering. Monday, though cold and raw, was not actually wet; but on Tuesday and Wednesday no one could leave the friendly shelter of a fly without getting a thorough soaking. The card on Monday presented a very skeleton appearance; and we sincerely trust that, as has been suggested, the authorities will in future run the Clearwell Stakes on that day, as the Cesarewitch is quite enough in itself to make the Tuesday attractive. Peter Price's stable was altogether out of form, and never had the least chance in either of the matches, Queen of the Chase and Thunder succumbing to Fairy Form and Morocco respectively. La Couronne and Polyhymnia ran a very pretty race for a 300-sov. sweepstakes; but Fordham is quite irresistible at Newmarket, and the former scored a clever victory for the "blue, white, and red."

The Clearwell Stakes, on Tuesday, brought out a field of ten; but, with the exception of Glenalmond, Packington, and Feu d'Amour, they were a moderate lot. The 6-lb. penalty seemed to stop Glenalmond, who did not run nearly as well as at Goodwood, and, after a very hard struggle, Feu d'Amour got home a neck in front of Aquito, who beat Polyhymnia by a head. Packington ran exceedingly badly, and the position obtained by Polyhymnia, coupled with the fact that Napoleon III. defeated Feu d'Amour easily at Doncaster, stamps the whole field as very moderate. The next race attracted little attention, as the spectators began to assemble at the bird-cage to watch the toilets of the Cesarewitch horses, though in this they were much disappointed, as the winner and all the prominent favourites were saddled at the Ditch stables. Thirty-four came to the post, a field which is much above the average; yet such was the furore for Corisande (8 st. 10 lb.) that the ridiculous price of 4 to 1 was accepted about her. The race admits of little description, for the moment the flag fell King Lud (7 st. 5 lb.) went to the front, and took the field along at such a pace that nothing ever headed him from start to finish. Indeed, nearly everything gave up trying fully a quarter of a mile from home; and, though Royal George (6 st. 1 lb.) finished only two lengths behind the winner, he never had the smallest chance of defeating him. Pirate (6 st. 7 lb.) was a very bad third, and next to him came Feve (6 st. 4 lb.), a stable companion of the winner, whom many believe to have been second best in the race. Of the heavy weights, Marie Stuart (8 st. 5 lb.) ran most prominently, but none of them were in the first eight; and, as we have said before, no reliance can be placed in the positions they obtained, as most of the jockeys gave up riding a long way from home, perseverance being utterly useless. King Lud had never previously won a race, still his three-year-old form was very fair indeed, and he would doubtless have had many backers had he not run for the Ebor Handicap at York, in which, not being half fit, he was unplaced. His weight for the Cambridgehire, including his penalty, is only 7 st. 9 lb., and, from the time speed he exhibited, he ought to be very formidable in that race; still, the same horse has never yet won the two events, though former Cesarewitch winners have appeared equally dangerous. Poor backers experienced the most cruel luck in the Royal Stakes, as Anfred, on whom 7 to 4 was laid freely, beat Chivalrous by half a dozen lengths without the smallest effort, and was then disqualified for not carrying a 5 lb. penalty for having won the Newmarket Stakes. This was undoubtedly a great piece of carelessness on the part of his trainer; still it must be admitted that the wording of the conditions was decidedly ambiguous.

The rain on Wednesday was even heavier than on the previous day, but the weather cleared up shortly before the decision of the great race, and it was fine till all had left the heath. However, the experiences of the previous day had frightened away a good many, and the attendance was decidedly small for a Middle Park Plate day. The chief event was put rather late on the card, and the five previous races were of only passing interest. Twenty numbers were hoisted for the Middle Park Plate, which is the largest field that has ever run for this race, except in 1868, when Pero Gomez had exactly that number behind him. Nothing, however, was really fancied except Newry and Marsworth, and "twelve to one bar two" was the current quotation. Marsworth looked much fitter than when he secured the Woodcote Stakes at Epsom; still there is a soft appearance about him which we do not like, and we should much doubt if he will ever stand training. Newry we did not see, and Spectator, though a neat little colt, has scarcely sufficient length and power to grow into a very high-class animal. George Frederick is still far from fit, and the same remark applies to Sir William Wallace, who appeared to have been taking matters very easily since his Doncaster defeat; while Lepero, own brother to Pero Gomez, of whom great things were at one time expected, is a short, cobby-looking animal. There was a long delay at the post, owing to Exile having twisted a plate, and when they at last got off Newry at once took a slight lead, and, as was the case with King Lud in the Cesarewitch, was never dispossessed of it. Lepero, the first beaten, retired at the Bushes, and this example was shortly followed by a good many others. In the Abingdon Mile Bottom Spectator joined Couronne de Fer and Marsworth, who were in close attendance upon Newry; but, in ascending the hill, the last named drew away, and eventually won by a clever length from Spectator, who was a head in front of Couronne de Fer and Marsworth, which pair ran a dead-heat for third place. Newry had the maiden allowance, and was therefore in receipt of 10 lb. from Couronne de Fer, who must be regarded as the hero of the race. Neither Newry nor Spectator is engaged in the Derby, for which, as Eccossias is under suspicion, Couronne de Fer will probably be favourite. George Frederick and Sir William Wallace were respectively fifth and sixth, but finished several lengths behind the leading quartet. The Select Stakes, which promised at one time to prove such an interesting event, was greatly spoiled by the withdrawal of Flageolet and The Colonel, still it proved useful in showing very plainly that Hochstapler is a thorough impostor. The horse looked very fit and well, and even his best friends must abandon him after the easy defeat he received from Trombone.

There was a sale of blood stock at Newmarket on Wednesday, and, among others, the brood mares and foals belonging to Sir Richard Bulkeley were disposed of. The Stud Company gave 1000 gs. apiece for Curacao (dam of Martinique and Surinam) and Martinique; and Mr. Houldsworth went as far as 550 gs. for Mariegalante, a filly foal by Macaroni-Curacao, and therefore own sister to Surinam.

The annual competition for the golf championship took place at St. Andrew's on Saturday last. Thirteen couples competed, and, after some inferior play, Tom Kidd won the championship—Tom Morris, jun., who has hitherto been nearly invincible, only succeeding in making a tie for third place.

On Saturday last, in a professional race at Gateshead, Richard Buttery ran a quarter of a mile in the extraordinary time of 48½ sec.—a feat which has never been quite equalled, though Harry Reed was only 48½ sec. in covering the same distance.

NEW BOOKS.

AMONG THE NOVELISTS.

Readers to whom flirtation is the great business of life are likely to derive considerable gratification from at least the first volume of Lost for Gold, by Katharine King (Hurst and Blackett). The other two volumes are not devoid of flirtation; but it is chiefly in the first volume that the interesting subject is dwelt upon with amazing pertinacity, and described with a minuteness and elaboration to be expected from and enjoyed by a proficient only. The hero of the story is one of those gifted beings who were once, and especially during the Byronic era, in high favour, and who have not even nowadays altogether lost their powers of fascination. They have many noble qualities, and such attributes, physical and mental, as might raise them to the highest eminence; but they are born with a social grievance, their moral nature is warped, they determine to wreak their spite upon mankind (and especially womankind), they insist upon becoming Ishmaelites, they wear a chronic scowl upon their majestic brows, and the nearest approach they can condescend to make towards prayer is the adjuration, rather felt than expressed, of "Evil be thou my good!" Very early in the story we are introduced to a boy and girl, brother and sister, whose naturally buoyant spirits and naturally merry hearts have just been damped and saddened by a certain patent fact. Society, though kind enough in a sort of pitying and patronising way to them, will have nothing to do with their mother. The reason why is discovered by them in a manner which does not very much commend itself to one's notions of either probability or the fitness of things; but, for all that, it may be very true to life. The two children, it turns out, have the misfortune to be illegitimate; and, although there are amongst us not a few who, with the assistance of great wealth, and perhaps even a title, or, on the other hand, with the aid of the obscurity engendered by utter poverty, bear that stigma indifferently well, the two children, being of the middle class, take it very much to heart. The girl is soon got rid of by means of a convenient case of rapid decline; and the boy is soon put into the Army, in order, one would say, that the author may get as quickly as possible upon congenial and familiar, or seemingly familiar, ground. The young subaltern, being left an orphan, with some three hundred a year and a great capital in the way of physical, mental, and moral capabilities, to such an extent that he can control himself whenever it is his pleasure or interest to do so, and can quell a bully (only temporarily, however) with one steady glance of his fearless eye, has a great future open before him; but, unfortunately, his nature has been twisted all awry by the spite, already alluded to, which he nourishes against society and his father's memory, and by an unwholesome, but by no means unfounded, idea that, if only he had sufficient gold, he could lead the world by the nose. He is, accordingly, not contented to find that beauty and, what is more, goodness go down before his irresistible fascinations even as all chivalry went down before the lance of the unapproachable Launcelot, and that the highest grades in his noble profession (at least it is the fashion to call it noble) of arms are open to him; he determines to pay society out by becoming a villain of the deepest dye. He marries his first love and deserts her; he commits bigamy and would fain have committed trigamy, but the fates and an excellent, but vulgar and blowsy, woman are too much for him; he indulges in the luxuries of a great robbery and a double murder; and, as a last stroke of genius, he takes poison and cheats the gallows. There can be no doubt at all about the admirable conception which gave rise to this novel; the intention, apparently, was to show how the sins of the fathers may be visited upon the children, and how the harsh but, be it remembered, perfectly just and even necessary laws or customs in respect of unmarried mothers may make a demon (for want of ballast) of him who might have been an angel; but the execution is hardly worthy of the conception; the style of composition seldom rises above the ordinary; the incidents are anything but novel; the characters, though very well drawn, are, with the possible exception of Miss Spay Joyce, not strikingly original; and the best parts of the story are the descriptions of barrack-life and of flirtations—the latter are really, for all their unconscionable length, remarkably good. Of course, the hero does not believe in a future existence; it is easy to see that such gentry would have much to fear and little or nothing to hope from so primitive and, as they fondly imagine, obsolete a creed; they naturally look forward to that state of annihilation which would best "suit their book."

There is a very ominous remark in the dedication prefixed to Culmshire Folk, by Ignotus (Macmillan and Co.). The writer would have us "remember the words of Eliot Warburton:—'He who has the patience to make a book has some claim on the patience of those who only read it.'" Not that it is by any means incumbent upon us to agree with Eliot Warburton; for a man who, without being asked, writes and publishes a book, obtrudes himself voluntarily upon the public, has no claim whatever to any exercise of patience, and must depend entirely upon his own power of compelling attention. At any rate, his plea for patience ought to take a different form; he ought to plead that he has at least endeavoured to instruct or entertain, and may on that ground ask for consideration. In the present instance a small amount of patience is certainly required; but it will not be thrown away. The story is not one which is so brilliantly written, or so ingeniously constructed, or so attractively opened, or so stocked with mysterious and thrilling incidents, that the reader is at the very outset stricken with wonder and curiosity, and carried on in breathless expectation throughout the pages; but, though it never reaches any extraordinary degree of merit in any special line, it is sufficiently "good all round," and, as you persevere, it grows upon you. The first few sentences awaken some sort of interest, which alternately languishes and revives, so well sketched are the various characters, and so seasonably relieved by bits of humour or vivacity is the generally dull stream of narrative and dialogue, until the eleventh chapter is reached. That chapter commences thus—"It could not be doubted that the son of Lieutenant Bateman had secured a staunch friend and a powerful advocate in Lady Culmshire;" and in that sentence lurks the secret of the story, which, so far as it has anything romantic in it, is a record of the adventures met with by the aforesaid "Lieutenant's son," and of the countenance and aid vouchsafed to him by the aforesaid Lady Culmshire. Her Ladyship acts under the influence of "love's young dream;" she has been married, and, as the world would and does think and say, happily married; she is left a widow, a mother, and even a grandmother; she has a handsome jointure, she is on excellent terms with her son, and altogether the lines, it would seem, have fallen unto her in pleasant places; but, nevertheless, from the day of her marriage to the date of the story, she has been haunted by a half-pleasant and half-unpleasant memory, the memory of the Lieutenant whose image is ineffaceably impressed upon her heart. And for his sake she undoubtedly feels herself more powerfully drawn than she would otherwise have been towards his son, "a handsome, manly, somewhat sad young fellow, without father or mother, without money and without influence, the last of a race of brave men, in love with her favourite niece, and just going out into the world to fight the battle of life with heavy odds against him." How he fights and, with the assistance of Lady Culmshire, wins the battle will be discovered when the end of the third volume is reached, by which time the reader will have fallen quite in love with her Ladyship, in whose company there will have been occasion to go through at least one scene of terror, at least one scene of joy, and at least one scene of mingled humour and pathos. The general opinion is likely to be that the tale would have been improved by compression, that a great many of the "folk" might have been dispensed with, that there is an inordinate amount of irrelevant matter, that the action consequently lags, and that, consequently again, the attention flags.

A very characteristic scene and conversation enlists one's sympathies and bespeaks one's goodwill, at the very outset, for the three volumes entitled A True Reformer (William Blackwood), by a writer whose name is not given. The climate is Indian; some tired pig-stickers are resting under acacia-trees; chaff is going on, as usual; enter, "a man coming at a shambling run along the village path over the plain, a long stick over his shoulder, with a small bundle at the end of it;" and, presently, the whole group are concerned in a distribution of letters. Captain Charles West, R.A., one of the pig-sticking party, has a letter which causes him considerable excitement; it announces a death and a bequest whereby he is released from the pressure of pecuniary difficulties and placed in a position of actual wealth. His first move of any importance is one which will, no doubt, be expected, and, at any rate, applauded by the ladies: he recalls to mind—if, indeed, any recalling were necessary—a lovely creature, to whom he believes that he is not altogether hateful, and whose exact sentiments he has hitherto been restrained by poverty only from ascertaining. She accepts him readily; her parents, not being taken completely into his confidence as to his change of fortune, somewhat reluctantly consent to the union; the marriage takes place; and the whole episode is turned to excellent account for the purpose of describing in lively and pungent style certain phases of life in India. Before the middle of the first volume is reached the newly-married couple are in England, and by the end of the volume the fortunate Captain has not only conceived the idea of becoming a "true reformer" in military matters, but is so far advanced towards realisation of his scheme as to have obtained a seat in Parliament and to have "drawn blood," or, at least, to have made his mark in the House. In the second volume the "true reformer" is provided with a "place," first of all as Paymaster-General to the Forces and then as Under Secretary, and he finds several opportunities, which he does not neglect to seize, of expounding his views at prodigious length and with minute detail to a long-suffering and conscientious Premier. Early in the third volume our "true reformer," finding his military rank as a mere Captain rather in his way, retires from the Army; and before the one hundredth page is encountered Mr. West is at the head of the War Department. In that capacity our "true reformer" has a great chance, evidently, of propounding a grand scheme; and, accordingly, he propounds one. What it is and what success it meets with must be determined by a perusal of the book itself; for no satisfactory account of it could be given here. In the meanwhile our "true reformer" has necessarily been paying but slight attention to his domestic affairs. His pretty young wife, who is certainly, as she herself candidly confesses, "a silly," requires far more attention than a "public" man can give her. He cannot, of course, stay at home to teach her spelling and to see that her accounts are properly kept and her household properly managed. The matter of spelling is of little or no importance; but the other matters lead to serious complications and do not tend to promote that perfect understanding which ought to exist between husband and wife. Moreover, she has no head for politics; and she shows so unconquerable a disposition to go to sleep over her gallant husband's masterly speeches that no "true reformer" could help being a little nettled. And, when you are already nettled, you are apt to judge harshly when you find that your wife is always out at balls whilst you are working hard for your country (or your own crotchets), and that people are talking scandal about her and your private secretary. Perhaps your suspicions turn out to be ill-founded and you repent of your hastiness; but it may be too late: you may have driven your wife, who, as the doctor has warned you, is in very delicate health, to go "straight from a hall to Leatherby" (a place, be it understood, and not a person), and so injure her health beyond recovery. Thus, at any rate, it happens in the case of the "true reformer," who, oddly enough, winds up his story with a pretty strong hint of his intention not to be overpowered by grief, but to try "new plans in search of happiness." No doubt the mere tale which permeates the three volumes is intended to act as the gilding which is put upon a pill. It is employed for the purpose of alluring the general reader and inducing that frivolous person to give a thought to questions which might otherwise run a risk of being confined to the circle of professional politicians and soldiers. The device is perfectly legitimate, though it may have the effect of irritating both the light-minded, who are in search of sheer amusement, and the practical, who are all for business.

Among the works of fiction that claim our notice is Gyllene; or, The Fall of Paganism, by Henry Sneyd, M.A. (Longman and Co.) The plot of this story is placed in the beginning of the fourth century. The main part of the tale is in the time of Maxentius, and it winds up at the battle of the Milvian Bridge, the present Ponte Molle, where Constantine conquered Rome, Paganism fell, and Christianity triumphed. The events take place principally in Rome, but a part of the story takes place at Baia. This story of Gyllene is an archaeological and historical romance. The writer has evidently not only visited the ground which he describes, but must have also bestowed considerable time in the study necessary to make him master of such a mass of details. Life in ancient Rome is described with great vividness and minuteness. People about to visit the Eternal City might take this book with them as a good guide-book by which they could realise the past, and at the same time they would have one of the most readable novels of the day.

Mr. Hudson Ralph Janisch has been appointed Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Island of St. Helena.

The Guardian announces the death of Mrs. Alfred Gatty, at the age of sixty-four. A lingering illness, which had long prostrated her physical powers, but which, happily, left her intellect unclouded to the end, was terminated by a painless death on Saturday last. As the editor of Aunt Judy and the author of "Parables from Nature" and many other works addressed principally to young people, she had gained a place in the hearts of many home circles in England which can hardly be filled by another; and her loss will be felt with a keenness of sorrow such as is only seldom accorded to any but an intimate personal friend. Mrs. Gatty was the wife of the Rev. Dr. Gatty, Vicar of Ecclesfield, and the younger daughter of the Rev. Dr. Scott, who was chaplain to the Victory, at Trafalgar, and in whose arms Lord Nelson breathed his last.

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

Cramer's "Student's Manual" (sacred series) consists of easy arrangements of oratorio pieces, adapted for young pianoforte players. "But the Lord is mindful," from Mendelssohn's "St. Paul;" "Comfort ye my people" and "How beautiful are the feet," from Handel's "Messiah;" Rossini's "La Carita;" "Most beautiful appear" and "Now vanish," from Haydn's "Creation," are thus arranged by Mr. J. T. Surenne. Messrs. J. B. Cramer and Co. have also issued two pleasing pieces by M. J. Rummel—"Angelus et Priere, Morceau Religieuse," and a gavotte in the modern style. Neither of them is difficult, and both will enable a player of moderate acquirements to make a good appearance.

Messrs. Goddard have issued Victor Massé's song, adapted to English words, "Don Juan am I," by Mr. H. B. Farnie. This piece has been repeatedly sung with great effect by M. Faure. The same publishers have included among their long list of M. Gounod's compositions his sacred song "To God, ye choir above," a setting of words by Philip Skelton (1784). Like most of the composer's productions, the song is full of character. It is suitable for a voice rather of medium than of high compass, nowhere rising above F or descending below C.

Messrs. Duff and Stewart are active in the production of new music, both vocal and instrumental. Under the former head we have two very pleasant songs by Signor Ciro Pinsuti—"A Little Cloud" and "Fly forth, O Gentle Dove," the words of both by F. E. Weatherley. The first is suitable for a contralto or bass voice, the other for a mezzo-soprano. From the same publishers we have "Le Rêve d'Arcadie, Scène à la Watteau," a pianoforte piece, by Frederic Archer. A lively dance style is well preserved throughout, without degenerating into triviality.

Several new songs from Messrs. Boosey and Co. are before us. Mr. F. H. Cowen's "It was a dream" and "Marie" are graceful settings of some pleasing lines, the first from the pen of Mr. R. E. Francillon, the words of the other by Mr. H. C. Meivale. Both songs lie within easy compass, the first requiring little more than an octave, nowhere rising beyond G sharp; the other embracing a rather wider and lower range, from C below the lines upwards of an octave and a half.

Messrs. Augener and Co. have issued some reprints of the admirable pianoforte transcriptions of Liszt and Stephen Heller. The charming arrangements by the former of the romance, pilgrims' chorus, and march from Wagner's "Tannhauser," the "Spinning song" from the same composer's "Flying Dutchman," of Schumann's lied "Devotion," and of several of Mendelssohn's lieder, are exquisite specimens of graceful and ornate elaboration. So, likewise, is Stephen Heller's treatment of some of Schubert's songs, especially "La Truite," and "L'Eloge des Larmes," new library editions of which have just been published by Messrs. Augener and Co., who have also brought out a charming volume, large octavo form, at a cheap price, containing twenty-two of the most celebrated songs of Schubert, freely transcribed for the pianoforte by Liszt. These also are among the most masterly specimens extant of such mode of treatment.

Less difficult of execution, but still very effective, are the transcriptions by F. Spindler. Of these Messrs. Augener have published a series, among which are several numbers from Wagner's operas, besides more popular themes.

THE SOCIAL SCIENCE CONGRESS.

Mr. G. W. Hastings, the president of the council, delivered an address on prison discipline on Thursday week. In the education department the question for discussion was, "Can the Universities help in the examination of teachers in secondary schools, and can they in any way afford the special training required for secondary teachers?" A paper was read by Miss Jex-Blake on the medical education of women. Mr. Thomas Brassey, M.P., presided in the department devoted to economical and trade questions, and in the repression of crime section the opening address was delivered by Mr. O'Malley, Q.C.

After an address by Mr. Joseph Brown, Q.C., yesterday week, on "Jurisprudence and Amendment of the Law," the education section resolved itself into a conference on the education of women. The discussion was long and animated, and amongst the speakers were Mrs. Grey, Miss Carpenter, and Miss Jex-Blake. There was an important discussion on local taxation in one of the sections. Papers on the subject were read by Mr. Dudley Baxter and others, the former of whom commented at length on the anomalies and inequalities of our present system of assessment for local purposes, and suggested how it might be improved. A working men's meeting was held in the evening.

Saturday's programme included an address by Professor Hodgson, president of the educational department; papers by Dr. Mouatt, Mr. Baldwin Latham, and Mr. E. L. Smalley; the distribution of prizes, by Lord Houghton, among the successful candidates at the Norwich centre of the middle-class University examination; an Australian meat luncheon; a conference for promoting the higher education of women; and sundry excursions.

On Monday Mr. J. Howard, M.P., author of the Landlord and Tenant Bill of last Session, expounded his views on the tenancy question. He considered the chief impediment to increased production from the soil to be want of capital. During the discussion Mr. Heron, M.P., reported on the legal working of the Irish Land Act. In the section for the repression of crime a resolution was adopted in favour of recommending the Government to institute an inquiry by Royal Commission into the subject of prison discipline. An important address on sanitary reform was delivered by Captain Douglas Galton, who has been connected with the Army Sanitary Commission since its establishment. A paper by Miss Florence Nightingale, on sanitary conditions in India, was contributed to the health department. Lord Napier and Ettrick presided at a meeting at which Miss Carpenter and other speakers explained and advocated the objects of the National Indian Association. Those objects were declined to be to spread information with regard to India in England, to familiarise Hindoo gentlemen with English customs, &c. Resolutions expressing sympathy with the objects of the association were adopted. In the evening a concert was given in St. Andrew's Hall by the local committee.

Mr. Brassey, M.P., president of the economy and trade department, delivered, on Tuesday, an address upon the labour question, and this was followed by a long and animated discussion. The departments devoted to jurisprudence, the repression of crime, education, and the public health, also found ample occupation throughout the day.

The proceedings were brought to a close on Wednesday with a meeting of the members, held under the presidency of Lord Houghton. Mr. Ryalls, secretary, read the report of the council, which stated that, both in regard to numbers and the nature of the papers read, the meeting had been most successful. The association will meet next year at Glasgow.

WORK, WAGES, AND PRICES.

Six Leith seamen have been sent to prison for fourteen days, with hard labour, for deserting from their vessels during the week to take part in a strike by the seamen of the port for an increase of pay.

Compelled to sell pure milk, the London dairymen have held meetings to consider the effects of this restriction on their trade, and resolutions have been passed to the effect that the retail price of milk shall henceforward be increased generally to five-pence a quart.

In his address, on Tuesday, as president of the Department of Economy and Trade, at the Norwich meeting of the Social Science Congress, Mr. Brassey, M.P., contended that the recent rise in wages had not been brought about by strikes, and that the trades unions, as organisations for the purpose of raising wages, could never do more than assist the workmen to obtain an advance at a somewhat earlier date than that at which the competition among employers would have brought about the same result.

The agriculturists of Bucks have taken the initiative in an opportune act of friendship to their labourers. They agreed at the last meeting of the local chamber to request the Lord Lieutenant to call a general meeting with a view to the formation of a county benefit society for farm-workers. A serious difficulty has arisen between the executive of the National Agricultural Labourers' Union and the Gloucestershire district. The executive have issued a circular repudiating the acts of the district secretary, who is alleged to have expended the funds collected by him without authority from the executive. A meeting of the Gloucestershire district of the union has denounced this circular as libellous, and threaten, if it be not withdrawn, to form an organisation independent of the union executive. On Monday the executive resolved to adhere to their circular, and a secession is consequently likely to occur. In presiding at the annual dinner of the Worplesden Agricultural Society, of which he was the founder, Lord Chief Justice Bovill has spoken very discriminatingly about the new conditions of cultivation. He counselled the farmers to promote the comfort of their labourers by housing them well, and to compensate themselves for the increased cost of labour by adopting every modern improvement and exercising the utmost skill of which they were capable.

At a meeting of the Wolverhampton Iron Trade Conciliation Board, yesterday week, the employers proposed a reduction of wages for a limited period, alleging trade losses as a reason for this step. The men declined to accept such terms, and it is feared that a lock-out will be the result. The North Staffordshire ironworkers held a meeting, on Monday, in reference to the action of the South Staffordshire men resisting the proposed reduction of 12½ per cent in wages. No such proposal has been made to the North Stafford men, but they have resolved that they will resist the proposal if made. At the same time, they have expressed their willingness to return to the ad valorem system, basing all wages on payment to puddlers, and 1s. per ton for each £1 of sale price, and adding 1s. to the aggregate—say, price £12 for bars, then puddlers' wages 13s. per ton. The South Staffordshire ironworkers met on Monday, at West Bromwich, to consider the terms offered them by the employers—viz., a reduction of 1s. 3d. a ton for puddling, and 12½ per cent on millmen's wages. It was unanimously resolved that no reduction could be accepted; provided the arbitration in the north of England resulted in a reduction of wages, the ironworkers of the south would not pledge themselves to abide by that decision. Mr. Rupert Kettle has held an arbitration court at Durham, on the recent proposal of the ironmasters of the North of England to impose a reduction of 1s. 3d. per ton on puddlers, and of 12½ per cent on other workmen. He reserved his decision for the purpose of giving his reasons in writing.

Under the auspices of the council of the Society for the Promotion of Scientific Industry, an exhibition is to be held in Manchester of all appliances and apparatus that tend to the economic use of coal. Professor Leone Levi lectured, on Monday evening, at King's College, on the high price of coal, and the influence thereby exerted on the productive industry of the United Kingdom. The address, which was heard throughout with great interest and attention, concluded with an advocacy of the utilisation of water-courses as a motive power. Messrs. J. and J. Charlesworth, colliery-owners in the West Riding, have advanced their different qualities of coal 2s. 11d. per ton. Three hundred delegates of Durham miners, representing 40,000 men, held a meeting last Saturday, at which it was decided to apply for an advance of 20 per cent on the wages paid to all classes of workmen. At an ordinary meeting of the South Midland Institute of Mining Engineers, held at Wolverhampton last week, Mr. D. Jones, secretary to the Ironmasters' Association, called attention to the rapid exhaustion of the Staffordshire coal-field. He pointed out that the best thick coal in Great Britain was coming to an end, and suggested that a large sum of money should be offered for the best essay on the development of the Staffordshire coal-field. The matter, he said, should be taken up by the three mining institutes in the county. The subject was deferred for consideration until the next meeting. A conference of the Amalgamated Society of Miners was opened at Bristol on Tuesday. The chair was taken by Mr. Halliday, president of the association. According to the financial statement read by the secretary, the amount paid for strikes since the last conference has been £11,479, incidental charges having raised the total of expenditure to £12,877. Notwithstanding this large disbursement of money in aid of the striking classes, there remains to the general fund of the association a balance in hand which amounts to £20,324. On Wednesday Mr. Halliday delivered an address, in which he reviewed at some length the progress which the organisation had made since its formation, rather more than four years ago. He announced that, during the past four years, the membership of the association had risen from 6500 to 99,399.

At the Thames Police Court, on Wednesday, a man named Edward Sweeney was convicted of having intimidated several workmen who had taken the place of others on strike. The magistrate sentenced the defendant to three months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

Last month 19,602 emigrants sailed from Liverpool, principally for the United States, being an increase of 1411 over the number which sailed the same month last year.

Commodore Commerell, the commander of the unfortunate surveying expedition on the Prah, has sent in his resignation to the Admiralty. The Commodore has not recovered from the wounds he received from the Ashantees, and is not yet considered out of danger.

With reference to a paragraph in the Jo'in Bull, that "Mr. Disraeli's new novel, showing the developments of socialism, is nearly finished," the Times has authority to state that no such work has been commenced.

UNLOADING FRUIT-BOATS IN BERLIN.

UNLOADING FRUIT-BOATS AT BERLIN.

For several weeks late in the autumn, and even early in the winter, the narrow waters of the Spree in the more populous parts of Berlin are crowded with fruit-boats which lie off the quays of the Burg and Unterwasser Strassen, as well as those adjacent to most of the bridges, more particularly the Schloss and Jannowitz Brücken. During the season, when the cargoes are being discharged, the quays in question present a most animated appearance. Trucks, barrows, and dog-carts (which latter are quite a feature of Berlin) wait along them for hours to secure their loads of pears and apples, so slow are the movements of all concerned. A cargo of 3000 scheffel, equal to no more than fifty-five sacks, will frequently require an entire week to discharge. This arises principally from the system commonly pursued of each shipper selling his own cargo, and to a certain extent in detail. At certain times of the day the boats, lying close beside each other, present somewhat the aspect of a fruit market, being crowded by Berlin housewives and servants, who, provided with their large market-baskets, pass from one boat to another to bargain for fruit for those preserves for which a German looks as for his daily bread. The boats are mostly of one size and all of the same build, being of great length, with high prows, and hoisting only a single sail. They come principally from Bohemia, and perform the voyage in from one to three weeks, the time depending, in a measure, on whether the nights are moonlight or dark, in which latter case they have to cast anchor. Their principal cargo is apples, which are sold at Berlin by the shippers at the rate of from one thaler twenty groschen to two thalers (five to six shillings) the scheffel of fifty litres, equivalent to eleven English gallons.

"MISS ELLIE," BY J. DURHAM, A.R.A.

M. Loeffler's spirited sketch shows the Schloss-Brücke, with its marble groups depicting incidents in the life of a hero—all Berlin sculpture is military—in the background. It is this bridge, as wide almost as it is long, which connects the Zeughaus Platz with the Lust-Garten, and unites the older quarters of the city with the world-renowned promenade of Unter den Linden.

THE WEDGWOOD MEMORIAL INSTITUTE.

Ten years ago Mr. Gladstone laid the foundation-stone of an edifice designed to perpetuate in his native town of Burslem the memory of the great potter Josiah Wedgwood. The institute comprises a free library and public reading-room, a museum, schools of science and art, and other educational appliances. Under the provisions of the Public Libraries Act it is vested in the governing body of the town, and its permanent support is secured by a penny rate. The building is almost entirely constructed of clay materials; and there is probably no instance—not even excepting the remarkable works at South Kensington—in which terra-cotta has been more boldly applied. The upper floor being mainly top lighted left a long unbroken wall in the principal façade. This has been skilfully treated by the architect, who has constructed an arcade supported by coupled columns. The bays within these are filled with panels inclosing figures emblematic of the twelve months, modelled in a style which reminds us of the distinctive manner of Luca Della Robbia, though wanting the glaze and colouring of his productions. The figures are life-sized. Above these panels the tympana of the arcade are occupied by a series of pictures of the signs of the zodiac, executed in the mosaic of STATUE OF WEDGWOOD AT THE WEDGWOOD MEMORIAL INSTITUTE, BURSLEM.

Signor Salviati. About the level of the first floor is the most remarkable feature of the design. A frieze, nearly three feet deep, is broken into panels corresponding with the windows of the ground floor. These are occupied by sculptures, in moderately bold relief, depicting the industrial processes of pottery, beginning with the getting of coal and the preparation of clays and other raw material, and following the art in the successive stages of throwing, turning, moulding, firing, glazing, and decorating. The window-heads of the ground floor are richly modelled; and in these, as well as in the impostes, in the pier-bands between the windows, and in all the structural details, there is a remarkable fertility of design. The tympanum above the principal doorway contains medallion portraits of Wedgwood's chief contemporaries and associates—Flaxman, Priestley, and Bentley. The apex of the cresting above this slightly projecting porch carries a pedestal, upon which is placed the statue of Wedgwood. This statue is the central feature of the entire composition. It is of rather more than lifesize, and, like all the other embellishments, is executed in terra-cotta. The manufacture of these large pieces has been accomplished with singular success; and, considering the difficulties of manipulation and the dangers of unequal contraction under fire, great credit is reflected upon Mr. Blanchard, of Blackfriars, and Mr. Blashfield, of Stamford, who were intrusted with the work. It is remarkable that the different portions of this work have, in all the more important cases, been fired as they have left the modeller's hands, and they thus bear the direct impress of his skill, without any moulding, casting, or interposition of inferior workmen. The statue was unveiled by Sir Smith Child, M.P., on Wednesday, the 24th ult.

The whole of these sculptures, from first to last, have been executed, at the National Training Schools connected with the South Kensington Museum, by three young modellers—Messrs. R. J. Morris, W. Wright, and J. F. Marsh—selected for the purpose from the schools of art in the Potteries. All the figure-subjects and the statue are the work exclusively of Mr. Morris, who has exhibited a high degree of talent. The designer and architect of the building was Mr. Robert Edgar, a pupil of Sir Gilbert Scott. This young man, well known and esteemed in the artistic circles of London, has not survived to enjoy the praise he had so well earned. He died prematurely on the very day after that which saw his great work at Burslem completed. As we everywhere hear of and lament over the destructive influence which our English climate exercises over all ordinary building materials, such an enterprising experiment as this at Burslem is watched with no common interest by all who are concerned in architectural and monumental art.

NORTH CAMBRIDGESHIRE COTTAGE HOSPITAL, WISBECH.

NORTH CAMBRIDGESHIRE HOSPITAL.

The North Cambridgeshire Cottage Hospital, at Wisbech, was opened, on Thursday week, by Miss M. E. Trafford Southwell, of Honington Hall, Grantham, the founder of the institution. The hospital has sixteen beds, and is most complete in its furniture and appointments. The grounds in which it is situated adjoin the park, the windows of the hospital wards commanding excellent views over that pleasant resort. The other buildings within the grounds are the surgeon's residence, the mortuary, laundry, porter's lodge, and a lofty entrance archway at the principal entrance. The entire cost of the buildings and furniture has been borne by Miss Southwell, who has handed over the hospital as a free gift, to the charge of trustees named by her, for the benefit of the sick poor of the neighbourhood. The value of this munificent gift is estimated to reach nearly £10,000, and, in addition, Miss Southwell has given £8000 to the permanent endowment fund. Mr. William Peckover, of Wisbech, has contributed £2000 to the same fund; Mr. Algernon Peckover, £1000; and the Duke of Bedford, £100. The town of Wisbech was en fête on Thursday week, business being suspended; the streets were decorated, and an evergreen arch had been erected by the working men. A procession, composed of the local volunteers, friendly societies, clergy, magistrates, hospital trustees and committees, the Mayor and Corporation, and Miss Southwell, who was accompanied by her agent, Mr. Farebrother, passed through the principal streets to the hospital, where a very large number of people had assembled. On behalf of Miss Southwell, Mr. Farebrother formally informed the Mayor of her intention to hand over the hospital to the trustees, and the key of the building was presented to him by Miss Southwell. The Mayor, who wore his scarlet robes, then acknowledged the munificent liberality of Miss Southwell. An address from the friendly societies was afterwards presented, and Miss Southwell re-entered her carriage amidst loud cheering. The Mayor and Corporation subsequently entertained Miss Southwell at luncheon in the Corn Exchange, which was effectively decorated, 250 ladies and gentlemen being present. The health of Miss Southwell was received with enthusiasm, the company rising and cheering warmly, whilst the military band played "Auld Lang Syne." Mr. Farebrother acknowledged the toast on behalf of Miss Southwell. In the evening a grand display of fireworks was made in the park by Messrs. Brock and Co., of London. Miss Southwell left for Honington Hall the following day.

"MASTER TOM," BY J. DURHAM, A.R.A.

"MASTER TOM" AND "MISS ELLIE."

These statues of two children were in the late Exhibition of the Royal Academy. They are pleasing examples of the skill with which Mr. Durham, A.R.A., treats modern, domestic, and child-life "motives," in accordance with strict sculptural requirements. "Master Tom" and "Miss Ellie" are doubtless portrait works, and where is the pater or mater familias who would not like to have the memory of his or her infant offspring perpetuated in such a way? The bits of sea-weed and shells are apologies for the nude treatment—if, indeed, any apology could be needed for the nudity of such innocent cherubs.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

The cross-examination of Colonel Norbury was resumed yesterday week, and in the course of it he was asked to what extent he doubted whether the defendant was Roger Tichborne. To this he replied that if some parts of the evidence were correct he would have very grave doubts; but, assuming these to be the reverse, his doubt would be but slight. Before he left the box the gallant Colonel said that since he had been a witness he had received several post-cards, some asking him to withdraw his evidence, and saying if he did not do so and summarily stop the trial the case would never come to an end. Mr. Justice Mellor stated that the Bench had received a great many. The Lord Chief Justice expressed a hope that Colonel Norbury would treat them with the same supreme contempt with which the Judges treated similar communications they daily received. Seven witnesses were called after Colonel Norbury had left the box. Eliza English, whose first husband was in the Carabiniers; John Giddings, formerly in the Carabiniers; and Benjamin Dawson, for twenty-six years in the Grenadier Guards, and formerly a labourer at Tichborne, all identified the defendant as Roger Tichborne. None of them was cross-examined. The wife of the last witness, whose father was head-gardener at Tichborne for forty-three years, also identified the defendant as Roger. Philip Baker, who was for seventeen years in the service of old Mr. Seymour at Knoyle, gave evidence to a like effect. William Paul, a wheelwright of Leicester, was the next witness. He gave a long account of his intercourse with Arthur Orton in Australia. The last witness was Agnes Michael, who knew Roger Tichborne at Cahir, and now declared that the defendant was the same person.

The two principal witnesses called for the defence on Monday—Edward Lock, boiler-cleaner, and George Jones, carpenter, both testified to the duality of Orton and Castro. Lock professed to have seen them both in Melbourne in 1856, and to have drunk with them. Orton was about an inch taller than Castro. Jones had done carpentering at the Boisdale station while Castro was living there. Orton was employed at the same time slaughtering cattle, and witness had seen him again as late as 1857 at Reedy Creek. Augustus Collingridge, master mariner, deposed to having known Arthur Orton when he used to visit the shipping. To the best of his belief the defendant was not Arthur. The rest of the afternoon was consumed in taking the evidence of two Carabiniers, both of whom declared that they recognised in the defendant the Mr. Tichborne of 1850 to 1853, though one of them thought that "if his knees were off he would be more like him."

Australian evidence formed the staple of Tuesday's proceedings. Joseph Woodyeatt deposed to having met Orton twice in Australia—first at Flemington, near Melbourne, in 1856, and two years later at Carningham, up the country. The defendant, he alleged, was not a bit like him. Ann Mines, formerly in Lady Doughty's service, detailed instances in which she had seen Roger Tichborne and his cousin alone, either riding or walking. Once she had seen them at a brook outside the park playing at making bridges. Witness thought Miss Doughty was then about eighteen, but Mr. Justice Lush informed her she was only fourteen. Colonel Sankey next presented himself for the ordeal of a second examination, the burden of his evidence being that at their first interview defendant remembered all about Roger's friends at Clonmel and Captain Morton's roach-backed horse. He was cross-examined as to the possibility of defendant having seen photographs of the persons he professed to remember and got up Roger's reminiscences from local information obtained indirectly. George Bingley, who had long resided in the mining districts of Chili, described having lived with Roger Tichborne in a hotel at Santiago in July, 1853. He believed in the defendant as he believed in his own existence.

Mr. G. Bingley, in cross-examination, on Wednesday, acknowledged that he could not describe the features of Roger Tichborne as they appeared in Santiago. Mr. Hawkins made extensive selections from his correspondence with Mr. Holmes and the defendant to demonstrate the friendly interest he took in the case at a very early period. William Cline, steward on board Captain Oates's vessel, the John Bibby, deposed to having recognised defendant within the past fortnight as the young gentleman who, in 1854, visited the ship several times in Rio, and had "tiffin" with the captain. William Robinson, an ex-Carabinier, gave evidence which was chiefly remarkable for his withdrawing a statement that he had recognised the defendant by the nickname which Roger bore in the regiment, "Frenchy pommels." Benjamin Ward, a returned digger, now bootmaking in Camden Town, had met with Arthur Orton at Myrtle Creek. The vivacious witness drew a two-sided portrait of him, one making him so agile that he could pick a sixpence off the ground in galloping past it on horseback, and the other characterising him as the laziest man Mr. Ward had ever seen. James Brown, Shadwell, knew Roger from meeting him at the Faure Hotel in Rio. On two occasions he shared the witness's room, and used his bath in the morning. While he was bathing witness saw two marks on him, one on the left arm and the other over the hip. Mr. Hawkins taxed Brown upon about his antecedents, implying that he had deserted his wife and family, and spent a short period of his life in gaol at New Orleans.

The whole of Thursday was occupied with the cross-examination of Captain James Brown.

Lord Lisgar, Mr. Baron Bramwell, Mr. William Law, C.B., Mr. Trevelyan, M.P., Mr. Algernon West, and Mr. F. W. Rowsell are gazetted as the Royal Commissioners to inquire into the administrative departments of the courts of justice, as recommended in the second report of the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Civil Service Expenditure.

Mr. Clement Scott has withdrawn his action for libel against the proprietor of the Hornet, and the latter announces his intention of bringing a counter-action against Mr. Scott for malicious prosecution.

At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Tappenbeck and Co., of Liverpool, the statement of accounts showed liabilities amounting to £308,765, against assets £178,769. The creditors have agreed to accept a composition of ten shillings in the pound.

Mr. Meynell, Judge of the County Court at South Shields, has decided that chemical manufacturers are liable for damage done to crops by the vapours emitted from their works.

At the sitting of the Middlesex Sessions last week, Edward Davis, a little boy ten years of age, was ordered to be sent to Feltham Reformatory for three years, for having maliciously stabbed a companion of about the same age. Apportioning punishment in a case of theft, Mr. Serjeant Cox practically recognised the axiom that the receiver is worse than the thief, by sentencing George Lucas, a carman, who had stolen a quantity of wood, to six months' imprisonment with hard labour, and Edwin Pepper, the keeper of a coffee-shop, to twice the term, for having purchased the spoil. Following immediately on the session which was brought to a conclusion on Saturday last, the October Quarter Sessions of the county of Middlesex began on Monday, with a light calendar. A pick-pocket named William Gifford, found guilty of stealing a cheque, was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. Immediately on the sentence being delivered the prisoner confessed that he was also guilty of picking pockets for which Edward Sweeney, a young man, was now suffering penal servitude. Mr. Serjeant Cox said the matter should be fully investigated.

At the Mansion House, on Thursday, John Henry Yates, the former secretary to the Great Eastern Steam-Ship Company, was brought before the Lord Mayor for further examination, upon the charge of forging dividend warrants to the amount of over £30,000, and defrauding the company of that amount. Several witnesses were now examined, after which the prisoner was committed for trial.

An assistant of Messrs. Hancock and Co., the Bond-street jewellers, charged with stealing a valuable bracelet and other property of his employers, has been committed for trial.

Edward Tahourdin, stock and share dealer, has had a warrant issued against him, at the instance of a client who charges him with converting to his own use a sum of £400 given him for the purchase of bonds. The money was paid in July, but delivery of the bonds was withheld till recently, when their current value had deteriorated to about £100.

The charge of larceny against Mrs. Lucy Elizabeth Summers, of Old Broad-street and Walthamstow, on Tuesday came again before Sir Francis Truscott, who, after hearing additional evidence, committed the lady for trial, refusing bail.

A case was heard at Worship-street, last Saturday, which demonstrates the curious fact that there are people in England who consider children to be marketable property. A man who had given 5s. for a little boy violently assaulted the father on his endeavouring to recover possession of the child. For this assault the would-be purchaser was brought before the Worship-street magistrate, and was ordered to find bail for his good behaviour in the next six months.

Immediately after having undergone a sentence of two months' hard labour for robbing her mistress, in whose service she had been a fortnight, Jane Cross, a domestic servant, went to a tradesman and obtained a quantity of goods in the name of the same lady. She has been again committed for trial.

There has been a preliminary investigation, at the Marylebone Police Court, into the circumstances attending some extensive robberies which have lately taken place upon the London and North-Western Railway, and the prisoners, several in number, were remanded.

A clerk and a cabman have had a boozing adventure in Spitalfields. The clerk wanted to treat the cabman in a public-house, but the barmaid declined to serve him. He gave a half-sovereign to his friend to hold till he should fetch a policeman to compel her. The stakeholder went out after him, jumped on his cab, and tried to drive off. The young man caught his horse's head, but was beaten off. Then he hung to the door till the bystanders pulled him away lest he should be run over. Meanwhile the fugitive cabman ran into the arms of a constable, who took him back to where the clerk was lying in the road. At the police court the clerk had to forfeit another half-sovereign for being drunk, and cabby was committed for trial.

Having, it appears, been so rash as to prosecute a dog-stealer to conviction, a gentleman residing in Pembroke-gardens, Kensington, was waited upon by the aggrieved person, who rang the house bell violently, refused to go away, and finished by kicking the prosecutor and threatening to "do for him before the year is out." To prevent the execution of this threat, he has been committed for trial.

The charge against Mr. Frederick Cox of having obtained money by false pretences for the purpose of carrying on a Free Dormitory Association again came before Mr. Newton, at Marlborough-street, on Wednesday, and the discharge of the prisoner was ordered.

Having dined out and taken too much wine, Mr. Henry Devonshire Steward's intoxication took the unpleasant form of flourishing a six-chamber revolver among a crowd of people at London Bridge terminus. He was fined 20s. for the offence by the Southwark magistrate.

A convivial party of ladies and gentlemen remaining in the gallery of Evans's supper-rooms after the time legally fixed for closing, appeared at Bow-street to answer the charge, and were fined merely in the cost of the summons—that is to say, two shillings each.

A young woman who was brought before the magistrate at Greenwich Police Court, on Monday, seems to have fallen into rather irregular and inconvenient habits. She had, according to the evidence of an inspector of police, been 130 times in custody for drunkenness—fifty-seven times within the past four years, and seventeen times within the present year.

M. N. Ostrog, alias Bertrand Ashley, Count Sobieski, &c., who was on Wednesday brought before the Buckinghamshire magistrates, and remanded for a week, on a charge of having committed several robberies at Eton College, is a criminal of an interesting and romantically desperate type. When arrested at Burton-on-Trent last Sunday he attempted to fire an eight-chambered revolver at the officer who seized him, and before appearing in court on Wednesday morning he had been trying to drown himself in a pail of water. On two previous occasions when M. Ostrog, who is a ticket-of-leave convict, was in custody, he attempted to commit suicide, being apparently prepared to take either his own life or that of any other person whenever he finds himself involved in any very serious difficulty. But it is upon his wife and his accomplishments that this swindler has relied under the ordinary circumstances of his career, and the crowd of officers, masters, and scholars of Eton who attended in the Court House at Slough on Wednesday shows in a striking manner that he had contrived to ingratiate himself into good society.

A charge of extortion by threats has been brought against two agents of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It is alleged that these persons induced a man at Doncaster, during the race week, to pay them a sovereign, or part of that sum on account of the whole, as the price of their abstaining from prosecuting him for driving a horse unfit for work. They have both been committed for trial.

At Marlborough-street Mr. Edward Batley of the Newcastle Colliery Owners' Coal Company, Great Portland-street, has been fined £10 and £2 2s. costs for having supplied to a customer coal of a quality inferior to that which was ordered.

A similar charge against the manager of the same company was preferred at the Wandsworth Police Court, but it fell through in consequence of the summons not having been taken out within a month of the commission of the alleged offence. Mr. Edward Batley was on Tuesday convicted at Clerkenwell of having knowingly sold an inferior quality of coals for a good one. He was fined £10 and costs, with the alternative of a month's imprisonment. For having sold a quantity of coals short of proper weight, a man named Lickfold was ordered to pay a penalty of 10s. and two guineas costs. Messrs. Richard Smith and Co., coal merchants, of King's-cross-road, were yesterday week charged at Guildhall Police Court with selling coals of a quality differing from that specified by them. As in a previous case, it was pointed out that the name put forward by the defendants bore a certain resemblance to that of a highly-respectable firm—that of Messrs. Ricketts, Smith, and Co.—but, in answer to this remark, a plea was adduced that "Richard Smith and Co." had legally established their right to trade under that title. They were, however, fined £5 and costs, or a month's imprisonment.—Sir Robert Carden taking occasion to stigmatise their advertisement as a fraud on the public.—At Southwark Police Court yesterday week a grocer named Noakes, of 607, Old Kent-road, was fined £5 and costs for selling mustered adulterated with turmeric and starch. The sanitary inspector of Camberwell prosecuted.—At the Thames Police Court on Monday Thomas Buckingham, a general-shop keeper, of 73, Brook-street, Ratchiffe, was summoned by the Board of Works for selling adulterated mustard. Dr. Rogers, one of the medical officers of the board, analysed some mustard bought at the defendant's shop, and found it contained a large quantity of starch and turmeric. The defendant said it was the best mustard, and he paid 1s. a pound for it. Other persons sold the same kind, and it was in the same state as when he purchased it. Mr. Lushington said if the defendant purchased what was stated to be pure mustard, but which turned out to be mixed with other ingredients, he could sue the person selling. He fined the defendant £2 and 23s. costs.—There were several convictions at Westminster, on Wednesday, for the sale of adulterated milk. In one instance the milk, so called, contained 80 per cent of water, and a fine of £10, with 12s. 6d. costs, was imposed upon the vender. In another case the water was in the proportion of 67 per cent, and the penalty was £9, with £1 3s. costs. Fines of less amount were inflicted in two other instances, in which the percentage of water was smaller in proportion to the quantity of milk sold.—Fines of £5 each have been imposed by the stipendiary magistrates of Sheffield on several milk-sellers in that town for the adulteration of their milk with water, in the proportion of about 20 per cent to the genuine fluid.—James Pogram, a Liverpool grocer, who has several shops in different parts of the town, was fined £5 and costs, on Wednesday, for selling tea adulterated with iron-filings. An analyst gave it as his opinion that the fraud had been perpetrated by the Chinese, as the particles of iron were wrapped in the tea-leaves. On behalf of the defendant, who gave notice of appeal against the magistrates' decision, it was contended that tea-leaves are neither food nor drink, and that therefore it is no infringement of the Adulteration Act to mix with them iron-filings or anything else.

To the list of darker crimes recently reported others must now be added. At Southsea, shortly before midnight on Sunday, Matilda Tonkins was so severely beaten by her husband, a gunner in the Marine Artillery, serving on board H.M.S. Devastation, that she soon afterwards died.—A couple of labourers at Sheffield, Michael Burke and Hugh Nolan, have brutally injured and mutilated a man named Hall. Burke having knocked him down, Nolan followed up the attack by jumping on him, and then by biting off his lip. The severed feature was produced in the police court, when Messrs. Burke and Nolan were charged with the assault, and, in consequence of their victim's precarious state, remanded.—Three persons were indicted for the crime of wilful murder at the Glasgow Circuit Court on Thursday week, but all escaped the death penalty. Mary Milligan, alias Bradley, was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude for the homicide of Helen M'Manus at New Vennel. Janet Wilson was sentenced to twenty years' penal servitude for the murder of her husband, a miner, at Stonehouse. David Higgins pleaded guilty to the charge of killing his paramour in London-road, and was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.—At Dromelin, in the county of Leitrim, a farmer has stabbed another, in a dispute, killing him on the spot. The friends of the murdered man went in pursuit of the murderer and handed him over to the police.—A young man named Handford was stabbed on Sunday evening in the Blackfriars-road. Several young men and women had spent the evening in a public-house; a quarrel ensued, and Handford was stabbed in the left side. He fell to the ground, and his assailant, whose name is not yet known, ran away. Handford was carried to a neighbouring surgeon, and his wound having been attended to, he was taken home. The wound was about five inches in depth.—At Portsmouth, on Tuesday, two soldiers belonging to the Royal Marine Artillery made a murderous assault on Mr. Parish, master at arms of her Majesty's ship Active. After robbing their victim, the villains cut his throat, and threw him into the sea. Mr. Parish, however, managed to get ashore, but it is feared that the injuries he has received will prove fatal.—James Duffy was sentenced by the stipendiary magistrate of Sheffield, on Tuesday, to pay a fine of £5 and costs, or suffer two months' imprisonment, for beating an overladen horse until it fell down dead in the street. A charge of having ordered the overloading of the animal which was brought against Duffy's employer, William Berry, coal merchant, was dismissed.—A reprieve has been granted to Moore, who was convicted at Maryborough for the murder of Delany. When it was announced to the prisoner that he had got penal servitude, he declared he would sooner be hanged.

At the last meeting of the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society relief was granted to the amount of £2078. The silver medal was voted to Captain Ifweron, of Lyttelton, New Zealand, for the heroic rescue of the passengers and crew of the ship Belle Isle during a heavy gale.

Mrs. Thomas Black, of Upper Moira-place, Southampton, desires to originate a tiny cottage-hospital in that town, on the humblest scale, for the treatment and cure of the ulcerated legs which incapacitate so many of our deserving poor from earning their living. With £40 obtained by an appeal some time ago she was able to hire a small room and receive two severe cases of eighteen and fourteen years' duration, besides nursing several at their own cottages. All are progressing well and some are perfectly cured. Her regimen consists of simple nursing, nourishing diet, careful dressing, and perfect rest. She would be glad if anyone interested in the suffering poor would communicate with her, and give advice in the scheme; and any subscriptions sent to Messrs. Maddison, Atherley, and Co., bankers, Southampton, "for St. Mary's Cottage Home for Ulcerated Legs," would be duly acknowledged. Reference is permitted, among others, to the Rev. Basil Wilberforce, Rector of St. Mary's, Southampton, who has given hearty support.

NEW MUSIC.

BOURREE for the Pianoforte, composed by COTSFORD DICK. Price 2s. "A most charming and original composition."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS by COTSFORD DICK.
"THE VOICE I LOVED." Words by Louisa Gray. 2s.
"A beautiful song for a tenor voice."
"WHEN SHADOWS FLEE AWAY." Words by Gordon Campbell.
Post-free for half price.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A LEGEND OF THE LYS.
Descriptive Cantata. Written by R. Boosey, composed by MEYER LUTZ, and performed with the greatest success at Covent Garden Theatre on Monday last. All the favourite songs will shortly be published by
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FRIDOLIN. A Dramatic Cantata, composed by ALBERTO RANDOGER, performed at the Birmingham Festival with immense success. The Score Complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, paper cover 6s. 6d. Ditto, ditto, bound in cloth. 12s. 6d.
"Repose and Peace" (Song by Madame Sherrington) 2s. 6d.
"Wildest Conflicts" (Song by Mr. Santley) 2s. 6d.
Nava's Three Subjects from "Fridolin" each 2s. 6d.
No. 1. Hunting Chorus.
No. 2. Chorus of Handmaidens.
No. 3. Dance and Chorus of Villagers.
N.B.—The separate Chorus and Orchestra Parts may also be had.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES.
SUNRISE GALOP. Illustrated. 2s.
IVY LEAVES. Polka. Illustrated. 2s.
HAWTHORN BLOSSOMS. Petit Morceau. Illustrated. 2s.
MOONLIT STREAM. Morceau de Salon. Illustrated. 2s.
ALPINE ECHOES. Reminiscence. Illustrated. 2s.
Post-free, 1s. 6d. each.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LOUISA GRAY'S NEW SONGS.
CHANGED. 2s.
BLIND GIRL'S DREAM. 4s.
IT WAS EARLY IN THE SPRINGTIME. 2s.
Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOING HOME GALOP. Just Out. A New Galop by W. H. MONTGOMERY. Played at Rivieri's Promenade Concert with immense success. Price 2s.; post-free, 1s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW MARCH ROMAINE, companion piece to the celebrated "Silver Trumpets." Composed expressly for the Pope's Festival for Pianoforte (with pedal obbligato), or Harmonium, 2s.; Piano Duet, 4s. Full Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.
ORIGINAL VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM, composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post-free 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is the sole Manufacturer."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES.
CHAPPELL and CO. have an immense stock of secondhand Pianofortes, by Broadwood, Collard, Erard, Chappell, and other good makers, just returned from hire, which they can offer at exceptionally low prices. Discount for cash.—50, New Bond-street, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany Case. Price TWENTY GUINEAS. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. It has the merit of standing well in tune, and is capable of enduring hard school practice without going out of order.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT PIANINO, with Folding Keyboard, Check Action, Trichord Treble. In Solid Mahogany or Black Canadian Walnut Case, THIRTY GUINEAS, or in Maple, THIRTY-FIVE GUINEAS. Constructed for Ship's Cabins, to occupy the smallest possible space, and to stand the damp of a sea voyage; the back is strengthened with iron bars and metallic plates, and the whole of the mechanism is of the best quality.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DULCIANA ORGAN HARMONIUM, by Alexandre.—This New Instrument is especially adapted to the Drawing-Room. It has the sweetest tone possible, resembling the soft dulciana stop of the best organs, and by a new patent air-chest, is free from the slightest harshness. Price, 3 stops, oak, 12 gu., mahogany, 13 gu.; rosewood, 14 gu.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S HARMONIUMS for SALE, from 5 gu. to 110 gu. Alexandre, Wholesale Agents. Illustrated Catalogues on application.
ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM. Solid Oak Case, Five Octaves, and Two Foot-Boards.
The ever-increasing musical culture in all classes of society has created a demand for free reed instruments of a superior quality to those hitherto manufactured.
The instruments now offered to the public will be found devoid of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable as regards tone. This end has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the quality rich and organ-like.
Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows.
The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect and without extra cost.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

RECOMMENDED BY ALL THE PROFESSORS.
THE DIGITORIUM (a small Dumb Piano-Patent).—This remarkable invention materially assists any person to play and become perfect on the Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium, by strengthening and rendering the fingers independent in an incredibly short time; and can now be had (price 15s.; or, with ivory keys, 18s.) of the sole Manufacturers, CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NOTICE.—ALL MUSIC at HALF PRICE.
The best Editions sent post-free. Second works excepted. Stamps or postage order in advance. Lists free on application.
Horswood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S CELEBRATED MOTTO SONGS.
Trifles Light as Air. Don't be After Ten.
Welcome as the Flowers in May. Could I Live my Time Over Again.
As long as the World Goes Round. Always Do as I Do.
Very suitable for Penny Readings and the Drawing-Room.
15 stamps each.—Horswood and Craw.

SPEAK TO ME, SPEAK! is a lovely Ballad by F. CAMPANA. The Poetry is perfectly charming, and the Music quite equal to the finest of melody. In keys of C and A. 24 stamps.—Horswood and Craw.

A BEAUTIFUL SONG.
FAR FROM MY EYES, YET NEAR MY HEART. by CAMPANA. Written to suit all voices. The words are full of pathos, and melody exquisite.
24 stamps.—Horswood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

ADELINA PATTI'S FAVOURITE SONG.
EVENING BRINGETH MY HEART BACK TO THEE. By Signor CAMPANA. A very pretty, simple Ballad, worthy the attention of all singers. In the keys of F and D. 24 stamps.—Horswood and Craw.

COOTE'S AWFULLY JOLLY WALTZ (Comique), containing the famous tune of "First She Wound 'Round' Beautiful Girl." &c. Prettily Illustrated. Solo, 24 stamps. Duet, 30. Horswood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

TINNEY'S MARIE QUADRILLES, on Russian Air; with a Splendid Likeness in Colour of the Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrovna. 24 stamps.
Horswood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

HOW TO DANCE.—COOTE'S BALL-ROOM GUIDE for Home Practice fully explains how to learn dancing without a master. Illustrated with the figures. Post-free 12 stamps.—Horswood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT.
Opéra Comique. By LEOCQ. The greatest success of the day.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. By Kuba. 4s.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. By L. and S. Sloper. 4s.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. By Cramer. 4s.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT QUADRILLE. O-tta. 4s.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT VALSE. Conto. 4s.
LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT LANCERS. Franch ch. 4s.
Various other arrangements in the press.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

NEW SONG. Composed by SANTLEY.
A SHORT YEAR AGO. Song. Composed expressly for Edward Lloyd by CHARLES SANTLEY. Price 4s.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

ALFRED SCOTT GATTY'S SONGS.
ONE HAPPY YEAR AGO. (This day.) 2s.
SUNSHINE AFTER RAIN. Words by John Oxenford. 2s.
ELDONORA. Song by Mr. Sims Reeves. 4s.
VOICES OF THE PAST. Song by Madame Patey. 4s.
UNSPOKEN. Song by Madame Patey. 4s.
THE GALLANTS OF ENGLAND. A Song for Baritone. 4s.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW SONGS.
ONCE AGAIN. Song by Sims Reeves. 4s.
GOLDEN DAYS. Song by Madame Patey. 4s.
A LIFE THAT WAS FOR YOU. Song by Mr. Santley. 4s.
LOOKING FORWARD. Song by Miss Edith Wynne. 4s.
LOVE KING BAK. Song by Madame Patey. 4s.
BIRDS IN THE NIGHT. Song by Madame Sherrington. 4s.
Post free, 24 stamps each, from Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

F. H. COWEN'S NEW SONGS.
IT WAS A DREAM. Song by Miss Edith Wynne. 4s.
MARIE. Song by Miss Edith Wynne. 4s.
BERNARDE. Song by Mr. Sims Reeves. 4s.
MARGUERITE. Song by Madame Patey. 4s.
"A song of genuine beauty."—Times.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MOLLOY'S POPULAR SONGS.
SO THE STORY GOES. Song by Miss Edith Wynne. 4s.
CLOCHETTE. Song by Madame Sherrington. 4s.
THADY O'FLINN. Song by Madame Sherrington. 4s.
THE VAGABOND. Song by Mr. Santley. 4s.
THE OLD OTTAGE CLOCK. Song by Miss Edith Wynne. 4s.
ELLY'S REASON. Song by Madame Sherrington. 4s.
Price 4s. each.

ALBUM OF PIANOFORTE DUETS.
Containing the following complete sets of Duets, Music by Strauss, Gungl, and Czerny, for Two Performers on the Piano. Full music size, 80 pages.
Blue Danube Waltz. Vagabond Quadrille.
Thousand and One Nights Waltz. Gigue Quadrille.
Ideal and Lohr Waltz. Pizzicato Quadrille.
Boosey and Co., London; and all Musicians.

CHEAP EDITION OF ROBERT SCHUMANN'S DUETS FOR PIANOFORTE. Full Music size, 72 pages, 3s. 6d. each. SECOND ALBUM FOR YOUNG PERFORMERS, containing 13 pieces. Op. 83. FIRST ALBUM FOR YOUNG PERFORMERS, containing Nine Ball Scenes.—Boosey and Co.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING ORATORIOS MASSES, and CANTATAS.
EVEN OF PRAISE. WALTER'S NIGHT.
HAYDN'S IMPERIAL MASS. BETHOVEN'S MASS IN G.
GOUNOD'S ST. CEILIE. ACIS AND GALATHEA.
MOZART'S 17th MASS. MOZART'S REQUIEM.
BOSSINI'S STABAT MATER. DENTINGEN TE DEUM.
JUDAS MACABEUS. ISRAEL IN EGYPT.
THE MESSIAH. THE CREATION.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING TUTORS, by eminent Professors. Music size, 24 to 26 pages each.
Pianoforte (Mount). Violin (Case).
Singing (Rifle). Violoncello (Case).
Singing for Ladies (Halted). Flute (Pratone).
Singing for Men (Halted). Cornet (Stanton Jones).
Concertina (Case). Harmonium (Green).
German Concertina (Minard).
Also, Boosey's Shilling Singing Exercises, Cramer's Shilling Pianoforte Studies, Cramer's 50 Best Exercises, Cramer's Violoncello, Cramer's 101 Exercises, and Bartini's 25 Studies—all in 1s. Books.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING OPERAS for PIANOFORTE, in the MUSICAL CABINET. Each Book contains from Forty-eight to Eighty Pages, including OVERSUNG. FIGARO. FIDELIO.
ROBERT LE DIABLE. IL BARRIERE DI SIVIGLIA.
DON JUAN. DON JUAN.
LUCREZIA BORGIA. UN BALLO IN MASCHERA.
DER FREISCHUTZ. LA TRAVIATA.
CRISPINO E LA COMARE. MARTHA.
IL TROVATORE. WILLIAM TELL.
NORMA. NORMA.
DON PASQUALE. DON PASQUALE.
FRA DIAVOLO. FRA DIAVOLO.
RIGOLETTO. RIGOLETTO.
LAMPA. LAMPA.
THE BRIGANDS. THE BRIGANDS.
THE GRAND DUCHES. THE GRAND DUCHES.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD. Overture. ARTHUR S. SULLIVAN. Performed at the Birmingham Festival. Paper cover, cloth back, 10s. 6d.; cloth boards, gilt letters, 12s. 6d. (not price).
CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

STANDARD WORKS ON HARMONY and GOSSETT'S HARMONY, &c. &c. Net, 10s. 6d.
Maclean (E. A.)—Fundamentals of Harmony. Duet. 7s. 6d.
Sichter (E. F.)—Treatise on Harmony. Duet. 7s. 6d.
(Translated from the German by Franklin Taylor.)
Borrows' Pianoforte Primer (with Cramer's Dictionary of Musical Terms) Net, 1s. 6d.
Borrows' Thorough Bass Primer. Net, 2s. 6d.
Cramer's Dictionary of Musical Terms. Net, 6s. 6d.
CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

KELER BELLA'S NEW DANCE MUSIC. Die Letzten Glücks-Stunden. Walzer. 4s.
Traum-Glück. Polka-Mazurka. 4s.
Die Glückseligkeit. Polka-Francoise. 4s.
Keler Bella well sustains his deserved popularity with the above new compositions; like Strauss and Gungl, his dance music is thoroughly good.
CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

MARRIOTT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC. Alpine Schottische. (Illustrated) 4s.
Fun of the Ball Galop. Ditto 4s.
Guardians of the Night Galop. Ditto 4s.
Nacht-Lieder Walzer. Ditto 4s.
Peppere's Polka. Ditto 4s.
Salut Galop. Ditto 4s.
Snap Dragon Quadrilles. Ditto 4s.
Vienna Quadrilles. Ditto 4s.
Warblers of Fairlight. Ditto 4s.
The above are being played daily at Hastings by Mr. Marriott's excellent band, and are much admired.
CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

NEMESIS SONGS AND DANCE MUSIC (scored nightly at the Strand Theatre).—"The Language of Love" (sung by Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Hillier, Mr. Howard Paul, &c.). "What are a lady's wants to-day?" "Don't make me laugh, and 'Will you take my arm' Quadrilles and Galop, by J. FITZGERALD, and Walzer, Bolero, and Duet, &c.; post-free, 2s. each.
J. B. CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

OFFENBACH'S C'ET L'ESPAGNE. 3s. Certainly the most popular song of the day. Sung by Mesdames Trebell, Labiche, Pauline Rita, Calrose Williams, Vittoria Benen, Dolzco, &c. Also arranged as Pianoforte Solo, by B. TOURS, &c.
CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

MUSIC HALF PRICE AND POST-FREE.—The largest and most varied stock of Music, by all the principal Publishers. CRAMER and CO. undertake to forward, by return of post (on receipt of remittance), all sheet music ordered from them, no matter by whom published, at half price and post-free.
CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

BERTHOLD TOURS'S NEWEST SONGS. Words by C. J. BOSE.
THE MAIDEN AND THE SUNBEAM. In A flat and C. 2s.
A LIFE BEFORE. 2s.
Each free for 18 stamps, from Evans and Co., 22, Argyll-street, Regent-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS for COLLEGES and SCHOOLS. By J. T. STONE.
PUPILS' PIANOFORTE. ELEMENTARY INSTRUCTIONS. Twentieth Edition. 2s. FACILE INSTRUCTIONS. Sixteenth Edition. 4s. CONCISE INSTRUCTIONS. 2s.
FOR THE ORGAN. COMPLETE INSTRUCTIONS. Ninth Edition. 2s. THE CLASSICAL ORGANIST. In Six Vols., 12s. each; or in Thirty-Six Numbers, 2s. each.
THE ORGAN STUDENT'S COMPANION. In six vols., 12s. each; or in Twenty-Four Books, 2s. each.
FOR THE HARMONIUM. COMPLETE INSTRUCTIONS. In Twelve Numbers, 2s. each.
THE HARMONIUM MISCELLANY. In Twelve Numbers, 2s. each.
FOR STRINGS. THEORETICAL AND PRACTICAL INSTRUCTIONS. 2s.
The Publishers constantly direct the attention of Professors and Teachers of Music to the above Works. The whole series have a large and increasing circulation.
London: Barrow and Co., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

THE BOY AND THE BROOK. New Song. By J. L. HATTON; the words by Longfellow. "One of Mr. Hatton's best compositions, and must become popular." Price 4s.; sent free for 24 stamps.
Barrow and Co., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

CHARLES HALLE'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL. Sections 1, 2, and 3. Elementary, Easy, and Moderately Difficult; a 40, eight numbers of Section 4, Difficult, are now ready. Prospectuses, containing full particulars and prices, may be had of FORBES BROTHERS, London, Regent-street. Oxford-street; Messrs. Chertsey, Cross-street and South King-street.

THE SACRED HEART. The beautiful Processional Hymn, sung by all the Pilgrims to Faray-le-Monial. With French and English words, six stamps; and arranged as a Piece for Pianoforte or Harmonium, by J. FITZMAN, price twelve stamps.
K. C. BOOSEY, 2, Little Argyll-street, Regent-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S PIANOFORTES, from 19 gu. to 45 gu.—For SALE, Hire, or on the Three-Year System. Plans by all the great makers. Illustrated Price-List free. 24 Holles-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S ENGLISH HARMONIUMS. French Harmoniums, and Wood's American Organs. Illustrated Lists free.—24, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE and for SALE, from 25 gu. upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 23, Great St. Martin-street, Golden-square, W.; Manufacturers, 45, Horseferry Road, Westminster.

SECONDHAND SILVER.—An Assortment of Tea and Coffee Services, from 250; Tea Services, from 115; Tea Pots, 47 7s.; Cream Frames 24 4s.; Walters, 42; Cream Jugs, 24s. An assortment of Spoons and Forks.
S. A. GOWLIN, 204, High Holborn, London. Established 1871.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY. This celebrated and most delicious old mellow spirit is the very CREAM OF IRISH WHISKIES, in quality unrivalled, perfectly pure, and more wholesome than the finest Cognac Brandy. Note the Red Seal, Pink Label, and Cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky." Wholesale—20, Great Titchfield-street, Oxford-street, W.

HOOPER'S BRIGHTON SELTZER, 4s. per dozen. Six dozen carriage-free. To be obtained of all Chemists and Wine Merchants, or direct from the Manufacturer's London Depot, 7, Pall-mall East, S.W., and 28, Grosvenor-street, W.

VIENNA EXHIBITION, 1873. THE DIPLOMA OF HONOUR, being the highest distinction, has been awarded to LIEBIG'S OMPAN'S EXTRACT OF MEAT. Requires the Seal, in the name of the Inventor's (Baron Justus V. Liebig) signature on the Trade-Mark Label.

CHOCOLAT MENIER FOR BREAKFAST. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

CHOCOLAT MENIER FOR LUNCHEON. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

MENIER'S COCOA. Sold in 1/2 and 1/4 lb. packets and in 1/2 and 1/4 lb. tins. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

MENIER'S ESSENCE OF COCOA. Sold in 1/2 and 1/4 lb. tins, 2s. per tin. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

MENIER'S CHOCOLAT POWDER, Plain and Vanilla flavour. Sold in 1/2 and 1/4 lb. tins. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

CHOCOLAT MENIER defies all honest competition. Annual consumption exceeds 8,000,000 lb. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name. Factory and Warehouse: Southwark-street and Worcester-street, Borough.

COMPAGNIE FRANCAISE (Limited), Wholesale Manufacturers of and Dealers in CHOCOLATE, COCOA, COFFEE (as in France), CONFECTIONERY, &c. Thirty Gold and Silver Medals have been awarded. Every Article warranted pure, of the best quality, and at the lowest possible price. To be obtained of first-class Grocers, Confectioners, and others. Factories—Barnesbury New-road, London; and in Paris.

VIENNA INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—The "Medal for Progress" has been awarded to J. & FRY and SONS, Manufacturers of the celebrated Swiss Cocoa.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE and COCOA. The award of the "Medal for Progress" at the Vienna Exhibition is a fresh proof of the high position assigned to the firm by a competent Jury.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA. "A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard. "The caracac cocoa of such choice quality."—Food, Water, and Air, Edited by Dr. Hasall. Nine First Medals awarded to J. & FRY and Sons.

FLOUR.—Whites, for Pastry, Households, for Buns, Wheatmeal, for Brown Bread, Rye Meal, Rye Flour, Pure Flour of Egyptian Lentils, manufactured at Bullford Steam-Mills, Essex. Hungarian and Baltic Flour. Best Scotch Oatmeal, from Aberdeen and Berwick. Hominy and fine Indian Corn Meal, from New York. Address, HORSNAILL and CATCHPOOL, Liverpool-road, London, N.

THE USE OF THE GLENFIELD STARCH ALWAYS SECURES The Delight of the Laureates, The Admiration of the Beholder, And the Comfort of the Wearer.

FIELD'S PATENT "OZOKERIT" CANDLE. Improved in Colour. Improved in Burning. Made in all Sizes, and Sold Everywhere.

CANDLES. ASK FOR THE WESTMINSTER WEDGE-FITTING COMPOUND CANDLE, which will prevent the dangerous and untidy use of paper, are economical, keep upright, and burn to the end. Sold everywhere. J. C. and J. FIELD, LAMBETH, LONDON.

A DELICATE and CLEAR COMPLEXION, with a Delightful and Lasting Fragrance, by using the celebrated UNITED SERVICE SOAP TABLETS. 4d. and 6d. each. Manufactured by J. C. and J. FIELD, Upper Marsh, Lambeth. Order of your Chemist, Grocer, or Chandler.

CHAPMAN'S, NOTTING-HILL, Opposite Holland Park, W. Patterns of all Goods free.

JAPANESE SILKS, Rich Quality. One Hundred New Colours. All one Price, 27s. 6d. 12 yards, or 2s. 24d. per yard.

BLACK SILKS, Imperial make, 4s. 11d. per yard.
BLACK SILKS .. Bonnet's .. 4s. 11d. p. yard.
BLACK SILKS .. Good quality .. 2s. 11d.
BLACK SILKS .. Rich Lyons .. 4s. 11d. "

VELVETEENS, Incomparable.
First Price 1s. 11d. per yard.
Second ditto 2s. 6d.
Third ditto 2s. 6d.
Fourth ditto 4s. 6d.
Fifth ditto 4s. 6d.

COLOURED VELVETEENS. H.E.H. PRINCESS LOUIS OF HESSE. "The new patent Silk Finish." (As supplied by me to H.E.H. the Princess Louis of Hesse.) 27 in. wide, all one price, 2s. 11d. per yard.

FRENCH MERINOS. Always in fashion. Forms a dress unrivalled of its kind. Finest quality manufactured, 2s. 11d. per yard, 45 inches wide. Second quality, 1s. 11d. per yard.

TREBLE DIAGONAL. 1s. 11d. per yard, 26 in. wide.

BEIGE-CASHMERE, 2s. 6d. per yard.

SATIN CLOTH. Best quality imported, 1s. 11d. per yard.

SERGES, BEST, ALL WOOL. 1s. 6d. 1s. 11d., and 2s. 6d. per yard. CHAPMAN'S, Notting-hill, W. Patterns free.

DENNIS STEPHENS and CO., 60, Regent-street, W. (Two doors from the County Fire Office).

JAPANESE SILKS, in every leading colour, 1s. 11d. per yard.

JAPANESE SILKS, 2s. 3d. per yard.

JAPANESE SILKS, 2s. 6d. per yard.

JAPANESE SILKS, 2s. 11d. and 3s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free.

ROYAL COURT VELVETEENS, as supplied by DENNIS STEPHENS and CO. to H.E.H. Princess Louis of Hesse.

ROYAL COURT VELVETEENS, 2s. 6d. per yard.

ROYAL COURT VELVETEENS, 2s. 6d. per yard.

ROYAL COURT VELVETEENS, 2s. 6d. per yard.

COLOURED VELVETEENS, Royal Court finish, all one price, 27 in. wide, 2s. 11d. per yard.

FRENCH MERINOS, 1s. 11d. and 2s. 11d. per yard. Very fashionable.

GALATEA SERGE, 2s. 6d. per yard.

YATCHING SERGE, 1s. 11d. per yard.

Patterns of all Goods free. DENNIS STEPHENS and CO., 60, Regent-street, W.

REAL RUSSIAN SEAL.

GOODE, GAINSFORD, and CO. are now showing A LARGE STOCK OF THE FINEST RUSSIAN SEAL JACKETS.

SELECTED SKINS. Considerably less than Winter Prices. ALBION HOUSE, 161 to 167, BOROUGH, LONDON, &c.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. 1000 COLOURED GLACES, in Fashionable Shades, from 1s. 11d. to 2s. 11d. per yard. 1000 Patterns post-free to any part of the world.

NICHOLSON'S FANCY SILKS. 1000 Patterns. Striped, Checked, Broché, and Plain, in all the New Colours, from 2s. to 10s. per yard. 1000 Patterns post-free to any part of the world.

NICHOLSON'S RICH SILKS. 1000 Patterns. Noire Antiques, Coloured and Black, from 1s. 11d. per yard. Warranted all pure silk. 1000 Patterns post-free to any part of the world.

NICHOLSON'S BLACK SILKS. 1000 Patterns. from 1s. 11d. to 2s. 11d. per yard, selected with special regard to perfection of dye and durability of texture. Bonnet's, Teller's, Bellon's, and other first-class goods always kept in stock. 1000 Patterns post-free to any part of the world.

NICHOLSON'S NEW DRESS FABRIC.—1000 Patterns, representing all the New Materials for present wear, forwarded post-free to any part of the world.

BRIDES and BRIDESMAIDS are invited to inspect at CAPPER, SON, and CO.'S Warehouse, the various qualities and designs in Underclothing, Silks, Fancy Dress Materials, Costumes, Millinery, Mantles, Shawls, Toppings, Tablennes, Blankets, Quilts, and all similar requisites for personal as well as for household use.

These articles are all made up on the premises, and Ladies can select at the counters their Silks, Linens, Laces, Madras Works, Longcloths, and other fabrics before they are sent to the various workrooms.

Lists, with Prices, on application to CAPPER, SON, and CO., Grosvenor-street and Finchchurch-street, London, E.C.

WEDDING TROUSSEAUX, 230 to 232, Lists post-free. Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, 27, Piccadilly.

BOYS' SAILOR SUITS, from 15s. 6d. "The popular one for boys this season."—The Queen. GIRLS' AUTUMN COSTUMES, from 18s. 6

SIR SAMUEL WHITE BAKER, F.R.S.

LADY BAKER.

SIR SAMUEL AND LADY BAKER.

The safe return to England of this courageous and skilful pioneer of civilisation in the wilds of Central Africa is an event which has been hailed with general congratulations. Those who are more particularly interested in the advancement of geographical science, which was so greatly promoted by his discoveries concerning the probable source of the Nile and the Lake Albert Nyanza, have on this occasion shared a common feeling of satisfaction with the philanthropists and the political, social, or commercial reformers who have witnessed his successful efforts, using the authority confided to him by the Khedive of Egypt, to suppress the cruel traffic in slaves among the savage tribes of that hitherto inaccessible region. We may take some pleasure in reminding our readers that, in the year 1865, soon after Mr. Baker's return from his four years' wanderings in Africa, this Journal received some of the earliest contributions of his pencil and pen, which were afterwards embodied in the interesting book that contains a full account of his explorations and adventures. His portrait was at that time engraved for our pages; but, as he has since gained new claims to public esteem, there are enough grounds for presenting it again to view, accompanied by that of his lady, who has long been accustomed to partake with him the hardships and perils, as well as the heroic delights and merited glories, of his most enterprising achievements in travel.

Sir Samuel White Baker, who was born June 8, 1821, is eldest son of the late Samuel Baker, Esq., of Thorngrove, Worcestershire (at one time High Sheriff of that county), and of Lypiatt Park, Gloucestershire. He went to Ceylon in 1845, prompted by the enthusiasm of a sportsman, and wrote a book entitled "The Rifle and Hound in Ceylon." With his brother, Colonel Baker, he set up, in 1848, a large agricultural establishment at Newera Ellera, a hill station a hundred miles from Colombo. Of this an account is given in his "Eight Years'

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN: BOMBARDMENT OF ALICANTE.

Wanderings in Ceylon," published in 1855. His first wife, Henrietta, daughter of the Rev. Charles Martin, was married to Mr. Baker in 1843, but died without leaving him any children. In 1860 he married the present Lady Baker, who was an Austrian or Hungarian lady, Florence, daughter of Finnian von Sass. She accompanied him, in March, 1861, when he started for an expedition in Africa, intending to meet Captains Speke and Grant at the sources of the Nile; they were travelling north-westward from Zanzibar, while he went up the river (the White Nile) beyond Khartoum, having first spent a few months in exploring the tributaries of the Atbara and Blue Nile.

It was at the end of 1862 that Mr. and Mrs. Baker set forth to ascend the course of the White Nile from Khartoum. They met Speke and Grant in February at Gondokoro, when Baker learnt that, besides the Victoria Nyanza, out of which the Nile flows, there was reason to believe in the existence of another great lake to the westward, from which the river must derive its most important supply of water. He resolved to go in search of this; and, taking leave of Speke and Grant, made his way, only attended by a few nativeservants and still accompanied by his young wife, through the Latooka and Obbo country to the Asua and Karuma, thence traversing Unyoro, and reaching the eastern shore of the newly-discovered lake on March 14, 1864. This lake he called the Albert Nyanza. It extends two or three degrees north and at least two degrees south of the Equator, but its southern extremity has not yet been exposed. Its width is about sixty miles, and its shores are mountainous, very much so on the western side. When Mr. and Mrs. Baker returned to England the fame of his adventures and discoveries won him a very high degree of social favour. He was presented with the gold medal of the Royal Geographical Society and with honorary degrees of the Universities; and in November, 1866, her Majesty the Queen bestowed upon him the honour of knighthood. His book, "The Albert Nyanza and Great Basin of the Nile," published by Messrs. Macmillan and Co., has gone through several editions. Another book, "The Nile Tributaries of Abyssinia," came out at a later date.

In September, 1869, Sir Samuel Baker undertook, at the request of the Viceroy of Egypt, to command an Egyptian military force for the subjugation of the lawless tribes in the White Nile region, and for the suppression of the slave trade. Lady Baker went with him, as before, and Lieutenant James Baker, R.N. He encountered great obstacles, and his force of 1500 men was soon reduced, by desertion and sickness, to about 200, with whom he entered the Unyoro territory, and there had to confront the murderous treachery, followed by the open hostility, of Kabba Regga, the Unyoro King. Having fought a battle, won a victory, and burnt the town of Masindi, in the summer of 1872, the next act of Sir S. Baker was to ally himself with Rionga, a rival claimant of the kingdom, to depose Kabba Regga and set up a new native government, which owns allegiance to the Khedive of Egypt, and which is pledged to stop the slave trade. The Egyptian dominion is thus extended to the Equator, and our brave countryman has well earned the stipulated reward of £10,000 paid by the Khedive, who lately welcomed him with signal honours on his return to Cairo. He has founded several new military and commercial stations in the equatorial latitudes, opened the navigation of the White Nile a long way up, and made it a comparatively easy task to explore the districts yet unknown. But the opinion he entertained, while in that part of the world, of a connection between the Lake Albert Nyanza and the Lake Tanganyika, explored by Dr. Livingstone and Mr. Stanley, appears to be quite erroneous, having been founded on the vague rumours prevalent among the natives in Uganda. Sir Samuel Baker, however, was sufficiently occupied with military and political operations, which have had a most satisfactory result.

The Portraits of Sir Samuel and Lady Baker are engraved from the photographs by Messrs. Maull and Co.

BOMBARDMENT OF ALICANTE.

The bombardment of this peaceful seaport town by the ships of the Intransigentes or Communists from Carthage, on Saturday, the 27th ult., was related in our last. The inhabitants of Alicante were guilty of no offence but refusing the extortionate demand of 40,000 dollars levied by the local insurgents of another city; and this cruel attack has excited much indignation in foreign countries as well as in Spain. It was perpetrated by the two ironclad frigates Numancia and Mendez Nunez, with the wooden ship Fernando el Catolico, under the command of "General" Cabrera. They arrived before Alicante on the 20th ult., and when the townspeople forbade their landing Cabrera and his troops, a bombardment was threatened at once. But Admiral Sir Hastings Yelverton, commanding the English naval squadron which has kept watch over the proceedings of the Intransigentes along that coast, would not permit a bombardment without four days' notice. By this delay the inhabitants were enabled to remove their families and the portable share of their goods and chattels, as well as to erect three batteries, of 24-pounders and one mortar, enough to prevent a landing. The fort is an ancient building, armed only with five 18-pounders, which have been there fifty years. But these means of defence were augmented by the arrival of two heavy siege guns from Madrid, which were placed on the open road near the entrance to the town, behind a rising ground that concealed them from the ships in the harbour. They were rifled brass field-guns, carrying a conical projectile of 50 lb. weight, and were sighted only for direction, with no tangent sight or graduated scale. The artillery, troops, and volunteers on shore were commanded by General Ceballos; and the Minister of the Interior, Senor Maisonnave, was present with the defenders of Alicante. The bombardment commenced between six and seven o'clock in the morning, and was kept up by the two ironclads till half-past eleven. It was courageously answered by the defenders' batteries, whenever they could bring their guns to bear on the ships; but the fire did not take much effect on either side. The ships, however, were struck more than once. The affair was witnessed by the British, French, and Prussian squadrons, the British on the east side of the bay and the others on the west side. At noon, finding that their ammunition was only wasted, the Numancia and Mendez Nunez, with the Fernando el Catolico, which had kept out of harm's way, left Alicante to return to Carthage, followed by the British ships Swiftsure and Doris, to see what they were to do next. Some of the English naval officers, amongst whom was our correspondent, Lieutenant Gerard Bromley, of H.M.S. Endymion, landed in the afternoon to see what damage was done. It was found that, of 168 shot and shell fired by the ships, only forty had taken effect, chiefly among the poor people's houses. One 300-pounder shell had burst in the canteen of the fort, and killed four carabinieri, two women, and two children, besides wounding three or four other persons. A man in one of the batteries was also killed. The old fort was much damaged, but the batteries were scarcely hit; one shell dropped in the market-place. The positions of the defenders' batteries are shown in Lieutenant Bromley's sketch.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

However it may be a question whether optimism is a valuable quality in a politician or a statesman, of late we have seen that quality exhibited in its most enlarged sense in two instances. Everyone who knows Mr. Leatham's manner of speaking in the House is aware that no one better reconciles quietness of demeanour with the utmost confidence of assertion. He lays down his dogmas so precisely and authoritatively that he does not need to raise his voice when he is making good points, his emphasis is only inflection, and his epigrams, so frequent and so keen, drop from his lips with a certain laziness which render them most effective. Of the principle he is illustrating he never appears to entertain a doubt, and if he argues it is only for the sake of the poor benighted creatures who are listening to him, and who may not have attained to his perfection of belief. Possibly when he is on the hustings these rhetorical ways of his may be intensified, and belief in what he is saying may be, if that is possible, still more assured. Seldom has his capacity for stating his own case been more exemplified than in a speech which he has recently delivered to his constituents at Huddersfield. He spoke chiefly of the so-called Conservative reaction in the country; and if he had been discussing the tales of Sir John Mandeville, Fernando Pinte, or Munchausen, he could not have treated them with more contempt or laughed them more to scorn. The speech was in his happiest manner, and so suggestive as to form a manual for the belief and the conduct, at least, of that section of the Liberal party to which he belongs. Several times in this column have we spoken of the happy audacity, the easy self-reliance, and the smoothness of narrative which characterise those lectures on colonial policy which Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen is in the habit of delivering, at least twice in a Session to the House. His speeches there are models of polished ease; and he rounds off angularities in his subject-matter with a glidiness (to invent a word expressive of what is meant) which is marvellous, though it does not seem so because it appears so natural. The other day, at Deal, however, he imparted into an address to his constituents, we will not say a vigour, because he is always more or less vigorous, but a robustness which he does not always patently exhibit. He was defending the policy of the Government generally, and that part of their policy which relates to affairs in Ashantee; and, certes, he did his advocacy with a will. Especially some revelations he made with regard to the origin of the difficulties with the Ashantees are calculated to shut out one of the many causes of disapproval of the conduct of the Government which are so rife just now on Opposition hustings. But the most interesting disclosure which he made was entirely personal, and is likely to gain for him the utmost sympathy. People have been sarcastic at the idea of a busy Under-Secretary who represents the Colonial Department in the House of Commons having leisure to write fairy tales in not inconsiderable numbers. The explanation is very simple—namely, that the most hardworking men, those who are most systematic in their work, mostly have time for relaxation. With some, relaxation means society, amusement, doing nothing; with others, and especially book-men, as was the case with Robert Southey, it means changing one sort of work for another; and in composing fairy tales Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen finds his relaxation, if not exactly repose. But towards this diversion he has a special stimulant, which only those who see much of the House can understand. He says that during that enforced time of lingering in the House, which is so often incumbent on him as a Government official, when long and dreary speeches are on, he retires to the library, passes into the realm of fairydom, and is happy. Yea! happy is the member who, when Mr. Lusk has just spoken, Mr. Rylands is speaking, and Mr. Whalley is imminent, can pass from harsh, crabbed, and unmusical discordance into an enchanted land, and give to its airy people a "local habitation and a name."

If the opportunity had been fitting, doubtless when Mr. Baxter lately met a portion of his friends and neighbours at Dundee, he would have uttered a "wild shriek of liberty." For while he was in office he used, when addressing his constituents, to talk half mournfully, half passionately, of what he would have said if he had not been in a sort of captivity; and now, if he chooses, when he tells the story of his emancipation from official bondage, he may make the tale excessively interesting. A little while probably, and his voice will come out from the Montrose burghs with the sound of a trumpet, and echo through the land. If ever there was a safe official of the second class—a model Under-Secretary—assuredly Lord Enfield that is official. The precision with which he replies to questions relating to his department, the clearness of his more lengthened statements, and his tone of extreme candour, are such that when he has finished everyone feels a sort of satisfaction, and it is probable that it is necessary to consider and perhaps to read the chronicle of what he has said, in order to perceive how completely he possesses the art of speaking and yet saying nothing. Last week he went to converse with some of his electoral friends, and he gave out a notable specimen of his powers as a judicious speaker. A defence of the Ministry was infinitely tactical; he contrived (it may be his manner on the hustings, it is not in the House) to infuse a little geniality and warmth into his rhetoric, to quote slightly anacreontic verses, and to retort on Lord George Hamilton, the aspiring young Tory member for Middlesex, a saucily expressed wish, at a gathering of his party in the county, that Lord Enfield would not be his colleague in the next Parliament, a desire doubtless which will not have its fulfilment.

It is but seldom that Mr. Floyer, one of the members for Dorsetshire, addresses the House, and when he does it is generally in an advisory sense and a sort of summing-up manner. Although his matter may be grave, if not dry, his voice is modulated to its most pleasing strain, and a pleasant smile plays on his lips, so that one might fancy that he was returning thanks for the toast of the bridesmaids at a wedding, or that he was perpetually declaring that that was the proudest moment of his life. Recollection of this pleasant, benevolent-looking gentleman is recalled by its being observed that he has been presiding at the annual meeting of the Dorchester School of Art, and distributing prizes to successful pupils. Let those who, in their absence of knowledge, have hitherto supposed that Dorsetshire is rather a Boeotian county, far advanced on that road westward, travelling circuit on which a distinguished barrister of the last generation once said, "that the further he travelled West the better he understood how the wise men came from the East," note that the county town possesses a flourishing school of art. Then let it be made known that the address of Mr. Floyer on the occasion was in its matter appropriate and graceful; and delivered, as it of course was, with all those wreathed smiles and inflection of voice which have been spoken of above, it must have been a success. The sacrifices of country gentlemen like himself, in staying in town in the summer in order to discharge their duties as members of Parliament, was the opening theme of a speech by Mr. Walter to his neighbours at Wokingham the other day. His observations suggest that some alteration in the period of the year during which Parliament should sit might do much to take away the reproach of "wasted Sessions." It is said by some that Parliament may as well sit from February into August because it is coeval with the London season; but it is much to be doubted whether it is so coeval beyond the month of June. In July—if such a word can be applied to the world of fashion—it is only the lees of the season which remain; and it is more than possible that, if Parliament were to rise on the last day of June as a system, the debris of the season would be soon cleared away. But rising in June implies meeting in the first week of November; and what are the hunting and sporting members to do? Well, it may be a heresy; but it is just possible to think that, as the main function of the hunting and sporting members proper is to vote, a little management and some fast railway travelling would enable them to do their duty. If it could be so arranged that all the principal Government bills should be brought in, and as many of them as possible read the second time by mid-December, the House could plunge into Committee at once in February; and, even making allowance for Estimates and party debates, everything might be got through by the end of June.

THE MAGAZINES.

The Cornhill offers a number of varied if not of extraordinary interest. The three fictions present one common point of resemblance amid numerous points of contrast. This is their exceptional character, a divergence from ordinary views of life, manifested in "Young Brown" by bitter, unpleasant cynicism, in "Zelda's Fortune" by fantastic eccentricity of incident, in "Jack and the Beanstalk" by the ideal framework of the story. The latter is, however, far the truest to reality of the three—replete, indeed, with Miss Thackeray's usual tenderness of feeling and nicety of observation; while the analogy between the old fairy legend and its modern counterpart is most delicately wrought out. "Omphale," a poem on the amorous enthrallment of Hercules, atones in great measure for the deficiency of genuine poetic fire by elegance, suavity, and harmonious versification. A respectable but not exquisite poet, an admirable but not consummate prose-writer receives full justice in a kindly and impartial article on Robert Southey. The continuation of the paper on the French press is full of interesting anecdotes. "Mont Blanc at Sunset" is a picturesque description, not so much of the sunset on the mountain as of the impression of tremendous vastness conveyed by the view, admitting, nevertheless, of almost miniature accuracy in the diminished details of separate objects.

Macmillan gives us the best number we have had for a long time. The chief attraction, as usual of late, is Mr. Black's graceful and pathetic "Princess of Thule," where, without abatement of the psychological interest, the incidents are becoming more stirring and complicated; but especial interest also attaches to Mr. Nicholson's spirited account of the early and palmy days of the Oxford Union Debating Society, when numbers of those who now count among the leaders of the nation participated in its proceedings. Many will regard it as a characteristic trait of Mr. Gladstone to have, on one of his first divisions, spoken one way and voted another; and there is something excessively comical in the idea of the present Home Secretary having fined the present Archbishop of Canterbury 20s. for disorderly behaviour. Miss Phillimore's able article on Petrarch is concluded; and Professor Masson's "Life of Milton" is the subject of an able and appreciative review by Mr. G. Barnett Smith. "Gothenburg Again" is an interesting account of the experiment set on foot for the enforcement of temperance in that Swedish city by placing the management, as well as the regulation, of the public-houses in the hands of the municipality. The principle is to be extended to the grocers' licenses also. "The Priest's Heart" is a fair average specimen of Canon Kingsley's ballad style.

The contribution of most general interest to an excellent number of Fraser is, perhaps, Mr. M. D. Conway's account of a visit to the recent scene of war in France, including the captive Metz, the liberated Verdun, and the historic fields of Vionville and Gravelotte. The traveller confirms the previous testimony to the excellent behaviour of the German troops during the occupation, and reports the existence of a strong anti-Monarchical feeling in the French districts visited by him. The first of a series of papers on the Indian Civil Service contains a strong plea for the maintenance of the competitive system of examination and an emphatic denial of its operation having in any respect lowered the standard of the service. The writer, however, advocates the raising the limit of age for competition from twenty to twenty-three years. An article on Irish Orangism gives a clear history of the Orange Society, and forcibly points out that, under present circumstances, its best method of accomplishing its objects is to ally itself with that form of Liberalism which is resolutely opposed to all concessions to the Ultramontane party. We can hardly doubt that this advice will sooner or later be acted upon. Apuleius is the subject of a very interesting paper, contesting Bishop Warburton's theory of his "Golden Ass" having been composed with especial reference to Christianity.

Blackwood has two excellent short stories. "A Railway Junction" details a little love adventure with bright, genial humour; in "Edgar Wayne" the interest is of a deeper nature, and our sympathies are strongly aroused for the noble-spirited young Dissenting Minister, exposed to the spiteful attraction of the gossip of a petty town. "A Narrative of Prince Charlie's Escape," written by one of his companions, and attested by Mr. Skene, the historian of the Highland clans, adds, indeed, little to our knowledge of the subject, but is full of the romantic interest which must always surround it. The picturesqueness of the narrative is enhanced by the judicious preservation of the original orthography. "Republic or Monarchy in France?" is a curiously unsatisfactory essay. The writer denounces the removal of M. Thiers from power, maintains, in defiance of the unwillingness of the present Government to face the elections, the existence of a Monarchical majority in the country, and then winds up most unexpectedly by declaring that Monarchy, after all, cannot be established. If this is really the case, no censure can be too strong for the dog-in-the-manger policy which thwarts the consolidation of the Republic while confessing its own inability to furnish a substitute.

The Fortnightly Review is less interesting than usual. Mr. Morley denounces the shortcomings of our educational system with vigour; but we are compelled to repeat that he does not write in the spirit of a statesman who considers before all things what is practicable. No such alterations as he would wish are possible in the present state of public feeling. The evils he exposes are to a large extent remediable through departmental action, without unsettling a compromise which fairly represents the opinion of the country. The other papers are of the most abstract kind; but Mr. Griffin's article on Indian finance and Mr. Gore's essay on the promotion of scientific research will be found to contain valuable suggestions.

Mr. Herbert Spencer's essays on sociology, in the Contemporary Review, conclude with a serious rebuke to the "wild anticipations" of "fanatics," who, not having the necessary tardiness of evolution before their eyes, expect improvement in human affairs at any other than a rate of almost incalculable slowness. We should have thought that the experience of the last half century would have convinced Mr. Spencer that, under certain circumstances, the progress of evolution may be rapid enough. Mr. Clements Markham pleads earnestly for a new Arctic expedition; Mr. G. H. Darwin exposes what appears to him a fallacy in Mr. Mill's political economy; and Mr. O'Connor Morris gives an interesting résumé of M. Le Play's great work on the condition of the artisan classes in France. As zealous Catholics, M. Le Play and Mr. Morris cannot be expected to recognise the real though remote source of the moral disorder which they deplore.

The principal feature of Temple Bar is the commencement of "Uncle John," a new novel by Captain Whyte Melville, which promises to exhibit all the raciness and frank good sense of the accomplished author. The shameful career of Madame du Barry is detailed without extenuation, but with more impartiality than is always to be found in her biographers; and another article adds an agreeable, if not a very important, contribution to the Junius controversy. "Superintendent Pryse," by Miss Annie Beale, is a pretty story; and the same may be said of "Gipsying," another contribution from this lady's pen to the Argosy, which also boasts a contribution from the pen of Miss Kavanagh, whose literary appearances have been infrequent of late. After deducting the papers derived from the Atlantic Monthly, the claims of the Transatlantic principally rest on Bret Harte's "Episode of Fiddletown," a paper on the projected acquisition of the United States telegraphs by the Government, and a statement of the question at issue between the railway companies and the farmers.

The September number of the Atlantic Monthly is, as usual of late, chiefly indebted for its attractiveness to the continuation of Mr. Parton's and Mr. R. Dale Owen's contributions. The former details the principal measures of Jefferson's presidency, especially the purchase of Louisiana; the latter describes the history of Robert Owen's Socialist experiment at New Harmony, the ill success of which convinced his son of the impracticability of the principle of community of property. Mr. Owen, however, entertains great hopes of the co-operative principle. There are also entertaining papers on sport in Canada and art in Europe, and a pretty poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Mookerjee's Magazine, edited by Sambhu Chandra Mukhopadhyaya, and chiefly written by Bengalees (Calcutta, Berigny and Co.; London, Trubner), is worth the attention of all interested in the intellectual development of our Indian fellow-subjects. We cannot say that the contributions, as a rule, possess much intrinsic merit, and their value is usually in the inverse ratio of their pretentiousness. The attempts in belles lettres are in general very mild, and the essays on moral and social subjects display more facility in composition than grasp of thought. Some contributions to our actual knowledge of India are, however, valuable; we may especially instance the description of an ancient statue of the goddess Durga and the account of the late Mr. Hare's labours in the cause of native education. The publication is, however, chiefly interesting as a symptom of intellectual activity in Bengal, and as such we welcome it cordially.

Among the lively contents of the Gentleman's Magazine we have, beside Mr. Hatton's and Mr. Hopkins's fictions, especially to note the Rev. F. Arnold's "Getting Back to Town," Mr. Vizetelly's description of an Algerian café, and Miss Betham-Edwards's lines for music.

The New Quarterly wears a very amateurish aspect, but has one remarkable contribution, an account and explanation of the marvels witnessed at a spiritualistic séance. Authentic or fictitious, the narrative is certainly thrilling. "Notes on Portugal" are also interesting.

Tinsley, Belgravia, and the St. James's Magazine are all fairly entertaining, without special features.

The Popular Science Review contains some valuable observations on the fertilisation of plants and their sexuality; a summary, by Mr. Proctor, of the results of the last four years' observations of Jupiter, who is stated to have resumed his normal hue; and an account, by Mr. R. A. Douglas, of the history and present condition of indigenous science in China.

We have also to acknowledge the Victoria Magazine, the Monthly Packet, Good Words, the New Monthly Magazine, the Etc., Once a Week, Cassell's Magazine, the Sunday Magazine, the Quiver, Aunt Judy, the Treasury of Literature and Lady's Treasury, the Young Englishwoman, the Englishwoman's Domestic Magazine, and the Milliner and Dressmaker.

Dr. Neilson Hancock, chief of the Statistics Office, has issued the returns of local taxation in Ireland for the year 1872. It appears from them that the receipts from local taxes in Ireland during the year were £2,905,250, showing an increase of £118,501 on the estimate for 1871. This taxation represents a charge for local purposes of 19s. 6d. per head of population.

A field-day on an extended scale took place, on Monday morning, on Chatham Great Lines, in the presence of a large number of spectators. After inspecting the columns, General Erskine took up his position at the flagstaff, when the entire force marched past by grand divisions, followed by a course of brigade and field movements, during which the officers and men were exercised in the new battalion system of manoeuvres.

The Rev. A. P. Forbes, Bishop of Brechin, delivered his annual charge to his clergy on Monday. Two of the topics to which he referred were the proposed introduction of the laity into the synods of the Scotch Episcopal Church and the teaching of Dean Stanley. Bishop Forbes is opposed to both. As regards the laity, he is afraid that there would be discussions in the Synods if they obtain any voice in the government of the Church, and he "had been informed that one of the causes of the increasing godlessness among the ploughmen and farm servants was that their respect for their religious teachers had been greatly broken down by reading in the cheap newspapers the record of the discussions and unseemly proceedings that take place in presbyteries and synods." As regards Dean Stanley, the Bishop describes the Christianity taught by him as "a lax, popular, and undogmatic Christianity," but admits that it is "preached with much fervour and eloquence."

Sir Henry Rawlinson delivered the opening address on the commencement of the winter session of the Midland Institute at Birmingham on Monday evening. Referring to Arctic explorations, he said he indulged the hope that the year will not close before an assurance has been given that a well-equipped Admiralty vessel will be commissioned to endeavour to reach the Pole by pushing through Smith's Sound from Baffin's Bay in the track of the American ship Polaris. He pointed out the extraordinary stride which had been made in the character and extent of our information in history and geography within the last fifty years, and gave a résumé of recent cuneiform discovery as an illustration of the advance of historical knowledge in one particular direction. The concluding portion of the address was devoted to a review of the results of geographical discoveries in Africa. From the galaxy of illustrious names connected with African discoveries, Sir Henry chose those of Livingstone and Baker as the representative men who have done most for African discovery.

MUSIC.

The eighteenth series of autumn and winter concerts at the Crystal Palace opened well on Saturday afternoon, when the programme was of high interest, and, moreover, included two novelties in production. These were a pianoforte concerto by Bach and a new overture by Dr. Julius Rietz. The concerto, in F minor, is one of many such pieces in which, as in other forms of the art, Bach ranks as a great inventor. The work now referred to is in three movements—an allegro, a largo, and a final presto—in each of which the grandeur and energy of the old master are admirably displayed, although, perhaps, not in so great a degree as in some of his other concertos. The finale is the most interesting portion of the work, its bright vivacity being sustained with unflagging interest. The concerto was finely played by Herr Pauer, who also performed two unaccompanied pieces, some clever variations of his own, and the last movement ("Il moto continuo") of Weber's sonata in C, which latter was given with such brilliancy and energy as to call forth loud and prolonged applause. The overture was composed last year in celebration of the golden wedding of the King and Queen of Saxony, Dr. Rietz being Capellmeister at Dresden. It is written with masterly command of orchestral resources, and contains many fine passages, both of beauty and dignity. Although a little diffuse in form, the general effect is well suited to its purpose as a piece of festive music. The other overture was Spontini's richly instrumented prelude to his opera "Nurmahal," and the symphony (Mendelssohn's, in A minor) known as the Scotch symphony. In all these pieces the Crystal Palace band fully maintained its reputation for finished execution. The vocalists were Mdlle. Caroline Leontieff and Mr. Vernon Rigby. The former, a Russian contralto, made a very favourable impression by her singing of Handel's "Lascia ch'io pianga," an air of Pergolesi, and a Russian song. Mr. Rigby sang, with much effect, Mozart's aria, "Un'aura amorosa," and "The Gray Dawn," from Signor Schira's "Lord of Burleigh." Mr. Manns received the usual and deserved tribute of applause on his appearance at the conductor's desk.

M. Rivière's Promenade Concerts continue to attract large audiences. Last Saturday brought to a close Herr Josef Gungl's engagement. The popular composer and conductor of dance-music was presented by M. Rivière with a testimonial, a locket, that had been subscribed for by the members of the band. The same evening brought back Mdlle. Carlotta Patti, whose singing was a marked feature at former promenade concerts. The sister of the renowned prima donna—Madame Adelina Patti—again delighted her audience by her singing. "The Last Rose of Summer" was encored, and replied to by giving "Within a Mile of Edinburgh Town," and a brilliant valse aria, "Il Palpito" (composed for her by M. Ritter), also encored, was replaced by "Gin a body meet a body." Mdlle. Busen, the Swedish contralto, also appeared on Saturday, and M. Ritter, a skilful pianist of the vigorous school, made a highly-successful first appearance, and was encored in one of his solos. The Cuban violinist, M. Brindis de Salas, took his farewell, and was greatly applauded and encored in a brilliant fantasia. Many other items made up a long programme that seemed to give general delight to an audience that crowded every part of Covent-Garden Theatre. On Monday the programme included Herr Meyer Lutz's cantata, "A Legend of the Lys;" Tuesday was a "Rossini night," Wednesday a "Mozart night," and Thursday an "English Ballad night." Yesterday (Friday) evening Mozart's Twelfth Mass was to be given, and for to-night (Saturday) a miscellaneous selection is promised.

The Royal Albert Hall Choral Society has announced a new series of eleven oratorio concerts, to be given on the evenings of Oct. 30, Nov. 13 and 27, Dec. 15 and 24, Jan. 8 and 22, Feb. 5 and 18, and March 5 and 19. At the first concert Handel's "Theodora" will be performed, with additional accompaniments by Dr. Ferdinand Hiller. Bach's St. Matthew "Passion Music" and his "Christmas Oratorio" are among the works to be given. The band and chorus are to consist of 1200 performers. Mr. Barnby will conduct, and Dr. Stainer will preside at the organ.

The forty-second season of the Sacred Harmonic Society is to commence next month.

Mr. Henry Holmes will give a new series of his pleasant Musical Evenings on Oct. 22 and 29, Nov. 19, and Dec. 3 and 17.

THEATRES.

HAYMARKET.

The programme was varied on Saturday, and Mr. John S. Clarke was afforded an opportunity of appearing in three other characters of his repertoire—namely, Paul Pry, Babbington Jones, and Timothy Toodles; and the announcement of his intention sufficed to attract a decidedly respectable and numerous audience. In the first of these parts Mr. Clarke has to contend with the memory of Liston, but has no reason to dread a comparison with that great artist, from whom he differs in many essential respects. In power of facial expression he is his equal, and has a livelier and keener appreciation of fun, though not so spontaneous an utterance. Mr. Clarke has a purpose in all he does, and carefully provides the fitting make-up, and all the expedient accessories for the efficient representation of the humours which he has selected for illustration. The result is a combination surprisingly effective. The motive for mirth soon becomes irresistible, once under the spell of the marvellous magician; and the audience are kept in a state of continual excitement and irrepressible laughter.

OLYMPIC.

This theatre, on Saturday, passed under new management. Mr. Henry Neville, whose reputation is identified with the house, assumed the reins of government, and was greeted with a thoroughly cordial reception by a crowded house. To ensure his success as far as possible, he had enlisted the talents of Mr. Henry J. Byron as his author, and of a well-selected company as the exponents of his dramatic inventions; and in both had showed excellent judgment, as was testified by the success of the experiment. Mr. Byron's new venture is entitled "Sour Grapes"—a play in four acts, not very new in plot or character, but original in treatment. Mr. Byron depends on smart dialogue, and supplies his persons with such conversation as is seldom heard in private society, but might be, provided its members were as clever and as witty as Mr. Byron's characters. First of these in the programme is Lord Lorraine, a member of two fashionable clubs, and represented by Mr. H. Neville, as the lover of a yeoman's niece; his affections being opposed by his mother, Lady Lorraine (Mrs. J. B. Howard), who forces an oath on the heroine never to wed Lord Lorraine. The rustic beauty is able to keep her vow, and yet wed the man of her choice, for the latter is not entitled to the appellation of a nobleman, his elder brother being yet alive. On this slight basis the story is built, and occupation found for fifteen performers. A single scene suffices for each act, and enough complication is found in the simplest materials. Mr. Neville has to assume the disguise of a Devonshire farm-labourer, as the wooer of his humble mistress; and thus the rôle becomes one of those character-parts in which this actor eminently excels. The part of the heroine, Lydia Fane, is charmingly impersonated by Miss Edith Gray. Lorraine has a rival in one Marmaduke Petrel, who hopes, in Lydia, to gain the farm as well as the farmer's niece. Marmaduke is one of your cool plotters, and was admirably represented by Mr. Charles Neville. In contrast with the heroine, we may name Lady Kate Fanshawe, a young heiress staying at Lorraine Hall, who attires herself in a variety of fashionable dresses, and is characteristically realised by Miss Emily Fowler. The remaining rôles are occasional, rather ornamental than useful. Two of these, a literary pretender and a scientific professor, could be well spared—Peter Griffin, of Lincoln's Inn (Mr. G. Canninger), and Professor Podge, member and fellow of various philosophical societies (Mr. A. Culver). Tobias Graham, a barrister-at-law, who marries the rich heiress, is carefully acted by Mr. Edward Righton, but possesses few strong points. To make up for such deficiencies, the author finds place in his canvas for Minadab, a farm-servant, so cleverly and effectively assumed by Mr. G. W. Anson that the character ensures the success alike of the new artist and the new drama. The remaining parts are all efficiently filled. The curtain fell to decided applause. Mr. Neville then addressed his audience in a manly speech, in which he promised to make the theatre worthy of their continued support; nor have we any doubt that he will keep his word.

GLOBE.

Mr. Tom Taylor has written a very fine play, entitled "Arkwright's Wife," which, after adequate rehearsal in the country, found its way to the London stage, and was produced on Monday with perfect success. Mr. J. Saunders is associated with Mr. Taylor in the composition of the new drama, which is founded on a tale written by the former. The subject is decidedly an important one, and merits the most careful and skilful treatment. It has been handled by our authors in a conscientious and worthy manner. They well deserve the success which is likely to attend their efforts. Here we have some really dramatic work, and some true flesh-and-blood portraiture, which ought to produce a strong impression on playgoers in general, and bring solid fame to the writers and actors engaged. The story is modified to suit stage purposes, but has throughout such an air of probability as readily to win the belief of an interested audience. According to the play, Richard Arkwright (Mr. Charles Kelly), visiting Leigh as a dealer in hair, encounters the daughter of Peter Hayes (Mr. S. Emery), and, after assisting her and her father, proposes marriage to herself. Peter Hayes, a reedmaker and mechanical inventor, has occupied much time in constructing a cotton-machine, and expended all his resources in a vain endeavour to complete it. Much suffering has been brought on his family by Hayes's perseverance in the pursuit of his hopeless task, and his wife has perished in the struggle. Margaret Hayes (Miss Helen Barry) succeeds to her mother's troubles, and is found by Arkwright willing to sacrifice her hair for the relief of her necessities. This interview decides the destiny of Arkwright, who resolves on marrying Margaret and taking the unsuccessful inventor into his house. In the second act we find the family thus settled: Hayes has given up his day-dream and taken to his pipe; but Arkwright has secretly worked at the problem which Hayes had failed to solve, and conceals a spinning-jenny in an apartment which he keeps locked up. A twelvemonth has passed, when a gossiping neighbour, finding that Mrs. Arkwright is ignorant of what the chamber contains, awakens the curiosity and suspicion of the confiding wife, who thereupon challenges her husband and obtains from him the secret. Horror-stricken that her husband has been infected with the mania which had ruined her family, she is further inflamed by the statements of her envious father, who is indignant that another should reap the fruits of his invention; and she is persuaded by him to break the newly-completed machine in pieces. Arkwright, enraged by her conduct, repudiates the transgressing wife, who, separated from her husband, is allowed £50 a year for her subsistence. Arkwright is not daunted by the destruction of his machine, for he has drawings of it, and, aided by a manufacturer at Nottingham, is enabled to bring his invention to perfection. In the third act we find him the proprietor of three mills, a prosperous man, a sheriff, and a knight. Hayes and his daughter have become wanderers, exhibiting an orrery to the townspeople and villagers. They hear of Arkwright's prosperity; old Hayes determines on his ruin, and incites the mob to destroy his machines. But Margaret has gained wisdom from experience, and contrives to warn her husband of the danger, and he sends for the dragoons. Meanwhile she endeavours to appease the crowd, and lectures them on the advantages of such inventions. At length Arkwright and his friends appear on the scene. He is soon told of the atonement made by his wife for her faults, and a full reconciliation follows. Such is the drama, the truth of which, as a picture of Lancashire industry, is indisputable, and most intimately connected with the inner life of the English people. Such a play, so instructive, so full of moral purpose, so nobly written, and so well acted, deserves public support. Mr. Kelly, as Arkwright, looked the character as well as acted it; and Mr. Emery, as the excited and disappointed Hayes, gave one of those natural portraits for which he has been long famous. Miss Barry, as the transgressing and repentant wife, evinced great power and skill. The scenery and costumes are appropriate and picturesque. The whole performance, indeed, does honour to the management.

PHILHARMONIC.

At this theatre, which now takes rank with the most elegant of the smaller places of amusement, was produced, on Saturday evening, a version of "La Fille de Madame Angot," by Mr. Henry Byron, which is closer to the original than the numerous adaptations of opera bouffe which have been lately seen. It is completely rendered in every part.

Parliament has been further prorogued to Dec. 16.

Mr. Edward Hugo R. Rice Wiggins, B.A., formerly scholar of Brasenose College, Oxford, has been appointed one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools.

A discussion on local taxation has taken place in the Bucks Chamber of Agriculture. It issued in a resolution endorsing the views of Sir Massey Lopes, and calling upon the borough and county members to support them.

A Royal warrant has been issued regulating the pay and stoppages of non-commissioned officers and men in the Army. A small daily addition accrues from the abolition of beer-money; and the new schedules are mostly advantageous to the soldier.

A forerunner of Home Rule is being experienced in Chesterfield, where a feud has broken out between the English and the Irish miners. The Irish provoked hostilities by an assault on an Englishman, whose compatriots numbered to the number of a thousand, and stormed the Irish quarters. On Saturday night arrangements had been made for a pitched battle, when the police interfered and averted serious consequences.

SIR EDWIN LANDSEER MODELLING THE LIONS FOR TRAFALGAR-SQUARE.

"THE SHEPHERD'S CHIEF MOURNER."

THE LATE SIR EDWIN LANDSEER, R.A.

THE LATE SIR EDWIN LANDSEER, R.A.

SIR EDWIN LANDSEER, R.A.

Sir Edwin Landseer, whose lamented death on the 1st inst. we announced last week, was born at 83, Queen Anne-street, in 1802, and came of a family of artists. His father, John Landseer, was an Associate Engraver of the Royal Academy for nearly fifty years; he was largely employed by the publishers of his day, and also won distinction as a writer on engraving, and by the lectures he delivered at the Royal Institution. Sir Edwin's eldest brother, Thomas Landseer, the well-known engraver, who has executed many plates from his brother's works, is also, as his father was, an Associate of the Academy; and the second brother, Charles, has long been a full member of the Academy, and held, from 1851 till his recent resignation, the post of Keeper to that body. These sons, with three daughters, were the offspring of a marriage between John Landseer and a Miss Pott. She is introduced in Sir Joshua Reynolds's picture "The Gleaners," painted for the publisher, Macklin, for whom John Landseer was then working, and, in all probability, the engraver met his future bride at his employer's house. The father set young Edwin, from his very earliest age, to study direct from nature, sending him to Hampstead-heath and other picturesque suburbs to make studies of donkeys, sheep, and goats. There are few instances of precocity so remarkable, the promise of which has been so fully kept. Little Edwin drew animals well even before he was five years old. Among the series of his early drawings and etchings in the South Kensington Museum there are some executed by him from six to eight years of age, and one done "when Master Edwin was breeched." When twelve years old he won the silver Isis medal of the Society of Arts for a drawing of a hunting horse, and at thirteen he was an exhibitor at the Academy of two paintings which are entered in the catalogue of 1815 as Nos. 443 and 584—"Portrait of a Mule" and "Portrait of a Pointer Bitch and Puppies," by Master E. Landseer, 33, Foley-street (Portland-place). In the immediate neighbourhood of this house then dwelt many eminent artists and literary celebrities, from some of whom the young artist doubtless derived much benefit and encouragement. Before this, though we have seen no notice of the fact, the family resided for some years at Maldon, in Essex. In Haydon's "Autobiography" it is mentioned that the elder Landseer brought his "boys" to Haydon to receive instruction. Authorities differ as to whether Edwin was included among the "boys;" but probably Haydon, and certainly Flaxman, advised him to draw from the Elgin marbles, then deposited at Burlington House. Haydon, we know, not less than Flaxman, appreciated the inestimable artistic value of the Phidian antiques better than most of their contemporaries; and it is to the study, whomsoever recommended it, of those remains that we should not doubt trace the origin of that masterly breadth of style so fully developed later in Sir Edwin's career, which was one of his best characteristics as an artist. We have also reason to believe that about the time of his connection with Flaxman he made some essays with the modelling tools; it is, at all events, a mistake to suppose that he had made no attempts at modelling before executing the lions of the Nelson Column.

In the summer of 1822, when only twenty years of age, Edwin Landseer established himself as a fashionable and popular artist with his "Fighting Dogs Getting Wind," which was exhibited in the rooms of the Society of Painters in Oil and Water Colours, and purchased by Sir George Beaumont, the acknowledged leader of the "connoisseurs" and "patrons" of that day. In the following year appeared two pictures of lions, in delineating the anatomy of which the young student is said to have been aided by witnessing the dissection of an old lion that had died in Exeter Change. "Ratcatchers," "Pointers—No-ho," "The Larder Invaded," which won a premium of £150 at the British Institution; "The Cat's Paw," and the "Hunting of Chevy Chase" followed, and the year the last picture was exhibited (1826) Edwin Landseer was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy. He was now twenty-four years old—the earliest age at which an artist is eligible for the honour of the Associateship. The only other artists who have obtained this distinction at the same age are Sir Thomas Lawrence and Mr. Millais. It was near this time that he removed into the cottage in St. John's-wood-road, where he resided till his death. This house he gradually converted into a handsome and artistic residence, always maintaining a certain seclusion there, though mixing freely in the courtly and fashionable society, in which he was always a great favourite. Six years later, in 1831, he was elected R.A.

From the date of his Associateship a large proportion of his subjects were drawn from the Highlands, a district which he visited for study and sport almost annually, till a few years before his death. It would be impossible within our limits to give a list of Sir Edwin's works. But the mention of the following among his principal pictures will suffice to recall his progress and the varied and extensive range of his power—familiar as they all are either directly or through the medium of the engravings which have diffused his works more widely probably than those of any other artist. The very titles of many of the works are like household words:—"The Chief's Return from Deerstalking," "Monkey who had seen the World" (1827), "Illicit Whisky Still in the Highlands," "A Fireside Party," now at South Kensington, the terriers in which are said to have been the original "Peppers and Mustards" described in Scott's "Guy Mannering" (1829), "High Life" and "Low Life," also at South Kensington (1831), "Poachers Deerstalking," "A Lassie herding Sheep," "Spaniels of King Charles's Breed," "A Jack in Office" (1833), "Suspense," "A Highland Dog rescuing Sheep," "Bolton Abbey in the Olden Time," now at Chatsworth, "The Drover's Departure," a scene in the Grampians, "The Tethered Rams," "Comical Dogs," all three at South Kensington, "Odin," a portrait of a Scotch deerhound, "The Highland Shepherd's Chief Mourner" (1837), "There's Life in the Old Dog yet," "Dignity and Impudence" (South Kensington), in which the noble bloodhound that forms such a striking contrast to the pert little terrier is supremely grand. "A Distinguished Member of the Humane Society" (1838), "Her Majesty's Favourite Dogs and Parrot," "The Return from Hawking," "A Highland Breakfast," and "Deer and Deerhounds in a Mountain Torrent" (1839).

Several of the works produced during the next ten years are not less popular, though generally less complete in execution than the preceding. "Laying Down the Law," "The Highland Shepherd's Home," "The Otter Speared," "The Sanctuary," "Coming Events Cast their Shadows before Them," "The Challenge," "Shoeing," "Time of Peace," "Time of War," "The Stag at Bay," "Alexander and Diogenes," "A Random Shot," and "A Dialogue at Waterloo," South Kensington. Among the pictures painted in 1851-60 are some subjects of a more ideal, elevated character, but usually flatter in effect technically, and less thoroughly wrought out. The scene from "The Midsummer Night's Dream"—"Titania, Bottom, and Fairies Attending"—(though the composition is almost an exact counterpart of a picture painted, we believe, previously by poor insane David) is, however, one of Sir Edwin's happiest efforts. After this work, which appeared in 1851, and has been reproduced so exquisitely in mezzotint by Mr. Samuel Cousins, came "Night and Morning," "The Last Run of the Season," "Children of the Mist," "Saved!" (dedicated to the Humane Society), "Uncle Tom and his Wife for Sale," "Deerstalking," "The Maid and the Magpie," "Doubtful Crumbs," and the large important picture, "A Flood in the Highlands." The works executed since 1860 include "The Shrew Tamed," "The Fatal Duel," "Windsor Great Park," "Pensioners," "Man Proposes—God Disposes," "Prosperity" and "Adversity," "The Connoisseurs" (with the painter's own portrait), "Wild Cattle at Chillingham," "Her Majesty at Osborne in 1866," "Eagles Attacking the Swannery," "A Doctor's Visit to Poor Relations," and other more recently-executed pictures, which but inadequately sustain the artist's reputation. The lions in Trafalgar-square bear noble testimony to Sir Edwin's capacity as a sculptor, by their grand yet naturalistic style, if not otherwise. Sir Edwin executed innumerable private commissions for portraits of favourite animals; he also painted several portraits of human subjects. Apropos of the last, we may recall Sydney Smith's witty answer when Lord and Lady Holland desired him to sit to Landseer—"Is thy servant a dog that he should do this thing?" The value of Sir Edwin's works and of the copyright of them has increased enormously. Pictures which were originally sold for one, two, or three hundred pounds, have fetched, or would now fetch, one, two, three, or more thousand; and copyrights have ranged from £100 for early works to £3000 for later works. It remains to add that to the nervous or mental disease under which Sir Edwin succumbed he had been a prey at intervals for many years. The honour of knighthood was conferred in 1850, he was awarded a large gold medal at the Paris Exhibition of 1855, and he (as well as Mr. MacIise) declined the Presidency of the Royal Academy, offered to him first on the death of Sir Charles Eastlake.

This is hardly the occasion to attempt a critical estimate of Sir Edwin's art. It is, however, obvious that he addressed himself mainly to that love of animals and field sports which is a national trait; hence his popularity was perhaps greater with us than it would have been with any other nation. Courtly and fashionable influences are, however, seldom favourable to an artist. His animals had often a sleek, subdued self-consciousness, as though they had been prepared for a drawing-room inspection. The analogies they are made to present to human character and conduct are frequently beyond the possibilities of animal expressions and habits. Facts of natural history are ignored, as in the picture professing to represent the mode in which eagles would attack swans, and even the delineation of the red deer of Scotland fall short of satisfying the anatomist or naturalist. Sir Edwin's wild animals are not instinct with untamed, exuberant vitality, like those of Snyders; nor had he at command the vigorous handling, colour, and effect of the great Fleming. Sir Edwin's slaty, cold, flat, and thin colouring was his weak point, technically considered. Foreign critics estimate him as a designer, rather than as a painter. On the other hand, no painter of animal life can for a moment be compared to him for intelligent invention, for humour and its congenial pathos, for breadth, variety, and subtlety of observation. No painter has ever so widened and deepened our sympathies with the dumb creatures that minister so largely to our pleasures and necessities; no painter so well deserved the epithet he fairly won of the "Shakespeare of the Animal World."

We are much indebted to Messrs. Henry Graves and Co., of Pall-mall, for their permission to copy the engraved Portrait of Sir Edwin Landseer, as well as his picture of "The Highland Shepherd's Chief Mourner," which is noticed in another page, and that of "Sir Edwin Landseer Modelling the Lions for Trafalgar-square," which last is from a chromolithograph. The portrait of Sir Edwin is that painted by himself and engraved by Mr. Samuel Cousins, R.A. The copyright of the engraving is the property of Mr. Graves; the original was painted for the Prince of Wales.

FINE ARTS.

After nearly two more years of official obstruction the actual building of the New Law Courts is, it appears, about to begin. The cause of the last delay has been the desire of the Government—i.e., the First Commissioner—to reduce or "economise" on the estimated cost. This has been effected to the amount of £15,000; that is to say, the decorative portions of Mr. Street's design are to be impoverished to that amount, for, structurally considered, the design remains almost precisely the same. Meanwhile the country has been losing by way of interest on the purchase-money of the site, taxes, &c., £40,000 a year, to say nothing of the inconvenience and loss of retarding a much-needed public work.

Several improvements at Cambridge are in progress during the present vacation. Trinity Chapel has been renovated and decorated, the Fitzwilliam Museum has been enlarged, the Duke of Devonshire's building for experimental physics is nearly finished; the new buildings at King's College are completed, and so is the new wing at Trinity Hall.

Mr. J. Adams Acton, the sculptor, besides being engaged on a statue of Sir Titus Salt, which is to stand in front of the new Townhall, Bradford, is now erecting three monuments which he has executed for the mausoleum at Saltaire. The monuments are composed of costly marbles, with appropriate sculptural emblems, the principal of which is a colossal figure in alto-relievo of the Angel of the Resurrection.

Mr. G. W. Childs, the proprietor of the Philadelphia Register, has offered to defray the entire cost of erecting a memorial window to George Herbert and William Cowper in Westminster Abbey, in the chapel containing the monument to William Wordsworth. It is hardly necessary to add that the Dean of Westminster has accepted the generous offer.

In addition to the several stained-glass windows which have been inserted in the nine altars and south transept of Durham Cathedral, it is understood that the Freemasons of that city are about to place a window in the nine altars in memory of Mr. John Pawcett. Major Joicey and the Dean are also about to add stained windows to the south aisle.

The interior of the chapel of King's College, London, has been completed during the vacation, the works having been carried on under the direction of Sir Gilbert Scott, R.A. A very handsome reredos of marble and alabaster, with mosaics, has been erected; the apse and side walls painted in gold and colours by Messrs. Clayton and Bell; the stalls completed, and the organ greatly enlarged. The chapel is open to strangers every Sunday without orders of admission.

The Louvre has acquired a monument said to be unique in France, and of great interest in relation to the ancient manufacture of Limoges enamels. The monument represents Blanche de Champagne, wife of Jean, first Duke of Brittany, who died towards the end of the fourteenth century. The statue is recumbent, with joined hands, like most of the figures of the time. What renders the statue of peculiar interest is that it was executed by Limoges enamellers of the fifteenth century. The whole is composed of numerous copper plaques worked in repoussé and fixed with nails on a wooden model. In certain parts the plaques are broken away, and thereby reveal the methods of fabrication employed by the artist-workmen. The statue was preserved in the ancient abbey of Hennebont, in Brittany.

The second annual exhibition in New York of drawings and sketches in water colours or simply black and white will be held, under the direction of the council of the National Academy, on Dec. 1. Works intended for exhibition must be sent to the Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly, on Nov. 3 and 4.

Mr. Henry Bright, a landscape-painter of considerable repute, died recently at Ipswich. He was born at Saxmundham, in Suffolk, in 1814. The first part of his art-education was acquired, while he was principally employed as a dispensing chemist, from the Norwich school of painters—Crome, Cotman, Stark, Vincent, the elder Ladbroke, &c., among whom circumstances placed him early in life. Before long, however, he came to London and devoted himself exclusively to art. On one of his numerous Continental sketching trips he made the acquaintance of J. M. W. Turner, and an intimacy arose which subsisted till the death of the latter. Mr. Bright's landscapes are often remarkable for their sky effects: he excelled also in crayon drawings, and he was very successful as a teacher. He had resided at Ipswich a few years before his death.

Lord Leigh opened, on Monday, an exhibition of art and industry at Rugby, containing some fine specimens of the old masters, and in his address referred to the great benefits which had accrued to art and manufactures in this country from the Prince Consort's inauguration of such exhibitions. Mr. Newdegate, M.P., indorsed Lord Leigh's remarks. Art and industry, he observed, are to-day most happily combined. Art is the luxury of the intellect, and needs to be tempered by the exhibition of industry. Good taste, it has been observed, is good sense applied to little things, and the combination of the products of art and industry is honourable and gratifying to humanity. The possessors of art-treasures are fortunate in living in an age in which they can be exhibited without cost or risk, and thus afford enjoyment to those who, in other times, must have been deprived of that stimulus to good-fellowship which such exhibitions afford.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Oct. 6.

Some idea of the magnitude of the Austrian display at the Vienna Exhibition may be gained from the fact that not only have eight transversal galleries and fully one half of the eastern nave been set aside for her prodigious show, but that she occupies considerable space in the rotunda as well, besides many courts which have been covered in, and innumerable annexes that have been erected in the park with the view of housing one or other branch of her products or her industry. One long gallery is reserved exclusively for billiard-tables and pianofortes, both remarkable for their elegant shapes and rich ornamentation; and the latter especially noticeable for their rich, melodious tones and finely-graduated shades of expression. The best are those displayed by Herren Streicher, Erbar, Bosendorfer, and Promberger, the first named of whom exhibits a grand piano which, in point of brilliancy and sonority, and general excellence of construction, is entitled to be ranked among instruments of the very highest class. The handsome billiard-tables come from the establishments of Knill, Seifert, Pezosta, and Zigula; but it is worthy of remark that in many instances the ornamental design seems to interfere with the comfort of the player.

Endless examples are displayed of that bent wood furniture for which Austria is so celebrated, principally chairs of beech-wood, cut into long pieces and bent by steaming them into the sometimes eccentric but generally graceful forms so many varieties of which are here presented to the visitor. The method of construction is simple enough. The ordinary chair has one piece for the back and back legs, one for the seat, one for a circular uniting bar, and two more for the front legs, the various pieces being solidly screwed together with pins and nuts. Some most elaborate specimens of twisted woodwork are exposed at Herren Thonet's stall, but the principle of construction remains the same. Among other Austrian exhibits of furniture one notices some extremely beautiful prie-dieu and trip-tiches by Leimer, the counterparts of those he displayed at Paris in 1867. Next come Kolt, Trem, and Levehemelder, with their elegant console and buhl tables; Callobia and Kreutzell, with their superb marqueterie; Kitchel, with his handsome iron bedsteads; Kramer, with his elaborately-carved walnut furniture; and Schenzel, with his highly-ornamental suites of chairs and sofas. In the Austrian nave are some magnificent carved bedsteads with the richest of hangings, offering charming harmonies and contrasts of colour, and other articles of furniture pertaining to the chamber a coucher, that are at once richly elegant and exquisitely graceful.

The Austrian display of plate and jewellery is, as I have already had occasion to remark, one of the finest of the Exhibition. At the entry of the Austrian glass court stands the resplendent stall of Lobmeyer, whose dessert services, with their epergnes and candelabra formed of a combination of silver and glass, are remarkably beautiful both in point of design and execution. His white flint glass, in a great variety of forms, is also in excellent taste and of admirable manufacture. Among the leading exhibitors of jewellery come Kockert, with his classical diamond coronets and handsome black pearl brooches; Michael Goldschmidt, with his priceless parures of diamonds and emeralds, and gorgeous birds of paradise in rubies and brilliants; Mayer Sons, with their Renaissance opal diadems and wreaths of diamond flowers; Hueber Sons, with their sprays of flashing vine-leaves and cascades of pearls; and Grohmann, with his regal Bohemian rubies. Austrian gold and silver plate industry is worthily represented by Klenbosch, Bohm, Hanausch, and Dziedzinski, whose surtouts and epergnes are of most artistic design and the perfection of manufacture.

Passing along the eastern nave one perceives in a recess on the right hand an elegant little pavilion, hung with blue silk and lighted by a stained-glass roof, in the centre of which one finds a loty fountain, ornamented with garlands of flaxen fruit and flowers and adorned with bobbins and balls of twine. The water is successfully imitated by the flax which hangs over the upper basin, and streams, as it were, from the open mouths of the lions' heads which ornament the base of this singular structure, which is surmounted by a figure of Penelope bearing her distaff in her hand and patiently awaiting the return of the absent Ulysses. The Austrian section abounds, so to say, with eccentric trophies. In the rotunda a Corinthian temple, nearly twenty feet in height, made exclusively of stearine and wax candles, has been erected by the province of Styria; while in one of the transverse galleries will be found the statue of an ancient goddess of the Alemanni, cut or carved in cocoa-nut oil soap. Close at hand are saponaceous figures of Moravia and the goddess Flora, and a short way off a model of the lantern of Diogenes executed in white curd soap. Perched on a mock rock of mottled soap, and lying on a crimson cushion with gilt tassels, is a colossal Imperial crown, while at the further end of the same gallery will be found an ancient Roman wall, with appropriate buttresses and mouldings, built entirely of turf, and partially overgrown with artificial moss and ivy. Entering the clothing section, where the Viennese and provincial tailors have a profuse display, one is struck by a handsome case, from the top of which huge black and white bears, with extended fore-paws, grin ferociously at every passer-by; while below recline stuffed tigers and leopards guarding the raiments of fur which are exhibited behind the glass panes. Black foxes are to be seen climbing up the columns of the stall; others, which have already reached the top, peering over the summit in imitation of the observant bears.

In another section of the clothing department will be found a remarkably curious show of Dalmatian and Gallician costumes, which, being hung on poles with cross-pieces, look at a distance like so many men and women. "This distance lends enchantment to the view," however, and, on approaching nearer, one discovers that there are no heads beneath the various Astrakan and other caps which surmount the poles on which the various garments are hung. The latter are for the most part of a masculine character, and consist of long cloaks and tight breeches covered with elaborate embroidery, short jackets with a profusion of buttons, baggy trousers with capacious pockets, coarsely-made shoes, and brilliantly-polished high-heeled boots. Some of the specimens of feminine attire that are to be seen here are richly embroidered with coloured braids and gold and silver cords, but the majority are quiet and simple.

Wertheim's iron safes, of which several specimens will be found in the Austrian court, enjoy a very high reputation, not merely in Austria, but all over the Continent. Their manufacturer, Baron von Wertheim, is at the head of one of the largest Viennese industrial establishments, and supplies the trade annually with upwards of 20,000 fireproof safes, the patent-safety locks of which are remarkably ingenious. He has also a very extensive display of edge-tools, not far from which will be found a coloured view of the Danube and the new Vienna, displayed by the Imperial Commission, for the regulation of the course of the great Austrian stream. Aware of the splendid position occupied by Vienna, which lies close to the banks of the deep and voluminous Danube, Francis Joseph and his advisers have long favoured the scheme of converting the Austrian capital into a great commercial centre. For this purpose it has been proposed to amend the course of the river, to build a splendid suburb on its banks, with wharves, and docks, and entrepôts, and to construct innumerable barges and vessels, with the view of turning this natural channel of communication between Central Germany, Southern Europe, and the East into good account. The produce of Russia, Asia, Turkey, and the Danubian provinces would then be sent in large quantities to Vienna, which could not fail to become one of the greatest commercial marts of the world.

Discontent prevails among British exhibitors who have been awarded medals for progress at the note prefixed to the official list of prizes issued by the British Commission, which quotes an obsolete resolution of the President's council setting forth that all the medals were to have the same rank and value. They complain that no such note prefaces the official list of awards published by the Imperial Commission from which the British list was compiled. This is, indeed, not to be wondered at, considering that subsequent to the resolution above mentioned the Austrian Exhibition authorities accepted the unanimous decision of the jurors of the twenty-six classes to the effect that medals for progress were to rank next to diplomas of honour, and medals for merit after medals for progress. In this light all the other commissions have regarded them.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of the Right Hon. Elizabeth Mary, Lady Byron, who died, on Aug. 20, at Kirkby Mallory, Leicestershire, was proved, on the 25th ult., by the Hon. and Rev. Augustus Byron and the Hon. and Rev. William Byron, the sons of the deceased, the executors, the personalty being sworn under £5000. The testatrix leaves legacies to her daughters, and the residue she gives to her said two sons.

The confirmation under seal of the Commissariat of Wigton, dated Sept. 17, 1873, of the will and codicil of the Right Hon. Randolph, Earl of Galloway, Baron Stewart of Garlies, was sealed at the Principal Registry, London, on the 3rd inst., the personal effects in England and Scotland being sworn under £40,000. The deceased died at Galloway House, Wigtonshire, Jan. 2 last. The accepting executor-nominate is Sir Walter Rockliffe Farquhar, Bart.

The will of the late Francis Caesar Braun, of Holly Lodge, West Derby, near Liverpool, who died at his estate, near Kington, on the Rhine, has been proved by his brother-in-law, Philip Blessig, and Augustus F. Brandt, the trustees and executors therein named, the personalty in this country being sworn under £300,000. The testator, by his will, after giving certain annuities, devises and bequeaths all his property, both in this country and abroad, to his trustees and executors upon trust to divide it equally between all his children.

The will of Mrs. Sarah Robinson, formerly of The Boltons, Brompton, but late of No. 44, Phillimore-gardens, Kensington, was proved, on the 26th ult., by Michael Wills and Nathaniel Warner Bromley, the acting executors, the personalty being sworn under £60,000. The testator bequeaths the residue of her property as her sister, Lucy Hutchison, shall appoint, and, in default of and until such appointment, to the said Lucy Hutchison for life, and at her death to her nieces, Eliza and Caroline Hutchison.

The will of Lieutenant-General Arthur Cunliffe Pole, Colonel of the 63rd Regiment, who died at his residence, Oxford-terrace, Hyde Park, Aug. 21, was proved, on the 23rd ult., by Philippa Maria Pole (the relict) and Edward Septimus Codd, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator leaves to his widow a legacy of £500, and to Mr. Codd £100; and bequeaths the residue of his property upon trust for his wife for life, and at her death to his three children, Arthur Charles Pole, Florence Amy Cole, and Philippa Matilda Pole.

The will of Thomas Buck, of Bradford, Yorkshire, was proved, at the District Registry, Wakefield, on Aug. 25, by Joseph Hill and Edward Hirst Wade, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testator bequeaths to the Bradford Eye and Ear Infirmary £250; to the Bradford Tradesmen's Benevolent Institution, the Bradford Infirmary and Dispensary, and the Bradford Fever Hospital or House of Recovery, £500 each; and to Crossley's Orphanage, Halifax, £2000, all free of legacy duty. Subject to various other legacies and annuities, testator gives the residue of his personalty to his son Charles Frederick; he also gives him all his real estate.

The will and codicil of Mr. Edward Gosnell, late of No. 18, St. Mary's-road, Canonbury, Islington, was proved, on the 19th ult., by John Kaye and Edward Gosnell (the son), the acting executors, the personalty being sworn under £40,000. The testator gives to his wife a residence and his furniture absolutely, and the income of £6000 for life; the residue he bequeaths to his children.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* * All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the Illustrated London News," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.
R. D. B., M.A., and others.—In Problem No. 1543 we certainly do not see why mate should not be given as well by R takes P, K, as by 1. K to Q 4th.
R. D. T.; H. H. Barker; J. L. Shoberness; G. M. Brody.—Is it possible you can fail to see that, in Problem 1542, if Black take the Kt or Queen, White gives checkmate next move? As a mate in one move is too profound for you, try the following:—White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
Black: K to Q 3rd, B to K sq, P to K Kt 7th, K B 2nd, and Q 4th.
In this position, according to the composer, White mates without making a move! Mr. Shoberness, of Michigan.—K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th and Q R 5th, P to Q 6th, Q Kt 7th, and Q R 7th.
White: K to K 3rd, Q to Q Kt 4th, B to K 4th, Kt to K B 5th

NEW MUSIC.

THE NEW NATIONAL SONG, LET
the HILLS RESOUND. Words by L. H. F. du Terraux.
Music by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Second great success of Mr. Brinley Richards.—Graphic. 3s.; free by post 18 stamps.
Piano Solo and Duet, 24 stamps each. Four Part Song 12 stamps.
Class copy, 4 stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

MUSIC for the COLONIES.—The EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE OF THEORETICAL, ELE-MENTARY, and STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS, containing extensive and complete tables of contents of instruction books for voice, piano, violin, violoncello, flute, organ, &c., gratis and postage free of the Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

THE LADIES' GUIDE to the most POPULAR MUSIC only of the day (Vocal and Instrumental), carefully selected from some thousands of works issued by the London Publishers. Gratis and postage free.—London: Published only by ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

ALL SHEET MUSIC at HALF the MARKED PRICE, post-free, both their own and the publications of other houses. Payments may be made in postage stamps.
Apply for "The Ladies' Guide" the most popular music of the day. Sent gratis.—London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.,
New Burlington-street.

MENDELSSOHN'S SCOTCH SYMPHONY.
REMINISCENCES for the PIANOFORTE.—"Mr. Geo. F.
West has succeeded in producing a sterling transcription of Mendelsohn's Scotch Symphony, which all lovers of classical music will find with gratification."—Vide the Graphic. "Mr. West has accomplished his task reverently and well."—Vide Orchestra. 4s.; post-free for 24 stamps.—London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

HIGH-CLASS MUSIC, for Students and others.—To be had, gratis and postage free, a LIST of 400
CLASSICAL WORKS, bound, at greatly reduced prices.—London:
Published only by ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

FAVOURITE SCOTTISH MELODIES, transcribed for the PIANOFORTE by GEO. F. WEST. Four Books,
4s. each; post-free at half price in stamps.
Book 1. Scots wha hae and Bonnie Dundee.
Book 2. Logie of Buchanan and Wha wadna fecht?
Book 3. Auld Lang Syne and A No. 1. d. d.
Book 4. Comin' Thro' the Rye and The Campbells are Coming.
London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ELEGANT SOLOS for the PIANOFORTE.
By GEO. F. WEST. Post-free at half price in stamps.
The Last Rose of Summer. 4s. Weber's Last Waltz. 4s.
Black-Eyed Susan and the Girl I left behind me. 4s.
Pray Godly, and be dear, what can the matter be? 4s.
The Thorn (shield). 4s.
God Save the Queen. 3s.
London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street. Order everywhere.

UNDER THE MISTLETOE. Juvenile
Quadrille on Popular Melodies. By CHARLES GODFREY.
Very pretty and very easy; just the thing for juvenile players.
The illustrated title-page is exceedingly good.—Orchestra.
Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

THE MERRY MONTH OF MAY. Song or Duet. By W. C. LEVEY. Sung with immense success in "Antony and Cleopatra," at Drury-Lane Theatre. Sent for 2s.
DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

MISS BANKS'S GREAT SONG in
"Antony and Cleopatra." THE MAY SONG. By W. C.
LEVEY, sung at Drury-Lane Theatre by Miss Banks. Sent for 2s.
DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

CIRO PINSUTI'S MOST SUCCESSFUL
SONGS.
A Little Cloud. 4s. I Love my Love. In A flat and Fy Fy Fy, O Gentle Dove. 4s. B flat. 4s.
The Girl. In E and G. 4s.
DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S BEST NEW SONGS.
Would You be a Sailor's Wife? O, Willie, boy, come home. 4s.
Paasing Ship. In A and C. 4s.
Half price.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT for NICOLE
FERRES' celebrated Instruments. A very choice selection of Boxes, playing the most popular Airs. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and post-free.—11 and 13, Cornhill, London.

WATCHES.—GOLDSMITHS'
ALLIANCE, Limited, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements, and maintaining power to continue going whilst being wound, recommended for accuracy and durability. Every Watch is warranted.
PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds .. £14 6 6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped 8 8 0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes 8 8 0
Silver Watch, in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.
GOLD WATCHES.—SIZE FOR LADIES.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled .. 11 11 0
Ditto, with richly engraved case, and jewelled in four holes .. 12 12 0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in six holes .. 14 14 0
GOLD WATCHES.—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, seconds, and capped .. 13 13 0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance .. 18 18 0
Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.
List of Prices, with Remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

ORODE (Holt's, Registered).—Alberts,
4s. 6d.; Shirt Bands, 2s.; Fencilcases, 3s. 6d.; Scarf Rings,
2s. 6d.; Scarf Rings, 2s. 6d.; White Rings, 3s. 6d.; Cluster Rings,
7s. 6d.; Snake Rings, 3s. 6d.; Links, 2s. Illustrated list free.
W. HOLT, 36, All Saints-road, Westbourne Park, London, W.

MARIE STUART and DONCASTER,
10s. each, with Jockey, beautifully coloured, 2s. by 24. The First Issue is now ready. Also, all the Derby Winners.
GEO. REES, 41, Russell-street, Covent-garden.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—Anyone can take good Photographs with DUBONNET'S Patent Apparatus. No previous knowledge required. No dark room wanted. Complete and portable apparatus from 2s. Book of Instruction, four stamps per post.—LECHERTER, BARRE, and CO., 60, Regent-street, London.

PHOTOGRAPHS.
PORTRAITS OF PEOPLE.
LANDSCAPE VIEWS and STUDIES OF NATURE.
COPIES OF PICTURES and SCULPTURE Ancient and Modern.
MARION and CO., 22 and 23, Boho-square, London.
COLLECTIONS OF PHOTOGRAPHS, &c., collated and portfolioed, or bound into volumes, so as to open quick flat. Photographs Mounted, Titled, and Lists on application to Publishing Department.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, at RODRIGUES'S, the new make, with Patent Leather Guards, Four Portraits on a Page, interviewed for Vignettes and Cabinet Portraits, from 10s. 6d. to 50s. Albums of every description made to order.—43, Piccadilly.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES'S, 43, Piccadilly, London.
Dressing Bags, 4s. to 6s. 6d. Despatch Boxes, 12s. to 21s.
Dressing Cases, 12s. to 21s. Envelope Cases, 12s. to 21s.
Jewel Cases, 12s. to 21s. Blotting Books, 12s. to 21s.
Inkstands, 12s. to 21s. Card Trays, 12s. to 21s.
Handkerchief Boxes, 10s. to 12s. Candlesticks, per pair, 12s. to 21s.
Flower Vases, 12s. to 21s. Card Trays, 12s. to 21s.
Writing Table Sets, of new and elegant designs, 12s. 6d. to 21s.
Rodrigue's 10-guinea silver-fitted Travelling Dressing Bags,
Rodrigue's 10-guinea Ladies' Dressing Case, silver fitted.
And a Large and Choice Assortment of English, French, and Austrian Novelties, suitable for Presents from 5s. to 21s.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use
"The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. Certificate from Dr. Vermann on every bottle, with full particulars. Ask any Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," prepared by H. C.
GALLUP, 498, Oxford-street, London.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR, TEETH, and COMPLEXION.—BOWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL preserves strength and beautifies the Human Hair, and is the only preparation which is entirely free from noxious ingredients; 2s. 6d., 7s., and 10s. 6d. family bottles, equal to four small. BOWLAND'S KALYDOE is purifiable and beautifies the Complexion, eradicates all spots, and is invaluable to ladies. BOWLAND'S ODONTO whitens and preserves the Teeth, prevents and arrests their decay, and is the only Dentifice that can be relied on; 2s. 6d. per box, of all Chemists.

FURNISHING EXHIBITION.—Visitors to London should INSPECT the EXTENSIVE DISPLAY of DECORATIVE ARTICLES of every description for the complete Furnishing of a House of any class, with a view to artistic taste combined with utility. The goods are conveniently arranged in separate departments, all communicating, and visitors are conducted through the spacious Show-Rooms and Galleries without the slightest im-portunity to purchase. Lowest prices consistent with guarantee quality.
OTTSMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, and 73, Tottenham-court-road (near Tottenham-court-road and Lower-street station). Established 1848.
A detailed Catalogue, the best furnishing guide extant, post-free.
The establishment is visible from Tottenham-court-road.
OTTSMANN and CO.

ESTIMATES for HOUSE FURNISHING.
OTTSMANN and CO.'S System for Estimating the Cost of completely Furnishing a House of any class with every requisite of utility. See "A Guide to House Furnishing," sent post-free on application. All goods are very carefully packed free of charge. This system will be found the most advantageous to the purchaser.—OTTSMANN and CO.

FURNITURE DEPARTMENT.
ELEGANT DRAWING-ROOM SUITES, handsomely carved Italian walnut-wood, covered in rich damask, from 5s.; superior ditto, in repa, mahogany, silk, brocade, &c., from 10s. to 50s. 6d.; Dining-Room Suites, in solid mahogany, 8s.; fine Spanish mahogany ditto, upholstered in best maroon leather, 14s.; handsome double-gilt Chippendale Glass, large size, 5s.; elegant Cabinets, inlaid burl and gilt mountings, from 2s. 6d. upwards; Chiffoniers, Sideboards, &c. Dining Tables, from 12s. 6d. upwards. An immense assortment to select from.—OTTSMANN and CO.

OTTSMANN and CO.'S BEDDING, manufactured on the Premises. Work warranted. Only best materials used. Excellent mattresses, full size, 12s. 6d. upwards; Feather Beds, from 30s. upwards; Iron Bedsteads, from 6s. 6d.;
superior Iron Bedsteads, from 12s. 6d.; superior iron bedsteads, size of plate 16 by 12, 6s. 6d.; 3ft. Mahogany Washstand, with marble top, 12s. 6d.; Drawers, Wardrobes, &c.

OTTSMANN and CO.'S PATENT
MATTRESS, the "Compendium," requires no other Mattress, Pallasse, or Bed to be used with it, and is at once the healthiest, softest, most economical and complete Bed extant. Descriptive Catalogue post-free.—OTTSMANN and CO.

CARPETS.—OTTSMANN and CO.
CARPETS!
CARPETS!
CARPETS!
Without exception the largest and best assortment in London to select from. O. and CO. have upwards of 150 pieces of Brussels, different patterns, now on sale in their carpet warehouse, besides an immense variety in the Show-Room. Members of Co-operative Supply Associations are invited to inspect our stock and compare prices.

MADRID STRIPED CURTAINS, all Wool
3 yards long by 48 inches wide, 15s. per pair; 2 1/2 yards
17s. 6d.; 4 yards, 20s.; best Worsted Damask Curtains, in green, crimson, or any self colour, plaited top, bordered all round with best embroidered silk lace, 3 yards long by 51 inches wide, 20s. per pair; 2 1/2 yards, 20s.; 4 yards, 20s.; best repa ditto, 3 yards by 54 inches wide, 22s.; 2 1/2 yards, 20s.; 4 yards, 22s. 6d. Forwarded same day on receipt of order. One trial will insure recommendation.
No common damask or repa used, sold, or advised. Descriptive List post-free.—OTTSMANN and CO.

FURNISHING IRONMONGERY
DEPARTMENT.—Strong Branded Fenders, from 1s. 6d. each; ditto, circular ends, with standards, from 3s. 6d.; ditto, very handsome, 5s. 6d.; Firebricks, from 1s. 6d.; per dozen; ditto, ditto, 4s. 6d. and 7s. 6d.; Japanned Oval Tea-Trays, 3s. 11d. per set of three,
16in., 24in., and 30in.; Teapots; warranted Table Cutlery, best Electro-plate (durability guaranteed); Coal Bases, Dish Covers, Japanned Toilet Baskets, &c.; Kitchen and Dining Room Ware of every description; Mats, Matting, Brooms, Brushes, Pails, &c.
OTTSMANN and CO.

OTTSMANN and CO.'S ELECTRO-
SILVER PLATE, the best quality manufactured, and durability guaranteed. Spoons, forks, knives, fish carvers, tea and coffee sets, uria, waiters, cake baskets, biscuit boxes, cruet, liqueurs, mugs, tankards, sporting cups, dish covers, plate covers, &c.; also a large assortment of Table Cutlery, warranted best steel. Price List post-free. Orders for Electro Plate or Cutlery of 25 upwards carriage-free to any railway station in the kingdom.

CHINA and GLASS DEPARTMENT.
Superior cut-glass Tumblers, 3s. 6d. per dozen; Wines, 2s. 6d.; richly cut Decanters, 7s. 6d. per pair; Lustres, Vases (the 5s. pair of Vases are a marvel of cheapness and elegance), Marble and Gilt Ornamental Clocks, Brackets, Etc., &c.; Fine Porcelain Figures;
Cases of Stuffed Birds; Wax Flowers under glass shades, handsome China Flower Pots, Jardinières, &c.; China Tea Services, from 5s. 6d.; elegant ditto, 12s. 6d.; Ironstone China Dinner Services, in great variety of patterns, from 17s. 6d. upwards. Despatch Services from 11s. 6d. Delivery for Delivery and Co.'s celebrated Ware; also for best Worcester China. Handsome Toilet Sets, ewer, basin, &c., 6s. 11d. per set; superb ditto, 10s. 6d.—OTTSMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, Tottenham-court-road, three minutes' walk from Tottenham-court-road and Lower-street station, Metropolitan Railway. All Goods sent carefully packed. A detailed Catalogue post-free on application.
OTTSMANN and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.
FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.
FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.
FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.
FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE.—MAPLE & CO.—Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders. A Ten-roomed House furnished complete in twenty-four hours. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road, London.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.
BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.
BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE & CO.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE & CO.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE & CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE & CO.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE & CO.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE & CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE & CO.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE & CO.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE & CO.

CABINET FURNITURE of every description and style for Dining, Drawing, Library, and Bed Rooms.—FILLER and SON, Upholsterers and Decorators, 31 and 33, Berners-street, W.

EASY-CHAIRS and SOFAS.
HOWARD and SONS, Manufacturers, solicit an inspection of their Stock, which is of the most varied description.
25, 26, and 27, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.
S I E S D E L U K
HOWARD'S PATENT.
The most luxurious seats possible.
Show-Rooms—25, 26, and 27, Berners-street, London, W.
Howard and Sons.

MAPPIN BROTHERS, Manufacturers
of
SILVER PLATE
Tea and Coffee Services.
Tea Trays and Waiters.
Spoons and Forks.
Dishes and Dish Covers.
Spergins, Fruit Stands,
&c., &c.
The Stock they keep in London, at 67 and 68, King William-street
London Bridge, also at 220, Regent-street, W., is very large and well assorted, being all of first-class quality and design. It is sent direct from their own Works, at Baker's-hill, in Sheffield. Illustrated Catalogue sent free by post.
Address 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge; or, 220
Regent-street, W. Established A.D. 1810 at Sheffield.

GASELINES, in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze, Medial Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D HULST and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

RUSSIAN SEAL FUR JACKETS.
PETER ROBINSON has now ready for inspection an immense Stock of the above named Jackets, in all sizes, and in loose and Fitting Shapes, both Plain and Trimmed. Prices range from 10s. to 30s. 6d.
Other Seal Furs from 5s.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

WATERPROOF MANTLES,
thoroughly Waterproofed, and in every way suitable for seaside wear and for travelling, in a variety of New Shapes, and in all the New and Fashionable Tweeds, both in plain colours and all the favourite mixtures.
25s. 6d. to 50s.
The GUINEA WATERPROOF, with or without Sleeves, in all the grey mixtures, both light and dark.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

AUTUMN JACKETS.
First delivery of New Goods for the present season, consisting of Velvet Jackets very richly trimmed, varying in price from 5s. to 10s. 6d.; and a large collection of high Novelties in Black and Coloured Cloth Jackets, handsomely trimmed. Prices range from 2s. to 5s.
Books and Sheets illustrating the Fashion for this season are in course of preparation.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

SPECIAL SILK NOTICE.
Black ground Silks, with floral designs .. 2 1/2 yds. for 14 yards.
Chene Silks suitable for Dinner .. 2 1/2 yds. for 14 yards.
Wear at about half price.
English Moire Antiques of the best manufacture .. 2 1/2 yds. for 14 yards.
Grassie Striped Silks, especially .. 2 1/2 yds. for 14 yards.
The above special lots are unusually cheap.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

REGISTERED NOVELTY FOR LADIES' DRESSES.
RUSSIAN CORDED POPLIN (Wool).
A special purchase of this charming Fabric, amounting to 1000 pieces, now ready, in all the new shades of Bronze, Violet, &c.
Alpaca, Recede, Navy, Ardone, Green, Blue, &c.; also in Black, at 21s. 6d. the Extra Full Dress.—Patterns free.

ALSO, IN ALL THE ABOVE COLOURS.
THE RUSSIAN POPLIN COSTUME, ready for Wear, £2 9s. 6d. to 3s. 9s., elegantly made, according to the latest Paris Models. Several hundred always in stock.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

FOR AUTUMN OR TRAVELLING DRESSES.
RUSSIAN and INVERARY TWEEDS.
In rich Heather Mixtures, Iron Greys, Recede, Bronze,
Violet des Alpes, &c., from 12s. 6d. to 30s. the Dress.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London, W.

FOR AUTUMN OR TRAVELLING DRESSES.
SILK TERRY POPLIN.
Popeline d'Hiver, Drap Vierge, Drap d'Italie, and many other Novelties suitable for the present and approaching Season, 21s. to 4s. the Dress.

FOR AUTUMN DRESSES.
YEDDO POPLIN.—ALL WOOL.
A special purchase, amounting to upwards of 2000 pieces, of this charming Fabric, beautifully soft, well adapted for the present and approaching season.
12s. 6d. the Dress (Patterns free). In Black and 45 shades of Colours.
Specially prepared for PETER ROBINSON, 103, Oxford-street.

IN WHITE, BLACK, AND ALL COLOURS.
VELVET—FINISHED VELVETEENS.
Beautifully Soft Velvet Tulle, Past Black, and in Recede, Bronze, Violet, Green, Blue, &c.,
2s. 6d. to 4s. 9d. per yard, very wide.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street,
London, W.

The "Leather" Make of Reversible
YOKOHAMA SILK, in Autumn Colours.
This splendid novelty in White, Black, and all new Colours, including Ciel d'Italie, Bleu du Shah, Violet des Alpes, Vert Oxide, Vert de Tint, Gris d'Argent, Ardone Fonce, &c., is 46 in. wide, 2s. 6d. to 3 1/2 yds. the Dress, being made expressly for, can be obtained only from.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.
Patterns free.

FOR EVENING, DINNER, OR WALKING DRESSES.
RICH JAPANESE SILKS.
In White, Black, and forty six Shades of Colour, including the new Bronze, Vert de Tint, Violet des Alpes, Creme de la Creme, Cerise, Corail, &c., 2s. 6d. the Dress, or 2s. 4d. per yard.
These goods are all of the highest quality. Patterns free.
Tulle, TARTAN, MUSLIN, OR GRENADINE.
MADE WEDDING and BALL DRESSES.
Now ready, several hundred Robes, new Designs in White,
Black, and all Colours, from 12s. 6d. to 20s.
The "Dora," a most charming dress, with Pinner, Flounces, and a special trained skirt. 1 guinea—a substantial box included.
The Book of New Illustrations for this season post-free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

NEW GOODS FROM PARIS.
PETER ROBINSON has now ready for inspection,
at his MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
a choice selection of very beautiful Mantles,
Silk and Material Costumes, Polonaises,
Millinery, Flowers, Confections, and
Fashionable Novelties,
which his Buyers have secured from the leading House.
The Court Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street, London.

RUSSIAN SEAL FUR JACKETS.
New Shapes,
trimmed with a variety of Choice Furs,
at moderate Prices.
PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street.

A GOOD BLACK SILK for £3 10s. the Dress of 14 yards (Devoe's).
PETER ROBINSON, 256, Regent-street, W.
For a Pattern direct to Regent-street, as above.

SUPERIOR BLACK SILKS at
PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE.
Peter Robinson has now on Sale
some very rich Black Silks purchased in Lyons
very advantageously.

Excellent Black Gros Grains at 2s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard,
and Glaces or 7s. to 8s. the Dress.
And Superior and most ex- at 2s. to 12s. 6d. per yard, during qualities or 2s. 6d. to 3s. 10s. the Dress.
Also Shades in Greys, Slates, Mauves, Whites, &c., equally cheap.
"If a Whole Piece is taken, a further reduction will be made."
Address for Patterns as above.—256, Regent-street, London.

URGENT MOURNING.
"ON RECEIPT OF LETTER or TELEGRAM."
MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England on approval—no matter the distance—
with an excellent fitting Dressmaker (if required).
PETER ROBINSON'S GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256, Regent-street, London.
Funerals Furnished on a moderate scale.

MOURNING FOR FAMILIES,
IN CORRECT TASTE,
can be purchased at PETER ROBINSON'S, 256, Regent-street, at a great saving in price.

SKIRTS, in New
Mourning Fabrics, 45s. to 5s.
Trimmed crapes.

SUPERIOR CRAPE.—Special Qualities,
that will not spot with rain.
at PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256, Regent-street.

FROM ROUBAIX.—New Goods for the Autumn Season.
In Black and various novel textures, from 12s. 6d. the Dress upwards,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street.

VERY STYLISH COSTUMES, from 2s.
Elegant Bonnets and Hats, from 12s. 6d. Stylish Mantles and Polonaises, from 1 guinea.—Madame ELLIOT, 5, Great Portland-street, Regent-street.

LOSS OF LIFE or LIMB, with the consequent LOSS OF TIME and MONEY,
provided for by a policy of the
RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY.
Office—44, Cornhill; and 10, Regent-street.
WILLIAM J. VILAS, Secretary.

THE GRANVILLE HOTEL,
ST. LAWRENCE-SEA.
Barracks the nearest station on the line. One of the most elegant, comfortable, and convenient Hotels in the kingdom.
Hydrographic, Turkish, Italian, Russian, and other Baths in the Hotel. Table d'Hôte daily.

DUTCH FLOWER ROOTS.—DANIELS
BROS. 40s. CASH contains 60 Hyacinths, choice named and mixed; 400 Crocus, in four colours; 48 Tulips, double and single;
36 Anemones, choice double and single; 48 Ranunculi, 16 Jonquils, 16 double white sweet Narcissus, 24 Iris, 24 Polyanthus Narcissus, 16 Bellas, 16 Tulips. Half the above quantity quarter ditto, 11s. 6d., with full cultural directions. One set package included, and carriage-free on receipt of P.O.O.
Daniels Bros., Seed and Bulb Merchants, Exchange-street, Norwich.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING.
E P P S'S COCOA.
BREAKFAST.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast-table with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette.
"MANUFACTURE OF COCOA."—We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Boston-road, London.
See article in Cassell's Household Guide.
Made simply with boiling water or milk.
Sold by Grocers in packets only, labelled JAMES EPPS and CO., MANUFACTURERS OF THE "GRATEFUL-COMFORTING" COCOA, 170, Piccadilly,
45, Threadneedle-street, and 170, Piccadilly.
Works for Dietetic Preparations, Eastern-road, London.
Agents in New York.—Borwick and Telford, 415, Grand-street.
Paris.—Kohler, Place Vendôme; Davidson, 64, Faubourg St. Honoré.
EPPS'S GLYCERINE JUJUBES for Throat Irritation.

IF YOU VALUE YOUR HEALTH, USE
BRAGG'S PURE VEGETABLE CHARCOAL.
It is recommended by the highest medical men of the day, and sold by all Chemists, in Bottles, 2s. 6d., and 4s. each, and by J. L.
Bragg, 14, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square, London, W.

INDIGESTION.
The Medical Profession adopt
MORSON'S PREPARATION OF PEPERIN
Sold as Wine, in bottles, from 2s.; Lozenges, in boxes, from 2s. 6d.; Globules, in bottles, from 2s.; and as Powder, in 1-lb.
bottles, at 2s. each, by all Chemists and the Manufacturers, Thomas Morson and Sons, 134, Southampton-row, W.C. London.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACH'S PATENT
GALVANIC CHAIN-BELTS, BELTS, BATTERIES, &c.
RECENTLY IMPROVED.

Approved by the Academy of Medicine at Paris and other Medical authorities in London and abroad.
This Self-Applicable Physical Curative is of an efficacy
vastly superior to all other external remedies.
Owing to the physiological, physical, and chemical effect of the electric current, these apparatuses exert an internal action, promoting the digestion, circulation, and nutrition, thereby restoring Nature in her efforts to restore the normal action of health and vigor in a debilitated constitution.
Hence the rapid and permanent effect of these self-applicable
Batteries, in Head & Tooth Ache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Indigestion, General and Local Debility, Liver Complaint, Paralysis, Nervous Debility, Functional Disorders, &c.
after all other remedies have failed, and the popularity Electricity in London and abroad, and the popularity
the medical and scientific press.
Recent improvements in these appliances by the inventor render their self-application extremely comfortable and effective, and these remedies former incurable cases.
Medical and scientific extracts, and a selection of the daily increasing number of Testimonials, together with Processes, are embodied in pamphlet, "Nature's Chief Remedy of Incurable Vital Energy," sent post-free on application to the sole Inventor and Patentee.

J. L. PULVERMACH,
GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
104, REGENT-STREET, LONDON, W.

WATER CUSHIONS for INVALIDS
(HOOPER'S), affording instant relief from pressure, and effectually preventing bed-sores by their soft, uniform, and elasticity.
Illustrated price-list free by post.—Hooper, Manufacturer of Water Mattresses and Water Cushions to the Queen, 7, Pall-mall East, W.; and at 85, Grosvenor-street, W.

A LADY, HAVING A RECIPE
of a most simple nature, that will at once rid you of SUPERFLUOUS HAIR, preventing their growth, and will have pleasure in forwarding it upon application to MRS. BLANCHILL, Warwood Villa, Thornton Heath, Surrey.</

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1781.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1873.

WITH
EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

THE ASHANTEE WAR: THE MARKET-PLACE AT COOMASSIE.

BIRTHS.

On the 16th inst., at 50, Grosvenor-street, W., Lady Augusta Stuart, of a daughter.

On the 16th inst., the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 8th inst., at St. Marylebone Church, Viscount Walden to Julia, daughter of Keith Stewart Mackenzie, of Seaforth.

On April 19, at St. James's Church, Sydney, N.S.W., by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Sydney, William Hogarth, of Balgownie, Queensland, to Ann Cunningham, eldest daughter of Robert R. C. Robertson, of Wellington Vale, New England.

On the 16th inst., at Quiddenden, Norfolk, Mr. Ernest Noel, eldest son of the late Hon. and Rev. Baptist Noel, to Lady Augusta Keppel, youngest daughter of Earl Albemarle.

DEATHS.

On the 12th inst., at 75, Portsdown-gardens, W., Charles Frederick Weber, Esq., in his 66th year.

On the 9th ult., at Malra, Johanna Josephine, the dearly beloved wife of Lieutenant-Colonel W. J. Vizard, Madras Staff Corps, and youngest daughter of the late H. R. Oswald, Esq., F.S.A., of Douglas, Isle of Man, aged 55 years.

On the 15th inst., at Mount House, Welling, Mary, the beloved wife of Thomas Pacey Birt, of Woolwich and Welling. Friends please accept this intimation.

On the 15th inst., at Wilton Villa, Campden-hill, Jeremiah Little, in his 6th year.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 25.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 19.		Pathological Society, 8 p.m.
Nineteenth Sunday after Trinity.		Crystal Palace: opera ("Lily of Killarney"), 3 p.m.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Rev. Dr. Scott, Prebendary, Head Master of Westminster School; 2.15 p.m., the Right Rev. Bishop Cloughton; 7 p.m., the Rev. J. Erskine Clark, Vicar of Battersea.		WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 22.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., uncertain; 3 p.m., the Rev. Canon Conway.		Pharmaceutical Society, special general meeting, noon.
St. James's, noon, the Rev. Francis Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapels Royal.		Bristol Musical Festival, noon, Mendelssohn's "Elijah"; 8 p.m., miscellaneous selection.
Whitehall, 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Rev. H. L. Thompson.		Public Meeting at the Mansion House, respecting Hospital Sunday, 1874.
Savoy, closed.		Oxford Union Society, fifteenth anniversary (the Lord Chancellor in the chair).
Temple Church, probably 11 a.m., the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Master of the Temple; 3 p.m., the Rev. Alfred Ainger, Reader at the Temple.		THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23.
French Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. W. B. Bouverie, Incumbent.		Bristol Musical Festival, noon, Macfarren's "St. John the Baptist" (first time) and Mendelssohn's "Lobgesang"; 8 p.m., Rossini's "Stabat Mater," &c.
MONDAY, OCTOBER 20.		Crystal Palace: opera at 3 p.m.; great fireworks; Mr. Brock's benefit.
Newmarket Races, Houghton Meeting.		FRIDAY, OCTOBER 24.
Medical Society, 8 p.m.		Southwell Agricultural Society Show.
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21.		Bristol Musical Festival, noon, Handel's "Messiah"; Election of Annuitants, noon.
New moon, 10.55 a.m.		Architectural Association, conversation, 8 p.m.
Bristol Musical Festival, noon, Haydn's "Creation"; 8 p.m., miscellaneous selection.		SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25.
Royal Humane Society, committee, 2 p.m.		Annual Balaclava Dinner, at Willis's Rooms, 8 p.m. (Lord George Paget in the chair).
Ress Agricultural, Cattle, and Poultry Show.		Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 2.30 p.m.
Royal Topham Society: Extra Target.		Thames Sailing Club, Surbiton match.
University College of Wales, general meetings at Aberystwith, 3 and 7 p.m.		Crystal Palace: Fourth Saturday Concert.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.
Lat. 51° 28' N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Amount of Rain.	Direction.	Force.	Miles.
October	Inches.	°	°	°	0-10	°
8	29.760	43.0	40.0	90	7	37.1	48.8	SW. WNW.	76
9	29.804	45.1	41.8	89	6	31.3	54.3	WNW. SW.	389
10	29.758	50.7	53.5	90	9	44.5	64.4	SSW. WNW.	500
11	29.775	59.2	52.7	70	9	57.3	62.7	SSW. SW.	401
12	29.636	51.1	50.9	99	10	49.8	57.6	WNW. E. S.	150
13	29.595	48.5	44.2	76	7	40.6	62.7	NW. W.	113
14	29.599	45.1	36.7	75	2	39.0	63.1	SW. W.	82

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29.738	29.692	29.749	29.804	29.754	29.578	29.597
Temperature of Air	47.9°	44.9°	60.1°	60.2°	50.2°	49.2°	47.0°
Temperature of Evaporation	45.9°	43.0°	57.8°	56.8°	49.7°	47.3°	44.4°
Direction of Wind	sw.	sw.	sw.	sw.	ENE.	NW.	NW.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 25.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
0 27 15	1 30 1	2 45 2	0 15 2	2 30 2	2 43 2	2 58 3
1 15 1	2 18 1	3 33 2	1 03 2	3 18 2	3 31 2	3 46 3
2 15 1	3 18 1	4 33 2	2 03 2	4 18 2	4 31 2	4 46 3
3 15 1	4 18 1	5 33 2	3 03 2	5 18 2	5 31 2	5 46 3
4 15 1	5 18 1	6 33 2	4 03 2	6 18 2	6 31 2	6 46 3
5 15 1	6 18 1	7 33 2	5 03 2	7 18 2	7 31 2	7 46 3
6 15 1	7 18 1	8 33 2	6 03 2	8 18 2	8 31 2	8 46 3
7 15 1	8 18 1	9 33 2	7 03 2	9 18 2	9 31 2	9 46 3
8 15 1	9 18 1	10 33 2	8 03 2	10 18 2	10 31 2	10 46 3
9 15 1	10 18 1	11 33 2	9 03 2	11 18 2	11 31 2	11 46 3
10 15 1	11 18 1	12 33 2	10 03 2	12 18 2	12 31 2	12 46 3

STEAM.—LONDON TO CALCUTTA Direct, via Suez Canal.—CARLYLE BROTHERS and CO.'S DUCAL LINE STEAM-SHIPS. These magnificent, full-powered, full-rigged ships have been built expressly for the trade, and will be found on inspection as fine and substantial vessels as have ever been built in this country. The cabins are elegant, light, and commodious, with every convenience for tropical climates, and are placed amidships, where there is the least motion. Each steamer is provided with bath-rooms (hot and cold water) and ice-house, and carries a surgeon and stewardess.

	Tons.	Captain.	To Sail.
Duke of Argyll	3015	Barrie	Oct. 30.
Duke of Devonshire .. .	3015	—	Nov. 20.
Duke of Buccleuch .. .	3015	—	—
Duke of Lancaster .. .	3015	—	—
Duke of Sutherland .. .	3015	Edward	Sailed.

The Duke of Argyll is intended to leave the Victoria Dock about Oct. 30. Rates of passage, for first-class passengers only, 40s., 50s., and 55s., according to the accommodation required. For further particulars apply to Messrs. Barclay, Greenfield, and Co., No. 1, East India Avenue, Leadenhall-street, London, E.C.; and No. 2, Drury-lane, Liverpool.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S VOCAL ACADEMY. The next Term begins on MONDAY, OCT. 20; and Madame Sainton-Dolby will receive Candidates for Admission at her residence, 7, Gloucester-place, Hyde Park, on Saturday, Oct. 18, from Ten to One o'clock. Prospectuses can be had on application at Messrs. Chappell's, 50, New Bond-street; and of Mr. George Dolby, 52, New Bond-street, W.

UNDER THE IMMEDIATE PATRONAGE AND SANCTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE ROYAL ALBERT HALL.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.

Conductor, Mr. BARNBY.
A series of ELEVEN GRAND ORATORIO CONCERTS will be given during the ensuing season, at which the following works will be performed:—
Haydn's Theodora. Handel's Messiah. Mendelssohn's 114th Psalm.
Bach's Christmas Oratorio. Handel's Israel in Egypt. Hiller's Song of Victory.
Bach's Passion (St. Matthew). Rossini's Stabat Mater. Gounod's Galila.
Mendelssohn's Elijah. And Mendelssohn's Lobgesang. And Mendelssohn's St. Paul.
Haydn's Creation. Macfarren's Overture Bound.

The Concerts will take place on the following dates:—
1873: Thursday, Oct. 20; Thursday, Nov. 13; Thursday, Nov. 27; Monday, Dec. 15; Wednesday, Dec. 24, 1874; Thursday, Jan. 8; Thursday, Jan. 22; Thursday, Feb. 5; Wednesday, Feb. 18; Thursday, March 5; Thursday, March 19.

SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE SERIES.
1000 (to hold Eight Persons) .. 421 0 0 Amphitheatre Stalls 23 3 0
First (Upper Tier) 25 0 0 Balcony Stalls 2 0 0
First (Lower Tier) 10 0 0 Balcony Stalls 1 10 0
Subscribers' names received by Messrs. Ewer, and Co., 1, Berners-street, W., and 25, Leadenhall-street, E.C.; or usual Agents; and at the Royal Albert Hall.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.

Every Night at Eight; Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Eight. ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT THE WORLD.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS.

NOW IN THE TENTH YEAR OF ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON AT THIS HALL, an event altogether unparalleled in the history of the world's amusements.

LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL. New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, £1 11s. 6d. to £2 12s. 6d.; Pantofoles, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Arms, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places at Mitchell's, 33, Old Bond-street; Ollivier's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St. James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

WAGNER SOCIETY, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—SIX

ORCHESTRAL AND CHORAL CONCERTS, FRIDAY EVENINGS, Nov. 14, Dec. 12, Jan. 23, Feb. 13, March 13, April 10. Conductor, Mr. E. Dannreuther. Subscription for the series—Stalls, £2 2s.; Single Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., 3s., 1s.

THEATRE ROYAL DRURY-LANE.—Sole Lessee and

Manager, F. B. Chatterton.—MORNING PERFORMANCE ON MONDAY, NOV. 10. ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA.—Triumphant success of "Antony and Cleopatra," unanimously pronounced by the public press to be the grandest and most gorgeous spectacle ever presented on the stage of Old Drury.—ON MONDAY NEXT, and during the Week, will be performed Shakespeare's Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes by Mr. Andrew Halliday, illustrated with New and Characteristic Scenery by Mr. William Beverley. The cast will include Mr. James Anderson, Messrs. Ryder, H. Ross, H. A. Glover, Richard, Dolman, J. Morris, Byron, Ford, Lockford, Milton, Sargent, H. Clifford, and H. Sinclair; Mrs. Wallis, Mesdames Banks, E. Stuart, Melville, Adeline Genda, &c. The performance will commence with a Farcical Musical Extradivinity, in one act, entitled NOBODY IN LONDON. To conclude with a New and Original Piece, entitled THE STRAIGHT TIE. Prices, from Sixpence to Five guineas. Boxes open at Half-past Six, commence at Seven. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Bateman. Every Evening, at Eight, RICHELIEU—Richelieu, Mr. Henry Irving; Messrs. Henry Clayton, Beaumont, Henry Forrester, J. E. Howard, F. Charles, Carter, E. F. Edgar, and Conway; Mrs. Le Thiere and Miss Isabel Bateman. Scenery by Hawes Craven and H. Cuthbert. Musical Director, Mr. Robert Stoppel. Preceded, at Seven, by SIX MONTHS AGO—Mr. John Clayton, Mr. Webber; and Miss St. Ange. Conclude with RIMMOND AND CO.—Messrs. Beveridge, Carter, Miss Pannecott, Miss Le Thiere, and Miss St. Ange. Box-office open from Ten till Five.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Douglas. Eighth Week and unprecedented success of the grand Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, with the same cast, Mr. Charles E. Crockett, and Mrs. Charles Viner of the Olympic Theatre. Every Evening, in a legitimate Drama, supported by a selected Dramatic Company. ON MONDAY, NOV. 3, the Adelphi Drama, THE WANDERING JEW. Adelphi Artists, Scenery, and Costumes.

DORE'S GREAT PICTURE OF "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christian Martyrs," "Francisco di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

ELIJAH WALTON.—EXHIBITION, including "A Storm at Sea" and "A Sand Storm in the Desert," and many New and Important Drawings, Alpine and Eastern, NOW OPEN at BURLINGTON GALLERY, 191, Piccadilly. Ten to Dusk. Admission, with Catalogue, 1s.

NOW READY, THE

ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR 1874, PRICE ONE SHILLING, CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES, TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF MARRIAGE CUSTOMS,

AS READINGS TO THE CALENDAR, BY J. JACKSON; TWELVE FINE-ART ENGRAVINGS;

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAM OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA, WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES;

The Royal Family of Great Britain: the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Public Offices and Officers; Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1873; Revenue and Expenditure; Obituary of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water; Post-Office Regulations; together with a large amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past twenty-nine years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK the most acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table; whilst it is universally acknowledged to be by far the cheapest Almanack ever published.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Book-sellers and Newsagents.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1873.

Sir John Duke Coleridge, her Majesty's Attorney-General, told his constituents, a few days ago, that the present Parliament has yet two years to run before it will complete its term of legal existence, and that the Government has no desire to bring it to a premature close. Associating this statement with the elections which have recently taken place in Bath and Taunton, and with that which will, in all human probability, be formally concluded to-day at Birmingham, there is opened up to us a wide field for interesting speculation. We have no intention of deviating from our customary rule by treating the subject in a party sense. We do not, indeed, pretend even to conjecture what will be the effect upon either the "ins" or "outs" of the House of Commons, should the present Parliament continue its labours for two more Sessions. The prospect may be glanced at in a far broader light—namely, that of the general interests of the country. We start, therefore, upon the assumption, which we must admit may at any time be set aside by facts, that it will be the duty of the present Parliament to employ its best energies, its sagacity, and its patriotism for two more years in trying to give legislative expression to the thoughts, convictions, and desires of the people of the United Kingdom, on those questions of the day in the settlement of which, one way or another, the will of the majority may make itself felt.

It may be held, we think, to be matter of congratulation that there is no reason for anticipating a precipitate appeal to the sense of the country. A general election, it is true, is one of those necessities imposed upon us by the constitution of the realm. It is not without its uses simply as a process. It stimulates political thought and sentiment, and affords scope for the exercise of the best and noblest functions of genuine patriotism. But it must be freely admitted that it is also disagreeable and deteriorating accompaniments, which it is to be feared, at least if we are to take the verdict of experience, are inseparable from it. The troubling of the waters may be the condition of new life; but, apart from that result, it is seldom desired for its own sake. A general election rouses into activity some of the worst, as well as the best, of human passions. Whilst it lasts it interrupts and well-nigh paralyses the ordinary and habitual progress of commercial life. It concentrates all national thought upon itself. It generates an influence which is irresistibly contagious, and which, during its continuance, exercises an ascendancy over every other influence. It excites a kind of social fermentation which sensibly affects—not always for good—every single particle of the body politic. We are all more or less aware of this. We all more or less shrink from its recurrence. We submit to the necessity when it overtakes us as we submit to a surgical operation indispensable to a renewal of health and vigour; but we are not sorry to have the day of our trial postponed to the utmost limits consistent with our conformity to constitutional law and constitutional needs. It is one of those processes which we like to be deferred until a necessity for undergoing it actually arises, and the less frequent and the less sudden that necessity is the better pleased we are.

But there is something in the existing political condition of the country which disposes us to accept with increased satisfaction the probability that Parliament will fill up the term of its legal existence. There is no sufficient ground for the belief that, in the main, it has ceased to represent the mind of the country. Three months ago, when dissatisfaction with certain episodic blunders of the Government was both keen and widespread, reasons were not wanting for giving plausibility to the conclusion that since the last general election there had occurred a serious change in the political convictions and desires of the people. It does not appear to be generally entertained now that such a change has taken place as would render the representation by Parliament of the views of constituencies an incorrect exposition of them on the whole. Here and there, it may be confessed, there is a wide discrepancy between a member and his electors, in regard to some topics. An appeal to the constituent bodies might possibly issue in results which would appreciably modify the tone of the House of Commons in regard to them. But, looking at the matter on a broad and national scale, there seems to be no conclusive evidence that the course pursued by the present Parliament has misinterpreted the will of the nation, or that the nation has deliberately adopted conclusions at variance with those which have governed the legislation of the last five years. What has been done has been done mostly in accordance with the public opinion of the times, and in what may be done hereafter there is no general desire that the action of Parliament should be reversed. Any argument, therefore, for an immediate election, in the absence of a special necessity for resorting to one, must be regarded as devoid of adequate force. If the country is not intent upon altering the present direction of its policy, there can be no necessity for plunging it into the turmoil of a general election.

There is one more feature of the political condition of the times which tends to augment our satisfaction with the continued existence for some time longer of the present Parliament. It can hardly be denied that there is no commanding question just now before the public which would justify an appeal to the constituencies of the United Kingdom. In this country—happily, we think, for its population—all important political changes have to ripen in public opinion before they are likely to receive legislative sanction. There are no questions of magnitude which as yet have reached that stage of maturity in the political convictions of the constituencies which can be more suitably and safely referred to them for immediate decision than at some future time. Precipitate legislation usually turns out in the end to be barren legislation. The one great distinction between the Parliamentary action of the British people and that of several Continental nations is, that it is never followed by reaction, because it never greatly outruns public opinion. Questions of policy which require to be referred to the decision of the constituent bodies are usually mooted, expounded, discussed, resolved upon, both by the press and by the people, a long time before they are finally dealt with by the Legislature. It is well that it should be so. It may do something to retard the development of political and national life; but, at least, it ensures to it a natural, in place of an artificial, expansion. It cannot be said, we think, that any policy of great moment has now attained a stage which requires that it should be submitted to the judgment and will of the electors. We have yet to see what measures will be laid before the country by her Majesty's Government. We shall be better prepared to pronounce a verdict upon them after they have been formally propounded and thoroughly discussed. Just at present there is nothing before us upon which to deliver an opinion but a difference of general profession between one party and another. Who will be disposed to lament that a general election is not to be taken upon so vague and indefinite a field of strife?

It is not to be concealed that speculations such as these may be suddenly swept away by unforeseen accident. Two years more may complete the legal term of the existing Parliament, but who can guarantee that it will live to the close of its appointed time? "Three score years and ten" constitute the normal period of human life; but what an infinitude of causes there are that cut it short or prematurely extinguish it. Glad as we may be that there is no immediate prospect of passing through the ordeal of a general election, it would, nevertheless, savour of unwisdom to take for granted that the prospect will be realised. For the present, the quietude of the hour appears likely to be maintained unbroken for some time to come. Let the country enjoy as it may what it has, and hold itself prepared for what the future may unfold.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, continued at Balmoral Castle. Her Majesty gave a ball on Tuesday week to the servants, tenantry, and gillies of the Balmoral and Abergeldie estates. The Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Beatrice, Prince Leopold, Prince Albert Victor, and Prince George of Wales, and Prince John of Glücksburg were present, and also the ladies and gentlemen in waiting. Lieutenant-General Sir Hastings Doyle, Mr. Christopher Sykes, Major-General Sir Thomas and the Hon. Lady Biddulph and their children, and the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Taylor received invitations to be present at the dance. On the following day the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, left the castle for the Royal cottage on the Glassalt Shiel, Loch Muich, where her Majesty and the Princess remained until Saturday, and then returned to Balmoral. On Sunday the Queen, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service at Crathie church. The Rev. Marshall Lang, D.D., of the Barony church, Glasgow, officiated. Her Majesty's dinner party included the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Beatrice, Prince Leopold, and Prince John of Glücksburg. On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, walked to the Manse and called upon the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Taylor. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, afterwards drove to Tillypronie, and visited Sir John and Lady Clark. Mr. and Mrs. George Forbes of Newe and the Hon. Lady Biddulph dined with the Queen. Her Majesty, with the members of the Royal family, has taken her accustomed walking and driving exercise. The Queen has sent to Rotheray four Sardinian sheep from Balmoral as a present to the Marquis of Lorne. Lady Waterpark has left Balmoral. The Countess of Erroll and the Hon. Mary Pitt have arrived at the castle.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales was present at the last deer-drive of the season, on Saturday last, in Invercauld Forest, where Colonel Farquharson had assembled a large and distinguished company. Twenty-five stags were brought down, some of which fell to the rifle of Viscountess Folkestone. On Sunday the Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince John of Glücksburg attended Divine service at Crathie church. On Monday the Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor, Prince George, Princess Louise, Princess Victoria, and Princess Maud of Wales, and Prince John of Glücksburg left Abergeldie Castle for the south. The Royal party drove to Ballater, where a guard of honour of the 78th Highlanders, under the command of Captain Kirwan, was drawn up at the railway station. The Royal travellers proceeded by special train to Aberdeen, where the Earl of Kintore, Mr. Farley Leith, M.P., and other gentlemen, greeted their Royal Highnesses. The journey was resumed shortly after twelve o'clock, and Perth was reached at a quarter to three o'clock, when tea was served in the state saloon to the Princess and her children. The journey was afterwards continued to Edinburgh, where Colonel Farquharson (who had travelled in the train) took leave of the Prince and Princess. Their Royal Highnesses were received by the Lord Provost and the principal civic authorities of the city, by Sir George Harvey, and the Hon. B. F. Primrose. The Royal travellers dined at the Clarendon Hotel, and resumed the journey south, via the east coast, at eight o'clock. The Prince proceeded to York, passing the night at the chambers of the Yorkshire Club, of which his Royal Highness is a member. The Princess and her children, with Prince John of Glücksburg, continued the route to London, and arrived at Marlborough House on Tuesday morning. The Prince left York the same morning on a visit to Lord and Lady Londesborough at Londesborough Park. Lord Londesborough met his Royal Highness at Selby. The Prince will visit Newmarket during the Houghton Meeting. His Royal Highness will be the guest of Mr. H. Chaplin. The Princess and Prince John of Glücksburg went to the Gaiety Theatre on Wednesday evening. Her Royal Highness has driven out daily.

Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig Holstein are the guests of the Duke and Duchess of Argyll at Inverary Castle. Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne) and the Marquis of Lorne are also at the castle.

Prince Arthur went to Drury-Lane Theatre on Saturday evening.

The Duke of Cambridge arrived in town on Monday from visiting Lord and Lady Londesborough at Londesborough Park.

The Duke and Duchess of Teck arrived at Vienna on Thursday week en route for Styria, on a visit to the Duke of Teck's father.

Princess Bariatinaki has left Thomas's Hotel for Rome.

The Swedish Minister and Baroness Hochschild have returned to Great Cumberland-place from Sweden.

The betrothal of the Duke of Hamilton to Lady Mary Montagu, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Manchester, was formally celebrated by the Grand Ducal Court at Baden on the 9th inst.

Two gun-boats—the Ant and the Cuckoo—built by Messrs. Laird, of Birkenhead, for the Admiralty, were successfully tried up on the Mersey on Wednesday. Each is to be supplied with an 18-ton gun.

The Right Hon. Edmund Hammond, having completed a period of fifty years in the public service, has resigned the office of Permanent Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, which he has held since April 10, 1854; and Lord Tenterden has been appointed to succeed him.

A memorandum, which is the result of twelve years' experience as the superintendent of Colney Hatch Lunatic Asylum, has been written by Dr. Sheppard, who attributes from 15 to 40 per cent of insanity to alcoholic drinks, which he alleges are flavoured with poisonous matters.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

On Tuesday the directors of the Bank of England raised the rate of discount from five to six per cent.

Mr. Charles H. Piesse, F.C.S., has been appointed public analyst for the Strand district.

The City Press states that Mrs. Munro, for a long time a pensioner and inmate of the Goldsmiths' Company's Almshouses, East Acton, died last week, in the 102nd year of her age.

The prizes offered by the Turners' Company for excellence of workmanship were, on Monday, distributed at the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House by the Lord Mayor.

At Willis's Rooms, on Tuesday evening, the annual dinner of the Anglo-Belgian Fund took place, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor.

A fire was discovered early on Wednesday morning in the stables attached to the Bishop of London's palace at Fulham, which was, however, extinguished without any damage being done to the main building.

A young married man applied, last week, to the Islington guardians for admission into the workhouse, and, when asked why he wanted to be admitted, said his wife had deserted him. On being asked how many children he had, he said one, which his wife had taken with her. He was admitted.

The London Ladies' Educational Association opened its sixth session at University College this week for evening lectures, and for morning courses on Oct. 27. For the session about to open seventeen classes in thirteen subjects are offered to ladies, besides the teaching in the Fine-Art School.

The Royal Academy has decided to pay a deserved tribute to the memory of Sir Edwin Landseer. At the approaching winter exhibition of old masters space will be set apart for the works of the great animal-painter, and those who possess examples of his art are invited to contribute to the collection.

Sir E. Watkin's correspondence with the Metropolitan Board of Works relative to the completion of the Inner Circle Railway has resulted in his being informed that the board decline to reopen the question, and adhere to the view expressed by the Parliamentary Committee in August last.

The foundation-stone of a Gothic edifice, intended to be a Pastors' College in connection with the Tabernacle at Newington, was laid, on Tuesday, by Mr. C. H. Spurgeon, who stated that his "church" was now the possessor of more than £100,000 worth of property. Towards this last offshoot he has received some munificent contributions.

At a meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works, it was stated that Queen Victoria-street was so far completed that it was in a condition to be handed over to the care of the City authorities. Only one-twelfth of the surplus land was now unlet, and that was in the least valuable part of the new thoroughfare—viz., between Bennett's-hill and Blackfriars Bridge.

The suspension was announced at Lloyd's, on Wednesday, of Mr. W. Wilson Saunders, and his son, Mr. George S. Saunders, who were among the best-known members of Lloyd's, the family having been connected with marine-insurance business for nearly a century. The stoppage has been consequent on heavy losses during the past two years; and the outstanding risks are believed to be large.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers last week was 97,439, of whom 33,882 were in workhouses and 63,557 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding week in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 3242, 18,619, and 29,749 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 646; of whom 409 were men, 174 women, and 63 children under sixteen.

Several donations of £1000 each have been given anonymously this week to charitable institutions in the metropolis. The committee of University College Hospital acknowledge a gift of £1000, through the London and Westminster Bank, Bloomsbury branch, from G. W. S., being the third of the like amount from the same source; the committee of the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat have received £1000 from H. D. T.; and the Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb has received another sum of £1000 from M. R.

The annual dinner of the New Thames Yacht Club took place, yesterday week, at Gravesend, under the presidency of the Commodore, Mr. Lee. The club numbers 462 members, with a squadron of 176 vessels. It was stated that the success of the past season had been unprecedented. Forty-two of the club's yachts had started in various races, and every cup run for on the Thames and to the westward this year had been won by one of its yachts; whilst the club itself had distributed £700 in prizes.

Last week 2154 births and 1247 deaths were registered in London. After making due allowance for increase of population, the births were 147, and the deaths were 195 below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. There were 48 deaths from measles, 22 from scarlet fever, 7 from diphtheria, 29 from whooping-cough, 45 from different forms of fever, and 43 from diarrhoea, while not one resulted from smallpox. Five deaths were caused by street accidents. The Registrar-General reports that scarlet fever is on the increase in all the principal towns of this country.

The winter session of the Working Women's College, in Queen's-square, was opened yesterday week, when an address was delivered by Mrs. Fawcett. The report stated that the number of students had increased session by session, the average during the present year being 208, as against 181, the highest average of previous years. In her address, Mrs. Fawcett said it was absolutely necessary that the limits of the field of female work should be extended. It was said that women were born for marriage; but there were 2,500,000 unmarried women in the country, and half these must remain unmarried. The world, however, was changing its views as to the position of women. She heard that the Messrs. Baring were taking women into their banks, and were satisfied with the result.

Upwards of 13,000 persons attended a "military fête" given at the Crystal Palace on Monday, under the patronage of the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and other distinguished officers. The wet weather materially interfered with the outdoor amusements and spoiled the fireworks with which the fête concluded. Soldiers and volunteers in uniform were admitted at reduced rates, and commanding officers were authorised to grant leave to all well-conducted soldiers to attend. The next annual exhibition of poultry, pigeons, and rabbits at the Crystal Palace will be held on Nov. 17, 18, 19, and 20. For poultry there are 111 classes, for pigeons 65, and 10 for rabbits. In some of the classes for poultry eight prizes are to be given. There are sixty-three silver cups, which will be distributed among the various varieties; and the money prizes amount to nearly £1000.

Dr. Lankester held an inquiry, on Wednesday, at the Bank of England Tavern, Paddington, on the body of Frederick Cooper, a gardener, in the employ of Mr. Warner, of the Lower Welsh Harp at Hendon. It appeared from the evidence that Mr. Warner had kept in his ground some years a large brown bear. It was chained up near the water's edge, and inclosed by brickwork and bars on the other side, and the chain was about twelve feet long. The animal was chained to a post, and, as well as other persons, occasionally fed it. On Friday morning the deceased, having been eating the grass-plant, took an aimful, went within the hurdles, and, as the deceased himself stated, threw the grass to the bear. On turning to come away, being within the length of the chain, and before he could reach the opening, the bear flew at him and threw him down. The deceased's cries brought the assistance of a boat-builder, among others, who struck the bear with a boat-hook while he was standing over the deceased's body. They succeeded in beating the bear off and getting the deceased to his feet, when it was discovered he had received some severe lacerations and injuries from the animal's claws and teeth. Cooper was at once removed to St. Mary's Hospital, where he died thirty-six hours after admission. Mr. Warner, the owner of the bear, said it was five years old, and was so docile that children used to feed it. It would feed with dogs, and a man had ridden on its back round the post to which it was chained. Since this occurrence the bear had been shot. The jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death."

DISASTERS.

During a terrible gale, yesterday week, the schooner Tulip, from Sunderland, went ashore on Saunton Sands, North Devon. The master, mate, and one seaman were lost.

Edward Williams, aged eighteen, one of five men burned by an explosion of firedamp at the Furness Main Colliery, near Barmley, died on Saturday. Deceased's father and his hurrier, named Nevill, are not expected to survive. Men were working with naked lights when the explosion occurred.

In the work of replacing the rope attached to an elevator in a factory at Dundee three men met with a terrible accident. The machine fell while they were inside it, and their injuries were so great that one died within an hour, and the other two are in a dangerous state.

Mr. Charles Paget, of Ruddington Grange, Notts, Mrs. Paget, and her sister, Miss Tebbutt, went on to the rocks near Fily Brigg, on Monday afternoon, and while they were sitting there a huge wave broke upon them and threw them into the sea. A girl who was near seized with one hand a piece of seaweed which grew fast to the rocks and with the other grasped Miss Tebbutt; but Mr. Paget and his wife were drowned.

Owen Cain, nine years of age, has died in Liverpool from hydrophobia, caused by the bite of a cat five weeks ago. Two deaths from hydrophobia have recently occurred in Salford. One case was that of a boy five years of age who was bitten, on the 5th ult., by a bulldog belonging to his father. The other was that of a girl seven years of age, who, on Aug. 29, had been bitten by a strange dog as she lay in bed.

The adjourned inquiry into the circumstances attending the explosion that took place at the ammunition manufactory of Messrs. Dyer and Robson, in Greenwich, on Aug. 29 last, was concluded on Tuesday by Mr. Carttar, at the Admiral Hardy, in that town. The explosion resulted in the deaths of Isabella Matilda Scott, aged twenty-one; Annie Hill, fourteen; and Elizabeth Newman, sixteen—all of whom were employed in the shed in which the disaster occurred. After hearing further evidence, the jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death."

At Swansea, on Saturday, through the points near the railway station being wrongly turned, a passenger-train was shunted into a siding full of coal-trucks. Fortunately, the train was proceeding slowly, and no one was killed; but in two carriages, which were smashed, several passengers were injured. On the Great Western line at Goring, on Monday morning, two goods-trains were shunted in mistake on to one siding to make room for the mail-train to pass, and they came into collision. Two vans were thrown off the line, and some were considerably damaged. The early train was delayed two hours. A fatal accident occurred, on Tuesday night, at a level crossing on the Carmarthen and Cardigan Railway, close to Carmarthen. The 10.19 p.m. train dashed through the gates, which had been left shut, breaking them into fragments. The train kept on the line, but a woman who was standing a few yards from the crossing was struck by a piece of timber and killed. Two accidents upon the Midland Railway occurred on Wednesday. In one case a fish-train ran into some coal-trucks a short distance beyond the Unstone station, and in the other a locomotive and several waggons ran off the line near Wath station, on the Doncaster branch. Considerable damage was done to rolling stock, but no one appears to have been hurt.

THE ANGLERS' CLUB WEIGHING FISH.

There are several pleasant institutions, favoured by not a few worthy middle-aged Londoners of the middle class, which have no worse aim and bond of union than their common pursuit of good old Izaak Walton's river-side pastime. We remember once describing in these pages the annual dinner of the Piscatorialists at St. James's Hall, under the genial chairmanship of Mr. George Haydon, where the wit and fun of speeches like Mr. Frank Buckland's, full of comical allusions to the habits of fish and the arts of fishermen, kept a hundred of the jolly anglers in temperate glee around their festive table. Particulars of this society may be got from Mr. T. R. Sachs or Mr. James Lander (the late and present honorary secretaries), or from Mr. F. G. Pearce (the treasurer), or at their ordinary trysting place, on Monday nights, in the season, the Star and Garter, 44, Pall-mall. Fish-culture—or pisciculture, if you like that Latin word better—is naturally allied with the emulous zeal of the water-Nimrods to capture the most numerous and largest fish. Mr. Frank Buckland and Mr. Francis have therefore reached out their right hand of fellowship to the social piscators, as well as to the Thames Angling Preservation Society, whose object is manifest from its name; and the Exhibition still open at South Kensington is not less encouraging to the lovers of a gentle and quiet sport, than substantially useful to show an economic supply of food for the people. The walls of a parlour frequented by the assembled members of an Anglers' Club are usually adorned with casts or coloured drawings of the finest fish taken within its jurisdiction; the pictures by Mr. H. L. Rolfe are especially admired. The Piscatorial Society offers to preserve in its permanent collection any specimens above a certain size, which is 10 lb. for salmon, 6 lb. for Thames trout, 3 lb. for other trout, 3 lb. for perch, 20 lb. for pike, 5 lb. for carp, and various proportionate weights for the less important kinds. Prizes are duly awarded to the most successful anglers, the meet recompense of their patient skill. Our illustration of the meeting of an Anglers' Club, at the time of weighing the fish, will be viewed with some interest by those who can sympathise with the votaries of a healthful and harmless amusement.

THE ASHANTEE EXPEDITION: MAKING THE BULLETS AT WOOLWICH ARSENAL.

WEIGHING THE FISH AT A LONDON ANGLERS' CLUB.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent at Paris.)

Thursday, Oct. 13.

The elections of Sunday last in the departments of the Loire, the Nièvre, the Puy-de-Dôme, and the Haute Garonne have resulted, as was foreseen for some weeks past, in another and overwhelming Republican victory. France, whom the Legitimist journals depict as longing for the return of her ancient monarchs, has once more affirmed her Republican predilections in a most unmistakable manner, and that almost on the eve of the meeting of the Assembly, the first task of which, we are told, will be to decree the restoration of the house of Bourbon. In the department of the Loire M. Reymond, the Republican candidate, obtained nearly 60,000 votes; while his adversary, M. Faure-Belon, a Legitimist, polled only 24,000. In the Nièvre Dr. Turigny, whose previous election was quashed by the Royalist majority for alleged illegal practices, has been again returned by 39,872 votes, 28,253 being given to M. Gillois, the representative of the Conservative party; while in the Puy-de-Dôme, where the Monarchists failed to bring forward any candidate, M. Girod-Pouzol, an advanced Radical, has been elected by 79,825 votes out of 80,985 voters. The election which presents, however, the most significant character is that of Count de Rémusat, M. Thiers's former Minister for Foreign Affairs, in the Haute Garonne. This election is at once a great Republican victory and a protest against the Parliamentary revolution of May 24. It will be recollected that M. de Rémusat was defeated some months ago by M. Barolet in Paris. The Count was then considered too reactionary by the Parisians, but he is to-day elected in one of the most Republican departments of France by 70,669 votes, against 31,000 given to M. Niel, the Bonapartist candidate, and son of the Marshal of that name.

These elections all point in one direction. They show that, however Ministers may strive to fetter, falsify, and gag the press, they cannot stifle the Republican spirit which animates the country. The tyrannical home policy of MM. de Broglie and Beulé, analogous to that of the worst days of the Second Empire, is bearing its fruits, although they are not precisely such as these statesmen imagined they would have been. They deny liberty of speech to the most moderate of their opponents, or else subject it to such vexatious conditions as to render it utterly worthless. They, moreover, forbid any discussion of their acts in the Republican journals under penalty of exclusion from sale in the streets and at the railway stations, suspension, or suppression; while, on the other hand, they themselves star through the provinces, delivering incendiary speeches at every agricultural Concours-Général, and permit their own journals to preach civil war and to stigmatise the Republican party in the most offensive terms. The recent speech of M. Gambetta at Périgueux led to the suspension of no less than four Republican journals, and to the interdiction of the sale in the streets of a fifth which had quoted its more striking passages. Of these four were provincial organs, the other being the Paris Siècle, which, however Republican its sympathies may be, always couches its articles in moderate language. When questioned on this subject before the Committee of Permanence, M. Beulé explained that the Siècle had been interdicted because M. Gambetta, being a deputy, could not be proceeded against—virtually admitting that the object of these severe measures is to prevent other newspapers from following the example; or, in other words, to prevent France from hearing the voice of the deputies she has chosen to represent her.

This monstrous avowal has naturally greatly elated the Royalist journals, who continue to minister incentives to the mutual hatred of citizens every day with impunity. To-day we learn that in the department of the Haute Marne the Royalist prefect has interdicted the sale of every newspaper except the Figaro, Paris Journal, Soleil, and Journal de Paris, all Fusionist organs, and three little harmless halfpenny publications; while at Lyons General Bourbaki has just suppressed another Republican organ, Le Feuilleton. A working man's club in the same city has also been closed, by order of the Prefet. M. Wilfrid de Fonvielle—whose brother certainly accompanied Victor Noir on his ill-fated visit to Prince Pierre Bonaparte, but who is himself well known in the French literary world as of no very extreme political opinions—writes to the newspapers to say that the Minister of the Interior has refused him permission to deliver lectures on ordinary subjects. In a letter addressed to M. Beulé he mentions that this permission has been accorded him for eight consecutive years, and that it was never refused him, even in the most difficult times of the Second Empire. During the last ten years an annual fête has taken place in the Saône et Loire in honour of Rabelais, who discovered the means of destroying the disease of the vines; but this year the necessary authorisation was refused by the Prefet, M. Ch. Rolland. One of the deputies of the department complained bitterly to the Minister of the Interior, but it was only after he had formally promised that no political speeches should be delivered that permission was granted.

The correctional tribune of Toulouse is happily not influenced by the tyrannical rule of the present Government, for it recently decided that the Prefet acted illegally in decreeing that the Republican organ, La Dépêche, could only be distributed to its subscribers through the post, where it was seized by the Administration almost every day. Unfortunately, however, the French tribunals are, as a rule, so imbued with the principle of subservience to the ruling power, whatever this may be, that an Opposition journal appealing from some illegal prefectorial measure rarely obtains redress.

M. Rouher, who, according to M. de Cassagnac, is the Plenipotentiary of the ex-Empress in France, has recently addressed a superb piece of special pleading to Baron Eschassériaux, the president of the Bonapartist Society of the "Appeal to the People," in which he proposes to hold a meeting of Bonapartist deputies to deliberate upon the projects for a Monarchical restoration elaborated by the Royalists, and upon the line of conduct and the means of action which the Imperialists should adopt. This letter purports to be written in defence of the national sovereignty, which, according to M. Rouher, both Legitimists and Republicans ignore; but to which the Empire "created by free and enlightened plebiscites, and which no subsequent plebiscite has denied," would fain appeal. "The strong and the powerful," he says, "refuse to submit to the sovereign arbitration. They say they are loved of the people, and yet they shrink from its verdict." Coming so soon after Prince Napoleon's alliance with M. Iortals, this letter has a certain interest; but the Bonapartist party, being small, has little political significance. Should a division be taken on the question of a Monarchical restoration, the Imperialists will undoubtedly vote with the Republicans.

On Monday the interrogatory of Marshal Bazaine by the Duc d'Aumale began at Trianon, the first day's questioning being confined to military matters of secondary importance as far as the Marshal is concerned. On Tuesday the subject of the suppressed despatches was dealt with. When interrogated with regard to his communications with the Emperor during the battles of Gravelotte and St. Privat, the Marshal replied that, fearing the publicity of the telegraph, he had preferred sending his aide-de-camp Commandant Magnan in person to Châlons. The Commandant never returned, and, although he was charged with carrying instructions from the Emperor to Bazaine, did not succeed, according to his own account, in passing through the German lines. The Marshal formally denied that he ever received a despatch apprising him of the departure of MacMahon's army for Sedan; and stated that he never sent the despatch received by the latter in which it was stated that he could pass through the Prussian lines whenever he pleased. All the despatches sent by the different commanders to one another, by the Emperor to Bazaine, and vice versa, were read by the général, and showed what terrible confusion reigned in the various corps-d'armée. In the course of this sitting occurred the first incident of any importance, the Marshal passing to the Duc d'Aumale a diplomatic telegram, dated from Constantinople, stating that two foreign Powers only awaited a French victory to declare themselves against Germany, and advising the army to remain under Metz, so as to cut off the enemy's retreat or to intercept his communications. The Tribunal, the Government Commissioners, the counsel for the defence, and the Marshal were all of opinion that the signatures of this telegram should not be revealed; and the newspapers are actively engaged in speculating from whom it came. After some preliminary questioning about the reasons for not preventing the Germans closing around Metz, Marshal Bazaine entered, yesterday (Wednesday) upon the branch of his examination which refers to the armament and provisioning of that city. He declared he gave all necessary orders for its defence, but blamed the inferior officers for not having executed them, upon which he was reminded by the Duc d'Aumale that he, as commander, was by the military code made responsible for administration. The "Regnier incident" formed a feature of yesterday's examination. The Marshal declared that he did not think of the use which M. Regnier might make of the signature which was given to him. He defended Bourbaki's mission, on the ground that an armistice was necessary for both the army and the country. The interrogatory of the Marshal will last for several days to come. He shows considerable assurance in replying to the Duc d'Aumale, and is reported to have smiled ironically on noticing the impression produced on the Tribunal by the Constantinople telegram.

The Fourth Council of War met, on Monday last, to try M. Ranc, the member of the National Assembly who, after a couple of years of immunity, is accused of having taken part in the Communist insurrection. M. Ranc, prudently enough, did not present himself; for, after reading the indictment and taking the evidence of the witnesses, the Court summarily condemned him to death. The sentence, which was expected, has caused little excitement, except in advanced Republican circles.

SPAIN.

There has been a naval engagement off Carthagena. On the arrival of Admiral Lobo off the port on Saturday the Carthagena Junta at once resolved to fight. Their chances were by no means desperate, as their fleet, if properly manned and well handled, was a fair match for the enemy. Rapidly coaling and provisioning (probably with the spoils of Garrucha), the four Intransigente vessels—the Numancia, Mendez Nunez, Tetuan, and Fernando el Católico—steamed out and offered battle, which was immediately accepted by Admiral Lobo, who had under his command the Almansa, Villa de Madrid, Carmen, and two paddle steamers. The Numancia out-distanced her sister ships, and sustained the brunt of the battle. The tactics and firing were, however, of a very random character, and, after some wild chasing, the Numancia ran back to port, pursued by the Vittoria. The Mendez Nunez continued almost out of range during the whole of the action, and the Fernando el Católico did not take part in it at all. A smart though short engagement between the Tetuan and the Vittoria wound up the fight, which thus ended in the defeat of the insurgents. The insurgent frigates again left the port of Carthagena at noon on Monday; but, seeing the Government squadron ready to meet them, returned to the harbour. Contreras has been removed from the command of the Intransigente fleet and has been succeeded by the Captain of the Tetuan, who is described as a very determined man. The English Admiral offered surgical assistance to both combatants in the recent fight, but each party declined to avail themselves of it. Admiral Lobo's squadron left its position near Carthagena on Tuesday for Gibraltar, in order, it is stated, to coal. It is reported that at a Cabinet Council held on Wednesday Admiral Lobo's dismissal was resolved upon. The Minister of Marine was expected to leave Madrid in the evening to take command of the fleet and return with it to Carthagena. The fleet would be strengthened by the addition of the Zarazoga. A sortie from the town by a band of 1000 insurgents with four guns was repulsed on Friday week, and the besiegers have considerably advanced their lines. We learn from La Palma that a general attack upon Carthagena is being prepared by the besieging forces, and that the insurgents are said to be demoralised.

The conflict of Republicans and Carlists continues, with varying results, but with no important gain on either side. There is still much mystery about the great battle, as it is termed, in Navarre. Both sides with equal pertinacity claim it as a signal victory for themselves, and it would therefore seem that, though there had been severe fighting, each side had obtained no decided advantage at the close. As far as one can gather from the conflicting accounts, a slight gain which there may have been was on the side of the Carlists. However, General Moriones announces that the recent engagements have led to good results; that the soldiers are full of enthusiasm for the Republic, and that operations about which he is hopeful are shortly to be carried out.

GERMANY.

Letters of the highest interest and importance have been published at Berlin, the correspondents being the Emperor William and the Pope. His Holiness wrote from the Vatican, on Aug. 7, remonstrating in frank and friendly terms with the Emperor on recent action by the German Government against Catholicism. The Imperial answer, dated Sept. 3, is couched in the same amicable tone, but firmly resists the Papal assumptions.

Prince and Princess Frederick Charles have been warmly received in Italy.

The Crown Prince of Saxony has met with a severe carriage accident at Dresden. His Royal Highness is suffering from a painful contusion of the side, but is not in any danger.

Herr von Bülow, the recently-appointed Secretary to the Foreign Ministry at Berlin, has been raised to the rank of a Minister of State.

Chamberlain von Zehmen has again been appointed by the King to the post of President of the Upper House of the Prussian Diet. By a Royal decree, issued on Saturday, the Chamber of Deputies of the Prussian Diet is dissolved, and the preliminary elections are to take place on the 25th. The final elections are fixed for Nov. 4.

By an order of the Government, all emigration and recruiting agents who are not German subjects and domiciled in Germany are to be expelled from the country.

A social economy association is holding its first sitting at Eisenach, under the presidency of Herr Gneist. It seems that its principal object at present is a reform of the German factory laws. Motions were adopted in favour of a reform of the laws relating to joint-stock companies, and in favour of a law creating boards of conciliation between masters and men.

DENMARK.

In Monday's sitting of the Folkething a discussion was held, upon the motion of fifty-three members, to the effect that the House should call upon the Ministry to remove the impediments to co-operation between the Government and the national representatives. The President of the Council of Ministers declared that the Government would not state its views until the Budget came on for discussion. He then left the hall of the Chamber, and the motion was passed by 53 votes against 39. In compliance with the wishes of the King, the Ministers have resolved to remain in office, and the Minister-President threatens a dissolution of the Folkething if the Budget be rejected without debate.

RUSSIA.

The Cesarewitch and the Cesarevna left Tzarskoe Selo with their family on Thursday week, proceeding to Livadia, by way of Nicolaieff.

From Berlin comes the statement that the Emperor of Austria will visit the Emperor of Russia at St. Petersburg early in January next.

A St. Petersburg telegram states that, by order of the Czar, the right bank of the Amoo Daria, together with the delta, from the sea as far as the extreme western arm of the river, has been incorporated with Russia; that troops are to be left to protect the annexed territory; and that a military commander has been appointed, with the rights of governor.

Several of the detachments engaged in the Khivan expedition are on their march homewards.

A ukase has been issued by order of the Czar declaring all endowments of Greek schools invested in land situate in Russia to be forfeited.

TURKEY.

Mahmud Pacha, the ex-Grand Vizier, is appointed Governor of Adana, and Mithad Pacha, ex-Grand Vizier and late Minister of Justice, is appointed Governor of Salonica.

The subscriptions received at Constantinople for the new Turkish Loan amount to £2,000,000, and in other cities to £8,000,000.

The international commission on the Suez Canal dues met in Constantinople last Saturday. A discussion having arisen respecting the regulations to be adopted during the sittings, it was found on a division that the members on both sides were equal. The president thereupon wished to give a casting vote, but this was objected to, and the meeting was adjourned. The commission met again on Wednesday, and disposed of all the preliminary questions to which the discussion of its internal regulations gave rise.

AMERICA.

President Grant is reported to have declared in conversation that the recent panic was the first step towards a return to specie payments, which would form a solid financial basis, beneficial to the whole country. He is also said to have added that if he now were writing his message, he would recommend to the Legislature the accomplishment of this task.

President Grant has issued a proclamation appointing Nov. 27 to be observed as a National Thanksgiving Day.

Election intelligence includes the statements that the Republicans have gained the day in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa, and the District of Columbia, but not by any great majorities. In Oregon the Democrats have succeeded in returning another member to Congress.

Mr. Wilkie Collins has had a very friendly reception in New York, where several entertainments have been given in his honour.

Brigham Young has been re-elected President of the Mormon Church at Utah. No other candidate came forward.

The yellow fever is abating at Shreveport. The total number of persons who have died of the epidemic is 690.

The cotton crop is reported to have suffered much damage from drought and worms.

INDIA.

The Commander-in-Chief leaves Simla on the 24th inst. on a tour of inspection, during which he will visit the camps of Roorkee and Kirkee.

Lieutenant-Colonel Hogg, the Director-General of the Post Office in Bengal, who was recently suspended for abstracting a letter of his wife from the post office, has been reinstated. It seems that he had officially reported the matter in 1871, and believed he had a legal right to take the letter.

The overland mail arrived last Saturday morning with advices from Calcutta to Sept. 16 and Bombay to Sept. 19. Full details are given in the Indian papers of the late Mophad disturbances, but the main facts appear to have been correctly reported in the telegrams. The affair had no political significance. The other news is of no general interest.

It has been finally settled that the Vienna Exhibition shall be closed on the 31st inst.

United States papers say that the Bureau of Statistics reports that 18,000 Americans visited Europe this summer.

The Emperor of Russia has presented to Major de Wintba a diamond ring with the Imperial initials for services in connection with international exhibitions.

The cod-fishers at Faroe and Iceland have been remarkably successful this season. Up to the 2nd inst. 230,000 large cod, of fine quality, had been landed at Lerwick.

The Government of India has decided on adopting the Hunterian system of spelling Indian proper names. The orthography of well-known names is to be retained.

Father Hyacinth and M. Chavard, the newly-elected Old Catholic curés of Geneva, took the oaths, on Tuesday, before the Council of State, and will be installed on Sunday next.

M. Theophile Gérard, a Chasseur Éclairé of Liège, has won the grand prize of honour, which is contested for by the successful competitors in the Tir National at Brussels.

The Mexican Congress has sanctioned constitutional amendments separating Church and State, abolishing oaths, prohibiting monasteries, and banishing the Jesuits.

The Maharajah of Jeypore has commissioned Mr. Forsyth, of Baker-street, to execute a bronze statue, 8 ft. 6 in. high of the late Lord Mayo. It is to be erected in Bombay.

It is reported that Marshal MacMahon consents to act as arbitrator between England and Portugal in the question relative to the Bay of Lorenzo-Marques, east coast of Africa.

The International Juridical Congress at Brussels was opened yesterday week at the Townhall, by M. Vischers, formerly Minister of State. Mr. Dudley Field and the Burgomaster of Brussels spoke. A dinner was afterwards given by the Town Council. At the business meeting letters from the King of the Belgians, Count Sclopis, and others were read.

Messrs. Forrest, the well-known builders of life-boats, have constructed for the Government a number of large surf-boats to be sent out with the Ashantee expedition.

A Reuter's telegram from Lisbon says the Portuguese Government will not take part in the special exhibition of Portuguese wines in London in 1874, on account of insufficient time for preparation.

The violent storm that prevailed in the North Atlantic in August and was felt all along the seaboard is computed to have caused the loss of 600 lives and the destruction of 1122 vessels and 900 buildings.

A committee has been formed for organising a pilgrimage from Nice to Jerusalem and the Holy Places. The pilgrimage will extend over three months, and each person taking part in it will have to contribute 1800*fr.* (£72). It is confined to men.

The Royal Court of Jersey has decided that every shareholder in the Mercantile Bank (which stopped payment) is an insolvent debtor, but it is still thought that an effort will be made to arrange the payment of a composition.

Major-General W. S. R. Norcott, C.B., has, by an order in the Gazette, been appointed Lieutenant-Governor of the Island of Jersey, in the room of Major-General Guy, C.B., whose period of service has expired.

The Secretary of State for the Colonies announces, through the Emigration Commissioners, that grants of land by the Government of Natal to military and other immigrants will be discontinued, and no pastoral lease, on any terms whatever, will be granted in future.

Cuba has been visited by a destructive storm, which caused the sea to break over vessels leaving the harbour, and to drive some of them ashore. A lighthouse was overthrown, and great damage done to telegraph lines on the island. A hurricane has raged in Southern Hayti, causing great destruction of houses and shipping.

Galvani says that the report that Queen Isabella was lately nearly losing her life in an attempt to save her son's life at a watering-place in the Atlantic is contradicted. Her Majesty was in Paris at the time, and Prince Alphonso at Vienna. Queen Isabella was probably confounded with the Queen of Portugal, to whom, as recorded elsewhere, an accident of the kind happened.

Mr. Charles Malcolm Kennedy, of the Foreign Office, is appointed, by an order published in the London Gazette, her Majesty's Commissioner to attend the commission which is to meet at Paris, under article 4 of the new Anglo-French Treaty of Commerce; and Mr. Henry Austin Lee, of the Foreign Office, to be an acting third secretary in the diplomatic service while employed abroad.

The ship Winifred, 3000 tons burden, sailed from Gravesend on the 4th inst. for Brisbane, Queensland. The Winifred is the 119th vessel that has sailed under the land-order system of emigration, and under the immediate direction of the Queensland Government Office, 32, Charing-cross, London. Messrs. Taylor, Bethell, and Roberts have received a telegram announcing the safe arrival at Brisbane of the London line clipper Indus, after a passage of eighty-five days, with upwards of 500 passengers. There had been no deaths.

Private advices from Zanzibar up to the 17th ult. report the capture of a slaver off Lamoo by the Governor of that place, with a cargo of 217 slaves. This is a most satisfactory proof that the Sultan of Zanzibar and his officials on the coast are acting up to the late treaty with Great Britain for the abolition of the transport of slaves. Through the same medium we learn that letters had been received at Zanzibar from the Livingstone Search Expedition up to July 24, at which date Lieutenant Cameron and his party were within a fortnight's march of Unyanyembe. All well.

The death of Count Flavigny, president of the Society for the Relief of the Sick and Wounded, is announced from Paris; Bishop Christoph Florentius Koett died at Fulda on Tuesday morning, aged seventy-three years; the death is announced also of Dr. Reischl, Professor of Ethical Theology at the University of Munich; and of the Rev. Dr. Herman Schmettau, who was for seventeen years the foreign secretary of the Evangelical Alliance, having formerly been German chaplain at Lisbon. The American papers announce the death of Admiral Winslow, who commanded the Kearsarge when she sank the Alabama; and of Mr. John B. Baldwin, who was Speaker of the Confederate House of Representatives, and, after the war, Speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates.

A letter from Lisbon, dated the 4th inst., gives an account of an alarming accident which befel the Queen of Portugal and the Royal Princes two days previously. On the afternoon of Thursday, it says, her Majesty and her infant sons, who were staying at the watering-place of Cascaes, were walking on the beach of Mexilhoeiro, near the rocks known as the Boca do Inferno (Mouth of Hell). The place is full of basins, which are always filled with water. The full force of the Atlantic dashes on the beach, and waves often mount the highest rocks. The young Princes ran along the sands and left the Queen behind, when a wave rushed among the rocks, and, surrounding the Princes, carried them into one of the deep basins. The Queen, seeing the peril of her sons, ran to save them, but her dress catching on a rocky point, she fell into the water, but still managed to grasp the Infante Dom Carlos. Fortunately, the assistant keeper of the Guid lighthouse saw the disaster, rushed into the water, and managed, with some difficulty, to bring the two Princes to the shore, afterwards assisting the Queen out of the water. The Queen was carried to the palace enveloped in sheets, and it was some time before she recovered from the effects of the fright. Afterwards she sent a special messenger to the King to inform him of the accident. As soon as the letter had been read, his Majesty conferred upon the lighthouse-keeper the order of the Tower and Sword. The Queen also ordered her treasurer to give him £100, and the authorities will promote him to a more remunerative post.

There was a great gathering of Wesleyans at Reading on Wednesday, the occasion being the opening of a new chapel, which has been erected at a cost of nearly £8000. The edifice was designed by an amateur, the Rev. J. P. Johnson, of Wood-green, London.

The free library at South Shields was opened on Wednesday by Alderman Glover, the Mayor, who was accompanied by members of the Corporation, the committee of the free library, and a number of ladies and gentlemen. After the ceremony the Mayor and Mayoress entertained about 150 ladies and gentlemen at breakfast.

A delegate meeting, representing the whole of the miners of Scotland, was held at Glasgow on Wednesday. The majority of those present advocated a general demand for an increase of pay; but, acting on the advice of Mr. Macdonald, it was agreed to endeavour first to obtain an advance in those places where the rate of wages is now below the average.

THE CHURCH.

Mr. Lowe is gazetted an Ecclesiastical Commissioner for England.

The Ven. William Pollock, D.D., died on Saturday last at Claughton, near Birkenhead, after a protracted illness.

Her Majesty has forwarded £75 towards the fund for a memorial to the late Rev. S. B. Gobat, Vicar of Seaford, and late Vicar of Is-y-coed, near Wrexham, where he died in August before removing to his new living. He was a son of the Bishop of Jerusalem. Mr. Gladstone has also subscribed £10.

A window for the south transept of Bath Abbey, which is in course of restoration, was promised by a lady in Bath, in 1872, in commemoration of the restoration to health of the Prince of Wales. The window, which is by Messrs. Clayton and Bell, has just been completed, and adds greatly to the adornment of this very ancient and beautiful edifice.

The annual meeting of the Hereford Diocesan Association was held at the Shire Hall, Hereford, on Tuesday afternoon—the Bishop of Hereford in the chair. Sir John Pakington, in moving the adoption of the report, ventured to think that in the history of the Church of England there was no nobler passage than that which recorded the origin and history of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel.

The foundation of a new district church, St. Mark's, South Shields, was laid, on the 18th ult., by Sir Hedworth Williamson. The work was in a great measure started by the Rev. Robert Green, Vicar of Longhorsley, who gave the site, worth £500, and £100 more to the building fund. A site of an acre in extent for a vicarage and £1500 have also been granted by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

Amongst other princely gifts bestowed by the Earl of Dudley towards the restoration and beautifying of Worcester Cathedral may be mentioned a pulpit, which, from the costly nature of the materials and richness of the sculpture, will surpass anything of the kind in England. The design is by Sir George Gilbert Scott, R.A.; and Mr. Forsyth, of Baker-street, is the sculptor. It is expected to be finished by Easter next.

The Church Congress concluded its sitting at Bath yesterday week. Among the subjects of discussion in the morning were "The Life of Godliness: Intellectual, Devotional, Practical," introduced by the Rev. J. Griffiths. Among the speakers were the Bishops of Manchester and Chichester. In the afternoon the religious wants and claims of children were discussed. The Mayor held a reception at the Assembly Rooms in the evening. The total number of members and associates was 6491, the highest yet reached. Next year's meeting will be at Brighton.

A meeting of the clergy and laity of the archdeaconry of Ely was held, at Cambridge, on Tuesday afternoon—the Mayor presiding—at which it was agreed to present a farewell address to the Bishop of the diocese on his translation to the see of Winchester. This document spoke of the wisdom, loving care, and self-denying zeal shown by his Lordship during his tenure of the see of Ely, and the choice of Mr. Gladstone in selecting the Bishop for the more important diocese of Winchester was generally commended.

The parish church of Brandon, Suffolk, was reopened, on St. Michael's Day, by the Bishop of Ely, after an expenditure upon it by Mr. J. D. Wyatt, architect, of 2000*gs.* Of this sum the Rev. W. F. Crocker, Rector, gave £500; Mr. W. Angerstein, £200; and Messrs. W. and J. Wood, £200, and a stained-glass window to the memory of their father. As soon as the remaining £350 is liquidated, it is proposed to build a north aisle (which is much wanted), and an organ-chamber, to rebuild the steeple, and to purchase an organ.

The Rev. John Salwey, having resigned the curacy of Ewell, Surrey, on his appointment as secretary to the London Diocesan Home Mission Society, has been presented by the inhabitants with a handsome clock and a purse of £200; also a gift of books from the teachers and scholars of the Sunday and day schools, in testimony of their high appreciation of his valuable services. The pupil teachers and children of the school of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields have presented the Rev. R. Hay Hill, one of the curates, with a handsome testimonial, on the occasion of his retirement from his curacy.

St. George's Church, Kidderminster, was reopened for Divine service on Sunday, the 5th inst., after having been closed for four weeks for the purpose of undergoing renovation. A handsome altar-cloth of crimson velvet, richly embroidered, has been presented by the ladies of the congregation, and new alms-bags and office-books by the Rev. J. L. Chesshire, a former curate of the parish. Light screens of brass and iron (manufactured by Messrs. Jones and Willis) have been erected on the north and south sides of the sacristy; these are the gift of some past and present Kidderminster clergy (the Bishop of Rochester amongst the number) and members of the congregation, and are intended as a memorial to the late Vicar, the Rev. C. J. M. Mottram. The organ has also been put into thorough repair.

The Bishop of Rochester made his periodical charge to the clergy of his diocese, in his cathedral church at Rochester, on Tuesday morning. He spoke at great length upon the subject of confession—a practice which he altogether disapproved, except in manner provided by the law of the Church, wherein it was made the exception, not the rule. He congratulated the diocese on the fact that the religious education of the youth of the diocese had not suffered, owing to their exertions as a Church, under the new educational system. He also touched upon his mission fund, stating that, owing to subscriptions for a certain period having now almost expired, fresh contributions were much needed. Alluding to the Public Worship Facilities Bill, he denied that the Bishops' conduct respecting it was actuated by any wish to acquire increased powers. In conclusion, he expressed his belief that the Church had such a hold on the hearts of the people that disestablishment was not to be feared; what they must endeavour to avert, was disruption from within.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

OXFORD.

The four vacant open classical scholarships at Lincoln, of the annual value of £80 each, have been awarded as follow:—W. S. Lyon, Christ's Hospital; C. E. Brown, Bristol Grammar School; A. Lowe, Lancing; E. F. Lankester, St. Paul's School. H. C. Barnes (Commoner), of Trinity, and late of Durham School, has been elected to a scholarship at this college, in addition to the gentlemen previously named. The scholarship is of the annual value of £80. The Tatham Scholarship, worth about £52 per annum, was at the same time awarded to F. S. N. Bousfield, from Winchester.

The exhibition offered by Worcester to those senior candidates successively at the recent Oxford local examinations who shall have obtained the highest place in the first division of the general list, provided they have been placed in the first division of one at least of the first four sections of the examination, has been accepted by W. J. Salter, fifth in order of merit, who was educated at the College School, Taunton. This exhibition was offered to the daughter of Professor Rogers, who was first on the list, but she declined it.

To the classical demyships at Magdalen, value £75 per annum—J. H. Chambers, Magdalen College School; I. M. Moriarty, Brighton College; C. A. Swan, Eton College; G. Hughes, the Liverpool Institute. Proxime accessit—H. Wilks, Clifton College. To the mathematical demyships, value £75 per annum, tenable for five years—W. C. Partridge, Wolverhampton School, and L. Treffery, commoner, of Magdalen. To the natural science demyship, value £95 per annum, tenable for five years—W. Wansborough-Jones, Clifton College. To the exhibition in natural science, value £75 per annum, tenable for five years—F. J. Bell, Christ's Hospital.

To the Mathematical Postmastership at Merton, value £40 per annum, and tenable for five years—J. R. Maguire, Cheltenham College. Proxime accessit—G. P. A. Blomfield, Malvern College. To the Physical Science Postmasterships, value £50 per annum, tenable for five years—F. J. Bell, Christ's Hospital, and W. Carter, Blackburn Science School.

From the above it will be seen that three men have been elected at two places—viz., G. Hughes, from the Liverpool Institute, to Queen's and Magdalen; F. J. Bell, from Christ's Hospital, to Magdalen and Merton; and J. R. Maguire, from Cheltenham, to Queen's and Merton. It is stated that Messrs. Bell and Hughes have since elected to enter at Magdalen, and Mr. Maguire at Merton.

The following elections to scholarships were made, on Tuesday, at Jesus College:—Natural Science (open)—Mr. E. Poulton, from Mr. Watson's school, Reading. Classical (Welsh)—Mr. O. Owen, commoner of the college; Mr. W. F. Evans, Cowbridge School; Mr. J. C. Evans, Bangor School. Mathematical (Welsh)—Mr. R. F. Mathias, the Chapter School, St. David's.

The members of the Union Society intend celebrating their fiftieth anniversary by a banquet to be held, on the 22nd inst., in the Corn Exchange. The Lord Chancellor will preside; and the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Marquis of Salisbury, Earls Beauchamp and Stanhope, the Bishop of Oxford, the Attorney-General, and other distinguished persons will be the guests.

CAMBRIDGE.

The undermentioned have been elected Fellows of Trinity:—Dr. J. J. S. Perowne, Praelector in Theology; also the following, scholars of the college: J. G. Fawcus, R. Appleton, H. Hart, A. J. Mason, J. H. Pratt, R. Archer Hind, and T. O. Harding. The Rev. R. Burn, formerly one of the Senior Fellows and Tutor of the college, has been appointed Praelector in Roman Literature and in Archeology.

The examination at St. John's for sizarships (on entrance) and limited exhibitors has resulted as follows:—Sizars: H. F. Blackett, W. Caister, H. B. Carr, E. T. Doherty, A. Eustace, C. H. Hatfield, J. S. Jones, E. Luce, G. H. Marwood, F. H. Paramore, H. Vivian-Robinson, F. T. Ridley, and F. B. Walters. School Exhibitors (on the Duchess of Somerset's Foundation): F. H. Paramore and F. T. Ridley, Hereford School; T. W. Thomas, Marlborough School; R. Jeffrey, Manchester School. On Dr. Dowman's Foundation: G. H. Marwood, Pocklington School.

A correspondent writes in defence of the claim of Durham to rank with the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge. He says:—"Durham, like the older Universities, but therein differing from London, requires residence from all aspirants to its degrees. It has a corporate existence of Warden, Fellows, and Scholars. Its discipline is regulated by proctors; its degrees are allowed by Royal charters."

At a meeting of the Edinburgh University Court, the income arising from the late Sir David Baxter's bequest of £20,000 to the Faculty of Arts was divided into twenty-five parts, and allocated to fourteen different professors. A minute of the Senatus Academicus, dated Aug. 1, was received, suspending "in hoc statu the matriculation of women in the University."

Mr. Disraeli has accepted the invitation of the Lord Provost of Glasgow to a non-political dinner, and it is now settled that the right honourable gentleman will deliver his inaugural address as Lord Rector of Glasgow University on Nov. 19.

The annual meeting of convocation of the Queen's University in Ireland was held on Wednesday, in St. Patrick's Hall, Dublin Castle. Dr. Henry, president of Belfast Queen's College, presided. The report states that no religious sect is now excluded from any State-supported educational institution in that country, and contains a suggestion that the Government should provide for intermediate education.

The Rev. G. C. Bell, the Head Master of Christ's Hospital, delivered, on Thursday week, the inaugural lecture of the present term to the students of the City of London College in Leadenhall-street. The meeting was very well attended, and Mr. Coe, of the Bank of England, was called to the chair.

The annual distribution of prizes at the Albert Middle-Class College at Framlingham, Suffolk, was held on Thursday week, the Earl of Stradbroke in the chair, Lord Henniker and Lieutenant-Colonel Parker, M.P., being also present.

The Rev. Alexander J. D. D'Orsey is lecturer on public reading in the theological department, and Mr. C. J. Plumptre is lecturer on the same subject to the evening classes, at King's College, London.

The third session of the Newcastle College of Science began on Tuesday, presided over by the Dean of Durham. Professor Herschel delivered an address. The necessity for shortly providing more accommodation was considered, and it was understood that an effort was about to be made to raise funds for a new college. The very rev. chairman also mentioned that a College of Agriculture was about to be founded in Central Northumberland in connection with the University of Durham.

Mr. William Weekes Fowler, B.A., scholar of Jesus College, Oxford, has been appointed an assistant master in Repton School.

The proposal to found a middle-class school in the county of Oxford, which emanated from the Duke of Marlborough, has assumed a practical form by the establishment of a company under the Limited Liability Act for the purpose. The Duke of Marlborough is the president, and the trustees are the Earl of Ducie, the Bishop of the diocese, Lord Redesdale, Colonel North, M.P., &c. The capital is £7000, in 700 shares of £10 each; and the title, "The Oxfordshire Central County School." The school is to accommodate one hundred boys, the sons of rural professional men, farmers, and others—the cost not to exceed forty guineas per annum.

At the Meath Church Synod, on Wednesday, in Dublin, Mr. Hans Hamilton Woods handed over to the representative body a sum of £1298 1*5s.* 6*d.*, being the amount, with interest, received by him for the advowson of the parish of Moyglash. "Out of this sum," he stipulated, "the glebe-house and lands are to be bought, and the balance to be invested at 4 per cent, and the interest to go to the sustentation fund for the parish." The Bishop, in addressing the Synod, defended the omission of the Apocrypha from the Irish Lectionary, and the practice, as now legalised, of evening communion.

THE FOUNTAIN OF RAPHAEL DONNER IN THE NEUMARKT, VIENNA.

"THE CHURCH DOOR—SPAIN."
FROM A PHOTOGRAPH, BY GOSFIL AND CO., OF THE PICTURE BY MADRAZO.

A FOUNTAIN IN VIENNA.

The Neumarkt, or New Market-place, in the capital city of Austria, is to be distinguished from the ancient Hoher Markt, which occupies the exact centre, on the site of the Roman castle Vindobona. The New Market is a short distance towards the southern Boulevards, the Opern-Ring, and Karntner-Ring, beyond which you cross the little river, by the Elizabeth Bridge, to the suburban quarter of Wieden. It is sometimes called the Mehlmarkt, as there was always a flour market held in this place. The fountain or basin of water in the middle is adorned with a fine statue of cast lead, by the famous artist Raphael Donner, which represents the virtue of Prudence, supported by four children holding in their arms each a fish, which is spouting water; on the rim of the basin are four large figures, to personify four of the Austrian rivers. This work of sculpture was made in 1631, but the figures were at one time removed to the city armoury, where they were kept many years, till their restoration, in 1801, to their original place.

"THE CHURCH DOOR IN SPAIN."

In the picture by Madrazo, which is engraved after a photograph belonging to Messrs. Goupil and Co., we see a characteristic example of that familiar neighbourhood of sacred to trivial objects so constantly met with in the ecclesiastical associations of a Roman Catholic country in Southern Europe. The embroideress, or lace-worker, sits busy at her task; the little boy is at his play on the pavement below; the strolling minstrel hugs his guitar; the muffled beggars await the dole of charitable visitor; to the temple of Divine grace; the monk or pilgrim is sunk in pious meditation; while the ladies who have paid, or are going to pay, their customary tribute of devotion at the altar exchange some friendly talk on the fashions or scandals of their social world. Behind the curtained portal, with its dim tapestry, is the scene of religious solemnity which all profess to revere; and there is much to suggest contemplative thought in this picture of a "Church Door in Spain."

TANGIER AND MOROCCO.

The port of Tangier, on the Morocco coast of North Africa, is almost forgotten by most Englishmen; but it once belonged to England, having been part of the dowry of Catherine of Braganza, the Portuguese Princess who married our Charles II. in 1662, and its abandonment in 1684 by the English Government was a very unpopular act of his declining reign. It is situated in the narrowest part of the Strait of Gibraltar, not directly opposite that fortress, but thirty miles west-south-west of it, and was possessed alternately by the Moors and the Portuguese during centuries of frequent warfare. The city, picturesquely seated on the east slope of a hill which overlooks the harbour and bay, is built in a square form, with a surrounding wall flanked by towers; its square masses of white masonry, surmounted by domes and minarets, and relieved by the olive or the palm, have a pleasing aspect viewed from the harbour. A sketch of Tangier, with H.M.S. Aurora firing a Royal salute, on the 27th ult., in honour of the accession of the new Emperor of Morocco to his throne, has been sent us by Mr. R. E. Galindo. He contributes one also of a party of militia soldiers, or armed constables, who were sent out by the Pacha of Tangier, in those days, to patrol the neighbouring country and prevent any such disturbances as might have been feared upon a change of government. The two figures in the rear are soldiers in full uniform, with English smooth-bore muskets. The population of Morocco is very mixed, of Berbers or North African aborigines, Arabs, Moors, Jews, and negroes of Soudan. Only its northern part, the province of Fez, is much visited by European traders or travellers.

OWENS COLLEGE, MANCHESTER.

A portion of the new buildings at Greenhays, Oxford-road, Manchester, for the accommodation of this college, which was founded more than twenty years ago by the bequest of the late Mr. John Owens, has been completed and opened. The architect is Mr. Waterhouse; the style of his design is shown in our illustration. The opening ceremony took place on Tuesday week in one of the lecture halls. It was presided over by the Duke of Devonshire. Mr. Thomas Ashton, chairman of the committee for the extension and additional endowment of the college, handed over the custody of the new building to the council of directors. Professor J. G. Greenwood, principal of the college, delivered an address upon the value and right direction of university studies. Other addresses followed from Professor Scott (president of the Lancashire Independent College), the Bishop of Manchester, Sir J. P. Kay-Shuttleworth, Sir B. Brodie, the Dean of Durham, Dr. Storrar, Mr. C. S. Roundell (secretary to the Universities Endowed Commission), and Mr. Henry Cole, C.B. The new buildings have cost upwards of £100,000, and special attention has been bestowed upon the construction of the chemical laboratory, which is favourably compared with the great Government laboratories in Germany. A soirée was held in the evening, at which short lectures, illustrated by experiments, were given by Professors Roscoe, Balfour Stewart, and Ward.

Mr. E. A. Bernays, the civil engineer at Chatham Dockyard, has been appointed superintendent civil engineer at Chatham and Sheerness, in succession to Colonel Pasley, R.E., appointed director of engineering and architectural works at the Admiralty, vice Sir A. Clarke.

At a meeting on Wednesday of the Sustentation Fund Committee of the Irish Presbyterian Church, held in Belfast—the Rev. William Johnstone, Moderator of the General Assembly, in the chair—the convener reported that the sum received from the several congregations at this date was upwards of £2000 in advance of that received at the same date last year.

The funded debt of the United Kingdom amounted on March 31, 1873, to £726,584,423, and the unfunded debt (in Exchequer Bills and Bonds) to £4,829,100, making a total of £731,413,523, which is above 4½ millions less than at the corresponding period of the preceding year. The annual charge for interest on this debt and for management of the debt is rather more than 22 millions sterling. But the debt is really larger than the amount above stated, and the annual charge entailed by it exceeds £26,700,000, because, in addition to interest on the permanent and floating debt—the funded and the unfunded—we pay upwards of 4½ millions sterling as Terminable Annuities, whereby we discharge annually a part of the principal along with the interest. Upwards of £300,000 of this payment for Terminable Annuities consists of life annuities, sold to the public at the National Debt office, and some of these are, of course, falling in and ceasing from time to time by the death of the annuitants. But the great item is that of over 3½ millions for annuities granted for a term of years, ending in 1885.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The result of the Cesarewitch once more appears to leave the Cambridgeshire almost at the mercy of the winner of the long race; and, in spite of the utter failure of Cecil, Cherie, Suvanos, and indeed of all previous Cesarewitch winners, to secure the double event, King Lud is firmly established as first favourite for the Cambridgeshire. It would be impossible to find any horse more likely to accomplish the unprecedented feat of carrying off both handicaps. He showed fine speed, both in the Cesarewitch and, later in the week, in his match A.F.; he will have only 4 lb. more to carry than in the Cesarewitch; and his weight (7 st. 9 lb.) will enable him to be ridden by some powerful jockey, instead of by a shivering feather-weight, who would probably be half frozen at the post, while numerous false starts were taking place, and have lost the race before the flag fell. Many people assert that the training necessary to enable a horse to win a race over two miles and a quarter renders it impossible for him to be successful over half that distance only a fortnight later, and if King Lud fails as lamentably as most of his predecessors have done, this theory must be accepted as correct.

The racing during the Second October week was decidedly better than usual, the sport on Thursday and Friday showing little falling off. Laburnum (8 st. 12 lb.) beat a fair field over the Cambridgeshire course in rare style, and it is quite clear that he can race when he is in the humour, which, unfortunately for Baron Rothschild, does not happen more than once or twice in the season. The Newmarket Oaks, in which Hannah and so many other hot favourites have come to grief, very nearly furnished another startling sensation. Odds of 5 to 1 were freely laid on Marie Stuart, who on all previous running ought to have presented 7 lb. to Wild Myrtle and Silver Ring with at the least difficulty. Mr. Crawford's filly was beaten a long way from home; but at the distance Silver Ring closed with the favourite, and Osborne had to sit down and ride her in earnest, amid the greatest excitement. Marie Stuart, however, finished with her usual indomitable gameness, and Silver Ring, dying away in the last few strides, was beaten cleverly by a length. It is probable that the Russell mare had not got over her exertions in the Cesarewitch; while Silver Ring must be coming back to her two-year-old form, which entitled her to rank as one of the best fillies of last season. The Newmarket Derby on Friday was one of the most interesting races of the week, and produced a very large amount of speculation. It was quite clear that if Boiard were in his best form, Kaiser and Doncaster could not possibly give him 7 lb.; while the severity of the course—the last mile and a half of the B.C.—precluded any idea of Andrei or Trombone proving successful. The difficulty which Boiard experienced in beating Franz Tisseur in his last race in France, coupled with the latter's subsequent easy defeat by Montargis, looked as though all the hard work he has done this year were beginning to tell on him, and the result of the race conclusively proved that he was about 21 lb. worse than when he won the Grand Prix, for Kaiser entered home four lengths in front of him, and Doncaster, who has lost every vestige of form since his grand struggle for the St. Leger, being absolutely beaten off last. After his excellent running in the Middle Park Plate, the Prendergast Stakes looked a certainty for Spectator, as he had incurred no penalty; yet he could only manage to run a dead-heat with Feu d'Amour, from whom he received 6 lb. If we could be certain that Spectator ran exactly the same horse in each of these two events, we should be bound to believe that Feu d'Amour is slightly superior to Couronne de Fer; but, as the results of the Champagne and Clearwell Stakes forbid this supposition, we must conclude that Spectator was stale and jaded from the effects of his severe race on the Wednesday. Newry ran very badly in a Juvenile Handicap; and, as might have been expected, King Lud, in receipt of 14 lb., fairly played with Kingcraft in a match A.F. It was the worst match we ever remember to have seen made, for there is scarcely a four-year-old in training to whom Kingcraft could concede a stone, and had they run at level weights the result would have been precisely the same.

There was a general meeting of the Jockey Club in the Second October week, but the two motions of which notice had been given were postponed for consideration until the Houghton Meeting. We shall allude further to them next week, when they have been decided, merely stating in the meantime that Mr. Chaplin's attempt to abolish the Middle Park Plate—a race which has never been favourably regarded by the Jockey Club—is a very unpopular one; while turf men in general agree with Mr. Alexander that the racing season having been curtailed, no restriction need be placed on the time at which two-year-olds are allowed to run.

On Thursday Mr. Reginald Herbert's match to row from Maidenhead Bridge to Westminster Bridge in twelve hours for a bet of £1000 came off. The distance is about forty-nine miles, and it was evident that the backer of time had made a very bad match, for it is a feat that any decent oarsman ought to accomplish easily; and, in spite of a long rest at the last lock, Mr. Herbert won, with nearly two hours to spare.

EDUCATION.

An order is published in the Gazette containing the regulations to be observed at the triennial election of school boards in boroughs and parishes. One of the provisions is that the expenses of the elections shall be paid out of the school fund.

Application is to be made to the Education Department for an order to increase the number of members of the London School Board, in order to give two additional representatives to Lambeth. This decision was arrived at in opposition to the recommendation of the statistical committee, on whose report the matter was discussed.

Mr. S. Morley, M.P., Sir John Bennett, Mr. W. Sutton Gover, and Alderman Cotton have issued an address to the electors of the city of London in which they solicit re-election as members of the London School Board. No opposition is spoken of, nor does it appear that there is likely to be any.

Two new schools, built by the Sheffield School Board, at a cost of £18,000, were opened on Monday, and 600 scholars were at once enrolled.

It was stated at a meeting of the Liverpool School Board, on Monday, that some correspondence had taken place with two gentlemen who were desirous of having the kinder-garten system adopted in the board schools, and that an experimental attempt of this kind might soon be made.

Last Saturday the foundation-stones of four new schools were laid at Exeter by members of the school board, and these buildings, when completed, will give additional accommodation for about 1200 children.

The proposal for the establishment of a girls' model school in Manchester has taken definite shape, and at a meeting of subscribers and supporters of the movement, held on Wednesday, the provisional constitution and rules were adopted.

The railway line and bridge connecting the dockyard and the gun wharf at Chatham were opened on Wednesday.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

The Court was occupied on Thursday week until the time of adjournment with the cross-examination and re-examination of Captain Brown. He was questioned at much length as to the circumstances under which he saw the brown mark on Roger Tichborne, and as to what passed on board the Bella on the morning of her departure from Rio. Having been cautioned by Mr. Hawkins to carefully consider his reply, the witness deliberately swore that he was on board the Bella when she left Rio, on April 21, 1854, and that Captains Birkett, Oates, and Hoskins, and Roger Tichborne all came on board drunk, and said he defied the whole world to say he was not speaking the truth. He also said he was in the service of Hobbs, ship-chandler at Rio, as shipping or boarding clerk, from January, 1853, to Aug. 12, 1854. Mr. Hawkins read the application of the witness, in August, 1861, to the Local Marine Board of London to be examined for the purpose of obtaining a certificate of competency to act as master ordinary for the foreign trade. In accordance with the regulations, he gave a list of the vessels he had served in, with the dates. The list, which was a very long one, contained this entry:—"The Equity, of Boston, mate, from Dec. 15, 1853, to Jan. 15, 1855—five years and sixteen days." In reply to the learned counsel, the witness said he still adhered to his statement that he was a ship's chandler clerk at Rio during 1853 and 1854. The first date ought to have been Dec. 15, 1854. He also said that all the previous entries were fictitious, in order to make up the necessary time required by the Board of Trade. In re-examination he was asked to look at the defendant's thumb, and, the defendant holding out his left hand, the witness said that was the kind of thumb he saw at Rio. Having been reminded that he had said it was the thumb of the right hand, the witness said he thought it was. Dr. Kenaley was proceeding with his re-examination when the Court adjourned.

Captain Brown fell into another discrepancy the next day. He stated to Dr. Kenaley that all his papers, up to 1864, were lost in the shipwreck. Shortly afterwards Mr. Hawkins produced two documents bearing the witness's signature, with an indorsement that they had been deposited at the local marine office in August, 1864. Peter Chick, of Hambledon, near Tichborne, deposed that between 1842 and 1853 he was accustomed to call with jewellery at Tichborne House, and that he frequently saw Roger, both there and at Gosford's. He recognised the defendant, and had tested him by his knowledge of events in the previous history of Roger. Ann Markham professed to have known the Tichborne family since 1838, to have frequently seen Roger in Paris when a boy, to have been introduced to him in Dublin, and to have met him several times afterwards in London. She reiterated that she saw him and his cousin in the Exhibition together in June, 1851. When the Lord Chief Justice observed that Roger did not obtain his leave at Clonmel till July 4, Mrs. Markham owned that she might be mistaken. Margaret Hornibrook and Ann Adams, wives of old Carabiniers, declared that the defendant was the Mr. Tichborne who had been an officer in that regiment. George Nash, an ex-digger, just returned from Egypt, declared that when passing through Melbourne, in 1854, he boarded a ship in the harbour called the Osprey. Out of his own family he had not mentioned this remarkable occurrence till about a week ago. He could not give the address of the friend to whom he had made the communication.

The cross-examination of George Nash was continued on Monday, by Mr. Hawkins, chiefly with regard to the Osprey, which he said he saw in Melbourne harbour in July, 1854. He saw no cargo, and could not give the slightest idea how low she was in the water. Was on board twenty minutes, but remained merely on the deck. Was not sure whether he saw her name on the quarter or stern, but he saw it on one or the other. The name was in the ordinary letters, but he could not describe them. Richard Goodyear, landlord of the Shipwrights' Arms, West Cowes, was in Melbourne, as a corporal in the Royal Engineers, in 1854. On July 22 or 23 in that year he remembered seven or eight persons being put on board the steam-tender Comet from a three-masted schooner, whose name he did not know. One of them was a landsman, but he had no recollection of him. Mr. Russell, a merchant, who was in Melbourne in June or July, 1854, recollected two Ospreys being then in Hobson's Bay. He bought the smaller one, but went on board the larger from curiosity, and the latter, he believed, was afterwards lost on the eastern coast of Australia. Mr. Liardet, a witness on the last trial, recollected only one Osprey. Mr. Lockhart, a Scotch manufacturer, was a passenger on board the little Comet steamer when the sailors were taken on board; he thought some of them were Welshmen. The last witness examined was Thomas Dornay, the chief clerk to the Tipperary police, formerly a hair-cutter, who pointed out a scar on the head of the defendant, whom he recognised by that as Lieutenant Tichborne, whose hair he cut.

Tuesday was a remarkable day in the history of this extraordinary case; for it was marked by the appearance of the "mate," as he was called, or, as he turns out to be, the steward of the Osprey, to prove that the defendant was actually picked up by that vessel and carried to Melbourne. His account was in substance this:—That in April, 1854, the Osprey, a vessel from New York, about 400 or 500 miles from the coast of Brazil, came upon a boat containing six men (not nine as the defendant said—eight besides himself), including the defendant, who, with the others, was taken up into the vessel and carried to Melbourne. The witness swore further that, as the defendant was delirious and helpless, he had to wash him, and that he washed him repeatedly, and that there were no tattoo marks upon him; but that there was a mark upon his body where the "brown mark" has been described to be, but of an "olive" colour. He gave as his name, the witness said, "Mr. Rogers," and he never mentioned the name of Tichborne. The witness stated that the defendant was landed by the captain himself in one of the boats of the vessel—not, as the witnesses stated on the previous day, by a steamer plying in the harbour; and as he himself went away the same day to the diggings with two of the crew of the Bella and two of the Osprey, he never saw him again until quite lately. In the course of his cross-examination, which lasted until the end of the day, and was not then concluded (the Crown counsel intimating that they had been led by Dr. Kenaley's opening to expect an Osprey from New Bedford), he stated that he had seen the captain of the Osprey he spoke of at New York in 1864 (though he was since dead), and several other persons connected with it—the part owner, the brokers, the stevedores, &c.; and that, being at Melbourne in 1865—the year the defendant first set up his "claim"—he found one of the crew, who had prospered at the diggings, living there in comfort, having been in the colony ever since. As to himself, he said, he came over here on July 5 last from Ostend, seeking a cheap passage to America, and that, happening to hear in a public-house about the defendant as having set up that he was lost in the Bella and had been picked up by the Osprey, he thought he might have seen the Mr. Rogers he had known, and at once found out the defendant's advisers, who took his statement on

2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, 2020, 2021, 2022, 2023, 2024, 2025, 2026, 2027, 2028, 2029, 2030, 2031, 2032, 2033, 2034, 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039, 2040, 2041, 2042, 2043, 2044, 2045, 2046, 2047, 2048, 2049, 2050, 2051, 2052, 2053, 2054, 2055, 2056, 2057, 2058, 2059, 2060, 2061, 2062, 2063, 2064, 2065, 2066, 2067, 2068, 2069, 2070, 2071, 2072, 2073, 2074, 2075, 2076, 2077, 2078, 2079, 2080, 2081, 2082, 2083, 2084, 2085, 2086, 2087, 2088, 2089, 2090, 2091, 2092, 2093, 2094, 2095, 2096, 2097, 2098, 2099, 2100, 2101, 2102, 2103, 2104, 2105, 2106, 2107, 2108, 2109, 2110, 2111, 2112, 2113, 2114, 2115, 2116, 2117, 2118, 2119, 2120, 2121, 2122, 2123, 2124, 2125, 2126, 2127, 2128, 2129, 2130, 2131, 2132, 2133, 2134, 2135, 2136, 2137, 2138, 2139, 2140, 2141, 2142, 2143, 2144, 2145, 2146, 2147, 2148, 2149, 2150, 2151, 2152, 2153, 2154, 2155, 2156, 2157, 2158, 2159, 2160, 2161, 2162, 2163, 2164, 2165, 2166, 2167, 2168, 2169, 2170, 2171, 2172, 2173, 2174, 2175, 2176, 2177, 2178, 2179, 2180, 2181, 2182, 2183, 2184, 2185, 2186, 2187, 2188, 2189, 2190, 2191, 2192, 2193, 2194, 2195, 2196, 2197, 2198, 2199, 2200, 2201, 2202, 2203, 2204, 2205, 2206, 2207, 2208, 2209, 2210, 2211, 2212, 2213, 2214, 2215, 2216, 2217, 2218, 2219, 2220, 2221, 2222, 2223, 2224, 2225, 2226, 2227, 2228, 2229, 2230, 2231, 2232, 2233, 2234, 2235, 2236, 2237, 2238, 2239, 2240, 2241, 2242, 2243, 2244, 2245, 2246, 2247, 2248, 2249, 2250, 2251, 2252, 2253, 2254, 2255, 2256, 2257, 2258, 2259, 2260, 2261, 2262, 2263, 2264, 2265, 2266, 2267, 2268, 2269, 2270, 2271, 2272, 2273, 2274, 2275, 2276, 2277, 2278, 2279, 2280, 2281, 2282, 2283, 2284, 2285, 2286, 2287, 2288, 2289, 2290, 2291, 2292, 2293, 2294, 2295, 2296, 2297, 2298, 2299, 2300, 2301, 2302, 2303, 2304, 2305, 2306, 2307, 2308, 2309, 2310, 2311, 2312, 2313, 2314, 2315, 2316, 2317, 2318, 2319, 2320, 2321, 2322, 2323, 2324, 2325, 2326, 2327, 2328, 2329, 2330, 2331, 2332, 2333, 2334, 2335, 2336, 2337, 2338, 2339, 2340, 2341, 2342, 2343, 2344, 2345, 2346, 2347, 2348, 2349, 2350, 2351, 2352, 2353, 2354, 2355, 2356, 2357, 2358, 2359, 2360, 2361, 2362, 2363, 2364, 2365, 2366, 2367, 2368, 2369, 2370, 2371, 2372, 2373, 2374, 2375, 2376, 2377, 2378, 2379, 2380, 2381, 2382, 2383, 2384, 2385, 2386, 2387, 2388, 2389, 2390, 2391, 2392, 2393, 2394, 2395, 2396, 2397, 2398, 2399, 2400, 2401, 2402, 2403, 2404, 2405, 2406, 2407, 2408, 2409, 2410, 2411, 2412, 2413, 2414, 2415, 2416, 2417, 2418, 2419, 2420, 2421, 2422, 2423, 2424, 2425, 2426, 2427, 2428, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2432, 2433, 2434, 2435, 2436, 2437, 2438, 2439, 2440, 2441, 2442, 2443, 2444, 2445, 2446, 2447, 2448, 2449, 2450, 2451, 2452, 2453, 2454, 2455, 2456, 2457, 2458, 2459, 2460, 2461, 2462, 2463, 2464, 2465, 2466, 2467, 2468, 2469, 2470, 2471, 2472, 2473, 2474, 2475, 2476, 2477, 2478, 2479, 2480, 2481, 2482, 2483, 2484, 2485, 2486, 2487, 2488, 2489, 2490, 2491, 2492, 2493, 2494, 2495, 2496, 2497, 2498, 2499, 2500, 2501, 2502, 2503, 2504, 2505, 2506, 2507, 2508, 2509, 2510, 2511, 2512, 2513, 2514, 2515, 2516, 2517, 2518, 2519, 2520, 2521, 2522, 2523, 2524, 2525, 2526, 2527, 2528, 2529, 2530, 2531, 2532, 2533, 2534, 2535, 2536, 2537, 2538, 2539, 2540, 2541, 2542, 2543, 2544, 2545, 2546, 2547, 2548, 2549, 2550, 2551, 2552, 2553, 2554, 2555, 2556, 2557, 2558, 2559, 2560, 2561, 2562, 2563, 2564, 2565, 2566, 2567, 2568, 2569, 2570, 2571, 2572, 2573, 2574, 2575, 2576, 2577, 2578, 2579, 2580, 2581, 2582, 2583, 2584, 2585, 2586, 2587, 2588, 2589, 2590, 2591, 2592, 2593, 2594, 2595, 2596, 2597, 2598, 2599, 2600, 2601, 2602, 2603, 2604, 2605, 2606, 2607, 2608, 2609, 2610, 2611, 2612, 2613, 2614, 2615, 2616, 2617, 2618, 2619, 2620, 2621, 2622, 2623, 2624, 2625, 2626, 2627, 2628, 2629, 2630, 2631, 2632, 2633, 2634, 2635, 2636, 2637, 2638, 2639, 2640, 2641, 2642, 2643, 2644, 2645, 2646, 2647, 2648, 2649, 2650, 2651, 2652, 2653, 2654, 2655, 2656, 2657, 2658, 2659, 2660, 2661, 2662, 2663, 2664, 2665, 2666, 2667, 2668, 2669, 2670, 2671, 2672, 2673, 2674, 2675, 2676, 2677, 2678, 2679, 2680, 2681, 26

TANGIER BAY, MOROCCO: H.M.S. AURORA FIRING A SALUTE IN HONOUR OF THE NEW EMPEROR.

PRESERVERS OF THE PEACE IN MOROCCO.

NEW OWENS COLLEGE, MANCHESTER.

T H E A S H A N T E E W A R .

UNIFORM FOR THE SOLDIERS OF THE EXPEDITION

ASHANTEE IMPLEMENTS.

A. Sanko, musical instrument. B. Cushion. C. Ashantee Minister's State Bag. D. Fantee Stool, cut out of one solid block of cotton-wood. E, F. War Greegrees or Charms, made of leather and straw worked in. G. Knife of Office, used for human sacrifices: the blade is of iron, having four brass bells attached; the handle of wood, bound and ornamented with brass. H. Native Sword. I. Kroo Boy's Pipe: the bowl is of clay, connected with a gourd by reed tube, and reed for stem. J. Native Chief's Hat, of straw, with grass on the top. K. War Drum and Drumstick. L. Snuff-Mill, a loose ball within the pillars: the whole cut with rough tools out of one solid block of wood.

M. Native Knife. N, O. Greegrees, of leather and straw. Q. Powder Flask, of cow's-horn. R, S. Tennasse Chief's Bow and Spear, Poi Locco; the bow-string is made of wood; the spear is of iron, bound round with leopards' skin. T. Native Harp, with a gourd to soft and improve the sound. U. Native Cap.

NEW MUSIC.

W. C. LEVEY'S POPULAR SONGS.

The May Song ("Antony and Cleopatra").
The Merry Month of May.
The King and the Beggar-Maid.
The Magic of Music.
The Beautiful Dream.
Sent for 2s. each.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

UNDER THE MISTLETOE. Juvenile

Quadrille on Popular Melodies. By CHARLES GODFREY.
Very pretty and very easy: just the thing for juvenile players.
The illustrated title-page is exceedingly good.—Orchestra.
Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

I LOVE MY LOVE. By CIRO PINSUTI.

"Signor Pinsuti has produced nothing happier than the fresh, brilliant song before us. It is tuneful without being commonplace, and it is accompanied in the most masterly fashion."—Queen.
Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

THE ANGEL AT THE WINDOW. By

BERTHOUD TOURS. This much-admired New Song may be had in B flat, for soprano or tenor; also in G, for contralto or baritone. Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

FAVOURITE SONGS by Lady BAKER

(Minima).
THIS WORLD IS FULL OF BEAUTY .. 4s.
WHEN THE BARNHARTS ARE ASLEEP .. 4s.
Half price.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

FRANZ ABT'S NEW SONG for BASS

VOICE WHEN IN THE STILL HOUR OF NIGHT.
Also, "Absence and Return," and "Dream of Angels, Little One," in E flat and C. New Songs by Abt. Sent for 2s. each.
DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

THE BOY AND THE BROOK. New

Song. By J. L. HATTON: The Words by Longfellow. "One of Mr. Hatton's best compositions, and must become popular." Price 4s.; sent free for 24 stamps.
RANSFORD and SONS, 2, Princes-street, Oxford-circus.

ALL MUSIC UNDER HALF PRICE.

Any 4s. piece sent post-free, 1s. 8d.; any 3s. piece, 1s. 3d.; any 2s. 6d. piece, 1s. 1d., including the newest and best music of all publishers. Many pieces of choice music. Catalogues gratis and post-free.—Apply to WALES and McCULLOCH, as above.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT for NICOLE

FRERES' celebrated Instruments. A very choice selection of Boxes, playing the most popular Airs. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and post-free.—11 and 12, Cornhill, London.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT, 22, Ludgate-hill, London.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing best secular and sacred music. Prices 4s. to 12s. 6d. Illustrated list sent in price from 2s. to 20s. 6d. Catalogues gratis and post-free.—Apply to WALES and McCULLOCH, as above.

WATCHES, about Half Price, by eminent makers (McCulloch, Froehlich, Barrand, Dent, &c.), warranted genuine and quite unimpaired. Descriptive Catalogues, with Prices, gratis on application.—WALES and McCULLOCH, 22, Ludgate-hill, London.

BENSON'S WATCHES and CLOCKS.

These far-famed Watches suit all pockets, all tastes, all climates, and the means and occupations of everyone. Two hundred thousand have already been sold, and are in all parts of the world, ranging in price from 2s. to 200s. 6d. See Illustrated Watch and Jewellery Pamphlet, post-free, 2d. each, for prices, &c. Watches sent safe by post to all parts of the world.—Old Bond-street and Ludgate-hill.

OROIDE (Holt's, Registered).—Alberts,

5s. 6d.; Shirt Studs, 2s.; Pencillines, 3s. 6d.; Scarf Pins, 3s. 6d.; Scarf Rings, 2s. 6d.; Whistles, 3s. 6d.; Cluster Rings, 7s. 6d.; Snake Rings, 3s. 6d.; Links, 1s. 6d.; 4s. Illustrated list sent in price from 2s. to 20s. 6d. Catalogues gratis and post-free.—W. HOLT, 35, All Saints-road, Westbourne Park, London, W.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.

The People's Printing Press, for Authors, Amateurs, the Army and Navy, &c. &c. &c. Sent for 2s. each. Catalogues gratis and post-free.—D. G. BERRI, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

CHUBB'S PATENT DETECTOR LOCKS,

Fire and Thief Resisting Safes, and Street-Door Latches. Illustrated Price-Lists sent free.
Chubb and Sons, 57, St. Paul's-churchyard, London; Manchester, Liverpool, and Wolverhampton.

NOTICE.—VIENNA EXHIBITION.

TWO FIRST-PRIZE MEDALS.
THE LITTLE WANDER SEWING-MACHINE.
For its superiority over all others.
Vide "London Gazette," Aug. 26, 1873.
Complete, £4 6s.
Price Lists and all information free.
Chief Office: 4, Great Portland-street, London, W.
Branch Office: 75, East-street, Brighton.

GOLDSMITHS' ALLIANCE, Limited,

11 and 12, Cornhill, London, Manufacturing Silversmiths, have recently finished several New Patterns of SILVER TEA and COFFEE SERVICES of the most elegant design and highest finish. The following are very generally approved:
The Beaded Pattern, with The Oxford Pattern. Beautifully Engraved Shields.
Silver Coffeepot .. 47s. 0
Silver Teapot .. 47s. 0
Silver Sugar Basin .. 13s. 0
Silver Cream Ewer .. 8s. 0
Silver Cream Ewer .. 8s. 0
Silver Coffeepot .. 47s. 0
Silver Teapot .. 47s. 0
Silver Sugar Basin .. 13s. 0
Silver Cream Ewer .. 8s. 0
Silver Cream Ewer .. 8s. 0
£44 10 0 £48 10 0
Silver Table and Presentation Plate, including Water, Ink-stand, Price Lists, Engraving, and Drawings, and estimates of which will be forwarded on application.

SECONDHAND SILVER.—An

Assortment of Tea and Coffee Services, from 420; Tea Services, from 215; Tea Pots, 27s.; Cruet Frames, 45s. 6d.; Water, 42s.; Cream Jugs, 30s. An assortment of Spoons and Forks.
O. A. GODWIN, 304, High Holborn, London. Established 1801.

MAPPIN BROTHERS, Manufacturers

SILVER PLATE.
Tea and Coffee Services.
Tea Trays and Water.
Spoons and Forks.
Dishes and Dish Covers.
Epergnes, Fruit Stands, &c. &c.
CUTLERY.
Ivory Table Knives.
Desert Knives and Forks.
Fish do. do.
Fish Carvers.
Canteens of Cutlery, &c. &c.
The Stock they keep in London, at 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge, also at 220, Regent-street, W., is very large and well assorted, being all of first-class quality and design. It is sent direct from their own works, at Bakers-hill, in Sheffield. Illustrated Catalogues sent free by post.
Address 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge; or, 220 Regent-street, W.
Established A.D. 1810 at Sheffield.

GAS CHANDELIERS and GASFITTINGS.

The mansion or cottage fitted throughout. Estimates free.
1. Two-Light Gaseliers, bronze or ormolu, 18s., 24s., 27s., 39s.
2. Three-Light Gaseliers, new patterns, 40s., 52s., 84s., 115s.
3. Five-Light Gaseliers, rich and elegant, 25s., 42s., 95s., 215s.
4. Globe Hall Lights, from 10s. 6d., with sliding dish, from 50s.
5. Gas Cooking-Stoves for families, from 27s. 6d. to £14.
6. Gas Heating-Stoves, requiring no fuel, 24s., 29s., 35s., 55s.
7. Gas Hot-Water Bath, complete; cheap, 48s.; improved, £14 5s.
DEANE and CO.'s complete Illustrated Catalogue free by post.
Deane and Co., 46, King William-street, London Bridge, E.C.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO.,

71 to 75, Brompton-road, COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHERS (Established 1810). Deliver all Country Orders Free, regardless of distance.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO.'S NEW

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, with 600 Designs, forwarded gratis, on application.—71 to 75, Brompton-road, London.

PARQUET FURNITURE.

HOWARD'S PATENT.
Furniture of all descriptions, made of Howard's Patent Parquet, is of the most durable kind, and (being manufactured by machinery) moderate in cost, and of the finest possible quality.
Combining Parquet with Wood Tapestry, residences may be fitted up without either painting or papering.
HOWARD and SONS,
Decorators and Cabinet-makers by Steam power, 25, 26, and 27, Berners-street, London, W.
Midland Buildings, New-street, Birmingham.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

IRISH CONDENSED MILK COMPANY,

NEW AUTUMN GOODS FOR LADIES'
WEAR
MAKTLER, Costumes, Silks, Fancy Dresses.
Pink Velvet, Real Seal, and Cloth Jackets, 14, 16, to 15 ga.
Fragrant Costumes in Shantung, 12, 14, 16, to 44 ga.
Real Dingleorals, Persian Docks, &c., 8, 11, 12 to 42.
Real Irish Poplins (All Colors as d Black), 3s. 9d. per yard.
Pink Silks (wear guaranteed), 3 ga. to 5d.
Pink Velveteens (Velvet Pile), 1s. 11d. to 5s. 9d. per yard.
New Cash Prices in Plain Colors. Patterns forwarded.
CATHERINE and LOMAX, 11, Fleet Street, W.C.

1000 ROMAN SASHES, that were
12s. 9d. each, now selling for 3s. 11d. 100 dozen Two-Button
Kid Gloves, 1s. 11d. per pair. 1000 dozen Hemmed-Stitched, Clean French Cambric Handkerchiefs, at 4s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. half dozen. 500 real Shetland Shawls, 2s. 11d. each, all Colours; worth 5s. 11d. The new Leather and other Belts and Buckles, 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d. each.—BAKER and CRISP, Regent-street.
1000 Bijou Sashes from the Vienna Exhibition, 5s. 6d.; worth 12s. 9d.

BOOTH and FOX'S DOWN COATS, SKIRTS, and VESTS.—Warmth without weight. Elegance, utility, and economy combined. No cold can penetrate a Down Garment. Invaluable to invalids. Beware of imitations. The genuine bear Booth and Fox's name. Sold by all Drapers and Upholsterers.

ODDS and ENDS of all our leading Materials, in Bundles of Thirty Yards, in various lengths from two to six yards, 15s. 9d., 21s., to 42s. the Bundle.

PRETTY FLOWERS.—Superior Bouquets, for Town or Country. Bridal Bouquets from 15s.; Bridesmaids and other Bouquets from 6s. Bouquets from 2s. 6d.
W. HOOPER, 88, Oxford-street, London, W.

than half price. Beautiful Winter Colours, wide width. Price 7½d. per yard. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

YOUNG'S GUINEA DRESSING-GOWNS.
 218. New patterns now ready. The largest.

WANTED, Left-off Clothes, Uniforms,
Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or Gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs.
G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly realized.

NEW MUSIC.

A NEW GALOP BY DALBERT.
PRINCESS MARIE. A New Galop, by CHARLES DALBERT. CHAPPELL and CO. have much pleasure in announcing the immediate publication of the above galop, illustrated with a beautiful portrait of the Princess Marie Alexandrovna of Russia. Price 3s.; post-free, 3s. 6d. This novelty, from the pen of our most renowned composer of dance music, will become equal in popularity to his celebrated "Express." &c.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG BY SANTLEY.
ENGLAND'S GREETING. New Song for Baritone Voice. Words by J. V. Bridgeman; Music by CHARLES SANTLEY. "This song will become a universal favourite." Price 4s.; post-free, 5s.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BOURREE for the Pianoforte, composed by COTSFORD DICK. Price 3s. "A most charming and original composition."
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS BY COTSFORD DICK.
THE VOICE I LOVED. Words by Louis Gray. 3s.
A Beautiful Song for Tenor Voice.
WHEN SHADOWS FLEE AWAY. Words by Gordon Campbell. Post-free for half price.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A LEGEND OF THE LYS.
 Descriptive Cantata. Written by R. Rose, composed by MEYER LUTZ, and performed with the greatest success at Covent Garden Theatre on Monday last. All the favourite songs will shortly be published by
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FRIDOLIN. A Dramatic Cantata, composed by ALBERTO RANDGROVE, performed at the Birmingham Festival with immense success. The Score Complete, for Voice and Pianoforte, paper cover 5s. 6d. Ditto, ditto, bound cloth. 10s. 6d.
"Repose and Peace" (Song by Madame Sherrington) 3s. 6d.
"Wildest Conflicts" (Song by Mr. Santley) 3s. 6d.
PIANOFORTE
 Nava's Three Subjects from "Fridolin" 3s. 6d.
 No. 1. Hunting Chorus.
 No. 2. Chorus of Handmaids.
 No. 3. Dance and Chorus of Villagers.
 N.B.—The separate Chorus and Orchestra Parts may also be had.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, London, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES.
SUNRISE GALOP. Illustrated. 3s.
IVY LEAVES. Polka. Illustrated. 3s.
HAWTHORN BLOSSOMS. Petit Morceau. Illustrated. 3s.
MOONLIT STREAM. Morceau de Salon. Illustrated. 3s.
ALPINE ECHOES. Reminiscence. Illustrated. 3s.
 Post-free, 1s. 6d. each.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LOUISA GRAY'S NEW SONGS.
CHANGED. 3s.
BLIND GIRL'S DREAM. 4s.
IT WAS EARLY IN THE SPRINGTIME. 3s.
 Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOING HOME GALOP. Just Out. A New Galop by W. H. MONTGOMERY. Played at Riviere's Promenade Concerts with immense success. Price 3s.; post-free, 1s. 6d.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW MARCH ROMAINE, companion piece to the celebrated "Silver Trumpets." Composed expressly for the Pope. Price for Piano, Organ (with pedal obbligato), or Harmonium, 3s.; Piano Duet, 4s. Full Orchestra, 5s.; Septet, 3s.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.
ORIGINAL VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM, composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post-free 5s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is written."
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES.
 CHAPPELL and CO. have an immense stock of Secondhand Pianofortes, by Broadwood, Collard, Broad, Chappell, and other good makers, just returned from the Continent, which they can offer at exceptionally low prices. Discount for cash.—50, New Bond-street, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany Case. Price TWENTY GUINEAS. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. It has the merit of standing well in tune, and is capable of enduring hard school practice without going out of order.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT PIANO, with Folding Keyboard, Check Action, Trichord Treble in Solid Mahogany or Black Canadian Walnut Case, THIRTY GUINEAS; or in Maple, THIRTY-FIVE GUINEAS. Constructed for Ships' Cabins, to occupy the smallest possible space, and to stand the damp of a sea voyage; the back is strengthened with iron bars and metallic plates, and the whole of the mechanism is of the best quality.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DULCIANA ORGAN HARMONIUM, by Alexandra.—This New Instrument is especially adapted to the Drawing-Room. It has the sweetest tone possible, resembling the soft dulciana stop of the best organs, and, by a new patent air-check, is free from the slightest harshness. Price, 3 stops, oak, 15 gu.; mahogany, 15 gu.; rosewood, 14 gu.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S HARMONIUMS for SALE, from 6 gu. to 110 gu. Alexandras, Wholesale Agents. Illustrated Catalogues on application.—ChapPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM. Solid Oak Case, Five Octaves, and Two Foot-Boards.
 The ever-increasing musical culture in all classes of society has created a demand for free reed instruments of a superior quality to those hitherto manufactured.
 The instruments now offered to the public will be found to be of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable as regards tone. This end has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the quality rich and organ-like.
 Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows.
 The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect and without extra cost.
 CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

RECOMMENDED BY ALL THE PROFESSORS.
THE DIGITORUM (a small Dumb Piano—Patent). This remarkable invention materially assists any person to play and become perfect on the Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium, by strengthening and rendering the fingers independent in an incredibly short time; and can now be had price 15s.; or, with ivory keys, 18s. of the sole Manufacturers, CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SPRING SONG.—BRINLEY RICHARDS.
 The charming arrangement of the popular song from "Babli and Bijou" is now ready, post-free, 18 stamps. Also, by Richards, "Little Nell," 4s.; "I was a wreath of roses," 4s.; "Sweet Home" (Wrighton), 4s.; "Agnes Dei" (Mozart's Treble), 3s.; "Offertoire" (Wey), 3s.; and "With verdure clad," 3s. Post-free, half price.—J. WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, and 123, Chancery-lane.

THE MAIDEN'S FLOWER SONG. By Signor PINBUTI. Not. 1s. 6d. post-free. "One of the happiest efforts of this accomplished author. It is marked with great originality, beauty of theme, and good declamatory passages. Memo-soprano and soprano singers will receive this composition with interest, as it will prove a most useful song for the drawing-room."—Vide Standard.
 JAMES WILLIAMS, Berners-street and Chancery-lane.

A RELIC.—Fantasia Impromptu for the Piano. By MOZART. The melody of this charming composition is so graceful and the harmonies so sweet that we venture to predict for it a place with such established favourites as "Weber's Last Waltz" and Beethoven's "Adieu." Sent for 18 stamps by JAMES WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Chancery-lane.

THE SACRED HEART.—The beautiful Processional Hymn sung by the Pilgrims to Paray-le-Monial. Words and Music, six stamps; as a piece for Pianoforte or Harmonium, 15 stamps.
 E. C. BOOSEY, 2, Little Argyll-street, Regent-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT.
 Opéra Comique. By LEBEOUF. The greatest success of the day.
 LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. By Kabanov. 4s.
 LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. By Linday Sloper. 4s.
 LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. By Gramer. 4s.
 LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT QUADRILLE. Coots 4s.
 LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT VAISE. Coots 4s.
 LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT LANCES. Franchach. 4s.
 Various other arrangements in the press.
 BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NEW SONG. Composed by SANTLEY.
A SHORT TRAIL AGO. Song. Composed expressly for Edward Lloyd by CHARLES SANTLEY. Price 4s.
 BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

IT WAS A DREAM. By F. H. COWEN.
 A Song by Mlle. Titien in Dublin, and enthusiastically encored. "Indeed, a lovely composition."—Dublin Press. Price 4s.
 BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE SIESTA. By LINDSAY SLOPER.
 Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd with great success. "A very pretty idea, happily expressed and sweetly rendered."—Newcastle Chronicle. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

BRIDE BELLS. By J. L. ROECKEL.
 Sung by Madame Sherrington throughout her present tour. "Bride Bells" was rapturously received, and will no doubt become universally popular.—Orchestra. Price 4s.
 BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

REMEMBER OR FORGET. By R. HAMILTON AIDE. The most popular song of this popular composer. "It will recommend itself to many for its undesignated simplicity, melody, and accompaniment, being remarkably easy and effective."—Morning Post. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

THE NATIONAL SONGS OF ENGLAND, I. SCOTLAND, WALES, and IRELAND. Each complete in volume. Price 3s. 6d. paper; 4s. cloth, gilt edges. The Royal Edition. BOOSEY and Co. London; all Music-sellers and Book-sellers; and at the Railway Stations.

STEPHEN HELLER'S NEW WORKS.
THIRTY-THREE VARIATIONS on "THEME by BEETHOVEN." 2s.
DEUX IMPROMPTUS. 2s. each.
TROIS NOCTURNES. 3s. each.
DANS LES BOIS (New Series) Seven Nos., 2s. and 3s.
DER FREISCHUTZ STUDIES. 3s.
 BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

PENNERON'S METHOD for MEZZO SOPRANO.—A New Edition of this celebrated method is published this day, for the benefit of the Composer's Widow. Price 8s., with an English text.—BOOSEY and Co., London.

SHILLING BOOKS OF CLASSICAL PIANOFORTE MUSIC in BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET.
 143. CHOPIN'S MAZURKAS (Complete).
 147. CHOPIN'S WALTZES (Complete).
 150. STEPHEN HELLER'S PROMENADE D'UN SOLITAIRE.
 140. STEPHEN HELLER'S 24 STUDIES.
 80. STEPHEN HELLER'S 15 SHORT PIECES.
 80. SCHUBERT'S 4 IMPROMPTUS AND 6 MOMENTS.
MUSICALS.
 22. MENDELSSOHN'S SONGS WITHOUT WORDS. (1 and 2).
 24. DITTO. (3 and 4).
 25. DITTO. (5 and 6).
 Also Beethoven's Sonatas, Mozart's Sonatas, and Schubert's Sonatas, all complete in "Boosey's Musical Cabinet."
 London: BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

IMPORTANT WORKS FOR THE ORGAN.
 ANDER'S ORGAN BOOKS 2 vols. (58 pieces), each 5s. 6d.
 HENRY'S ORGAN BOOKS 3 vols. (58 pieces) 5s. 6d.
 HENRY'S ORGAN BOOK 12 pieces 7s. 6d.
 HENRY'S ORGAN STUDENT (12 pieces) 5s. 6d.
 J. L. HATTON'S ORGAN BOOK (12 pieces) 7s. 6d.
 BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING DANCE-BOOKS in the MUSICAL CABINET. Post-free, 1s. 1d.
 154. THE OFFENBACH NUMBER, including the GENIEVRE DANCE MUSIC.
 155. GOUNOD'S SIX BEST SETS OF WALTZES.
 157. STRAUSS'S WALTZES. Second Selection.
 101. STRAUSS'S WALTZES, including THE BEAUTIFUL DANUBE.
 With 18 Illustrations, 60 pages, price 2s. 6d.,
 LILLIE'S FIRST MUSIC-BOOK.—"The most admirable tutor extant for the pianoforte."—Somerset Herald. "The clearest instruction book that has ever been written."—Illustrated. "To the thousands of mothers and sisters who have charge of our future pianists this book will be a godsend."—The Daily Telegraph.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING OPERAS for PIANOFORTE in the MUSICAL CABINET. Each Book contains from Forty-eight to Eighty pages, including OVERTURES, FIGARO, ROBERT LE DIABLE, DON JUAN, LUCREZIA BORGIA, DER FREISCHUTZ, CRISPINO E LA COMARE, IL TROVATORE, DON PASQUALE, FRA DIAVOLO, RIGOLETTO, KAMPA, FERICHOLE, THE BRIGANDS.
 THE GRAND DUCHESSE, FIDELIO, IL BARBIERE DI SIVIGLIA, IL DONAMBUOLA, UN BALLO IN MASCHERA, LA TRAVIATA, MARIETTA, THE CROWN DIAMOND, MASANIELLO, LE DOMINO NOIR, LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR, PRINCESS OF TRAIKINDER, GENIEVRE DE BRABANT.

WORKS for CHORAL SOCIETIES.
 Arthur Sullivan's "On a d. F. H. Cowen's "Rose a d. Shore and Sea" 2 6 Maiden 2 6
 Arthur Sullivan's "Pro-d. F. H. Cowen's Six Part-digal Son" 1 6 Songs 1 6
 Arthur Sullivan's Six Madeline's 34 Open-Air 1 0
 Arthur Sullivan's Six Songs 1 0
 Hatton's Twelve Four-Part Songs 1 0
 The Children's Choral Book 6 6
 Garland of Songs for Villages 0 6
 The Golden Harvest (12 German Part Songs) 0 6
 Also Boosey's Penny Editions of Bishop's Gloss, Standard Gloss, Part-Songs, Operatic and Oratorio Chorus. List gratis.
 BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

MUSIC for the HOME CIRCLE.
 Golden Ferns Polka (W. Smallwood) 3s.
 Sparkling Spray Polka (A. Wright) 3s.
 The Torrent Galop (W. Smallwood) 3s.
 The Mosaic Quadrilles. Solo and Duet 3s.
 "Let the Hills Resound" (B. Richards) 4s.
 The Shah's March (J. Bricham) 4s.
 Clementia (F. Lemoine) 4s.
 My Old Mate and Me (Miss Lindsey) 3s.
 Let the Hills Resound (B. Richards) 3s.
 Village Belle (Miss Parker) 3s.
 Only One to Bless and Cheer (W. Wrighton) 4s.
 A Rose in Heaven. Solo and Duet (F. Abt) 4s.
 The Hills of Light. Solo and Duet (F. Abt) 4s.
 In Shadowland (C. Pissutti) 3s.
 What Shall I Sing to Thee? (C. Pissutti) 3s.
 Post-free at half price. London: BOOSEY and Co., 50, New Burlington-street.

BERTHOLD TOURS'S NEW MUSIC for the PIANOFORTE.—Plus Vite Galop, 4s.; and Whispersing of Home, 4s. each.—London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

THE NEW NATIONAL SONG, LET THE HILLS RESOUND. Words by L. F. de Turenne. Music by BRINLEY RICHARDS. "The second great success of Mr. Brinley Richards."—The Graphic. 3s.; free by post 18 stamps. As Piano Solo and Duet, 24 stamps each. Four-Part Song 4s. 6d. Class copy, 4 stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ALL SHEET MUSIC at HALF the MARKED PRICE. Post-free, both their own and the publications of other houses. Payment may be made in postage-stamps. Apply for "The Ladies' Guide" to the most popular music of the day. Sent gratis.—London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S VOCAL QUARTETS. Prices from 3d. to 4d. each. A list of these Quartets, containing, among others, the popular "Let the Hills Resound," sent post-free on application.—List gratis.
 New Burlington-street, London.

NEW MUSIC.

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD.
 Overture.
 ARTHUR A. LILLIAN.
 Performed at the Birmingham Festival.
 Paper cover, cloth back, 10s. 6d.; cloth boards, gilt letters, 12s. 6d. (net price).
 CHAMBER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

STANDARD WORKS ON HARMONY and THOROUGH BASS, &c.
 Goss (Sir John)—Harmony and Thorough Bass .. Net, 10s. 6d.
 Macfarlane (G. A.)—Rudiments of Harmony .. Net, 7s. 6d.
 Eschler (R. F.)—Treatise on Harmony .. Net, 7s. 6d.
 (Translated from the German by Franklin Taylor.)
 Burrows' Pianoforte Primer (with Chamber's Dictionary of Musical Terms) .. Net, 1s. 6d.
 Burrows' Thorough Bass Primer .. Net, 2s. 6d.
 Chamber's Dictionary of Musical Terms .. Net, 6s. 4d.
 CHAMBER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

KELER BELA'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
 Die Letzten Glicks-Stunden. Walzes .. 4s.
 Trauung-Glick. Polka Mazurka .. 4s.
 (Both elegantly illustrated in Colours.)
 Die Glicksgottin. Polka Française .. 4s.
 Keller Bela well maintains his deserved popularity with the above new compositions; like Strauss and Gungl, his dance music is thoroughly good.
 CHAMBER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

MARRIOTT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
 Alpine Schottische .. (Illustrated) 4s.
 Fun of the Ball Galop .. Ditto 4s.
 Guardians of the Night Galop .. Ditto 4s.
 Nacht-Lieder Walzes .. Ditto 4s.
 Feestlike Pier Polka .. Ditto 4s.
 Salute Galop .. Ditto 4s.
 Shah Galop .. Ditto 4s.
 Snap Dragon Quadrilles .. Ditto 4s.
 Vienna Quadrilles .. Ditto 4s.
 Warblers of Fairlight .. Ditto 4s.
 The above are being played daily at Meetings by Mr. Marriott's excellent band, and are much admired.
 CHAMBER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

NEMESIS SONGS and DANCE MUSIC (scored nightly at the Strand Theatre).—"The Language of Love" (sung by Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Hillier, Mr. Howard Paul, &c.). "What are a lady's wants to-day?" "Don't make me laugh, and take my arm." "Quadrilles and Galop, by J. FITZGERALD; and Walzes, Solos, and Duetts, 4s.; post-free, 3s. each.
 J. B. CHAMBER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

OFFENBACH'S C'EST L'ESPAGNE. 3s.
 Certainly the most popular song of the day. Sung by Madame Trebell, Labiche, Pauline Rita, Osborne Williams, Victoria Burman, Dolara, &c. Also arranged as Pianoforte Solo, by R. TOURS, 4s.
 CHAMBER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and POST-FREE.
 The largest and most varied stock of Music, by all the principal Publishers, CHAMBER and CO. undertake to forward, by return of post, on receipt of remittance, all sheet music ordered from them, no matter by whom published, at half price and post-free.
 CHAMBER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

NOTICE.—ALL MUSIC at HALF PRICE.
 The best edition of post-free, bound works, excepted. Stamps or post-free order in advance. Lists free on application.
 Horwood and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S CELEBRATED MOTTO SONGS.
 Trifles Light as Air. .. Don't be After Ten.
 Welcome as the Flowers in May. .. Could I Live my Time Over Again.
 As long as the World Goes Round. .. Always Do as I Do.
 Very suitable for Penny Readings and the Drawing-Room.
 18 stamps each.—Horwood and CREW.

SPEAK TO ME, SPEAK! is a lovely Ballad by F. CAMPANA. The Poetry is perfectly charming, and the Music quite equal to the Words. Full of melody. In keys of C and A. 34 stamps.—Horwood and CREW.

A BEAUTIFUL SONG.
FAR FROM MY EYES, YET NEAR MY HEART. By CAMPANA. Written to suit all voices. The words are full of pathos, and melody exquisite.
 24 stamps.—Horwood and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ADRIANA PATTI'S FAVOURITE SONG.
EVENING BRINGETH MY HEART BACK TO THEE. By Signor CAMPANA. A very pretty simple Ballad, worthy the attention of all singers. In the keys of F and D. 34 stamps.—Horwood and CREW.

COOTE'S AWFULLY JOLLY WALTZ (Comique), containing the famous tunes of "First She Would," "Beautiful Girls," &c. Prettily illustrated. Solo, 24 stamps; Duet, 30.—Horwood and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

TINNEY'S MARIE QUADRILLES, on Russian Airs; with a splendid illustration, in Colour, of the Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrovna, 24 stamps.
 Horwood and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

HOW TO DANCE.—COOTE'S BALL-ROOM GUIDE, for Home Practice, fully explaining how to learn Dancing without a Master. Illustrated with the figures. Post-free, 18 stamps.—Horwood and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

BERTHOLD TOURS'S NEWEST SONGS.
GONE BEFORE. Words by C. J. ROSS. 3s.
A LIFE STORY. Ditto. 3s.
THE MAIDEN AND THE SUNBEAM. In A flat and C. 2s.
 18 stamps each.—BARNES and Co., 22, Argyll-street, Regent-street, W.

EVENINGS WITH THE BEST COMPOSERS. Classical Subjects, from the Works of the Great Masters. Transcribed for the Pianoforte by EDWARD TRAVIS. Price 2s. each.

Book 1.
 WALTZ HER ANGELS. HANDEL. MENDELSSOHN.
 DEL. GLORIA. No. 12. MOZART.
 LAGO CANTABILE. HAYDN. MENDELSSOHN.
 AGNUS DEI. MOZART. FRIEDLINGSGLIED.
 SOUND THE LOUD TIMBREL. WINTERLIED.
 AVISON. NEUE LIEBE. GRUBER.
 REISELIED.
Book 2.
 HANDEL. SECOND SYMPHONY. BEETHOVEN.
 BENEDICTUS—REQUIEM. MOZART.
 GLORIA IN EXCELSIS. PERGOLESI.
Book 3.
 EVERY VALLEY. HANDEL. SPLENDENTIAE. MOZART.
 HALLELUJAH. BEETHOVEN.
Book 4.
 COME GENTLE SPRING. HAYDN.
 ANDANTE. WEBER.
 Any of the above Nos., full music size, forwarded for 18 stamps.
 London: BARNES and Co., Bishopsgate-street.

TO ANTHEA.—"Mr. Santley in Hatton's" song created a marked effect, his singing of this fine composition led to an uproarious encore. In "Anthea" Mr. Santley has a song worthy of his powers."
 BARNES and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

CHARLES HALLE'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
 Sections 1, 2, and 3. Elementary, Easy, and Moderately Difficult; also, eight numbers of Section 4. Difficult, and now ready.
 Prospectuses, containing full particulars and prices, may be had of FORTY-THREE, London, Regent-street, Oxford-street; Man-chester, Broad-street and South King-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S PIANOFORTES, from 18 gu. to 45 gu.—For SALE, Hire, or on the Three-Year System. Pianos by all the great makers. Illustrated Price-List free.
 24, Holles-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, French Harmoniums, and Wood's American Organs. Illustrated Lists free.—24, Holles-street, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE and for SALE, from 25 gu. upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 23, Great Marlborough-street, Golden-square, W.; Manufacturing, 45, Horseferry-road, Westminster.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S PATENT GALVANIC CHAIN-BANDS, BELTS, BATTERIES, &c.
 RECENTLY IMPROVED.
 Approved by the Academy of Medicine at Paris and other Medical authorities in England and abroad.
 This Self-Applicable Physical Curative is of an efficacy vastly superior to all other external remedies.
 Owing to the physiological, physical, and chemical effects of the Electricity they gently and permanently impart into the system, these appliances exercise an internal action, promoting the digestion, circulation, and nutrition, thereby assisting Nature in her efforts to restore the normal balance of health and vigour in a debilitated constitution.
 Hence the remarkable cures they daily effect in cases of—Rheumatism, Head & Tooth Ache, Epilepsy, General and Local Debility, Functional Disorders, &c.
 After all other remedies have failed, and thus popularizing Electricity in accordance with the authentic conclusions in the medical and scientific press.
 Recent improvements in these appliances by the inventor render their self-application extremely comfortable and effective, and thus remove the former inconvenience.
